
Effraim's Book of the Priesthood of God:

from ADAM to EZRA TAFT BENSON

[Prepared for the eternal Kingdom of the Father in Heaven and His Only Begotten Son; for the House of Israel, House of Judah, House of Levi, and House of Joseph; and for all the priesthoods and orders of God. Brought forth as the Millennial-day Scriptures; through the grace, mercy, and power of God.]

Written and compiled by His humble servant, a priest of the Kingdom of God, Effraim Zerdusht Al-Levi

Consecrated to
The Presidency and High Council of the Stake of Zion in Lodi California
The Church of Lord Messiah Jesus Christ of Millennial-day Saints
September 27, 1992 : 29 Elul, 5752 : 8610✻
(On the Eve of the first Millennial New Year)

PRE-PUBLICATION COPY

(All rights, including copyright and legal rights to re-publish, duplicate, or to do whatsoever is judged proper and beneficial for the Church and Mankind, are herewith consecrated to the governing body of the Church of Lord Messiah Jesus Christ of Millennial-day Saints. Effraim Zerdusht Al-Levi was a Melchizedek Priest, of the Order of the Son of God; his name, genealogy, birth or death are unknown to the world; only a few Archangels of the Kingdom of God know of his birth, mission, death, resurrection, and ascension.)

Sierra Publishing Company
133 Bright Avenue
P.O. Box 213
Jackson, California 95642

Library of Congress Catalog Card Number: 89-64064
ISBN 0-918493-90-0

Table of Contents

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Introduction	pages i through ix
c.4026-2020 B.C.	I. THE FIRST EPOCH: from Adam to Noah	pages 1 through 53
	Before the Beginning	1:1
	The Beginning (or Genesis)	1:42
(July 19, 4241 B.C.)	Man's first calendar	4:9
	Garden of the righteous in Eden	4:19
c.4026 B.C.	Adam and Eve	4:32
	Cain and Abel	11:14
3400	Seth, Egyptian gods and godesses	13:1
	Egyptian belief in the Hereafter; Mastaba masonry tombs	18:15
	Upper and lower kingdoms of Egypt	21:25
	Nobility of Egypt	26:42
	Training of Egyptian nobility	31:33
	Egyptian view of the world	35:16
2980	Pharaoh Djoser's use of stone instead of sun-dried brick in building of royal tombs	36:11
	Temples of the Sun (Son) Gods	40:6
	Primitive pagan priesthood	43:11
	Differences between the Holy Priesthood of God and the pagan priesthood	45:1
	Origins of the Holy and pagan priesthoods	46:1
2960	Noah's ordination and preparation	50:20
2370	God's Judgement; Noah's Ark; the Deluge (Flood)	50:38
c.2468-1843 B.C.	II. THE SECOND EPOCH: from Shem (Melchizedek) to Abraham	pages 55 through 90
2370	Noah's three sons, Japheth, Ham and Shem	55:1
	Terah (or Azar), father of Abraham, an idolator and seller of idols	56:10
2200	Tower of Babel, confounding of tongues; Jaredites are led to Americas	57:10
	Abram (Abraham) and the priest of Elkenah	58:41
	The Lord's appearance to Abram; His Holy anointing and revelations	60:34

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
c.1943 B.C. (Beginning of the Lord's covenant with Abram; and 430-year affliction)	Abram and his household journey southward to Egypt and Canaan	65:44
	Sarai (Sairah) is warned by Abram concerning the Egyptians	67:12
	Abram and his nephew Lot are separated	67:46
	Chedorlaomer and his allied kings are defeated; Melchizedek blesses Abram, Abram pays tithes to Melchizedek	68:17
	Abram's plea to the Lord for a son; the Lord's covenant with Abram and his seed	69:18
1932	Birth of Ishmael, by his Egyptian concubine Hagar	70:2
1919	Abram's name changed to Abraham; Sarai's to Sarah (Sairah); the covenant of circumcision	70:26
	Appearance of angels, and their prophesy concerning Sarah's pregnancy at the age of ninety, and Isaac's birth, the Lord's judgement upon Sodom and Gomorrah	71:16
1918	Abraham and king Abimelech of Gerar	73:43
1913	Isaac separated from Ishmael the day he is weaned; 400-year affliction begins	74:39
	God tests Abraham; Isaac to be sacrificed	75:36
1881	Sarah's death and burial at the cave of Machpelah	76:28
	Abraham and his chief steward Eliezar seek a wife for Isaac, Rebekah being the Lord's choice	77:11
	Abraham weds Keturah, covenant of patriarchal marriage	79:29
	Abraham the high priest and his wealth	80:30
	The Lord's blessings upon Isaac and Ishmael	81:5
1843	Death of Abraham	81:28
	Nimrod the Mighty Hunter, the builder of the Tower of Babel; Jared and his brother led by the Lord to the Americas	82:44
	Chart of the patriarchal line of descent from Shem to Abraham	89
c.1918-1473 B.C. III.	THE THIRD EPOCH: from Isaac to Moses	pages 91 through 233
1918	Isaac (Itshaq) the child of promise; Rebekah the wife of Isaac	91:1
1858	Esau and Jacob (Yaqūb), the twin sons of Isaac	92:22

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Chart of the patriarchal line of descent, from Isaac to Moses	94
c.1751 B.C.	Joseph (Yoseph) son of Jacob	95:23
	Joseph's encounters with Zuleika the wife of Potiphar in Egypt	95B:19
	Joseph as the king's prisoner; interprets Pharaoh's dream	95G:1
1738	Zaphenath Paaneah, the Egyptian name of Joseph; his marriage at the age of thirty years	95I:10
1738	Isaac's death	95I:40
	Joseph's encounter with his ten brothers; Jacob (Israel) journeys to Egypt	95N:45
	Chart of the House of Israel, that came to Egypt	96
1728	Jacob at the king's court in Egypt	97:13
	Sebeknefrure and the Hyksos (Chaldean) kings of Egypt	97:39
	Ahmose and the beginning of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egyptian pharaohs	99:7
	Mastaba masonry tombs replaced by the mortuary temples	103:18
	Queen Hatshepsut's empire	105:9
	End of the Eighteenth Dynasty	107:19
	Expedition to Jambudvipa (India); priesthood of Abraham (Brahama); the ancient gospel of the Three Basic Natures and castes of men	107:32
	Jacob's (Israel's) blessings upon Manasseh and Ephraim, the sons of Joseph	123:5
	Jacob's blessings upon his twelve sons (Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Zebulun, Issachar, Dan, Gad, Asher, Naphtali, Joseph, and Benjamin)	123:24
1711	Jacob's death; Joseph's mourning	124:40
1658	Joseph's death	125:21
	Hebrew midwives commanded by Pharaoh to kill Israelite males, and save females only	125:30
1593	Children of Israel under Egyptian bondage, afflictions and persecutions; birth of Moses (Mūsa, Moshe) son of Emram (Imran)	125:41

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Moses' childhood and growth	126:1
c.1554 B.C.	Moses in his fortieth year of life; smites an Egyptian; marries Zipporah daughter of Jethro the priest of Midian	127:9
1514	Moses in his eightieth year of life; appearance of the angel of the Lord in the burning bush near Mount Sinai	127:32
	I AM, the God, and His first revelations to Moses	128:12
	Satan's tempting of Moses	130:20
	The Ineffable Name (the Tetragrammaton)	131:16
	Moses, a witness of the Father and the Son by the power of the Holy Ghost	131:24
	Moses and his brother Aaron journey to Egypt; meet the elders of Israel and the pharaoh	132:28
	Moses the fourth generation in Egypt; the Lord remembers His covenant with Abram (Abraham)	133:33
	Moses and Aaron's encounters with Pharaoh	135:1
	The last plague and preparation for the exodus of the children of Israel	138:11
1513 (Exodus from Egypt, March/April [Nisan] 14)	Month of Nisan decreed to be the first month of the lunar calendar, instead of the month of Tishri; end of 400-year affliction which began in 1913 B.C., and end of 67-year bondage to the pharaohs of the Eighteenth Dynasty. Also Exodus begins	138:31
	Ordinance of the offerings of the firstborn and first-fruits; and the guidance of Israel's journey with pillar of cloud by day and pillar of light by night at Succoth	142:29
	Map of Exodus of Israel from Egypt and arrival at Mount Sinai	143
	Continuation of Israel's journey, and crossing the Red Sea	144:8
	Moses' prayer to the Lord after Pharaoh's horsemen and chariots are drowned	146:14
	Baptism of Israel by means of the Lord's cloud; continuation of journey southward	149:1
	Israel's murmurings; the flocks of quail, and manna	150:9
	Jethro's encounter with his son-in-law Moses	152:47
	Israel's arrival near Mount Sinai in Horeb	153:46

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	The Lord's covenant with His people Israel; the Ten Commandments (the Decalogue)	154:1
	Moses, Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy elders of Israel see God; Moses builds an altar and twelve pillars at the foot of Mount Sinai	156:32
	The Lord promises and delivers two stone tablets and complete pattern of the Tabernacle to Moses on Mount Sinai	157:3
	Moses pleads in behalf of Israel; Israel worships the golden calf, during Moses' absence; Moses in wrath breaks the tablets	161:14
	The Lord commands Moses to hew two new tablets; Moses returns from the Mount, and prepares the congregation for building the Tabernacle	163:19
c.1512 B.C. (March/April[Nisan] 1)	Tabernacle set up near Mount Sinai	166:3
— 1512 (Nisan 1-7)	Aaronic priesthood, to administer the outward ordinances, established during seven-day ceremony	171:8
	Dietary laws of Israel	172:9
	Moral code of Israel	174:4
	The Lord's command to Moses to take census of all Israel by tribe	175:39
	Camps of Israel in relation to the Tabernacle	176:4
	The Lord's ordinance of sounding the trumpets of silver	178:11
	The Tabernacle and the camps of Israel move from near Mount Sinai	178:41
	Israel's arrival at Paran; murmurings and complaints; the Lord's wrath and bringing of large quantity of quail	179:19
	Miriam and Aaron rebuked by the Lord, concerning the Cushite wife of Moses	180:47
	From Kadesh-barnea twelve men sent out to search the land of Canaan	181:40
	The wrath of the Lord upon Israel for doubting Him; Moses' supplicates in Israel's behalf	183:19
	Korah and his group's rebellion against Moses and Aaron, and the priesthood authority	184:41
	Israel's forty years of wandering in the wilderness	187:21

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
c.1513-1473 B.C.	Map of Israel's forty-year journey from Egypt to Jericho	193
	Map of campsites of Israel	194
	Israel's census taken in the plains of Moab, after nearly forty years	201:6
	Hear O Israel (Shema Israel)	207:6
— 1474 (January/February, or Shebat 1)	Moses' last words to Israel; the Second Covenant; statutes, judgements and ordinances of the Lord given to Israel in the fortieth year, in the plains of Moab	207:48
	Moses' blessings upon the twelve tribes of Israel	230:27
— 1473	Death of Moses	231:48
c.1597 B.C.-3 A.D. IV.	THE FOURTH EPOCH: from Aaron to John the Baptist	pages 235 through 1147
— 1597	Aaron's birth; the brother of Miriam and Moses; the first "Aaronic" high priest; the holy garment and breastplate (breastpiece)	235:1
	Holy garment of the Aaronic high priest	236:1
	The Lord's commandment to Moses concerning the anointing and sanctification of Aaron and his sons	237:13
— 1512 (March/April, or Nisan 1-7)	Consecration of Aaron and his sons; establishment of the temporal or Aaronic priesthood	240:35
— 1512 (September/October, or Tishri 1)	Day of blowing trumpets (of holy convocation)	240:42
	Glory of the Lord appears at the Tabernacle and consumes the burnt offering	241:12
— 1512 (September/October, or Tishri 10)	Death of Nadab and Abihu, sons of Aaron; and Aaron to enter the Most Holy on the Day of Atonement	242:1
	The goat of Azazel or the scapegoat offered as a sin offering	242:44
	The Lord's commandments to Moses concerning holy convocation	243:32
	The Lord's arrangement of covering the consequences of man's sin by means of animal sacrifices and other offering, to make atonement	244:21
	The tribe of Levi (or Al-Levi) is the Lord's	249:25
	The Levites blessing upon their people Israel	251:4
	The Aaronic priesthood, and its role in Israel	251:10

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
c.1474 B.C. (Ab, or July/August)	Death of Aaron	252:17
	The last covenant under Moses made with Israel in the plains of Moab	253:2
	Moses announces Joshua to be the Lord's choice as his successor	253:16
1473 (February/March, or Adar)	Death of Moses	253:27
	Joshua prepares Israel to cross over the Jordan	254:1
	Joshua sends spies to Jericho; Rehab the harlot	254:21
1473 (March/April, or Nisan 10)	The Lord magnifies Joshua, cuts off the waters of the Jordan River as the Aaronic priests carry the Ark of the Covenant and Israel crosses over to the other side	255:36
1473 (March/April, or Nisan 14)	The Lord removes the reproach of Egypt from the children of Israel at Gilgal; on the day of passover, exactly forty years after leaving Egypt	257:16
	Joshua meets the angel of the Lord, who gives unto him Jericho, its king and mighty men	257:27
	Joshua curses Jericho; his other exploits	259:1
	Division of the land of Canaan among the tribes of Israel	265:15
1432	The last words of Joshua, and his death	268:29
	Children of Israel forsake the Lord their God and become transgressors and idolators; beginning of the reign of the judges	279:27
1466	Othniel the first judge (captain or ruler) of Israel after Joshua (Othniel trained after conquest of Canaan to succeed Joshua)	280:24
1426	Ehud the second judge in Israel	280:33
1346	Shamgar the third judge in Israel	281:13
1326	Deborah the prophetess (the fourth judge in Israel)	281:21
	Deborah and Barak sing praises to the Lord	282:25
1279	Gideon (Jerubbaal) the fifth judge in Israel	284:15
1239	Abimelech, son of Gideon, the sixth judge in Israel	288:9
1236	Tola the seventh judge in Israel	290:36
1213	Jair the eighth judge in Israel	290:39
1173	Jephthah the ninth judge in Israel	291:24
1167	Ibzan the tenth judge in Israel	293:43

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1160 B.C.	Elon the eleventh judge in Israel	293:47
1150	Abdon (or Bedan) the twelfth judge in Israel	293:49
1142	Samson of Dan the thirteenth judge in Israel (his reign coincides with the continued oppression by the Philistines)	295:7
	Elimelech and Naomi move to Moab, due to famine; Naomi and Ruth	299:18
	Naomi and Ruth leave Moab; Ruth becomes one of the reapers of Boaz, and later his wife	300:1
	Genealogy of Boaz; the account of Judah and Tamar	303:9
	Genealogy of Obed son of Ruth	305:6
	Elkenah and his wife Hannah and their son Samuel	305:10
	Sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, become the sons of Belial	306:49
	The Man of God puts curse upon the house of Eli	307:39
	Samuel ministers as a priest under Eli the high priest at the House of the Lord	308:18
	Hophni and Phinehas are slain	309:41
1122	Philistines carry the Ark of the Covenant to Ashdod to the shrine of Dagon	310:29
	Samuel judges Israel from Ramah	312:29
	Samuel's sons walk not in his ways; elders desire a king over Israel; Samuel discourages them, but people refuse to obey him	313:7
1117	Saul anointed by Samuel as the first king in Israel	314:32
	Saul's encounters with the men of Nahash the Ammonite; Samuel's reminder to Israel of calling of the Lord their God, and their foolishness in choosing a mortal king to reign over them	316:29
	Samuel rebukes Saul for making a burnt offering, when fighting against the Philistines	318:45
	Jonathan, Saul's son, brings reproach for breaking the fast	320:36
	Saul the man of his own heart is rebuked again by Samuel for disobedience	322:27
	Samuel errs, by killing Agog; and by being more afraid of man than the Lord	323:26

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	The Lord sends Samuel to Jesse the Beth-lehemite, to anoint one of his sons	323:40
	Samuel anoints David with oil	324:17
	Goliath of the Philistines	324:31
	David fights with Goliath; and beheads the giant	324:48
	Evil spirit troubles Saul; David plays harp in Saul's court; David and Jonathan, Saul's son, become dear friends	326:43
	Saul enraged by jealousy and envy; makes David captain over a thousand; offers his daughter to make David his son-in-law	327:25
	Saul becomes David's enemy continually	328:25
	Samuel dies at Ramah	335:35
	David's involvement with Nabat and his wife Abigail, and other exploits	335:40
	David as a protector of the children of Israel; given unto the lusts and passing pleasures	336:7
1077 B.C.	Saul's death	343:15
1077	David anointed king over Judah by the elders, at the age of thirty years	344:40
	Ish-bosheth made king over Israel; Abner, Joab, Abishai, and others	345:4
1070/69	David anointed king over all Israel	348:24
	Genealogical reckoning of David and his descendants	348:44
	Bands of men of war of Israel that come to David in Hebron, to turn over the kingdom of Saul to him	350:1
	David consults the rulers and persuades the congregation of Israel and priests and Levites to gather themselves, and bring the Ark of the Covenant from Kirjath-jearim to the city of David	351:32
	David's first psalm to thank the Lord	353:3
	Nathan the prophet tells David that not he but his son will build a House of the Lord, the Temple	354:24
	David lusts after the wife of Uriah the Hittite	357:31
	Prophet Nathan rebukes David for killing the Hittite, for his lust and thievery	358:40
	Absalom, Tamar, and Amnon; their sins, lusts, and revenge	360:20

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Conspiracy of Absalom; David escapes from Jerusalem	364:26
	David is cursed by Shimei	366:4
	Absalom goes in unto his father's concubines, at the council of Ahithophel	366:33
	Absalom seeks the council of Hushai the Archite	367:1
	Ahithophel hangs himself	367:46
	Absalom hanged; victory turns into mourning	369:11
	Chief men of David's court	372:37
	David and his men slay the four giants, the brothers of Goliath (Nephilim)	373:29
	The thirty-seven mighty men of David's administration (including himself)	374:9
	David numbers Israel; this provoking the Lord, smote David's heart	375:15
	David buys Ornan's threshing floor, to build the House of the Lord	376:19
	David calls his son Solomon, and charges him to build the House of the Lord God of Israel	377:11
	David gathers priests and Levites, numbers them and assigns them their various tasks and duties	377:44
	Last days of David; his exhortation to his son Solomon	382:45
	David assembles all the congregation, the princes of Israel, the captains, officers and mighty men in Jerusalem	383:21
	David's prayer before the congregation	385:8
	David bows before an idol to defame himself	386:3
1037 B.C.	David dies, is buried in the city of David	387:3
1037	Beginning of Solomon's reign	387:10
	Solomon's encounters with Adonijah	387:24
	Solomon's judgement against the two harlots and the babe	389:33
	Princes and officers of Solomon's court; provisions for one day	390:9
	Bavsi the Miser's encounter with Solomon	391:25

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Hiram king of Tyre enters into a contract with Solomon to provide Lebanese timber of cedar and fir, in exchange for wheat and oil	393:21
	Solomon and the Shamir	394:14
	Ashmodai, the king of the demons; his capture, and encounter with Solomon	395:14
1034 B.C.	Laying of the foundation of the House of the Lord; its dimensions, etc.	398:10
	Hiram and his father cast two huge pillars of brass (Jachin and Boaz); and other intricate and great work in brass, including ten wash-basins and ten bases	399:12
1027	Completion of the House of the Lord (Solomon's Temple); related ceremonies, etc.	400:36
	Solomon's speech to the congregation, and his prayer	402:29
	The feast and rejoicing lasts seven days	405:20
1014	Thirteen years after the completion of the temple, the king's residence and government buildings are finished	406:5
	Revenues of king Solomon; his ivory throne, drinking vessels, etc.	406:32
	Solomon and the Hoopoe bird	407:23
	Solomon's letter to the queen of Sheba	408:17
	Queen of Sheba's gift and reply to Solomon	408:35
	Queen of Sheba and her various encounters with Solomon	409:10
	Solomon's son Menilek (of the Falashas)	414:17
	Fall and spiritual death of Solomon	415:1
	Solomon deceived by Ashmodai, loses all supernatural powers, and is cast out four hundred miles away from Jerusalem	416:27
	The Lord promises to rend the kingdom of Solomon; stirs up adversaries unto Solomon	419:4
997	Solomon dies, is buried in the city of David	420:38
	Collection of Psalms (sacred songs or prayers) (from Psalm 1 through Psalm 150)	421:1 to 499:8

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Words of Wisdom of king Solomon the Preacher (Proverbs and Ecclesiastes; Section 1 through Section 43)	499:15 to 532:18
997 B.C.	Rehoboam succeeds his father Solomon; kingdom of Israel divided into northern ten-tribe and southern two-tribe kingdoms	533:9
997	Jeroboam the Ephraimite made king of the northern ten-tribe kingdom	533:16
	Jeroboam despises the man of God	534:48
	Jeroboam's hand dries up, and is restored again	535:5
	Man of God cursed by an old prophet in Beth-el; slain by a lion and carcass cast in the way	535:21
	Jeroboam sends his wife in disguise to Ahijah the prophet; house of Jeroboam is cursed	536:18
980	Abijah son of Maachah/Michaiah, the granddaughter of Absalom and daughter of Uriel of Gibeah, begins his reign over Judah; war between Jeroboam and Abijah	537:14
976	Death of Jeroboam; his son Nadab reigns over Israel	538:8
	Shishak the king of Egypt comes up against Jerusalem; and takes away treasures of the House of the Lord	538:18
980	Rehoboam, son of Solomon, dies	538:36
977	Abijah dies; his son Asa reigns over Judah	538:48
976	Nadab begins to reign over Israel	540:4
975	Baasha son of Ahijah slays Nadab and begins to reign over Israel	540:7
937	Asa dies; his son Jehoshaphat reigns over Judah	541:8
952	Baasha dies; his son Elah reigns over Israel	541:12
951	Zimri kills his master Elah; reigns seven days, and slays all the house of Baasha; exploits of Omri and Tibni	541:15
940	Omri dies; his son Ahab the most corrupt and wicked, begins to reign over Israel	541:41
	Elijah the prophet warns Ahab; other encounters of Elijah	542:11
	Elijah, Ahab, Obadiah, and the prophets of Baal	543:7
	Ben-hadad king of Syria and Ahab	546:15

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Naboth the Jezreelite and Ahab	548:21
937 B.C.	Jehoshaphat son of Asa reigns over Judah	549:36
	Jehoshaphat joins forces with Ahab	550:24
	Micaiah the prophet	550:38
	Jehu the son of Hanani the prophet	552:1
	Jehoshaphat sets the Levites as the judges in Judah	552:9
	Jehoshaphat speaks to the congregation, and his prayer	552:32
913	Jehoshaphat dies; his son Jehoram reigns over Judah	554:25
905	Jehoram dies of sickness and disease	556:11
	Elijah the prophet and Elisha	556:19
917	Joram (Jehoram) son of Ahab reigns over Israel	557:32
	Moabite king Mesha fights against Judah and Israel; offers up his eldest son for a burnt offering to his god Chemosh	558:22
	Elisha the prophet and the woman; other works of the prophet	559:1
	Elisha and the wild gourds	560:37
	Elisha feeds an hundred men	561:1
	Naaman the leper and Elisha; covetousness of Gehazi, the servant of Elisha	561:8
	Ben-hadad king of Syria besieges Samaria; other works of Elisha	563:33
905	Jehoram dies; his son Ahaziah begins to reign over Judah	566:22
904	Elisha sends an Aaronic priest to anoint Jehu king over Israel	566:34
	Jehu sets out to destroy the house of Ahab	567:21
	Jehu becomes a servant to Shalmaneser III king of Assyria	570:8
	Assyrian nation, its culture and kings	570:14
876	Jehu dies; his son Jehoahaz reigns over Israel	574:10
	Ahaziah son of Jehoram is made king of Judah by the inhabitants	574:13

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Jehoiada the Aaronic high priest brings Israel together; to renew their covenant, to become the Lord's people	574:47
898 B.C.	Jehoash (Joash) is made king over Judah at the age of seven years	575:45
	Jehoiada the good priest dies at the age of one hundred and thirty years; and Jehoash is corrupted by the princes of Judah	576:36
	Jehoash and princes of Judah conspire against Zechariah the son of Jehoiada	577:3
857	Amaziah son of Jehoash reigns over Judah	577:21
843	Jeroboam II son of Joash (Jehoash) begins to reign over Israel in Samaria	578:38
	Jonah the prophet; his preaching in Ninevah	578:46
	Jonah swallowed by a great fish	579:31
829	Amaziah is slain; Uzziah his son is made king over Judah	581:1
802	Zachariah son of Jeroboam II reigns over Israel	582:11
	The words of the Lord against Jehu's household fulfilled	582:16
791	Shallum begins to reign over Israel	582:19
791	Menahem slays Shallum, and pays a thousand talents of silver to king of Assyria (Tiglath-puleser) to be recognized as the official king of Israel	582:21
780	Pekahiah son of Menahem begins to reign over Israel	582:34
778	Pekahiah is murdered and Pekah begins to reign over Israel	582:37
777	Jotham son of Uzziah reigns over Judah	582:42
	Amos the prophet	583:9
	Words of Amos the prophet of the Lord	583:23
762	Jotham dies; his son Ahaz begins to reign over Judah	590:7
758	Hoshea begins to reign over Israel	591:43
	Shalmaneser king of Assyria	591:46
745	Hezekiah son of Ahaz begins to reign over Judah	592:5
	Prophets Amos and Hosea	592:18

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Words of Hosea	592:25
	Micah the prophet	601:17
	Words of Micah	601:31
	Isaiah the prophet; and his prophecies	607:1
	Words of Isaiah	609:9
740 B.C.	Shalmaneser V; Israel carried away by the king of Assyria	625:21
732	Sennacherib son of Shalmaneser V carries the righteous of the Judean fenced cities; they are planted throughout the organized world	625:42
	Account of the children of Dan	626:38
	Tobit; and his account of captivity	628:1
	Words of Tobit	628:4
	Hezekiah king of Judah comes under tribute to the king of Assyria	631:45
	Assyrian representations; oldest known aqueduct constructed under Sennacherib	634
	Isaiah the prophet sends words to Hezekiah	635:1
	Isaiah visits Hezekiah	635:45
	Merodach-baldan king of Babylonia sends letters and present to Hezekiah	636:22
716	Hezekiah dies; his son Manasseh reigns over Judah	636:45
	Manasseh rules in wickedness, sheds innocent blood	637:16
661	Manasseh dies; his son Amon reigns over Judah	637:38
659	Amon is slain by his servants; his son Josiah reigns over Judah	637:47
	Josiah begins his reign when he is eight years old	638:1
	Josiah's eighteenth year of reign; his efforts to purge the land of Judah	638:11
628	Josiah is killed by the archers	640:28
	Seventeenth Zion (or Perfect Land) of the Lord	641:9
	Taxilla (Takhte-Sila) the seat of the Kingdom	641:18
628	Jehoahaz son of Josiah begins to reign over Judah	641:34
628	Pharaoh Necho puts Jehoahaz in bands; appoints Eliakim (Jehoiakim) son of Josiah king over Israel	641:42

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Jehoiakim becomes tributary of Nebuchadnezzar	642:6
618 B.C.	Jehoiakim dies; his son Jehoiachin reigns over Judah	642:13
	Nebuchadnezzar prepares to besiege Jerusalem; Jehoiachin and his household carried to Babylon	642:21
617	Zedekiah (Mattaniah) is made king over Judah by Nebuchadnezzar	642:33
613	Nebuchadnezzar dwells in Nineveh	642:45
	Arpaxad the king of the Medes in Ecbatana; Nebuchadnezzar makes war with Arpaxad	643:10
	Nebuchadnezzar and Holofernes	644:9
	Words of Achiar the Ammonite to Holofernes concerning the ancestry of the children of Israel	645:44
	Holofernes goes to battle against the Israelites in Bethulia	648:13
	Judith of Bethulia; she is led by the Holy Spirit to destroy Holofernes	649:39
	Judith is blessed by the priest Ahaziah and the people of Bethulia	656:22
	Achiar is circumcised and joins the House of Israel	657:6
	Judith's psalm of praise	658:7
	Holofernes' death by a woman causes great shame for the Assyrians and Babylonians	659:28
607 (June/July, 9 Tammuz)	Jerusalem is besieged; in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign	659:34
607 (July/August, 7 Ab)	Nebuzar-adan burns the House of the Lord, the king's house, and other dwellings in Jerusalem	659:46
	Jeremiah the prophet	660:27
	Chart of the kings and prophets of Judah and Israel	661
	Lamentations of Jeremiah	662:37
	Words of Jeremiah	667:9
	Ezekiel the prophet	736:14
	Ezekiel's commission and vision	737:35
	Words of Ezekiel	739:11
	Susanna and the two elders	802:12

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Daniel moved by the Holy Spirit, defends Susanna	803:31
	Daniel carried to Babylon, with other chosen seed of Judah	804:33
	Nebuchadnezzar's dream	805:21
	Daniel interprets Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the great image of gold, silver, brass, iron and clay	806:45
	Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego disregard the decree of king Nebuchadnezzar to worship the golden image; fiery furnace does not hurt them, the Son of God saves them	808:21
	Words of Nebuchadnezzar	809:40
— 581 B.C.	Nebuchadnezzar's last words	812:15
	Babylonian conception of the world	814
	Genealogy of Nebuchadnezzar	815:25
	Daniel's dream and vision of the four winds and four great beasts	816:20
— 552	Daniel's vision of Shushan and the bank of river Ulai	818:7
	Vishtaspa (Ahasuerus, Gushtasp, Hystaspes)	819:24
	Darius son of Vishtaspa	819:29
	Isaiah's prophecy concerning Cyrus	819:36
	Birth of Cyrus; his childhood	819:44
— 540	Cyrus sends Darius against Babylon	820:40
	Darius a great builder of municipal works	821:1
— 539 (September/October 5/6, Tishri 16)	Darius captures Babylon	822:14
	Cyrus officially confers the Babylonian kingdom on Darius	822:20
	Belshazzar's great feast; writing on the wall	822:24
	Daniel brought before Belshazzar; Daniel interprets the writing on the wall; Belshazzar the king makes him the third ruler in the kingdom	823:13
	Daniel's first encounter with Cyrus; with priests of Bel	824:12
	Daniel in the lion's den six days	825:27
	Habakkuk the prophet and Daniel	825:30
	Daniel ignores the decree of Darius, prays to his God in the usual manner; cast again into the den of lions	826:12

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Darius' decree concerning Daniel's God	827:20
	Daniel the highest man among the kings of his time	827:30
	Words of Daniel from his book	827:37
—537 B.C.	Zerubbabel (Sheshbazzar)	833:13
—537	Haggai and Zechariah the prophets	833:18
—537	Words of Haggai	833:26
—537	Words of Zechariah	835:23
	Ending of Shemitic (Arabian or Hebrew) political dominion, beginning of Japhetic (Persian or Aryan) dominion	845:34
	Age of healing, salvation and enlightenment	845:45
	Injunction of Minuchir, the seventh Persian king, to his son Nadir	846:17
	Darius' proclamation that Jews may return to Jerusalem to rebuild the House of God; Zerubbabel (Sheshbazzar) made the governor of Jerusalem	846:38
	Darius' decree	846:45
(CHRONOLOGY AND SCRIPTURES OF MEDO-PERSIAN-ELAMITES; from 6618 to 330 B.C.)	Chronological reckoning of the Persian and Zoroastrian priests and kings; from the first Lord Messiah, Ahura Mazda, unto Darius III Codomannus, brother of Alexander of Macedonia	848 to 856
—(1580)	Kai-Omars or Gayomard the first monarch of Persia	857:1
—(1550)	Hoshang, son of Kai-Omars	857:16
—(1510)	Tahoomers, son of Hoshang	857:25
—(1480)	Jamshid, son of Tahoomers	857:39
—(780)	Zohak (Azi Dahak) the Arab takes away the kingdom, Jamshid becomes a wanderer	858:11
	Abteen, son of Jamshid is secretly made king of Persia	859:18
	Zohak kills Abteen, Faridoon's father; Faridoon's mother flees to Alburz mountains	859:38
	Faridoon at the advice of Kavah the blacksmith proceeds against Zohak	860:32

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Zohak seated upon the throne, a seventeenth century representation	861
(763 B.C.)	Faridoon captures the House that Zohak built (Bait-ul-Mukaddus); frees Jamshid's two sisters	862:11
	Faridoon's three sons (Tur, Irij and Salim) are married to the three daughters of king of Yemen	862:36
	Tur murders his brother Irij, at the enticing of his brother Salim (Salm)	863:28
	Faridoon commands the gilders of China to inscribe on the front of his palace	863:37
	Birth of Minuchir	863:45
	Minuchir kills Tur and Salim	864:22
(712)	Faridoon dies; Minuchir becomes heir to the Persian empire	864:24
(712)	Minuchir reigns one hundred and twenty years; he dies, his son Nadir reigns; counsel of Minuchir to his son	864:29
	Sam Suwar's white-haired son Zal	864:36
	Zal's son Rustam	865:11
(585) KAIANIDE DYNASTY; ELAMITES, ARPACHSHADITES, SYRIANS, AND ASSHURITES)	Nadir killed by Afrasiab; Afrasiab becomes monarch of Persia	865:25
	Zau and Garshasp	865:31
(539)	Cyrus II takes over the government of Persia, Garshasp being unequal to the task	865:39
(642)	Kai-Kobad crowned king; his reign lasts one hundred years	865:45
(642)	Cyrus I (Kai-Kaus), son of Kai-Kobad, succeeds his father	866:16
	Cambyses I, son of Cyrus I, marries Afrasiab's daughter. (Out of this alliance, as prophesied by Isaiah, a Savior, Cyrus of the Medo-Persians and Elamites is born.)	867:19
	Birth of Cyrus II (Kai-Khosrau, Cyrus the Great)	867:34
(559)	Cyrus II coregent with Vishtaspa (Ahasuerus)	868:14
(537)	Cyrus II proclaims liberty to the Jews, that they might return to Jerusalem (the 70-year period of desolation of Jerusalem ends, which began in 607 B.C.)	868:37

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
(642 B.C.) (DYNASTY OF KAVIS OR POET-KINGS OF EASTERN IRAN)	Arshama (Lohurasp) of the dynasty of poet-kings	868:45
	Arshama's four sons (Ardashir, Shydasp, Vishtaspa, and Zarir)	869:5
	Vishtaspa (Hystaspes, Ahasuerus, Gushtasp)	869:8
	Vishtaspa flees from his father's house, travels to Rome	869:19
	King of Rome holds a swayamvara for his daughter Kitabun; Vishtaspa is chosen	870:4
(612)	Arshama retires to devote himself to prayer and worship of God	871:25
(612)	Vishtaspa (Ahasuerus) becomes the ruler of Iran; dwells at the palace in Shushan (Susa)	871:29
	Vishtaspa is taught the Divine knowledge by Zerdusht (Zoroaster or Zarathustra), the Guber	871:37
(576)	Zarathustra or Zerdusht goes to Balkh, to administer relief to the ill Arshama	871:46
	Zarathustra of the Spitamas, the prophet of God, reveals himself to Vishtaspa; Vishtaspa becomes his disciple	872:2
	Vishtaspa's brother Zarir is killed during the conflict with Arjasp and territory of Chin (China)	872:20
	Isfendiyar is named by Vishtaspa as his successor	872:41
	Isfendiyar invades Rome, Hindustan, and Arabia; establishes the religion of Zarathustra	873:1
(612)	Arshama is slain in Balkh	873:33
	Kahram, Arjasp's son, imprisons people, destroys places of worship, and the sacred scriptures of the ancient fire-worshippers	873:42
	Kahram defeats Vishtaspa; Isfendiyar defeats Kahram	874:7
	Isfendiyar conquers the brazen fortress of Arjasp	874:47
	Vishtaspa, Isfendiyar and Rustam	875:16
	Isfendiyar dies; his son Bahman is raised by Rustam	875:21
	Bahman dies of a snake bite; his wife Humai reigns in his stead	876:1
	Humai reigns in justice and beneficence; gives birth to a son, Darab; he is brought up secretly	876:12
	Darab meets his real mother Humai; Darab and Rishnawad; supernatural voice	877:11

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #
	Darab conducts the affairs of the kingdom with humanity, justice, and benevolence; secures happiness for his people	878:30
	Dara defeats Philip of Macedon, the king of Rome; and asks to marry his daughter Nahid (Naheed)	878:46
	Nahid (Naheed) the mother of Alexander (the Great)	879:18
	Darab dies; his son Dara, from another wife, reigns in Persia in the spirit of his father	879:29
	Philip of Rome dies; Alexander becomes king of Rome	879:34
	Rome is no longer a tributary to Persia; Alexander warns Dara to prepare for war	879:41
	Alexander defeats Dara, takes possession of the capital; devotes himself to winning the affection of the people	880:31
	Dara's two ministers betray and murder him	881:16
	Alexander marries Dara's daughter Roshung	881:47
	Alexander proceeds to conquer India; conquers Kanuj, then goes to Mecca for pilgrimage; Alexander's death in Kashan foretold	882:8
(330 B.C.)	Alexander dies at Kashan	882:38
	Hakhamanish (Achaemenid) Empire ends with Alexander of Macedonia	882:41
	The account of Mordecai the Benjamite and his cousin Esther (Hadhassah), during the time Ahasuerus (Vishtaspa) was at the palace in Shushan (Susa)	883:11
	Descendants of the seven sons of Japheth, son of Noah	893:21
	Map of the settlements of the descendants of Japheth, Shem and Ham	894
ZARATHUSTRA or ZOROASTER (618)	Divine birth of Zarathustra of the Spitamas; the first Guardian Spirit (or prophet) raised by the collective effort of all the celestial hosts	896:1
	The Lord (Ahura Mazda) speaks with Vohumano and Ashavahisto concerning producing a Zarathustra (of the Divine seed)	897:4
	The Wise Lord's plan to bring forth Zarathustra (Son of God); Porushaspo and Dukdaub and Haoma	897:13

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Porushaspo and six white cows with yellow ears	897:45
	Demons assemble to destroy Zarathustra	898:9
	Haoma and cow's milk	898:21
	Demons devise the death of Zarathustra in his mother's womb	898:45
	Celestial voice warns the mother of the medical treatment by wizards and soothsayers	899:1
	Three days before the birth of Zarathustra the village of Porushaspo becomes all luminous	899:13
— (618 B.C.)	Zarathustra laughs at birth	899:26
	Karaps (the unbelievers) make various attempts to kill the holy infant Zarathustra	899:36
	Kavis or poets, the rulers of eastern Persia; the Druj (hypocrites)	902:10
(618)	Birth of Zarathustra marks the end of second three thousand years of mixed existence (holy mixed with the worldly)	902:47
	Mashya (Matro) and Mashyoi (Matroyao), progenitors of all men of the world	903:18
(588)	Zarathustra of the Spitamas ordained into the Holy Order of the Son of God	905:18
	The All-Wise Lord explains to Zarathustra the duality of Good and Evil	906:35
	The female Druj tempts Zarathustra	907:7
(541)	Zarathustra of the Spitamas is taken out of the world in his forty-seventh year as the Guardian Spirit (or prophet) of the Holy Order	907:36
	Thirty-three Pearls of Great Price:	908:1
	1. The Choice between Right and Wrong (A Hymn of Zarathustra)	909:1
	2. A Prayer for Enlightenment (A Hymn of Zarathustra)	910:18
	3. A Prayer for Guidance (A Hymn of Zarathustra)	913:1
	4. Exhortation to the Faithful (A Hymn of Zarathustra)	914:21
	5. Fatherhood of God	915:42
	6. The Earth (or the Earthly)	922:1
	7. Funerals and Purifications (including Rituals and Ceremonies)	923:29

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	8. The Sixteen Perfect Lands (or Zions)	933:1
	9. The First Man (or the First Creation of the Eternal Father)	935:1
	10. The Evil Winters (or the Great Gathering of the Archangels)	937:30
	11. Assault on Zarathustra	939:42
	12. The One of Whom the Questions are Asked	943:1
	13. The Best Healing	944:11
	14. Hymn to the Sun (or Son)	944:25
	15. The Glory of God	945:28
	16. The Praise of Holiness	947:1
	17. The Fravashis of the Faithful (or the Souls, the Heavenly Selves of the Faithful)	947:15
	18. Abodes of the Soul (or Higher Self)	950:24
	19. Of the Dog (and his independence)	953:8
	20. Apostasy of the Iron Age	956:31
	21. Evil to the Good	958:6
	22. The Chinvad Bridge	959:1
	23. The Nature of Heaven	962:6
	24. The Nature of Hell	963:22
	25. Reception in Heaven	964:21
	26. The Two Regions	965:8
	27. The Order of Creation	965:37
	28. The Flood	966:34
	29. The Ancestry of the World	968:32
	30. The Resurrection	970:44
	31. The Essence of Zarathustra's Religion	973:29
	32. The Mazdayasnian Confession	976:3
	33. The Third Separation of the Third Millennium (and the Renovation of the World)	977:5
	Additional background into the Religion of Zarathustra (Zoroaster or Zerdusht)	978:26
	Atonement Hymns used during the annual five days of fasting, prayer and praising the Father, the Son, the Amesha Spentas (Immortal Ones), Yazatas (Worshipful Ones), Atar (fire) and Haoma (sacred plant); and to live and celebrate Good Thoughts, Good Words, Good Deeds, Good Religion and Good Life	982:7
	Hymn to the Sun, Atar, and Haoma	982:14
	Hymn to the Worshipful Ones (Yazatas)	983:18
	Hymn to the Immortal Ones (Amesha-Spentas)	986:25
	Hymn to the Wise Lord	988:18
	Hymn to the Eternal Father	991:24

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
(522 B.C.)	Persian Empire under Darius (Daryavaoosh), son of Vishtaspa (Ahasuerus)	993:1
	A background into Persian and Aryan culture; and the Hakhamanish (or Achaemenid) Empire	993:21
	Persians known for fidelity and trust; traitors dealt with harshly	1001:3
	A background into Persian Scriptures, Avesta	1002:39
	Representations of the Oracles, Nine-Spirits of Zarathustrian Intelligence	1006
	Cyrus' tomb at Pasargadai	1008:4
	Darius' tomb at Naqsh-i-Rustam	1009
	Persepolis constructed by Darius	1010
	Darius' trilingual gold foundation tablets	1013
	Representation of Darius, and other representations	1015
	Decadence of Persian Empire begins with Xerxes	1017:4
	Spiritual developments in India	1020:7
	Buddha, the Japhetic or Aryan Christ, the Holy One of the Japhetic people of ancient India	1020:27
(563)	Buddha's birth, growth, maturity and ministry	1021:1
(483)	Buddha's death	1039:43
	Tathagata's Doctrine of Self-salvation and Enlightenment	1041:1
	Seven Sublime Truths	1043:13
	First Sublime Truth Concerning the Three Signs Common to All Life Forms	1043:39
	Law of Impermanence or Change	1044:29
	Soul or Higher Self, Parable of the Banyan Tree	1046:34
	Sage Yajnavalkya teaches the truths of Soul or Higher Self and Immortality to his wife Maitrei	1047:22
	Suffering or Dukkha	1048:29
	Three Gates of Hell: Greed or Covetousness, Anger or Hatred, Illusion or Desire (Romance)	1050:31
	Second Sublime Truth Concerning the Law of Cause and Effect (Karma)	1050:44
	Moral Code of Ten Precepts, to speed up release from rebirth and suffering	1051:22

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Third Sublime Truth Concerning the Wheel of Causation and Rebirth	1054:40
	Wheel of Rebirth or Becoming	1055
	The Twelve Spokes (or Nidanas) of the Wheel	1056:1
	Four Noble or Aryan Truths	1057:18
	Fourth Sublime Truth Concerning the Way of the Tathagata (or the Noble Eight-fold Path)	1059:16
	The Eight-fold Path, the Way to Self-salvation and Enlightenment	1060:1
	Fifth Sublime Truth Concerning the Ten Shackles to Overcome	1065:20
	Sixth Sublime Truth Concerning the Four Stages of Spiritual Advancement	1067:30
	Seventh Sublime Truth Concerning the Four Divine States of Consciousness	1068:15
	Council of the monks at Rajagrha	1069:33
(383 B.C.)	General conference at Vaisali	1070:1
	Ashoka's rock edicts and columns	1071:26
	Maitreya Buddha	1074:39
	Vow of a Suffering Bodhisattva, or Suffering Savior	1076:14
	Mahayana sect or the Great Vehicle	1077:14
	Daily life of a monk	1078:45
	Four Sublime Moods (or Brahma Viharas)	1079:2
	Buddhist influence upon the later religion of Christianity	1079:37
	Higher Vehicle (Mahayana) and Lesser Vehicle (Hinayana) Sects of the Lord	1080:39
	Vehicle of the Thunderbolt (Vajrayana) sect	1081:17
	Savioresses (or Taras)	1081:27
	Tantric Buddhism	1082:2
	Plato's Line (or Scale of Ascension)	1082:18
	Tenzin Gyatso, the 14th Dalai Lama of Tibet	1084:7
(330)	Alexander and Hellenism; Darius III Codomannus	1085:1
(324)	Chandragupta Maurya (Sandrocottus); Seleucus Nicator	1085:30
(302)	Magasthenes at the Mauryan Court at Pataliputra	1086:1

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Bindusara son of Chandragupta	1089:10
(269 B.C.)	Ashoka son of Bindusara	1089:20
	Vassal kings, dynasts, cities and people of the Seleucid Empire	1091:27
	Arshak (Arsaces) and the dynasty of the Parthians	1095:43
End of Medo-Persian (Aryan/Indian) Chronology	Textual end of the Holy Priesthood of the Medo-Persians, Elamites and Arpachshadites (or Aryans and Indians); textual return to the Shemitic or Jewish Priesthood where it was left off	1097:8
516/15 B.C.	Zerubbabel, Nebuchadnezzar, Ezra	1097:8
	Jerusalem Temple built under Zerubbabel and Jeshua	1098
	Ezra the Aaronic priest	1098:8
	Nehemiah the cup-bearer of Artaxerxes I, goes to Jerusalem to rebuild the walls	1099:26
455	Walls of Jerusalem completed under Nehemiah	1100:12
	Malachi the prophet of the Lord	1100:35
	Ezra's account	1101:3
	Darius the king makes a search for the Decree, concerning the House of the Lord in Jerusalem	1107:13
	Darius' Decree	1107:19
	Artaxerxes' decree unto Ezra the priest	1109:15
455	Nehemiah's account	1114:20
443	Words of Malachi	1132:1
	No major developments in Palestine for over four hundred years, after Ezra, Nehemiah, and Malachi. The teaching scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees, the Druj (hypocrites)	1134:43
175	Antiochus Epiphanes, the Maccabees	1136:12
135	Mattathias, Judas Maccabaeus, Simon, Ptolemy, John Hyrcanus	1137:1
39	Herod Antipas	1138:4
22	Herod's temple	1140:11
	Genealogy of the Herods	1142:12
	Zechariah the Aaronic priest, husband of Elizabeth	1143:2

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Account of Zechariah and Elizabeth	1143:5
	Angel Gabriel appears to Mary in Galilee	1144:36
	Mary goes to Ain Kairim, dwells with Elizabeth and Zechariah for three months	1145:9
	Mary speaks to Elizabeth; praises and magnifies the Lord	1145:20
2/1 B.C.	Naming of John	1146:3
	Zechariah's tongue loosed again	1146:10
	John to prepare the way for the Savior	1147:19
2/1 B.C. - 632 A.D.	V. THE FIFTH EPOCH: from Jesus to Mohammed	pages 1149 through 1662
	Effraim's testimony of Christ Jesus, who was sent forth in the Meridian of Time	1149:1 to 1318:48
	Mary engaged to Joseph the carpenter; found to be pregnant with the child of the Holy Ghost	1154:29
	Caesar Augustus, Nazareth, Bethlehem	1155:1
	Herod Antipas and the wise men	1155:30
2/1	Jesus' birth in the stable of the inn	1156:18
	Herod's decree to slay all children two years old and and under	1156:25
	Angels of the Lord appear to the shepherds; Church of Nativity	1157:2
	Jesus' circumcision and naming; Simeon's blessing and prophesy	1159:41
	Anna the prophetess	1160:24
	Joseph is told in a dream to flee into Egypt, with mother and child; returns to Galilee	1160:34
12 A.D.	Jesus at the Temple in Jerusalem, with the teachers of the law	1161:13
	Genealogy of Christ Jesus	1162:4
	Jesus and John the son of Zechariah and Elizabeth	1163:1
17 A.D.	Jesus is brought to America at the age of seventeen to be trained for his future ministry	1164:1
(23 B.C.)	Samuel The Lamanite prophesies to the Nephites in the Americas; great storms, thunder and lightning and calamities follow	1164:21

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
(17 B.C.)	Day prevails throughout the night, and a new star appears in the sky; prophesy of Samuel the Lamanite fulfilled	1166:24
	Dreadful voice of the Father precedes the coming of Jesus Christ in the land Bountiful in America	1170:39
	Jesus' birth delayed seventeen years, due to wickedness of the people	1168:26
17 A.D.	Jesus speaks to the Nephites; ordains priests and the Twelve Apostles	1171:24
	Names of the Twelve Apostles	1172:43
	Jesus' words unto the Nephites in America, his blessings, facts and parables	1172:49
	Jesus rebukes the hypocrites of Jerusalem and Nazareth	1176:27
	Law of Moses is fulfilled in Christ	1177:29
17/18	The other sheep of the Lord (in Rome)	1178:5
	Jesus heals their sick and afflicted	1180:14
	Jesus blesses the bread and wine	1181:11
	Whoso partaketh the Sacrament unworthily, he eateth and drinketh damnation to his soul	1182:25
	Congregation is blessed with the Holy Ghost; Jesus prays to the Father; Nephites manifest great faith	1183:31
	Jesus reads from the scroll the words of Isaiah and Malachi; and expounds the Scriptures	1185:8
	Nine of the Twelve Apostles of Jesus never to taste death	1196:17
	Jesus departs from the land of the Nephites in America; visits Rome and other places	1197:19
29	Jesus returns to Galilee after twelve years; during this time John the Baptist becomes the prophet of God in Palestine	1197:29
29	John preaches baptism of repentance for the remission of sins	1197:45
	John prepares the way for the Messiah	1198:26
29	Jesus is baptized by John, at the age of thirty years	1199:7
	Jesus is led into the wilderness, is tried and tempted by the devil; Jesus fasts for forty days	1199:14

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Andrew and Simon Peter; Philip, Nathanael	1200:1
	Marriage in Cana of Galilee, water is made wine	1200:23
30 A.D.	Jesus drives the moneychangers out of the Temple in Jerusalem	1201:9
30	Nicodemus and Jesus	1201:24
	Jesus must increase and John decrease	1202:35
	John the Baptist testifies of the Word, that in the beginning the Word was God	1202:46
30/31	John is imprisoned by Herod Antipas	1203:39
	Jesus and the Samaritan woman	1204:1
	Jesus heals nobleman's son in Capernaum from Cana of Galilee	1205:29
	Simon Peter and his brother Andrew leave their nets, and follow Jesus to become fishers of men	1205:46
	James and John, sons of Zebedee	1206:2
	Jesus teaches in synagogues, heals the sick and the afflicted	1206:7
	Levi Matthew the publican makes a great feast for Jesus, and his own friends	1208:34
	Jesus heals a man at Bethesda on the Sabbath day; Jews plan to persecute and slay Jesus	1209:29
31	Jesus disciples pluck the ears of corn on the Sabbath day	1211:14
31	Jesus ordains the Twelve in the mountain near Capernaum; and gives them injunctions	1212:18
31	Jesus blesses the Apostles, and addresses the great multitude on the Mount	1213:41
	Jesus speaks the parables of the blind leading the blind (of the elephant) and others to his Twelve Apostles	1215:3
	Jesus' model prayer (the Lord's Prayer); and his injunctions to the Twelve	1217:42
	Jesus and disciples sail down the Jordan to Nain	1220:3
31	John the Baptist in a prison in Galilee; two of John's disciples are sent to witness the works of Jesus	1220:28
	Jesus' parable of the creditor and two debtors; sinful woman bathes Jesus' feet with tears	1222:1

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Jesus heals Mary Magdalene and others; the parable of the sower and his seed	1222:30
	Parables concerning the Kingdom of Heaven	1223:24
	Jesus calms the windstorm	1225:2
—31 A.D.	Jesus and the two demoniacs at Gadara; heals man afflicted with palsy	1225:6
	Daughter of a ruler is healed by touching the hem of Jesus' garment	1225:44
	Herodias' daughter Salome asks for the head of John the Baptist	1228:12
—32	Five thousand fed out of five loaves and two fishes Jesus walks upon the sea	1229:31
	Jesus speaks to the scribes and Pharisees concerning washing hands before eating, and defilement of man by the mouth	1230:8
	Canaanite woman seeks the crumbs which fall from the Master's table	1230:39
	Jesus blesses Simon Peter	1232:20
	Jesus speaks to his disciples of his impending death and resurrection in Jerusalem	1232:29
	Peter, James and John witness the transfiguration of Jesus; Moses and Elijah appear in the high mountain	1232:44
	John the Baptist is Elias (Elijah)	1233:11
	Little children, the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven	1234:7
—32	Parable of the lost sheep	1234:27
	Parable of wicked servant and a certain king	1234:45
	Woman taken in adultery	1237:19
	Blind man receives his sight	1239:10
—32	Parable of the good Samaritan	1241:21
—32	Martha and her sister Mary	1241:38
	Light of the body is in the eye	1243:9
	Beware of the leaven of the Pharisee	1244:3
	Parable of the ground of a certain rich man	1244:26
	Parable of the lilies of the field	1244:36

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Parables of the mustard seed; the leaven, the sheepfold	1246:38
	Parable of the great supper of a certain man	1249:7
	Parables of the lost sheep, and lost piece of silver	1249:42
32 A.D.	Parable of two sons (prodigal son)	1250:8
	Parable of the rich man and the unjust steward	1250:45
32	Parable of a certain rich man and Lazarus	1251:32
	Lazarus of Bethany and his sisters Martha and Mary	1252:24
32	Resurrection of Lazarus; Jesus weeps, calls upon the Father	1253:12
	Chief priests and Pharisees take counsel to put Jesus to death	1254:16
	Kingdom of God is within you	1254:41
	Parable of the unjust judge	1255:23
	Parable of the self-righteous Pharisee and the repentant publican	1255:33
	Jesus exhorts the rich young man to keep all the commandments given to Moses on Mount Sinai	1256:26
	Parable of the camel to go through the eye of the needle	1256:36
	Parable of the lord of the vineyard and his laborers	1257:1
	Jesus speaks to his Twelve Apostles concerning the upcoming betrayal and his death in Jerusalem	1257:26
32	Salome, the mother of James and John, pleads Jesus to favor her sons; Jesus heals the blind	1257:31
32	Zacchaeus and Jesus	1258:15
	Parable of a certain nobleman and his wicked servant	1259:9
33	Jesus at the house of Martha, Mary and Lazarus in Bethany; Judas Iscariot the betrayer	1259:42
33	Jesus rides upon a colt to Jerusalem, as the king of Israel	1260:12
	Jesus enters Jerusalem, overthrows the tables of the moneychanger at the Temple	1261:8
33	Parable of the lord of the vineyard, and unjust husbandmen	1262:37

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Sadducees and Jesus; Hear O Israel	1263:20
—33 A.D.	Jesus near the treasury of the Temple; poor widow casts all her sustenance unto the Lord	1264:20
	Peter, James, John and Andrew ask Jesus at the Temple when will his words be fulfilled	1264:32
	Parable of the fig tree; the Second Coming	1265:28
—33	Parable of the ten virgins	1266:12
	Parable of man traveling to a far country	1266:27
—33	Jesus speaks to his disciples concerning the betrayal and crucifixion	1267:39
	Jesus finishes the work assigned to him by the Father	1272:38
—33	Jesus at Gethsemane; prays to the Father	1273:31
—33	Peter denies thrice	1276:4
	Jesus is delivered to Pontius Pilate the governor; Judas Iscariot returns the thirty pieces of silver; Potter's Field bought with the money	1276:16
	Jesus is sent to Herod	1276:42
	Jesus is to be crucified	1277:16
	Jesus at Golgotha; at Calvary	1277:45
—33 A.D. (March/April [Nisan] 14, Friday, 3:00 p.m.)	Jesus' crucifixion	1278:44
	Joseph of Arimathaea, and Nicodemus; Mary Magdalene and mother of Jesus	1279:26
—33 A.D. (March/April [Nisan] 16, Sunday)	Resurrected Jesus appears to Mary Magdalene; and to the disciples	1280:39
	Jesus appears to Simon Peter and the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias; miracles of the fishes; Thomas Didymus	1281:17
	Jesus says to Simon Peter to feed his lambs and sheep; John the beloved	1282
	All power in heaven and earth is given to Jesus; Apostles to baptize in the name of the Holy Trinity	1282:31
	Jesus at Emmaus	1283:14
—33 A.D. (April/May [Ziv] 25)	Jesus is taken up, a cloud receives him out of sight into heaven (The Ascension; 40th day of resurrected living)	1284:20
—33 A.D. (May/June [Sivan] 6)	Day of Pentecost; Holy Spirit poured upon some one hundred and twenty disciples of Jesus	1284:39
	Mount of Olives, its history	1284:43

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Matthias chosen	1285:47
—33 A.D.	Day of Pentecost; Peter lifts up his voice to the congregation	1286:5
	Principles and ordinances of the Gospel: Faith, Repentance, Baptism, Gift of the Holy Ghost, Prayer and Fasting	1287:45
	Testimony of the Doctrine of Faith	1288:8
	Testimony of the Doctrine of Repentance	1290:9
	Testimony of the Ordinance of Baptism with water	1296:32
	Testimony of the Doctrine of the Holy Ghost or Spirit, and Gift of the Holy Ghost	1305:47
	Testimony of the Doctrine of Prayer and Fasting	1319:1
	Testimony of the Church of Jesus Christ after Pentecost; the beginning of the Apostolic Age	1342:39
—33/61	Account of Luke (or Acts of the Apostles)	1346:4
—50/65	Paul the Apostle and Pauline Epistles	1385:8
	Fourteen Pauline Epistles	1399:25
	1. First Epistle to the Thessalonians	1399:44
	2. Second Epistle to the Thessalonians	1402:42
	3. Epistle to the Galatians	1404:29
	4. First Epistle to the Corinthians	1409:29
	5. Second Epistle to the Corinthians	1424:13
	6. Epistle to the Romans	1433:41
	7. Epistle to the Philippians	1448:41
	8. Epistle to the Colossians	1452:17
	9. Epistle to the Ephesians	1455:33
	10. Epistle to Philemon	1460:26
	11. Epistle to the Hebrews	1461:14
	12. Epistle to Titus	1472:26
	13. First Epistle to Timothy	1474:7
	14. Second Epistle to Timothy	1478:1
—45/98	Epistles of James, Peter, Jude, and John the Revelator	1480:42
	Epistle of James	1484:17
	First Epistle of Peter	1488:11
	Second Epistle of Peter	1492:18
	Epistle of Jude	1495:1
	First Epistle of John	1496:12
	Second Epistle of John	1500:14
	Third Epistle of John	1500:40
	Revelations of John	1501:18

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
	Maps of the Roman World, Palestine during Jesus' time, and journeys of the Apostles	1520
	Catholic (or Universal) Church, its roots in Jerusalem	1526:1
54/68 A.D.	Nero the Roman emperor	1526:16
64, July	Great fire of Rome	1529:11
	Peter's imprisonment at the Mamertine	1531:41
67	Peter and Paul sentenced, martyred	1532:28
	The Benedictines, Benedictine monastery at Yser, France	1534:1
	First sixty-three popes of Rome, after St. Peter (from St. Linus to St. Gregory I, the Great)	1535:13
67	2. St. Linus	1535:20
76	3. St. Anacletus (Cletus)	1535:29
88	4. St. Clement I (Clemens Romanus)	1535:36
97	5. St. Evaristus	1536:42
105	6. St. Alexander I	1537:1
115	7. St. Sixtus (Xystus)	1537:8
125	8. St. Telephorus	1537:13
136	9. St. Hyginus	1537:25
140	10. St. Pius I	1537:37
155	11. St. Anicetus	1538:1
166	12. St. Soter (Soterus)	1538:17
175	13. St. Eleutherius (Eleutherus)	1538:33
189	14. St. Victor I	1538:44
199	15. St. Zephyrinus	1539:8
217	16. St. Callistus I (Calixtus)	1539:19
222	17. St. Urban I	1540:12
230	18. St. Pontian (Pontianus)	1540:37
235	19. St. Anterus (Antherus)	1541:1
236	20. St. Fabian	1541:7
251	21. St. Cornelius	1541:26
253	22. St. Lucius I	1541:1
254	23. St. Stephen I	1541:8

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
— 257 A.D.	24. St. Sixtus (Xystus)	1541:16
— 259	25. St. Dionysius	1541:31
— 269	26. St. Felix I	1541:41
— 275	27. St. Euthychian (Eutychianus)	1543:1
— 283	28. St. Caius (Gaius)	1543:9
— 296	29. St. Marcellinus	1543:18
— 308	30. St. Marcellus I	1543:31
— 309/10	31. St. Eusebius	1543:39
— 311	32. St. Melchiades (Miltiades)	1544:1
— 314	33. St. Sylvester (Silvester)	1544:12
— 336	34. St. Marcus (Mark)	1547:1
— 337	35. St. Julius I	1547:9
— 352	36. St. Liberius	1547:24
— 366	37. St. Damasus I	1547:37
— 384	38. St. Siricius	1548:34
— 399	39. St. Anastasius I	1549:1
— 401	40. St. Innocent I	1549:10
— 417	41. St. Zosimus (Zozimus)	1549:32
— 418	42. St. Boniface I	1549:39
— 422	43. St. Celestine I	1550:1
— 432	44. St. Sixtus III	1551:31
— 440	45. St. Leo I, the Great	1552:1
— 461	46. St. Hilarius (Hilary, Hilarus)	1553:1
— 468	47. St. Simplicius	1553:10
— 483	48. St. Felix II (III)	1553:20
— 492	49. St. Gelasius I	1553:31
— 496	50. St. Anastasius II	1554:1
— 498	51. St. Symmachus	1554:11
— 514	52. St. Hormisdas	1554:37
— 523	53. St. John I	1555:1
— 526	54. St. Felix III (IV)	1555:29
— 530	55. Boniface II	1556:1

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
533 A.D.	56. John II	1556:17
535	57. St. Agapetus I (Agapitus)	1556:28
536	58. St. Silverius, Martyr	1557:1
537	59. Vigilus	1557:12
556	60. Pelagius I	1557:26
561	61. John III	1557:45
574/75	62. Benedict I	1558:10
579	63. Pelagius II	1558:21
590	64. St. Gregory I, the Great; the first pope of the Benedictine Order; Mohammed the Apostle, who was to fulfill the prophecy of Daniel, is twenty years old at the time of Gregory's election	1558:39
	Pope Gregory, prefect of Rome; his other works	1560:43
	Difference between a pope or bishop of Rome and a prophet of the Lord	1563:17
	Parthians and Sasanians	1563:36
	Cult of Mithra (Mithras) and Zoroaster; the Magi	1564:28
	Genealogy of the Arshak and Sasanian kings	1566:43
	Mohammed the Apostle of the Lord; the beginning of Islam; background into the land of Arabia	1569:1
	Kaaba in Mecca, the holiest shrine of Arabia	1571:36
	Earliest inhabitants of Arabia	1572:6
	Koraish, the principal merchant tribe among the Arabs of Hijaz	1573:29
570, August 29	Mohammed's birth	1574:36
	Mohammed absent from Arabia, from the time of the death of his grandfather (579 A.D.), until his twenty-fourth year of life	1575:3
	Mohammed marries Khadijah	1575:6
610	Angel Gabriel appears to Mohammed	1575:33
	Mohammed is called by God	1575:49
	Mohammed's initial message	1576:46
	Jewish tribes and learned rabbis know of Mohammed's divine mission	1578:15

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
622 A.D., June 20	Jewish deputation; pact of Al-Aqabah; decision to exile to Yathrib (Medina), the Hijrah (Hegira)	1578:28
622, July 2	Arrival at Yathrib (Medina); end of Prophet's thirteen years of persecutions and humility; beginning of the Commonwealth of Islam	1579:31
	Mohammed fasts on the Jewish Day of Atonement; Islamites separated from the Jews	1581:8
	Koraish merchants and rulers angered at people of Medina; the Lord ordains war to the converts of Islam	1581:42
627	Salmon the Persian; victory over the Meccans	1582:44
627/28	Mohammed's Charter to the Monastery of St. Catherine, near Mount Sinai	1583:13
629	Mohammed leads two thousand converts on pilgrimage to Mecca; sends embassies to Boran, king of Persia	1583:46
630	Mecca conquered; once again becomes the Spiritual center of ancient Abrahamites and converts of Islam.	1584:31
632, February 23	Mohammed's sermon on Mount Arafat, his last words	1585:34
	Written Arabic, in its beginning stages of development	1586:27
	Five Pillars of Islam (Faith, Prayer, Almsgiving, Fasting and Pilgrimage)	1587:10
632, June 8	Prophet Mohammed's death	1593:43
	Abu Bakr elected Successor (Khalifa) to the Apostle Mohammed	1594:31
633	Conquest of Hira	1596:11
634, August 23	Abu Bakr's death; Omar succeeds Abu Bakr to the Caliphate	1597:28
636	Battle of Kadessia	1598:8
637	Capture of Madain	1598:28
640/42	All Persia passes under Islamic rule	1600:46
	Syria subjugated under the banner of Islam	1603:26
644	Northern Arabia and Syria visited by severe famine and pestilence	1604:16
644	Omar is assassinated; six electors appointed by him to choose his successor	1604:28

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
644 A.D., Nov. 7	Osman son of Affan, an Ommeyade, succeeds Omar to the Caliphate	1605:21
656, June 17	Osman's martyrdom; Ali proclaimed Caliph; his reign and works	1606:39
661, January 27	Ali's assassination	1608:24
661	End of Spiritual Republic of Islam	1608:41
	Genealogical chart of Ommeyade Caliphs and Imams of the House of Mohammed	1609
	End of Islamic Empire is to be the beginning of the Second Coming and the Kingdom of Lord Messiah	1609:1
	First three Revelations of Mohammed, the Essence of the Koran	1609:6
	Essence of the Holy Koran	1610:1
	First Revelation of Mohammed (The Opening)	1610:4
	Second Revelation of Mohammed (The Cow)	1610:19
	Abraham's Prayer	1617:22
	Third Revelation of Mohammed (The Family of Imran)	1625:22
	Christianity becomes a fully telestial religion in Arabia and Rome	1630:47
	Holy Trinity of the Christians is not to be understood by the Islamites; Mohammed's argument	1631:3
570 to 1922	Islamic Chronology of Pertinent Historical Events	1632:1
	Genealogy of Apostle Mohammed and the Abrahamites, and chronology of the Islamic Empire	1641
	Ottoman Empire; Suleiman the Magnificent	1647:1
	Constantinople, the Grand Seraglio	1647:6
	Selim II son of Suleiman the Magnificent	1655:24
	Islamic Dynasties and Lines	1659:12
	End of the Fifth Epoch	1662
604-1829 A.D. VI.	THE SIXTH EPOCH: from Pope Sibinianus to Pope Pius VIII	pages 1663 through 1869
	Popes of the Roman Church (from Sibinianus, the sixty-fifth pope, to Pius VIII, the two hundred and fifty-second pope)	1663:15
604	65. Sibinianus (Sabinianus, Sabinian)	1663:20
607	66. Boniface II	1664:1
608	67. St. Boniface IV	1664:15

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
— 615 A.D.	68. St. Deusdedit (Adeodatus I)	1664:30
— 619	69. Boniface V	1665:1
— 625	70. Honorius I	1665:12
— 640	71. Severinus	1666:3
— 640	72. John IV	1666:20
— 642	73. Theodore I (Theodorus)	1666:34
— 649	74. St. Martin, Martyr	1667:15
— 654	75. St. Eugene I (Eugenius)	1668:1
— 657	76. St. Vitalian	1668:12
— 672	77. Adeodatus II	1668:31
— 676	78. Donus	1668:39
— 678	79. St. Agatho	1669:1
— 682	80. St. Leo II	1669:30
— 684	81. St. Benedict II	1669:47
— 685	82. John V	1670:6
— 686	83. Conon	1670:17
— 687	84. St. Sergius I	1670:37
— 701	85. John VI	1671:20
— 705	86. John VII	1671:31
— 708	87. Sisinnius	1672:3
— 708	88. Constantine	1672:10
— 715	89. St. Gregory II	1672:28
— 731	90. St. Gregory III	1673:45
— 741	91. St. Zachary (Zacharius)	1674:22
— 752	92. Stephen II	1675:9
— 752	93. Stephen III (II)	1675:16
— 757	94. St. Paul I	1676:6
— 768	95. Stephen IV (III)	1676:17
— 772	96. Adrian I	1677:1
— 795	97. St. Leo III; Charlemagne	1678:16
— 816	98. Stephen V (IV)	1680:26
— 817	99. St. Paschal I (Pascal)	1680:39

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line)
824 A.D.	100. Eugene II (Eugenius)	1681:19
827	101. Valentine	1681:34
827	102. Gregory IV	1681:40
844	103. Sergius II	1682:28
847	104. St. Leo IV	1683:6
855	105. Benedict III	1684:1
858	106. St. Nicholas the Great	1684:29
867	107. Adrian II	1686:5
872	108. John VIII	1687:21
882	109. Marinus I	1688:31
884	110. St. Adrian III	1689:1
885	111. Stephen VI (V)	1689:12
891	112. Formosus	1689:33
896	113. Boniface VI	1690:4
896	114. Stephen VII (VI)	1690:13
897	115. Romanus	1690:39
897	116. Theodore II	1690:46
898	117. John IX	1691:5
900	118. Benedict IV	1691:24
903	119. Leo V	1691:39
904	120. Sergius III	1692:1
911	121. Anastasius III	1692:17
913	122. Lando	1692:24
914	123. John X	1692:32
928	124. Leo VI	1693:9
928	125. Stephen VIII (VII)	1693:18
931	126. John XI	1693:25
936	127. Leo VII	1694:1
939	128. Stephen IX (VIII)	1695:1
942	129. Marinus II	1695:11
946	130. Agapitus II (Agapetus)	1695:19
955	131. John XII (Octavian)	1695:37

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
963 A.D.	132. Leo VIII	1696:43
964	133. Benedict V	1697:4
965	134. John XIII	1697:16
973	135. Benedict VI	1697:39
974	136. Benedict VII	1698:1
983	137. John XIV (Peter)	1698:14
985	138. John XV	1698:30
996	139. Gregory V (Bruno)	1699:1
999	140. Sylvester II (Silvester or Gerbert)	1699:24
1003	141. John XVII (John Sicco)	1700:1
1004	142. John XVIII (John Fasano)	1700:10
1009	143. Sergius IV (Peter)	1700:21
1012	144. Benedict VIII (Theophylact of Tusculum)	1700:35
1024	145. John XIX (Romanus of Tusculum)	1701:7
1032	146. Benedict IX (Theophylact of Tusculum)	1701:19
1045	147. Sylvester III	1701:32
1045	148. Gregory VI (John Gratianus Pierleoni)	1701:38
1046	149. Clement II (Suitger, Count of Norsleben)	1702:7
1048	150. Damasus II (Count Boppo of Brixen)	1702:17
1049	151. St. Leo IX (Bruno, Count of Egisheim-Dagsburg)	1702:26
1055	152. Victor II (Gebhard, Count of Hirschberg)	1705:29
1057	153. Stephen X (IX) (Frederick of Lorraine)	1706:4
1059	154. Nicholas II (Gerhard of Burgundy)	1706:27
1061	155. Alexander II (Anselmo da Baggio)	1707:9
1073	156. St. Gregory VII (Hildebrand of Soana)	1707:43
1086	157. Victor III (Desiderius, Prince of Benevento)	1713:3
1088	158. Urban II (Odo of Chatillan)	1713:25
1099	159. Paschal II (Pascal II; Ranieri de Bieda)	1714:14
1118	160. Gelasius II (John Coniula of Gaeta)	1715:41
1119	161. Calixtus II (Guy, Archbishop of Vienne)	1716:21
1124	162. Honorius II (Lambert Scannabecchi of Bologna)	1717:15
1130	163. Innocent II (Gregory Papareschi)	1718:4
1143	164. Celestine II (Guido di Castelli)	1719:31

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1144 A.D.	165. Lucius II (Gerardo Cacciarimici)	1719:45
1145	166. Eugenius III (Bernard Paganelli)	1720:5
1153	167. Anastasius IV (Conrad)	1721:1
1154	168. Adrian IV (Nicholas Breakspear)	1721:18
1159	169. Alexander III (Roland Bandinelli)	1722:14
1181	170. Lucius III (Ubaldo Allucingoli)	1724:8
1185	171. Urban III (Umberto Crivelli)	1725:11
1187	172. Gregory VIII (Alberto di Mora)	1725:34
1187	173. Clement III (Paolo Scolari)	1726:1
1191	174. Celestine III (Hyacinth Bobo)	1726:23
1198	175. Innocent III (Lothar Conti of Segni)	1727:1
1216	176. Honorius III (Cencius Savelli)	1731:7
1227	177. Gregory IX (Ugolini Conti)	1732:16
1241	178. Celestine IV (Godfrey di Castiglione)	1733:28
1243	179. Innocent IV (Sinibaldo Freschi)	1734:1
1254	180. Alexander IV (Rinaldo Conti)	1735:17
1261	181. Urban IV (Jacques Pantaleon)	1736:3
1265	182. Clement IV (Guy de Gros)	1737:20
1271	183. Gregory X (Tebaldo Visconti)	1737:42
1276	184. Innocent V (Peter of Tarentaise)	1738:47
1276	185. Adrian V (Ottobuono Fieschi)	1739:13
1276	186. John XXI (John Peter Juliani)	1740:1
1277	187. Nicholas III (John Gaetano Orsini)	1740:20
1281	188. Martin IV (Simon de Brion)	1741:8
1285	189. Honorius IV (James Savelli)	1741:31
1288	190. Nicholas IV (Jerome Maschi)	1742:3
1294	191. St. Celestine V (Peter Morrone)	1743:8
1294	192. Boniface VIII (Benedict Gaetani)	1745:11
1303	193. Benedict XI (Nicholas Boccasini)	1747:23
1305	194. Clement V (Bertrand de Got)	1747:41
1316	195. John XXII (Jacques Duese)	1749:6
1334	196. Benedict XII (Jacques Fournier)	1750:7

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1342 A.D.	197. Clement VI (Pierre Roger)	1750:36
1352	198. Innocent VI (Etienne Aubert)	1751:6
1362	199. Urban V (Guillaume de Grimoard)	1752:21
1370	200. Gregory XI (Pierre Roger)	1752:42
1378	201. Urban VI (Bartolomeo Prignano)	1754:10
1389	202. Boniface IX (Pietro Tomacelli)	1755:1
1404	203. Innocent VII (Cosimode Migliorati)	1756:1
1406	204. Gregory XII (Angelo Corrarrio)	1756:16
1417	205. Martin V (Odo Colonna)	1757:3
1431	206. Eugenius IV (Gabriel Condulmaro)	1757:46
1447	207. Nicholas V (Tommaso Parentucelli)	1759:9
1455	208. Calixtus III (Alfonso Borgia)	1761:1
1458	209. Pius II (Aeneas Sylvius Piccolomini)	1762:1
1464	210. Paul II (Pietro Barbo)	1763:1
1471	211. Sixtus IV (Francesco della Rovere)	1763:41
1484	212. Innocent VIII (Giovanni Battista Cibo)	1765:37
1492	213. Alexander VI (Roderigo Borgia)	1766:30
1503	214. Pius III (Francesco Todeschini de Piccolomini)	1767:33
1503	215. Julius II (Guiliano della Rovere)	1767:45
1513	216. Leo X (Giovanni de Medici)	1769:31
1522	217. Adrian VI (Adrian Dedel of Utrecht)	1772:25
1523	218. Clement VII (Giulio de Medici)	1773:42
1534	219. Paul III (Alexander Farnese)	1775:31
1550	220. Julius III (Giovanni Ciocchi)	1777:39
1555	221. Marcellus II (Marcello Pervino)	1778:15
1555	222. Paul IV (Giovanni Pietro Caraffa)	1778:28
1559	223. Pius IV (Giovanni Angelo de Medici)	1779:35
1566	224. St. Pius V (Michael Ghislieri)	1781:10
1572	225. Gregory XIII (Ugo Buoncompagni)	1782:8
1585	226. Sixtus V (Felice Peretti Montalto)	1784:1
1590	227. Urban VII (Giambattista Castagna)	1786:12
1590	228. Gregory XIV (Nicholas Sfondrato)	1786:37
1591	229. Innocent IX (Gianntonio Facchinetti)	1787:5

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1592 A.D.	230. Clement VIII (Ippolyto Aldobrandini)	1787:17
1605	231. Leo XI (Alessandro de Medici)	1788:11
1605	232. Paul V (Camillo Borghese)	1788:30
1621	233. Gregory XV (Alessandro Ludovisi)	1789:44
1623	234. Urban VIII (Maffeo Barberini)	1790:35
1644	235. Innocent X (Giovanni Battista Pamfilo)	1791:42
1655	236. Alexander VII (Fabio Chigi)	1792:37
1667	237. Clement IX (Giulio Rospigliosi)	1793:30
1670	238. Clement X (Emiliero Altieri)	1794:10
1676	239. Innocent XI (Benedetto Odescalchi)	1795:1
1689	240. Alexander VIII (Pietro Ottoboni)	1796:30
1691	241. Innocent XII (Antonio Pignatelli)	1797:3
1700	242. Clement XI (Giovani Francesco Albani)	1798:1
1721	243. Innocent XIII (Michelangelo dei Conti)	1799:7
1724	244. Benedict XIII (Pietro Francesco Orsini)	1799:30
1730	245. Clement XII (Lorenzo Corsini)	1800:3
1740	246. Benedict XIV (Prospero Lambertini)	1801:27
1758	247. Clement XIII (Carlo della Torre Rezzonico)	1803:26
1769	248. Clement XIV (Giovanni Ganganelli)	1804:34
1775	249. Pius VI (Giovanni Angelo Braschi)	1806:13
1800	250. Pius VII (Barnabo Chiaramonti)	1808:3
1823	251. Leo XII (Annibale della Genga)	1811:22
1829	252. Pius VIII (Francis Xavier Castiglione)	1813:1
	The See or the Episcopal Seat	1814:17
	Background into Rome, Castel' Sant' Angelo; St. Peter's Basilica; Papal election, coronation, burial; operations of the Vatican City, etc.	1814:34
	Vacancy of the Apostolic See	1825:40
	Sacred College of Cardinals (the Curia)	1826:12
	Preparations for the Conclave	1826:40
	Interval between the death of a pope and the beginning of the Conclave	1829:39
	Final preparation for the election of the pope	1832:14

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1829 A.D., April	Section 7 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1896:37
1829, April	Section 8 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1897:11
1829, April	Section 9 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1897:38
1829, May	Section 10 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1898:24
1829, May	Section 11 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1899:31
1829, May	Section 12 (near Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1900:4
1829, June	Section 13 (Fayette, New York)	1900:12
1829, June	Section 14 (Fayette, New York)	1900:25
1829, June	Section 15 (Fayette, New York)	1901:1
1829, June	Section 16 (Fayette, New York)	1901:23
1830, March	Section 17 (Manchester, New York)	1903:11
1830, April	Section 18 (near Fayette, New York)	1904:40
1830, April	Section 19 (Fayette, New York)	1908:44
1830, April	Section 20 (Manchester, New York)	1909:32
1830, April	Section 21 (Manchester, New York)	1910:1
1830, July	Section 22 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1910:27
1830, July	Section 23 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1911:32
1830, July	Section 24 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1912:26
1830, August	Section 25 (Harmony, Pennsylvania)	1912:37
1830, September	Section 26 (Fayette, New York)	1914:1
1830, September	Section 27 (Fayette, New York)	1915:1
1830, September	Section 28 (Fayette, New York)	1917:45
1830, September	Section 29 (Fayette, New York)	1918:29
1830, October	Section 30 (near Fayette, New York)	1919:15
1830, October	Section 31 (Fayette, New York)	1919:26
1830, November	Section 32 (Fayette, New York)	1920:27
1830, December	Section 33 (Fayette, New York)	1921:3
1830, December	Section 34 (Fayette, New York)	1922:32
1830, December	Section 35 (Fayette, New York)	1923:8
1831, January	Section 36 (Fayette, New York)	1923:18
1831, January	Section 37 (Fayette, New York)	1925:41
1831, January	Section 38 (Fayette, New York)	1927:1

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1831 A.D., February	Section 39 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1927:8
1831, February	Section 40 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1927:36
1831, February	Section 41 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1932:30
1831, February	Section 42 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1934:20
1831, March	Section 43 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1934:35
1831, March	Section 44 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1938:27
1831, March	Section 45 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1939:34
1831, March	Section 46 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1940:1
1831, March	Section 47 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1940:18
1831, May	Section 48 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1941:43
1831, May	Section 49 (Thompson, Ohio)	1943:33
1831, June	Section 50 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1944:25
1831, June	Section 51 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1946:9
1831, June	Section 52 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1946:26
1831, June	Section 53 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1947:8
1831, June	Section 54 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1947:27
1831, July	Section 55 (Zion, Missouri)	1948:43
1831, August	Section 56 (Zion, Missouri)	1949:43
1831, August	Section 57 (Zion, Missouri)	1952:28
1831, August	Section 58 (Jackson County, Missouri)	1953:42
1831, August	Section 59 (McIlwaines Bend, Missouri River)	1954:39
1831, August	Section 60 (Chariton, on the bank of the Missouri River)	1956:34
1831, August	Section 61 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1957:13
1831, September	Section 62 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1960:20
1831, October	Section 63 (Orange, Ohio)	1962:21
1831, November	Section 64 (Hiram, Ohio)	1963:26
1831, November	Section 65 (Hiram, Ohio)	1965:41
1831, November	Section 66 (Hiram, Ohio)	1967:28
1831, November	Section 67 (Hiram, Ohio)	1969:32
1831, November	Section 68 (Hiram, Ohio)	1970:7
1831, November	Section 69 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1973:1

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1831 A.D., December	Section 70 (Hiram, Ohio)	1973:43
1831, December	Section 71 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1974:23
1832, January	Section 72 (Hiram, Ohio)	1975:22
1832, January	Section 73 (Amherst, Ohio)	1975:33
1832, February	Section 74 (Hiram, Ohio)	1977:15
1832, March	Section 75 (Hiram, Ohio)	1982:38
1832, March	Section 76 (Hiram, Ohio)	1983:43
1832, March	Section 77 (Hiram, Ohio)	1984:8
1832, March	Section 78 (Hiram, Ohio)	1984:16
1832, April	Section 79 (Jackson County, Missouri)	1984:35
1832, April	Section 80 (Independence, Missouri)	1986:9
1832, August	Section 81 (Hiram, Ohio)	1986:25
1832, September	Section 82-A (Kirtland, Ohio)	1987:3
1832, December	Section 82-B (Kirtland, Ohio)	1995:10
1832, December	Section 83 (near Kirtland, Ohio)	1995:39
1832, December	Section 84 (Kirtland, Ohio)	1996:19
1833, February	Section 85 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2002:42
1833, March	Section 86 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2004:1
1833, March	Section 87 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2005:26
1833, March	Section 88 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2005:34
1833, May	Section 89 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2006:1
1833, May	Section 90 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2008:1
1833, June	Section 91 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2008:33
1833, June	Section 92 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2009:21
1833, August	Section 93 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2010:1
1833, August	Section 94 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2011:15
1833, October	Section 95 (Perrysburg, New York)	2013:19
1833, December	Section 96 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2014:5
1834/35, February	Section 97 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2018:26
1834, February	Section 98 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2020:42
1834, April	Section 99 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2022:43
1834, June	Section 100 (Fishing River, Missouri)	2026:24

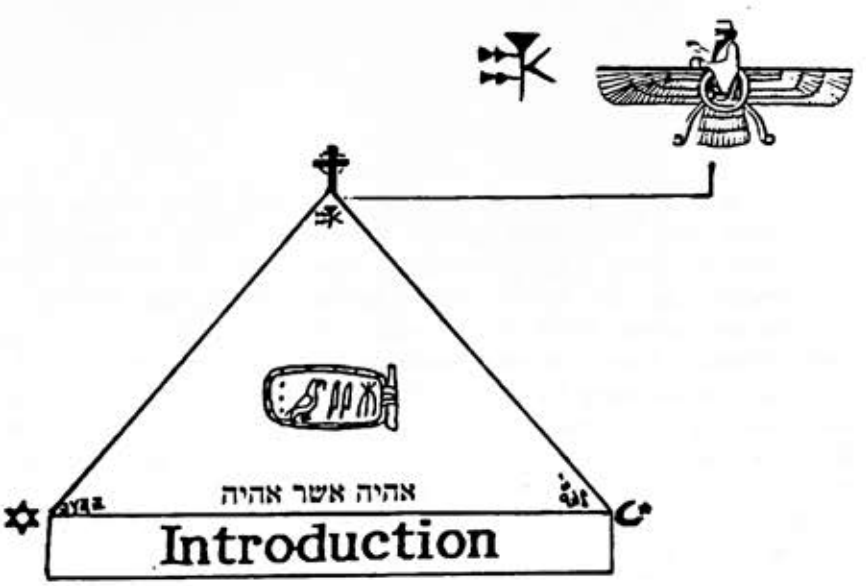
Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line
1834 A.D., November	Section 101 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2028:22
1835, March	Section 102 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2029:1
1835, April	Section 103 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2034:22
1835, December	Section 104 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2036:19
1836, March	Section 105 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2036:34
1836, April	Section 106 (in Kirtland Temple, Ohio)	2039:20
1836, August	Section 107 (Salem, Massachusetts)	2040:24
1837, July	Section 108 (Kirtland, Ohio)	2041:1
1838, April	Section 109 (Far West, Missouri)	2042:37
1838, July	Section 110 (Far West, Missouri)	2043:27
1838, July	Section 111 (Far West, Missouri)	2044:26
1838, July	Section 112 (Far West, Missouri)	2045:1
1839, March	Section 113 (Liberty, Missouri)	2045:18
1839, March	Section 114 (Liberty, Missouri)	2047:1
1841, January	Section 115 (Nauvoo, Illinois)	2048:3
1842, September	Section 116 (Nauvoo, Illinois)	2054:1
1843, February	Section 117 (Nauvoo, Illinois)	2056:3
1843, April	Section 118 (Ramus, Illinois)	2056:18
1843, May	Section 119 (Ramus, Illinois)	2057:17
1843, July	Section 120 (Nauvoo, Illinois)	2057:28
1847, January	Section 121 (near Council Bluffs, Iowa)	2062:39
1890, Sept. and April	Section 122 (Salt Lake City and Logan, Utah)	2065:41
1918, October	Section 123 (Salt Lake City, Utah)	2069:12
1978, September	Section 124 (Salt Lake City, Utah)	2072:40
	The Twelve Great Latter-day Prophets	2074:15
1847	1. Brigham Young	2074:21
1880	2. John Taylor	2084:26
1889	3. Wilford Woodruff	2101:39
1898	4. Lorenzo Snow	2128:19
1901	5. Joseph F. Smith	2141:24
1918	6. Heber J. Grant	2150:16
1945	7. George Albert Smith	2163:16

Table of Contents (continued)

Chronological Reference (Selected dates in B.C. or A.D.)		Textual Reference (Page # : line #)
1951	8. David O. McKay	2178:32
1970	9. Joseph Fielding Smith	2196:20
1972	10. Harold B. Lee	2203:18
1973	11. Spencer W. Kimball	2211:19
1985	12. Ezra Taft Benson	2224:24

(End of Table of Contents)



Introduction

Effraim's Book of the Priesthood of God is written and compiled in the spirit of revelation and prophecy, for the children of our Father in Heaven; and for the adopted sons and daughters, the Spirit children, of the Savior or Messiah (Meshiahh), the true and living God of the Righteous, the God of the Jeshurun. His holy name in the English language is Lord Jesus Christ, or Jehovah. But he is known from ancient times to various nations and peoples as: Ahura Mazda (Hormuzd), Allah-Taala, Adhonai Yahweh, the Holy One, the Most High God, and by other names. He is eternal and everlasting God, the Lord of wisdom and truths, lights and perfections; whose mercy and compassion extend to all those that call upon his name in meekness, in humility, in long-suffering, and in patience; for he is the Lord of the afflicted and the persecuted, who abhors iniquities, sins, transgressions, and ways of error; for he is the preserver and nurturer of the human Soul, and not the destroyer.

Yea, this Book is revealed unto the children of the promised seed, even to all the sons and daughters of the prophets and holy men; and to those who are adopted into the Lord's holy nation, and have chosen to abide in the covenants thereof. In ancient Hebrew, Elohim was and is the collective Holy Spirit (Rūh-el-Qudūs) of the wisest and oldest of the Gods in heaven; and also the manifestations of their Holy Spirit in various forms, times, and places; this is the Lord God, or the Father in heaven. And Allah, Eloh, Adhonai, Ahura, the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ was and is the One God who is the holiest among all other Gods in the eternal kingdom or the Holy Order. Now, this One God, even the Son of God, for he was and is the Only Begotten of the Father, is the imbibement of all the sacred knowledge and hidden mysteries of the eternal kingdom of God. He is the possessor of all the truths and intelligences of the power realm; which are hid from all mankind of the world. The Son of God, or the Son of the Father in Heaven, the Savior and Messiah of the universe, was and is foreordained; and is taken from among the children of men, and placed in the womb of the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God, which before the time of Adam was known as the Holy Order of Zarathustra. But, because the record-keeping began in the time of Seth, circa 3761 B.C.; and the book of generations and the book of remembrance began to be kept from that time onward, the name of the Order of Zarathustra was not used in the Shemitic record-keeping, but the Order of the Son of God was used after the time of Adam; which later came to be known as the Order of Melchizedek during the time of Shem, or Melchizedek, after 2370 B.C. And Adam was the first high priest of the Order, chosen from among men, and appointed in behalf of men, over the things pertaining to God. Thus by the time of Seth son of Adam, the Priesthood of God was three thousand years old, in 3618 B.C. And at this time the first three thousand years of purely Spiritual existence ended; and the temporal or worldly was mixed with the eternal or Spiritual. Also this First Separation of the Third Millennium marks the organization and framing of the Holy Order of the Priesthood of God; and the establishment of the office of the Prophet, the Guardian Spirit, of the Order. And as the Lord himself was and is the head of all the heavenly (unseen) archangels, the Prophet or the Guardian Spirit was and is appointed the head of all the earthly (seen) archangels.

And through the grace and mercy of the Father, and his Only Begotten Son, all prophets or guardian spirits were raised unto immortality and eternal life; for unto this end they were created, by their decree; grace upon grace, until the fulness was achieved, and they became illuminated as the Sun (Son). And no man can enter the kingdom of Christ or the Messiah, the Holy One, except by the grace and mercy of the Son of God, the Redeemer and Savior of all mankind. This Most High God sitteth upon the eternal throne of the Kingdom of God which was prepared for him by his Father, from the endless light, in 6618 B.C. And he was set there to redeem and save those who are fallen and dead in the Spirit; those who kept not their first estate, and were therefore cast out from the presence of the Father in heaven; that if they repent and forsake their evil and wicked ways, and become obedient to his plan of redemption and salvation, which he hath prepared for them, they might dwell again in his presence; and partake of the manifold blessings which only can be received through the Lord, and no one else.

By the divine command of the Lord my God, the humble servant has written and compiled this Book; to exalt and glorify the Same, who hath bestowed upon him great blessings of the deep, that come only from on high, and lieth under; the blessings which prevail unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills; even all the blessings which one might be allowed to partake under the Son (Sun). For the Lord hath bestowed upon his servant the privilege to partake of all the knowledge and understanding of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God; and showed him the high places of the kings and prime ministers, presidents and governors; and brought him low to the humble abodes of the beggars and paupers, saints and holy men.

Yea, the Lord our God is the mighty, powerful, majestic and eternal God of the Righteous. The power and glory of our God, the only true and living God, is such that he can stretch out his bare hand to the core of the sun, and grasp with his holy hand one single atom, which no human eye can see, from the midst of the hottest furnace in our solar system; and observe it closely with his naked eyes, and hide away the selfsame atom under his feet that rest upon his footstool the earth; then when he shows the very same atom to his chosen ones, who sit on the right hand of his throne, they sing praises to the Most High God; with their eye single to his glory. Yea, the Lord our God is the same eternal and living God, who knoweth the heartbeat before it becomes a heartbeat; each thought before it becomes a thought; each whisper before it becomes a whisper; each action before it becomes an action; and each word which is written by mine hand, before it becomes a word.

Yea, the Lord our God is the same eternal and living God who, more than 2592 years before the time that Adam was brought into the garden of Eden, established in the shape of a fire priest the first Most High God or the Messiah (Meshiah). From Endless Light created he him. His brilliance was that of Fire, and its incombustibility was like that which is inside the Light. And in the image of Himself the Lord God the Father created the first Ahura Mazda or Lord Messiah; His First Creation, His Only Begotten Son. He was the first Saoshyant or Savior, the Messiah, the Most High God of the universe. And for three thousand years, he did not eat and did not speak; he did not utter, but thought, contemplated, and reflected all his days upon the Righteousness of the perfect and true religion; and he desired only pure gratification of the Creator.

By the time of Adam (c.4026 B.C.), the Holy Priesthood was still pure and Spiritual only; but beginning in 3618 B.C., during the time of Seth, it was corrupted to include the worldly with the Spiritual; and until 618 B.C. it continued its mixed existence; in the which year another son of the Most High God was created by the Holy Order of the seventh century B.C., namely, Zarathustra of the Spitamas, or Zoroaster; and now the Holy Order was no longer mixed with the wordly, but it became a temporal or worldly state; and it shall continue to remain worldly, until the year 2382 A.D.; which shall mark the end of the worldly existence; and the renovation of the world shall then commence, for the next 3,000 years. And then the 12,000-year-cycle of human existence will once again be over; as it has been since the hundreds of thousands of millennia past. After Zoroaster, the Lord raised up Gautama Buddha, the pupil of Zoroaster, who was known as Gautama the heretic by his friends and colleagues at the learning center of the world in Takhte-sila (Taxilla), known as the Seat of Morality, in northwest India in the sixth century B.C. Then came Jesus son of Mary, four hundred and eighty-three years after the passing away of the Tathagata Gautama.

Yea, the Lord our God is the same eternal and living God who in Adam's time, in his wrath uttered his curse upon the serpent, the Devil, the Satan (Shaitan), the Angra Mainyu (Aharmann, or Ahriman, the Mara); upon woman Eve and man Adam, upon the earth the ground. In his wrath in Noah's time, when he saw that the wickedness of man was great, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was evil continually, he caused the fountains of the great deep to be broken up, and windows of heaven opened; and rain fell upon earth forty days and nights, and the earth was flooded. And he confounded the tongues at the tower of Babel, and scattered the people on the face of the earth; and during Abraham's time destroyed the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, and rained upon them brimstone and fire from out of heaven, because the sins and iniquities of men became exceedingly ripe. And during Moses' time he caused the waters near the Red Sea to be parted, and delivered the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage; and spoke to them from mount Sinai in Horeb. Yea, the Lord our God is the same glorious and powerful God who bestowed upon David and Solomon the glories and riches, and wisdom of the temporal world, and later divided the nation of Israel; and caused Samaria and Jerusalem to be besieged, and Jews taken captive to Assyria, Babylon, and throughout the world.

Yea, the Lord our God, is the same Almighty and powerful God who brought famine and pestilence, disease, war and other calamities upon the inhabitants of earth; and by his grace, mercy, and compassion, gave mankind the greatest gifts of his commandments, judgements, laws, statutes, and ordinances, through various dispensations, in various times by the hand of his chosen servants; according to his purposes and designs, of which no mortal may know. And these dispensations, or holy scriptures, have been handed down from one generation to next; preserved and added upon precept upon precept, intelligence upon intelligence, century after century, and even millennium after millennium, from the time of Adam unto this day.

The humble servant of the Lord has written a brief description of the Lord our God, who has enabled him to bring forth this Dispensation, even the Holy Writ of the fulness of times. The Book contains all the knowledge and mysteries of the Holy Priesthood of God, representing the glories, statutes, laws, judgements, and commandments under the Sun and the Moon, but not under the Stars.

Although the subject of the pagan priesthood is not within the scope of the testimony of the humble servant of the Lord, a commentary on its primitive rites and ceremonies is presented, so that the children of God who seek the fulness of scriptural knowledge, may fully understand the dealings of the Lord their God, regardless of the name by which they call him, with all their brethren; who dwelt in different lands, spoke different languages, and received their dispensation at different times, under different circumstances.

I, Effraim, of the tribe of Dan, being a maternal descendant of Hashim, son of Dan, son of Jacob; and also of the tribe of Al-Levi or Levi, being a paternal descendant of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Jacob; am a priest in the kingdom of God; and have written this record in the spirit of meekness, and humility, long-suffering, and patience, sacrifice, and righteousness; after many days of study, contemplation, reflection, prayer, fasting and supplication. But it began a few years ago when the humble servant was moved upon and prompted by the Holy Ghost, to fast and pray, and cleanse and purify his Soul; to isolate himself from the world yet more, and come nigh unto the Lord. Therefore he began his first forty-day fast, yet it was not enough; so he tried again, and then again, for the same period each time. From there on the abundance of Holy Spirit, and revelations from the Lord never ceased, but increased, even unto this day. Yea, the Lord our God, indeed, bestows upon those who seek him diligently, with their heart and soul, all that they ask in righteousness, saith the Lord God. In the same manner, the carnal Judah and Jacob, which have been corrupted by the sins and abominations of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused all Israel to sin, shall once again be redeemed and saved, through repentance, baptism, and the gospel of the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ, saith the Lord God, the Eternal Father.

And finally, the Holy Writ of the fulness of time, even Effraim's Book of the Priesthood of God, is written and compiled by the divine guidance of the Father; and the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ, the true and living God of all the nations, kindred, tongues and people; of all the kingdoms, empires, principalities, dominions, and orders on earth. And this handiwork of His hands shall be consecrated unto the Same and His eternal Kingdom, on the eleventh day of July, 1991 A.D.*; 29 Tammuz 5751 A.·.M.·.;the 8609th year of the Order of the Son of God. On the which day the heavens will be darkened, for the Moon will dim the light of the Sun unto the Earth; and in certain realms skies will be fully darkened for seven minutes to mark the beginning of the seventh millennium of organized existence of the eternal kingdom of God, since the time of Adam. On this selfsame day, the Son, the Moon, and the Earth will align themselves into one alignment; and disputations concerning the Spiritual matters will cease for a season; only to emerge anew in manifold forms, thoughts, words, and deeds, in their appointed time. The completed Book, however, will be Divinely consecrated to the First Presidency and High Council of the Church; on the Eve of the first Millennial New Year, September 27, 1992; the official reckoning of the Millennium will begin the following day. The renovation of the world shall begin with the end of the Third Separation, after three hundred and ninety years are elapsed from this hallowed day, in 2382 A.D.; this Separation marks the end of 9,000 years of the world's existence. And the year 5382 A.D. shall mark the end of the Fourth Separation, or the 12,000 years of the world's existence; from the time the holy priesthood of God was framed and the throne of the first Lord Meshiahh (Messiah) or the Son of God ( ) was established forever and ever. But this is the first time that a continuous record of the eternal and holy priesthood of God and its Kingdom is formalized, since 6618 B.C. Thus I, Effraim Zerdusht Al-Levi, a servant of the Lord, make an end to my Introduction and begin this Book in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; in the name of the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ; his Holy Word; and his Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God. Amen. Ashem vohu.

---

* On this auspicious day also ended the humble servant's period of Spiritual retreat; of three years, three months, three weeks, and three days; which began in mid-March, 1988.

and a great deal more. To live under his grace and mercy suffices me; and fills my Soul with the Holy Spirit, which is the source of the life-giving fountains.

How fortunate is the man who places his trust in the Lord his God; and loves him always by keeping his commandments; and knoweth that the chastisement and punishment of the Lord also bring him the greatest blessings, which in no other way can be obtained. Such a man has, indeed, builded his house on the rock, not on clay or sand; and has planted the precious seed of salvation, which only comes from the Tree of Life, in a most fertile ground. He shall reap several-fold at the harvest time; and the fruit shall include peace, comfort, joy, compassion, constant companionship of the Holy Ghost and the Holy Spirit, and eternal grace and mercy of the Lord.

No man can find salvation or enlightenment in ignorance, or without the Lord his God. Thus, only by endurance of faith on his name to the end, and obedience to his commandments can mankind receive the supreme gift of salvation and enlightenment. Salvation, however, is a personal matter, and each person must work out his or her own plan of salvation, since no one can claim the good works of another. The plan of salvation through the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ includes three steps between man's decision to forsake sinful living and abide in faith in the Lord his God, and the Lord's gift of salvation to him. These are: first, the person in all meekness and humility must humble himself before God, and repent for the forgiveness of past sins, transgressions, trespasses, iniquities and ways of error, with all his heart, and soul (for no man is found sinless in the sight of God); second, the person must be baptized by full immersion in water, for the remission of sins, to symbolize the washing away of sins, and the burial and resurrection of Christ, and to enter into a covenant to abide in the gospel of the Lord. This ordinance is performed by a priest of the kingdom of God; and third, the gift of the Holy Ghost must be conferred upon the individual by the laying on of hands, by those who are the priests of the Order of Melchizedek, the ancient Order of the Son of God; or of the Holy Order of Effraim, which Order during the Millennium will be above all other Orders of the kingdom of God.

Moreover, this work is the fruit of imbibition of all the priestly and royal knowledge under the Son; knowledge more sacred and powerful than all the knowledge of the world combined; the knowledge whose fruit of all that is good is as certain as death itself. Therefore, whosoever shall read this Book and become obedient to the whisperings and enticings of the Holy Spirit within that person, shall never lose his reward of salvation and enlightenment, peace, joy, happiness, and all that is good; be he a king, a priest or a subject, it matters not.

The Holy Writ is divided into Seven Epochs. And each epoch, or period of time characterized by noteworthy Spiritual advancements or memorable series of events, is presented in the name of the Father, and his Son; while the Holy Ghost and All-seeing Eye of the Lord beareth witness to my record. The division of these epochs is based on the events of Spiritual importance, rather than chronology. Therefore, gaps and overlaps in chronology exist. The overlaps are due to shared birth-death periods, or beginning-ending reigns. Moreover, the conversion of certain dates from the ancient sacred calendar of the Hebrews to their secular calendar, to the Gregorian calendar, may cause a discrepancy of ±2 years, in some cases, but not in all, in this chronological reckoning.

The First Epoch:	from Adam to Noah (c.4026 B.C. - c.2020 B.C.)
The Second Epoch:	from Shem (Melchizedek) to Abraham (c.2468 B.C. - c.1843 B.C.)
The Third Epoch:	from Isaac to Moses (c.1918 B.C. - c.1473 B.C.)
The Fourth Epoch:	from Aaron to John the Baptist (c.1597 B.C. - c.33 A.D.)
The Fifth Epoch:	from Jesus to Mohammed (c.2-1 B.C. to c.632 A.D. and beyond)
The Sixth Epoch:	from Pope Sibinianus to Pope Pius VIII (c.604 A.D. - c.1829 A.D.)
The Seventh Epoch:	from Joseph Smith, Jr. (c.1805 A.D.) to the present time (September, 1990 A.D.); and until the Second Coming of the Messiah.

While the Holy Writ is divided into Seven Epochs; each epoch is divided into number of pages; and each page into number of lines. References to the text may, therefore, be made by Epoch, page and line numbers; or merely by page and line numbers. For example, the following textual reference can be found in the First Epoch (Roman numeral one), beginning on page 3, line 22:

> Thus the heaven and earth were finished and all the host of them. And on the Seventh Day God ended his work, and all things which . . .
>
> (I-3:22, or 3:22)

Now, thus saith the Lord God, the Father in heaven, to His humble servant; even that which He has revealed on the twenty-first day of May, 1991 A.D.; concerning the things which are yet to come. Thus said the Lord God: Who needs the Lord of hosts? Can't a general of the army do; can't a captain of the guards do? Who needs the Lord of hosts, the God of the Jews and the nation of Israel, in the Millennial-day? Therefore know, my son, that the Lord of hosts is likened to Indra and Mithra and Yima (the Good Shepherd) of old; without whom the wheels of the material world would not turn, and only death, misery and woe will prevail. Yea, only those who are at war with themselves, their spouses and families, with people, places and things; they that are in eternal bondage and misery which ariseth out of their rebellion against God's law, and their adherence to false beliefs; such are they, my son, that need the Lord of hosts, who doth redeem them, saves them, and heals them. Know this also, my son, that he is the God of passions, even a jealous good shepherd, who himself is in bondage of the flesh and the world; who hath not achieved the fulness of peace, joy, salvation, nor enlightenment; for his nature is of the bliss of the world, and not the essence of the Spirit; his Soul is vexed, for he is burdened with the errors of the flesh and false beliefs of the world. Yet he is the builder of the Kingdom, its defender and King.

Yea, the stiffnecked, the rebellious, the double-minded, such are they, my son, that need the Lord of hosts. They are the creatures whose roots are imbedded in primeval ignorance and false beliefs of the Egyptians, Babylonians, and Indians. They prefer the yoke of the world, to the yoke of the Holy Word; they are driven by jealousy, envy, lust, covetousness, greed, anger, desire, and manifold false beliefs. The intents of their hearts are evil continually, and all their thoughts are carnal, base, and deathly. And for they are given into their feelings and sensations, rather than to the principles and doctrines of the Holy Word, they are dead in the Spirit, only physical body, and emotions they possess, in the absence of the Soul or their True Self. Therefore all knowledge of the Lord their God is withheld from them. Yea, the Lord of hosts is their Messiah (Meshiahh), through whom and no one else can mankind be redeemed and saved from their fallen existence. And through continued good thoughts, good words, and good deeds only can they inherit a portion in the Kingdom of the Father, the Lord God of the highest heaven; and without the Lord of hosts they can in no wise enter the kingdom of God; nor the kingdom of Heaven, in the which kingdom the fulless of salvation, enlightenment, love, compassion, joy, peace, and much more, are found.

Know this also, my son, saith the Lord God, that in the Millennial-day the Lord of hosts shall no longer be called by this name, but the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ, shall be his name, forever. Therefore a Lord of compassion shall emerge out of the Lord of passion. And while the prophets shall be the Lords of hosts of the earthly armies; the Lord Messiah shall be the Lord of the heavenly Hosts of Archangels, as in the days of old. For, saith the Lord God, he will not be of the warriors or the rebellious lot; but of the womb of the holy and eternal priesthood of God shall he be; and from the seat of the Essence of the Holy Word shall he descend to the earth, in holiness and in piety. Therefore he shall dwell in the presence of the Father, the Lord God of the highest heaven. And he shall reign in peace and glory for a thousand years, and beyond; and his throne of righteousness shall be established forever and ever. Moreover, the Lord Messiah shall once again establish the foundation of a new Zion, the Good Land, and gather the righteous of the world in one place. Peace, safety, salvation, enlightenment, and healing shall be in his hands; the Righteousness and the Holy Word shall be his weapons of war, even the most potent weapons from the foundations of the world.

And thus saith the Lord God, Let this be glad tidings unto all the races of men of diverse and marvellous colors, from the blackest black to the whitest white; for the Lord their God judgeth not man by the color of his skin, but by discerning his true nature and secret thoughts, he judgeth each man. Moreover, saith the Lord God, As Adam and Eve were cast out from the garden of Eden, so shall I create a new Adam and a new Eve, to dwell in my Garden, in the Millennial-day. And they shall abide in my new and everlasting covenant. Yea, in that day shall I extend my grace and tender mercies unto all my children, even the sons of Japheth, Shem, and Ham; yea, this will I do just once, saith the Lord God.

Moreover, saith the Lord God, the Father, that during the Millennium, the nation of Islam shall be no more; for they will be given the law of Moses, and the baptism of Christ for remission of their sins. And the Jews shall receive their Lord Meshiahh (Messiah), their long-awaited Savior and Redeemer, and the Scriptures of the fulness of times, and the baptism of Christ. But, the Holy Order of Effraim and the Church of the Firstborn shall inherit this Criterion, even the Holy Writ, to judge all nations under the Son. And saith the Lord God, After this, those who would not accept the Lord Messiah as their Redeemer and Savior, nor would they abide in his Word, shall be cast out, and shall be visited with the same judgment which was upon Sodom and Gomorrah. For the wickedness and abominations of these people are not hid from mine eyes. In that day, saith the Lord God, these people whose roots are imbedded in ignorance and disease shall be cast out as the chaff from the wheat, to be scattered whithersoever the wind might take them; so much so that only a third of the population of the wicked nations shall survive; and they shall be the servants and tributaries to the nation of Israel.

And saith the Lord God, Even all the house of Zohak (Ad-Zahak), the kingdom of falsehood and deception; will no more have the power to corrupt the seed of Israel; nor to bring enmity between men and their wives, parents and children, and between friends and kinsfolk. For such things belong to the kingdom of the Devil, and not to the kingdom of God. Yea, the nakedness and the filthy works of Mara, the Angra Mainyu, the Iblis, the Destroyer, the Shaitan, shall no longer be hid; but diligently taught to each babe and suckling of the Kingdom; to preserve them from the powers of the adversary; until they are become strong enough to discern the tempter's snares, and withstand his fiery darts. Furthermore, in that day, saith the Lord God, the New Order will be established, and naturally separated by the three eternal dispositions or natures of men, as in the days of old. And each kingdom will be ruled by the three Presidents or Christs (Anointed Ones) of the high priesthood and their counselors; the Twelve Apostles and their counselors; and one hundred and forty-four ministering high priests and elders; plus their princes, governors, captains, judges, treasurers, counsellors, sheriffs, and provincial rulers. And each kingdom will be divided, by the three layers of hierarchy; each governed by a Christ and his two assistants, their twelve apostles, and one hundred forty-four ministering angels, as in the days of old.

And saith the Lord God, the Father, unto his servant and son: As the Lord Messiah Jesus Christ shall emerge out of the Lord of hosts of old; even so will the death of the nation of Islam bring forth the nation of Bani Israel, the nation of the tribes of Israel; that all which hath been spoken by the mouths of my servants the prophets be fulfilled, every whit,

CHAPTER ONE

The First Epoch: from Adam to Noah (c.4026 - c.2020 B.C.)

Before the beginning, there was Void without measure, and darkness prevailed from eternities to eternities. Then the basic substances within the Void, combined with their own kind and or bonded with others; creating new substances from numerous interactions amongst the old, the new, and the decayed. Thus, the basic substances in various stages of transformation combined with the forces, currents, powers, and energies of the great deep; bringing into existence new entities of various sizes, shapes, powers and intensities (largest of these measuring millions of miles in length, breadth, and height), carrying within their domains huge masses of basic substances in a state of flux. By means of further interactions amongst the forces, currents, energies and powers of the deep, and the substances of the Void, each celestial entity was set in gradual rotation (revolution) and motion, within the endless expanse. As the momentum in rotation was built up, and sufficient mass of basic substances gathered within each entity, the temperatures and pressures within them increased to such critical levels, that out of the basic substances were created countless illuminated (brightened) entities (in the same manner as fluorescent and other light bulbs are illuminated in our day, on earth). The smallest of these illuminated entities are the suns (stars).

Thus came into existence innumerable illuminated celestial entities; and darkness prevailed no more upon the face of the Void. During the process of establishing themselves on their own eternal course of rotation and motion, out of one of the many millions of suns, came into being the Earth and the Moon, and other bodies. The earth and the moon were formed by the heavier substances of the sun; and came under the power and control of the sun, the moon under the power and control of the earth, and the sun came under the power and control of the greater illuminated celestial entity, forever and ever.

The earth being at a perfect distance from the sun, as it cooled, the vapors and the mist formed a canopy around the earth, and the tilt of the earth gave changes in seasons; then, the simple life forms began to emerge out of the many interactions between the substances, forces, currents, energies and powers of the earth, and the light and heat of the sun. As the layers of earth's atmosphere began to thicken, new vegetations and life forms began to develop. Millenniums upon millenniums passed away and man lived among the plants and animals, for out of the same substance came man. Then came the beginning of the creation and organization of the heaven and earth, for the benefit of man; and the work and glory of God to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man, and to establish the eternal Kingdom of God, began on earth. In the beginning when God created the heaven and the earth for the benefit of man, and took upon Himself to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man, the inhabitants of the earth were void of understanding, neither did they have any form of government; and darkness prevailed upon the face of the land. At this time there was one language and one speech; and God organized the heaven and the earth upon the earth, and said: Let there be light, and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness; and called the light Day and the darkness the Night; and this God did by the power of His Word, and it was done according to the Word; and the time between the evening and morning was the First Day. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters; and God said: Let there be an expanse in the midst of water, that it may divide the waters from the waters. And it was so, and God made the expanse and divided the great waters which were below the expanse from the great waters above the expanse. And God called the expanse and the firmament (luminaries) Heaven; and the time from the evening till the morning was the Second Day. And God said: Let the waters under heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear; and it was so. And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters He called Seas; and God saw that all things which He had made for the benefit of man and to establish the eternal Kingdom of God on earth, were good. And God said: Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, the fruit tree whose seed is within itself, yielding fruit after its own kind; and it was so. And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after its kind, and the tree yielding fruit whose seed was within it, after its kind; and God saw that all things that He had made were good. And the time from the evening till the morning was the Third Day. And God said: Let there be lights (luminaries) in the heaven, to divide the Day from the Night, and let them be for signs and for seasons, and for days and years; and let them be for lights in the firmament of heaven which I have created, to give light upon the earth, and it was so. And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the Day, and lesser light to rule the Night; and the greater light was the sun, and the lesser light was the moon; and the stars were also made in the heaven, according to the Word of God. And the time from the evening till morning was the Fourth Day. And God said: Let the waters bring forth abundantly the marine creatures to life, and the fowl that may fly above the earth in the open expanse and firmament of the heaven. And God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the water brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after its kind. And God saw that all things which He had created were good. And God blessed them, saying: Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the sea, and let fowl multiply in the earth; and the time from the evening till the morning was the Fifth Day. And God said: Let the earth bring forth cattle, and creeping things and beasts, after their kind; and it was so, and God made the beasts of the earth after their kind, cattle after their kind, and everything that creepeth upon the earth after their kind; and God saw that it was good. Then God said unto His Only Begotten Son, who was with Him from the beginning of the creation of the heaven and the earth, and establishment of the Kingdom of God upon earth, saying: Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness; and it was so. And the Lord God formed man from the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul, the first flesh upon the earth, even the first man; nevertheless all things were created spiritually first, according to His Word. And God said: Let man have dominion over the fishes of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over everything which hath been created on earth. And God created man in His own image, in the image of His Only Begotten created He him, male and female created He them. And God blessed them, saying: Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it, and have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. And God said unto them (man): Behold, I have given you every herb-bearing tree and every fruit-bearing tree; to you it shall be food, and to every beast of the earth, every fowl of the air, everything that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every clean herb for food. And God saw everything that He had created and made; and, behold, it was very good; and the time between the evening and the morning was the Sixth Day.

Thus the heaven and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the Seventh Day God ended His work, and all things which He had made; and rested on the seventh day from all His works which He had completed for the benefit of man; which is to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man. And God saw all that He had spoken unto His Only Begotten by the Word, was finished; and God saw that it was good. And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it; because in it God had rested from all His work which He had created and made. Behold, these are the generations of the heaven and of the earth, when they were created by the Lord God. And every plant of the field before it was ever planted, and every clean herb of the field before it grew, and all things of which the Lord spoke, were created by Him spiritually first, before they were physically (naturally) created upon the face of the earth. And the Lord God had not yet caused the rain to fall, but the rain fell upon the earth according to its time; and the Lord God had also created and raised all the children of men; but He had not yet raised a man to till the ground, and man ate that which grew by itself. Then went up a mist from the earth, according to the Word of the Lord God, and caused waters to fall upon the ground.

And it came to pass that the Great Council in Heaven decided that the Gods (Elohim) go down to the earth and dwell with the man which the Lord God had created; and to teach the natural man the mysteries of the Kingdom of God and the Gospel of salvation. And the Gods came to the Nile Delta region of Lower Egypt, below the Great Sea (Mediterranean Sea), where a clear sky prevailed, and rain was rarely seen, and they dwelt among the inhabitants of the region; who were the Lybians of north Africa, Galla, Somali, Bega and other tribes of eastern Africa, and Asian (Semitic) nomads of the desert. And they saw that the men wore a skin over their shoulders, and skin drawers, yet others dwelt naked from head to toe. Some wore sandals, and ornaments such as rings, bracelets, pendants of stone, ivory and bones, some with beads of flint, quartz, agate and such; some also wore jewelry of precious metals and stones. Many tatooed their bodies; and women dressed their hair with ornamented ivory combs and pins, and painted their eyes, faces, and bodies. They dwelt in huts of interwoven twigs smeared with mud or animal manure; some used sun-dried bricks. And it was on the 19th day of July, 4241 B.C., that the Gods in the Nile Delta region of Lower Egypt gave man his first calendar to reckon time; and began to teach him the mysteries of the Kingdom of God and the Gospel of salvation. The year was now divided into twelve months, and each month into thirty days; and five sacred feast days were added at the end of the year. Thus the reckoning of time began on the selfsame day in 4241 B.C., when Sirius (Dog Star), the star of the constellation Canis Major, the brightest star in the sky, first appeared on the eastern horizon at sunrise (which fell on the 19th of July, according to the reckoning of our day).

In the meantime, the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden (Aden), in the land of Punt, and there He planted the man whom He had formed in His own image, according to His needs and purposes; and from out of the ground made the Lord God to grow trees which were pleasant to the sight, and good for food and medicine; and the Lord planted in the midst of the garden, the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, and the Tree of Life, also. And the Lord God caused a river to pass through Eden to water the garden; and from thence it parted into four heads. The name of the first canal He called Pishon (Pison), which compasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there was much gold, bdellium, and onyx stone; the name of the second branch of the river, the Lord God called Gihon, the same which compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia; and the third canal He called Hiddekel (Dikhil), which goeth eastward toward Asir; and the fourth canal He called Ephrath. And it was in about 4026 B.C. that the Lord God took man from among the men which He had created and raised, and put him in the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it; and the birth of man (Adam) is reckoned from this time onward. And the Lord commanded the man, saying: Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat, but of the two trees in the midst of the garden, thou shalt not eat (nevertheless, thou mayest choose for thyself, for the choice, or agency, is given unto thee; but remember that I forbid it, for in the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die [spiritually]).

And out of the waters of the earth, the dust, the basic substances, and the heat and light of the sun, and by the power of His Word He formed all vegetation, and heavenly luminaries upon the earth; marine and flying creatures and land animals, and also man (which in the language of the Hebrews and the Arabs was called Adam; and in the language of the Egyptians was called Aton, the first man). And the Lord God brought them to Adam, in the garden of Eden, to see what would he call them; and by whatsoever name Adam called the creature, the same became the name thenceforth. And Adam gave names to all the living creatures on earth at that time. And it came to pass that the Lord God said unto His Only Begotten Son: It is not good that the man should be alone; wherefore I will make an help meet for him; for there is found not one for Adam among men. So the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and while he slept, the Lord God took one of his ribs, and performed a divine surgery, and closed up the flesh thereof. After He took out the rib and did that which He did, He created and raised up a woman unto Adam, to be his wife and help meet, companion and mother of his children. And the Lord God brought the woman unto Adam. And Adam was overjoyed, saying: This is now bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh. And the Lord God asked him: What would thou call her? And Adam replied: She shall be called woman, because she was taken out of man. Then the Lord God blessed them, saying: Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall become one in flesh. And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed. And the Lord God gave Adam pure language, which was undefiled; and he was taught to read and write Rahleenos, hieroglyphics, and later God called his name Michael, the archangel. Thus the Lord God created and made all things: First spiritually, then temporally (or physically), which was the beginning of His work; and later, first temporally, then spiritually, which was the last of His work. But unto the Lord also His works have no end, neither beginning. And all things unto the Lord God were spiritual, and not at any time had He given a temporal nor carnal, nor sensual law to Adam (nor any other man after Adam); for He said unto Adam: Thou shalt be an agent unto thyself. The gift of agency (free-will and choice) is given unto thee.

And it came to pass, that the Lord God said unto His Only Begotten: Who shall we send to minister unto the children of men on earth? Then came Satan unto the presence of the Lord God, and said: Behold, here am I, send me, even me; and I will be Thy son, and I will redeem all mankind and one soul shall not be lost, and surely I will do it. Wherefore, give me Thine honor and glory, and power. On the other hand, the Lord God's Only Begotten from the beginning, His Beloved Son, said unto Him: Father, Thy will be done, and the honor, the glory and the power be Thine forever. Wherefore Satan rebelled against the Lord God, and sought to destroy the agency of man, which the Lord God granted him. So by the power of the Only Begotten, the Lord God caused that Satan be thrust (cast) down from the presence of the Lord God and His Son. And Satan was called Perdition, for the heavens wept over his loss, for he was Lucifer, a son of the morning.

And Satan became the devil, the father of all lies; to deceive and to blind men, and to lead them captive at his will, even as many as would not hearken unto the voice of the Lord God. Now, the serpent, which was capable of shedding his skin, was more subtle than any of the beasts of the field which the Lord God had made. And Satan put into the heart of the serpent to beguile the wife of Adam, for the serpent knew not the mind of God, wherefore he sought to destroy the world. And Satan spoke through the mouth of the serpent, saying unto the woman: Yea, hath God said, ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent: We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the trees which thou beholdest in the midst of the garden, God hath said: Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. And the serpent said unto the woman: Ye shall not surely die; for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, your eyes shall be opened, as gods', knowing good and evil.

And the woman saw that the tree was good for food, pleasant to the eyes, and needful to make one wise, so she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat and gave also unto her husband, and he did eat. And, behold, the eyes of both of them were opened, and they found themselves naked, and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves things (aprons) to gird about. And they heard the voice of the Lord God as he walked in the garden in the cool of the day, and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God, amongst the trees of the garden. And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said: Where hidest thou? And he said: I heard Thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I beheld that I was naked, and I hid myself. And the Lord God said unto Adam: Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree wherefore I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat? If so, thou shalt surely die. And the man said: The woman thou gavest me, and commandest me that she should remain with me, she gave me of the fruit of the tree, and I didst eat. And the Lord God said unto the woman: What is this thing which thou hast done? And the woman said: The serpent beguiled me, and I didst eat. And the Lord God said unto the serpent: Because thou hast done this, thou shalt be cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon the belly thou shalt go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life; and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between thy seed and her seed; and he shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel. And unto the woman the Lord God said: I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception. In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children, and thou shall be in bondage of desire and man; and the man shall rule over thee. And unto Adam the Lord God said: Because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the fruit of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying: Thou shalt not eat of it; cursed be the ground for thy sake, and in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. Thorns also, and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shall not eat meat, but the herb of the field. By the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou shalt die and return to the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; dust thou wast, and unto dust shalt thou return.

And Adam called his wife's name Eve, because she was the mother of all living, for thus the Lord God called the first of all the women He had created, which are many. Then unto Adam and his wife Eve, did the Lord God make coats of skins and clothed them; and He said unto His Only Begotten Son: Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil; and now lest he put forth his hand and partake also of the Tree of Life, and eat and live in wickedness forever, I, the Lord God, will send him away from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. For as I, the Lord God, liveth, even so my words cannot return void, nor fall to the ground; for as they go forth out of my mouth, they must be fulfilled. So the Lord God drove out the man from His presence; and placed at the east of the garden of Eden, cherubim and a flaming sword, which turned every which way to keep the way of the Tree of Life.

And it came to pass that Satan the Devil also rebelled against the Lord God, and came into His presence, saying: Give me Thine honor, and power and glory; and one-third of the hosts of heaven turned away from the Lord God because of their agency; and the devil and his angels were thrust down. And the Lord God said unto his Beloved Son, behold, there was a place prepared for them from the beginning, which place is Hell (Sheol, Jehenna). And it must needs be that the devil should tempt the children of men, or they would not be agents unto themselves; for if they never should have tasted the bitter they would have never known the sweet. Wherefore, when the devil tempted Adam by the hand of his wife, and he partook of the forbidden fruit, and transgressed the commandment, and died spiritually, he became subject unto the will of the devil, because he yielded into temptation. Wherefore, the Lord God caused that man be cast out from His presence; for they were dead spiritually, which is the first and the last death, which the Lord God pronounced upon the wicked, saying: Depart, ye cursed. But, behold, the Lord God gave unto Adam and his seed, that they should not die as to temporal death, until the Lord God should send forth angels to declare unto them the Gospel of repentance and redemption, through faith in His Only Begotten Son, which is Jesus Christ. And thus did the Lord God appoint unto man the days of his probation upon the earth, that they might experience mortality and temporal (natural) death; and after having been made perfect in the refiner's fire, and molded in the image of their Creator; that they may be raised up in immortality unto eternal life, even as many as would believe. And those who believe not shall be damned eternally; for they cannot be redeemed from their spiritual fall and death, because they repent not; for they love darkness rather than light, and their deeds are evil, and they receive their wages from those whom they list to obey. But, behold, little children and pure in heart are redeemed from the foundation of the Kingdom of God on earth, through the Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ; wherefore, also children cannot sin, for power to tempt children is not given unto Satan, until they become accountable before the Lord, at the age of eight years; for it is given unto them, according to His own needs, purposes, and plans, that great things may be required at the hand of their fathers and mothers.

Thus the Lord God finished the organization of the intelligences upon the earth; and He saw that there were many noble, righteous, and great souls in the heavens that the Lord God created for the benefit of man; and that they were good; and He stood in the midst of them that had the Holy Spirit upon them and said: These will I make my rulers upon the earth; and there stood one among them, who was like unto God, and said unto those who were present: Let us go down, for there is space there, and we will take the materials from the heaven, and we will organize the earth whereon these souls may dwell; and we will prove (test) them to see if they will do all things the Lord their God shall command them; and they who keep their first estate shall be added upon; and they who keep not their first estate shall not have the glory in the same kingdom (which is the celestial kingdom), with those who keep their first estate; and those who keep the second estate shall have glory added upon them of the terrestrial kingdom, for ever and ever. And the Lord God said unto His Beloved Son: Whom shall I send? And the Son of (Holy) Man said: Here I am, Thou mayest send me; then, there was another amongst them; and he said: Here am I, send me. And the Lord God said: I will send the first. And the second was angry, and rebelled aginst the Lord God, as did Lucifer, and kept not his first estate; and on that day many followed after him, because of their agency; in the same manner when one-third of the hosts of the heaven left with Lucifer.

Then, the Beloved Son of God, the Lord, said unto all the Gods (Elohim): Let us go down to organize and form the heavens and the earth for all of those who have rebelled against the Lord God, and kept not their first estate, but kept the second estate. And the Gods said: We may form and organize the earth in the similitude of the works of the Lord God; and do likewise, and create and make all things in six days (phases); and observe the sabbath during the seventh day (phase); and they all agreed to that which was proposed. And the Gods said: Let there be light, and there was light; and the Gods comprehended the light, for they were able to see the brightness with the eyes of their soul; and they caused the light to be divided from the darkness. And the Gods called the light Day, and the darkness they called Night. And the Gods called no more from evening till the morning a day; but they began to reckon from the evening until morning as one night, and from the morning until the evening as one day. This the Gods did in the First Phase (Day) of their work. Then the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the water, and the Gods said: Let there be an expanse in the midst of the water, to divide the water from the water; and the Gods decreed that water which was under the expanse be divided from the water which was above the expanse, and it was accomplished, according to their Word; and the Gods called the dry land the Earth of man, and the gathering together of the water they called the Great Waters (rivers) of man; and the Gods saw that all was carried out, according to their Word; and this the Gods accomplished in the Second Phase (Day) of their work. Then the Gods said: Let us prepare the earth to bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, the fruit tree yielding fruit, after their kind, and it was so, and all was accomplished according to their decree. This the Gods did in the Third Phase (Day) of their work. Then, the Gods organized the luminaries (lights) in the expanse of the heaven, and caused the day to be divided from the night; and organized them for signs, and for seasons, and for days and for years, and to give light upon the earth; and it was so. And the Gods organized the two great lights to divide the light from the darkness; and the greater light, or the sun, to rule the day; and the lesser light, the moon, to rule the night; with the lesser light they set the stars also. And the Gods watched over those things which were ordered, until they were accomplished. And the Gods did this in the Fourth Phase (Day) of their work. Then the Gods said: Let us prepare the waters that they might bring forth abundantly the marine creatures that have life, and the fowl that may fly above the earth in the open expanse of heaven. And the Gods prepared the waters, that they might bring forth great whales, and living creatures that moveth in the waters, after their kind; and winged fowl after its kind. And the Gods saw to it that all was obeyed, and that their plans were good, and for the benefit of the sons of Belial, the rebellious, fallen, and spiritually dead, who left the heaven established by the Lord God, and were cast down to the earth. And the Gods said: We will bless the marine souls and fowls, and cause them to be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the Great Waters (rivers); and cause the fowl to multiply in the earth. And the Gods accomplished this in the Fifth Phase (Day) of their work. Then the Gods prepared the earth to bring forth the living animals, cattle, creeping things and beasts, after their kind. And the Gods took counsel among themselves, and said: Let us go down, and form man in our own image, after our likeness; and we will train them to have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the fowl of the air, over the cattle, over every creeping thing, and over all the earth. So the Gods went down to organize man in their own image; in the image of the Gods, they formed and organized male and female. And the Gods said: We will bless them, and cause them to be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it; and to have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. And the Gods said: Behold, we will give them every clean herb that shall come upon the face of the earth, and every clean fruit-bearing tree; it shall be for their food; and to every land animal, to every fowl, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, behold we will provide them sustenance; and all things were thus organized for the benefit of man, and all living creatures. And the Gods accomplished all this in the Sixth Phase (Day) of their work.

And the Gods said amongst themselves: In the Seventh Phase (Day) will be the end of our work, and we will rest from all our works, which was to organize and form the heaven and the earth for those who did not keep their first estate, and were cast out from the presence of the Lord God, the Heavenly Father of the Son of God. Thus Adam fell that man might be, and men are that they might have joy; and after Adam's fall, every natural man was called Adam, who is and will be forever an enemy of God; unless he yields to the enticings of the Holy Spirit and develops faith in the Son of God, even Jesus Christ, and putteth away the natural man and repents, and becometh a saint; pure like a child, innocent but not ignorant, submissive, meek, humble, patient, full of love and understanding, willing to bear the pains of hardships and tribulations which the Lord seeth fit to inflict upon him, even as an obedient child submits to his father.

Because Adam and his wife transgressed and ate of the forbidden fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, the Lord God had driven them out of the garden of Eden to till the ground, from whence Adam was taken, and to have the dominion over all the beasts of the field. Adam and Eve, however, ceased not to call upon the name of the Lord; and it came to pass that they heard the voice of the Lord from the way toward the garden of Eden, speaking to them, but they saw Him not; for they were shut out from His presence. And the Lord their God gave them commandments that they shall worship the Lord their God, and offer the firstlings of their flock. Adam was obedient to the commandments.

After many days an angel of the Lord appeared unto Adam, saying: Why dost thou offer sacrifices unto the Lord? And Adam replied: I know not, except the Lord commanded me. And then the angel spoke, saying: This act of sacrifice is in resemblance of the sacrifice of the Only Begotten of the Father, which is full of grace and truth. Wherefore, thou shalt do all that thou doeth in the name of the Son forever. And in that day the Holy Ghost fell upon Adam, bearing witness of the Father and the Son; and Adam blessed the name of God and was filled with the Holy Spirit; and began to prophecy, saying: Blessed be the name of the Lord, for because of my transgression my eyes are opened, and in this life I shall have joy, and again in the flesh I shall see God. And Eve, his wife, heard all these things and was glad, saying: Were it not for our transgression, we never would have had seed, and never would have known good or evil, nor the joy of our redemption, and the eternal life which God giveth unto the obedient. Both Adam and Eve praised the name of the Lord, and made all things known to their sons and daughters.

And it came to pass that Adam glorified the name of the Lord, and called upon his sons to repent; and asked the Lord: Why is it that men must repent and be baptized in water? And the Lord said: Behold I have forgiven thee thy transgression in the garden of Eden. Inasmuch as thy children are conceived in sin, even so when they begin to grow up, sin conceiveth in their hearts, and they taste the bitter, that they may know to prize good. And it is given unto them to know the good from evil; wherefore they are agents unto themselves. Wherefore teach it unto thy children that all men, everywhere, must repent, or in nowise inherit the Kingdom of God; for no unclean thing can dwell there, in His presence. Man of Holiness is His name, and the name of His Only Begotten is the Son of Man, which is Jesus Christ, a righteous judge, who shall come into the world in the meridian of time. Teach these things freely unto thy children: that by reason of transgression cometh the fall which bringeth spiritual death; and inasmuch as ye were born into the world by water, and blood, and the spirit, so became of dust a living soul, even so ye must be born again into the kingdom of heaven, of water, of the spirit, and be cleansed by the blood of mine Only Begotten; so that ye may be sanctified from all sins, and enjoy the Words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come, even immortal glory. And now I say unto thee that this is the plan of salvation unto all men, through the blood of mine Only Begotten.

When the Lord had spoken these things, Adam cried unto the Lord, and was caught away by the Holy Spirit and was carried down into the water, and was brought forth out of the water. Thus, Adam was baptized in this manner, and the Spirit of God descended upon him and he was born of the spirit, and became quickened in the inner man. And he heard a voice out of heaven, saying: thou art baptized by fire and water and by the Holy Ghost. This is the record of the Father and Son, from henceforth and forever. And thou art ordained after the Order of Him who was without beginning of days or end of years, from all eternity to all eternity. Behold, now thou art one in me, a son of God; and may all become my sons. Thus, Adam, who was taken from among the men, was ordained as the first High Priest, of the Holy Order after the Son of God (the Melchizedek Priesthood).

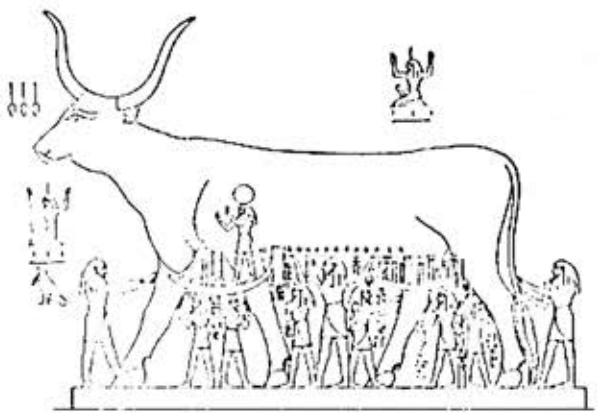
It came to pass that Adam's wife, Eve, conceived and bore Cain, who loved Satan more than God. And Satan commanded him to make an offering unto the Lord. Thus, Cain brought fruits of the ground for an offering. But, his sacrifice was not acceptable to the Lord, and Satan knew it and it pleased him, because the spirit of self-deprivation, truth and righteousness was missing from the act of sacrifice. Abel, Cain's younger brother, who walked in righteousness before God, also brought the firstlings of his flock, and the fat thereof, as an offering. Abel's sacrifice was acceptable to the Lord. This made Cain envious, full of hate and rage; and eventually he took one of his brother's daughters to wife, and they both loved Satan more than God. And Satan entered into a secret oath with Cain to deliver Abel into his hands. And all these things were done in secret; and Cain said: truly I am Mahan ("great one"), the master of this great secret, that I may murder and get gain. Wherefore, Cain was called Master Mahan, and he gloried in his wickedness. And one day he went into the field and talked with his brother Abel; and while they were in the field, Cain rose up against Abel and slew him. And he gloried in that which he had done, saying: I am free; surely the flocks of my brother falleth into my hands. And the Lord said unto Cain: Where is Abel, thy brother? And Cain said: I know not. Am I my brother's keeper? And the Lord said: What hast thou done? The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. And thou shalt be cursed, for the earth which has opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand, the same shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength when thou tillest the ground. A fugitive and vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

And Cain said unto the Lord: Satan tempted me because of my brother's flocks. And I was wroth also, for his sacrifice thou didst accept and not mine; my punishment is greater than I can bear. Thus the Lord set a mark upon Cain, lest anyone finding him should kill him. And Cain was shut out from the presence of the Lord; and he dwelt with his wife and many of his brethren in the land of Nod, in the east of Eden. And Cain's wife conceived and bore Enoch (not Prophet Enoch who was a descendant of Seth).

And unto Enoch, son of Cain, was born Irad and other sons and daughters: and Irad begat Mahujael and other sons and daughters; and Mahujael begat Methusael and other sons and daughters; and Methusael begat Lamech (not the Lamech who was father of Noah). And Lamech took unto himself two wives, Adah and Zillah; and Adah bore Jabal, the father of such who dwelt in tents, and were keepers of cattle; and his brother Jubal, was father of all such who handle the harp and organ. And Zillah bore Tubal Cain, an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron. And Lamech also entered into a secret oath with Satan, after the manner of Cain, and became Master Mahan, master of the great secret which was administered to Cain by Satan. And Irad, the son of Enoch, having known their secret, began to reveal it unto the sons of Adam; wherefore Lamech, being angry, slew him, not like Cain who slew his brother Abel for the sake of getting gain, but he slew Irad for the sake of the secret oath. (And from the days of Cain, there was a secret combination, and their works were in the dark, and they knew every man his brother.) Wherefore the Lord cursed Lamech, and his house, all of them that had entered into the secret oaths and combinations with Satan. And these works of darkness began to spread among all the sons of men, and among daughters these things were not spoken; because Lamech had spoken the secret unto his wives, and they rebelled against him, and declared these things abroad, and had no compassion. Wherefore Lamech was despised, and cast out, and came not among the sons of men, lest they should kill him. Hence, the secret works of darkness began to prevail among all sons of men. And God cursed the earth with a sore curse, and His wrath was kindled against the wicked sons of men, whom He had made; and in order to save those who hearkened to His voice, or believed in His Only Begotten Son, the gospel of repentence and baptism by immersion began to be preached by the holy angels who were sent forth from the presence of God, by His own voice and by the gift of the Holy Ghost.

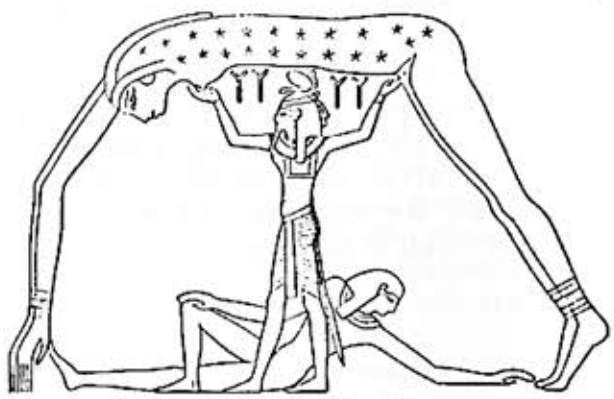
Thus all these things were confirmed to Adam, the first High Priest after the Order of the Son of God, who was taken from among men and appointed in behalf of men over things pertaining to God. And it came to pass that when Adam was one hundred and thirty years, he begat a son in his own likeness, after his own image, and called his name Seth. And Adam glorified the name of God, saying: God hath appointed me another seed, instead of Abel, whom Cain slew. And God revealed Himself to Seth and he rebelled not, but offered an acceptable sacrifice, in the manner of his slain brother Abel. And a Book of Remembrance (which contained collections of every important knowledge beginning from the creation of the world to the planets, moon and stars) was kept from this time forward in which was recorded, in the language of Adam, by the spirit of inspiration, things pertaining to the generations of the Holy Priesthood of God. These holy men were the holders of the Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God (Melchizedek Priesthood), which was in the beginning and shall be in the end of the world. And a genealogy was kept of the children of God in the Book of Generations of Adam.

During the next six centuries, from Adam's fall until the time when Seth, son of Adam, was four hundred ninety-six years old, the Egyptian shepherds and plowmen of the Nile valley were diligently taught by the Holy Priesthood of God to efficiently till the ground and raise crops; become craftsmen and artisans, and learn to live and work in the organized labor camps. These Egyptians believed that there existed a vast cow in the sky which stood across the firmament, the canopy of heaven, with her head in the west, and tail towards the east; and the earth was between her fore and hind feet; while the belly of the cow formed the arch of heaven, the stars in the sky. Yet others believed that a colossal goddess of heaven, Nut, was standing with her feet in the east, arching her body over the earth, and supporting herself upon her arms over the earth in the west.



The Celestial Cow

(Representation of the sun-god travelling in his celestial barque, from east to west; while Shu, the god of the atmosphere, holds her along her belly, which forms the heavens.)



Nut, the Goddess of Heaven

(A representation of god Shu of the atmosphere holding her upon his hands; and Keb, the earth-god touching her feet in the east, and her hands in the west; and Nut's arched belly forms the heavens.)

They also believed that the sky was a sea, as blue as the Nile; and it was supported by four pillars at each of its four corners; and the sun was born every morning as a calf or a human babe, and he (the sun) sailed across the sky in a celestial barque, to arrive in the west, descending as an old man tottering into the grave; and also in the lofty flight of the hawk they pictured the daily journey of the sun across the heavens, thus the sun-disk with the stretched out wings of the hawk became the symbol of their religion. They perceived the earth to be an elongated valley, a man lying prone, upon whose back vegetation grew, the creatures moved, and man lived. Because the sky was a sea, upon which the sun and heavenly lights sailed westward each day, they passed through the Nile on the earth, and returned each day; following through a long, dark passage, with successive caverns through which the celestial barque took its way at night, to appear again in the east at early morning. They believed that the world ended at the first cataract of the Nile River, and beyond that was a vast sea, connected with the Nile in the south, and the river returned to it in the north, to the sea (ocean) of Great Circle, which surrounded the earth. In the beginning only this great ocean existed, upon which there appeared a lotus flower; and out of it came the first sun-god; and from himself he begat four children: Shu, Tefnut, Keb, and Nut; and they all lived with their father, upon the ocean of chaos, when Shu and Tefnut, who are likened to the atmosphere, thrust themselves between Keb and Nut. They planted their feet upon Keb and raised Nut on high, so that Keb became the earth and Nut the heavens. Keb and Nut were the father and mother of four divinities, Osiris and Isis, Set and Nephthys; together, with their primeval father the sun-god, the Son of God, they formed a circle of nine deities, known as the ennead, of which each later temple possessed a local form; and each temple created their local versions of the triad, upon which the ennead was built up. They also believed that Re (Ra), the great god of the sun (Son of God) ruled the earth at one time as a king, over men who plotted against him; so he sent goddess Hathor to slay them; but later Re repented and succeeded in diverting Hathor from total extermination of the human race, after she had destroyed them in part. The cow of the sky then raised Re upon her back, that he might forsake the ungrateful earth and dwell in heaven.

The four goddesses Isis, Nephthys, Neith (Neit) and Selket were the protectors of the four sons of Horus.

Besides these gods of the earth, the air and heavens, there were also those who had as their domain the underworld, the world of the dead, the gloomy passage along which the subterranean stream carried the sun from west to east; here dwelt the dead, whose king was Osiris. He had succeeded the sun-god as king on earth, aided in his government by his sister-wife, Isis. Osiris was a benefactor of men and a righteous ruler who was loved by his people; but he was craftily misled and slain by his brother Set. When, after a great tribulation, Isis had gained possession of Osiris' body, she prepared it for the embalming and burial, by the assistance of the old god of the underworld, Anubis, the jackal-god of secrets, the guard and custodian of the secret things, and the embalmer. So powerful were the charms and spells uttered by Isis over the body of her dead husband that Osiris was rejuvenated and came back to life, and regained the use of his limbs. As it was not expedient for him to resume his earthly life, he passed down in triumph as a living king, to become the lord of the underworld. Isis a few months later gave birth to a son, Horus, whom she secretly reared among the marshy region of the Nile Delta, in northern Egypt, to avenge the death of his father. As he reached manhood, the youth pursued Set and in the ensuing awful battle, which raged from one end of the land to the other, many were mutilated on both sides. But Set was defeated, and Horus triumphantly ascended to the throne of his father. Then Set went to the tribunal of the gods and complained (charged) that the birth of Horus was stained with blood, and that his claim to the throne was not valid. Defended by the ibis-headed god Thoth, the god of letters, Horus was vindicated and declared "true in speech" and "triumphant."

In the Delta region of Egypt, where sun prevailed throughout the day, and rain was rarely seen, the splendor of the sun occupied the highest place in the thought and daily life of the people. The sun (Son) worship was throughout the land, and the world. Here he was known as Re (Ra) which was the solar disk itself; or as Atum (Atom), the worn-out (decrepit) sun, an old man tottering down the west; his name was written in the hieroglyphic sign of a beetle, known as Heper (Khepri), to designate him in youthful vigor of his rising. The sun (Son) had two celestial barques with which he sailed across the heavens, one for the morning, and the other for the afternoon; and when in this barque he entered the underworld to return again daily to the east, he brought light and joy to its disembodied inhabitants. (The symbol of his presence in On, Heliopolis, was an obelisk, and at Edfu, on the upper river, he appeared as a hawk, under the name of Horus.) The moon as the measurer of time, was identified with the ibis-head god, Thoth, the god of letters, reckoning, and wisdom. The sky, seen as Nut, was worshiped throughout the land. The sky-goddess became a type of woman, and of woman's love and joy; shown as the cow-goddess, Hathor, at the shrine of Dendereh; as the joyous goddess Neit at Sais; in the form of a cat Bast at Bubastis; and a lioness, the goddess of storm and terror at the White Wall (Memphis). Thus Osiris came to be worshiped as the holy father, Isis the holy mother, and Horus, the Beloved Son; and in the Beloved Son, they saw the ultimate triumph of the just and right cause of all men on earth.

Osiris was perceived by men as enthroned Pharaoh (Per-O), or a curious pillar. Ptah (Gu-Ptah) was worshiped at White Wall; he was the patron god of the artisan, the artificer and the artist, and Ptah's high priest was always the chief artist of the court.

The Egyptians, before Adam was brought to the garden to Eden in 4026 B.C., worshipped in temples, which were the dwelling place of their god; it was called the house of the god. Behind a forecourt open to the sky usually rose a colonnade hall, beyond which was a series of small chambers, containing the furniture and implements for the temple services. The center of the chambers in the rear was occupied by a small room, the holy of holies (the most holy), in which stood a shrine hewn from a block of granite. It contained the image of the god, a small icon of wood from one and a half to six feet high, adorned with gold, silver and precious stones. The service of the divinity who dwelt there consisted of furnishing him with those things which were necessities and luxuries, such as plentiful food and drink, fine clothing, music and dance. The source of these offerings was the income from the endowments of land by the throne; and also the contributions from the royal revenues in the form of grain, wine, oil, honey, and other things. These contributions were provided for the comfort and happiness of the lord of the temple. Outside in the forecourt was the great altar, where the people gathered on feast days, and shared the generous food offerings, which were eaten by the priests and the temple workers, after they were presented to the god. These feasts, besides those signifying times and seasons, were frequently celebrations (commemorations) of some important event in the recital of the story of the god; and on such occasions the priests brought forth the image (icon) in a portable shrine in the form of a small Nile boat.

The Egyptian priesthood was under the rulership of the local noble, who was the head of the priests in the community. (Later the position of the noble was exalted to bear the title of the Pharaoh, who became the sole official servant of the gods.) He was represented in many temples by a high priest, by whom all offerings were made for the sake of life (☥), prosperity (𓋴) and health (𓂋) of Pharaoh. The high priest of On (Heliopolis) was called the "Great Seer," and he of Ptah at White Wall (Memphis, Noph, Moph) was called, "Great Chief of Artificers." Both positions had two incumbents at a time, and the positions were held by men of high rank. It was the duty of the high priest not only to conduct the service and the ritual at the sanctuary of god, the temple, but also to administer the endowments of the land, from the income of which he lived; in times of war and other calamities he might even declare the temple contingent. The Egyptian high priest was assisted by a body of priests, whose priestly service was merely incidental to their worldly occupations, with a few exceptions. These priests were laymen who from time to time served for a stated period of time in the temple. The women of Egypt were also ordained into the priesthood of Neit or Hathor. These priestesses served as dancers and jinglers of sistrum before the god, on festive occasions. Most frequently the title of the priest was "servant of the god." The beliefs which led the Egyptians to the sacrifice of their wealth, time, skills, and efforts to the building and furnishing of the "eternal house of god" was that the body of a person was animated, or brought back to life, by a vital force, which they called the counterpart of the body or a double, which came into the world with the body; and passed through life in its company, and accompanied it into the next world. This counterpart of the body they called "Ka." Besides Ka, every person possessed a soul, in the form of a bird flitting about among the trees, though it might assume the outward appearance of a lotus flower, a serpent, a crocodile, or any other object. There was a world of the dead in the west, where the sun god descended into his grave every night, and the term westerner was used by the Egyptians for the departed; and usually the cemetery was located at the border of the western desert. There was also the underworld where the departed lived awaiting the return of the celestial barque of the sun (Son) every evening, that they might bathe in the radiance of the sun (Son) god, and seizing the bow-rope of his barque draw him with rejoicing through the long caverns of their dark abode. The Nile-dwellers also saw the hosts of those who had preceded him; there they had flown as birds, rising above all foes of the air, and received by Re (Ra) as the companions of his celestial barque, they now swept across the sky as the eternal stars. They believed that there was a field in the northeast of the heavens, which they called the "field of the Blessed," or the "field of Yaru," the lentil field, where the grain grew taller than anywhere on the banks of the Nile, and the departed ones dwelt in security and in abundance; here, the departed one received from the offerings presented in the temple of his god, bread and beer and fine linen. Not everyone reached the field of the blessed, for it was surrounded by water. Sometimes the departed one might call upon the hawk, the ibis, or the dove to carry him across on their wings; or the friendly spirits, the four sons of Horus, brought him a craft (barque) upon which he might be floated across; sometimes the sun-god bore him across in his barque; but many depended upon the services of a ferryman called Turnface or Look-behind, because his face was usually turned to the rear in rowing his boat. The ferryman did not receive all into his boat, but only those of whom it was said: There is no evil which he hath done; or, he is just, but hath no boat to float across; or, he is righteous before the heaven and the earth, and before men. It was chiefly ceremonial, not moral purity which obtained for the waiting soul passage across the waters.

Later on, Osiris, who died and departed into the underworld, became the main god in Egyptian mortuary belief. He had become the first of the westerners, the departed ones in the west, to become the king of the underworld; they believed that every soul that suffered the fate of Osiris might also experience his restoration to life; and might indeed become an Osiris, and they said: As Osiris lives, so shall man live; as Osiris died not, so shall man also not die; as Osiris perished not, so shall man also not perish. As the limbs of Osiris were again imbued with life, so shall the gods raise him up and put him among the gods. And everyone who suffered the fate of Osiris was assured, saying: The door of heaven is open to thee, and the great bolts are drawn back for thee. Thou findest Re (Ra) standing there; he takes thee by the hand and leads thee into the holy place of heaven, and sets thee upon the throne of Osiris, upon this thy brazen throne, that thou mayest reign over the glorified. The servants of the god stand behind thee and the nobles of the god stand before thee and cry: Come thou god! Come thou god! Come thou possessor of the Osiris throne! Isis speaks with thee and Nephthys salutes thee. The glorified come to thee and bow down, that they may kiss the earth at thy feet. So art thou protected and equipped as a god, endowed with the form of Osiris, upon the throne of the first of the westerners, the first of the world of the dead in the west. Thou doest what he did among the glorified and the imperishable. Thou makest thine house to flourish after thee, protectest thy children from sorrow. They believed thus that all might share the goodly fate of Osiris, or even become Osiris himself; and of the dead they said: They departed not as those who are dead, but they departed as those who are living.

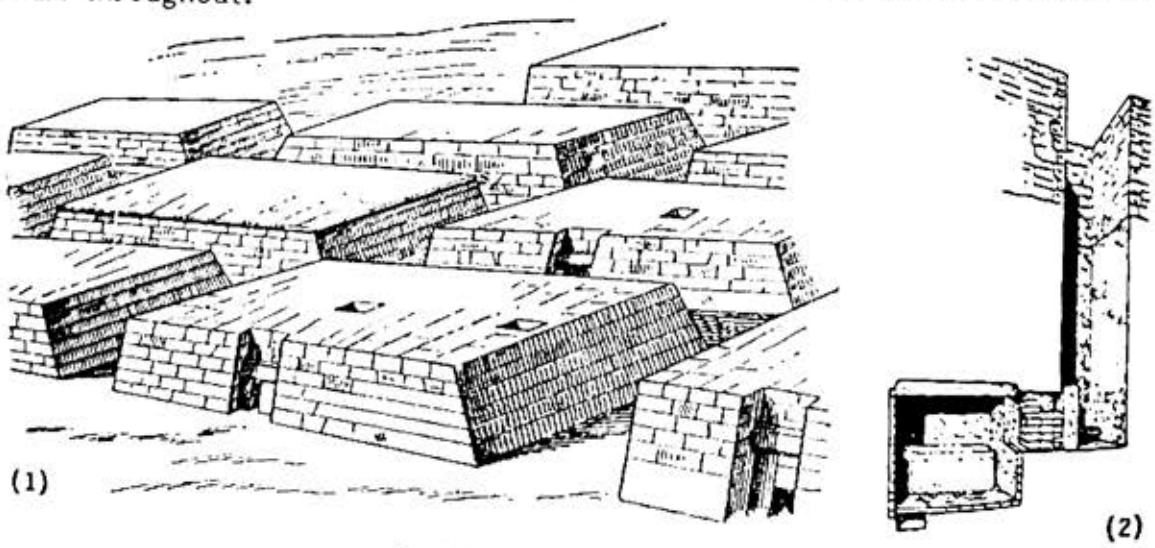
So strong was the Egyptian belief in the life beyond the grave, the hereafter, the afterlife, that there arose a great need for mortuaries. No matter how hard the Egyptians tried to separate the memories of the life of the departed from the tomb where they were buried, they were never able to detach the body from the prevailing spirit of the departed, which they called the future life of the body. Gradually they developed a more and more pretentious and safer repository for the dead, until it had become a vast and massive structure of stone. In all the world no such colossal tombs as the pyramids were to be found. The tombs of the nobles became immense masonry structures by the time of the twenty-fifth century B.C., some containing more than thirty-one rooms. The superstructure of such masonry tombs was a massive rectangular oblong, the sides of which slanted inward at an angle, about seventy-five degrees. With the exception of the room(s), the tombs were solid throughout.



Mastaba or Masonry Tomb

(1) The door of the chapel is in front. The top of the shaft on the roof descends through the superstructure to the subterranean burial chamber, containing the mummy. (2) Longitudinal section of a shaft and funerary chamber. The antechamber between the two shows the position of the "substitute head."

Such a tomb was called "mastaba" or masonry tomb. The simplest of these tombs had no rooms inside, and only a false door in the east side, by which the dead, dwelling in the west (behind the door), might enter again the world of the living. This false door was finally elaborated into a kind of chapel-chamber in the mass of the masonry, the false door now being placed in the west wall of the chamber. The inner walls of this chapel bore scenes carved in relief, depicting the servants and slaves of the deceased at their daily tasks in his estate.

Far below the massive mastaba was a burial chamber in the native rock reached by a shaft which passed down through the superstructure of masonry. On the day of burial the embalmed body was subjected to elaborate ceremonies, with recitations concerning the life and times of Osiris. It was required by means of powerful spells and charms to open the mouth and ears of the deceased, that he might speak and hear in the hereafter. The mummy was then lowered down the shaft and laid upon its left side in a fine rectangular cedar coffin, which was placed inside a massive sarcophagus of granite or limestone. Food and drink were left with it, along with some toilet articles, a magic wand and a number of amulets, as a protection against the enemies of the dead, especially serpents. The number of serpent charms intended to render these foes harmless was very large. The deep shaft leading to the subterranean burial chamber was then filled to the top with sand and gravel; and the friends of the dead now left him to the life in the hereafter. Yet their duty toward their departed friend had not yet ended. In a tiny chamber beside the chapel they masoned up a portrait statue of the deceased, sometimes cutting small channels, which connected two rooms, the chapel and the statue chamber (or serdab). As the statue was an exact reproduction of the deceased, his Ka might therefore attach itself to his double, the counterfeit; and through the connecting channels enjoy the food and drink placed for it in the chapel. The offerings to the dead originally included a small loaf of bread in a bowl, placed by the son or wife or brother of the departed, on a reed mat near the grave; later became elaborate daily cuisine of the departed, before he forsook his earthly house. A large number of personnel was now required for the tomb; some of whom, as its priests, constantly maintained its ritual. Very specific contracts were made with these persons, requiting them for their services with a fixed income drawn from the endowments legally established and recorded for this purpose by the noble himself, in anticipation of his death. The tombs of certain kings were endowed with the revenues from twelve towns; a palace-steward in the time of Pharaoh Userkaf (c.2743 B.C.) appointed eight mortuary priests for the service of his tomb; and a monarch of Upper Egypt endowed his tomb with the income from eleven villages and settlements. Such endowments and services were intended to be permanent, although within a few generations the accumulated burden became intolerable; therefore the temple offerings, after having been presented to the gods, were employed in the maintenance of the people attached to the temple; and a favorite noble of the king could now be rewarded by the king by providing him with a portion of his tomb; and it became customary for the king to assist his favorite lords and nobles in this way. The mortuary prayer frequently began with: "An offering which the king gives," and the nobles often recorded with pride that the king presented him with the false door, or the sarcophagus, or a body of royal artificers to assist in the construction of his tomb. Thus, the tomb of the noble had also become an endowed institution, as it was for the king in the time of Menes. Within the next few generations, as kings of two lands, Upper and Lower Egypt, some monarchs were not satisfied with a simple mastaba, the masonry tomb. Now, although the mortuary service of Pharaoh's lords and nobles might be conducted in the chapel, in the east side of the mastaba, Pharaoh himself required a separate building, a splendid mortuary temple on the east side of his pyramid. A richly endowed priesthood was here employed to maintain its ritual and to furnish the food, drink and clothing of the departed king. Its large personnel demanded many outer buildings, and the whole group of pyramid, temple and accessories, was surrounded by a wall. All this was built on the edge of the plateau overlooking the valley in which, below the pyramid, there grew up a walled town. Leading up from the town to the pyramid enclosure was a massive causeway of stone which terminated at the lower or townward end in a large and stately structure of granite or limestone, sometimes with floors of alabaster, the whole forming a superb portal, a worthy entrance to so impressive a tomb. Through this portal passed the white-robed procession on feast days, moving from the town up the long white causeway to the temple, above which rose the mighty mass of the pyramid. The inhabitants of the city below never generally gained access to the pyramid enclosure. Over the town wall, through the waving green of the palms, they saw the gleaming white pyramid, where lay the god who had once ruled over them; while beside it rose slowly year by year another mountain of stone, gradually assuming the pyramid form, where his divine son was now buried. The inhabitants could occasionally catch the fleeting glimpse of the ceremonies and imposing presence of the pyramid. Later, such burials of Pharaoh and his nobles had become a great burden on the state, so much so that the mortuary equipment was confined to the king and his official circle; and the common people continued to lay away their dead without embalmment, in the plot of their prehistoric ancestors, on the border of the western desert.

Pyramids at Abusir

Close to each pyramid, on this side, is a pyramid temple. A covered masonry causeway leads from the two pyramids down to the edge of the desert plateau, where each terminates in a massive masonry gate.

The art of reading and writing, the science of studying the celestial bodies, and perpetual record-keeping, had been in the hands of the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God since time immemorial, millenniums before the year 4241 B.C., when the first calendar was given to man to reckon time on the earth. But during the time man was cut off from the presence of the Lord God, and Adam had begotten Seth his son in 3896 B.C., until the Lord had prepared man to subdue the world and rule the people in truth and righteousness; to become the left arm of the Lord; and to become prudent and wise in the temporal (worldly) affairs of the Kingdom of God forever, nearly five hundred years had passed away. At this time the land of Egypt was divided into two kingdoms and two people; the Upper Kingdom or the White Crown, and the Lower Kingdom or the Red Crown; their treasury was known as the White House and the Red House, respectively, and the capital of the Upper (southern) Kingdom was Nekheb (El Kab), and its symbol was a lily plant ( ), and another local plant, the lotus ( ), was the ensign of the king. The royal residence of the southern king was across the river from Nekheb, called Nekhen (Hieraconpolis). The Lower (northern) Kingdom had its capital at Pe, in the suburb of Buto. The coat of arms of the northern kingdom of the Nile Delta region employed a tuft of papyrus plant ( ), which grew in abundance in its marshes, and the ensign of the king was a bee ( ). (It was in this region of the Delta where the Gods [Elohim] first came and dwelt with men in the forty-third century B.C.) The temple at Sais, in the western Delta bore the name "House of the King of Lower Egypt," and its adherents were the Libyans, whose chief goddess Neith's (Neit) symbol ( ) was tatooed upon their arms. Each capital had its partroness or protecting goddesses; Buto the serpent goddess in the North, and the vulture goddess Nekhbet in the South. At both capitals the hawk-faced god Horus was worshiped as the patron god of both kings, but at this time Horus was not bestowed the symbol of the solar disk upon his head, for he was as yet not perfected by the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God; and over a period of time these kings themselves came to be regarded as demi-gods, whose ancestors saw the great gods of ancient time face to face, when they descended from the heavens to dwell in the Delta region to rule Egypt, and to teach men the mysteries of the Kingdom of God and the Gospel of salvation.

Then came a time (about 3400 B.C.) when both the Northern (Delta) and Southern Kingdoms were united into one nation under King Menes of the Southern Kingdom; and he became the first of a long line of Pharaohs of Egypt. Being a good warrior and administrator, he invaded and conquered the Delta, and completed the long awaited event of merging the two kingdoms into one nation. Although his native city was Thinis, near Abydos, he built a great dam, diverting the course of the Nile above the White Wall (Noph, Memphis); and from here he governed the new nation. He also sent his army southward to northern Nubia (below the first cataract, as far north as the province of Edfu). Menes was blessed with a long reign; and his achievements stayed in the minds of the people in Upper Egypt, in Thinis, near Abydos for over three hundred years, until the time of King Narmer, who was also called the Menes of his time. Menes was buried in Upper Egypt.

(1)

(2)

(1) Flint knife with sheet gold handle; of Menes' time, symbolizing the first union of Upper and Lower Egypt. (2) Gold bar bearing Menes' name; an adornment which the king of the First Royal House (Dynasty) wore upon his person. (Not actual size; Haskell Museum)

The kings that succeeded Menes were far below the stature of the first Pharaoh of the united land of Egypt. They blended together without distinction as the children of their age. The king's favorite title now became "Horus," by which he identified himself as the son of the great god of the sun, who once ruled over the kingdom. Everywhere, on royal documents, seals, insignias, and such, the Horus-hawk became the symbol of royalty. The monarch of the united kingdom now wore either the white crown of Upper Egypt ( ), the red crown of Lower Egypt ( ), or a curious red and white crown, a combination of the crowns of both kingdoms ( ), or the Atef crown of unification ( ); and a simple garment suspended by a strap over one shoulder, to which a lion's tail was attached behind. The bee of the north and the lily plant of the south preceded the other or personal name of the ruler, along with Nekhbet, the vulture-goddess of the southern capital at El Kab, and Buto the serpent goddess of the northern capital. The king during this period appeared on ceremonious occasions of state with four standard-bearers, accompanied by his chancellor, vizier, scribe and personal attendants, and two fan-bearers, and/or a sandal-bearer.

On the thirtieth anniversary of his appointment to the kingship by his ruling father, as the crown-prince and the heir to the throne, the king celebrated a great feast, the Feast of Sed, or the feast of tail; for thirty years before, he was bestowed the royal lion's tail at his appointment. The king was usually a mighty hunter, and his weapons were elaborate and costly. He had several palaces at his disposal, each bearing a name. The royal palaces (estates) had gardens and vineyards, which were maintained by trained personnel for its upkeep. The furniture in each palace was artistic and magnificent. The royal artisans, the coppersmiths, goldsmiths, and such furnished the palace with a high degree of technical skills and exquisite taste; the ladies of the royal household wore jewelry of gold and precious stones, requiring a most intricate and delicate soldering of the metal.

The kings were buried in a rectangular pit; which was lined with brick and frequently had a second lining of wood. The pit or the central room was now surrounded by small chambers. The structure was roofed with heavy timbers and planks, surmounted by a heap of sand. Access to the central chamber was through a brick stairway descending through one side of the burial chamber.

All the items that were necessary to maintain the royal state in the hereafter were deposited with the body of the king; these items included: the king's toilet furniture, bowls, jars, vessels, vases, his personal ornaments, and such. The small surrounding chambers were filled with plenty of food and wine in huge pottery jars, sealed with huge cones of Nile mud mixed with straw, and the name of the king, or the estate or vineyard from which they came was usually impressed upon them. The revenue of food and wine from certain of the king's estates was earmarked for the maintenance of the king's tomb forever; which was to maintain for all time the table supply of the deceased king, his household, and adherents; whose number ranged from one to two hundred and who were also buried surrounding him. Thus, in death, he was surrounded by those who had been his companions in life, his family, friends and relatives; so they all slept beside their king, that they might all continue their association and life together in the hereafter. Thus, the belief was solidified among the Egyptian kings and nobles that proper maintenance of the deceased in the life hereafter was as or more important than life of the world; hence the idea that they were in the world, but not of the world. And the desire to create a permanent abiding place for the royal dead exerted a powerful influence upon design and construction of the royal tombs.

A brick tomb of King Usephais (between 3400 and 2980 B.C.)

Sealed jars of food and drink for the deceased

Limestone chamber, tomb of King Khasekhemui (c.2900 B.C.)

All at Abydos in Upper Egypt.

The best of the artificers, builders, and architects were attracted to the royal court, in a well-organized and orderly state. The king's chief assistant was his chancellor or vizier; and various nobles, the high officials, were assigned to either the Northern Kingdom in Pe or the Southern Kingdom in Nekhen; these were the administrators of the judicial affairs within their jurisdiction. There was a body of fiscal officials, whose seals were impressed upon the clay jars' sealings; and accurate fiscal records were kept, not only in the affairs of the government, but also of the royal tombs. The endowment of these tombs was with a regularly-paid income, and efficient and uncorrupted fiscal organization. The Provision Office of the unified state of Lower and Upper Egypt, was the united treasury of the North and South, the Red House and the White House, respectively. The Red House gradually was taken over by the White House; and the two administrations were combined into one; the White House of the southern kingdom became the sole treasury of the united kingdom. Thus the long process of combining the administrative machinery of the two kingdoms, which began with King Menes, finally reached its fruition. Every two years an inventory of all the possessions was taken, throughout the land, by the officials of the treasury; this was called the "numbering," and later the numbering became annual. During this time both heiroglyphic and cursive writings were in use. The Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God and the legal and accounting professions used the cursive writing; while the royalty, the general public, and the artisans usually used the hieroglyphics. Their method of writing possessed not only phonetic signs representing a whole syllable or group of consonants, but also the (alphabetic) signs, each of which stood for one consonant. The royal records included the chief accomplishments and events of each year during a Pharaoh's reign, such as the plans of the temple, ceremonies, inaugurations, and the period of his reign.

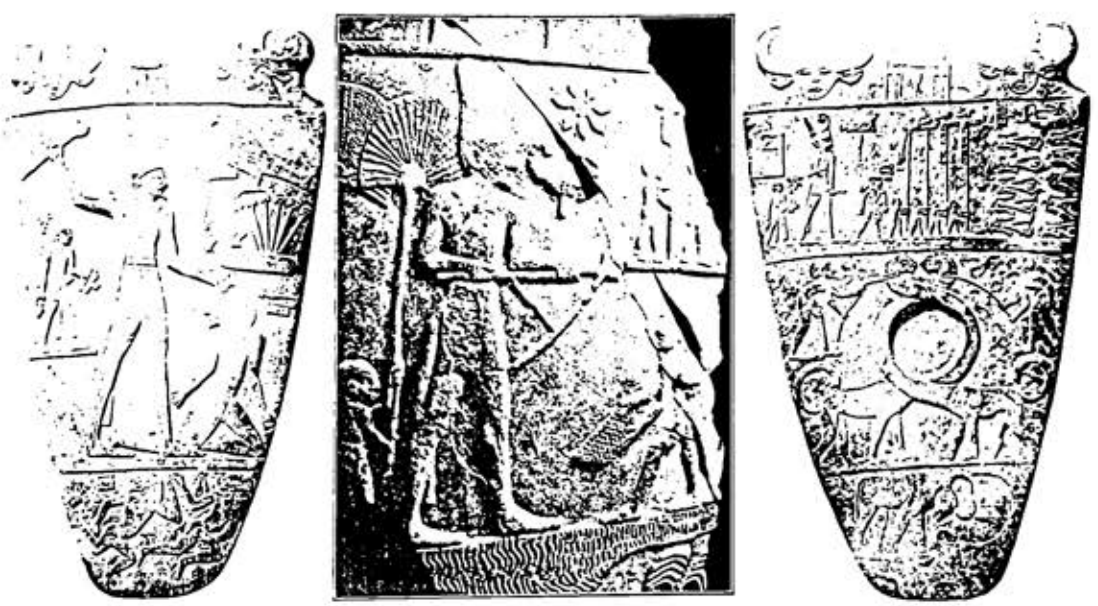
King Menes was the first to unite the Upper (southern) and Lower (northern, Delta) Kingdoms of Egypt (in about 3400 B.C.); the people of the Delta rebelled over and over against the South, for the southern kingdom of Upper Egypt was distinctively Egyptian and racially of African origin, and the northern kingdom in the Delta was a mixture of Asiatics (Semitic), Libyans, and Africans. By the time of King Narmer, who was known as the Menes of his time, the western Delta was again invaded by Narmer to subdue the uprising in the Libyan province.



(1) (2) (3)

(1) King Narmer's victory over the Asiatic (Semitic) people of the Delta. Six thousand men were taken captive. Behind King Narmer is his sandle-bearer. (2) King Narmer breaking ground for a canal. Behind him are his dwarf fan-bearers. (3) King Narmer with sandle-bearer behind him, his vizier and four standard bearers in front of him, commemorating their victory over the Delta uprising. In the middle are long-necked creatures, symbolizing the union of Upper and Lower Egypt; Lower Egypt harnessed by the Asiatics in the Delta and by the Egyptians in Upper Egypt.

The consolidated kingship which began with Menes had, by the time of Narmer, become an established institution, but the north (Delta) rebelled time and time again against the south. The king by now had become a god of the people, and was frequently called the "Good God." The reverence to kingship reached such a height that people were reluctant to call him by name; and the courtiers and royal address utilized the title "one," and the phrase "to let one know" became the official phrase in written communications. The government and the monarch were called the Great House or Per-O (Pharaoh in Hebrew); there were also a number of other titles used for the king of Egypt. When the king died, he was received in the circle of the gods, to be worshiped like them, in the temple before the mastaba or pyramid in which he slept. Every need of the royal person was represented by some palace lord, whose duty was to supply it; and each palace lord bore a title, such as the chancellor, the court physician, leader of the court music, and such. A small army of wig-makers, sandal-makers, perfumers, launderers, and other custodians of royal wardrobe, filled the king's chambers. The king's favorite wife became the official queen, whose eldest son usually became the crown prince, to succeed his father; but there was also a royal harem consisting of numerous inmates; it was also customary in all ranks of society in Egypt for a youth to marry his younger sister. The line of inheritance was through the eldest daughter, unless modified by legal means. The closest family ties were through the mother; and a man's closest friend and protector, in preference to his own father, was the father of his mother. The wise men of the time warned the youth, saying: Beware of a woman from abroad, who is not known in the city. Look not upon her when she comes, and know her not; she is like the vortex of deep waters, whose whirling is unfathomable. The woman whose husband is far away, writes to thee every day; and if there is no witness, she ariseth and spreadeth her net; O deadly crime, if one hearkens! Marriage, building a household, and raising the family were considered as the only wise course in life here and beyond. Yet alongside these ideals existed gross immorality. Mass whoredoms were an accepted way of life, for many were married to their sisters; and a sharp class distinction kept the elements separated from the priests and kings. The towns of Egypt were crowded with the poor; they dwelt in low mud-brick, thatch-roofed shanties, so close together that they were often contiguous. A rough stool, a box or two, and a few crude pottery jars were the sole furniture of such a hovel. The houses of the nobles and the rich businessmen were large and luxurious. The largest of the houses were over three hundred and thirty feet long on each side, made of wood and sun-dried brick.

A noble's house included beds, chairs, stools, chests of ebony inlaid with ivory of intricate workmanship; little or no use was made of tables, but rich vessels of alabaster inlaid with precious stones, or of copper or gold or silver, were placed upon bases and tables which raised them above ground. The floors of the house were covered with heavy rugs, upon which the guests and women usually sat, in preference to chairs or stools. The food of the nobles was rich and varied; some of the dead desired ten different kinds of meat, five kinds of poultry, sixteen kinds of bread and cakes, six kinds of wine, four kinds of beer, eleven kinds of fruit, plus all sorts of sweets, condiments and such. The attire of the Egyptian lords consisted merely of a white linen kilt, tied above the hips with a girdle or band, and hanging usually down to the knee, or sometimes to the calf of the leg. The head was commonly shaven, and two styles of wigs, one short and curly, and the other with long straight locks parted in the middle, were worn on all state occasions. A broad collar, often inlaid with precious stones, generally hung from the neck, otherwise the body was bare from the waist up. The wife of a noble and his daughters wore thin, close-fitting, sleeveless white linen garments hanging from the breast to the ankles, and supported by two bands passing over the shoulders, others wore varied styles which disclosed one naked breast; the skirt was worn tight, restricting the movement. The ladies of the court usually wore a long wig, a collar, necklace, and a pair of bracelets. Neither the lord nor the lady wore sandals, except on special occasions; their children were, however allowed to run naked. The peasant of this time wore a breach-clout, which he usually cast off when at work in the fields; the peasant's wife, however, dressed in the garment of the same style as a noble's wife, but she, too, when performing heavy labor, such as winnowing grain, cast aside all her clothing, and went about her task.

House of an Egyptian Noble
(a representation)

The Egyptian was a natural man, blessed by the Lord as to temporal salvation, and ministered by the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God. The Egyptians saw their ancestry in the plants and animals that surrounded them. The house of the noble was always surrounded by a garden, in which he usually planted figs, palms, sycamores, vineyards, and such; and usually contained a pool, lined with masonry coping, which served as the fish hatchery, or merely for decoration. A large body of servants and slaves were required to maintain the household of a noble (these were usually given to him by the king). A chief steward was in charge of the entire estate, the house and the garden, and the chief gardener directed the slaves in the care and maintenance of the garden. The noble's house was his paradise on earth, where he spent his leisure hours with his family and friends, playing the game of checkers (draughts), listening to the music of the harp, pipe or lute; while his women usually watched over the kitchen and pantry tasks; and his children played with a ball, doll, jumping-jack, or such toys. The sport and recreation of the nobles in Lower Egypt (Delta) included floating in a light boat of papyrus reed in the shade of the tall papyrus marshes, accompanied by his wife, and sometimes by one of his children; and hunting wild fowl or other animals, as shown in the illustration below.

A representation of an Egyptian noble hunting wild fowl with a throw-stick in a papyrus marsh.

The noble's hunting weapons were usually bow and arrow, or two-prong fish spear; for hunting hippopotamus or crocodile, he used a long harpoon tied to a rope; occasionally he traveled to the desert region to hunt wild ox with a long bow and arrows, and captured alive antelopes, gazelles, ibexes, horned African antelopes (oryxes), wild asses and oxen, ostriches, hares and other beasts. While the Egyptian noble did all these things with passion and delight, he constantly prepared for his elaborate death, to enter the afterworld, the hereafter.

Over a thousand years had passed away since the time of Adam's fall. During this period, besides the establishment of a centralized government, a vast system of dykes and irrigation canals, and abundant harvest of wheat and barley; on each estate were planted extensive vineyards and a variety of vegetables. Large herds of cattle, sheep, goats, droves of donkeys, and vast quantities of poultry, wild fowl, game of the desert and never-ending supply of Nile fish, additionally augmented the wealth and prosperity of the land. Besides the millions of agricultural workers who toiled in the fields to produce wealth, a large number were employed in granite quarries at the first cataract of the Nile River; sandstone quarries at Silsileh, finer and harder stone quarries at Hammamath, between Coptos and the Red Sea; in alabaster quarries at Hatnub behind Amarna; and in limestone quarries at Ayan and Troia, opposite to the White Wall (Memphis) and at many other locations. These stonecutters and quarry workers, numbering thousands upon thousands, brought from the first cataract granite blocks twenty to thirty feet long and fifty to sixty tons in weight. They drilled the toughest of stones with tubular drills of copper (and the gold-silver alloy, electrum, was the invention of the Egyptians); and the massive lids of granite sarcophagi were sawn with long copper saws which, like the drills, were reinforced by sand or a dark granular variety of corundum (emery). A large number of workmen were employed as miners and quarrymen and sent to the Sinai peninsula, for mining copper, green and blue malachite, turquoise, and lapis-lazuli. Others were employed in the exploration and manufacture of limited iron tools. The smiths of this period made some tools of copper and iron, including nails, hinges, bolts, mountings and whatsoever was required. Silver was imported from other countries in Asia Minor; and it was more rare and valuable than gold. The gold was mined from the quartz-veins of the granite mountains along the Red Sea, from the Wadi Foakhir on the Coptos road. The illustration on the next page shows the manufacture of precious jewelry, necklaces, and other ornaments. The use of dwarves in several industries was made; they were also used as fan-bearers, or cup-bearers of the king, along with blind singers and harp players of the royal court.

Many Egyptians worked in huge brick yards, where an enormous amount of sun-dried bricks were made, as they are even to this day; and a large number of masonry workers were employed in the building of long rows of quarters for the poor, city walls and buildings, forts, mastabas and pyramids, royal palaces and residences of the nobles. In the forestless region of Egypt, although the date palm, the sycamore,

Manufacture of Jewelry in Ancient Egypt

The process began with weighing of precious metals and malachite, melting the metal at the blow-pipe furnace; casting and hammering; then putting together of necklace and other ornaments.

tamarisk and acacia trees were found, good timber was scarce and expensive; but the carpenters, cabinet makers, joiners and such flourished; those employed in a palace or the estate of a noble, fashioned marvelous furniture in cedar imported from Syria, and ivory and ebony imported from the south, the region of Aden (Eden). Shipbuilding employed a large number, in every town and on every large estate; and it was the prevailing industry of great importance. Heavy cargo boats for enormous amounts of grain and cattle, the many-oared "dahabiyeh," with huge sail for the royalty, and huge sea-going vessels for foreign trade, expeditions, and explorations, were made under organized labor, during this time. The following illustration shows the workmen building crafts from the raw timber.

The potters of Egypt produced blue-and-green glazed faience vessels; and large coarse jars for the storage of oil, meats, wine and food for the granary and storehouse of the nobles and the government; plus millions of smaller vessels, pottery, and jars were produced by them, making pottery-making one of the chief industries of the time. Glass was used as glaze, but no glass products were made. The tanners of this period had mastered the art of curing the hides, and producing fine soft skins, dyed in all colors; which were primarily used as covering for stools, chairs, beds, cushions, and canopies. The women of the slaves usually worked as spinners and weavers in the house of their lord, making linen of extremely fine quality. Flax harvest was plentiful. Pharaoh himself was engaged in growing flax, and a noble of rank was appointed to oversee its cultivation and harvest. The marshes of Lower Egypt provided vegetable fibre, from which coarser textiles were produced. Among these, the papyrus was most useful. Wide and light, papyrus boats were made by binding together long bundles of papyrus reeds; sandals were plaited and mats woven with them; and rope was twisted from papyrus reeds, and also from palm-fiber. But, a most important use of papyrus was to split the reeds into thin strips, and to join them into sheets of tough paper, upon which the scribes, priests and kings wrote with ink. The discovery and perfection of the art of paper-making further nurtured the needs of written communication and record-keeping. While a royal dispatch in cuneiform on a clay tablet often weighed eight to ten pounds, a papyrus roll could accommodate fifty times larger volume than the clay tablet, and could easily be carried in the bosom of the messenger. Thus during this time, the papyrus-paper industry became one of the large and flourishing enterprises. The Nile River was crowded with boats, barges, and vessels of varied shapes and sizes, carrying the products of many lands and enterprises. The common means of exchange was barter, where crude pottery might be traded for a fish, a bundle of onions for a fan, a wooden box for a jar of ointment, and so on. Other business transactions of higher value required gold or copper rings of fixed weight, and their stone weights were marked with their equivalence on these rings; which circulated as money. Silver was rare and more valuable than gold at this time. Government and all major enterprises kept business records, and formalized orders and receipts were issued. Wills, and deeds, and long-term written contracts were drawn up, and an excellent judicial system was in operation; where justice was rendered by the judges of the courts of law, mercy was extended by the Holy Priesthood and king; but never was mercy extended without the due process of justice to the wrongdoer.

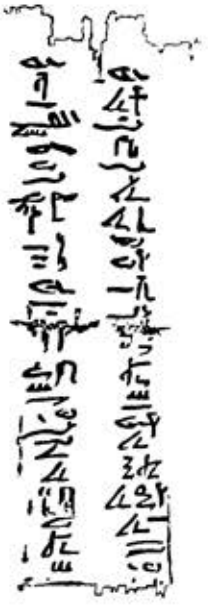
The training for the princes and nobles was provided by sending them away on land or sea expeditions; or as superintendents of quarrying and mining operations, shipbuilding, paper-manufacturing, massive municipal and agricultural projects, tomb and temple building, organized warfare, or discipleship under the most revered and knowledgeable servants of Re (Ra), the Sun (Son) God. They were thus educated in all the temporal and spiritual affairs of the time; and the king or Pharaoh was superior in knowledge and wisdom above every individual in the land, and accordingly, his power and authority were limitless; although he was subject to the demands of the government policies, and the divine guidance of the Holy Priesthood of God. The king usually spent his day in meetings with his vizier or chancellor, his ministers and engineers, to discuss the needs of the country, such as the conservation of water supply, development of systems of agriculture, excavation of lakes and canals, building of tombs or pyramids and such. Daily he read numerous dispatches, reports, and proposals; and made decisions on policy and other matters. At the end of the day the monarch rode out in his palanquin, accompanied by his vizier and attendants, to his residence or to other places where his presence was required. The site for the royal residence or palace was determined by the tomb or the pyramid the king was building. The palace and the towns attached to it usually were in the valley below the border of the western desert-plateau, on which arose the pyramids. (After about 2900 B.C., the royal residence was usually near Noph [Memphis or White Wall]; and in later times, after the invasion of the Hyksos, post 1580 B.C., two separate royal residences were maintained by some Pharaohs, one in the Delta region of Lower Egypt, the other near Thebes, in Upper Egypt.) The palace usually had two front gates, symbolizing the two ancient kingdoms of Egypt, the White and the Red Crowns, the kingdoms of Upper and Lower Egypt respectively. Adjoining the palace was a huge court, connected with the offices of the centralized government. The entire complex of palace and adjoining offices was known as the Great House, which was both the administrative center and the dwelling place of the royal household; the entire land of Egypt was governed from such an administrative complex. The local governments of Upper Egypt were divided into twenty administrative districts, and Lower Egypt (the Delta) had about the same number. These districts (nomes) were the early principalities, from which the local rulers of ancient ages had disappeared long before the times of King Menes. Each district was governed by an official of Pharaoh, who was called "First Under the King," or the local governor. He also served in a judicial capacity, and bore the title of "judge." In the Delta region, these local governors were also called "Magnates of the Southern Ten," forming a council or quorum of ten. The local governor was the administrator of a miniature state, consisting of an administrative unit with all the organs of the government, including: a treasury, a court of justice, an office of land and properties, an office for the conservation of dykes and canals, a body of militia, and a storehouse for equipment. All such offices were staffed with a host of scribes and recorders, with an ever-increasing mass of archives and local records. Each local governor reported directly to the king and the Great House; but it was the organization of the treasury which had the greatest influence upon the governors. Annual taxes in the form of grain, cattle, poultry and various products, were collected by the local governors as taxes, for there was no coinage. The head of the entire fiscal administration of the kingdom was called Chief Treasurer. It was also the treasury department which organized and planned all expeditions, mining operations, quarrying and transportation of colossal stone blocks for the temples and the pyramids.

(Available Examples of the Extant Records of Various Periods)



(Legal Document in Hieratic, or Cursive Business Hand c.3400-2800 B.C.)

On the right the scribes and fiscal officers of Pharaoh's treasury keep record; while deputies bring the rulers of three towns for the collection of delinquent taxes.

The judicial function of the local governors were incidental to their responsibilities as administrators; but they were learned in the law and assumed judicial duties as they arose. The local judges, organized under six courts, reported to the Chief Justice of the entire kingdom; and fairness and justice prevailed throughout the land, tempered by the mercies extended by the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God. All cases were submitted to the court in the form of written briefs. Special cases of a personal or political nature were heard by the Chief Justice and a judge of the court; and in cases of treason in the harem, the accused was tried before a court of two judges, specially attached by the crown for that sole purpose. (Contrary to the brutal practices of execution utilized by the dwellers of the desert, the Asians or Semitics, Pharaoh's high sense of justice required the establishment of guilt of the accused and the right to a fair and just trial; and under certain circumstances, appeal might be made directly to the king.)

The head of the entire organization of government was Pharaoh's prime minister, called the vizier; he was also the Chief Justice of the land; thus he was the most powerful man in the realm, next to the monarch. It was for this reason that some crown princes, as co-regents with their father, served in this office. All lands and properties endowed by the Pharaoh required a royal decree, and were recorded in the books of the kings, at the offices of the vizier. Connected to the department of treasury were schools where selected youth received education and training, which prepared them to be scribes and government officials. The teaching methods of the time were based on the principle that, "A boy's ears are on his back, and he hearkens when he is beaten." There were basically two subjects taught at the treasury school, namely moral precepts and methods of writing. Both hieroglyphic and hieratic writings were taught. Hieroglyphic writing included animals, plants and objects which represented a phonetic sound, and with certain modifications could represent abstract ideas. Hieroglyphs served as signs, symbols and letters; over seven hundred such signs were used. The Egyptians believed in a life after death, and that words had magical powers. Thus, if they wrote down the things they would need in the next life, the hereafter, in their tombs, they would for a surety acquire them in the next life. Early in their lives the princes and nobles made elaborate preparations for their death, by building their tomb; and all the necessities and luxuries of life which the person felt would provide him with a comfortable after life, were placed in his tomb, and written in hieroglyphs. But hieroglyphic writing was too cumbersome for everyday business transactions and record keeping. Thus, the attempt to write these figures rapidly with ink upon papyrus had gradually resulted in reducing these signs to mere outlines, much rounded off and abbreviated; in a similar manner, as in our day we see the transition from writing with all capital letters, to cursive, to shorthand. Usually the teacher (master) put before his pupil model letters, proverbs, and literary compositions, which the pupil laboriously copied onto his papyrus roll; and this became his lifetime copy-book, diploma, and resume.

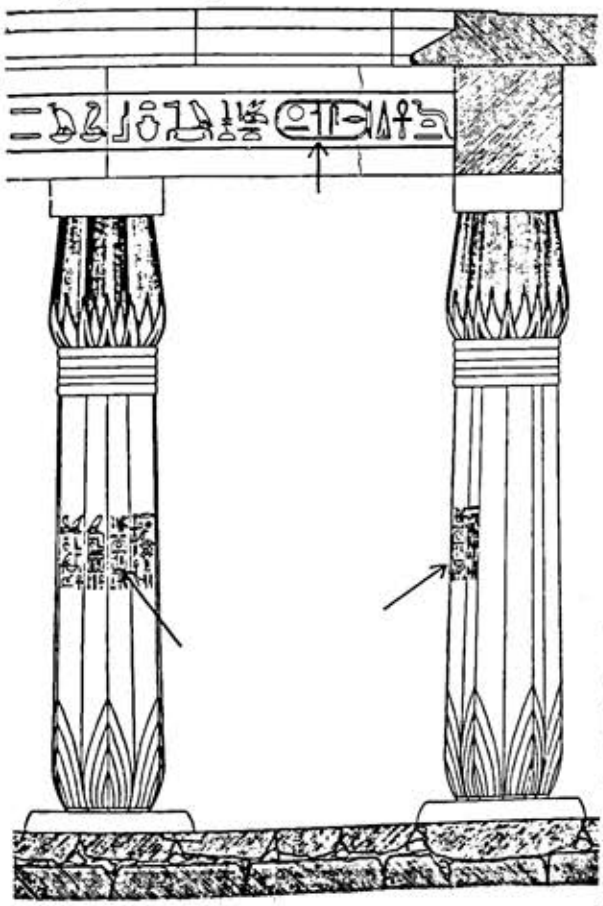
Nearly thirteen hundred years had passed away since the Sun God (Son of God) gave the Egyptians the first calendar, in 4241 B.C. By now the Egyptians had mapped the heavens, identified the prominent fixed stars, and developed a system of observation with primitive instruments, accurate enough to determine the position of the stars. They knew algebra, geometry, and applied mathematics, although they were not known by these names. The necessity to determine the content of a pile of grain in a semi-spherical or cylindrical granary led to the mathematical discoveries of formulas for the area or volume of any structure. The illustration at left, the arch of a tomb at Beth Khallaf near Abydos, is the oldest surviving arch, which was used in masonry of the thirtieth century B.C.

The laying out of the base of the mastaba tomb or a pyramid was accomplished with an amazing accuracy and precision. The medicine of this time was mostly of an herbal nature, although glands and other parts of certain animals were also used in treatment of certain ailments and diseases. The court physician of Pharaoh was a man of rank and influence; his prescriptions were rational and useful, and sometimes fanciful. The treatment for the prevention of gray hair, for instance, was a decoction of the hair of a black calf. Such treatments were collected and recorded on papyrus rolls, to be passed on from one generation to the next; even to this day treatments of this kind are the only source of medical knowledge in most primitive cultures and societies of the world. There was no great distinction between the physician and the magician; for they believed that all remedies were based on magical charms; and that diseases were due to hostile spirits, against which only magic could prevail.



Extant part of the colonnade surrounding the court of the pyramid temple of Nuserre; his Egyptian name Reswesren-re is shown on both columns and on the lintel, as shown by the arrows pointing to the cartouch. (Twenty-seventh century B.C.)

The Egyptian generally saw the world in pictures; thus he developed a natural affinity towards the things of nature, the trees, the sky, the animals, and all that he loved and cherished; and expressed his thoughts and feelings in paintings, sculptures, and buildings, and such, in a most admirable way. Art as a leisure pursuit, and for the sake of beauty alone, was unknown to him; he was not a conceptual, but a perceptual individual; whose view toward life was romantic and fanciful. No theoretical problems were discussed amongst the Egyptians, but all their efforts were focused on the technical aspects of those problems which confronted them in daily life. The Lord in ancient time had blessed them in temporal affairs. Thus they successfully dealt with all the material and worldly aspects of life, and developed material resources. Folk songs were common among them, as they are even to this day. The toiling peasant when he took his goats or swine to trample upon the seeds which he had broadcast in his field, usually sang with his harp to his goats or swine, to himself and to his fellowworkers; and the bearers of the palanquin or the sedan-chair of a prince or of a noble would sing to his lord, saying: The load of the carriage is lighter to them when their lord rides upon it, than when it is empty! Instrumental music was usually accompanied by the vocal; and the orchestra consisted of two harps, and two flutes, one large and one small. The architecture of this period is reflected on the previous page, a part of the colonnade surrounding the court of the pyramid temple of Reswesren-re (Nuserre) of the twenty-seventh century B.C.; the same sort of excellence is found in the architecture of the thirtieth century B.C.

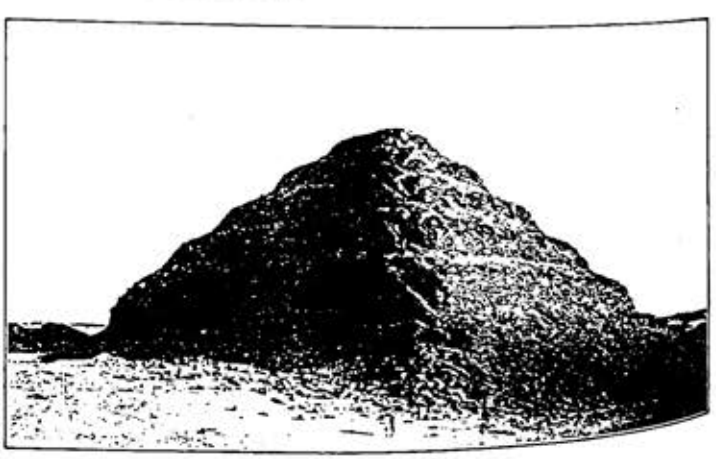
Djoser (Zoser), son of king Khasekhemui and queen Nemathap, began his reign as the Pharaoh of Egypt in about 2980 B.C.; and continued the copper mining operations in the Sinai peninsula, which were passed on to him by his predecessor. Djoser's chief advisor Imhotep was a man of wisdom and understanding, possessing the wisdom of the priesthood of Re, and magic; knowledge of medicine and architecture; who also formulated wise proverbs. His reputation became so notable, that later he became the patron spirit of scribes, who poured out a libation from the water jar of their writing outfit, before beginning their work (the people sang of his proverbs many centuries later, and about two thousand five hundred years after his death, he was made a god of medicine, whom the Greeks called Imouthes; and a temple was erected to him near Serapeum at Memphis).

Although the stone structures were built before the reign of Djoser (Zoser, or Tosorthros in Greek), his reign was the beginning of extensive building in stone. Until his reign, the royal tombs were built of sun-dried bricks; and some included a granite floor, or a chamber of limestone. Further improvements were made to the sun-dried brick of royal tombs during the time of Djoser; the preceding photograph is of the massive brick mastaba at Beth Khallaf, near Abydos; through one end of which a stairway descended, passing into the gravel beneath the superstructure, which terminated in a series of mortuary chambers; the passage was closed in five places by heavy portcullis stones. Later on, Djoser took the advice of his chief advisor Imhotep, and constructed a mastaba (mausoleum) in the desert behind Memphis, at Sakkara; but this mastaba, as shown on the previous page, was built of stone. It was about two hundred and twenty seven feet wide and about thirty-eight feet high, and not a perfect square, but somewhat longer on one side. As his reign continued, he enlarged its base, and continued to increase its height, by building five additional rectangles, superimposed upon its top, each smaller than the previous one. The result was a terraced structure one hundred and ninety five feet high, the whole roughly resembling a pyramid; and it was indeed a building of a transitional form, between the flat-topped rectangular mastaba, first built by Djoser, and the pyramids of his successors; Snefru, who succeeded Djoser in the building of the great tombs, built two stone pyramids, one at Medum, between Memphis and the Fayum, and the other at Dashur. The first began as a mastaba of limestone, with a tomb chamber; then it was enlarged seven times to a terraced structure, the steps were then filled out in one smooth slope from top to bottom at a different angle; thus building the first pyramid whose steps were filled and smoothed out. After nearly forty nine hundred years, this structure stands in the condition shown on the next page.

Brick mastaba of Djoser's time, near Beth-Khallaf.



Stone mastaba of Djoser's time, known as Terraced Pyramid, at Sakkara.

Snefru's other pyramid, far larger and more imposing, was built at Dashur. With Snefru there arose a large number of rich and powerful nobles and princes and officials, who were no longer content with the simple brick tombs of their ancestors in Upper Egypt, around Abydos; so their mastabas of limestone were also built surrounding the tomb of the king whom they served and loved. Snefru also erected a fortress at the Bitter Lakes, near the isthmus of Suez; and opened up commerce with the north; and sent forty large vessels to the Phoenician coast to import logs from the slopes of Lebanon; and sent his troops to Nubia in the south, and brought back seven thousand prisoners and two hundred thousand large and small cattle. Snefru's sea-going vessels were nearly one hundred and seventy feet long; which were also used upon the river to transport people and cargo, and to guard the country. Then came the reign of Khufu (Cheops), who built his tomb at Gizeh, opposite modern Cairo. His pyramid contained some two million three hundred thousand stone blocks, each about two and a half tons; requiring the corvee labor of a hundred thousand men, for a period of twenty years. The blocks were taken out of the limestone quarries on the east side of the river, south of modern Cairo; and at high water, when the flats were flooded, they were floated across on reed or wooden barges across the valley, to the base of the pyramid hill. Here an enormous stone ramp (causeway) had been built after a labor of ten years; the stone blocks were dragged to the plateau upon which stood the pyramid. The pyramid was about four hundred and eighty-one feet high, and its square base measured about seven hundred and fifty-five feet on each side. The masonry finish was extremely fine, with seams of considerable length, and a joint of one ten thousandth of an inch. As in all other pyramids, mastabas, and other monuments, first the scale model of the planned structure was made, then by means of mathematical calculations, an estimate of the material, labor, and other requirements was made for the construction of the great pyramids. The pyramid was surrounded by a wide pavement of limestone; and on the east side was the temple for the mortuary service of Khufu. During the reign of Khufu, the mining operations in the Sinai peninsula continued; and men were sent to the alabaster quarry at Hatnub, and to build a temple to Hathor the cow-goddess at Dendereh (Dendera).

And it came to pass that Khufu was savoring an idle hour with his sons, while they narrated the wonders wrought by the great wise men of old; when one of his sons, Harzozef, told the king that there still lived a magician able to do marvels of the ancient times. So Pharaoh sent the prince to fetch the wise man. When the man was brought to the presence of the king, he showed him the powers of his magic, and reluctantly told the king, as he wished to know his fate, that three sons shall be born by the wife of a certain priest of Re, who shall be begotten of Re himself, and that they should all become kings of Egypt. This information made Khufu sad and melancholy; so the wise man told the king saying: Thou shalt see the reign of thy son, and thy son's son shall reign after him; then a way shall be prepared for the three begotten sons of Re (Ra). And in due time three sons were born to the wife of a certain priest of Re at On (Heliopolis), and the disguised divinities assisted in their birth, and named them Userkaf, Sahure (Sahura) and Kakai (Neferirkere); and they all three did become kings of Egypt. Dedefre (Radedef) succeeded Khufu, and built himself a modest pyramid at Aburoash, north of Gizeh; then Khafre (Kaheperre, Chephren), meaning "His Shining is Re," became the king of Egypt; and he built a pyramid beside that of Khufu, but it was smaller and of somewhat inferior workmanship; it also had a temple on the east side, from which the causeway led down to the border of the plateau and terminated in a great granite gate. The entrance was beside the Great Sphinx, shown on the next page, and was called the temple of the sphinx; but the sphinx was not built until the death of Khafre; and the lion's body symbolized the power of the Pharaoh.

Snefru's pyramid at Medum (first steps-filled pyramid)

The Pyramids of Gizeh
(Photographs taken from the desert on the southwest)
Khufu (right); Khafre (middle); Menukre (left).

Menukre (Men-kau-re) succeeded Khafre (Kha-ef-re), and built his pyramid at Gizeh, the third pyramid. The vast pyramids which his two predecessors had erected depleted the resources of the nation to such an extent that the power of the royal house was no longer absolute; for in the past most powerful offices were kept within the circle of the royal house; thus enabling the monarch to sway the entire nation at his discretion and pleasure. Menukre's pyramid was less than half as high as those of Khufu and Khafre, and its temple was faced with sun-dried bricks, instead of granite. Yet, the builders of these three pyramids designed them in such a way that from certain angles, as seen in the photograph, it gives the appearance that Khafre's (middle pyramid) is the largest of the three.

The Great Sphinx of Gizeh
In the background the pyramids of Khafre, on the right, and Menukre on the left.

In the theology of state, the king was always represented as the successor of the sun-god, bearing the title of Horus, the hawk-faced sun-god. During the time of Menukre the priesthood of Re demanded that the king be the bodily son of Re, who in due time would appear to become the father of Pharaoh.

Four interim kings succeeded Menukre, while the way was being prepared for the sons of the begotten of Re to rule Egypt; and from this time forward every Pharaoh was called the bodily son of the sun-god (Son of God) and a new title, "son of Re" was placed before his name, besides the old title of "Horus," and representations showing Horus trampling upon the symbol of Set were also used. The priesthood of Re became the dominating influence upon the state religion. Near their royal residences, close to Memphis, the Pharaohs began to erect magnificent temples to the sun (Son), each bearing a name, such as "favorite abode of Re," or "satisfaction of Re." The following illustration of the sun-temple of Re built by Nuserre (Reswesren-re) at Abusir typifies these temples of the period. These temples usually utilized the same plan; they all had a large fore-court with cultus chambers on each side, and a huge altar. In the rear, rising from a mastaba-like base was a tall obelisk. This was the symbol of the god standing, and exposed to the sky; therefore there was no need for the Holy of Holies or the Most Holy place. The obelisk and connected portions of the building, thus, became an enlargement of the Holy of Holies of the previous temples. The interior of the walls was covered with sculptured scenes from the river, swamps and marshes, the fields and desert, ceremonies of the state cult and such; and the outside of the temple depicted warlike scenes and achievements of the king. On either side of the sanctuary were set up two ships on a brick foundation, representing the two celestial barques of the sun god, for he sailed in one in the morning, and the other in the evening. The sun-temple was richly endowed; and its services were performed by a body of priests of five different ranks, plus an overseer who had the charge of the property. As the line of kings grew, the number of such temples increased, and the priesthood of the old temple assumed similar duties in the new one. The sun (Son) god, Re, became so loved and so revered, that never again was his position to be lost, until the time of Sesostris; who, during the time of Abraham, replaced the worship of Re by a crocodile-god named Sobk. And it came to pass that the high priest of Re, of the Holy Order of the Son of God, became the Pharaoh of Egypt; and the high priest of the priesthood of Ptah, the patron god of the artisan, the artificer, the artist, and the scribe, became the vizier of Pharaoh. The oldest son of Pharaoh was no longer the most powerful officer in the state, such as the vizier and chief judge, but now the kingship and viziership became separate offices held by two different families, forever; and these two offices became hereditary in the two families; and a similar hereditary succession in the central government of the nation became the general rule throughout all districts (nomes) of the country; and the local governors began to establish themselves in power and authority within their own districts; and in each succeeding generation son succeeded his father in his district. During the time of Userkaf (between 2750 and 2743 B.C.), a new district was established in middle Egypt, called the New Towns, and the king appointed his palace steward as the local governor of the district; and the income of two priesthoods in that region was the salary of the governor.

A representation of the Sun-Temple of Nuserre at Abusir

Sahure succeeded Userkaf, and built the greatest naval power of the time; and sent a fleet of sea-going ships to the Phoenician coast, and captured the (Semitic) Syrians; another fleet was sent to the remoter waters of Punt, which was called the Somali coast, at the south end of the Red Sea, along the south side of the gulf of Aden (Eden). This region, known to all the inhabitants as "God's Land," was indeed the place where, over twelve hundred years before, the Lord God had expelled Adam and Eve from His garden in the east of Eden. From here Sahure imported fragrant gums and resins, myrrh, and ebony-furniture; these products were indispensible in the daily lives of the Egyptians. Thus Sahure made a perpetual contractual agreement with the country of Punt for the importation of certain products. Neferirkere (Kakai) succeeded Sahure; then followed Shepseskere, Khaneferre, Nuserre (Reswesren-re), Menkuhor, Dedkere-Isesi, and Unis (Unas). With Unis about 2525 B.C. began the decline of the kingdom established by Menes (c.3400 B.C.); and the power and authority of the royal house had shifted to the government officials; and these officials began to seek their own glories and powers and riches; and the workmanship and the size of their pyramids decreased. Their limestone pyramids along the desert margin, south of Gizeh, at Abusir and Sakkara were less than half as high as the great pyramid of Gizeh, and the core of these later pyramids was of poor workmanship, consisting of largely loose blocks, even rubble and sand; which are now (in 1989 A.D.) in complete ruin. Each pyramid is now a low mound with little semblance of the original pyramid form, as seen in the photograph at left.

Ruined Pyramid of Unis at Sakkara (c.2625 B.C.)

Although the emphasis on pyramid building did shift during the time of Unis, art and industry continued to flourish, and great works of sculpture were produced, and the king's vizier and chief judge composed and compiled the wisdom and achievements of the king, as he had done for the preceeding king Dedekre-Isesi. And after the reign of Unis, the local governors rebelled against the royal house of Unis, and became landed barons, each firmly entrenched in his own district or city, and maintained an hereditary claim upon it. The old title of "local governor" was gradually replaced by new titles such as: great chief or great lord, of this or that district (nome).

The pagan priesthood which existed millenniums before the birth of Adam, continues to exist even to this day in primitive societies and cultures throughout the world. It was through these pagan priests that the primitive tribes approached their deities, which were made of wood, clay, stone or metal. The function of offering sacrifices in behalf of the people was solely in the hand of the priests.

The term "sacrifice" also means to "make sacred," and implies an offering to the supernatural, in the spirit of self-deprivation, or getting rid of something highly valued and burdensome. Although the motives for sacrifice and the sacrificial object varied, the primary motives were: to establish communion (communication) with the supernatural beings or deities, to receive divine blessings, to acquire power and strength, to achieve the difficult or uncertain, to overcome the evil spirits, or to bring good luck.

The meaning of the word "sacrifice" as we understand it today, was not quite understood by the primitive pagan priests. While offerings to the deities were made frequently, the underlying spirit of self-deprivation or destruction of something highly valued was missing from the act. Rituals and ceremonies constituted the primitive religion, and immediate direct action, rather than contemplation and reflection, was the habit of pagan priests and worshipers. To them the performance of an act itself was sufficient to obtain a direct result of satisfying the inner need to get something done. Thus, the spiritual emotion (impulse) was drained off in ritual action. It was believed by all primitive people that performance of certain mystic rites, with or without prayers, would obtain for the supplicant the desired results.

The primitive pagan priesthood revolved primarily around control of the forces of the outer world by means of rituals and ceremonies, with little or no concern for man's control of his inner powers. The primitive mind conceived the supernatural forces and beings as a number of spirits or deities, whose abode was in ponds and lakes, mountains, groves of trees, underground dwellings, and such. Sometimes these spirits included ancestors (including those who had died recently) that were thought to have a keen interest in the well-being of their living relatives. The primitive mind made no distinction between the animate and the inanimate, between the living and the dead. All animals, plants and objects were believed to have been imbued with a mystic essence; and possessed an inner core of essence, the soul. Their concept of soul was an expression of inner sense of being alive. Some primitive tribes considered the soul to be not only the vital principle of life, but the ghost, the heart, and the pulse were also believed to be souls, which had a separate existence after man's death.

Although the pagan priests and worshipers had vague ideas about the creation, their beliefs in a hereafter (afterworld) were firmly established; based on the experiences of those individuals who actually had been in a trance or visionary state, known as "dead," and after their return described what they had seen in the land of the dead. Wish-fulfillment accounted for most notions of the hereafter or afterworld — everything which was not found on earth, was found in the hereafter where a constant state of happiness replaced the toil and tribulations of the tribal world.

The rituals performed by the pagan priests, which signify the transition from one life status to the next, commonly known as the "rites of passage," included such events as: birth, naming a child, transition from childhood to adolescence, marriage, death and burial. Although the extent to which these rites were practiced varied from one tribe to another, their practice prior to the time of Adam was generally limited to the priestly or ruling class. Birth was no mystery to the primitive tribes, as they frequently witnessed the phenomenon among the animals. But the uncertainties of childbirth and the survival of the infant required some ritualizing of the process of giving birth, along with the practice of washing the newborn. The passage from childhood to adolescence sometimes required initiation, which involved a test of hardiness, or performance of operation on the genitalia, for the preparation for marriage; and also instructions on esoteric lores by the elderly of the tribe. Marriage rites were more social than spiritual in practice. Death was viewed by most pagans as a result of supernatural causes. The care taken in the performance of the rituals, associated with the corpse, served as an outlet for grief and as a precautionary measure against evil consequences from the ghost of the deceased. Burial practice varied from an unconcerned flinging of the corpse into a river to elaborate ceremonies. In many cases the possessions of the deceased were destroyed or buried with the body, along with other rituals and offerings to accompany the soul into the hereafter or afterworld.

The primitive pagan priests were men who were highly revered by their people, and wielded great influence. These priests usually comprised the ruling class of the tribe, or were closely associated with it. They were the most knowledgeable among their people. But they held their people in ignorance, and preyed upon their superstitutions and their fear of the unknown. The office (power and authority) of the pagan priesthood passed on from father to son or nearest relative, and remained in the family, from one generation to the next, regardless of the worthiness of the heir.

The Holy Priesthood of God, known from the earliest times as the priesthood after the Order of the Son of God, which from the time of Shem (son of Noah) is also known as the Melchizedek Priesthood, existed alongside the pagan priesthood prior to the time of Adam. However, Adam was the first High Priest taken from among the men and appointed in behalf of man over the things pertaining to God. Adam not only offered sacrifices in behalf of the people and represented them before God; but also approached God, interceded, and pled for them.

Although the need for offering sacrifice was always present among both the pagan priesthood and the Holy Priesthood of God, the practices and motives for offering sacrifices were quite different, as outlined below:

Pagan Priesthood	Holy Priesthood of God
1. Rituals and ceremonies constituted the pagan priesthood.	1. Righteousness and obedience to the commandments of God constituted the Holy Priesthood of God.
2. The spirit of self-deprivation, or destruction of something highly valued and burdensome was missing from the act.	2. The spirit of self-deprivation or destruction of something highly valued and burdensome was paramount in the act of offering sacrifice.
3. Performance of an act was sufficient to obtain inner satisfaction, and to satisfy the inner need of getting something done.	3. Performance of an act alone was not sufficient for inner satisfaction. The inner need was satisfied through study, contemplation, reflection, self-deprivation, and such acts.
4. Primary focus was on the outer world, with little or no concern for the man's control of his inner world.	4. Primary focus was on the inner world, with little or no concern for man's control of his outer world.
5. The dwelling place of the supernatural forces and deities was believed to be in the lakes, ponds, mountains, groves of trees and other secluded locations.	5. The dwelling place of the supernatural forces and God was in the heaven above.
6. Rituals and ceremonies, rather than self-sacrifice and prayers, were necessary for the supplicant to obtain desired results.	6. Prayers, self-deprivation, and the grace of God, rather than rituals and ceremonies were necessary for the supplicant to obtain desired results.
7. The concepts of hereafter or afterworld were based on the experiences of those persons who returned from their trance or visionary state to describe them.	7. The concepts of hereafter or afterworld were based on the revelations of God to His prophets and other righteous individuals.
8. Pagan priests kept their people in ignorance; and preyed upon their superstitions and fear of the unknown.	8. Holy priests of God taught and expounded the truths and illuminated the minds of the people; and fought against ignorance and other evils.

9. Pagan priesthood passed on from father to son, regardless of the worthiness of the son; and remained in the family from one generation to the next.

9. Holy priesthood passed on to the most worthy and righteous sons; and if not one was found to be worthy of receiving it, the priesthood was conferred upon others, who were not members of the family.

10. Pagan priests lived in the darkness, with the light of the moon and the stars; and used secret combinations and secret oaths (which began with Cain's covenant with the Devil), to keep the traditions of Cain and his offspring alive.

10. The holy priests lived in the daylight, with the light of the Son (sun); and considered secret combinations and oaths as abominations.

11. Deities were made of wood, clay, stone, or metal by man, in man's image; and their worshipers were, generally, carnal, sensual, and devilish.

11. Deities were not made by man; rather, it was God who created man in His own image; and the worshipers were pure in heart, just, righteous, good, and holy.

12. Pagan priests sought temporal (worldly) rewards through propitiation.

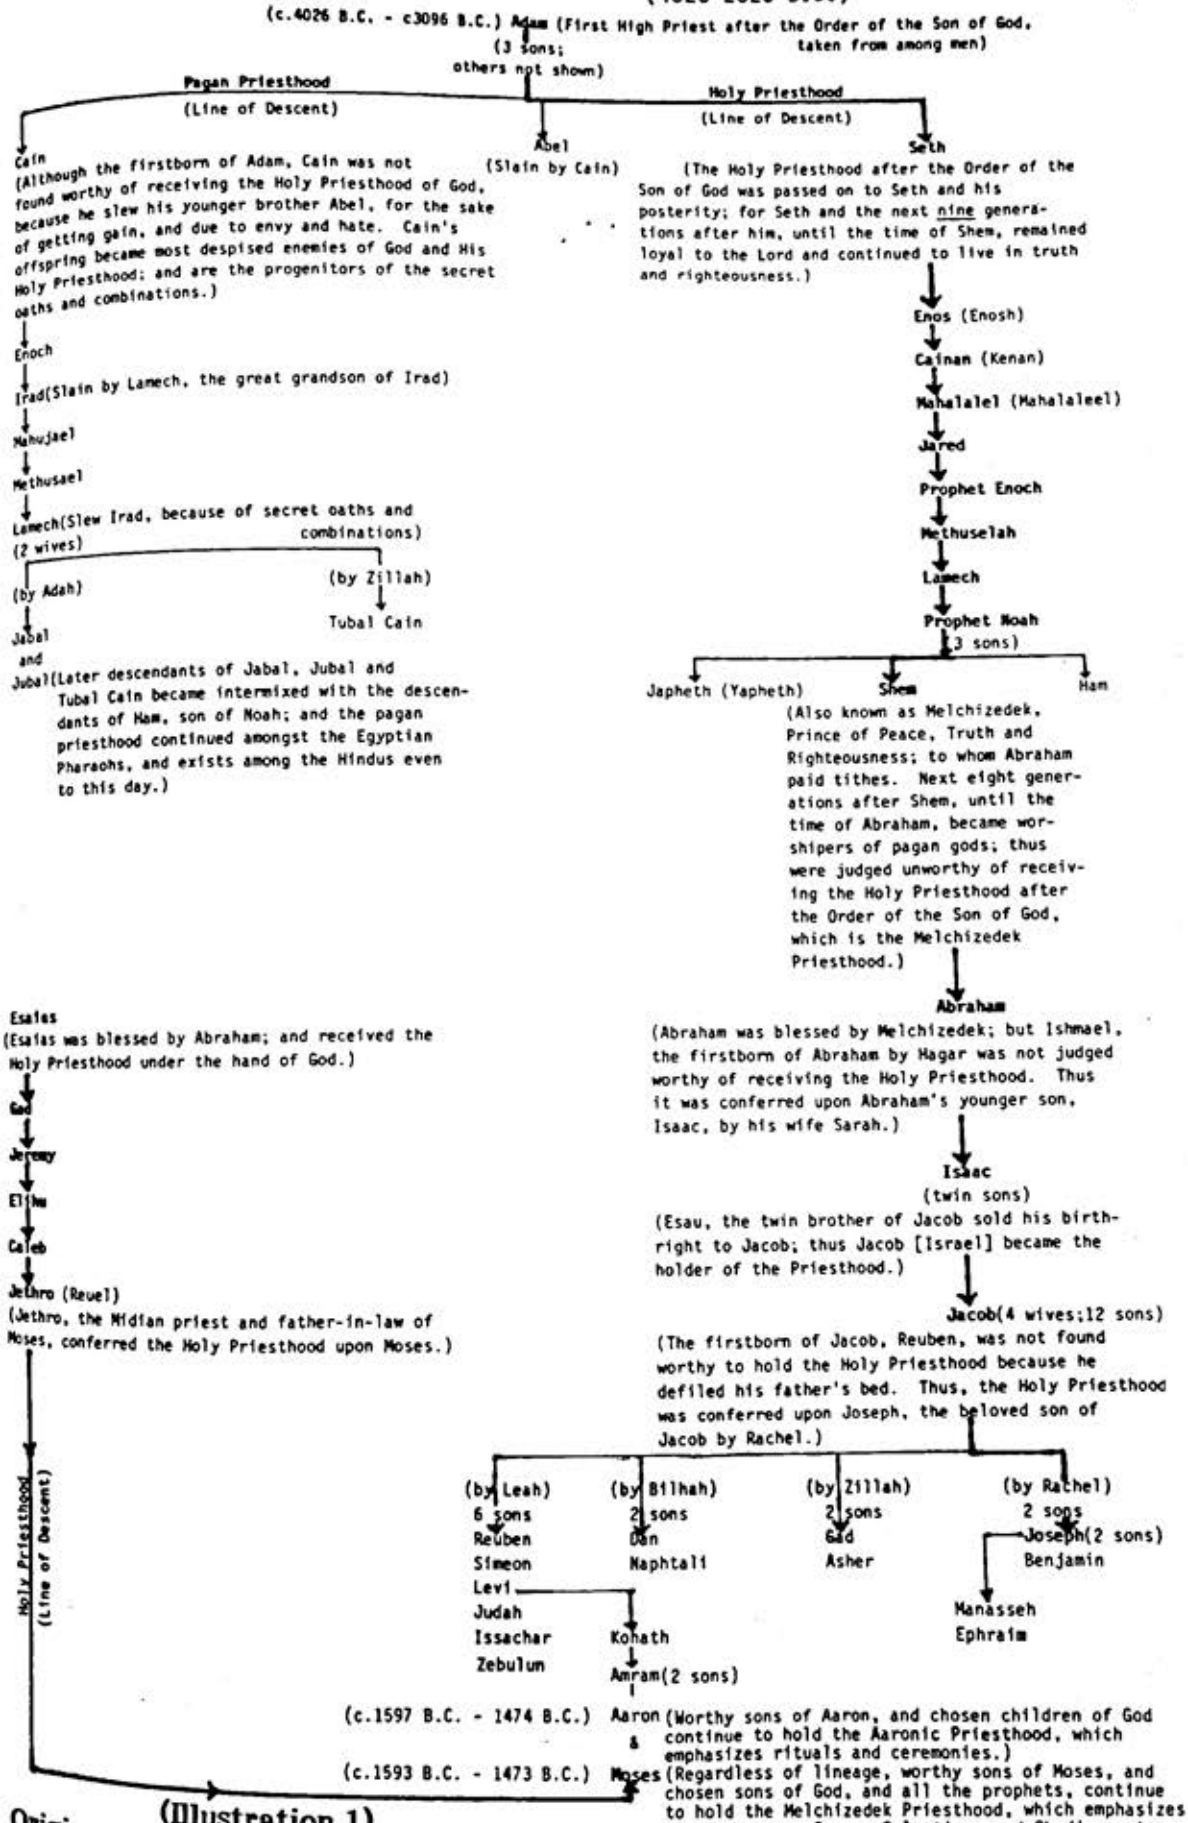
12. Holy priests sought spiritual rewards, such as divine blessings of the Lord; through His grace, mercy and kindness (not through propitiation, but by obeying the commandments of God and loving Him with all their might, mind, heart and strength).

The origins of the pagan priesthood and the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God (Melchizedek Priesthood) have been traced, and are shown in the accompanying chart entitled: Descent of the Holy Priesthood of God. The illustration on the following page serves to expound the truths concerning the early beginnings of the priesthoods.

Seth was ordained by Adam at the age of sixty-nine years, and was blessed by him three years prior to the death of Adam; and received the promise of God that his posterity should be the chosen of the Lord, and that they should be preserved unto the end of the earth. Seth was a perfect man, and his likeness was the express likeness of his father, insomuch that he seemed to be like unto his father in all things, and could be distinguished from him only by his age.

The power and authority of the Holy Priesthood was handed down rom father to son, and belonged to the literal descendants of the chosen seed, to whom the promises were made. Seth lived one hundred and

I. THE FIRST EPOCH: FROM ADAM TO NOAH (4026-2020 B.C.)



(Illustration 1)
Origins of the Pagan and Holy Priesthoods

five years and begat Enos (Enosh). And Enos and the remnant of the people of God came out of the land of Shulon, and dwelt in a land of promise, which he named after his own son Cainan. And the sons of men were numerous upon the face of the land; and Satan had great dominion and power over them, and raged in their hearts. Thenceforth, came wars and bloodshed. And because of secret works of darkness, seeking power and glory unto themselves, man's hand was against his own brother in administering death. Hate, envy and fear became the way of life for this lot for ever and ever.

Enos, son of Seth, lived ninety years and begat Cainan (Kenan); and was ordained by the hand of Adam at the age of one hundred and thirty-four years and four months. And God called upon Cainan, son of Enos, in the wilderness in the fortieth year of his age, and he met Adam in journeying to the place Shedolamak. Cainan was ordained into the Holy Priesthood at the age of eighty-seven years.

Mahalalel (Mahalaleel), son of Cainan, was four hundred and ninety-six years and seven days old when he was ordained by the hand of Adam, and was also blessed by him. Jared, son of Mahalalel, was two hundred years old when he was ordained into the Holy Priesthood under the hand of Adam, and was blessed by him.

Enoch, son of Jared, was twenty-five years old when he was ordained under the hand of Adam, and was blessed by Adam at the age of sixty-five; and Methuselah, son of Enoch, the prophet and seer, who possessed the knowledge of the sun, moon and the stars, was an hundred years old when he was ordained under the hand of Adam. And Enoch saw the Lord and walked with God three hundred and sixty-five years, and was translated when he was four hundred and thirty years old.

And all these generations of the holy priests taught their children in all the ways of God and preached righteousness, prophecied, and taught the gospel of repentence and baptism to the children of men. The holy priests after the Order of the Son of God read from the Book of Remembrance and from the Book of Generations, and added precept upon precept, intelligence upon intelligence in each succeeding generation from the time of Seth's ordination circa 3827 B.C. (official record-keeping began in 3761 B.C., the first year of the sacred calendar).

Three years prior to the death of Adam (the first High Priest of the Holy Order), he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalalel (Mahalaleel), Jared, Enoch and Methuselah, along with the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing. And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the prince, the archangel. And the Lord administered comfort unto Adam, and said: I have set thee to be at the head; a multitude of nations shall come of thee, and thou art a prince over them, and Adam stood up in the midst of the congregation, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, prophecied whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generations. And all these things were recorded in the Book of Remembrance, which was now kept with Enoch.

transgressions, trespasses, iniquities and ways of error), and be baptized in water in the name of the Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ, the only name under heaven whereby salvation shall come unto the children of men. And asking all things in the name of the Son, whatsoever ye shall ask, it shall be given thee. And many such things Enoch, the holy priest, prophet, seer and revelator, spoke to the people.

And it came to pass that Methuselah, son of Enoch, began to prophecy that from his loins (through his grandson Noah) should spring all the kingdoms of the earth; and he took glory unto himself. And there came forth a great famine into the land, and the Lord cursed the earth with a sore curse, and many of the inhabitants thereof died. And Methuselah lived one hundred and eighty-seven years, and begat Lamech; and he lived, after he begat Lamech, seven hundred and eighty-two years; and Lamech was thirty-two years old when he was ordained under the hand of Seth; and Lamech begat a son and called his name Noah, saying: This son shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which the Lord hath cursed. And Lamech lived, after he begat Noah, five hundred and ninety-five years, and begat sons and daughters.

When Noah was ten years old, he was ordained into the Holy Priesthood under the hand of his grandfather Methuselah. Noah became a preacher of righteousness and declared the Gospel of Jesus Christ, as did his great-grandfather Enoch; teaching faith, repentance, baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost. (Noah's power and authority in the Holy Priesthood of God is next to Adam.) After his ordination, the Lord commanded Noah that he should go forth and declare the Gospel unto the children of men. And it came to pass that Noah continued his preaching unto the people, saying: Hearken, and give heed unto my words; believe and repent of your sins and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, even as our fathers, and ye shall receive the Holy Ghost, that ye may have all things made manifest; and if ye do not this, the floods will come in upon you; nevertheless they hearkened not. Noah had begotten three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, when he was five hundred and two years old. He begat Japheth at the age of four hundred and fifty years, in 2520 B.C.; Ham was begotten when Noah was five hundred years old, in 2470 B.C.; and two years later Shem (Melchizedek), the Great High Priest was begotten, in 2468 B.C.

And God saw that the wickedness of man had become great in the earth; and every man was lifted up in his imagination of the thoughts of his heart, being evil continually; and God said unto Noah: The end of all flesh is come before me, for the earth is filled with violence, and behold I will destroy all flesh from off the earth. Make thee an ark of gopher wood. Rooms (compartments) shalt thou make in the ark, with lower, second, and third stories, and pitch it within and without with pitch. The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits (about 437 feet), the breadth fifty cubits (about 73 feet); and the height thirty cubits (about 43 feet). An opening of a cubit (about 17.5 inches) shalt thou leave above, around the ark. The door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof. And it came to pass that when Noah was six hundred years old, on the 17th day of the second month of Bul (Heshvan), 2370 B.C., the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened, and rain fell upon the earth forty days and nights. But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord, for Noah was a just man, and perfect in his generation; and he walked with God, as did also his three sons: Japheth (Yapheth), Shem (Melchizedek, the Great High Priest, the Prince of Peace, Truth and Righteousness), and Ham. In the selfsame day entered Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, and their wives into the ark. With them also entered every beast after his kind, all the cattle after their kind, every creeping thing that creepeth upon the ground, and every fowl and bird after his kind. And they went in with Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, a male and a female, as God had commanded Noah. Then the Lord shut him in with all others in the ark. The waters of the flood increased gradually, and lifted up the ark above the earth, and it went upon the face of the waters. And the waters prevailed upon the earth, and all the high hills under the skies (heavens) were covered. Fifteen cubits (about 22 feet) upward did the waters prevail, and the mountains stood out from the midst of the flood. All the flesh that moved on the ground, all the cattle, every beast and fowl, creeping thing and man, died; all that was in the dry land perished. At the end of forty days, Noah went to the opening (window) of the ark, and sent forth a raven; who flew back and forth from the ark, for there was no dry ground for him to land on. Then he sent a dove (pigeon) to see if the waters were abated from off the ground; but the dove also found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto Noah into the ark. So Noah awaited seven more days, and sent forth the dove again out of the ark; and behold, the dove returned to him in the evening, with a piece of olive leaf in her beak. Thus Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the ground. He waited yet seven more days, and sent forth the dove again. But this time she returned not unto him any more. And the waters prevailed upon the ground an hundred and fifty days.

And God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that were with him in the ark; and God caused a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters subsided. The fountains of the deep and the windows of heaven were stopped, and rain from heaven was restrained. After the end of one hundred and fifty days, the waters began to decrease continuously, and the ark rested upon the mountains of Ararat, on the seventeenth day of the seventh month of Abib (Nisan), 2370 B.C. On the first day of the tenth month (Tammuz), the tops of the hills were visible. And on the first day of the first month (Ethanim/Tishri) 2369 B.C., the waters were dried up from the ground; and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked and beheld the face of the dry ground. And in the six hundredth and first year of Noah's life, on the 27th day of the second month of Bul (Heshvan), the ground was dried up. And God spoke unto Noah, saying: Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons and their wives. Bring forth every living thing out of the ark; every beast, every creeping thing, every fowl, and all that is with thee; that they may breed abundantly, and be fruitful and multiply upon the earth. So Noah went forth with his wife, sons, and daughters-in-law out of the ark; along with all that were with him. Then Noah builded an altar unto the Lord, and offered the cleanest of the beasts and cleanest of the fowl as burnt offerings on the altar. And the Lord savored the sweet aroma, and said in his heart: I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth. Neither will I again smite any more every living thing, as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease.

And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said: Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth. The fear and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, every fowl of the air, every creature of the water, and all that moveth upon the earth. Into your hands are they delivered. Every moving thing that liveth shall be food for you, even as I have given you the green herbs and all things. But the flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood, shall ye not eat. Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed, for in the image of God man was made. Be ye fruitful and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein. Behold, I establish my covenant with you and your seed after you, and with every living creature that is with you: that neither all flesh shall be cut off any more by the waters of the flood, nor shall there be a flood sent to destroy the earth. This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations. I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be a token for the covenant between me and all the earth. And it shall be that when I bring a cloud over the earth, and the rainbow is seen in the cloud, I will remember my covenant which I have made this day, the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh upon the earth.

Thus, the first ten generations of High Priests of the Holy Order — Adam, Seth, Enos (Enosh), Cainan (Kenan), Mahalalel (Mahalaleel), Jared, Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech and Noah — taught their children the plan of salvation and the Gospel of Jesus Christ; and the Book of Remembrance was kept, along with the Book of Generations, to be added precept upon precept, intelligence upon intelligence, year after year, in the spirit of revelation; while the Holy Ghost and the Holy Priesthood of God bore witness to the record.

The Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God, which since the time of Shem (son of Noah), the Great High Priest, Melchizedek, has been called the Priesthood after Melchizedek or Melchizedek Priesthood, administered in all spiritual matters, as it does even to this day. In the latter days, within this Holy Priesthood are the offices of elder, seventy, high priest, patriarch, and apostle. Three presiding high priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to the office; upheld by the confidence, faith, and prayer of the body, form a quorum of the Presidency. The twelve traveling councilors are called to be the Twelve Apostles, or special witnesses of the name of Christ. And they form a quorum, equal in authority and power to the three presidents (presiding high priests). The Twelve are a traveling presiding high council, to officiate in the name of the Lord, under the direction of the three presiding high priests (Presidency), to build up the church, and regulate all its affairs. The Twelve are sent out having power and authority to open the door to salvation, through the Gospel of Jesus Christ. It is also the duty of the Twelve to ordain evangelical ministers, who are chosen by the spirit of revelation. The Seventy are also called to preach the Gospel, and to be special witnesses in all the land. The Seventy form a quorum equal in authority to that of the Twelve Apostles, or special witnesses. And every decision made by either of the quorums is the unanimous voice of the body; that is, every member in each quorum is to be in agreement as to its decisions. The Seventy are to act in the name of the Lord, under the direction of the Twelve, the traveling high council, in building up the church and carrying out and regulating all its affairs.

CHAPTER TWO

The Second Epoch: from Shem (Melchizedek) to Abraham (c.2468 B.C. - c.1843 B.C.)

Noah was over five hundred years old when he had begotten his three sons, Shem (Melchizedek), Ham, and Japheth (Yapheth). He was four hundred and fifty years old when he begat Japheth, in 2520 B.C.; Ham, the father of Canaan, was begotten when Noah was five hundred years old, in 2470 B.C.; Shem was begotten two years later, in 2468 B.C.

Japheth, the oldest of the three sons of Noah, and his wife were among the eight occupants of the ark, who survived the Flood (Deluge) of c.2370 B.C. After the Flood, seven sons were born to them, namely: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. Gomer is the progenitor of the Aryan race, Gimirrai, and Chinese people; Magog, the progenitor of nomadic Scythians; Madai, the progenitor of Medes and Persians; Javan, the progenitor of Ionian Greek; Tubal and Meshech, the progenitors of Tabali (Tabal, Tibernoi), and Mushku or Moskhoi, a fierce race of slave traders and copper miners; and Tiras (Tyrsenoi), the progenitor of a seafaring race of the island and coastland region of the Aegean Sea. From these and their grandsons sprang the population of the isles of the nations, coastland people, their families and nations. Japheth was the progenitor of the Indo-Aryan (Aryan, Indo-Germanic) branch of the human family. They spread from the Caucus region eastward into Central Asia and westward, through Asia Minor, to the islands and coastlands of Europe, including Spain.

Although Japheth (Yapheth) was the firstborn of Noah, his younger brother Shem was the most peaceful, truthful and righteous in the entire earth; and Shem was blessed by his father Noah, who was a preacher of righteousness and a high priest of the Order of the Son of God (later this Order became known as the Melchizedek Priesthood, after the righteousness of Shem, who was also called Melchizedek, meaning the king of peace, truth, and righteousness; to protect and revere the Ineffable Name).

After the Flood, when God made the covenant with Noah, saying: I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and earth (that when I look upon the rainbow in the cloud, I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature on earth; and that I shall send no more flood to destroy all flesh), Noah began to be an husbandman, and planted a vineyard; and he drank of the wine, and was drunken, and laid uncovered within his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and mockingly told his two brethren who were outside. And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, that they saw not their father's nakedness. And Noah awoke, and knew what his younger son had done. And he cursed Ham, saying: Cursed be Canaan, a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren. And Noah blessed Shem and Japheth, saying: Blessed be the Lord God of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant. And God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall also dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant. Thus Shem became the high priest after the Order of the Son of God.

The Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God continued to be handed down from father to son; and belonged to the literal descendants of the chosen seed, from the time of Adam, the first patriarch and high priest, taken from among men, to the time of Noah and the Flood (Deluge). During the Second Epoch, eight generations after Shem (Melchizedek) which include: Arpachshad (Arpaxad), Shelah, Eber (Heber), Peleg, Reu, Serug, Nahor, and Terah, gradually became the worshipers of pagan gods of the Elkenah, the Libnah, the Mahmackrah, the Korash (Koresh); and the gods of the Shagreel and Pharaoh.

Terah, also known to Arabs as Azar, begat three sons, namely: Haran, Abram (Abraham or Ibrahim), and Nahor. He was not only an idolator but a maker and seller of idols. One day Terah asked his son Abram to look after the shop while he had to attend to some business. And while Abram was tending the shop, an old man came in and asked, What is the price of that god? And Abram said: May I ask thine age? Three score years, replied the idolator. Three score years! exclaimed Abram, and said: And thou wouldst worship a thing that has been fashioned by the hands of my father's slaves within the last four and twenty hours? It is strange that a man of sixty should be willing to bow down his grey head to a creature a day old! The man, overwhelmed with shame, returned and went his way rubbing his beard. After this came in a sedate and grave matron, carrying in her hands a large dish containing flour, and said unto Abram: Here, I have brought an offering to the gods. Place it before them Abram, and bid them favor me. And Abram said, Place it before them thyself, foolish woman; thou wilt soon see how greedily they devour it. She did so. Then Abram took a hammer, and broke the idols in pieces — all except the largest, in whose hands he placed the instrument of destruction. When Terah returned, and saw to his astonishment and amazement the havoc among his favorite gods, he called his son Abram and said: What is all this mess, Abram! What profane wretch has dared to use our gods in this manner? And Abram replied: Why should I conceal anything from my father; during thine absence there came a woman with yonder offerings to the gods. She placed it before them. The younger gods, who, as may well be supposed, had not tasted food for a long time, greedily stretched forth their hands and began to devour the food without first obtaining permission of the old god. Enraged at their boldness, he rose, took the hammer, and beat upon them to punish them for their rudeness. So Terah said to his son, Dost thou mock me? Wilt thou deceive thy aged father? Do I not know that they can neither eat, nor stir, nor move? And Abram his son answered: And yet, behold, thou payest them divine honors, and adorest them, and compelleth me to worship them.

Terah began having children at the age of seventy; and died at the age of two hundred and five years in Haran, when Abram was seventy-five years old. Nahor married his niece Milcah, daughter of his brother Haran (later, through Haran's son Bethuel, Nahor became the grandfather of Laban and Rebekah; and great-grandfather of Leah, Rachel, Jacob and Esau). Now, Abram (exalted father), son of Terah, was not the firstborn, but he was faithful to the Lord and righteous in his dealings. Abram dwelt in the Chaldean city of Ur, a commercially thriving metropolis located in the land of Shinar, about one hundred and fifty miles southeast of Nimrod's royal city of Babel (Babylon). Babel was founded as the capital of Babylonia by Nimrod the Mighty Hunter, whose kingdom was the first empire to come into existence after the Deluge of c.2370 B.C.; and Babylonia included the cities of Babel, Erech, Ur, Eridu, Isin, Lagash, Hit, Nippur, Cuthah, and a few more. It was in the city of Babel, some two hundred years before the birth of Abram, that the Lord confounded the tongues, and scattered the people on the face of the earth, according to His needs and purposes. And it was also from the city of Babel that a remnant of the sons of Japheth (Yapheth), son of Noah, later known as the Jaredites, came to the Americas in about 2200 B.C.; and others were led to India (known to the Hebrews as Hoddu, to the Egyptians as Jambudvipa, and later Bharatavarsa; and Sindhu in Sanskrit language). During the time of Abram, the city of Ur was steeped in idolatry and false worship of pagan gods, especially their patron god Sin; while in Egypt the crocodile god Sobk, the foe of the dead above the earth and below, became the patron god of Pharaoh (Sesostris) and his royal house, especially in the Nile Delta region. But Abram knew and used the name of the Most High God of the heaven and earth. It was in the city of Ur, in the land of Chaldees (Chaldeans), that his kinsfolk and father dwelt. (The Mesopotamian city of Ur is identified with Tell-el Muqayyar [Mugheir], about one hundred and fifty miles from the Persian Gulf or southeast of Babylon; it was a busy seaport in the time of Abram. Ruins there cover an area of about three thousand by twenty-four hundred feet. This was once a center of the moon-god Sin; the ruins of a temple tower or ziggurat about 200 feet long, 150 feet wide, and seventy feet high prevail to this day. In the royal tombs were found many objects of gold, silver, lapiz lazuli, and other precious stones; and the remains of early Sumerian kings and queens and their courtiers were also found. The private houses in Abram's time were built of bricks, plastered, and whitewashed; and many residences had thirteen or fourteen rooms surrounded by a paved courtyard. Abram's father Terah, also known to the Arabs as Azar, was a rich man of considerable wealth, including many servants and stewards over them; and Abram was raised in an atmosphere of plenty and abundance, albeit under the influence of his idolatrous father. Yet Abram did choose to leave the good life in Ur, to move to a strange land, in obedience to the command of Jehovah the Most High God.) And Abram saw that it was needful for him to find another place of residence; and knowing that there was greater happiness, peace and rest for him, he sought the blessings of the fathers and the right to the Holy Priesthood; that he might be ordained to minister the same unto others. Having been a follower of righteousness, a seeker of the greater knowledge of God and His kingdom, and desirous of receiving instructions and keeping the commandments of God, Abram became the rightful heir to the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God. This Holy Priesthood came down from the fathers who first made it known unto the man on earth at the time the Lord showed man the reckoning of time, the months and years, in 4241 B.C.; and the right of the firstborn became customary in the established Order, from the time of Adam, the first patriarch and high priest, taken from among men. Abram sought his own appointment unto the Holy Order, according to the promise of the Most High God to the fathers concerning their seed. But his father Terah and kinsfolk having turned away from their righteousness, and the holy commandments of the Lord, unto the worshiping of the gods of the heathen, they utterly refused to hearken to his voice. Their hearts were set to do evil, and were wholly turned to the gods of the Elkenah, the Libnah, the Mahmackrah, the Korash, and the gods of the Shagreel and Pharaoh. They turned their hearts to the heathen rituals, ceremonies and sacrifices; even offered up their children unto their pagan idols of the underworld. And when Abram attempted to correct their ways of error, sin and iniquity, they tried to take away his life; and handed him to the pagan priest of Elkenah, who was also a priest of the Pharaoh of Egypt, to be sacrificed upon the altar; for it was the custom to offer up upon the altar, dissident men, women and children, unto the gods of the heathen. Upon the altar, which stood by Potiphar's Hill, in the plain of Olishem, the priest of Elkenah offered up three virgins at one time, the daughters of Onitah, one of royal descent directly from the loins of Ham, son of Noah. These virgins were offered up because of their virtue, for they would not bow down to worship the dumb gods of wood, stone or clay. Therefore they were sacrificed upon this altar, in the manner of the Egyptians. The altar was a bedstead, in the form of an elongated lion; under it were four (canopic) jars, representing the four sons of Horus, protected by four goddesses, namely: Isis, Nephthys, Neith, and Selket. These jars were used for the embalmed organs of the deceased. Imsety (liver), Hapi (lungs), Duamutef (stomach), and Quebehsenuef (intestines), were placed within each, and buried with the embalmed body of the deceased; and the altar stood upon a wooden platform, upon which was an engraving of the new crocodile god Sobk in the marshes of Lower Egypt. The royal house and Pharaoh (Sesostris) had proclaimed Sobk to be their patron god; and Re (Ra) the sun god and Horus the hawk-faced god of the sun were no longer worshiped by Pharaoh and his household during this time; and Pharaoh's sister-wife was the worshiper of the goddess Neith (Neit), whose sign (♀) was tattooed upon her men worshipers. Three facsimiles from the records of Abram (Abraham), which are in possession of the Church, are included here; these records of Abraham, written by his own hand upon papyrus, were found in the catacombs (subterranean burial chambers) of Egypt.

And it came to pass that the priest of Elkenah laid violence against Abram, that he might slay him also, as he had done to the three virgins upon the selfsame altar; and he tied him up, and placed him upon the altar. And as the priest of Elkenah lifted up his hand upon him, to slay him with a knife, Abram lifted up his hands and called upon the name of the Lord his God; and his voice reached the heavens, and an angel of the Lord was sent to minister unto him. And the angel of the Lord immediately unloosed his bands; and Abram heard a voice, saying: Abram,

1. Angel of the Lord (Horus).
2. Abram (Abraham) upon the altar.
3. Pagan priest of Elkenah. (He was also a priest at the court of Pharaoh.)
4. Lion-shaped bedstead in front of which is the stand for lotus flowers.
5,6,7,8. Canopic jars represent the four sons of Horus; in which embalmed organs Imsety (liver), Hapi (lungs), Duamutef (stomach), and Qebehsenuef (intestines) were placed, and were to be buried with the embalmed body of the deceased.
9. Sobk the crocodile-god of Pharaoh (Sesostris), in the marshes of Lower Egypt. Sobk was the enemy of the dead below and above the ground.
10. Subterranean burial chambers.

Abram (Abraham) to be sacrificed upon the altar.

Abram, behold, my name is Anointed One (Christ), and I have heard thee; and have come down to deliver thee, and take thee away from thy father's house and from thy kinsfolk, into a strange land, which thou hast not seen; for they have turned their hearts away from the Lord, to worship other gods. Therefore, I have come down to visit their sins and iniquities; and to destroy him who hath lifted up his hand against thee, Abram, my son, to take away thy life. Behold, I will lead thee, and put upon thee the name of the Anointed One, even the Priesthood of thy fathers; and the power of the Lord shall be over thee, as it was with Noah, so shall it be; and through thy ministry, the name of the Most High God shall be known in the earth forever, for He is thy God.

And, behold, the Lord did break down the altar at Potiphar's Hill, in the land of Ur of Chaldea, and also in the court of Pharaoh in Egypt. Now this king of Egypt (Sesostris) was a descendant of Ham, son of Noah, and partaker of the blood of Canaanites by birth; from his descent sprang Egyptian pharaohs of this royal house. It was Egyptus (meaning strange in Chaldean), daughter of Ham, who first discovered the land of Lower Egypt to dwell in. When this woman found the land to settle in, it was under water, due to the flooding of the Nile; but later, when the floods abated, she and her sons were brought to settle there, and to govern the land of Egypt, which also meant "strange" in Chaldea. Kheti, the eldest son of Egyptus, was the first of the Pharaohs of the line of Ham. Pharaoh being a righteous man, established his kingdom and judged his people wisely and justly all his days; seeking earnestly to re-establish the Holy Order established by the fathers in the first generations of the patriarchal reign of Adam; and also of Ham, son of Noah, who was blessed with the blessings of the earth and temporal wisdom, but was cursed regarding the Holy Priesthood. Now, these Pharaohs being of that lineage by which they could not claim the right to the priesthood, Abram's fathers, eight generations after Shem, were gradually led away captive by them into the Egyptian bondage of soul, through idolatry, and false worship.

Now shortly after the priest of Elkenah was smitten that he died, there came a famine in the land of Chaldea; and Abram's father was sorely tormented because of the famine; and he repented of the evil which he had conceived against his son, to take away his life. But Abram rejoiced in the possession of the records of the fathers the patriarchs, and in knowledge of the rights and the blessings of the Priesthood, which the Lord his God had preserved in his hands. And Abram (Abraham) kept these records until his last day, and added upon them, by writing in his own hand (upon papyrus), as it was and is the custom and requirement of the Holy Order to do so.

And it came to pass that the Lord caused the famine to wax sore in Ur, insomuch that Haran, Abram's brother, died; but Terah yet lived. Then, Abram took Sarai his half-sister to wife. She was ten years younger than him; and Nahor the brother of Abram took Milcah, the daughter of Haran to wife. Now, the Lord had said unto Abram: Abram, get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred and father's house, unto a land that I will show thee; and He also gave Abram Urim and Thummim (Lights and Perfections). Therefore Abram left Ur of Chaldees to go unto the land of Canaan; and he took Lot, his brother's son, his wife Sarai, and his father Terah; and they traveled with their flocks and herds, and all their possessions, by the way of the city of Babel, toward Mesopotamia, unto the land which they called Haran, near Paddan Aram, about six hundred miles northwest of Ur, in northern Mesopotamia. The city of Haran, also known as Harran or Harranu, was an important caravan route, linking it with other commercial cities; and was situated on the Belikh river about sixty-eight miles above where it enters the great Euphrates river. Here Abram remained until the death of his father Terah. Now seventy-five years old, Abram began to move his household out of Haran, southward toward the land of Canaan, the Promised Land; and crossed the Euphrates on the fourteenth day of Abib (Nisan), 1943 B.C. After the famine abated and Terah died in sin and idolatry at the age of two hundred and five years, Abram and his nephew Lot prayed unto the Most High God; and the Lord appeared to Abram, saying: Arise, and take Lot with thee; for I have purposed to take thee away out of Haran, and make thee a priest (minister) to bear my name in the land of Canaan, which I will give unto thy seed after thee, for an everlasting possession, according to their faithfulness and obedience to my commandments. For I am the Lord thy God; and I dwell in the heaven, and the earth is my footstool. I stretch my hand over the sea, and it obeys my voice; I cause the wind and the fire to be my chariot; I say to the mountains: Depart hence, and behold, suddenly in an instant they are taken away by a whirlwind. My name is Jehovah (יהוה), and I know the end from the beginning. My name shall be upon thee, for thou art anointed by my Spirit; and I will make of thee a great nation, and bless thee beyond measure, and make thy name great among all nations. And thou shalt be a blessing unto thy seed, for they shall bear this ministry and the Priesthood unto all nations; and I will bless them through thy name.

Furthermore, as many as receive the Gospel and obey the commandments shall be called after thy name, and shall be accounted thy seed; and they shall rise up and bless thee as their father and patriarch. And I the Lord shall bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curse thee. This day I give thee another promise, that the right to the (Holy) Priesthood shall remain in thee and thy seed, according to their faithfulness and worthiness; yea, even the blessings of the Gospel, the blessings of Salvation, the gift of the Holy Spirit, and life eternal.

And the Lord God showed Abram by means of the Urim and Thummim that the stars were numerous in number; and that one of them was nearest to the throne of God, and there were many great ones near to it. And the Lord said unto Abram: These are the governing ones; and the name of the great one is Kolob (Qolob), because it is near unto me. For I am the Lord thy God, I have set this one to govern all those which belong to the same Order as that upon which thou standeth (the Holy Order of the Son of God). And the Lord showed unto Abram, by the Urim and Thummim, that Kolob was after the manner of the Lord according to its time and season in the revolutions thereof; that one revolution was a day unto the Lord, according to the manner of His reckoning; and it being one thousand years, according to the time appointed upon earth, where stood Abram. And the Lord said unto Abram: The planet upon which thou standeth is the lesser light, lesser than that which is to rule the day; even the lesser light which ruleth the night is above or greater than that upon which thou standeth in point of reckoning, for it moveth in order more slow; this is in order because it standeth above the earth upon which thou standeth; therefore the reckoning of its time is not so many as to its number of days, months or years. And the Lord said unto Abram: Now, Abram, these two facts exist, behold thine eyes see it; it is given unto thee to know the times of reckoning, and the set time; yea, the set time of the earth upon which thou standeth, and the set time of the greater light to rule the day, and the set time of the lesser light to rule the night. The set time of the lesser light is longer as to its reckoning than the reckoning of the time of the earth upon which thou standeth; and where these two facts exist, there exists another fact, that it must needs be that there exist another planet whose reckoning of time is longer still. And thus, there shall be the reckoning of the time of one planet above another, until thou come nigh unto Kolob, which Kolob is after the reckoning of the Lord's time; the Kolob which is set nigh unto the throne of God, to govern all those planets which belong to the same Order (of the Son of God), upon which thou standest. And it is given unto thee to know the set time of all the stars that are set in the heaven to give light, until thou come near unto the throne of God.

Thus the Lord spoke to Abram, face to face, as one man talketh with another; and He told Abram the works of His hands, and said unto Abram: My son, behold, I will show thee all these. Then, He put his hand upon Abram's eyes, and Abram beheld those things which His hands had made, which were many; and they began to multiply (grow) before his eyes, and he could not see the end thereof.

And the Lord said to Abram: My son, if two things exist, one above the other, there shall yet be greater things above them; therefore Kolob is the greatest of all the lights in the firmament that thou hast seen;

Government of Kolob (Qolob)

Now, because the humble servant of the Lord of Hosts hath been blessed from on High with the gift of the ancient Scriptures and some knowledge of hieroglyphics, he hath thus provided the following explanation pertaining to the government of Kolob (Qolob). May the generations of our day, and in the future cherish that which is being revealed by the means of the power and divine guidance of the Most High and Living God:

1. Throne of the Lord God, the Father, which dwells in the midst of the universe. The Throne of the Lord God is divided into the left and right arm, temporal and spiritual arms of the Eternal Throne. Two forms of Ptah, the mind and tongue of the Lord God the Father, are shown on His either side, with sun-disks over their heads. Ptah is the next highest in power, authority, knowledge and understanding in the government of the universe. Two forms of Ptah serve as the Most High Councillors of the Throne of the Lord God.
2. The Son of God, the Anointed One of the Eternal Throne; He was called the Savior and Messiah (Re or Ra). In His left hand is the scepter of the Holy Pyramids. The Son ruleth over the temporal (wordly) and spiritual affairs of the universe. The Son is the nearest to the heart or pulse (kolob) of the Lord God and His Throne. Horus the Hawk-faced God has dominion over the temporal affairs of God's government, and he abides on the left side of the Throne of the Son (Re). On His right side are those who dwell in the Field of Yaru (Earu), the Blessed Field, the righteous and the just, and the holy.
3. (A) Hawk-faced sun-god Horus receives his power, authority and glory from the Son of God, and also from the Father. Horus sits on the throne of his celestial barque, with the scepter of dominion in his left hand; and sun-disk above his head. Horus has the dominion over the temporal (worldly) affairs of the government of the universe. His nature is of rajas, of passion, whereby he performs actions with the expectation of rewards, and his attachments are to objects of the senses and things of the world.
   (B) Udjat eye, the emblem of Horus.
   (C) Stand for lotus flowers. (Lotus flower was most sacred for out of it came the Sun [Son] God.)
4. The righteous and the just receive their power, authority, and glory from the Son of God; and abide on the right side of the Eternal Throne of the Son of God. The Egyptians believed that there was a field in the northeast of the heavens, called the Field of Yaru (Earu), or the Field of the Blessed, and the departed ones dwelt there in security and in abundance. The just and righteous were carried to the Field of the Blessed in a celestial barque by angels of the Son or by the Son Himself; or the blessed soul was carried on the wings of a dove, or some other bird. Not everyone could enter the Field of the Blessed, only the just and righteous obtain passage across the waters, to the Field of Yaru. The Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God ruleth over the Spiritual affairs of the government of the universe. The nature of these souls is that of sattva, or of goodness and virtue; whereby their duties are contemplation and reflection, and they perform action without the expectation of reward; they are not attached to the objects of the senses nor the things of the world. They live on the offerings made to the temples of their God.
5. Gods of the dead or the underworld rule the subterranean world of the departed, which is upside down. This realm is also called the "western world," the world of the spiritually and physically dead. Those who live in this realm possess the nature of tamas or the dark quality of dullness. They are cut off from the presence of the Son of God; but the Lord God the Father hath assigned angels to minister unto them, both from the temporal and the spiritual kingdoms of the government of the universe.

because it is nearest unto me. Now, if there be two things, one above the other, and the moon be above the earth, then it may be that a planet or a star might exist above it; as also, if there be two spirits, one more intelligent than the other, then intelligence must exist upon intelligence, without beginning and without end; for they existed forever, for they are gnolaum, or eternal. Two facts do exist, that if there are two spirits, one being more intelligent than the other, then there shall be yet another more intelligent than they; I am the Lord thy God, I am more intelligent than they all; the same who sent His angel to deliver thee from the hands of the priest of Elkenah. I dwell in the midst of them all; and now thou dwellest amongst them; and therefore, I have come down to declare unto thee the works of my hand; wherein my wisdom excelleth them all, for I rule in the heavens above, and the earth beneath, in wisdom and prudence, over all the intelligences thine eyes have seen; I came down in the beginning, when the heaven and the earth were organized and formed on the earth, for the benefit of man. The governments were first instituted by the Lord God and His Only Begotten for the benefit of man; thus, He holds men accountable for their actions in making laws and administering them. No government can exist in peace, safety and salvation, except such laws are framed and held immutable, that secure each man free exercise of conscience, the divine gift of agency forever, without exceptions. The Lord God hath granted this divine and eternal gift from the time He established His kingdom upon the earth; and Adam was forgiven of his transgression, when he repented and forsook the sin for which he repented and made sacrifices unto the Lord God. Through the use of agency man may choose between good and evil, reward and punishment, and live his life according to his own beliefs; and be accountable for his own actions. Thus, the sins of the parents cannot be passed on to their children; but the curse of the Lord God must be fulfilled unto the third and fourth generations. Satan the Devil is the destroyer of man's agency; he is the enemy of freedom and liberty, free-will and choice; and by this knowledge ye shall know if a thing is of the Devil or of the Lord. The government of God was established before the time of Adam, and the Only Begotten of the Lord God ruleth the heaven and the earth; and those who dwell in His kingdom are accountable to Him alone, and no one else. Thus temporal laws cannot prescribe the rules of worship nor the forms of rituals and ceremonies, to bind the conscience of man; civil magistrates and officers are given the power to restrain crime, and punish the guilty, but never to control the conscience or to suppress the liberty and freedom of the individual.

Depending upon the capacity of the individual, each person is given the opportunity to achieve the degrees of glory and salvation either in the celestial, terrestrial or telestial kingdoms; and are held accountable to their Redeemer and Savior Jesus Christ. In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees; and in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter the Holy Order after the Son of God; and if he does not, he may enter the next lower degrees of heaven, but he cannot have eternal increase. The celestial glory is that of the sun, likened to the glory of God, the highest of all; the Lord God, the Father, reigns upon His throne of celestial glory forever and ever; and those who dwell in His presence are the church of the Firstborn; and they see as they are seen, and know as they are known, having received of His fullness and grace. And the Lord God makes them equal in power, might and dominion. These are they who dwell in the presence of the Father and the Son forever and ever; and shall come forth in the first resurrection, the resurrection of the just and righteous and obedient; they dwell with the Living God in the holiest of all heavenly places. These are they who dwell in an innumerable company of angels, in the assembly of the church of the Firstborn, the Holy Order. These are they whose names are written in heaven, where God and the Son are the judge of all. These are the just and righteous men made perfect through the Son; their bodies are celestial, and their glory is that of the Son. The terrestrial glory differs from the celestial glory as the earth differs from the sun, and as the moon differs in brightness from that of the sun. The terrestrial world belongs to the spirits of men kept in prison. These are they who were preached the Gospel, and who were visited by the Son, but they received not the Word. These are honorable men of the world, who have been blinded by the craftiness of men and the Devil; these are they who might receive the presence of the Son, but not the fullness of the Father; they receive the glory, but not the fullness thereof; wherefore they become bodies terrestrial, not celestial, who are not valiant in their testimony of Jesus Christ, the Son of the Living and Eternal God; therefore they cannot obtain the supreme crown of the kingdom of God. It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance. The telestial glory, the least of the three glories, differs from the terrestrial, as the brightness of the stars differs from the brightness of the moon; but while the moon reflects the light of the sun, the stars do not reflect the light, but create their own light, which neither is life-giving nor illuminating, nor does their individual brightness benefit man. The telestial world belongs to those who received not the Gospel, but they deny not the Holy Spirit. These are they who were thrust down to hell (Sheol, Jehenna), and will not be redeemed from the power of Satan the Devil, until the last resurrection, when all the works of the Son of God are finished upon earth. These are they who received not the fullness of the Son, but received the Holy Spirit (Holy Ghost) and the ministration of the terrestrial kingdom, and the angels are appointed to minister unto them. The glory of the telestial is that of the stars. For as one star differs from another, so does one from the other in the glory of the telestial world. These are they who say they worship their own idols or the idols of the terrestrial world. They receive not the Gospel, neither the testimony of the Son of God, nor are obedient to the commandments. These are they who are liars, and sorcerers, adulterers, whoremongers, and whosoever loves and makes a lie. They suffer the wrath of God and vengeance of eternal fire. Thus, they are cast down to hell to suffer, until all the works of the Son of God are perfected and finished upon the earth. The inhabitants of the telestial world are as numerous as the stars in the sky and the sand upon the seashore.

The Son of God, which is Jesus Christ, sits on the right hand of the Lord God, the Father; and by the Son, through the Son, and of the Son the worlds are and were created; and the inhabitants of the earth are begotten sons and daughters of the Son, the Lord their God. The begotten of the Son are those who did receive the Gospel, and believed on the Son, obeyed the commandments, fulfilled the required ordinances, and received the Holy Spirit. Into their hands the Father hath given all things; they are the priests and kings, who have received of the fullness of His glory; and are the priests after the Order of the Son of God; they are likened unto gods, even as the sons of God; wherefore all things are theirs; life and death, present and future, all are theirs; for they belong to the Son, and the Son belongs to the Father. They shall overcome all things. Wherefore let no man glory in man, but let him glorify the Most High God, the Living and Eternal God.

He who is not able to abide the law of the celestial kingdom, cannot abide a celestial glory; he who cannot abide the laws of the terrestrial kingdom, cannot abide a terrestrial glory; and he who cannot abide the telestial law, cannot abide a telestial glory; but is cast out into the outer darkness, which is not a kingdom of glory. The celestial law governs the whole earth; and those who abide in it fill the measure of its creation, and transgress not the commandments, statutes and ordinances of the Gospel. And those quickened by a portion of the celestial glory, shall receive the fullness of the celestial glory; those who are quickened by a portion of the terrestrial glory, shall receive the fullness of the same; and those who are quickened by the portion of the telestial, shall be added upon the fullness of the telestial glory. For what doth it profit a man, if a gift is bestowed upon him, and he receive it not; neither he rejoiceth in the gift, nor in him who bestows the gift upon him. Know it then, that which is governed by law is also preserved, perfected and sanctified by the same. All kingdoms, great and small, are given a law; and there is no space on the face of the earth without a kingdom. There exist two kinds of beings in the celestial kingdom, in the presence of the Most High God, namely: the angels who are resurrected beings, and the spirits of just and righteous men made perfect, who are not resurrected. Thus when a messenger visits thee saying that he has a message from God, offer him thine hand to shake hands. If he were the angel of the Lord, he will do so, and thou shalt feel his hand; but if he be the spirit of the just and righteous made perfect, he might not move to shake your hand, but he will deliver his message with power and authority; for it is contrary to the order of heaven for a just man to condescend and deceive. On the other hand, if the Devil or the Satan, dressed as an angel of light, visit thee, and thou ask him to shake hands, he will offer thee his hand, but thou shalt not feel anything. Thus, my son, in this manner thou mayest know to discern between the ministering angels of the Lord and the Devil.

Now after the Lord had ceased to speak, and withdrew His presence from Abram, Abram said in his heart: Thy servant hath sought Thee earnestly, and now he hath found Thee. Thou didst send Thine angel to deliver me from the hand of the priest of Elkenah, by Potiphar's Hill, in the land of Chaldea; therefore it will do me good to hearken unto Thy voice, and rise up and depart in peace. So Abram departed from Haran with Lot, Sarai his wife, and Lot's wife, and all other souls that were converted in Haran; along with all their flocks and herds, and possessions, southward toward the land of Canaan. Abram was sixty-two years old when he left the city of Ur in the land of Chaldees; and now he was seventy-five years old. And they journeyed from Haran by the way of Jershon (Jarash, Jerash), and dwelt in tents along the way. Here, at Jershon, Abram built an altar, and made an offering unto the Lord, and prayed that famine might not come again upon his kindred who had stayed behind, that they might not perish. Then, they continued their journey southward from Jershon and arrived at Shechem (Sechem), in the plains of Moreh; and here Abram called upon the name of the Lord with all his heart and soul, because they had arrived in the land of the idolatrous nation. And the Lord appeared unto Abram in answer to his prayers, and said: Unto thy seed will I give this land; and there he built an altar unto the Lord. Then Abram arose from the place of the altar, and removed from there unto a mountain on the east of Beth-El, and pitched his tent between Beth-El on the west and Hai (Ai) on the east; and there he built another altar unto the Lord, and called again upon the name of the Lord. And Abram continued his journey southward; and there was a continuation of a very grievous famine in the land; and Abram decided to go down into Egypt, to sojourn there. And it came to pass, when they reached near Egypt, Abram said unto Sarai his wife: Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon; when the Egyptians shall see thee, they shall say in their heart, this is his wife, kill him and save the woman (for it was the popular habit of some Egyptians to capture attractive women, and kill their husbands by using military and other means). Tell them, therefore, that thou art my sister, that it may be well with both of us. And, behold, it came to pass that when Abram entered into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman that she was very fair (although she was sixty-five years old, for the Lord had preserved her); and the princes of the house of Pharaoh saw her, and summoned her before Pharaoh; and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's house. And he treated Abram well for her sake; although Abram himself was very rich in cattle, silver and gold, and had many menservants and maidservants.

II. THE SECOND EPOCH: FROM SHEM TO ABRAHAM (2468 - 1843 B.C.)

And Pharaoh invited Abram to his throne room and asked him to sit upon the throne, and Abram gave audience to all the princes and princesses of Egypt; and the sister-wife of Pharaoh stood on the right hand of Abram and blessed them as the royal slave brought each couple and presented them for their audience and blessings. And this auspicious occasion was recorded by the court scribes, a copy of which is shown in the facsimile on the next page (also shown in the Book of Abraham as Facsimile No. 3).

But the Lord plagued Pharaoh and his house with a great plague, because of Sarai, Abram's wife. And Pharaoh called Abram, and said: What is this that thou hast done unto me? Why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife? Why saidst thou, She is my sister? Lo, I might have taken her to me to wife; now therefore here is thy wife, take her and go thy way. And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning Abram; and they sent him away, his wife and all that he had. And they all returned to the same place between Beth-El and Hai (Ai), where they had pitched their tents before, and Abram built an altar there; and called upon the name of the Lord (יהוה), and continued his journey southward. Now Lot, who was moving about with Abram, also had flocks and herds and tents; then quarreling arose between Abram's herdsmen and the herdsmen of Lot. So Abram said unto Lot: Let there be no quarreling, I beg thee, between thee and me, or between thine herdsmen and mine, for we are

Abram (Abraham) upon the throne of Egypt

1. Abram (Abraham) sitting upon the throne of Egypt, wearing the Atef crown of Upper and Lower Egypt; in his left hand is the scepter of rule and dominion.
2. Sister-wife of Pharaoh (Sesostris), blessing a royal couple escorted by a chamberlain; in her hand she holds the symbol of goddess Neith.
3. Stand for lotus flowers (Lotus flower was most sacred, for out of it came the Son-god.)
4. Egyptian princess escorting a prince.
5. Prince of agriculture.
6. Court chamberlain.
7. Egyptian representation of the firmament (sky).

brothers. Is not the whole land before thee? Separate yourselves, I beg thee, from me. If ye go to the left, I'll go to the right; and if ye go to the right, I'll go to the left. Lot then chose all the plain of Jordan, and journeyed eastward; and the two men separated themselves, one from the other. Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelt in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom. But the men of Sodom were wicked and sinners in the eyes of the Lord exceedingly. And the Lord said unto Abram, after he was separated from Lot: Lift up thine eyes, and look from the place thou art, northward, and southward, eastward and westward; for all the land which thou seest, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thine offspring as the dust of the earth, so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thine offspring be counted. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and the breadth of it; for I will give it to thee. Then Abram moved his tent and dwelt in the plains of Mamre which is in Hebron, and built there an altar to the Lord.

Now, in the days of Amraphet king of Shinar (Babylonia); Arioch king of Ellasar; Chedorlaomer king of Elam; and Tidal king of Goiim went to war against Bera king of Sodom, Bershal king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, Shemeber king of Zeboiim and the king of Bela (which is Zoar). And when Abram heard that Chedorlaomer and his allied kings had carried off his nephew Lot, who lived in Sodom, Abram armed his trained servants born in his own household, three hundred and eighteen of them; and went in pursuit as far as Dan. After Abram returned from defeating Chedorlaomer and his allied kings, the king of Sodom came out to meet him in the valley of Shaveh (which is the king's valley); and Melchizedek, king of salem (peace) and the priest of the Most High God, brought forth bread and wine, and blessed Abram, saying: Blessed be Abram of the Most High God, creator and possessor of the heaven and the earth; and blessed be the Most High God which hath delivered thine enemies into thine hands. Then Abram gave Melchizedek a tenth of everything; and when the king of Sodom offered Abram the goods (of the booty) and the captive persons, Abram replied: I have raised my hands to the Lord God Most High, Creator of heaven and earth; and have taken an oath that I will accept nothing belonging to thee, not even a thread or a thong of a sandal; that you may never be able to say, I made Abram rich; I will accept nothing, but that which my men have eaten, and the share that belongs to men that went with me to Anar, Eshcol and Mamre; let them have their share. After this, the word of the Lord came to Abram in a vision: Fear not Abram, I am thy shield and thy very great reward; but Abram said: O Sovereign Lord, what can you give me since I remain childless; and the one who will inherit my estate is Eliezer of Damascus. Thou hast given me no children; so a servant in the household will be my heir. Then the word of the Lord came to him: This man will not be thy heir, but a son coming from thine own loins will be thine heir; and the Lord took Abram outside of his dwelling place and said: Look up at the heavens and count the stars, if indeed thou canst count them; so shall thine offspring be. He also said to him: I am the Lord who brought thee out of Ur of Chaldees to give thee this land, for an everlasting possession; but Abram said: O Sovereign Lord, how can I know that I will gain possession of it; and when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram, and a thick and dreadful darkness came over him. Then the Lord said unto Abram: Know for certain that thy descendants will be strangers in a country not their own, and they shall be enslaved and mistreated for four hundred years; but I shall punish the nation they serve as slaves, and afterward they will come out with great possessions; and thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace, and be buried in a good old age; but in the fourth generation they shall come hither again, for the iniquity of the Amorites has not yet reached its full measure. In the selfsame day, when the sun went down, and it was dark, a smoking pot and a blazing torch appeared, passing between each other, and the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying: To thy offspring I have given this land; from the river (Nile) in Egypt, to the great river Euphrates; all the land of the Kenites, Kenizzites, Kadmonites, Hittites, Perizzites, the Rephaim, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites and the Jebusites. Now, Sarai, Abram's wife, had borne him no children and continued to remain barren for ten years, after they had arrived in the land of Canaan, from Mesopotamia; but she had an Egyptian handmaid whose name was Hagar (Hajirah), and Sarai said to Abram: The Lord hath kept me from having children; I beg you, go sleep with my maidservant; perhaps I could build a family through her. (So Abram agreed to what Sarah said and went in unto Hagar, and she conceived. In 1932 B.C., Ishmael or Ismail was born, when Abram was eighty-six years old.) Later, Sarai despised Hagar, and mistreated her; so she fled from Sarai. And an angel of the Lord appeared unto her, near a spring in the desert, the spring that was beside the road to Shur, and said: Hagar, Sarai's handmaid, where have thou come from and where goeth thou? She said; I am running away from my mistress Sarai. Then the angel of the Lord said unto her: I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude. Behold, thou art with child, and shall bear a son and shalt call his name Ishmael, because the Lord hath heard thine affliction. Thy seed will be a wild man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him; and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren; and he shall dwell in the midst of them, and they shall dwell in the midst of him. And Hagar called the name of the angel of the Lord "the God that sees me," for she said; Have I indeed looked upon Him that seeth me? Have I indeed beheld the countenance of the one that watches over me, in the manner of the angels from the presence of the Lord? And she called the name of the place, where the well was, Beer-lahai-roi, which was between Kadesh and Bered. And it came to pass that Hagar bore Abram a son, when he was eighty-six years old; and Abram called his name Ishmael. When Abram was ninety-nine years old, the Lord appeared to him and said: I am the Almighty God; walk before me and be made perfect; and I will make my covenant between me and you; and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face and the Son of God talked with him, saying: Behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations; neither shalt thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shalt be Abraham, for a father of many nations I have made thee. And I will make thee exceedingly fruitful, and I will make nations of thee; and kings shall come out of thee; and I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy offspring after thee; in their generations, an everlasting covenant to be a God to thee and to thy offspring after thee. And I will give to thee and thine offspring the land wherein thou art a stranger; all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God. And God said to Abraham: Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou and thine offspring after thee, in their generations. This is my covenant: Every male child among you shall be circumcised; and ye shalt circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a token of the covenant between me and you that all children of the covenant must be circumcised by the time they are eight days old, from now on and forever. He that is born in your house, or bought with money, which is not of your offspring; and the uncircumcised male or child whose flesh of their foreskin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from my people. He hath broken my covenant. And God said to Abraham: As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall be her name; and I will bless her, and give thee a son also of her; and she shall be a mother of nations, kings of people shall be of her. And Abraham fell upon his face and laughed in his heart, saying:

Shall a child be born to him who is a hundred years old; and shall Sarah bear a child at the age of ninety? And Abraham said to God, if only Ishmael might live under Thy blessing; and God said: Sarah thy wife shall indeed bear a son, and thou shalt call his name Isaac; and I will establish my everlasting covenant with him and his offspring after him. And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee. Behold, I have blessed him; and will make him fruitful, and multiply him exceedingly; he will be the father of twelve rulers and I will make him a great nation; but my covenant I will establish with Isaac, whom Sarah shall bear to thee, by this time next year. When the Lord had finished speaking with Abraham, He went up from him, and Abraham took Ishmael and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with money, every male in his household, and circumcised them, as the Lord commanded him. On the very same day, Abraham, who was ninety-nine, and Ishmael, who was thirteen years old, were circumcised in the flesh of their foreskins.

Three angels of the Lord appeared to Abraham in the plains of Mamre, while he was sitting at the entrance to his tent, in the heat of the day. Abraham looked up and saw that three men stood by him. When he saw them, he ran to meet them; and bowed himself toward the ground, and said: My lords, if I have found favor in thy sight, do not pass your servant by, let a little water be fetched, then ye may all wash your feet and rest under the shade of the tree. Let me fetch you something to eat; so that ye may be refreshed, and then go on your way, now that you have come to thy servant. And they answered: So do as thou saith. And Abraham hurried into Sarah's tent, and said: Make ready quickly three seahs (about twenty quarts) of fine flour and bake some bread, and Abraham ran to the herd and picked a choice calf, tender and good, and gave it to a servant, who hurried to prepare it. He then brought some curd (butter) and milk and the calf that had been prepared, and set them before the three men; and Abraham stood by them under the tree, while they ate. And they said unto him: Where is Sarah thy wife, and he said: There in the tent; and the Lord said: I will certainly return to thee about the time of birth; and thy wife Sarah will have a son. And Sarah heard it at the door of her tent, which was behind him. Now Abraham and Sarah were old and well-stricken in age. Sarah was past the age of child-bearing. So Sarah laughed to herself, as she thought: After I am worn out and my husband is old, will I now have this pleasure? And the Lord said to Abraham: Why did Sarah laugh, saying, will I really have a child now that I am old? Is anything too hard for the Lord? I will return to thee at the appointed time of birth, and Sarah will have a son. Sarah was afraid, so she lied and said: I did not laugh. And He said: Nay, but you did laugh. And the men got up to leave, and they looked toward Sodom, as Abraham walked along with them, to see them on their way.

And the Lord said: Shall I hide from Abraham that which I do, seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and a mighty nation; and all the nations of the world shall be blessed in him? For I know him that he will command his children, and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord by doing that which is just and right; so that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which was promised unto him. And the Lord said: Because the outcry of Sodom and Gomorrah is so great, and their sins are so grievous, I will go down now and see if what they have done is as bad as the outcry that has reached me; if not I will know. Then the men turned away, toward Sodom, but Abraham remained standing in front of the Lord; then Abraham approached Him and said: Will you sweep away the righteous with the wicked? If by chance there be fifty righteous people in the city, will you destroy and not spare the place, for the sake of fifty righteous people in it? And the Lord said: If I find fifty righteous people in the city of Sodom, I will spare the entire city for their sake. Then Abraham spoke up again, saying: Now that I have taken upon myself to speak to the Lord, though I am but dust and ashes, if by chance there shall lack five of the fifty righteous, will you destroy all the city for lack of five? And the Lord said: If I find there forty-five people, I will not destroy it. And finally Abraham said: May the Lord be not angry, but let me speak just once more, what if only ten can be found there? The Lord answered: I will not destroy it for the sake of ten; and as soon as His communion with Abraham ended, the Lord and the angels returned their way, and Abraham returned to his tent. Two angels arrived at Sodom in the evening, and Lot was sitting in the gateway of the city. When he saw them, he got up to meet them, and bowed down with his face toward the ground and said: My lords, turn in, I pray, into your servant's house and tarry all night, and wash your feet, then go on your way early in the morning, and they said: Nay, but we will spend the night in the street (square). But Lot insisted so strongly that they did go with him, and entered his house, and he prepared them a feast, made unleavened bread, and they did eat. But before they had gone to bed, men from every part of the city of Sodom, both young and old, surrounded the house; and called to Lot, saying: Where are the men who came to you tonight? Bring them out to us, so that we may know them; and Lot went outside to meet them; and shut the door behind him, and said: No, my friends. Don't do this wicked thing. Look, I have two daughters who have never known a man. Let me bring them out to you, and you may do to them that which is good in your eyes; but do nothing to these men, for they have come under my roof. And they replied: Get out of our way, and said: This fellow came here as an alien, and now he wants to play the judge. Now we will deal with thee worse than with them. And they pressed sore upon Lot, and came near to break the door. But the angels reached out, pulled Lot back into the house, and shut the door. Then they struck the men with blindness who were at the door of the house, both big and small, so they could not find the door. Then the angels said to Lot: Dost thou have anyone else here, sons-in-law, sons or daughters, or anyone else belonging to thee in the city? Get them out of here, because we are going to destroy this place. The outcry to the Lord against its people is so great that He hath sent us to destroy it. So Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law who were married to his other daughters and said: Hurry and get out of this place, for the Lord is about to destroy the city. But his sons-in-law thought he was joking. After the daybreak the angels hurried to Lot, saying: Get yourselves up; take thy wife and two daughters that are here, or you will be consumed in the iniquity of the city. And when Lot hesitated, the men grasped his hands; and the hands of his wife and two daughters and led them safely out of the city, for the Lord was merciful to them. As soon as they had brought them out, one of the angels said: Flee for your lives, don't look behind you. Don't stop anywhere in the plain. Flee to the mountains, or you will be consumed. But Lot said to them: No Lord, please. Your servant has found favor in your eyes, and you have shown great kindness to me by sparing my life, but I cannot flee to the mountains; this disaster will overtake me and I will die. Behold, here is a town near enough to run to; and it is small. Let me flee to it; it is very small, isn't it? Then my life will be spared. And the angels said unto him: Very well, I will not overthrow the town thou speaketh of. But flee thither quickly, because I cannot do anything until you reach it. (It is for this reason the town was named Zoar.) By the time Lot reached Zoar, the sun had risen over the land; then the Lord rained down burning sulfur on Sodom and Gomorrah, from the Lord out of the heaven. Thus He overthrew these cities and all the plain and the inhabitants of the cities and the vegetation; but Lot's wife looked back, and she became a pillar of salt.

Early next morning Abraham got up and returned to the place where he stood before the Lord, and looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and saw dense smoke rising from the land, as the smoke of a furnace. And it came to pass that Lot and his two daughters left Zoar, for Lot was afraid to live there, and settled in the mountains, and lived in a cave. One day the older daughter said to the younger: Our father is old, and there is not one man around to come into us, as is the custom all over the earth. Come, let us make our father drink wine, then we will lie with him, so that we may preserve the family line of our father. And they made their father drink wine. And the older daughter went in and lay with him; but he was not aware of it when she lay down or when she got up. The next day the older said to the younger: See I lay last night with my father; let us make him drink wine also tonight, and you go in and lie with him, that we may preserve the family line of our father. So they made their father drink wine again that night, and the younger daughter went in and lay with him. But he was not aware of it, when she lay down or when she got up. Thus, both daughters of Lot became pregnant by him. And the older daughter had a son, and she named him Moab, who is the father of the Moabites; and the younger also had a son, and she named him Ben-Ammi, who is the father of the Ammonites. Abraham now moved on into the region of Negeb (Negev), to the south, between Kadesh and Shur. During his stay at Gerar, Abraham said of Sarah his wife, that she was his sister; and Abimelech, king of Gerar, sent for Sarah and kept her, but God came to Abimelech in a dream one night, and said: Know that you are but a dead man, for the woman you have kept is a married woman. Abimelech, who had not touched her, said: Lord, will Thou also destroy a righteous nation? Did the man not say to me that she was his sister; and the woman herself said that he was her brother. I have done this in the integrity of my heart and the innocency of my hands. Then God said to him in the dream: Yea, I know that thou hath done this in the integrity of thine heart, for I also withheld thee from sinning against me; therefore I suffered thee not (to be able) to touch her. Now therefore restore the man's wife, for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee; and thou shalt live; and if thou do not restore her, know that thou shall surely die, thou and all thine. Abimelech arose early next morning and summoned all his officials, and told them all these things, which made them quite afraid. Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said to him: What hast thou done to us? In what manner have I offended thee, that thou hast brought upon me and my kingdom a great sin? Thou hast done things unto me which should not have been done. And when Abimelech asked Abraham why he did this, Abraham replied: Because I thought surely the fear of God is not in this place, and they will kill me for my wife's sake; and yet indeed, she is my sister, for she is the daughter of my father, but not of my mother, and she became my wife. And when God caused me to wander from my father's house, I said to her: It shall be thy kindness that thou shew toward me, if at every place we come to, say of me, he is my brother. Then, Abimelech took sheep, oxen, men servants and women servants, and gave them to Abraham, and returned Sarah his wife. And Abimelech said: Know that my land is before thee. Live wherever it pleases thee; and to Sarah he said: Know that I have given thy brother a thousand shekels of silver. He is to thee and to all who are with you, and to others a covering of the eyes. Thus she was reproved. And Abraham prayed to God, and God healed Abimelech, and he was able to have children through his wife and maidservants.

And it came to pass that Sarah did conceive and bare Abraham a son in his old age, when he was one hundred years old, in 1918 B.C. (Ishmael was now fourteen years old), at the set time God had promised him. Abraham named his son Isaac, and circumcised him when he was eight days old, as God had commanded him. Abraham was an hundred years old when his son Isaac was born, and Sarah said: God hath brought me laughter, and everyone who hears about it will laugh with me, and added: Who would have said to Abraham that Sarah would nurse children. Yet I have borne him a son in his old age. The child grew; and on the day he was weaned, Abraham held a great feast. But Sarah saw that the son whom Hagar the Egyptian had borne to Abraham was mocking Isaac. So she told Abraham: Cast out this bondwoman and her son; for the son of this bondwoman shall not share the inheritance with my son Isaac. The matter was very grievous in Abraham's sight; because it concerned his firstborn son. But God said to Abraham: Let the matter concerning the bondwoman and the lad not be grievous in thy sight. Listen to whatever Sarah has told thee, because in Isaac shall thine offspring be called; and also of the son of the bondwoman will I make a nation, because he is thine offspring. Early the next morning Abraham got up, and took some food and a skin (bottle) of water, and gave them to Hagar, putting them on her shoulder, and sent her away along with his son Ishmael; and they left, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba. When the water in the skin was all gone, she left the boy lying under one of the bushes; and she went off a good distance, about a bow shot away, and sat herself down, facing the opposite direction, for she could not bear the hurt of seeing the lad die of thirst. And she began to sob. God heard the voice of the boy, and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her; What is the matter, Hagar? Fear not, for God has heard the voice of the lad where he is. Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him by the hand, for I will make him a great nation. And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and went and filled the skin with water, and gave the boy drink. God was with the boy, and he grew and lived in the wilderness of Paran, and became an archer; and his mother got him a wife from the land of Egypt.

Now, it came to pass that Abimelech and Phicol, the chief captain of his army, said to Abraham, God is with thee in all that thou doeth; and Abimelech said: Now therefore swear to me here by God that thou wilt not deal falsely with me nor with my son, and his descendants, but to reciprocate my kindness to me and to the land in which thou hast stayed. And Abraham said: I will swear it. Then Abraham complained to Abimelech concerning a well of water which Abimelech's officers had violently taken away. But Abimelech said: I don't know who hath done this. Thou did not tell me nor had I heard of it, until today. So Abraham brought sheep and oxen, and gave them to Abimelech, and the two men made a treaty. Abraham, however, set apart seven ewe lambs from the flock; and Abimelech asked him: What is the meaning of these seven ewe lambs thou hast set apart by themselves? Abraham replied: Your acceptance of these seven lambs from my hand shall be a witness that I have digged this well. So Abraham called that place Beer-sheba, because the two men swore an oath there. After they had made the treaty at Beer-sheba, Abimelech and Phicol returned to the land of the Philistines. Abraham planted a tamarisk tree at Beer-sheba and called upon the name of the Lord, the Eternal God. He then moved to the land of the Philistines, and dwelt there for a long time.

Some time later God did prove (test) Abraham, saying: Take now thy son, thy only son Isaac whom thou loveth, and go to the land of Moriah; and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains, which will be shown to thee. Early the next morning Abraham got up and saddled his donkey, and took with him Isaac and two of his servants, to cut the wood for the burnt offering; then gathered up and set out to the place about which God had told him. On the third day of their journey, Abraham looked up and beheld the place at a distance, and said to his servants: Stay here with the donkey, while I and the lad go over and worship, and we will come back to you. Abraham took the wood for the burnt offering, and put it on Isaac his son to carry; and he himself carried the fire and the knife. As both of them walked on together, Isaac spoke up, and said to his father: My father. And Abraham replied: Here am I, my son; and the lad said: The fire and the wood are here, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering? Abraham replied: My son, God will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt offering; and the two of them walked on together. When they reached the place of which God had told him, Abraham built an altar there, and arranged the wood on it, and bound his son Isaac, and laid him on the altar, on top of the wood. As Abraham reached out his hand and took the knife to slay his son, the angel of the Lord called to him out of heaven, and said: Abraham, Abraham; and he replied: Here am I. And the angel said: Do not lay thine hand upon the lad, nor do anything to him; for now I know that thou obeyst God, seeing that thou hast not withheld thy son, thy only son from me. And Abraham looked up and saw behind him a ram, caught in a thicket by his horns. He went over and took the ram, and offered him up for the burnt offering, instead of his son. And Abraham named the place "the Lord will provide" (Jehovah jireh); for on the mountain of the Lord, He did provide. The angel of the Lord out of heaven called to Abraham the second time and said I swear by myself that because thou hast done this and not withheld thy son, thy only son, I will surely bless thee; and make thy descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky and sand on the seashore, and thine offspring shall rule over their enemies; and through thy offspring all nations on earth shall be blessed, because thou hast obeyed me. Then Abraham returned to his servants, and they got up and went together to Beer-sheba.

Later on, it was told to Abraham that Milcah, Lot's sister, wife of Abraham's brother Nahor, had borne him eight sons: Huz, Buz, Kemuel, Chesed, Hazo, Pildash, Jidlaph, and Bethuel (father of Rebekah). And Nahor's concubine Reumah bore him four sons: Tebah, Gaham, Thahash, and Maachah. And it came to pass that Sarah died at Kiriath-arba (Hebron), in the land of Canaan, at the age of one hundred and twenty-seven years; and Abraham went there to mourn and weep for her; and stood up beside his dead wife, and spoke to the sons of Heth, saying: I am a stranger and a visitor among you. Sell me some property as a burial site here, so that I can bury my dead out of my sight. And the children of Heth replied: Sir, listen to us; you are mighty rulers among us; bury your dead at the choicest of our tombs (sepulchres); none of us shall withhold from you his tomb. Then Abraham bowed himself to the children of Heth, and addressed them, saying: If you are willing to let me bury my dead, then listen to me and mediate with Ephron the son of Zohar on my behalf, so that he will sell me the cave of Machpelah at the end of his field, which belongs to him, at the full price, as a burial site among you. And Ephron the Hittite, who lived among the children of Heth, answered Abraham, in the presence of the children of Heth and all others that passed through the gate of his city, saying: No sir, listen to me, I give you the field and the cave therein in the presence of the sons of my people; I give it to you, bury your dead. And Abraham bowed down before the people, and spoke to Ephron in the presence of everyone there, saying: But if you will give it, I beg of you to listen to me. I will give you money for the field and take it, and I will bury my dead. And Ephron answered Abraham: Sir, listen to me; the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver, what is that between you and me; bury the dead. And Abraham listened to Ephron, and weighed to him four hundred shekels of silver, current money among the merchants. Thus, Ephron's field in Machpelah, near Mamre, including the cave therein, and all the trees within the borders of the field was deeded to Abraham as his property, in the presence of the children of Heth and everyone who passed through the gate of the city. After this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, near Mamre, at Hebron, in the land of Canaan.

Abraham was now old and well-stricken in age, and the Lord blessed him in all things. One day Abraham asked the oldest servant and head steward of his household, Eliezer, to put his hand under his thigh, and made him swear by the Lord, the God of the heaven and the earth that he would not get a wife for Abraham's son Isaac from the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom he lived; but to go to Abraham's country, Mesopotamia, to his relatives, and find a wife for his son. The servant replied: If perchance, the woman is unwilling to come back with me to this country, must I take your son back to the country from where you came? Abraham answered: Be sure you do not take my son back there; the Lord God of heaven who brought me here from my father's house, and from the land of my relatives, spoke to me and swore to me, saying: To thine offspring I will give this land. He will send his angels before thee, so that thou shall succeed in bringing the wife for my son from there. And if the woman is unwilling to come with thee here, then thou shalt be released from this oath of mine; only do not take my son there again. And the servant kept is hand under the thigh of Abraham his master; and swore an oath to him concerning this matter. The servant then took ten of his master's camels and all the goods he needed and left for Mesopotamia (Aram, Nahrain); then from there to the town of Nahor. Here he made his camels to kneel down near a well of water in the outskirts of town. It was evening, the time when women go out to draw water. Then Eliezer prayed in his heart, O Lord God of my master Abraham, I pray thee send me good luck and show kindness to my master Abraham; as I stand here by the well, and the daughters of the neighborhood come out to draw water, may it be that the maiden to whom I shall say: Let down your pitcher, I beg of you, that I may have a drink, she shall say: Drink, and I will give drink to your camels also. Let her be the one whom Thou hast chosen for Thy servant Isaac. Thereby I would know that Thou hast shown kindness to my master. Behold, it happened that before he had finished praying in his heart, Rebekah, daughter of Bethuel, son of Milcah, who was the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, came out with her pitcher upon her shoulder; and the maiden was quite attractive in appearance and a virgin who had known no man. She went down to the well, and filled her pitcher and was coming back. Eliezer ran to meet her, and said: Let me I beg of thee, drink a little water from thy pitcher, and she replied: Drink sir, and she hurried and let down her pitcher upon her hand and poured out water for him to drink, and she said: I will draw water for your camels also, until they are satisfied. And she emptied her pitcher into a trough, and drew enough water for all his camels. Eliezer, marvelling at her, remained calm, and wondered whether the Lord had made his journey a successful one or not. And it was when the camels were finished drinking that the man took out a gold nose ring of half a shekel weight, and two gold bracelets of ten shekels weight for her hands, and asked: Whose daughter art thou, tell me I beg of thee? Is there room in thy father's house to lodge overnight? And the maiden answered: I am the daughter of Bethuel, the son Milcah bore to Nahor, and she added, we have plenty of straw and provender (fodder), and room to stay overnight; and the man bowed down his head and worshiped the Lord and said: Blessed be the Lord God of my master Abraham, who hath not forsaken His mercy and kindness upon my master. Being on my journey the Lord hath led me to the house of my master's relatives; and the maiden ran and told her mother's household about the things that happened; and Rebekah's brother Laban heard the words of his sister about the man, and saw the nose ring and the bracelet on his sister's hand. He ran out to meet the man, and found him standing with the camels near the well, and yelled: Come in, you blessed of the Lord. Why art thou standing outside, for I have prepared the house for the camels. And the man came into the house; the camels were unloaded, straw and provender was brought for them, and water for Eliezer and his men to wash their feet. Then food was set before them; but the man said: I will not eat, until I have told the purpose of my errand. And Laban said: Then speak on. So the man told that he was Abraham's servant and that the Lord hath blessed his master abundantly, and he has become wealthy. The Lord hath given him sheep and cattle, silver and gold, men and maid servants, camels and donkeys; and Sarah his master's wife hath borne him a son when she was very old, and to Abraham's son belongs all that he hath. My master made me swear an oath, saying: Thou must not get a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites in whose land I live; but go to my father's family and to my own clan and get a wife for my son. And when I asked my master: What if by chance the woman is unwilling to come with me, my master replied: The Lord before whom I walk will send his angel with thee; and make thy journey a success; and shall find a wife for my son from my own clan of my father's family; but when thou reacheth the land of my clan, and if thou find not one among them, then thou shalt be released from this oath. And when I came this day unto the well, and prayed to the Lord God of my master Abraham, saying; O Lord God of my master Abraham, if now Thou do prosper my way, it shall be that when a virgin cometh to draw water, and I say unto her: Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink; and if she says to me: Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels, let the same be the woman whom the Lord hath appointed for my master's son. And before I had done praying, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder, and went down to the well, and drew water, and I said unto her: Let me drink I pray thee; and she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder and said: Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also. So

I drank, and she made the camels drink also. And I asked her, whose daughter art thou? And she said: I am the daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him. Then, I put the nose ring upon her face, and bracelets upon her hands; and I bowed down my head, and worshiped the Lord, and blessed the Lord God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take the daughter of my master's brother unto his son. And now if ye will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me if this thing is a good or a bad omen. Then Laban and Bethuel answered: The thing proceedeth from the Lord; we cannot speak unto thee bad or good. Behold, Rebekah is before thee. Take her, and go, and let her be wife of thy master's son, as the Lord hath spoken. And when Eliezer heard their words, he worshiped the Lord, bowing himself to the ground; and he brought forth jewels of silver and gold, raiment, and precious things; and gave them to Rebekah, and to her brother and mother. And they all sat down to eat and drink, and they tarried all night. Eliezer and his men rose up in the morning, and Eliezer said unto the brother and mother of Rebekah: Now, I pray, send me away unto my master; and they replied: Let the damsel abide with us a few days longer, at least ten, after that she may go. And he said unto them: Hinder me not, I pray, seeing the Lord hath prospered my way; send me away that I may return to my master. So they said, we will call the damsel, and inquire at her mouth; and they called Rebekah, and asked: Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go. Then the kinsfolk blessed Rebekah, saying: Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy seed possess the gate of those that hate them. And Rebekah arose to take leave of her damsels; and she and her nurse rode upon the camels, and departed to the south country, by the well Lahai-roi, with Eliezer and his men.

And it came to pass that Abraham took another wife, Keturah, in his old age, after Sarah died at the age of one hundred and twenty-seven years; and Keturah bare him six sons: Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. Now, Abraham received all things by the spirit of revelation and prophecy, and by obedience to the commandments of the Most High God; and entered the celestial glory and exaltation to sit upon his eternal throne; and received the promise of the Lord concerning his seed, that the fruit of his loins should continue in the world and out of the world, as innumerable as stars in the sky and sand upon the seashore. Therefore, those who do the works of Abraham, enter into the same glory and exaltation, and are saved. According to the law, Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife; and from Hagar sprang a multitude of people, through Ishmael. Thus, Abraham was under no condemnation, for he was obedient to the commandments and was the elect of God. Abraham was commanded to offer up his son Isaac, although it was written that thou shalt not kill. And Abraham obeyed the Lord, knowing that the Lord tries, tests, and even chastises those whom He loveth; and not only Isaac was unharmed, but Abraham was judged faithful and righteous. Abraham's concubines also bore him children, because they were given to him; he neither sought them nor lusted after them;

therefore it was counted as a righteous act. Because the covenant of celestial marriage is a prerequisite for the celestial glory, those who do not abide in this law are damned. Those who receive the blessings of the Lord, must abide the law upon which the blessings were predicated. The conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations or expectations, that are not made and entered into, and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, by the anointed one of the Lord, who is authorized to perform the ordinance, both for time and for eternity, are not valid and end when men are dead. And there is never but one on the earth at one time, upon whom this power and keys of the Priesthood are conferred. No man can come unto the Father but by the Son or by His Word; therefore, everything that is in the world, whether it be ordained by men, thrones, principalities, powers or things of name, that are not by the Lord or His Word, shall be thrown down, shaken and destroyed, after men are dead. And, for the House of the Lord is a house of order, not of confusion, He will not accept of an offering which is not made in His name, nor will He receive that which He hath not appointed. Therefore, if a man marries a wife in the world, not by the Lord or His Word, their covenant of marriage is not valid when they are dead, or when they are out of the world. And when they are out of the world, they are not bound by any law; they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but become appointed angels in heaven, the ministering servants of the Lord, to minister unto those who are worthy of a far more and exceeding weight of eternal glory. For these angels are those who did not abide in the celestial law, they cannot be enlarged, but remain separately and singly, without exaltation, in their saved condition, to all eternity; they cannot become gods, but remain angels of the Lord forever and ever.

Now, Abraham the high priest of the Holy Order, was also a very wealthy man, with many flocks and herds, silver and gold, and several hundred members of his household, including three hundred and eighteen trained household servants. He was known to the kings of Canaan as a prophet of God and a powerful chieftain. Yet at no time did Abraham allow the temporal affairs to take priority over the mission and the callings of the Lord; he was always in tune with enticings of the Holy Spirit. He communed with the Most High God through visions and dreams, and personal visitations from His ministering angels. At many places Abraham built altars and offered sacrifices to the Lord his God; and once he himself was about to be sacrificed by the Egyptian priest of Elkenah in the land of Chaldees. Abraham was honored and revered by the Pharaoh (Sesostris) of Egypt, and was extended the honor to sit upon the throne of Egypt and give audience to the princes and princesses of Egypt, and to bless them. As the head of his household, the high priest and patriarch Abraham allowed no ungodliness or idolatry; all his sons, kinsfolk, and servants were circumcised, and were bound by the law of the true and living God. Abraham received the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God under the hand of Melchizedek, the prince of peace, truth, and righteousness; and was blessed by him. Abraham was the tenth generation from Noah, through Shem; and was born three hundred and fifty-two years after the Deluge. Abraham's father Terah was seventy years old when his first son was born; Abraham was born sixty years later, when Terah was one hundred and thirty years old.

Although Ishmael was the firstborn of Abraham, the Holy Priesthood was not conferred upon him, for both Ishmael and Hagar his mother were sent away one early morning by Abraham, with some bread (food) and a bottle (skin) of water. It was the will of God that Isaac be the heir to His promise, not Ishmael, for the Lord had spoken these words unto Abraham:

> Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac. And I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.
>
> And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation.
>
> But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, which Sarah shall bear unto thee at the set time next year.

In this manner, Isaac was blessed with the spiritual blessings of the Holy Priesthood, and Ishmael was blessed with the temporal blessings of the world (which was the extension of the temporal or worldly blessings which the Lord God bestowed upon the Egyptians, when He first established His kingdom upon the earth, for the benefit of man). But, truly Isaac was chosen before he was born; and he was foreordained.

Finally at the age of one hundred and seventy-five years, Abraham, the high priest of the Holy Order, died in 1843 B.C., and was buried by his sons Isaac and Ishmael, in the cave of Machpelah.

Also during the Second Epoch (2478 B.C. to 1843 B.C.), the Lord confounded the language at the city of Babel, and scattered the people throughout the face of the earth. This was done during the time when Nimrod and his people built the Tower of Babel (the great tower) in rebellion to the authority and supremacy of the Father and the Son. The Father was the Elohim (Allah, in Arabic; singular form of Elohim), the Father of all the gods in the heavens and on the earth. And the son was Jesus Christ, the anointed Son of God. Christ was the supreme brother of all the gods in the heavens and on the earth. He was the Father of all who believed on His name, and the Lord of everyone and everything in the heavens and on the earth. No one could go to the Father, but through the Son, Jesus Christ. Although the Father may adopt a son from among the children of the world, the adopted son could in nowise enter the kingdom of God without Jesus Christ, the Messiah; the One who held the keys of raising the dead; even those who had died the spiritual death of the natural man Adam could be blessed to live under the grace of Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of the Living and Eternal God, the Father.

The city of Babel (Bab meaning gate, and El meaning God; or Gate of God) was located along the Euphrates on the plains of Shinar, approximately 540 miles east of Jerusalem and about fifty miles south of modern Baghdad. The land of lower Mesopotamia, the valley through which the rivers Tigris and Euphrates flow, is now called Iraq. Later known as Babylon, the capital city of the Babylonian empire, extended about thirty miles west of the Euphrates, joining the Arabian Desert. In the north of the city, the two rivers approached within twenty-five miles of each other. The plain between the two rivers extended about 250 miles to the south, and about 100 miles at its widest point. The alluvial soil deposits from the flooding of the Tigris and Euphrates made the land quite fertile. The Babylonians constructed extensive canals for irrigation and drainage; and produced bumper crops of barley, corn, dates, pomegranates, figs and other farm produce. Their highly developed knowledge of agriculture yielded wheat two- to three-hundredfold in semi-annual harvests. Their principal building material consisted of clay bricks mortared with bitumen. Bitumen was brought on the River Euphrates on barges, from natural deposits at Hit, about 140 miles northwest of the city of Babel. Nimrod the mighty hunter was the founder of the city. Nimrod was one of the six sons of Cush, son of Ham, son of Noah. The names of his six brothers were Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Ramah, and Sabtecha. Babylon was the capital of one of the first political empires which came into existence after the great Flood of c.2370 B.C. As the Babylonian empire grew under the tyrannical rule of Nimrod, Babylon (Babel) became the world center of spiritual and temporal learnings. People of all races dwelt in the city. Commerce, industry, construction, and agriculture reached its zenith; and the Holy Priesthood of God also attained full heights, for the holy men did possess the knowledge of the Father and the Son; and the degrees of glory in the Kingdom of God. But, gradually the Holy Priesthood became corrupt under the pressures of the heathen forces. By the time of Peleg (c.2269 B.C. to 2030 B.C.), son of Eber (Heber), son of Shelah, son of Arpachshad, son of Shem (Melchizedek), son of Noah, the Holy Priesthood became quite corrupt. They fell into idolatry and worship of false gods of wood, clay, metal and stone, and celestial bodies; and became carnal, sensual, devilish, and wicked. Many began to die spiritually, and were finally cut off from the presence of the Lord. Their celestial glory became manifest in the worship of the sun god Shamash (Shamus); their terrestrial glory became manifest in the worship of the moon god Sin; and Ishtar (Ashtoreth) became the goddess of the stars, the goddess of the natural man, the carnal, sensual, devilish and wicked man; and the gods of dung, filth, and lies, represented the glories of the outer darkness. During the Second Epoch, Babylon was known to be the spiritual and temporal center of the world; it was called the whole world in one place. The Babylonians were the fathers of astronomy and the study of heavenly bodies; as well as divination, sorcery, witchcraft, necromancy, secret combinations, and thousands of such abominations and evils.

Nimrod, the principal progenitor of the dark-complexioned branch of the human family, became an enemy of the Shemitic (Semitic) God, and openly rebelled against the Father and His Son; and craftily corrupted the Holy Priesthood through bribery, whoredoms, and the use of political power, to win them to his side. Nimrod was driven by the lust of power, vanities of the world, and the hatred and animosity toward his Creator, the Lord. He also desired to avenge himself of the Lord God, by reason that if the Lord would ever again bring another great Flood upon him and his followers, the tower too high for the waters of the flood to reach would protect them from destruction. Nimrod also did this to glorify himself, and to prove to the people that he was more powerful and mightier than the Lord God of Shem, the God of the Righteous.

And it came to pass that the wrath of God was kindled against the people of Babylon, for their wickedness and iniquities became fully ripe. So the Lord confounded the language of the people, and swore in His wrath that they should be scattered upon all the face of the earth. And according to the word of the Lord, people were scattered. It was during this time that Jared, a man of faith in the Lord, who was a descendant of Japheth (Yapheth), son of Noah, said unto his brother who was a large and mighty man, highly favored of the Lord, saying: Cry unto the Lord, that he may not confound us from understanding our words. And when the brother of Jared did cry unto the Lord, the Lord had compassion upon him, and did not confound the language of Jared and his brother. Then Jared asked his brother to cry again unto the Lord that He might not confound the language of their friends. So the brother of Jared did cry again unto the Lord; and the Lord had compassion upon their friends and their families, that their language was not confounded. Then Jared spoke again to his brother, saying: Go and inquire of the Lord if He may drive us out of the land (Babylon), and cry unto the Lord as to where we shall go. Who knoweth, if perchance the Lord may carry us forth into a land which is choice above all the lands on earth? And if so be, let us be faithful unto the Lord, that we may receive it for our inheritance. And when the brother of Jared did cry unto the Lord according to that which had been spoken by the mouth of Jared, the Lord did hear the brother of Jared, and had compassion upon him, and said: Go and gather together thy flocks, both male and female of every kind; and the seeds of the earth of every kind; and thy families and the families of Jared thy brother, and all your friends and their families. And when thou hast done this, thou shalt go at the head of them down unto the valley northward; and there will I meet thee, and go before thee into a land which is choice above all the lands of the earth. And there will I bless thee, and raise up unto me a great nation out of thy seed and thy brother's, and the seed of all those who shall go with thee. There shall be none greater upon all the face of the earth than the nation which I will raise up unto me. Thus I will do unto thee because ye have cried unto me a long time.

And it came to pass that Jared, his brother and all their families and friends went down into the valley of Nimrod, northward, with their flocks and belongings. They did carry with them snares (traps) to catch fowls of the air; swarms of honey bees and many kinds of seeds of fruits and vegetables; and built a vessel to carry the fish of the water. When they reached the valley of Nimrod, the Lord came down in a cloud, and spoke with the brother of Jared; but the brother of Jared saw Him not.

And the Lord stood in the cloud and gave directions as to which way they should travel, and commanded them to go forth into the part of the wilderness where no man had ever been. Altogether there were twenty-four souls (men), Jared, his brother, and twenty-two friends of theirs; plus their wives and children.

When they did arrive at the wilderness, they built barges in which they crossed many waters. The Lord was with them continually to guide the direction of their journey, for the Lord would not suffer that they should stop beyond the sea in the wilderness, but that they should move forward unto the land of promise; to the land choice above all other lands, which the Lord God had preserved for a righteous people. And when His wrath was kindled against the people who built the Tower of Babel, He had sworn unto the brother of Jared that whosoever should possess this land of promise from that time forward should serve the Lord, the true and only God; or they should be swept off in due time. For behold, this is a land which is choice above all other lands; and whosoever shall possess it shall serve God, or they shall be swept off when the fulness of His wrath shall come upon them. And the fulness of wrath cometh upon them when they are ripened in iniquity. And whosoever shall possess it shall be free from bondage, and from captivity, and from all other nations under heaven, if they will but serve the God of the land, who is Jesus Christ.

And it came to pass that Jared, his brother and all their companions arrived at the great sea which divideth the lands. Here they pitched their tents upon the seashore, and called the name of the place Moriancumer; and dwelt there for a period of four years. At the end of four years, the Lord visited the Jaredites, and spoke unto the brother of Jared from a cloud, for the space of three hours; and chastised him because he remembered not to call upon the name of the Lord. And the brother of Jared repented of the evil which he had done; and did call upon the name of the Lord in behalf of his brethren who were with him. And the Lord said unto him: I will forgive thee and thy brethren of their sins; but ye shall not sin any more, remembering that my spirit will not always strive with man. Wherefore if ye continue to sin, until your iniquities are ripened, ye shall be cut off from the presence of the Lord. And these are my judgements in regards to the land which I shall give you for your inheritance; for it shall be a land choice above all other lands. And the Lord said: Go to work and build after the manner of barges which ye have hitherto built. And the brother of Jared and all his brethren did go to work, and built barges according to the instructions of the Lord. They were small and very light, like unto the lightness of a fowl upon the water. These barges were built exceedingly tight, and could hold water like a dish; and the bottom and the sides were tight like a dish, and the ends were peaked. The top was also tight like a dish, and the door, when it was shut, was also tight like unto a dish. The length of the barge was the length of a tree.

And, after eight such vessels (barges) were constructed, the brother of Jared cried unto the Lord, saying: O Lord, I have performed the work which thou hast commanded me, and I have made the barges according to thy instructions. And behold, O Lord, in them there is no light; whither shall we steer? And also we shall perish, for in them we cannot breathe, save the air which is in them. And the Lord said unto the brother of Jared: Behold, thou shalt make a hole in the top, and also near the bottom; and when thou shalt suffer for air, thou shalt unstop (unplug) the hole and receive air. And if it be so that the water come in upon thee, behold, ye shall stop (plug) the hole, that ye may not perish in the flood. And the brother of Jared did so, according to the instruction of the Lord. Then, the brother of Jared cried again unto the Lord, saying: O Lord, behold I have done even as Thou hast commanded me; and I have prepared the vessels for my people, and behold there is no light in them. Wilt Thou, O Lord, suffer that we cross these great waters in darkness? And the Lord said unto the brother of Jared: What will ye that I should do that ye may have light in your vessels? For behold, ye cannot have windows, for they will be dashed in pieces; neither shall ye take fire with you, for ye shall not go by the light of fire. For behold, ye shall be as a whale in the midst of the sea; for the mountainous waves shall dash upon you. Nevertheless, I will bring you up again out of the depths of the sea; for the winds have gone forth out of my mouth, and also the rains and the floods have I sent forth. And behold, I prepare you against these things; for ye cannot cross this great deep, save I prepare you against the waves of the sea, and the winds which have gone forth, and the floods which shall come. Therefore what will ye that I should prepare that ye may have light when ye are swallowed up in the depths of the sea? Then, the brother of Jared went unto the mount, which they called Mount Shelem, because of its exceeding height, and did molten out of a rock sixteen small stones, white and clear, as transparent glass; and he carried them in his hands upon the top of the mount, and cried unto the Lord, saying: O Lord, Thou hast said that we must be encompassed about by the floods. Now behold, O Lord, and do not be angry with Thy servant because of his weakness before Thee; for we know that Thou art holy and dwellest in the heavens, and that we are unworthy before Thee. Because of the fall (of man), our natures have become evil continually; nevertheless, O Lord, Thou hast given us a commandment that we must call upon Thee; that from Thee we may receive according to our desires. Behold, O Lord, Thou hast smitten us because of our iniquity and hast driven us forth for these many years; nevertheless, Thou hast been merciful unto us. O Lord look upon me in pity, and turn away Thine anger from this Thy people, and suffer not that they shall go forth across the raging deep in darkness; but behold these stones which I have molten out of the rock. I know, O Lord, that Thou hast all power, and can do whatsoever Thou wilt for the benefit of man. Therefore touch these stones, O Lord, with Thy finger, and prepare them that they may shine forth in darkness in the vessels which we have built, that we may have light while we cross the sea. Behold, O Lord, Thou canst do this. We know that Thou art able to show forth great power, although it appears small unto the understanding of men. And when the brother of Jared made an end of saying these words, the Lord stretched forth His hand and touched the stones one by one with His finger. And the veil was taken off from the eyes of the brother of Jared, and he saw the finger of the Lord, and it was as the finger of a man, with flesh and blood. Then the brother of Jared fell down before the Lord, for he was struck with fear. And the Lord said unto him: Arise, why hast thou fallen? And he answered: I saw the finger of the Lord, and I feared lest He should smite me; for I knew not that the Lord had flesh and blood. And the Lord said unto him: Because of thy faith thou hast seen that I shall take upon me flesh and blood; and never has man come before me with such exceeding faith as thou hast. For were it not so, thou could not have seen my finger. Sawest thou more than this? And the brother of Jared answered: Nay, Lord, show Thyself unto me. And the Lord said unto him: Believest thou the words which I shall speak? And he answered: Yea, Lord I know that Thou speakest the truth, for Thou art a God of truth, and canst not lie. And when he had said these words, the Lord showed Himself unto him, and said: Because thou knowest these things, thou are redeemed from the fall and brought back into my presence. Therefore I show myself unto thee. Behold, I am He who was prepared from the foundation of the world to redeem my people. Behold, I am Jesus Christ. I am the Father of my children and the Son of the Almighty. In me shall all mankind have life eternal, even they who shall believe on my name; and they shall become my sons and daughters. Never have I shown myself unto man whom I have created, for never has man believed in me as thou hast. Seest thou that ye art created after mine own image? Yea, even all men were created in the beginning after mine own image. Behold, this body which thou seest is the body of my spirit; and man have I created after the body of my spirit; even as I appear unto thee to be in the spirit will I appear unto my people in the flesh.

And the Lord said unto the brother of Jared: Behold, thou shalt not suffer these things which ye have seen and heard to go forth unto the world, until the time cometh that I shall glorify my name in the flesh; wherefore, ye shall treasure up the things which ye have seen and heard, and show it to no man. And thou shalt write them and seal them up, that no one may interpret them; for thou shalt write them in a language which cannot be read. And behold, these two stones (Urim and Thummim) will I give unto thee, and thou shalt seal them up with that which thou shalt write. Behold, the language in which thou shalt write, I have confounded; wherefore I will cause in my own due time that these stones shall enable men to interprét the things which thou shalt write.

And when the Lord had spoken these words, He showed unto the brother of Jared all the inhabitants of the earth, who had been and all that would be; and He withheld them not from his sight, even unto the ends of the earth, for he believed in Jesus Christ. Then, the Lord commanded the brother of Jared to go down out of Mount Shelem, from the presence of the Lord, and write the things which he had seen. And the brother of Jared came down from the mount, and put the stones in the vessels (barges), one in each end; and behold, they did give light unto the vessels. And thus the Lord caused stones to shine in darkness, to give light unto men, women and children, that they might not cross the great waters in darkness.

And when they had prepared all manner of food to subsist upon the waters, and food for their flocks and herds and whatsoever beast or animal or fowl that they should carry, they got aboard their vessels (barges), and set forth into the sea; leaving themselves in the hand of the Lord their God. And the Lord God caused a furious wind to blow upon the face of the waters, towards the promised land. Thus they were tossed upon the waves of the sea before the wind. Many times during their voyage they were buried in the depths of the sea, because of the mountainous waves which broke upon them; and also the great and terrible tempests which were caused by the fierceness of the wind. And when they were buried in the deep there was no water that could drown them, for their vessels were built tight like unto a dish, as was the ark of Noah. And the wind never did cease to blow towards the promised land, while they were upon the waters. Thus they were driven forth before the wind; and no monster of the sea could break them, neither whale could mar them; and they did have light continually, whether the vessels were above the water or under the mountainous waves, buried in the deep. And when they were unable to breathe, being encompassed by water, and not being able to unplug the hole or open the door of the vessel, they did cry unto the Lord, and He did bring them forth again upon the top of the waters. And the brother of Jared did sing praises unto the Lord, and did thank the Lord all day long; and when the night came, they ceased not to praise the Lord.

The Jaredites were driven forth upon the waters; and they reached the promised land, the Americas, in three hundred and forty-four days. And when they set their feet upon the shores of the promised land, they bowed themselves down upon the face of the land, and did humble themselves before the Lord, and shed tears of joy before the Lord; for the Lord had been with them continually, and His tender mercies were felt by them. Soon they went forth upon the face of the land and began to till the earth.

Jared had four sons, Jacom, Gilgah, Mahah, and Orihah. The brother of Jared also had sons and daughters. And their twenty-two friends also had sons and daughters, prior to their arrival at the promised land. They were taught to walk humbly before the Lord, and they were also taught from on high. And it came to pass that they began to spread upon the face of the land, to multiply and to till the earth; and they waxed strong in the land, the Americas. And the brother of Jared began to be old, and saw that he must soon go down to the grave; wherefore he said unto Jared: Let us gather together our people that we may number them, that we may know what they will desire of us before we go down to our graves. Accordingly the people were gathered together. Now the number of the sons and daughters of the brother of Jared were twenty-two; and Jared had four sons and eight daughters.

And it came to pass that Jared and his brother did number their people; and asked them their desires before they went down to their graves. And the people said that they desired of them to anoint one of their sons to be king over them. Now, behold, this was grievous unto them. And the brother of Jared said unto them: Surely this thing leadeth into captivity. But Jared said unto his brother: Suffer them that they may have a king. So the brother of Jared said unto the people: Choose ye out from among our sons a king, even whom ye will. Therefore they chose the firstborn of the brother of Jared whose name was Pagag. But he refused, and would not be their king. And the people would that his father should constrain him, but his father would not; and commanded them that they should constrain no man to be their king. So they chose one by one all the brothers of Pagag, and they all refused. Neither did the sons of Jared desire to be king, except Orihah. And Orihah was anointed to be king over the people. As he began his reign, people began to prosper, and became exceedingly rich. And it came to pass that Jared died, and his brother also; and Orihah did walk humbly before the Lord and did remember how great things the Lord had done for his father; and also taught his people how great things the Lord had done for their fathers. The first king of the Jaredites, Orihah, did execute judgement upon the land in righteousness all his days, whose days were exceedingly many. And he begat twenty-three sons and eight daughters. He also begat Kib in his old age, who reigned in his stead. And Kib begat Corihor. And Corihor was thirty-two years old when he rebelled against his father, and went over and dwelt in the land of Nehor, and he begat sons and daughters, and they became exceedingly fair; wherefore Corihor drew away many people after him. And when he gathered together an army he came up unto the land of Moron, where the king dwelt, and took him captive; which brought to pass the saying of the brother of Jared that they would be brought into captivity.

Thus began the greatest nation on earth, in the Americas, which the Lord God had promised the brother of Jared in the city of Babel, saying: I will go before thee into the land which is choice above all the lands of the earth. And there I will bless thee, and raise up unto me a great nation out of thy seed and thy brother's, and the seed of all those who shall go with thee. There shall be none greater upon the face of the earth, than the nation which I will raise up unto me. And whosoever shall possess the land of promise (in the Americas), which the Lord hath preserved for the righteous, shall serve the Lord, the true and only God from that time forward. And if they serve the God of the land, even Jesus Christ, they shall be free from bondage and captivity, and from all other nations under heaven; but if they become wicked, they shall be swept off when their sins and iniquities are fully ripened.

So, it is recorded here that two noteworthy events took place during the Second Epoch, in terms of the dealings of the Lord. The seed of Abraham (also Isaac and Jacob) was promised as their inheritance, the land of Canaan, the land of milk and honey, in the Eastern Hemisphere; and the Jaredites and their seed were promised the land in the Western Hemisphere (in the Americas), which land was choice above all other lands on the earth. The Lord God of heaven and earth gave to the descendants of Shem (Melchizedek), son of Noah, the land of Canaan; and the descendants of Japheth (Yapheth) were brought to the Americas in their barges (vessels) to inherit their portion of the land of promise; while the descendants of Ham, for they were cursed by Noah, remained in Egypt, Babylonia and Africa, in scattered conditions.

(Illustration 4)
Patriarchal Line of Descent: Second Epoch
(from Shem to Abraham)

Thus, the Second Epoch of the Holy Priesthood of God, which began with Shem (Melchizedek) in 2478 B.C., ended with the death of Abraham in 1843 B.C.; and the Third Epoch begins with the birth of Isaac, son of Abraham, in 1918 B.C., and ends in 1473 B.C., with the death of Moses.

CHAPTER THREE

The Third Epoch: from Isaac to Moses (c.1918 B.C. - c.1473 B.C.)

Isaac (Itsāhq), the child of promise and the heir of the Holy Melchizedek Priesthood, was a peace-loving shepherd, imbued with love of righteousness, truth, godliness, and affection toward his family.

Both of his parents were very old when Isaac was born. Abraham was an hundred years old, and Sarah was ninety. He was circumcised when he was eight days old, and was weaned between the fourth and fifth year of his age. And on the day Isaac was weaned, Abraham made a great feast; but Ishmael (Ismail), son of Abraham by Hagar (Hajirah) the Egyptian, noticing that both Abraham and Sarah were rejoicing in the birth of Isaac, became exceedingly jealous, laughed in derision, and mistreated his younger brother Isaac, who was fourteen years younger. After this incident, both Hagar and Ishmael were sent away by Abraham; and Isaac became the rightful heir of the blessings of the firstborn and the holy priesthood of God.

And it came to pass that c.1893 B.C., when Isaac was twenty-five years old, God said to Abraham: Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee. After a three-day journey they arrived at the place. Isaac carried the wood and Abraham carried the fire and the slaughtering knife to the place which was selected by God. And Isaac asked his father: the fire and wood I see, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering? And Abraham replied: My son, God will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt offering.

After arriving at the place, Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood. And as Abraham took the knife to slay his son, the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven and said: Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him; for now I know that thou obeyeth the Lord, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thy only son from me. And a ram was provided for the burnt offering, which was found caught by his horn in a nearby thicket. Thus by faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac. And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven, the second time, and said: By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done that which was asked of thee, I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the seashore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. And in thy seed all nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice. Thus, Isaac was delivered by the grace of God, in the same manner as Abraham from the hands of the priest of Elkenah, the priest of Pharaoh.

Sarah, Abraham's wife, was an hundred and twenty-seven years old when she died in Hebron (Kirjath-arba), in the land of Canaan. And Abraham was well-stricken also in age, and he said to his eldest servant of the house, who ruled over all that he had, to put his hand under the thigh of Abraham, and made him swear by the Lord, the God of heaven and earth, that he shall not find a wife for Isaac from among the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom he dwelt; but shalt go to the country of Abraham and his kindred, and find a wife from his relatives in Mesopotamia, who also worshiped Jehovah (יְהוָה), the Lord God of Abraham. And it came to pass that Isaac's cousin Rebekah proved to be God's choice; and she left her relatives and family in c.1878 B.C., and accompanied Eliezer, the chief steward of Abraham's household, with his caravan back to the land of Negeb, near Beer-Lahai-roi, where Isaac was living at the time. And upon reaching their destination, Rebekah put on a headcloth, as Isaac approached to welcome them. And after Abraham's servant Eliezer had recounted all the events of his journey, relating how the Lord had directed the choice, Isaac brought Rebekah into the tent of his mother, who had died three years earlier. And Isaac loved Rebekah dearly, and found comfort in his wife after the loss of his mother. Isaac was forty years old when the marriage took place, but Rebekah continued to remain barren for nearly twenty years, during which time Isaac persistently prayed to be blessed with seed. When Isaac was sixty years old, the couple was blessed with twin sons, Esau and Jacob.

During her pregnancy, she was so distressed as the twins struggled in her womb, that Rebekah inquired of the Lord, and the Lord revealed to her that two nations are in thy womb, and two manners of people shall be separated from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other, and the older shall serve the younger. Behold, when the day of the delivery came, there were twins in her womb. And the first came out red, all over like a hairy garment, so they called him Esau; then came his brother Jacob, holding on to Esau's heel, and his name was called Jacob. And the boys grew, and Esau became a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob became a humble man, living in tents.

And it came to pass that one day Esau came from the field, and he was hungry and said to Jacob: Feed me I pray thee with that same red pottage, for I am faint. And Jacob said: Sell me this day thy birthright, and Esau replied: Behold, I am at the point of dying with hunger, what profit shall the birthright do to me? And Jacob had him swear that Esau sold his birthright of the firstborn to Jacob. Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentils, which he ate; and drank, and rose up and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright to the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God (Melchizedek Priesthood).

Later on, Jacob subtly obtained the following blessings of the firstborn from his father Isaac:

May God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine. Let people serve thee and nations bow down to thee; be lord over thy brethren, and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee. Cursed be everyone that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

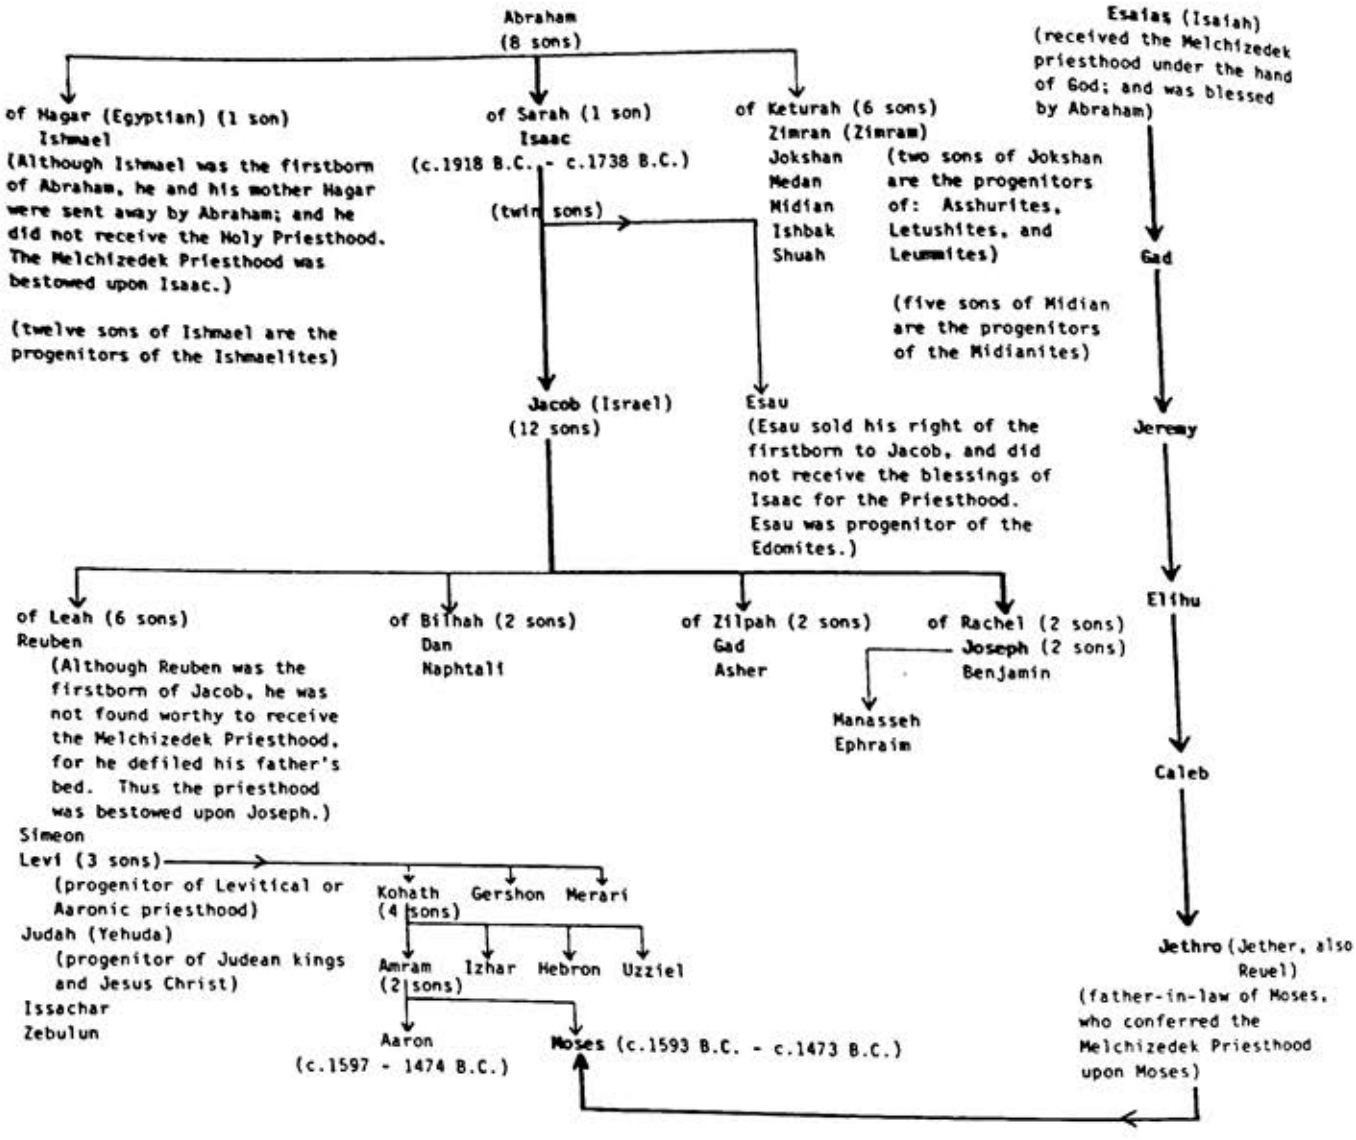
Although Esau had sold his birthright to Jacob, when he heard that his father had blessed Jacob with the blessings of the firstborn; he emitted an exceedingly bitter cry, and said unto his father: Hast thou but one blessing my father? Bless me, even me also O my father, then lifted up his voice and wept. And Isaac, his father, said unto Esau: Behold, I have made Jacob thy lord (master) and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I sustained him. Behold, thy dwelling shall be the fatness of the earth and the dew of heaven from above; and by the sword shalt thou live, and shalt serve thy brother. And it shall come to pass when thou hast the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck. Thus Esau hated Jacob, and even thought of slaying him.

And it came to pass that Isaac called Jacob and after bestowing his blessings upon him, said: Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan. Arise and go to Paddan-aram to the house of Bethuel thy mother's brother. May God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee; that you mayest inherit the land wherein thou art a stranger, which God gave unto Abraham. And Isaac sent away Jacob, and he went out from Beer-sheba to Paddan-aram to Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah.

And Esau, seeing that the Canaanite women pleased not Isaac, took to wife Judith, the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath, daughter of Elon the Hittite. Esau was forty years old when he took these wives. And these women were constant grief and vexation of spirit to Isaac and Rebekah. Later on, Esau went unto the daughters of Ishmael and took himself another wife.

During his journey, Jacob lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and gathered the stones from around, and made them for his pillow, and laid down to sleep. And he dreamed that he saw a ladder set up on the earth, the top of which reached to heaven, and the angels of God were ascending and descending on it. And he saw that the Lord stood above it, and said: I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac. The land whereon thou liest, I will give it to thee and thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth; and thou shalt spread abroad to the west, to the east, to the north, and to the south. And in thy seed all families of the earth be blessed. Behold, I am with thee, and keep you in all places whither thou goest, and bring thee again into this land: for my presence shall not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken to thee. When Jacob awoke, he said: Surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not. And he was afraid, and said: How dreadful is this place! This is none other but the house of God, and the gate of heaven. And Jacob rose up early in the morning and took a stone that he had put up for his pillow, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil on it; and called the name of that place Beth-El (House of God), in the city of Luz. And he made

III. THE THIRD EPOCH: FROM ISAAC TO MOSES (1918 - 1473 B.C.)



(Illustration 5)
Patriarchal Line of Descent: Third Epoch
(from Isaac to Moses)

a vow, saying: If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God. And this stone which I have set for a pillar shall be God's house; and of all that God shall give me, I will give the tenth (tithe) unto Him.

And it came to pass that Jacob departed from Beer-sheba, to the land of his forefathers. When he arrived in the vicinity of Haran, he met his cousin Rachel, and fell in love with her, and bargained to work seven years for her father Laban, son of Bethuel, the brother of Jacob's mother, to acquire her as his wife. After the end of fourteen years, Jacob was able to acquire Rachel, Leah (older sister of Rachel), and one maidservant for each, namely Bilhah and Zilpah. Thus out of these sprang all the tribes of Israel (Jacob); and the Holy Melchizedek Priesthood continued to be passed on to the most righteous and worthy heirs, in each succeeding generation.

Israel (Jacob, Yaqūb) was now blessed with the blessings of the deep; the blessings of the Lord that come from on high, and lieth under. He had fulfilled the covenant of celestial marriage and attained the celestial glory. And it came to pass that while Jacob was living in the land of Canaan (between Bethlehem and Hebron), that his oldest son Reuben defiled the bed of his father, by being with his father's concubine Bilhah, the mother of Dan and Naphtali.

And one day, c.1751 B.C., Jacob sent away his beloved seventeen-year-old son Joseph to see how his brothers were doing with tending their flocks. When finally Joseph located them at Dotham, about sixty miles north of Hebron, they seized him and sold him to an Ishmaelite-Midianite caravan of traders, who were headed for Egypt. They then lied to their father, saying that Joseph had been killed by a wild beast. This incident caused Jacob a great sorrow, refusing to be comforted, and uttering: I shall go down mourning to my son into Sheol (grave).

Now, this is the account of what happened to Joseph: While Jacob, the father of Joseph, dwelt in Hebron, the land where he was a stranger, in the land of Canaan, Joseph was feeding the flock with his brothers, the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, his father's wives. For Joseph was a loving lad of goodly countenance, his brethren hated him and were jealous and envious. And Jacob (Israel) loved him more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age; and he made him a long coat with sleeves, even a coat of many colors. When his brethren saw that their father loved him more than them, they resented him more and more and devised secret plans to slay him.

One day Joseph (Yoseph) dreamt a dream, and he told his brethren, saying: Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed. For, behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and lo, my sheaf stood upright, and your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf. And his brethren said to him: Shalt thou indeed reign over us? Or shall thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dream, and his words. Then he dreamt another dream, and told his brethren, saying: Behold, I have yet dreamed a dream; and lo, the son and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me; and he told the dream to his father Jacob. And his father rebuked him, and said: What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to earth? Although his brethren envied him and hated him, his father understood the meaning and observed his words.

Then it came to pass that his brethren were sent north to feed his father's flocks in Shechem. And Jacob said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flocks in Shechem? Come, and I will send thee unto them. Go I pray, and see whether it be well with thy brethren and the flocks, and bring me word. And Joseph said, Here I am; and he left the vale of Hebron to go to Shechem. When he reached there, a certain man found him wandering in the field; and the man asked him, saying: What seekest thou? And Joseph said, I seek my brethren; tell me, I pray, where they feed the flocks. And the man said, they are departed hence; for I heard them say, Let us go to Dotham (Dothan); so Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dotham. And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him to slay him, saying: Behold, this dreamer cometh! Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit; and we will say, some evil beast hath devoured him, then we shall see what becometh of his dreams.

When Reuben heard it he said unto his brethren: Let us not kill him. Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hands upon him. For Reuben was the firstborn of Jacob, he desired to deliver him out of their hands, and unto the hands of his father. And when Joseph came near to his brethren, they stripped him of his coat of many colors, and cast him into a pit, which had no water. Then they returned to their pasturage, and sat down to eat bread; when they lifted their eyes they beheld a caravan of Ishmaelite and Midianite merchants coming from Gilead, with their camels laden with spices, balm, myrrh, and such things, to carry them to Egypt. Then Judah (Yehuda) said unto his brethren: What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood? Come, let us sell him to these merchants, and let not our hands be upon him, for he is our brother and our flesh; this pleased their brethren.

And when the Midianite caravan came near the pit, they drew and lifted Joseph out and sold him to the Ishmaelite merchantmen for twenty pieces of silver; and they brought Joseph to Egypt with them. Now, when Reuben went to the pit to fetch Joseph, he found him not; and he rent his clothes, and returned to his brethren, saying: The child is not, and I, whither shall I go? So they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of goats, and dipped it in the blood; and they carried the coat of many colors, and brought it to their father, and said: This have we found, know now if it be thy son's coat or no. And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat. And they said, an evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

Then Jacob (Israel) rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days. And all his sons and daughters rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted, and said: For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning; and Jacob wept for him. And the Ishmaelites sold Joseph unto Potiphar (Potiphera), a priest and officer of the Pharaoh, and the captain of the guard. And the Lord was with Joseph, and made him prosper in Egypt; and he dwelt in the house of his Egyptian master, Potiphar. And his master saw that the Lord was with Joseph, and the Lord made him prosper in the land; and Joseph found favor in the sight of his master, and he made him overseer over all his household, and put into his hand all that he had.

And it came to pass that from the time he made Joseph overseer in his house, and all that he had, the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake, that his wealth and power increased. So he left all that he possessed in the house and in the field in the hand of Joseph; and he knew not how much wealth he had, or the things he possessed, save the bread which he did eat; for he gave everything he had into the trust of his servant Joseph; for he was a goodly person, fully to be trusted.

And it came to pass, that after these things his master's wife Zuleika began to cast her eyes upon Joseph; for Joseph was of a goodly countenance, in the likeness of his mother Rachel; and the wife of Potiphar was filled with invincible passion and desire and lust for him. Her feelings were heightened by the astrologic forecast of the priesthood of Ra, the Egyptian Son (Sun) of God, that she was to have descendants through Joseph. (This prophecy was later fulfilled when Joseph married her daughter Asenath, who bore him Ephraim and Manasseh.) Now, in the beginning she did not confess her love to Joseph. She first tried to seduce him by artifice. She would go to him at night, for she had no son, and would pretend a desire to adopt him as her son. So Joseph prayed to God in her behalf, and she conceived and bore a son. But she continued to embrace him as though he were her own child, yet he did not notice her evil designs. Finally, when he recognized her evil intentions, he mourned many days, and pushed her away from her sinful passion by the word of God. She, then, threatened him with death, and surrendered him to pains and sufferings in order to make him subject unto her will; and when these designs and means had no effect upon Joseph, she sought to seduce him with enticements. She would say, I promise thee, thou shall rule over me and all that I have, if thou wilt but give thyself up to me, and thou shalt be to me the same as my lawful husband. But Joseph was mindful of the words of his fathers, even the words of God, and he went not unto her, but went to his chamber, and fasted and prayed to God that He might deliver him of the Egyptian woman.

In spite of the mortifications he practiced, and offerings he made unto the Lord, and gave to the sick and the poor his portion of the food, his master and people saw that he appeared healthier and more graceful; for those that fast for the glory of God are made beautiful of countenance. The wife of Potiphar would often speak to her husband in praise of Joseph's chastity in order that he might conceive no suspicion of the state of her feelings. And, secretly she would encourage Joseph, telling him not to fear her husband, that he was convinced of Joseph's purity of life; and though one should carry tales to him about Joseph and herself, Potiphar would lend them no credit. And when she saw that all this was in vain, for he would not hearken to her enticements, she approached him with a request to teach her the word of God, saying: If it be thy wish that I forsake idol worship, then fulfill my desire, and I will persuade that Egyptian husband of mine to renounce the idols, and we shall walk in the law of thy God. Then Joseph replied, saying; The Lord desireth not that those who fear Him shall walk in impurity, nor hath He pleasure in the adulterer.

Another time she came to him and said; If thou wilt not do my desire, I will murder the Egyptian and wed thee according to thy law. And Joseph rent his garment, and said; O woman, fear the Lord, and do not force this evil deed upon me, that thou mayest not bring destruction upon thyself, for I will proclaim thy impious designs to all in public. When Zuleika could not prevail against him nor could persuade him, her desire threw her into a grievous sickness, and the women of Egypt came to visit her, and said unto her: Why art thou so feeble and wasted, thou that lacketh nothing? Is not thy husband a prince great and esteemed in the sight of the king? Is it possible that thou canst want that which thine heart desireth? Zuleika answered them, saying; This day, it shall be made known unto you whence cometh the state wherein you see me. She commanded her maidservants to prepare food for all the women, and she spread a banquet before them in her house. She placed knives upon the table to peel the oranges, and then ordered Joseph to appear, arayed in costly garments, and wait upon her guests. When Joseph came in, the women could not take their eyes off him, and they all cut their hands with the knives, and the oranges in their hands were covered with blood; but they not knowing what they were doing, continued to look upon the beauty of Joseph without turning their eyes away from him. Then Zuleika said unto them: Behold, and lo, what have ye done? I set oranges before you to eat, and you have cut your hands instead! All the women looked at their hands, and lo, they were full of blood, and it flowed down and stained their garments. They said to Zuleika: This slave in thy house did enchant us, and we could not turn our eyes away from him on account of his beauty. She then said, This happened to you that looked upon him but a moment, and you could not restrain yourselves! Behold, how can I then control myself in whose house he abideth continually, who see him go in and out day after day? How, then, should I not waste away and keep from languishing on account of him? And the women spake unto Zuleika, saying: It is true. Who can look upon this beauty in the house, and deny her feelings? But he is thy slave! Why dost thou not disclose to him that which is in thy heart, rather than suffer thy life to perish through this thing? Zuleika answered them: Daily do I endeavor to persuade him, but he will not hearken to my wishes. I promised him everything that is fair, yet have I met with no return from him; therefore I am sick, as you can see.

Her sickness increased upon her, but her husband and her household suspected not the cause; but all the women that were her friends knew that it was the love which she bore for Joseph, and they advised her to continue to entice the youth. On a certain day, while Joseph was doing his master's work in the house, Zuleika came in and fell suddenly upon him, but Joseph was stronger than she, and he pressed her to the ground. Zuleika wept, and in a voice of supplication, in bitterness of soul, she said to Joseph: Hast thou ever known, seen, or heard of a woman my peer in beauty, let alone a woman with beauty exceeding mine? Yet I try daily to persuade thee; I fall into decline through love of thee; I confer all this honor upon thee; and yet thou wilt not hearken unto my voice! Is it by reason of fear of thy master, that he might punish thee? As the king liveth, no harm shall come upon thee from thy master on my account of this thing. Now, therefore, I pray thee, listen to me, and consent to my desire, for the sake of the honor that I have conferred upon thee, and take this death away from me. For why should I die on account of thee? But Joseph again remained steadfast as before.

Zuleika was not discouraged; she continued her solicitations inceasingly, day after day, month after month, for a whole year; and always without the least success; for Joseph in his chastity did not permit himself even to look upon her. Wherefore, she resorted to constraint. She had an iron shackle placed around his neck to hold up his chin, that he might be compelled to keep his head up and look her in the face. Seeing that she could not attain her object of desire by entreaties or tears, Zuleika finally used force, when she judged that the favorable chance had come. She did not have long to wait. When the river Nile overflowed its banks, according to the annual custom of the Egyptians, all repaired to the river, men and women, people and princes, accompanied by music; but Zuleika remained at home under the pretense of being sick. This was her long-awaited opportunity, she thought. She rose and walked up to the hall of state, and arrayed herself in royal garments. She placed precious stones upon her head, onyx stones set in silver and gold, she beautified her face and body with all sorts of things for the purifying of women; she perfumed the hall and the whole house with cassia and frankincense, spread myrrh and aloes all over; and afterward sat herself down at the entrace of the hall, in the vestibule leading to the house, through which Joseph had to pass in order to do his work.

And, behold, Joseph came from the field, and as he was about to enter the house to do his master's work, and when he saw Zuleika sitting in wait, and all that was prepared, he turned back to leave. His master's wife, perceiving it, called out to him, saying: What aileth thee Joseph? Go to thy work, I will make room for thee, that thou mayest pass by the seat. Joseph did as she bade him, and he entered the house, took his seat, and set about his master's work as usual. Then Zuleika stood before him suddenly in all her beauty of person and magnificence of raiment, and repeated the desire of her heart. It was the first and last time that Joseph's steadfastness deserted him, but only for an instant. When he was on the point of complying with the wish of his mistress, the image of his mother Rachel appeared before him suddenly, and that of his aunt Leah, and the image of his father Jacob. The last addressed him thus: In time to come the names of thy brethren will be graven on the breastplate of the high priest. Dost thou desire to have thy name appear with theirs? Or wilt thou forfeit this honor through sinful conduct. For know it for a surety, that he that keepeth company with harlots wasteth his substance. This vision of spiritual death, and the words of his father brought Joseph to his senses, and his illicit passion departed from him. Joseph fled the house of his mistress, which was the same house in which, in times past, wonders had been done for Sarah, wife of Abraham, when she was kept a captive there by Pharaoh.

But hardly was he outside when the sinful passion again overwhelmed him, and he returned to Zuleika's chamber. Then the Lord appeared unto him, holding the "Eben Shetiyah" in His hand, and said unto him: If thou toucheth her, I will cast away this stone upon which the earth is founded, and the world will fall to ruin. Sobered again, Joseph started to escape from his mistress, but Zuleika caught him by his garment, and said: As the king liveth, if thou wilt not fulfill my wish, thou must die; and while she spoke thus, she drew a sword with her free hand from under her dress, and, pressing it against Joseph's throat, she said: Do as I bid thee, or thou diest. Joseph ran out, leaving a piece of his garment in the hands of Zuleika as he wrenched himself loose from the grasp of the woman with a quick and jerking motion.

Zuleika's passion for Joseph was so violent that, in lieu of its owner, whom she could not succeed in subduing to her will, she kissed and carressed the fragment of cloth in her hand. At the same time, she was not slow to perceive the danger into which she had put herself; for, she feared, Joseph might possibly betray her conduct, she began to consider ways and means of obviating the consequences of her folly. Meanwhile her friends returned from the Nile festival, and they came to visit her and inquire after her health. They found her wretchedly ill, on account of the excitement she had passed through and the anxiety she was in. She confessed to the women what had happened with Joseph, and they advised her to accuse him of immorality before her husband, and then he would be thrown in prison. Zuleika accepted their advice, and she begged her friends to support her charges by also lodging complaints against Joseph, that he had been annoying them with improper proposals. But Zuleika did not depend wholly upon the assistance of her friends; she planned a trick, besides, to be sure of convincing her husband of Joseph's guilt. She laid aside her rich robes of state, put on her ordinary clothes, and took to her sickbed, in which she had been lying when the people left to go to the festival. Also, she took Joseph's torn garment and laid it out next to her. Then she sent a little boy to summon some of the men of her house, and told them the tale of Joseph's alleged outrage, saying: See the Hebrew slave, whom your master hath brought in unto my house, and who attempted to do violence to me today! You had scarcely gone away to the festival when he entered the house and, making sure that no one was here, he tried to force me to yield to his lustful desire. But I grasped his clothes, tore them, and cried with loud voice.

When he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, he was seized with fear, and he fled, and got him out, but he left his garment by me.

The men of the house spake not a word, but in a rage against Joseph, they went to their master and reported to him what had come to pass. In the meantime the husband of Zuleika's friends had also spoken to Potiphar, at the instigation of their wives, and complained of his slave, that he molested their wives. Potiphar hastened home, and he found his wife in low spirits; although the cause fo her dejection was her failure to win Joseph's love, she pretended that it was anger at the immoral conduct of the slave. She accused him in these words: O husband, mayest thou not live a day longer if thou dost not punish the wicked slave that hath desired to defile thy bed; that hath not kept in mind who he was when he came to our house, to demean himself with modesty, nor hath he been mindful of the favors he hath received from thy bounty. He did lay a privy design to abuse thy wife, and this at the time of observing a festival, when thou wouldst be absent.

These words she spake at the moment of conjugal intimacy with Potiphar, when she was certain of exerting an influence upon her husband. Potiphar gave credence to her words, and he had Joseph flogged unmercifully. While the cruel blows fell upon him, he cried to God, saying: O Lord, Thou knowest that I am innocent of these things, and why should I die today on account of false accusation by the hands of these uncircumcised impious men? Behold, the Lord opened the mouth of Zuleika's child, a babe of but eleven months, and he spoke to the men that were beating Joseph, saying; What is your quarrel with this man? Why do you inflict such evil upon him? Lies my mother doth speak, and deceit is what her mouth uttereth; this is the true tale of that which did happen; and the child proceeded to tell all that had passed before — how Zuleika his mother on occasions tried to persuade Joseph to act wickedly, and forced him to do her will. The people listened with great amazement. After this report, the child spake no words as before. Abashed by the speech of his own infant son, Potiphar commanded that his bailiff leave off from chastising Joseph, and the matter was brought into court, where priests sat as judges. Joseph protested his innocence and related all that had happened according to the truth; but Potiphar repeated the account his wife had given him. The judges ordered the garment of Joseph, which Zuleika had in her possession, to be brought before them, and they examined the tear therein. It turned out to be in the front part of the mantle, and they came to the conclusion that Zuleika had tried to hold him fast, and had been foiled in her attempt by Joseph, against whom she was now lodging a trumped-up charge. They decided that Joseph had not incurred the death penalty, but they condemned him to incarceration, because he was the cause of a stain upon Zuleika's fair name. Potiphar himself was convinced of Joseph's innocence, and when he cast him into prison, he said to him: I know that thou art not guilty of so vile a crime, but I must put thee in durance, lest a taint cling to my children.

So Joseph was sent to prison by Potiphar, to a place where the kings prisoners were bound. But the Lord was with Joseph, and shewed him mercy, and gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison. And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison, and he was made responsible for their conduct. Then it came to pass that the butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt. And the king was wroth against the chief of the butlers and the chief of the bakers; so he put them in the ward of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound, and they continued there for a season. One day both the butler and the baker dreamed a dream in the selfsame night, and their countenance fell. So Joseph came in unto them that morning and asked, Why look ye so sadly today? And they replied: We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, Do not interpretations belong to God? Tell me then, I pray. So the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, saying: Behold, in my dream a vine was before me; and in the vine were three branches, as though it budded and blossoms shot forth, and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes; Pharaoh's cup was in my hand and I squeezed the grapes into Pharaoh's cup, and gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

And Joseph interpreted the chief butler's dream, saying: This is the interpretation of it — the three branches are three days, and in three days he shall lift up thine head and restore thee unto thy place as his chief butler and cupbearer. But remember me, I pray, and mention of me unto Pharaoh, to bring me out of this place. For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews, and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon. When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph, I also dreamed a dream, and beheld that I had three white baskets on my head; in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of bakemeats for Pharaoh, and the birds did eat them out of my basket upon my head. Joseph answered and said: This is the interpretation thereof — the three baskets are three days; and within three days Pharaoh shall cut off thine head and shall hang thee on a tree, and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

And it came to pass that the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, he made a feast unto all his servants; and restored the chief butler to his original position, and hanged the chief baker, according to Joseph's interpretations. Yet the chief butler remembered not Joseph, but forgot him altogether. Then it came to pass that at the end of two full years, Pharaoh dreamed an awful dream — he beheld that he stood by the river, and there came up out of the river seven well-favored and fatfleshed kine, and they grazed in a meadow. And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favored and leanfleshed, and stood up by the other kine upon the brink of the river; and they did eat up the seven well-favored and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke. Then he went back to sleep and dreamed the second dream, and beheld seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, rank and good; and lo, seven thin ears, blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them; and the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears of corn. And Pharaoh awoke, and saw that it was an awful dream.

In the morning Pharaoh's spirit was troubled, and he sent and called for all the magicians and wise men of Egypt; and he told them his dreams, but there was none who could interpret them unto Pharaoh. Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my fault this day; Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me and the chief baker in the ward in the captain of the guard's house; and we both dreamed a dream in the selfsame night; I and he, both dreamed a different dream. And there was a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; when we told him our dream, he interpreted to us our dreams, to each man according to his dream he did interpret. And, behold, as he interpreted to us, so it was — me Pharaoh restored unto my office, and him he hanged.

Then Pharaoh sent and called for Joseph, and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon; he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and was brought before Pharaoh. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph: I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it; and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it. Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying; It is not in me, but God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace. Then Pharaoh said unto Joseph: In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river; and, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fatfleshed and well-favored, and they grazed in a meadow. And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor and very ill-favored and leanfleshed, such as I never saw in the land of Egypt for badness, and the lean and the ill-favored kine did eat up the first seven fat kine; and when they had eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them, for they were still lean and ill-favored, as in the beginning. So I awoke.

And I slept and dreamed the second dream, in which I beheld seven ears of full and good corn came up in one stalk; then, lo, seven ears, withered and thin, blasted with the east wind sprung up after them; and they devoured the seven good ears of corn. I told this unto the magicians, but there was none that could declare the interpretation thereof. Joseph said unto Pharaoh, Both dreams of Pharaoh are one and the same, for God hath shown Pharaoh what He is about to do. The seven good kine are seven years, and the seven good ears of corn are seven years, the dream is one. And the seven thin and ill-favored kine that came up after them are seven lean years, and the seven empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be seven years of famine; and this is the thing that God is about to do — Behold, there shall come seven years of great and plenty throughout all the land; and there shall arise after these seven years a famine, which shall consume the land of Egypt, and all the plenty shall be forgotten. The plenty shall not be known in the land by the reason of that famine which shall follow, for it shall be very grievous. And for this reason the dream was repeated unto Pharaoh twice, because the thing is established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass. Now therefore, let Pharaoh search out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt; let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plenteous years. And let them gather all the food of those good years and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities. And the food shall be stored against the seven years of famine, that the land perish not because of famine. And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

And Pharaoh said unto his servants, can we find such a one as this is; in whom the Spirit of God is? And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art — thou shalt be over my house, and according to thy words shall all my people be ruled, only in the throne will I be greater than thou; behold I have set thee over all the land of Egypt; and Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in royal vesture of fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck; and he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, Bow the knee! and made him ruler over all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph: I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt; and Zaphenath-Paaneah shall be thine official name.

Now Joseph had lived in Egypt twelve years, and was thirty years old, when he stood before Pharaoh, to be ordained into this high office. At this time, Potiphar or Potipherah was a priest in the city of the House of the Sun (Son), known as On (Awen or Aven; or Heliopolis). And on the selfsame day Pharaoh gave Joseph to wife Asenath, the daughter of Potiphar and Zuleika. Then Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and travelled throughout the land of Egypt.

And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth in abundance; and Joseph gathered up all the food of the seven years, and stored it in the cities. And he gathered corn as the sand of the sea, so much that he left numbering, for it was without number. During these seven years also, two sons were born, which Asenath bare unto him. Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh, for he said, God hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house; and the name of the second called he Ephraim, for he said, God hath caused me to be doubly fruitful in the land of my affliction, in the days of plenty.

And it came to pass that the seven years of plenteousness ended in the land of Egypt, and the seven years of drought, or famine, began to come, according to the revelations of God, as were interpreted by Joseph. The famine was in all the surrounding and far-off lands, but in all the land of Egypt there was bread for its people. Then, when all the land of Egypt also became famished, the people cried unto Pharaoh for bread, and Pharaoh said unto the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph, and do as he tells you. So Joseph opened all the storehouses and sold unto them, and the famine continued to wax sore, and people from far-off lands came to Joseph to buy corn.

Now c.1738 B.C. Jacob's father Isaac died, and about ten years later a severe famine forced Jacob to send his sons to Egypt to buy cereal and grain. Jacob (Israel), who dwelt in the land of Canaan, heard that there was corn in Egypt, and he called and said unto his sons: Why do ye look one upon another? Behold, I have heard there is corn in Egypt; therefore, get ye down thither and buy for us from thence, that we may live, and die not with hunger. And Joseph's ten brothers, Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Zebulun, Issachar, Dan, Asher, Gad and Naphtali, went down to Egypt; but Benjamin, Joseph's younger brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befall him. And the sons of Israel came to Egypt to buy corn, while Joseph was the head ruler of all Egypt; and he it was that sold to all people of other lands. Joseph's brethren came and bowed themselves down before him with their faces to the earth, and Joseph recognized his brethren, and made himself a stranger unto them, and spake roughly unto them through an interpreter; and when he asked them, Whence come ye? They said: From the land of Canaan to buy food; but his brethren did not recognize him; and Joseph remembered the dream of his childhood, which he told his brethren, and how they mocked him and hated him. And Joseph said unto them: You are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye have come. And they said unto him: Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come. We are all one man's sons; we are true men, thy servants are no spies. And he said, Nay, but to see the nakedness of land ye are come. And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man, in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not.

And Joseph said unto his brethren: That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies. Hereby ye shall be proved. By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither. Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you; or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies. And they were shut up in a ward for two days; on the third day, Joseph said unto his brethren: This do, and live, for I fear God — if ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison, and go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses; but bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and your lives shall be spared. And they agreed.

Then they began to say one unto another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, for when he besought us to speak, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, and would not hearken to his voice; therefore this distress has come upon us. And Reuben said, Spake I not unto you, saying; Do not sin against the child, and ye would not hear? Therefore, behold, his blood is on our hands. And they knew not that Joseph understood them, for he spake to them through an interpreter. And he turned himself about from them and wept. Later he returned to them and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes. Then Joseph commanded his servants to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for their journey home; thus did he unto them. So they laded their asses with corn, and departed.

And as one of them opened the sack to give his ass provender in the inn, he saw his money, for, behold, it was in the sack's mouth. And he said unto his brethren: My money is restored, and, behold, it is even in my sack; and their hearts failed them, for they were sore afraid, saying one to another: What is this that God hath done unto us? When they reached their home in the land of Canaan, they told their father Jacob all that befell them, saying; The man who is the lord of the land spake roughly unto us, and took us for spies of the country. And we said unto him, We are true men, we are no spies; we be twelve brethren, sons of our father; one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan. And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us: Hereby shall I know that ye are true men and not spies — leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your household; and be gone and bring your youngest brother unto me; then shall I know that ye are no spies; so will I deliver thy brother, to leave the land.

Then as the other nine brothers began to empty their sacks, behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack. And when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid. And Jacob their father said unto them: Me have ye deprived of my sons, Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away, all these things are against me. Then spoke Reuben unto his father, saying: Slay my two sons, if I bring him not to thee; deliver him (Benjamin) into my hand and I will bring him to thee again. And Jacob said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone; perchance if mischief befall him along the journey, then shall ye bring down my gray hair with sorrow to the grave.

The famine was sore in the land of Canaan. And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought from Egypt, that their father said unto them: Go again, and buy us a little food. And Judah answered, saying; The man did solemnly protest, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you. If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy us food. And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, by telling the man that ye had yet another brother? And they said, the man asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying: Is your father yet alive? Have ye another brother? And we told him according to the tenor of these words. Could we have certainly known that he would say, Bring your brother down? And Judah said unto Israel his father: Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, and not starve to death, both we and thou and our little ones. I will be surety for him, and of my hand shalt thou require him; if I bring him not unto thee and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame forever. For if we wouldn't have lingered this long, we would have already returned the second time.

And their father Israel said unto them: If it must need be so, do this — take the best fruits of the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts and almonds; and take double money in your pockets, the money that was found in your sacks, peradventure it was an oversight; take also your brother. Arise, and go again unto the man. May God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother and Benjamin. If I be deprived of my children, I am deprived. And the sons of Jacob took the presents, and the money, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph. And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the head servant of his household to slay a beast of the field and prepare it, for these men shall dine with me at noon; and the man brought the men home and did as he was bidden to do.

The sons of Israel were sore afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they thought, because of the money that was returned in our sacks, that he may seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us as bondmen, and our asses. So they came near to the steward of Joseph's house and they spoke to him at the gate of the house, saying; O, sir, we came indeed down at the first time to buy food, and it came to pass that when we came to the inn, we found every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight; and we have brought it again in our hand; and other money have we brought down in our hand to buy more food; we cannot tell who put the money in our sacks. And the man said unto the sons of Israel: Peace be with you, fear not; your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks — I had your money. Then he brought Simeon out unto them; and all of them went inside Joseph's house, and he gave them water to wash their hands and feet; and gave their asses provender. And they made ready the presents which they brought for Joseph, for they heard that they should eat bread there.

And when Joseph came home, they brought him the presents and bowed themselves to him to the earth. Then Joseph asked them of their welfare, and said, Is your father well, the old man of which ye spake? Is he yet alive? And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive; and they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance. And Joseph lifted up his eyes and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said: Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? God be gracious unto thee, my son.

Joseph made haste, for his bowels did yearn upon his brother; and he sought where to weep, and entered into his chamber, and wept there. Then he washed his face, refrained himself, and came out, and said unto his servants to set on bread (food). And they set on for Joseph by himself, and for his brethren the Hebrews by themselves, and for the Egyptians by themselves; because Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews, for that was an abomination unto the Egyptians. And all the brethren of Joseph sat down to eat, according to their age, from the oldest, Reuben, to the youngest, Benjamin; and the servants marvelled at the sight. Each man's portion was brought to him, but Benjamin's portion was five times more than any of his brethren. So they all ate and drank, and were merry.

And Joseph commanded the chief steward of his household, saying; Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth; and put my cup in the sack's mouth of the youngest with his corn money; and the steward did so. As soon as the morning was light, his brethren were sent away with their asses. When they were gone out of the city, not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men, and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good? Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and indeed divineth? Ye have done evil in so doing.

So the steward followed after the men, and overtook them, and repeated the words which Joseph bade him to say. And the sons of Jacob said unto him: Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing. Behold, the money which we found in our sack's mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan; how then should we steal out of the lord's house any silver or gold? With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, both let him die, and we also be my lord's bondmen. And he said, Now also let it be according to your words; he with whom it be found shall be my servant, and ye shall be blameless. Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack; and the steward began the search from the oldest, and ended with Benjamin, in whose sack the cup was found.

Then they rent their clothes, laded every man his ass, and returned to the city. Judah and his brethren reached Joseph's house, and he was yet there; and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph said unto them: What deed is this that ye have done? Know ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine? And Judah replied; What shall we say unto my lord? What shall we speak? Or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found; and we have given our word that with whomsoever of thy servants it be found, both let him die, and we also shall be our lord's bondmen. And Joseph said unto them; God forbid that I should do so; but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace, and return to your father.

Then Judah came near unto him, and said: Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ear; and let not thine anger burn against thy servant, for thou art even as Pharaoh. My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother? And we said unto the lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one, and his brother is dead, and he is alone left of his mother, and his father loveth him. And thou saidst unto thy servants, Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him. And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father, for if he should leave, his father would die with grief. And thou didst say unto thy servants, Except your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more; and when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord; and our father saith, Go again and buy us a little food. And we said, We cannot go down, lest our youngest brother go with us; for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us. And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that my wife bare me two sons; and one went out from me, and I said surely he is torn in pieces, for I saw him not since; and if ye take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

Now, therefore when I return to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us, seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life, he will die; and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave. For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying; If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father forever. Now, therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord, and let the lad go up with his brethren; for how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? Lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father.

Then Joseph could not refrain himself before all that stood before him, he cried, saying: Cause every man (servant) to go out from me; and there stood no man, except his brethren before him; and he wept aloud — and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard it. And Joseph said unto his brethren, I am Joseph; doth my father indeed live? And his brethren could not answer him, for they were troubled at his presence. And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray; and they came near; and he said, I am Joseph your brother, who was sold into Egypt; now therefore be not grieved nor angry with yourselves that ye caused me to be sold; for it was God who didst send me before you to preserve life. For these two years hath the famine been in the land, and yet there are five more years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest. And God sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, to save your lives by a great deliverance. So now it was not you that caused me to be sent here, but it was the will of God, that he hath made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt. Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt; come down unto me, tarry not; and thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and shall be near unto me; thou and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks and herds, and all that thou hast; and there ye shall be nourished, for there are yet five years of famine; lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty. And, behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you. Tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

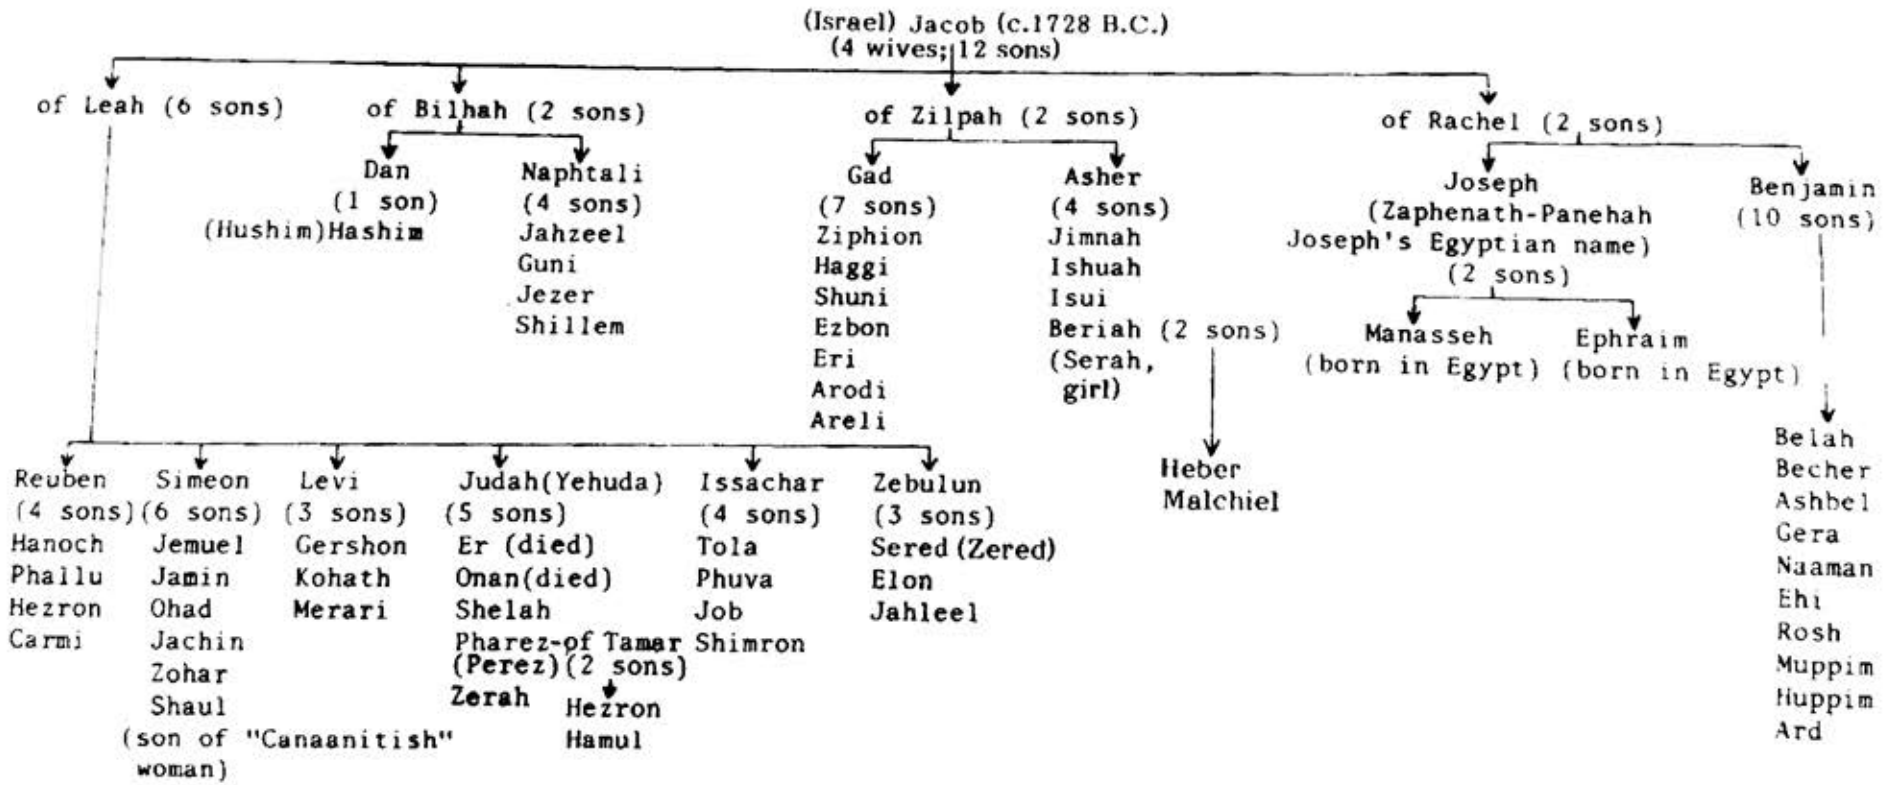
Then Joseph fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept, and Benjamin wept upon his neck; and he kissed all his brethren and they all wept together, and embraced each other. Afterwards his brethren talked with him. And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying; Joseph's brethren are come, and it pleased Pharaoh well and his servants. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, say unto thy brethren, this do ye — lade your beasts, and go get you unto the land of Canaan; and take your father and your households and come back hither unto me; and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land. Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come. Also regard not your stuff, for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours. And the children of Israel did so; and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the commandment of Pharaoh, and provisions for their journey. To each of his brethren he gave new garments, but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five new garments. And to his father Jacob he sent ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she-asses laden with corn and bread and meat.

So he sent his brethren away, saying: See that ye fall not out by the way! And they departed from the land of Egypt and came to the land of Canaan unto their father Jacob. And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he spake unto them, saying: Joseph is yet alive, and he is the ruler over all the land of Egypt; and Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not; but when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived; and Israel said, It is enough that Joseph my son is alive; I will go and see him before I die.

And Jacob took his journey with all he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices unto the Lord. And the Lord spoke to Israel in the vision of the night, and said: Jacob, Jacob, and he said, Here I am. And the Lord said: I am God, the God of thy father. Fear not to go

(Illustration 6)

Record of the House of Israel:
Men and Children who Came into Egypt
(1728 B.C.)



down into Egypt, for I will make thee a great nation there. And I will go down with thee into Egypt; and surely bring Israel up again. And Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

Then Jacob departed from Beer-sheba, with all his sons, their wives, and children, in wagons which the king of Egypt had sent for them. And they took their cattle and all their possessions. The males of the household journeyed separately from the females, with the exception of Serah (daughter of Asher), who was counted among them. All the mothers, wives and daughters traveled separately (plus one birth along the way). The chart on the previous page shows the names of the children of Israel who left the land of Canaan. These sixty-six souls, plus the wives and daughters of the sons of Jacob, entered Egypt in 1728 B.C.

Soon after, Jacob was brought to the king's court, and there he greeted the king with a blessing. Jacob described himself as an alien resident, in the same manner as did Isaac and Abraham, who too had not inherited the land of promise. When the king of Egypt asked his age, Jacob replied that he was 130 (he was born in 1858 B.C.); but in comparing with his forefathers his days had been few and distressing. And the king of Egypt provided them residences in the district of Preetem (Pithom)-Rameses (Raameses, Ramses), where the king of Hyksos himself dwelt. Later on, when the children of Israel began to multiply, they were given additional land for their pasturage and dwellings in the nearby town of Pi-beseth (Pa-bast or Bast, Pu-basti), where great multitudes of people gathered to attend festivals dedicated to their feline goddess Ubasti. The town was founded by the Hyksos invaders c.1788 B.C., who ruled Egypt from the land Goshen, in the Nile Delta until c.1580, when the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt was established.

Then additional towns and cities to the northeast, including the Hyksos capital city Avaris, and Tanis; and Succoth, about fifteen miles east of Preetem-Rameses, near the waters, on the road to Shur, were shared by the Hyksos and the Israelites. But many families continued to dwell in Preetem-Rameses.

Between the accession of King Menes, with whom the First Dynasty or royal house began, and who was the first to unite Upper and Lower Egypt, and the time of the Arabian and Hebrew invasion and their conquest of Egypt, some sixteen hundred and twelve years had elapsed. This was the first time in the history of Egypt, that their Pharaohs were humbled and subjugated by a foreign power. These foreign rulers were called by the Egyptians the shepherd kings, or Hyksos; they were the rulers of countries, and shepherds. Unlike the Egyptian Pharaohs who had African or Hamitic ancestry, the Hyksos moved from Syria with a united force of Arabians and Hebrews, during the eighteenth century B.C., and took over the unorganized, and spiritually dead oligarchy of the Egyptian princess Sebeknefrure (Skemiophris), daughter of Amenemhet IV; in the fourth year of her reign. The Hyksos established themselves in the fertile land of Goshen in the Delta, and ruled from Avaris their great and united empire of the Arabians and Hebrews. The Egyptian Pharaohs and rulers now became tributary to the Hyksos; but continued to govern Egypt under the shepherd kings. The Hyksos were not a large group, but their administrative and military organization was far superior to that of the Egyptians; and their mastery of horse-driven chariots was used to subdue the Egyptians. The Egyptians were the builders of great pyramids, barks and sea-going vessels; they were artificers and artisans in brass, silver, gold, and other precious metals and stones; farmers and tradesmen. But being also descendants of Cain and Ham, they indulged in pagan rites and ceremonies of the natural man, and idol worship; as a result, they fell as did Adam and Eve, and died spiritually; and were cast away forever from the presence of the Lord. So the Egyptians became a mighty power unto themselves in the realm of the underworld, the things of darkness, and of the temporal world.

Then came a new Egyptian ruler, about 1600 B.C., when the Egyptian national rebellion against the Hyksos kings resulted in their overthrow. And this interim ruler of Egypt knew not of Joseph, and said unto his people: Behold, the sons of the Hebrews are more and mightier than we are. Come let us deal wisely with them, lest they continue to multiply, and perchance there cometh a war, they join our enemies, and fight against us. So, let us get them out of our land. Therefore they set over the Israelites Egyptian taskmasters to afflict them with their burden. And they built, and also rebuilt towns and cities in the district of Representation of the Hyksos (Shemitic or Semitic) kings of Egypt. (1788-1580 B.C.).

Fragment of a collosal granite statue of Khian. Hamitic Pharaohs were shown flat-footed and fully or partly naked. The arrow points to his name in hieroglyphics. (1788-1580 B.C.)

Preetem-Rameses and in the land of Goshen (Golshen), in the eastern Nile Delta region. And it came to pass that all twelve sons of Israel (Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Dan, Naphtali, Gad, Asher, Joseph, and Benjamin) had passed away; and the children of Israel continued to be fruitful, increased abundantly, multiplied and waxed exceedingly mighty, and the land was filled with them and the Arabians.

The unified and powerful Eighteenth Dynasty of Hamitic rulers of Egypt was established in c.1580 B.C.; and its first Pharaoh was named Ahmose, meaning "of Moses, or first Moses." And Ahmose began to confiscate the land of the Shemites, the Arabians and the Hebrews, and the children of Israel, who dwelt in the fertile Delta region of Lower Egypt. Although the Hyksos conducted their affairs from their capital in Avaris, the Egyptian Pharaohs had established Memphis (Noph, White Wall) as their government and military headquarters. The Eighteenth Dynasty of Egyptian rulers lasted for a period of about two hundred and thirty-four years, from c.1580 until c.1346 B.C. (from the time of Ahmose to Tutenemen or Tutenkhamen, and Eye). With the New Kingdom, also came the bitter bondage and slavery for the children of Israel and all the Shemites that dwelt in Egypt (which lasted some sixty-seven years, until 1513 B.C., the time of the Exodus). The Hamitic Pharaohs of the New Kingdom, after they had uprooted the Hyksos kings, and confiscated the land of the Shemites, once again established the old order and unity among themselves; and their government became an extensive centralized administrative bureaucracy at Memphis. The following illustration shows the chronology of the Eighteenth Dynasty of the Egyptian (Hamitic) Pharaohs:

(Illustration 7)
List of the XVIIIth Dynasty of Egyptian Pharaohs
(c.1580 B.C. - c.1346 B.C.)

Period of Reign (B.C.)	Name of Pharaoh (English version of the Egyptian names; excludes coregencies)
1580-1557	Ahmose (meaning "of Moses," or "first Moses")
1557-1545	Amenhotep I
1545-1514	Thutmose I (or Yehudy-Moses or Djehuty-Moses; meaning "Jewish Moses," or "Moses of the tribe of Judah")
1514-1501	Thutmose II (Yehudy-Moses II)
The Exodus (Nisan 14, 1513 B.C.)
May 3, 1501 to March 17, 1447 B.C.	Thutmose III (Yehudy-Moses III; this Pharaoh co-ruled with his wife Queen Hatshepsut until her death in c.1480 B.C., and from 1480 onward, Thutmose ruled alone)
1448-1420	Amenhotep II
1420-1411	Thutmose IV
1411-1375	Amenhotep III
1375-1358	Amenhotep IV (Ikhnaton, Akhenaton)
1358-1357	Sakere
1357-1348	Tutenemen (Tutenkhamen, Tutenkhamon; son of Akhenaton)
1347-1346	Eye

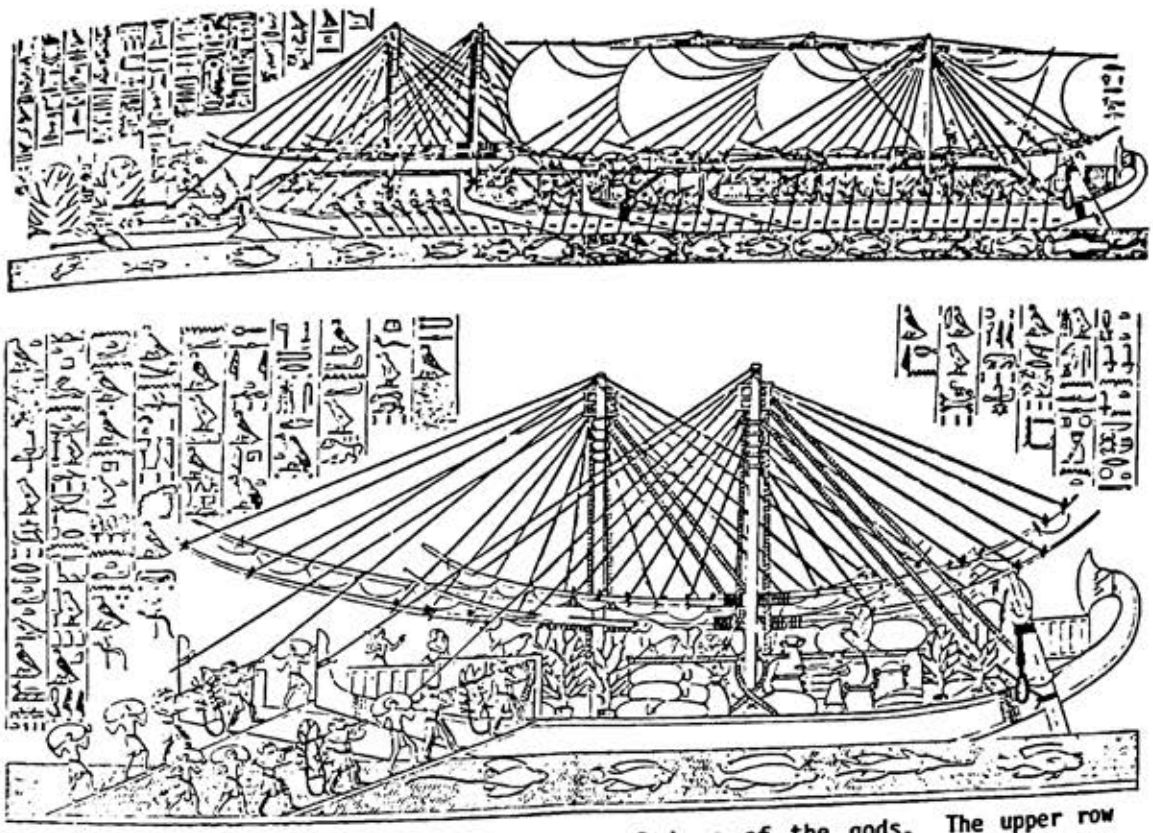
(The XIXth Dynasty or the Royal House is reckoned from c.1346 B.C.)

During the Eighteenth Dynasty, Thutmose III became a coregent with his wife Hatshepsut. She was called "the female Horus," the counterpart of Horus, the hawk-faced solar god. After Thutmose III and Hatshepsut had ruled for about five years, Thutmose I, the old dethroned king, allied himself with his son Thutmose II, and dethroned Thutmose III and Hatshepsut for a time. Enmities grew within the royal house; wars also grew with Nubia and Beduin tribes of the desert; their chaotic reign lasted about three years, and the father died; the son made peace with Thutmose III, and chose a life of retirement. Thus Queen Hatshepsut regained her kingship as the Pharaoh of Egypt, and Thutmose III continued to rule as her coregent. One of the major enterprises of the Eighteenth Dynasty was the construction of a magnificent temple for mortuary service, in a bay of the cliffs on the westside of the river at Thebes (now known as Dar el-Bahri region).

In a series of three terraces the temple rose from the plain to the level of an elevated court; flanked by the massive yellow cliffs, into which the Holy of Holies, or the Most Holy was cut (hewn). In front of the terraces were ranged colonnades with an admirable sense of proportion and grouping. The architect of the royal temple was named Senmut; and Thutiy, the overseer of the gold and silver treasury, wrought the bronze doors, engraved with figures in electrum (gold-silver alloy), and other metal work.

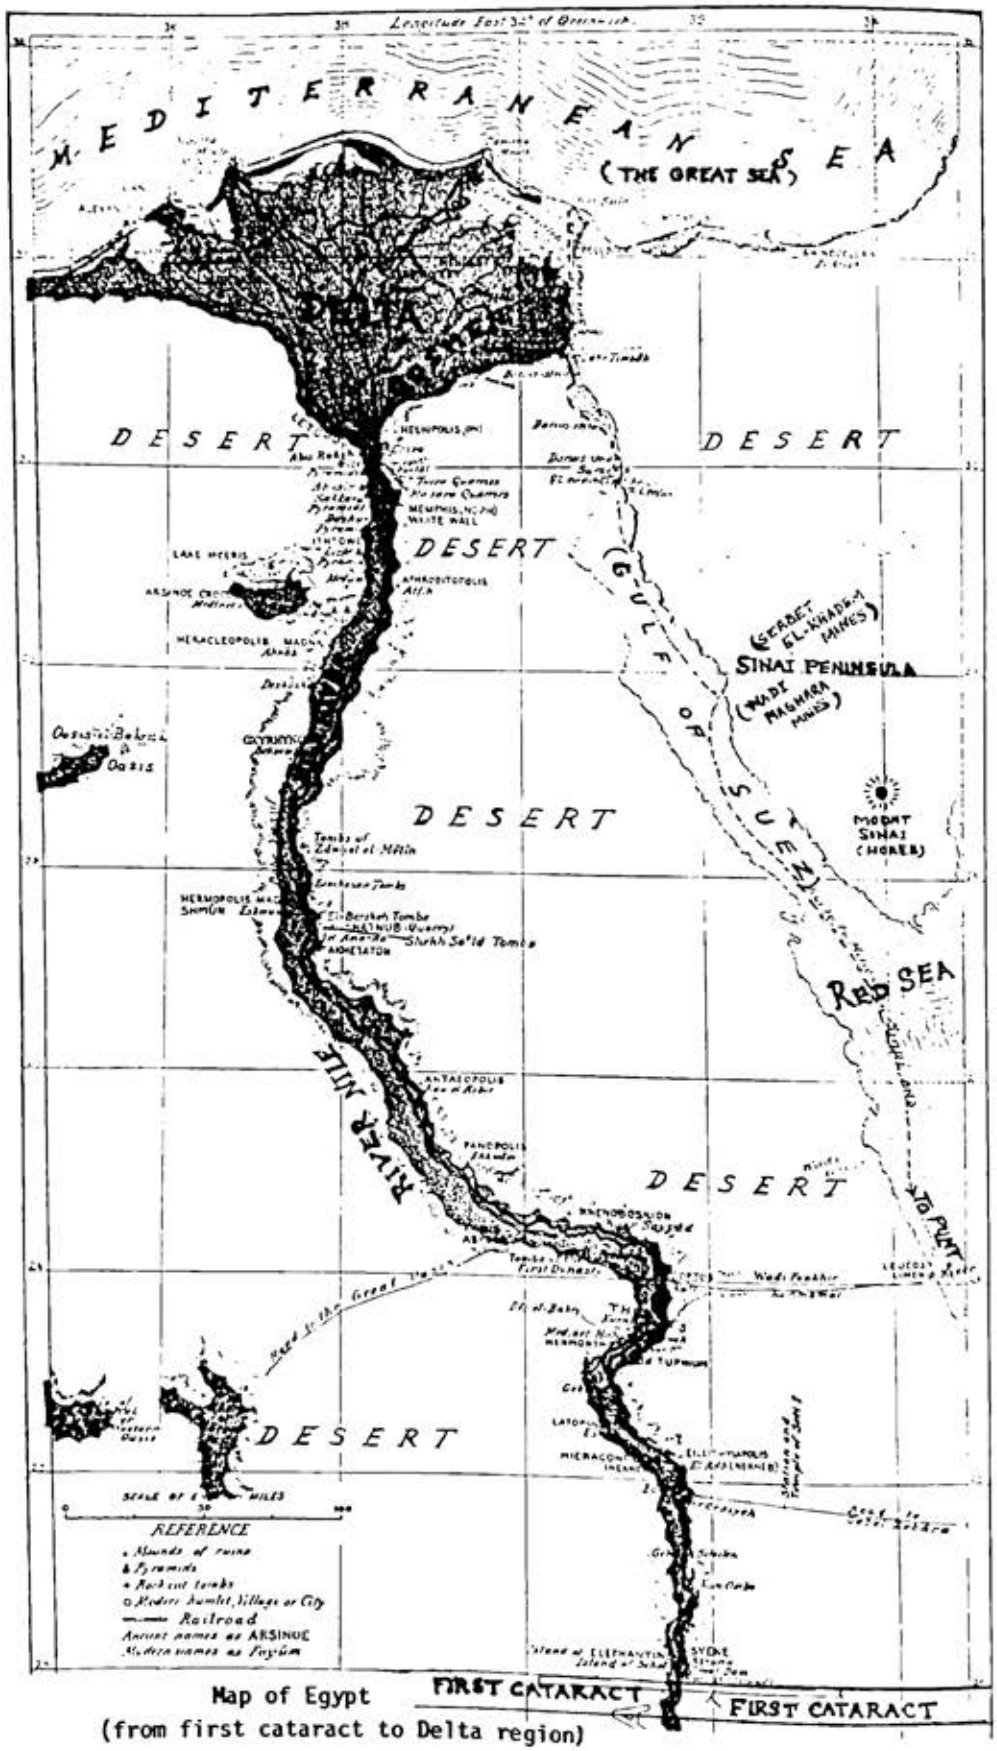
Hatshepsut's inscriptions record that god Amon (peace) had desired her to plant the terraces of the temple with myrrh trees imported from Punt, the original home of the gods. Although her ancestors had often sent expeditions there, none had ever brought back the trees of myrrh. The acquisition of myrrh was essential in making incense for use in temple service or other festive occasions; but they were always brought to Egypt, passed from hand to hand, by overland runners, carriers, and merchants. One day as the queen stood before the shrine of god, a command was heard from an oracle of God from the Great Throne, saying; The ways to Punt should be searched out; and the highways to myrrh-terraces should be penetrated. For so saith God: The land of Punt is a glorious region of God's Land, it is indeed My place of delight; I have made it Myself in order to divert My heart.

And the queen saw to it that it was done according to all that was commanded by the oracle of god. The organization and the dispatch of the expedition to Punt were entrusted to the chief treasurer Nehsi, in whose vaults and subterranean chambers the wealth brought back from the expedition was to be stored. With propitiatory offerings to the divinities of the air to ensure a fair wind, and after all the necessary rituals and ceremonies, five vessels of the sea-going fleet set sail early in the ninth year of the queen's reign. They sailed down the Nile, and then, through a canal leading from the eastern Delta through Wadi Tumilut, which connected the Nile with the Red Sea (near Pi-Hahiroth, or modern Suez. This canal was already in use during the Middle Kingdom c. 2160-1788 B.C.).



Expedition to the land of Punt, the original home of the gods. The upper row shows the departure of the fleet to Punt. The lower row depicts myrrh trees and other commodities being carried on board, to be brought back to Egypt.

Besides a great variety of Egyptian goods and products, the fleet carried a huge stone statue of the queen, to be erected in the land of Punt. The crew and the sea-going vessels arrived safely at Punt, and the Egyptian commander of the fleet pitched his tent on the shore, where he was received in friendship by Perehu, the chief of Punt, his wife and three children. It had been so long that any Egyptian had been seen in Punt that when they first saw them, they cried out: Why have ye come here to this land, which the people know not? Did ye descend upon the roads of heaven, or did ye sail the waters upon the sea of God's Land? The chief of the Puntites and the people were won with gifts; and soon the vessels were laden with marvels of the country, all the goodly fragrant woods of God's Land, heaps of myrrh-resin, fresh myrrh trees, ebony and pure ivory, green gold of Emu, cinnamon bark, incense, eye cosmetics; baboons, monkeys, dogs, animal skins, natives and their children. Never was such a fleet of cargo brought to any king of Egypt, since the beginning of man. The fleet arrived at Thebes, and the inhabitants had never before been more excited than with the glamour and the success of the expedition to Punt, the original land of God. A procession consisting of the natives of Punt, and the strange products and animals of the far-off country, passed through the streets to the queen's palace, where the Egyptian commander of the fleet presented them to Queen Hatshepsut. After



Map of Egypt
(from first cataract to Delta region)

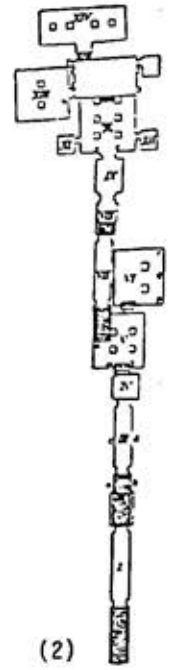
FIRST CATARACT

FIRST CATARACT

hearing the report of their expedition, and inspecting all that was brought, the queen immediately presented a portion to her god Amon, together with the tribute of Nubia, with which Punt was classed. She offered the god thirty-one choicest of the myrrh-trees, electrum (gold-silver alloy), throw-sticks, eye cosmetics, ivory and ebony, a live southern panther which was especially caught for her, several panther skins, and three thousand and three hundred small cattle; huge piles of myrrh of twice a man's weight, and large rings of gold, used as money, were weighed in tall balances ten feet high. Then Hatshepsut summoned the royal court to hear the report of the expedition; and asked the court to formally bestow places of honor upon her most cherished and loved architect Senmut, and the chief treasurer Nehsi. And she announced to the royal court all the success of the expedition, and the command of Amon's oracle to plant the myrrh trees of God's Land in the garden of His temple. Thus, a terraced myrrh garden for the Lord, large enough for the gods to walk in it, was planted at this uniquely designed royal tomb, and its chapel or temple.

Large masonry or Mastaba tombs and pyramids were now replaced by the mortuary temple. Mortuary chapels on the east side of the structure were used until the time of Pharaoh Ahmose (1580-1557 B.C.); but they had been gradually declining in size and popularity, though the shafts and chambers under it and the chapel before it remained relatively large. Amenhotep I (1557-1545 B.C.) was last of the Pharaohs to follow the ancient tradition, and his men had hewn a passage about two hundred feet long in the western cliffs of Thebes, which terminated in a mortuary chamber for the embalmed body of the Pharaoh. Before the cliff, at the entrance to the passage, they built a modest mortuary chapel, covered by a pyramidal roof. But Thutmose I separated the tomb from the mortuary chapel before it. The mortuary temple still remained upon the plain at the foot of the cliffs; but the sepulchre chamber, with the passage leading to it was hewn into the rocky wall of the desolate valley of the kings; lying behind the western cliffs, about two miles straight from the river, and accessible only by a long detour northward, requiring nearly twice that distance. The exact location where the king's body was entombed was to be kept in ultimate secrecy, none seeing and none hearing.

(1)



(2)

1. A scene of the Valley of the Kings' Tombs, Thebes (entrance of two tombs is at the right of the center). 2. Ground plan of the Tomb of Seti I, from the Valley of the Kings' Tombs at Thebes. The shaded portions are descending steps. I-IV and VII-IX are galleries, which descend as they advance. The other rooms are pillared halls. In hall X was the magnificent alabaster sarcophagus of the king.

The temple design under Senmut, the architect of the temple and Hapuseneb, chief architect and her vizier, was unique in that the sepulchre was still behind the chapel or temple on the east of the tomb, as before, but the two were now separated by the intervening cliffs. (The valley of the kings tombs in Thebes continued to be the burial place of the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Dynasties; over forty tombs of the Theban kings had been hewn there.) Hatshepsut's terraced sanctuary or temple was her mortuary temple, dedicated also to her father Thutmose I. As the tombs in the valley behind began to multiply, there arose upon the plain in front of them temple after temple endowed for the mortuary service of the departed Pharaohs and gods, who had once ruled the land; these temples were also sacred to the state god Amon. And each such temple bore a special name pertinent to their mortuary function. (The temple of Thutmose III, for example, was called "Gift of Life." One of the architects of Hatshepsut's temple, who was also her vizier, supervised the cutting and building of her tomb in the eastern wall, directly behind the terraced temple. The passage descended at a sharp decline for several hundred feet, terminating in several chambers, one of which contained two sarcophagi, one for her, and the other for her father.

Terraced mortuary temple of Hatshepsut. Northern collonades on the middle terrace, at Dar El-Bahri, Thebes.

The empire of Hatshepsut extended from the third cataract of the Nile to the Euphrates. The English translation of her own records (inscriptions), concerning her dominion and accomplishments, follows:

> My southern boundary is as far as Punt; my eastern boundary reaches the marshes of Asia, and the Asiatics (Shemitics) are in my grasp; my western boundary is as far as the mountain of Manu (the first god and king who dwells in the mountain of the sunset). My fame is among all the sand-dwellers (Beduins and Arabs). The myrrh of Punt has been brought to me; all the luxurious marvels of that country were brought to my palace in one collection. They have brought me the choicest products of cedar, of juniper and of meru wood, all the sweet and goodly wood of God's Land (Punt). The tribute of Tehenu (Libya) consisting of ivory and seven hundred tusks, numerous panther skins of five cubits long and four cubits wide. I have restored that which was in ruins; I have raised up that which was unfinished since the Asiatics (Hyksos) were in the midst of Avaris of the Northland (Delta), and the barbarians were in the midst of them, overthrowing that which had been made, while they ruled in ignorance of Re (the Sun or Son-God).

(1) Head of Thutmose III from his mummy.

(2) Head of Amenhotep II, son of Thutmose III. (Cairo Museum)

It had been nearly eight years since Hatshepsut and Thutmose III had regained their throne; and fifteen years since they were first enthroned. As it was the queen who was appointed heir to the throne, and not her husband Thutmose III, he developed hostility and resented his wife, and the glory which was hers. The queen had now begun to make preparation for her jubilee, the thirtieth year of her reign; and she called the chief architect of the empire, Senmut, and instructed him to proceed to the granite quarries at the first cataract of the Nile and to secure two monolithic shafts for obelisks, to be erected in memorial of her jubilee; for it was the custom of the times to do so. With a necessary number of corveé forced labor, Senmut began work early in the month of February, in the fifteenth year of her reign (1487 B.C.). By early August, six months later, his men had freed the granite blocks from the quarry. These gigantic shafts were the tallest and the heaviest ever cut, transported or erected in the history of the world; each shaft weighing nearly three hundred and fifty tons; and above ground height after erection measuring one hundred feet (now only ninety-seven and a half feet high, after some three thousand four hundred and seventy-five years).

These gigantic obelisks, after they had been cut from the quarry, were transported from the first cataract of the Nile on a huge barge, which was towed by thirty galleys, with a total of nine hundred and sixty oarsmen (thirty-two men in each galley). These obelisks were erected in the sixteenth year of Hatshepsut's joint reign with her husband Thutmose III, instead of in the thirtieth year, as was the custom, due to her illness and upcoming death; less than five years later she joined the world of the dead. From 1480 B.C., Thutmose III began the rule alone for the next thirty-three years; and in his jealousy and revenge now he took upon himself glory without performing deeds of worthiness or sacrifice, and began to erase the name of his wife from as many places as possible. At Karnak a masonry sheathing was built around her obelisk, to cover her name and the record of her erection of them on the base; in the terraced temple, on the walls her figure and name were hacked out by Thutmose III, her husband; and he became the great Empire builder, and many lands became tributaries to his Egyptian empire. When the king died, and the news of his death reached the lands under tribute, they revolted against the annual tribute. Amenhotep II, his son, had reigned as coregent about a year, when Thutmose died; and became the king of Egypt in 1448 B.C. Then came the reigns of Thutmose IV, Amenhotep III, Amenhotep IV (Akhenaton), Sakere, and Tutenemen (Tutenkhamen or Tutenkhamon).

Tutenemen (Tutenkhamen) on his throne receiving Shemitic envoys bearing tribute. In his left hand are the crook and flail of god Osiris, and the sign for life (ankh) in his right hand. In front of him is his vizier with a sign "to rule" in his left hand, and an ostrich feather duster in his right hand. The Shemites, or Arabs and Hebrews, are shown in their beards; and the Shemitic merchants and businessmen are shown in gay robes. (The arrow points to Tutenemen's name in hieroglyphics.)

The Eighteenth Dynasty ended with Tutenemen, son of Amenhotep IV (Akhenaton). He was married to Ankhsenpaaton (Ankhesenamun), the younger daughter of Amenhotep IV and Nefertiti. His father had introduced to his people the worship of god Aton (Adam), the god in the sun's disk, as the son of god. Tutenemen died at the age of about nineteen years. Eye, a noble of Amenhotep IV (Ikhnaton, Akhenaton), then became the Pharaoh; and after building his tomb in the valley of the kings in Thebes, passed away. Thebes and parts of Egypt now became prey to invaders, marauders, and plundering bands; and the government became an anarchy. Thus, the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egyptian (Hamitic) rulers, which lasted some two hundred and thirty-four years, ended with Tutenemen (Tutenkhamen) and Eye, and the Nineteenth Dynasty began with Harmhab.

Also by the time of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt, c.1580 - c.1346 B.C., and even before the expedition to the land of Punt, successful expeditions to Jambudvipa (India) were made, and en masse migrations and colonizations by the Egyptians via sea, and Asians via land to India were completed. In both lands, India and Egypt, the priesthood of Abraham (Brahama), an offshoot of the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God, became the predominant influence upon the daily lives of kings, priests and their adherents. There was no man more loved and revered by the Egyptians, besides Joseph (Yoseph), than Abraham the high priest of the Holy Order; for, they loved him not only for his righteousness, but also the knowledge and understanding that he possessed. After the priesthood of Abraham (Brahama) was established, the priests of the Holy Order came to be known as the Brahamans; and the priesthood and kingship were divided to govern the empires, based upon the division of all societies into three classes or castes, namely: the Brahamans (of the spirit of Abraham) or the priests and scholars, whose duty was to study, to sacrifice, and to give and receive gifts; the Kshatriyas were the rulers and fighters (warriors), whose duty was to protect the people, to sacrifice and to study; the Vaishyas were to breed cattle, till the ground, pursue trade, lend money, and also to sacrifice and study; and the Shudras were to serve the above three higher classes or castes. This division of society, based on human nature, prevails unto this day in all countries of the world, both primitive and developed. The Egyptians who migrated to India believed that all actions arise from the three natures of man, namely: sattva nature, which is virtue and goodness; rajas nature, which is desire and passion; and tamas nature, which is darkness and dullness.

To the Egyptians and the Indians, the primeval lawgiver Manu dwelt in the mountain of the sunset (although there were numerous other beliefs about Manu). They believed that the Gospel of the Sun (Son) was formerly taught unto Vivaswat the Sun (Son); Vivaswat communicated it to Manu the first lawgiver, who reigned over the sensuous world; and Manu made it known to Ikshwaku, the founder of the Indian solar dynasty. In the Egyptian-Hindu tradition, life and the universe were governed by three processes: Creation, represented by the god Brahama (the spirit of Abraham); Preservation, represented by god Vishnu; and Destruction represented by god Shiva (Siva, Sheva). A glimpse into the Indian Scriptures of this period, the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt, can be gained by the following three extracts, although they were written centuries before:

> When greed and wrath disturbed human relationships men inflicted untold misery upon one another. Although they agreed to respect each other's life and property, they had no confidence in their agreements. Thus they approached the high god Brahama to help them; and he nominated Manu to be their first king. When Brahama first appointed Manu, he demurred, fearing that he would be responsible for the sins of the people; but the people were so direly in need of government that they promised that their sins would be upon their own heads, and undertook to give Manu a share of their crop.
>
> * * *
>
> Where the land is kingless, the cloud, lightning-wreathed and loud-voiced, gives no rain to the earth.
>
> Where the land is kingless, the son does not honor his father, nor the wife her husband.
>
> When the land is kingless, men do not meet in assemblies, nor make lovely gardens and temples.
>
> When the land is kingless, the rich are unprotected, and shepherds and peasants sleep with bolted doors.
>
> A river without water, a forest without grass, a herd of cattle without the herdmen, is the land without a king.
>
> * * *
>
> When the world was without a king, and dispersed in fear in all directions, the Lord created a king for the protection of all. He made him of eternal particles of Indra (higher god than Aruna, of cosmic order), and the god of wind (Shu), of Yama (god of the dead), the Sun and Fire; of god Varuna (second only to Indra), and the Moon and the god of Wealth. And because he has been formed of the fragments of all these gods, and more, the king surpasses all other beings in splendour. Even an infant king is not to be despised, as though a mere mortal, for he is a god in human form. And if the king did not inflict punishment untiringly upon the evil-doers, the stronger would roast the weaker, like fish upon a spit. The whole world is controlled by punishment, for a guiltless man is hard to find. Know it then, my son, that where dark and red-eyed punishment walks the land, destroying sinners, the people are not harassed, if he who inflicts it is discerning.

* * *

And the Lord was with the Egyptians and the priesthood of Abraham (the order of the Brahamans) who migrated to Jambudvipa, later known as India. They called the name of their Lord and Savior Kristna, Krishna, or Christna (Christ, or Khristos in Greek, meaning the anointed one); who manifested Himself unto the people in various forms, in various times and places. Holy Krishna was none other than the Holy One of Israel, or the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The teachings of Lord Krishna to a prince of India, named Arjuna or Nara (meaning man), which are part of the Holy Writ, were recorded during the period of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt (c.1580-1346 B.C.). The substance of His teachings includes:

Those who are wise in spiritual things grieve neither for the dead nor for the living; but I myself never was not, nor thou, nor all the princes of the world, yet we must never cease to be. As the master of each mortal frame experienceth infancy, youth and old age, so in future rebirths or incarnations (evolutions), will it meet the same. One who is confirmed in this belief is not disturbed by that which befalls him. The senses, moving toward their natural or desired objects, are the producers of heat and cold, pleasure and pain, and are transient and temporary; they come and go, they are brief and in a constant state of change. These, my son, thou should endure and conquer; for who is not disturbed by them is wise and is fitted for immortality and eternal life. Those who see the truth and look into the principle of things, find the deepest of treasures revealed to them and the mysteries of heaven and earth unfolded.

Learn then, O conqueror of wealth, that He by whom all things were formed is incorruptible, indestructible, and eternal. All finite bodies, which envelope the souls inhabiting them, belong to Him, the eternal, the indestructible and unprovable Spirit inside the body of man. The man who believeth that it is this Spirit which killeth or can be killed or destroyed, are both alike deceived; for it neither killeth nor is killed. It is not a thing of which man may say: It hath been, it is about to be, or it is to be hereafter, for the Spirit is without birth and meeteth not death; it is ancient, constant, and eternal; and it is not slain, when its mortal frame is destroyed. How can the man who believeth that it is incorruptible, eternal, inexhaustible, without birth, think that it can either kill or cause to be killed? As man throweth away old garments and putteth on new, even so the spirit of man having quitted its old mortal frames, entereth into others which are new. The weapons divideth it not, the water corrupteth it not, the wind drieth it not. For it is indivisible, inconsumable, incorruptible, and not ever to be exhausted; it is eternal, universal, permanent, invisible, inconceivable, and unalterable.

Death, my son, is certain to all things which are born, and rebirth to all mortals; wherefore it doth not behoove man to grieve about the inevitable. The prenatal state of being is unknown to man; the middle state is evident; and the last state, and the state after death are not to be discovered. Yea, my son, cast thine eyes upon the nature and duties of any tribe (caste or class) that thou mayst behold, that thou may know, a soldier of the Kshatriya tribe (caste) hath no duty superior to that of a lawful war or the protection of people or to govern in a certain manner; to the tribe (caste) of the Brahaman no duty is superior to studying, teaching, sacrificing, and giving and receiving gifts; and to the tribe (caste) of Vaishya there is no duty superior to that of farming and trade. But, if the man does not perform the duty of his tribe (caste) and calling, he hath abandoned his natural duty, thus has fallen and become guilty. The unwise, taking delight in the controversies of the Scriptures, tainted with the worldly lusts, prefer a transient enjoyment to eternal bliss; whilst they declare there is no other reward. They proclaim the attainment of worldly riches, enjoyments, pretensions, and mockery of God the Creator; to them rewards are provided in future births for present action; these indulge in numerous rituals and ceremonies, the fruit of which is merit, leading to power and objects of enjoyment. Know it then, my son, those who seek temporal rewards, riches and enjoyments of the world, lose hold upon their soul, and cannot prayerfully meditate. Thus a man cannot become a Brahaman, that is, he cannot become a priest in the priesthood of Abraham. Be thou therefore free from these worldly pairs of opposites; and seek constancy in virtue; avoid worldly anxiety and the desire to preserve present possessions; become self-centered and uncontrolled by the objects of mind or sense. Let thy motive for action be in the action itself, and not in the results of the action. Do not be incited to actions by the hope of their reward, nor let thy life be spent in inaction; but perform the act without any thought to its rewards. Lay aside all desire for any benefit to thyself from action, and make each event equal to thee, whether it be success or failure. Know it also, my son, that the performance of (physical) works is by far inferior to mental devotion, and obedience to the Lord thy God, O despiser of wealth. Seek an asylum, then, in the service of God through meditation. Indeed, miserable and unhappy are those whose impulse to action is found in its reward. Thou must then acquire knowledge of the skill in the performance of actions. Therefore do thou aspire to this sacred knowledge in service of God. Yea, my son, those who have renounced all reward for their actions meet no rebirth in this life, and go to that eternal blissful abode which is free from all disease and troubles.

When thine heart shall have worked through the snares of delusion, then thou wilt attain a high level of indifference to unnecessary action; and thy mind once liberated by the knowledge of the Gospel shall be fixed immovably in contemplation and confirmed in spiritual knowledge. A man is confirmed in spiritual knowledge when he forsaketh every desire which enters into his heart, and of himself is happy and content. His mind is undisturbed in adversity; he is happy and content in prosperity; he is a stranger to anxiety, fear, and anger. Such a man is called a Muni, a wise man. When in every condition a man receives each event, favorable or unfavorable, with an equal mind, neither likes nor dislikes, his wisdom is established, and he is confirmed in spiritual knowledge. He is likened to the tortoise who can draw in all his senses and restrain them from their natural purposes. The hungry man loseth sight of every other object but the gratification of his appetite; and when he becomes acquainted with Supreme, the Lord, he loseth all taste for objects of whatever sense. The tumultuous senses and organs of man hurry away by force the heart even of the wise man who might sit upon the throne or striveth after perfection. Let a man, restraining all sensual stimulation, remain in faithful devotion at rest in the Lord, which dwells in the higher self of man. Thus who hath his senses and organs in control possesses spiritual knowledge.

And he who attendeth to the inclinations of the senses, or a man after his own heart, finds that in them he hath concern, his soul is bound in them. From this concern and bondage of soul is created passion; from passion ariseth anger; from anger is produced delusion; from delusion a loss of the memory; from the loss of memory is produced loss of discrimination; and from loss of discrimination results the loss of all. The man whose heart and mind are not at rest is without wisdom or the power of contemplation. And a man who doth not practice reflection, hath no calm; and without calm happiness cannot be found. The uncontrolled heart, following the dictates of the moving passions, snatcheth away the spiritual knowledge, as the storm the bark upon the raging ocean. Therefore, my son, only he whose senses are withheld from objects of sense, can be a worthy partaker of the spiritual knowledge. What is night to those who dwell in the darkness, is as day to the gaze of the one who hath risen above his senses. The man whose desires enter his heart, as waters run into the unswelling passive ocean, which, though ever full, does not overflow its bed, obtaineth happiness; not he who lusteth in his lusts. A man who hath freed himself from the attachment or repulsion for objects, experiences them through the senses and organs, with his heart obedient to his will, attains to tranquility of thought. And this tranquil state attained, soon results in separation from all troubles, and his mind thus at ease and fixed upon the Lord, it embraceth wisdom from all sides. The man who, having abandoned all unrighteous desires, acts without covetousness, selfishness or pride, deeming himself neither actor nor possessor, enters into the glorious rest of the Lord. Behold, my son, the dependence upon the Supreme Spirit of the Lord, and the possession of the Holy Spirit protects man from going astray while in the world; and at the hour of death, he passeth on to the eternal bliss of salvation, in the Most High God.

A man enjoyeth not freedom from action, from non-commencement of that which he hath to do; nor doth he obtain happiness from total abandonment of action. No one ever resteth a moment inactive. Every man is involuntarily urged to act by the qualities which spring from his nature. He who remains inert, restraining the senses and organs, yet pondering in his heart upon the objects of sense, is a false pietist of bewildered soul. But he who having subdued all his passions performeth with his active faculties all the duties of life, unconcerned as to their results or rewards, is to be highly revered and esteemed. Perform thou proper actions, for action is superior to inaction; the journey of thy mortal frame cannot be accomplished by inaction. Now, my son, all actions performed other than sacrifice unto the Lord, make the actor bound by action. Therefore abandon all selfish motives; and perform thy duty for the Lord alone. When the Lord God in ancient times had formed mankind, and appointed His worship, He spoke and said: With this worship, pray for increase, and let it be for you Kamaduk, the cow of plenty, on which ye shall depend for the accomplishment of all your wishes. Nourish the Gods, that the Gods may nourish thee; and thus mutually nourishing, ye shall obtain the highest felicity. The Gods being nourished by worship with sacrifice, will grant thee fulfillment of all of thy wishes, desires, needs and aspirations. He who enjoyeth that which is given unto him by Them, and offereth not a portion thereof, is even as a thief; but those who eat not but what is left of the offerings, shall be purified of all their transgressions. Those who dress their meat but for themselves, eat the bread of sin, being themselves embodiment of sin. He who sinfully takes delight in the gratification of his passion lives in delusion and in vanity. Therefore, my son, perform all thy tasks and duties at all times being unmindful of the attachment to the result. If thou considereth the good of mankind only, then know that whatever is practiced by the most excellent of men, the same shall be practiced by others. The world follows the example of others. There is nothing, my son, in the three regions of the universe (the realms of the Brahaman, the Kshatriyas, and the Vaishyas, and the three natures of man, namely: sattva or virtue, rajas or passion, and tamas or dullness) which is necessary for Myself to perform, nor possible for Me to obtain which I have not obtained; and yet I am constantly in action. If I were not indefatigable in action, all men would follow my example. And if I did not perform actions these creatures would perish; I would then become the cause of confusion of the castes and natures of man. As the ignorant perform the duties of life from the hope of reward, so the wise man performs his actions without motives or interest. He should not create confusion in the understandings of the ignorant who are inclined to outward works, but by being himself in action should cause them to act. All actions are effected by the qualities of the nature of man. Now, my beloved son, the faith of mortals is of three kinds; and is born from their own disposition or nature. It is of the quality of truth and virtue - sattva; the quality of passion and action — rajas; and indifference — tamas. The faith of each, my son, proceeds from the sattva quality; the embodied soul being gifted with faith, each man is of the same nature as that ideal on which his faith is fixed. Those who are of the disposition which ariseth from the sattva or good quality worship the Lord, and possess the knowledge of the Gods and the angels and His Kingdom; those of the quality of rajas worship the celestial powers (Yakshas and Rakshasas); yet other men in whom the dark quality of indifference or tamas predominates, worship elemental powers and the ghosts of the dead and the spirits of the underworld. Both the man deluded by ignorance thinking that he is the actor; and the man who practiceth severe self-mortification, not enjoined in the Scriptures, are full of hypocrisy and pride; longing for what is past and desiring more to come. Yea, my son, being full of delusion, they torture the powers and faculties within the body and also the Lord, who dwells in the recesses of the innermost heart; such an one is of infernal tendency, his hand is against every man, and every man's hand against him.

Know thou, my son, as there are the three natures of man, so are there three kinds of foods, sacrifices, mortifications, and charity. The food which increases the length of days, vigor and strength; nourishes the body and enlivens the soul; prevents illness and strengthens the body; food which is savory and appealing to the eyes, and agrees with one's body, is chosen and eaten by those in whom prevaileth the sattva or virtue quality. The food which is over bitter, too acid, too salty, hot and pungent, dry and burning, causeth discomfort or pain, is preferred by those in whom prevaileth the rajas or passion quality. And whatsoever food which is tasteless and impure, old or rotting, and causeth disease is preferred by those in whom the quality of tamas or indifference prevaileth.

Those who perform sacrifice or worship according to the Scriptures, and expect no reward, but are convinced that it must be done out of necessity, are those in whom the sattva, or virtue quality prevaileth. They are the source of light and goodness. But those who worship or sacrifice with a view to its results, with ostentatious piety or inherent propitiation, belong to passion, the quality of rajas nature. And those who worship or sacrifice without faith, without charity, and without regards to the Scriptures, without being grateful to the Lord, are of the quality of tamas or dullness.

Know it also, my son, that honoring the Lord, the Gods and the angels, the teachers, and the wise; chastity, and gentleness, are called mortification or austerities of body. Pure speech which causes no anxiety, and diligence in reading the Scriptures are said to be mortification or austerities of speech. Serenity of mind, mildness of temper, silence, self-restraint, absolute straightforwardness of conduct are called mortification or austerities of mind. This three-fold mortification or austerity practiced with faith in the Lord, without any expectation of reward, is of the sattva quality. But the mortification or austerities practiced with hypocrisy, for the sake of gaining recognition or respect, or other advantages belonging wholly to the world, is of the quality of rajas. And those who practice mortification or austerities merely by wounding oneself or from ignorance or false judgement, or hurting others are of the quality of tamas.

Those gifts bestowed at proper time to the proper person by men who are not desirous of a return, are of the sattva quality, and are good and of the nature of truth. But the gift which is given with the expectation of a return or with reluctance, is of rajas quality, bad and partaketh of untruth. Gifts given out of place and season to unworthy persons, with inattention and scornfully, are of tamas quality, wholly bad and of the nature of darkness.

OM TAT SAT, my son, are the threefold designation of the Most High God, the Lord God, the Supreme Being. By these in the beginning were sanctified and hallowed the priests of the Holy Order, the Brahamanas (the men of the priesthood of Abraham); and the rites and ceremonies at the temples.

The sacrifices, mortifications or austerities and alms-giving are always practiced by those who expound the Scriptures, preceded by the word OM. Among those who long for immortality, and who do not consider the reward for their action, the word TAT precedes rites of sacrifice, mortifications or austerities and charity. The state of mental sacrifice when actions are at rest is called SAT. The word SAT is used for the qualities that are true and holy. Whatever is done without faith, whether sacrifice, mortifications or charity, is called ASAT, that which is devoid of truth and goodness; and is not of any benefit either in this life or after death.

The bards conceive that forsaking of action is renunciation or Sankhya; and the wise call the disregard of the fruit of action, disinterestedness in action; and by some wise men it is said, "Every action is as much to be avoided as crime." Know it then, my son, that the deeds of sacrifice, mortification and charity are not to be abandoned, for they are purifiers of the wise; but they must be performed without the expectation of rewards or selfish interests. The abstention from action which is necessary and obligatory is improper; and non-performance of such action is due to delusion springing from the quality of tamas, or dullness. Refraining from works because they are painful or annoying is the quality of rajas nature, which belongs to passion. The work, my beloved son, which is performed because it is necessary, obligatory, and proper, devoid of all self-interest, or attachment to the result or fruits of the action, is declared to be the quality of sattva nature, the quality of truth and goodness. The true renouncer of action, full of goodness and truth, exempt from all doubt, is equal-minded when he fails or when he succeeds. It is impossible for mortals to utterly abandon action; but he who gives up the results of action is the true renouncer. The knowledge which enables one to perceive all things through the Holy Spirit is of sattva quality; the knowledge which enables one to perceive different manifold principles of the temporal world pertains to the rajas quality, the quality of passion; and the knowledge wholly without value, which is mean, and attached to one object or thing alone, as if it were the whole, and denies the Holy Spirit is of the tamas quality, that of dullness, indifference and darkness.

Thus, all actions which are necessary, obligatory and proper; and are performed without attachment to results, free from selfish interest or pride, are of the sattva quality; that which is done with a view to its rewards and attachment to its results is of the quality of rajas; and that which is performed without regard to the harm it may cause others, in consequence of delusion, is of the quality of tamas. The doer who performs necessary actions unattached to their rewards, with equal-mindedness, is of the quality of sattva, truth and goodness; the doer whose actions are performed with attachment to the results, with exertion, for the gratification of his lusts, with pride and covetousness, uncleanness, with rejoicing and grieving, is of the quality of rajas, passion and desire. And the doer who is ignorant, foolish, undertakes action without ability, devoid of discrimination, slothful, deceitful, mischievous, pretentious, is of the quality of tamas, or dullness. Now, know my son, that the discerning power that knows how and when to begin and renounce, what is to be feared and what not, what takes soul into bondage and what sets it free, what is good and what is evil, is of the sattva quality. The discernment which does not fully know what ought to be done, what should be feared, what is good or evil, is of the passion-born rajas quality. And the discriminating power which is lost in obscurity, mistaking wrong for right, and all things contrary to their true intent and meaning, is of the dark and dull quality of tamas.

The power of steadfastness which builds and perfects man, and prayer and supplication which control his motion of the mind, breath, senses, organs, partaketh of the sattva quality; that which cherisheth duty, pleasure and wealth, and looketh to the fruits of action is of the quality of rajas; and that which keeps the man of low capacity fast in drowsiness, fear, grief, vanity, and rashness, is from the tamas quality. Now, hear my son, what are the three kinds of pleasures, wherein happiness comes from one's nature, and pain is ended. That pleasure which in the beginning is like poison and ends as the water of life, and ariseth from a purified understanding, is declared to be of sattva quality; that pleasure arising from the connection of the senses with other objects, which in the beginning is sweet, but the end is like poison, is of the quality of rajas; and the pleasure which both in the beginning and the end, arising from dullness and carelessness, tendeth to numb the soul, is of the dark quality of tamas. There is no creature on earth nor among the hosts of heaven who is free from these three qualities which arise from the nature of man.

The respective duties of the four castes, Brahamans (men of the priesthood of Abraham), Kshatriyas (rulers and warriors), Vaishyas (merchants and farmers), and Shudras (servants of the three higher castes), are also determined by the qualities which predominate in the disposition of each, my beloved son. The natural duty of Brahaman includes tranquility, purity, self-mastery, patience, uprightness, studying, spiritual discernment and the belief in the existence of the hereafter, the afterworld; the natural duties of the Kshatriya are valor, physical strength, pride and glory, war and lordly character; the natural duties of the Vaishya are to till the ground, tend cattle, buy and sell; and the natural duty of the Shudra is to serve, according to their natural dispositions. Therefore, men being contented and devoted to their own natural duties attain perfection. The performance of the duties in harmony with man's nature, although devoid of excellence, is better than doing the duty of another, however well performed. Thus, he who fulfills the duties of his respective nature, even though stained with faults, ought not be abandoned.

The attainment of the Holy Spirit is the highest condition of spiritual knowledge. A man embued with pure discrimination and constancy, restraining himself with resolution, having rejected the charms of sound and objects of sense, casting off attachments and aversions, in control of his speech, body and mind, prayerfully fixed in dispassion; abandoning egotism, arrogance, vanity, desire, anger, pride, possession, and hostility, is fitted to receive the Holy Spirit. And having thus attained the Holy Spirit, he becomes serene, sorrowing no more, and no more bound by desires, attains the supreme oneness with the Lord. Thus I have made known unto thee this knowledge which is a mystery more secret than secrecy itself; ponder it fully, my son, in thy mind and act as seemeth best unto thee. Furthermore, know for a surety that there are two kinds of men in the world, those who are godlike and those who are demoniacal. Fearlessness, sincerity, diligence in prayer and meditation, generosity, self-restraint, piety, charity and alms-giving, study, practice of austerity or mortification, uprightness, harmlessness, truthfulness, freedom from anger, equal-mindedness, discretion and discrimination, universal compassion, modesty, mildness of temper, patience, self-control, purity, dignity, forgiveness (unrevengefulness), freedom from desire and conceit; these are the marks of him whose virtues are of godlike character, my son. But those who are born with demoniacal dispositions are marked by hypocrisy, pride, anger, presumption, harshness of speech, ignorance, and such. The fate of those whose attributes are godlike is salvation, final liberation from bondage; while the fate of those who possess demoniacal dispositions is perpetual bondage to mortal birth; they are said to possess the nature of the Asuras. They know not the nature of action nor the cessation from action; neither do they possess right behavior, purity, or truthfulness. They deny that the world has any truth in it, saying: It is not governed by law, it hath no Holy Spirit; and they declare: creatures are produced alone through the union of the sexes, and that all is enjoyment only. Maintaining this view, their soul being ruined, their minds contracted and natures perverted, they become enemies of the world, and live to destroy the world. They indulge in insatiable desires, are full of hypocrisy, fast-fixed in false beliefs and pretentions through their delusions. They indulge in unlimited reflections and introspections which only end in annihilation; convinced until death that enjoyment of the objects of their desires is supreme good. Fast bound by the hundred cords of desire, they become prone to lust, anger, and hostility; so they seek unjust gains, unrighteous dominion, and the accumulation of wealth for the gratification of their lusts and appetites. "This today hath been acquired by me, and that object of my heart I shall obtain; this wealth I have, and that also shall be mine; this foe have I already slain, and the other will I forthwith vanquish; I am the master, I am powerful, and I am happy. I am rich and with precedence among men; where is there another like unto me? I shall make sacrifices, give charity and enjoy." In this manner do those speak who are deluded. Confounded by all manner of desires, entangled in the net of delusion, firmly attached to the gratification of their desires, they descend into hell (sheol, jehenna), the underworld of the spiritually dead. Esteeming themselves very highly, self-willed, full of pride and ever in pursuit of riches, they perform worship with hypocrisy and against the guidance of the Scriptures, ostentatiously imitating the right and proper performance of rituals; their worship is only for outward display. Indulging in pride, selfishness, ostentation, power, lust, and anger, they detest the Lord and the Holy Spirit. Wherefore the Lord continually bringeth these cruel haters into wombs of an infernal nature in this world of rebirth. And they being doomed to those infernal wombs, become more and more deluded in each succeeding rebirth, and go to the lowest region. This is the final annihilation of those who deny their own soul and thus lose it. It is worse than hell, for there is no return.

Now, My son, the gates of hell are three: desire, anger and covetousness. These poison the soul and ruin it. Being free from these three gates of hell, a man worketh for the salvation of his soul, and proceeds to the highest path, which is given to him through the Scriptures. But he who abandoneth the ordinances and the commandments of the Scriptures, and follows the dictates of his own desires, attaineth neither perfection nor happiness, nor the highest path. It is said, My son, that the eternal sacred tree (Ashwattha) grows with its roots above and its branches below, and the leaves of which are the Scriptures. Its branches growing out of the three qualities (sattva, rajas, and tamas); with the objects of sense as the lesser shoots, spread forth, some above and some below; and those roots which branch out below in the regions of mankind are the connecting bonds of action. When one hath hewn down with strong axe of dispassion this Ashwattha tree with its deeply-imbedded roots, and become free of lust, pride and attachment to action and its results and rewards, and prayerfully seeks Divine guidance, he reaches that place of refuge from where he no more returns to rebirth; from the Supreme place floweth the never-ending stream of conditioned existence.

There are two kinds of people in this world, My son, namely: divisible and indivisible. The divisible is all things and creatures, the indivisible is called Kutastha, meaning who standeth on high unaffected. And the Holy Krishna the Lord is above the divisible and the indivisible; therefore both in the world and in the Scriptures He is known as the Supreme Spirit. The man who is not deluded knoweth Him, as the Lord, or Christ, the Supreme Ruler. The Holy Order is the womb of the Lord in which He places the seed of His choice; and thence begins the production of all existing things. This Priesthood is the womb for all those various forms which are produced from any womb; and the Lord providing the seed is the Father of all that exists.

The three qualities called sattva, rajas, and tamas — light and truth, passion and desire, indifference and darkness — are born from nature and bind the imperishable soul to the body, My beloved son. Of these the sattva quality by reason of its brightness and peacefulness releases the soul, but binds it through attachment to knowledge and that which is pleasant; the nature of rajas, bound by desire, produces thirst and propensity, and imprisoneth the soul through consequences produced from action. The quality of tamas is the deluder of all creatures; it arises from the indifference in nature; it imprisoneth the soul in a body through heedless folly, numbness of mind, and idleness. The sattva quality attaches the soul through happiness and pleasure; the rajas through action, and tamas attaches the soul through heedlessness. When the qualities of tamas and rajas are overcome, then that of sattva prevaileth; tamas quality prevails when sattva and rajas are hidden; and when sattva and tamas diminish, then the quality of rajas prevaileth. When wisdom, the right light, becomes evident at every gate of the body, then one may know that sattva quality is prevalent within. The love of gain, activity in action, and initiating of works out of restlessness and inordinate desire is produced when the quality of rajas prevails within; and the presence of tamas quality is manifested in absence of brightness, presence of idleness, heedlessness, and delusion.

Now, my son, if man dies when sattva quality prevails within him, the soul of that person proceeds to the spotless spheres of those who are acquainted with the highest place, the place of eternal bliss. If a man dies when rajas quality prevails within him, the soul is born again in a body attached to action. And if a man dies when tamas quality prevails within him, the soul is born again in the wombs of those who are deluded.

The fruit of righteous acts is declared pure and holy, and it pertains to sattva; from rajas the fruit is gathered in pain; and the tamas yields nothing, but senselessness, ignorance, and indifference. From sattva wisdom is produced, from rajas desire, and from tamas ignorance, delusion and folly. Those in whom the sattva quality is established mount on high in celestial sphere, those who are full of rajas remain in the terrestrial sphere, the temporal world; and those in whom the dark and gloomy quality of tamas prevails, sink below to the subterranean world of the underworld. He, my son, who doth not resent the three qualities of sattva, rajas and tamas — illumination, action and delusion — when they confront him, nor longeth for them when they disappear; like one who is no party, sitteth as one unconcerned about the three qualities, undisturbed by them; who, being persuaded that the qualities exist, is moved not by them; who is of equal mind in pain and pleasure, self-controlled, to whom the value of a lump of earth, a stone, or gold are as one; who is of equal mind with those who love or hate him; he is constant, the same whether blamed or praised, equal-minded in honor and disgrace; engaging only in action which arises out of his nature; such an one hath overcome the qualities and is fitted to be initiated into Brahama the Supreme. Holy Krishna (Kristna, the Anointed One) the Lord is the embodiment of the Supreme Ruler, of eternal law and of endless bliss.

Know also, My son, that prakriti or nature, and purusha the spirit are without beginning of days or end of years; and the three qualities of sattva, rajas, and tamas, spring from nature. Nature or prakriti operates in producing cause and effect in action. It is the cause of all action throughout the universe, as it is the basis by which action may take place; and all actions, whether of gods, of men of power, and everything else are included in prakriti. The universal Spirit of the Father, which is in each body, is called Spirit of Maheshwara, the Great Lord's Spirit; He is also known as the Paramatma or the Highest Soul. He who thus knoweth the Holy Spirit and prakriti or nature; together with the knowledge of the three qualities of nature, lives forever, and dieth not. Know also, my beloved son, that anything, inanimate or animate, comes into existence due to the union of the Kshetra (body) and Kshetrajna (soul). He who is aware of the presence of the Supreme Being the Lord in all things perishable and imperishable, truly seeth indeed. Perceiving the same Lord in everything and everywhere, he does not corrupt his own soul, but goeth to the eternal bliss of salvation; and he sees that his actions are performed by nature only, and that self within is not the actor. As the all-encompassing sky passeth everywhere unaffected, so also the Holy Spirit. As a single sun illuminates the whole world, even so doth the Holy Spirit brighten every body.

Behold, O conqueror of wealth, My forms are by hundreds and by thousands, of diverse kind, of many shapes and fashions. Neither the assemblage of gods nor the adept kings know My origin, because I am the origin of all the gods and of the adepts. Whosoever among men knoweth Me to be the mighty Ruler of the universe, without the beginning of days or end of years, if the same is undeluded, shall be saved and liberated.

All this universe is pervaded by Me in My invisible form; all things exist in Me, but I do not exist in them; nor are all things in Me. Behold this is My divine mystery, the royal knowledge: Myself causing things to exist and supporting them all, but dwelling not in them. Taking control of Mine own nature, I emanate again and again this whole assemblage of being, without their will, by the power of the material essence, by the power of prakriti. These acts do not bind me, O conquerer of wealth, because I am as one who sitteth indifferent, uninterested in these works. By reason of My supervision, nature produceth the animate and inanimate universe; it is through this cause, O My son, that the universe revolveth. The deluded despise Me in human form, being unacquainted with My real nature as the Lord of all things. They are of vain hopes, deluded in action, in reason and in knowledge, inclining to demoniac and deceitful principles, to the nature of the Asuras and Rakhasas (or Rakshasas, a class of evil and elemental beings). But those great of soul, partaking of the godlike nature, knowing the Lord to be the imperishable principle of all things, worship the Lord, with eye single to His glory. Others with the sacrifice of knowledge in other ways worship Me as Indivisible or Separable, the Spirit of the universe. I am the sacrifice and sacrificial rite; I am the libation and spices offered to ancestors; I am the sacred formula and the fire; I am the food and the sacrificial butter; I am the father and the mother of the heaven and earth; the grandsire and the preserver; I am the Holy One; I am the goal, the Comforter, the Lord, the Witness, the resting place, the assylum and the Friend; I am the origin and dissolution, the receptacle, the storehouse, and the eternal seed. I cause the light, and heat and rain; I now draw in and now let forth; I am death, immortality, and eternal life; I am the cause unseen and the visible effect. Those enlightened in the Scriptures, offering acceptable sacrifices unto Me, obtain sanctification from soma or haoma (as in some Christian faiths one drinks of the communion wine, so the Indians and Egyptians used soma in various forms at the end of a sacrifice); thus they attain the region of Indra, the highest of the celestial spheres or the devachan; for Indra is the prince of the celestial beings who abide in Deva-sthan (land of Gods), and there they feast upon celestial food and are gratified with heavenly enjoyments. And they, having enjoyed that heaven for a period in proportion to their merit, sink back into this mortal world where they are born again as soon as their stock of merit is exhausted. Thus those who long for the fulfillment of desires, following the Scriptures, obtain a happiness which comes and goes. But, for those who love and worship Me, I bear the burden of the responsibility for their happiness. And even those also who worship other gods with a firm faith, involuntarily worship Me, too, O My beloved son, however in ignorance. I am He who is the Lord of all sacrifices, and am also their enjoyer; but they do not understand Me fully, and fall from heaven. I accept and enjoy the offerings of the humble soul, who in his worship with a pure heart, offereth a leaf, a flower, a fruit or water unto me. Whatever thou doest, My son, whatever thou eatest, sacrificest, givest, whatever mortification thou performest, commit it unto Me. Thus thou shalt be delivered from the bonds of action. I am the same to all creatures; I know not hatred nor favor; but those who serve Me with love dwell in Me and I in them. Even if the man of most evil ways worships Me with full devotion and repents to cleanse his heart, he is to be considered righteous, for he hath judged aright. Such a man soon becometh of a righteous soul, and obtaineth salvation and happiness. He that worships Me never perisheth. Having obtained this finite, joyless world, worship Me, and serve me; fix thine heart and mind upon Me; be My servant; prostrate thyself before Me, and thus be united unto Me.

Among the thousands of mortals a single one perhaps strives for perfection; and among those so striving perhaps a single one knows Me as I AM. The whole world is deluded by the dispositions that are born of the three qualities, sattva, rajas, and tamas: for this, My divine illusive power, acting through the natural qualities, is difficult to surmount; and only those who can conquer it have recourse to Me alone. The wicked among men, the deluded and the low-minded, deprived of the spiritual perception by this illusion, inclining toward demoniacal disposition, do not have recourse to Me.

Know it also, My son, that four classes of men who work righteousness worship Me: those who are afflicted, the searchers for truth, those who desire possessions, and the wise. Of these the best is the one possessed with the Spiritual knowledge, and is faithful to Me. I am extremely dear to the wise man, and he is dear unto Me. Excellent indeed are all these; but the spiritually wise is verily the same whose heart is at peace, and his eye single to My glory; he shall be led to the highest path, which is unto Myself the Lord. After many births the spiritually wise findeth Me as I AM, but such an one is difficult to find. Those who through diversity of desires are deprived of the spiritual wisdom, adopt rites and ceremonies subordinate to their own natures, and worship gods of the underworld, the gods of the spiritually dead, who disguise themselves as idols to be worshiped. Those who worship other gods go to their gods; and those who worship Me, come unto Me. The ignorant, being unacquainted with My Eternal Nature and my Eternal Throne, believe Me as unmanifested in a visible form. Enveloped by My magical illusions, I am not visible to the world; therefore the world doth not recognize Me as without beginning of days or end of years. I know, My son, all creatures that have been, that are present, and those yet to be, but no one knows Me. At the time of birth, O conqueror of wealth, all beings fall into error by reason of delusion of the opposites which spring from liking or disliking. But, yea, My son, the righteous and the faithful, who sin no more, being free from the delusion of the "pairs of opposites," firmly settled in their faith, worship Me.

Know, My son, renunciation of action and devotion through action are both means of final emancipation from bondage; but of these two, devotion through action is better than renunciation. He is considered to be an ascetic (one who hath truly renounced), who seeks nothing and rejects nothing, being free from the "pairs of opposites." Such man is released from the bonds forged by action. Children only and the unwise speak of renunciation of action and the proper performance of action as being different. He who perfectly practices the one receives the fruits of both; and the degree of salvation which is gained by the renouncer of action, is also gained by him who is devoted in action. The man of purified heart, having his body controlled, senses restrained, and in possession of the Holy Spirit, is not bound by the performance of actions. The man who knoweth the divine truth thinketh: I am doing nothing in seeing, hearing, touching, smelling, eating, moving, sleeping, breathing, speaking, giving and taking, opening or closing his eyes, and sayeth: the senses and the organs move by natural impulse to their appropriate objects.

But, whosoever in performance of his actions, dedicates his actions to the Holy One, the Lord; and puts aside all selfish interests and attachments to objects of sense, does not incur sin, nor is bound by the consequence of the actions, even as the leaf of the lotus is unaffected by the waters. The truly devoted of the Lord, for the purification of their hearts, perform actions with their bodies, their minds, their understanding, and their senses, putting away all self-interest. The man who is devoted and not attached to the fruit of actions obtains tranquility; while he who through desires has attachment for the fruit of actions is bound forever. He whose heart is not attached to the objects of sense, through devotion and unity with the Lord, finds pleasure which is deep, and comes from on high, and lieth under; this is the realm of the imperishable bliss.

Know it also, My son, that he who while living in this world can resist the impulse arising from desire and anger is a blessed devotee, and a partaker of the Supreme Spirit. The anchorite free from desire and anger, who putteth his placid soul away from all senses of touch, with gaze fixed between his brows; who maketh breath to pass through his nostrils with evenness in inspiration and expiration, whose senses and organs are under control, with his eye single to Me (the Lord), is saved and emancipated from all bonds which imprison and poison his soul. Knowing that I, the great Lord of all Worlds, taketh delight in all sacrifices and penances; and am the friend of all creatures, he shall come unto Me, and be blessed. The gates of hell, My son, are three — desire, anger and covetousness, which gradually bring about the destruction of the soul and the fall of man. Being free from these three, a man worketh for salvation of his soul, and thus proceeds to the celestial glory, which is the highest path. He, who abandoneth the commandments and ordinances of the Scriptures to follow the dictates of his own desires, attaineth neither perfection nor happiness, nor the highest path. Therefore, in deciding what is fit and what unfit to do, remember, My beloved son, that thou shouldst perform actions on earth with a knowledge of that which is declared in the Holy Writ; that thou mayst preserve thy soul, and not be taken captive by the powers of darkness and misery, in the selfsame magical illusion which hath been created for such, from the very first generations.

Thus, the Lord revealed to our forefathers of the period of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt His first great plan of salvation for man. A mysterious and sacred knowledge indeed did He reveal for saving man from the spiritual consequences of sin, and his deliverance from eternal damnation through the grace of the Holy One; and later through the atonement of Christ. Hosanna to the Most High God for His precious gift of this knowledge, which is more precious than all the combined wealth of the earth. Yea, blessed are they who have faith in the Lord and Savior the Holy One, and have repented of all their sins, iniquities, ways of error and transgressions with full heart; and have been baptized into His Church. To them shall be given the supreme gift of the Holy Spirit, the continued grace and presence of the Lord, and the glory of the highest in His Eternal Kingdom.

(It was also during the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt, that the Lord under the hands of Moses and Aaron led the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt. Over six hundred and three thousand footmen, along with their families, herds, cattle and flocks, and all their possessions departed from Egypt on Nisan 14, 1513 B.C. This was the day of the Exodus; and Israel crossed the isthmus of the Red Sea on Nisan 16. The entire congregation travelled southward through the Sinai Peninsula, and reached Mount Sinai, in Horeb, three months later, on Sivan 14, 1513 B.C. It was here that the Holy One of Israel gave the children of Israel the Ten Commandments and made a covenant to be their God forever and ever. Here also the Lord revealed Himself to Israel, and spoke with Moses face to face.)

Now, after Jacob (Israel) had died in Egypt after seventeen years of residence in the Delta, Land of Goshen, prior to the end of his sojourn on the earth, he said unto Joseph: I had not thought to see thy face, and behold, God hath shewed me also thy seed. And Joseph took his two sons Ephraim and Manasseh; Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand, and brought them near unto him. And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, guiding his hand wittingly, for Manasseh was the firstborn; and bestowed these blessings upon them:

God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day; the Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless these lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac, and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth. And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him, and he held up his father's hand to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head. And his father refused, and said: I know it, my son, I know it. Manasseh also shall become a people and he also shall be great; but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations. Thus he blessed them that day, saying: In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh; and Israel set Ephraim before Manasseh.

And Jacob called his twelve sons, and said: Gather yourselves together that I may tell you that which may befall you in the last days. Gather yourselves together, and hear ye sons of Jacob, and hearken unto Israel, your father; then he bestowed these blessings upon them.

1. Reuben, thou art my firstborn, my might and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity and power; but unstable as water, thou shalt not excel, because thou went up to thy father's bed, then defiled thou it.

2 & 3. Simeon and Levi, are brethren, instruments of cruelty are their habitations. O my soul, come not thou into their secrets, unto their assembly mine honor be not thou united; for in their anger they slew a man, and in their selfwill they digged down a wall. Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce, and their wrath, for it was cruel. I will divide them in Jacob and scatter them in Israel.

4. Judah (Yehuda), thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise. Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies. Thy father's children shall bow down before thee. Judah is a lion's whelp. From the prey, my son, thou art gone up. He stooped down, he couched as a lion, as an old lion; who shall rouse him up? The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh (The Savior) come. And unto him shall the gathering of the people be. Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine, he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes. His eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

5. Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for an haven of ships, and his border shall be unto Zidon.
6. Issachar is a strong ass couching down between two burdens; and he saw that rest was good, and the land that it was pleasant. And he bowed his shoulder to bear and became servant unto tribute.
7. Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel. Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse's heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.
8. Gad, a troop shall overcome him, but he shall overcome in the end.
9. Asher, his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.
10. Naphtali, is a hind let loose; he giveth goodly words.
11. Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well, whose branches run over the wall. The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him; but his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob; (from thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel). Even by the God of thy father, who shall help thee; and by the Almighty, who shall bless thee with the blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts and of the womb. The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of his progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills. They shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him who was separated from his brethren.
12. Benjamin, shall ravin as a wolf; in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil.

After Jacob bestowed his blessings upon each of his twelve sons (tribes) of Israel, he said unto them: I am to be gathered unto my people. Bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite; in the cave of Machpelah, which is before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought from Ephron the Hittite for a possession of burying place. There they buried Abraham and Sarah, his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah, his wife; and there I buried Leah. And when Jacob had made an end of blessing and commanding his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people.

Thus in this manner, after seventeen years of residence in Egypt, Jacob died circa 1711 B.C., at the age of 147 years.

And Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept and kissed him; and commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father. And the physicians embalmed Israel. And forty days were fulfilled for him, for so were fulfilled the days of those who were embalmed; and the Egyptians mourned for him three score and ten days. When the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spoke to the house of Pharaoh, concerning his father's wish to be buried in the land of Canaan; and Pharaoh replied: Go up and bury thy father accordingly. And all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house and all the elders of the land of Egypt; and all the house of Joseph, his brethren, and his father's house, (except their little ones, flocks and herds), left the land of Goshen. And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen; and it was a very great company. Thus Jacob was buried in the cave of Machpelah which Abraham bought for a burying place from Ephron the Hittite.

After he buried his father, Joseph and his brethren and Pharaoh's folks returned to Egypt. But when Joseph's brethren saw that their father had passed away, they became afraid of Joseph, for if by chance he hate them and avenge them for the evil they did unto him. Thus they sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying: Thy father did command before he died, saying: Ye shall say unto Joseph, forgive, I pray thee now, the trespasses and sins of thy brethren, for they did unto thee evil. And now we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spoke to him, and peace and harmony prevailed among them.

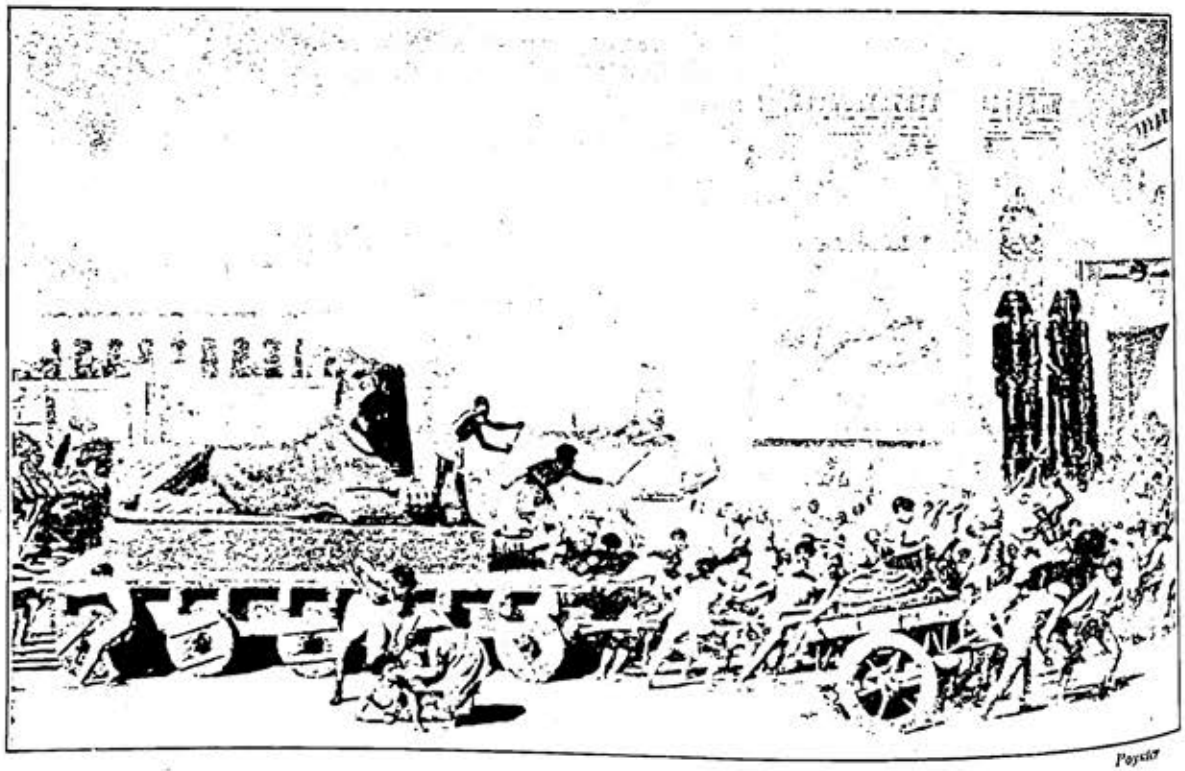
And Joseph, his brethren, and his father's household dwelt in Egypt; and Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation, and the children also of Machir, the son of Manasseh were brought up upon Joseph's knees. And Joseph, being one hundred and ten years old died in 1658 B.C. They embalmed him and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

The Holy Melchizedek Priesthood continued to be passed on to the most righteous and worthy heirs of the line of Joseph. But it was not confined to only one tribe, rather the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God was bestowed upon the most righteous member who was judged to be worthy of receiving it, by the Holy Order of the Priesthood, which at this time excluded the descendants of Ham, son of Noah.

Now, in 1594 B.C., the Egyptian Pharaoh had spoken to the heads of the Hebrew midwives, the name of one being Shiphrah and of the other Puah, saying: When ye deliver a Hebrew child, and if it be a son, ye shall kill him; but if it be a daughter, she shall live. But the midwives feared God, and did not as the Pharaoh commanded them to do. And when this Pharaoh called the midwives and asked them why had they not obeyed his orders, and saved the male children alive, the midwives replied: the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered before the midwives come into them. Therefore God dealt well with them, and blessed them with dwellings to live in.

And as their afflictions increased, the children of Israel continued to multiply and wax mighty and strong; and Pharaoh charged all his people, saying: Every son born ye shall cast into the waters, and every daughter ye shall save alive. It was during this time that there lived a man Amram (Emran), son of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Jacob (Israel) and his wife Jochebed (Kohath's sister). Unto them was born their third child, a son, c.1593 B.C.

When the mother of the babe saw that he was a goodly boy, she hid him three months. And when she could no longer hide him, she took an ark of papyrus (bullrushes), and daubed it with slime and pitch, and put the babe inside the ark, and let it sail through the fresh water canal that flowed through the residence of Pharaoh. And the babe's older sister, Miriam, stood afar off to watch what would happen to him. And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the canal, which the Egyptians called the fresh water river; and her maidens walked beside her, alongside the waters. And when she saw the ark, she sent one of her maids to fetch it. And when she opened it, she saw the child; and beheld the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said: This is one of the Hebrews' children. Then his young sister who stood afar off, came near and said to Pharaoh's daughter: Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee? And the Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And a maid went with her and brought the child's mother. And Pharaoh's daughter said to her: Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed the babe.



Egyptian taskmasters and slaves, as represented by an artist; although may not reflect the period of the 18th Dynasty (c.1580 B.C. - 1346 B.C.).

And the babe grew, and the mother-nurse brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses, because she said: I drew him out of the water. As a member of Pharaoh's household, Moses was instructed in the wisdom of the Egyptians, becoming mighty in words and deeds; and, for he was also nursed by his Hebrew mother, he acquired the knowledge of the Lord God of Israel, the God of Jacob, Isaac and Abraham. And Moses' heart was with God's enslaved people in Egypt.

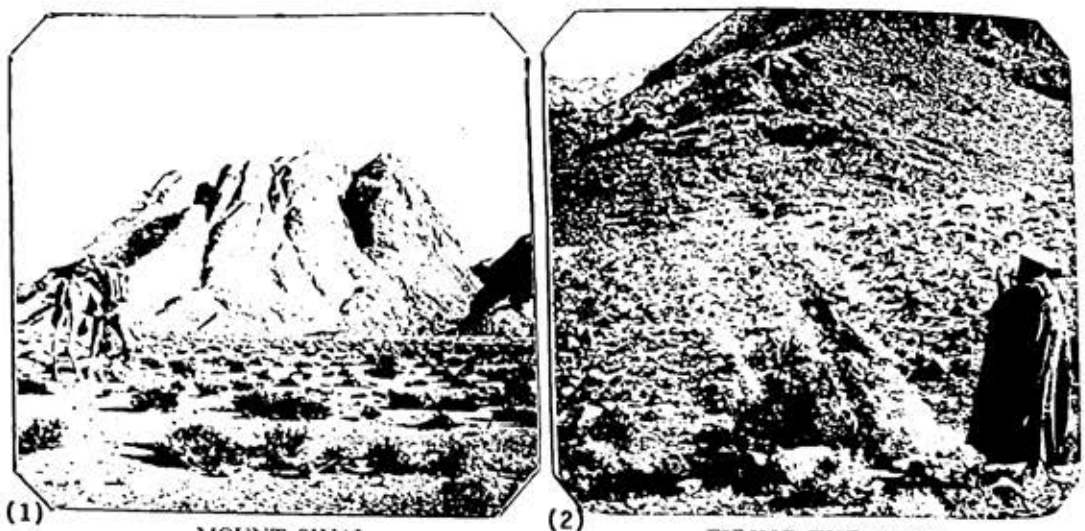
The 18th Dynasty of Egypt was officially established c.1580 B.C., with Pharaoh Ahmose as their first ruler. Moses was now thirteen years old, and living at Pharaoh's residence, in the district of Preetem-Rameses, in the land of Goshen. And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigor; and made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field.

In the fortieth year of his life, c.1553 B.C., while on his observation round, he noticed the pain of the burden his brethren were bearing; and saw an Egyptian striking an Israelite. Moses, in defense of the Israelite, killed the Egyptian and buried him in the sand. Thus Moses was forced to flee from Egypt, when Pharaoh (Amenhotep I) heard of the slaying. After a long journey, across the wilderness territory, to Midian, Moses found refuge. And here he married Zipporah, one of the seven daughters of the Melchizedek priest of Midian, Jethro, who was also known as Reuel and Jether. And Moses worked for his father-in-law as a shepherd of his flocks for the next forty years. Zipporah bore him two sons, Gershom (Gershon) and Eliezer, during this period. Here at Midian Moses developed the needed qualities of patience, meekness, humility, long-suffering, mildness of temper, self-control, and such. While Moses' upbringing in Pharaoh's household taught him dignity, confidence, poise, and the ability to organize and command, it was the lowly occupation of shepherding which provided him with the needed leisure and solitude to think, contemplate, reflect, meditate, and understand purposes and dealings of God; and constant companionship with the Holy Spirit prepared him to receive the Holy Melchizedek priesthood under the hand of his father-in-law Jethro. And Jethro received the Holy Priesthood under the hand of Caleb; and Caleb received it from Elihu; and Elihu from Jeremy; and Jeremy from Gad; and Gad received it from Esaias (Isaiah); and Esaias received it under the hand of God, and was blessed by Abraham.

It was toward the end of his forty-year sojourn in Midian c.1514 B.C., while Moses was shepherding the flocks of Jethro, Melchizedek priest of Midian, that the flocks were led to near Mount Sinai (Horeb), the mount of God. And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a thornbush; and while the bush appeared to be on fire, it was not consumed by it. And Moses was curious as to why the bush was not burnt. And when he approached it to see, a voice called him out of the burning bush, and said: Moses, Moses. And he said, Here I am! And the voice said: Draw not near hither. Put thy sandals off thy feet, for the place upon which thou standeth is holy ground. And the voice added: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

And the voice said: I have surely seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt; and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters. I know their sorrow. And I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out unto the land flowing with milk and honey, the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the



(1) MOUNT SINAI (2) FIRING THE BUSH

(1) The same variety of bush as in the days of Moses, is found to this day, at the very same location, near Mount Sinai (Horeb), the mount of God. (2) When the bush was set on fire to see the effect, the native immediately lifted up his hands in reverence to praise his ancient God,the Almighty, known as Allah, Eloah, singular of Elohim; the Father.

Amorites, the Jebusites, all the land of Canaan. Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt. And Moses replied: Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt? And the Lord said: Certainly I will be with thee. And this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee. When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain, which is Mount Sinai.

And Moses said unto God: Behold, when I come to the children of Israel, and say unto them: The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, they shall say, what is His name; what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses: I AM THAT I AM (אהיה אשר אהיה). Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel that I AM hath sent thee; and this is my name for ever and ever, and my memorial to all generations. Go, and gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, that the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob hath appeared unto thee, saying: I have surely visited you, and seen your afflictions; and I shall bring you out unto the Promised Land. And they shall hearken to thy voice. And thou and the elders of Israel shall come unto the king of Egypt and say unto him: The Lord God of the Hebrews hath met with us; and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness of Shur, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God. And the king of Egypt will not let you go, no, not by a mighty hand. And I will stretch out my hand and smite Egypt with all my wonders, which I will do in the midst thereof. And after that he will let Israel go. And I will give this people favor in the sight of the Egyptians. And it shall come to pass that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty; but every woman shalt borrow jewels of silver and gold of her neighbor, and of her that lives with her, that they may be carried, along with raiment, and all else that is required, upon your carts and wagons; and spoil the Egyptians; for they have taken all the land from the children of Israel, and have not paid their wages.

And Moses answered, and said: But, behold, they would not believe me nor hearken unto my voice, for they would say, the Lord hath not appeared unto me. And the Lord said: What is that in thine hand? And Moses replied, a rod. And the Lord told him to cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it. And the Lord said, put forth thine hand and grab it by the tail. And he did so, and it became a rod in his hand. And the Lord said: put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand in his bosom; and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous as snow. And He said: Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he did so, and plucked it out of his bosom, and behold, it became as his natural flesh.

And the Lord said: If they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, they will believe the latter sign. And if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken to thy voice, thou shalt take the water of the river and pour it upon the dry ground, and the water which thou takest out of the river shall become blood upon the dry ground.

And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, but I am slow of speech and of a slow tongue. And the Lord said unto him: Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? Have not I, the Lord? Now therefore go, and I will be with thee, and teach thee that which thou shalt say. And Moses said, O my Lord, send I pray thee, by the hand of him whom Thou wilt send. And the Lord's anger was kindled against Moses, and he said: Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And soon he shalt come forth to meet thee; and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart. Thou shalt speak unto him and put words in his mouth, and he shalt be thy spokesman unto the people. And he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be unto him instead of God. And thou shalt take the rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

And it came to pass that, while shepherding the flocks of his father-in-law Jethro, Moses was caught up in an exceedingly high mountain, which is Mount Sinai (Horeb, the peak of Jebel Musa, in the Sinai Peninsula, between the Gulf of Suez and the Gulf of Akabah).

And Moses saw God face to face, and talked with Him; and the glory of God was upon him. Therefore, he could endure the divine presence. And God spoke to Moses, saying: Behold, I am the Lord God Almighty, and endless is my name; for I am without beginning of days or end of years. Is this not endless? And behold, thou art my son. Wherefore look, and I will show thee the workmanship of my hands, but not all.

For my works are without end, and also my words, for they never cease. Wherefore, no man can behold all my works, except he behold all my glory; and no man can behold my glory, and afterward remain in the flesh on the earth. And I have work for thee, Moses, my son; and thou art in the similitude of mine Only Begotten; and mine Only Begotten is the eternal savior; for he is full of grace, truth and righteousness. And there is no God beside me, and all the things are present with me, for I know them all.

1 SHEEP AT FOOT OF SINAI

2 JETHRO'S PASS

(1) As in the time of Moses, shepherding the flocks is common, even to this day, near Mount Sinai. (2) "Jethro's Pass" is the ascent made by the depression in the middle of the photograph; which leads to the summit of Ras Safsaf; and the peak on the extreme right of the picture is the peak of Moses (Jebel Musa).

And Moses looked and beheld the world upon which he was created and the ends thereof, and all the children of men which are, and which were created; and marvelled in wonderment. And the presence of God withdrew from Moses, His glory was not upon him; and Moses was left alone unto himself as he fell to the ground. It was for the space of many hours before Moses could regain his natural strength, then he said to himself: Now I know that man is nothing, which I never had supposed. But now mine own eyes have beheld God, not my natural eyes, but spiritual eyes. My natural eyes could not see, for I should have withered and died in His presence; but His glory was upon me, and I beheld His face, for I was transfigured before Him.

And when Moses had said these words, behold, Satan came tempting him, saying: Moses, son of man, worship me. And Moses looked upon Satan, and said: Who art thou? For behold, I am a son of God, in the similitude of His Only Begotten; and where is thy glory that I should worship thee? For behold, I could not look upon God, except His glory should come upon me, and I were transfigured before Him. But I can look upon thee in the natural man, with my natural eyes. Is it not so, surely? Blessed be the name of my God, for His Spirit hath not altogether withdrawn from me, or else where is thy glory, for it is darkness unto me? And I can judge between thee and God, for God said unto me: Thou art after the similitude of mine Only Begotten, and gave me commandment out of the burning bush, saying: Call upon God in the name of mine Only Begotten, and worship me. I will not cease to call upon God; I have other things to inquire of Him, for His glory has been upon me, wherefore I can judge between Him and thee. Depart thence, Satan.

And when Moses uttered these words, Satan cried with a loud voice, and ranted upon the earth, and commanded, saying: I am the Only Begotten, worship me. Now, Moses began to fear exceedingly, and as he began to fear, he saw the bitterness of hell. Nevertheless, calling upon the Ineffable Name, which is in the tetragrammaton (יהוה), he received strength, and commanded again, saying: Depart from me Satan, for this one God only I will worship, which is the God of glory. And then Satan began to tremble, and the earth shook, and Moses received strength, and called upon the Lord, saying: In the name of the Only Begotten, depart hence, Satan. And finally Satan cried with a loud noise, with weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth, and departed from the presence of Moses, so that he was not able to see him.

And when Satan had departed, Moses lifted up his eyes unto heaven, being filled with the Holy Spirit (Holy Ghost), which bore record of the Father and the Son, and heard a voice, saying: Blessed art thou Moses, for I, the Almighty, have chosen thee, and thou shalt be made stronger than many waters; for they shall obey thy command, as if thou wert god. And lo, I am with thee, even unto the end of thy days; for now thou shalt deliver my people from their bondage, even Israel my chosen.

And the Lord God spoke unto Moses, saying: The heavens, they are many, and cannot be numbered unto man, but they are numbered unto me, for they are mine. And as one earth shall pass away, and the heavens thereof, even so shall another come; and there is no end to my works, neither to my words. For behold, this is my work and glory - to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man. And now, Moses, my son, I will speak unto thee concerning this earth upon which thou standeth, and thou shalt write things which I speak unto thee. And in a day when the children of men shall esteem my words as naught, and read and understand the words that thou shalt write in the book; behold, I will raise up another like unto thee; and they shall be had again among the children of men, among as many as shall believe. Thus the Lord spoke unto Moses in Mount Sinai. (And Moses did obey the commandment of the Lord, and wrote the first five Books of the Bible, the Pentateuch, namely: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, which are known to the Jews as the Torah or the Law. Moses also wrote the Books of Job and Psalms 90 and 91.) But the Law was never given to the children of Israel, as they were rebellious, carnal, sensual, and devilish by nature. But the elders, the Aaronic priesthood, and also Levites studied the Law, lived it to the letter, and they taught it diligently to the children of Israel.

And it came to pass that Moses went to his father-in-law Jethro (Jether, Reuel), Melchizedek priest of Midian, and said: Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren who are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said: Go in peace.

Soon after, while still in Midian, the Lord revealed unto Moses that all the men who sought his life were dead; and that he must return to Egypt. And Moses took his wife Zipporah and his two sons, and set them upon an ass, for their long journey to Egypt. And the Lord reminded him: When thou goest to return to Egypt, see that thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh, which I have put in thine hand; but I will harden his heart that he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh: Thus saith the Lord: Israel is my son, even my firstborn, let my son go, that he may serve me; and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, even thy firstborn.

And it came to pass that by the way to the inn, the angel of the Lord met Moses, and sought as if to kill him; because one of the sons of Moses had not been circumcised, according to God's covenant which was made with Abraham, that on the eighth day (or earlier) after the birth of a male, the flesh of his foreskin must be circumcised.

Then Zipporah took a sharp stone, and cut off the foreskin of her son, and cast it at Moses's feet, and said, surely a bloody husband art thou to me. So the anger of the messenger was cooled. Then she uttered again: A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision.

And the Lord said unto Aaron: Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went, and met him in the mount of God (Mount Sinai), and kissed him, and his heart was gladdened when he saw him. And Moses told Aaron all the Lord had revealed to him, and the signs which He had commanded him to do. And Moses and Aaron went to Egypt and gathered together all the elders of Israel; and Aaron spoke to them the words which the Lord had spoken unto Moses; and did the signs in the sight of the people. And the people believed. And when they heard that the Lord had visited the children of Israel, and that he had looked upon their affliction, they bowed their heads and worshiped.

Afterwards, Moses and Aaron went and told Pharaoh: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel: Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness. And Pharaoh said: Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice, to let Israel go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go. And they said: The God of the Hebrews has met with us. Let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the wilderness of Shur, and sacrifice unto the Lord our God, lest he befall us with pestilence, or with sword. And the king of Egypt said unto them, wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? Get you unto your burdens. Behold, the people of the land now are many, and ye make them rest from their burdens. And the same day Pharaoh commanded to increase the difficulties of their tasks and appointed cruel taskmasters over the children of Israel.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh; for with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand shall he drive them out of his land. I am the Lord; and I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac and Jacob by the name of God Almighty (Eloah, Allah, Elohim), but by my name Jehovah (יהוה; ΙΑΩΕ) was I not known to them; they knew the Father, but they knew not His Son, His Only Begotten, Jesus Christ. And I had made a covenant with Abraham (when he was seventy-five years old, c.1943 B.C. The 400-year affliction began when Ishmael and Isaac were separated, and Isaac was weaned, c.1913 B.C.), to give his seed the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers. And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage, and I have remembered my covenant. Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and rid you of their bondage; and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgement. And I will take you to me for a people, and be to you a God. And ye shall know that I am the Lord thy God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

And Moses spoke so unto the children of Israel; but they hearkened not, for anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage. And Moses asked the Lord: Behold the children of Israel have not hearkened unto me, how then shall Pharaoh hear me, who is of uncircumcised lips?

And the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron, and gave them power and authority over the children of Israel and Pharaoh, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt. Now, by this time Levi, son of Jacob, had died at the age of one hundred and thirty-seven years; his son Kohath died at the age of one hundred and thirty-three; and Kohath's son Amram (Emran), died when he was one hundred and thirty-seven years old. And according to the Lord's words: But the fourth generation shall come hither again; for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet fully ripe. Thus, four generations after the arrival of Jacob and his household into Egypt, c.1728 B.C.; in the tribe of Levi, Moses was the fourth generation, as foretold by the Lord.

And the Lord remembered His covenant with Abram (not yet given the name of Abraham) saying: I am the Lord who brought thee out of Ur of Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it. Unto thy seed have I given this, from the river of Egypt unto the great river Euphrates, the land of Kenites, Kenizites, Kadmonites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaims, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites and Jebusites. And Abraham said: Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it? And when the sun was going down a deep sleep fell upon Abram (Abraham); and lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him. And the Lord said unto Abram, when he regained his consciousness: Know for a surety that thy seed shall be afflicted for four hundred years; and they shall become strangers in a land which is not theirs, and shall serve them.

And also the nation whom they shall serve, will I judge. But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again, with great substance. Abraham was 75 years old when he moved his household from Haran to the Land of Canaan, c.1943 B.C.; and the 400-year affliction began c.1913 B.C., when Isaac was weaned, and separated from Ishmael and Hagar.

So, the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron, saying: When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, show a miracle, then Moses shall say unto Aaron: Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become

Doré

AARON'S ROD BECOMES A SERPENT

An artist's rendition: Aaron's rod becomes a serpent. (Pharaoh and his servants appear to be of Semitic, Shemitic, origin; unlike the Egyptian Pharaohs, who were of Hamitic origin.)

a serpent. And Moses and Aaron went to see Pharaoh, and they did so as the Lord had commanded them. And when Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh and his servants, it became a serpent. Then Pharaoh called his wise men and sorcerers, priests and magicians. They also did in like manner with their enchantments, for they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents; but Aaron's rod swallowed their rods. And Pharaoh hardened his heart, according to the will and purposes of the Lord.

Then the Lord said unto Moses: Get thee and Aaron unto Pharaoh in the morning, when he goeth out to bathe in the waters that run through his residence, and take thy rod with thee. And thou shalt say unto him: The Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying: Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness; and, behold, hitherto thou would not hear. Thus saith the Lord: In this thou shalt know that I am the Lord. Behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters, and they shall be turned to blood; and the fish shall die, and the waters shall stink; and the Egyptians shall loathe to drink of the water. And the Lord said unto Moses: Say unto Aaron, take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their rivers and streams, upon their pools and ponds, that they may become blood. And Aaron lifted up his rod and smote the waters, in the sight of Pharaoh and his servants; and the waters were turned to blood, and the fish died, and the rivers stank; and the magicians of the Pharaoh did their enchantments, and Pharoah's heart was hardened, according to the will and purpose of the Lord, as He had forewarned Moses. And Pharaoh turned and went into his house; neither did he set his heart to this matter. And the Egyptians digged round about the canal for water to drink; for they could not drink the polluted waters of the river. And seven days were fulfilled, since the time the waters were smitten. This was the first plague. Nine other plagues followed. Next was the plague of frogs; they covered the land of Egypt, even the houses and bedrooms were filled with them. The third was the plague of lice. Fourth was the plague of flies. After these plagues Pharaoh said: I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice unto the Lord your God in the wilderness of Shur; only ye shall not go very far away; intercede for me. But Pharaoh hardened his heart again, after Moses supplicated the Lord that the swarm of flies may depart, neither would he let the people go.

Then came the scourge of murrain, a plague of pestilence, upon both man and domestic animals. There was death everywhere, people became confused and frantic, and Pharaoh cried to Moses for relief. But as soon as the relief came, the king rescinded his promise. Then came the sixth plague, the scourge of boils, when Moses and Aaron took handfuls of ashes from the furnace; and Moses sprinkled them toward the heaven, in the sight of Pharaoh; and the boils broke forth with sores and swelling upon man and beasts, and it became an epidemic, throughout the land of Egypt. And the magicians of Egypt could not stand before Moses, because of the annoyance and discomfort of the boils. And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, so he hearkened not unto them, as the Lord had spoken.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Rise up early in the morning and stand before Pharaoh and say unto him: Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews: Let my people go, that they may serve me. Behold, tomorrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof. Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field, for upon every man and beast that shall be found in the field, the hail shall come down, and kill them. And he that feared the word of the Lord brought them under shelter; and he who regarded not the word left his in the field.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in the land of Egypt, upon man, beast and every vegetation throughout the land of Egypt. And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven; and the Lord sent thunder and hail and lightning upon the ground. So there was hail and fire mingled, very grievous, such as there was none like it in the land of Egypt, since it became a nation. And the hail smote all that was in the field, both man and beast, and vegetation. Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel dwelt, there was no hail. And Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them: I have sinned this time. The Lord is righteous; and I and my people are wicked. Intercede with the Lord, for it is enough, that there be no more frightening thunder and hail, and I will let Israel go, and ye shall stay no longer. And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh; and spread out his hands unto the Lord, and the thunder and hail ceased, and it rained no longer. And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and thunder and hail had ceased, the heart of Pharaoh was hardened again; neither would he let the children of Israel go, as the Lord had spoken to Moses.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Go unto Pharaoh, for I have hardened his heart and the heart of his servants, that I might show these signs before him, that thou mayest tell in the ears of thy children, and of their children's children, the things I have wrought in Egypt, that ye may know that I am the Lord. And Moses and Aaron came unto Pharaoh, and said: Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews: How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? Let my people go that they may serve me. And if thou refuse again, I will bring locusts into thy coast; and they shall cover the face of the land to the extent that the ground shall be covered with them, and they shall devour every vegetation which hath escaped destruction from the hail; and they shall fill all the houses of the Egyptians. Then Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh.

And Pharaoh's servants said unto him: how long shall this man be a snare unto us? Let the men go, that they may serve the Lord their God. Knowest thou not that Egypt is destroyed? And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh, and he said: Go serve the Lord your God, but who are to go with thee? And Moses said: We will go with our young and old, with our men, women, and children, our flocks and herds, for we must hold a feast unto the Lord.

And Pharaoh refused, and said: Go ye that are men, and serve the Lord, but not the women and children; and they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

Scourge of Locusts

Although it resembles an ordinary grasshopper, the locust is quite ferocious; it strips the land of all vegetation and fruit. A similar scourge of locusts came upon Palestine in 1915, when the land was stripped of all vegetation; and the light of the sun was dimmed at noon time.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come upon the land, and eat all remaining vegetation. And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought a strong east wind all day and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought with it locusts. This was the eighth plague. The locusts covered the ground, until it was hidden with them. They ate all the vegetation and fruits of the trees, that were left after the deluge of hail. And the locusts went up over the land of Egypt, and rested in the coasts of Egypt. They were so innumerable that the land was darkened by them, and they did eat all the remaining vegetation and fruits. Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and said: I have sinned against the Lord your God, and against you. Now, therefore, forgive I pray thee, my sins only this once, and intercede with the Lord your God, that he may take away this calamity. And Moses went out from Pharaoh and supplicated the Lord. And the Lord sent a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red Sea. There remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt. But Pharaoh's heart was hardened again, so he would not let the children of Israel go.

The ninth plague was the curse of darkness, when the Lord said to Moses: stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even the darkness which may be felt. And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven; and there came a thick darkness in the land of Egypt, which lasted for three days. People saw not one another, neither moved from their place for three days. But all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings. And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and said: Go ye, serve the Lord, only let your flocks and herds remain; let your women and children also go with you. And Moses said: Our cattle shall also go with us, for our sacrifices and burnt offerings. There shall not one hoof be left behind, for we must serve the Lord, and we know not with what must we serve. But the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not agree to let them go. And Pharaoh said unto Moses: Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more; for in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die. And Moses said, thou hast spoken well, I will see thy face again no more.

And the Lord said unto Moses, yet will I bring one more plague upon Pharaoh and upon Egypt; afterwards he will let you go. And when he lets you out, he shall surely thrust you out. Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man and every woman borrow of her neighbor, jewels of silver and gold, raiment, and all that ye require for the journey; for they have confiscated the land of my Firstborn, and subjected them to slavery and sore afflictions.

And the Lord gave the children of Israel favor in the sight of the Egyptians. And they gathered all the jewels of silver and gold, which were carried by the women and children, and their cattle and flocks, tents, carts, wagons, and all that they required for the journey. And Moses said to the congregation: Thus saith the Lord: About midnight will I go out in the midst of Egypt; and all the firstborn in the land of Egypt shall be smitten; from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sitteth upon his throne, to the firstborn of the maidservant that sitteth behind the mill. And there shall be a great cry throughout the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, or shall be one like it. But of the children of Israel or their men or beasts, not a dog shall move his tongue, that ye may know that the Lord doth put a difference between the Egyptians and the Hebrews.

And the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying: This month (Abib, Nisan) shall be unto you the beginning of the new year. (Previously the secular first month of the Jewish year began with Ethanim or Tishri; and Abib or Nisan was the seventh month of the secular, non-sacred, Jewish year. Now the month of Nisan or Abib became the first month of the sacred Jewish Calendar.) This month was also the beginning of their long journey to the Promised Land, the land of Canaan; and would commemorate the end of their 67 years of Egyptian bondage, which began with the 18th Dynasty of Egyptian rulers, c.1580 B.C., and ended Nisan, 1513 B.C. Also, Nisan became the first month of the sacred Jewish calendar to celebrate the Passover of the angel of death over the homes of the Israelites, and the feast of unleavened bread. But even more importantly, it was the day when ended the 400-year affliction of the seed of Abraham, which began c.1913 B.C., when the souls of Sarah and Isaac were vexed and afflicted by the jealousy and envy of Isaac's older brother Ishmael (Ismail) and Hagar, at the time when Isaac was weaned at the age of almost five years; and Hagar and Ishmael were dismissed by Abraham, with some bread and a bottle of water.

And the Lord commanded Moses to speak to the congregation of Israel, saying that on the tenth day of this month (Nisan), every family was to choose a lamb (goat or sheep) without blemish, of less than one year of age. It was to be kept inside the dwelling until the 14th day of Nisan. And as the Jewish day was reckoned from sunset to sunset, the animal was slaughtered after sunset of this day by the head of the household, between sunset and deep twilight (or dark) on Nisan 14. The blood was to be caught in a vessel; and entirely extracted from the animal, for it represented its life, and must not become a part of the food for man.

1

2

(1) The blood of the lamb is caught in the proper vessel. It must be entirely extracted for it represents its life and must not become a part of the food of man. (2) The head of the household marks the doorposts and lintel. The ceremony is carried out after sunset and formally closed at midnight.

Then the animal was to be skinned, its interior parts removed, cleansed, and replaced, and it was roasted whole, well-done, with no bones broken. The partakers were to eat in a standing position; their hips girded, so their robes would not impede walking, staff in their hand, sandals on their feet, to be ready for a long journey. The entire animal was to be consumed by the household. But if the household was too small to consume it, then it was to be shared with a neighboring household, and eaten the same night; and any leftover was to be burned in the morning. The roasted animal was eaten with unfermented cakes or "bread of affliction," with bitter greens, to remind them of the bitter life under slavery. And they were commanded to eat with their loins girded, their sandals and shoes on their feet, their staff in their hand; and they were to eat in haste; for it was the Lord's passover.

Hyssop was dipped in the blood of the slain animal and struck upon the lintel and door posts of the dwellings. This was to be a sign unto the destroying angel that the dwelling was occupied by the Hebrews, and the angel of death passed over that household. The whole ceremony was to be carried out from sunset Nisan 14, and closed at midnight.

Egyptian pagan priest calls upon his gods in Pharaoh's household. (artist's rendition) Normand

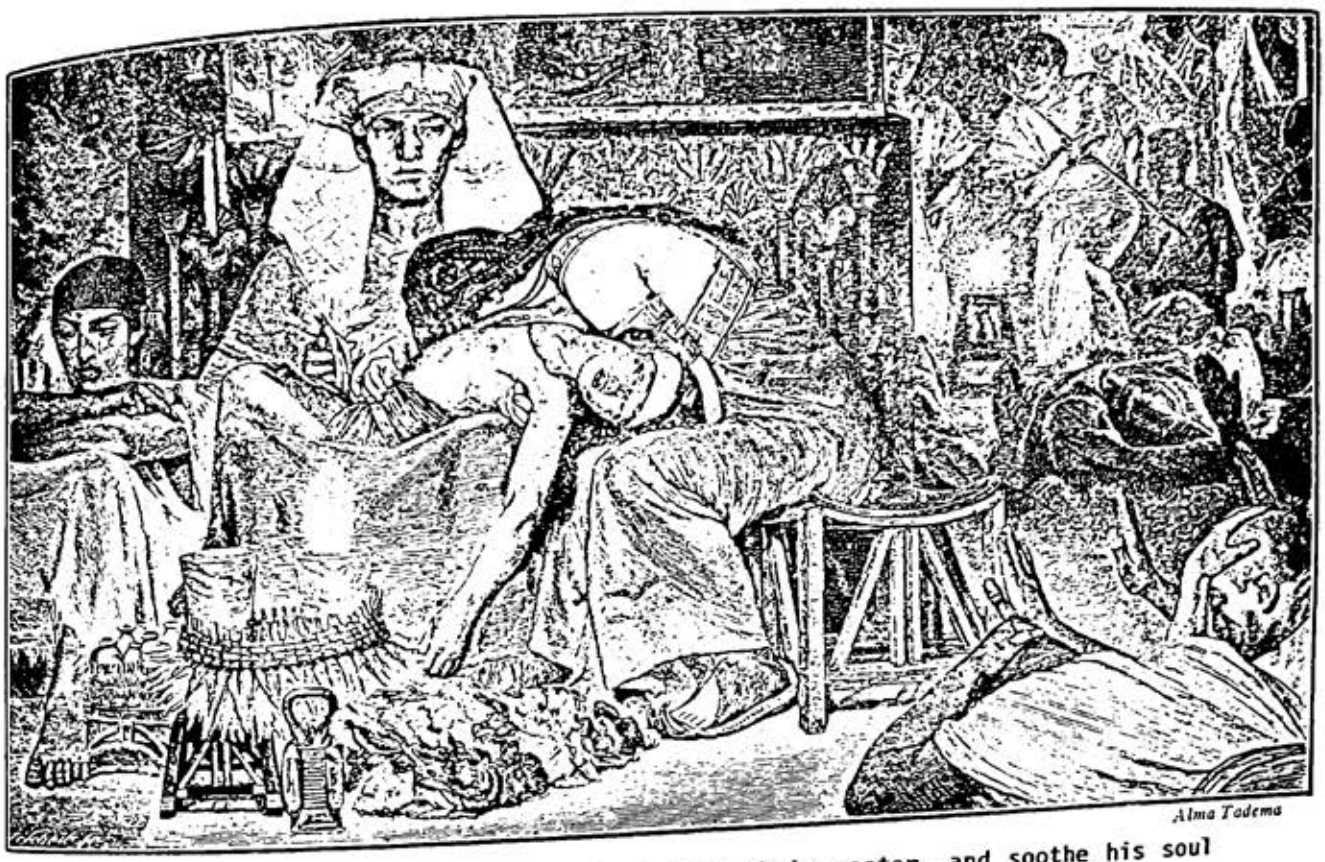
The Passover was to be followed by seven days of festival of unfermented cakes. No leavened bread was to be eaten for seven days, from sundown, Nisan 15, through sundown Nisan 21.

Seasonally, the Passover fell at the beginning of the barley harvest. It was to be a memorial celebration to the Lord. And Moses called unto the seventy elders of Israel, and said: Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families, and kill it for the Passover. And take a bunch of hyssop and dip it in the blood and strike the lintel and the two side posts; and none of you shall go out of his dwelling until the morning. For the destroying angel of the Lord shalt pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood on the lintel and side posts, he will passover the door of that dwelling. And ye shall observe this rite for an ordinance for you and your sons forever. And when you reach the Land of Promise, ye shall keep the ordinance. And it shall come to pass, when your children say, what mean ye by this ordinance, ye shall say: It is the sacrifice of the Lord's Passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when He smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the congregation bowed their heads and worshiped; and went away and did as they were commanded to do.



Pagan priests mourn; pour out blessings upon their master, and soothe his soul with incense and flute music. (artist's rendition)

The first Passover was a night of mourning throughout the land of Egypt, for one member of each Egyptian household lay dead. Even the royal households were not exempt. And Pharaoh woke up in the middle of the night, and all his servants and the Egyptians; and there was a great cry. And Pharaoh (Yehudy-Moses II, Thutmose II) called for Moses and Aaron at this hour, and said: Rise ye and the children of Israel, and go serve the Lord, as ye have said; and take your flocks and herds, and be gone; and bless me also. And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said: We be all dead.

And the children of Israel took their unleavened dough, and their kneadingtroughs were bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders. And the women and children of Israel carried the jewels of silver and gold, which they had gathered from the Egyptians. While the king of Egypt and peasants mourned, Israel was making haste to leave the country. Israel was escaping from Egyptian bondage after losing their lands and their rights to the 18th Dynasty of Egyptian rulers, the New Kingdom, in secular reckoning.

The armies of Israel, over six hundred thousand men on foot, twenty years of age or older; plus a mixed multitude of women, children and the elderly; their flocks and herds, wagons and carts, very much cattle, and all their possessions, journeyed from Preetem (Pithom)-Rameses to Succoth, about fifteen miles east of the gathering place in Rameses. Here they baked unleavened bread of the dough which they brought with them from Egypt. Succoth was their first stop and the rallying place for the start of their long journey to the land of promise. But they must go to the mountain of God first, according to the plans and purposes of the Lord. For the Lord had already spoken to Moses from the burning bush, while he was shepherding the flocks of his father-in-law Jethro, the Melchizedek priest of Midian, saying: I will send thee (Moses), unto Pharaoh, that you may bring forth my people, the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt. And when thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain (Mount Sinai). And certainly I will be with thee, and this will be a token unto thee that I, the Lord, hath sent thee. And the Lord God of Israel also said unto Moses in Mount Sinai: Blessed art thou Moses, for I, the Almighty, have chosen thee, and thou shalt be made stronger than many waters, for they shall obey thy command as if thou wert God. And lo, I am with thee, even unto the end of thy days; for thou shalt deliver my people from their bondage, even Israel my chosen.

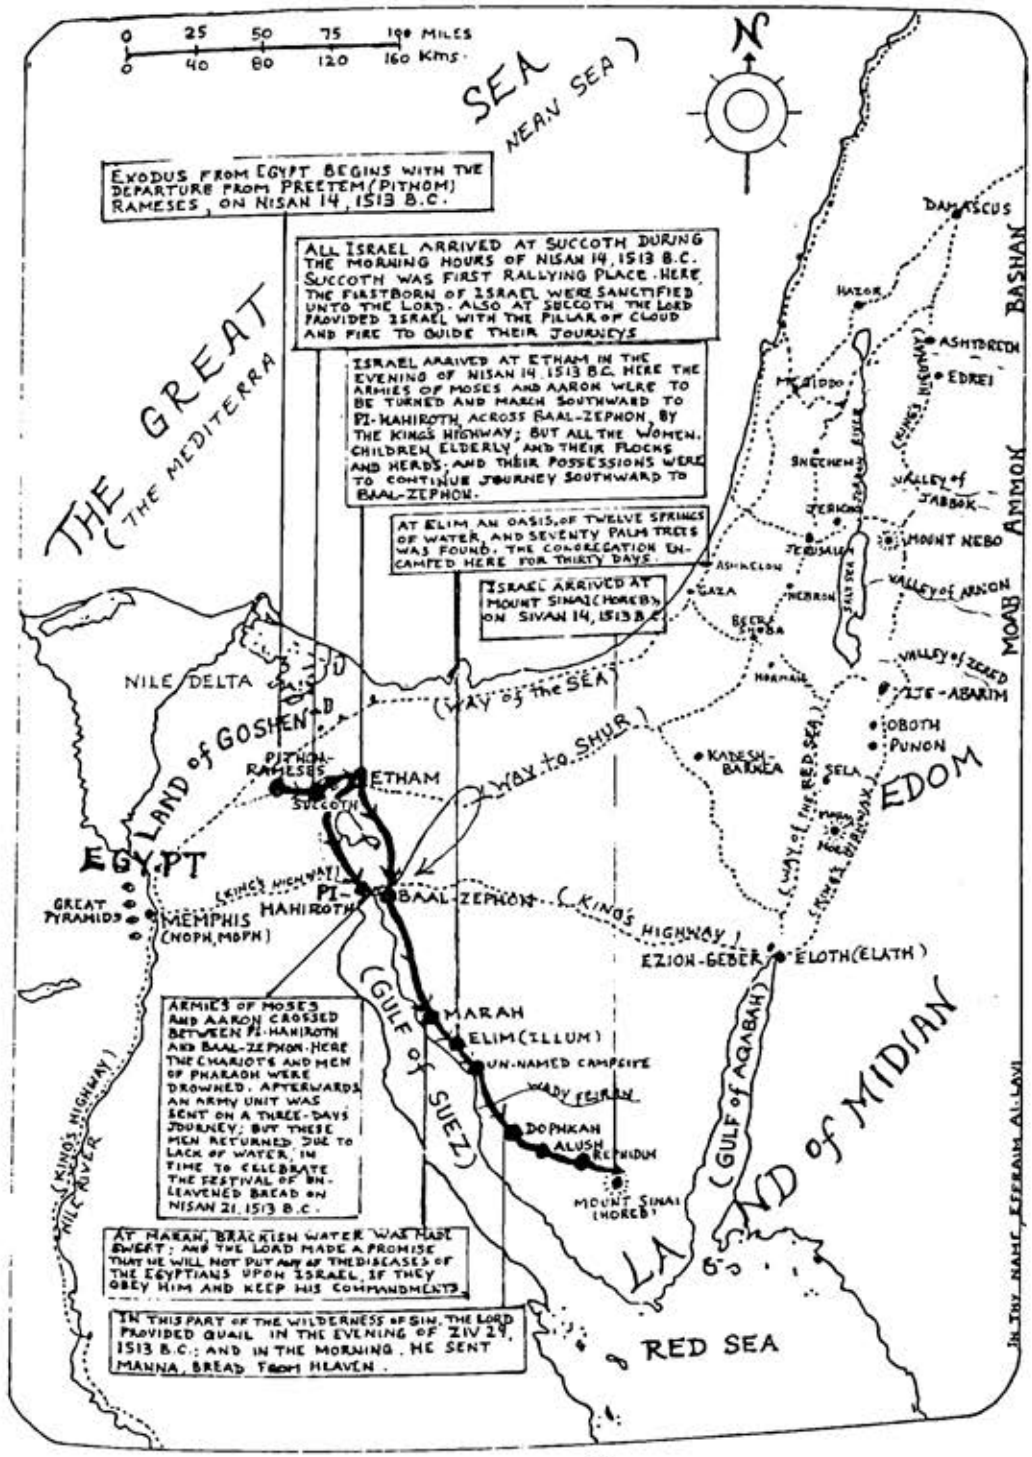
And when they left the land of Goshen, Moses took with him the bones of Joseph, for before he died, Joseph had the children of Israel swear unto him, saying: God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land, unto the land which He swore unto Abraham, and Isaac and Jacob; and ye shall carry my bones from hence. So the children of Israel left Egypt in battle formation, with a vanguard, a main body, a rear and two wings. And their weapons of war included swords and shields, bows and arrows, axes, javelins, spears and their staves.

And it was here, at Succoth, Nisan 14, c.1513 B.C., the day after the Passover, that the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Sanctify unto me all the firstborn, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, and the firstborn males of the beasts. And the ordinance of the offerings of the firstfruits was to be followed by the seven-day feast of unleavened bread, or the feast of the unfermented cakes, from Nisan 15 through 21; and in the seventh day there was to be a feast unto the Lord. Although this ordinance was given on the 14th of Nisan, the offering of the firstfruits was traditionally made on the 16th, for the armies of Moses and Aaron crossed the isthmus of the Red Sea (Suez Canal) on the 16th of Nisan; and were baptized unto the Most High God, under the hand of his servant Moses, by means of immersion into the pillar of cloud and the congealed waters of the flood.

It was also here at Succoth, that the angel of the Lord went before the women, children, the elderly, their flocks and cattle, wagons and carts, and all their possessions, in a pillar of cloud by day, and a pillar of light (fire) by night to lead the way of their journey and to give them light. So they journeyed by day or by night to wherever the cloud led them.



(Illustration 8)

Map of Exodus from Egypt and Arrival at Mount Sinai (Nisan 14 - Sivan 14, 1513 B.C.)

The month of Nisan or Abib, which became the first month of the sacred Hebrew calendar, beginning with their exodus from Egypt, corresponds to March-April in the Gregorian calendar. During this season the spring rains begin and snow from the mountains of Lebanon melts, bringing occasional flooding to the Jordan river. Barley and flax are harvested in some sections; wheat becomes ripe in the Jordan valley; carob trees bear pods; flocks go out to the field.

So, the children of Israel journeyed from Succoth, and arrived in Etham, a few miles to the east, on the edge of the wilderness, on the same day, Nisan 14; and crossed over the Red Sea through the dry land by the way to Shur. And here the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Tell thine and Aaron's armies to turn around (from Etham), and journey southward and encamp before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, across Baal-zephon; so Pharaoh and his servants may think that the children of Israel are unable to cross the wilderness, therefore have turned around, and the wilderness hath shut them in. And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; that the Egyptians may know that the Lord of Hosts does put a difference between the Egyptians and the children of Israel.

So, the armies of Moses and Aaron turned around from Etham, and journeyed southward to Pi-hahiroth, that Pharaoh and his spies might think the children of Israel were unable to cross the wilderness of Shur, and therefore had returned to go by the way of Pi-hahiroth, near the King's Highway; and that they might think the children of Israel were trapped in the land. And from Etham, the women, children, and the elderly, with all their flocks and herds and their possessions were commanded to continue to journey southward to Baal-zephon, on the other side of Pi-hahiroth, by the sea. Thus, while these people crossed the dry land at the Isthmus of the Red Sea (Gulf of Suez), by the way of the road to Shur, and journeyed southward, toward the King's Highway to Baal-zephon, the angel of the Lord went ahead of them in a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night to guide the direction of their journey. The armies of Moses and Aaron turned around from Etham and journeyed southward also toward the King's Highway, near Pi-hahiroth, on the opposite side of Baal-zephon.

And the Lord, according to His word, hardened the heart of Pharaoh and his servants, that they pursued the armies of Moses and Aaron. And it was told to them that the Egyptians were spoiled, and all their jewelry of silver and gold had been taken, and creditors robbed; and the heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against Moses and Aaron, and their men. And the Egyptians said amongst themselves: Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us? And Pharaoh made ready his chariot, and took six hundred chosen chariots of Egypt and all other chariots, and captains over each of them, and his army of horsemen; and they pursued the armies of Moses and Aaron from the land of Goshen, where Pharaoh himself dwelt, and from Memphis (Noph, Moph), where his military and government headquarters were located.

And the armies of Moses and Aaron traveled about 45 miles from Etham, and reached near Pi-hahiroth in the evening of Nisan 15, beginning of Nison 16; and when they reached there, lo, the entire region was flooded with waters, so the King's Highway was not visible. And they encamped there according to their instructions. Near the end of the evening, they saw the armies of Pharaoh on horses and chariots approaching them, at a distance. And the men of Moses and Aaron became sore afraid, for they were trapped between the waters of the flood and the approaching armies of Pharaoh, which came from the north and from the west. And the armies of Moses and Aaron began to murmur unto Moses, saying: Because there were no graves in Egypt, thou hast brought us here to die. Didn't we tell thee to let us alone, so that we might serve the Egyptians. For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die here entrapped. And Moses said unto them: Fear ye not, stand still, and see the deliverance of the Lord, which He will show you today; for the Egyptians you see, shall be seen no more. The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace. Soon after, the angel of the Lord, who went before the women and children and their flocks and herds, and armies to Baal-zephon in a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, on the other side of the flooded waters, moved from in front of them, across the waters, and settled between the armies of Moses and Aaron and the Egyptians; so the Egyptians could not see through the cloud, and Pharaoh's army camped there overnight. And while the cloud was darkness to the Egyptians, it provided light to the children of Israel; so one came not near the other all night.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Lift up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the waters and divide them, and the children of Israel shall pass through the midst onto dry ground. And Moses stretched out his hand over the waters; and the Lord caused the waters to be divided; and a strong east wind blew all that night. And the armies of Moses and Aaron crossed over to the other side (Baal-zephon) during the night of Nisan 16; where they were joined by their women, children and brethren.

Just before the daybreak the Egyptians were informed that the children of Israel had crossed over to the wilderness during the night; and now they could see them. First the Egyptians were afraid to pursue them, because the armies of Israel were large in number. But those whose hearts were hardened, and were possessed with the evil spirit to destroy the children of Israel, pursued them in their chariots and on their horses. And during the morning watch, the angel of the Lord looked, through the pillar of cloud and fire, at the hosts of the Egyptians, who were in the midst of the divided waters, and took off their chariot wheels, so they drove heavily. So the Egyptians said: Let us flee from the face of Israel, for the Lord fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

And the Lord said unto Moses; Stretch out thine hand over the waters, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, their chariots and horses. And Moses stretched forth his hand, and the waters returned with full strength, as the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it, and were drowned in the midst. And the waters covered the chariots and the horsemen; and all the hosts of Pharaoh that came into the sea bed after them. And the Lord sent a mighty east wind which blew them into the waters; and they sank as lead. And those who survived, fled back to Egypt, and never returned.

Thus the Lord saved Israel out of the hands of the Egyptians; and the children of Israel saw corpses of drowned Egyptians by the shores. And Israel saw what a mighty and great work the Lord God of Israel had performed for the children of Israel, His firstborn. And the entire congregation feared and believed the Lord and his servant Moses.

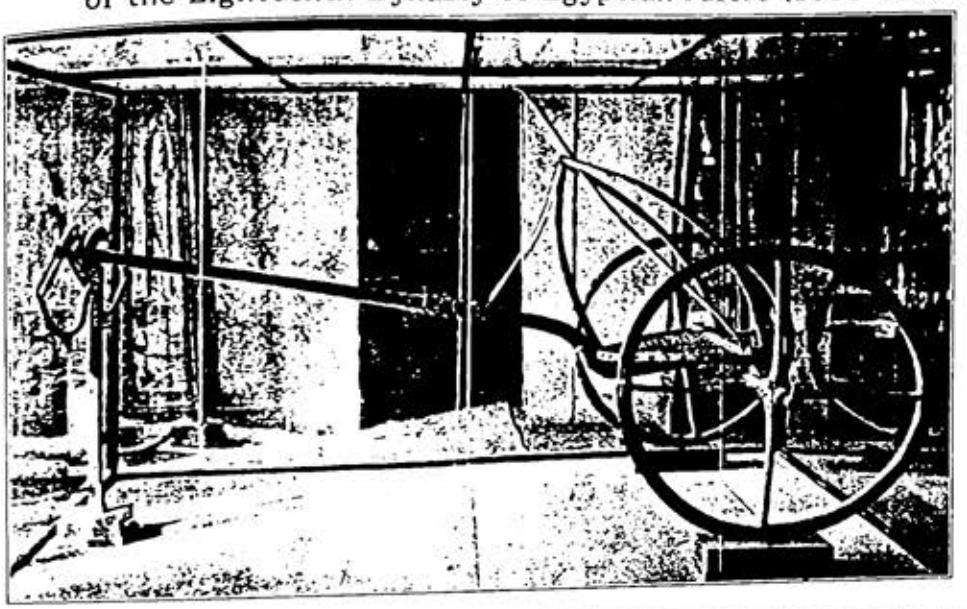
Then, Moses and the children of Israel sang in praise and glory to the Most High God, saying: "I will sing unto the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously, the horse and his rider hath He drowned in the sea." And Moses offered this prayer to the Lord in the midst of the congregation.

The Lord is my strength and song; and He is become my salvation. He is forever my God, the God of my fathers. And I will prepare Him an habitation, and I will exalt Him. The Lord is a man of war -- the Lord is His name. Pharaoh's chariots and his hosts hath He drowned in the waters. The depths have covered them, and they sank to the bottom as a stone. Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power; Thy right hand, O Lord, hath subdued the enemy. And in the greatness of Thine excellency Thou hast overthrown those who rose up against Thee. Thou sent forth Thy wrath and consumed them as stubble. And with the blast of Thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, and the floods stood upright as an heap; and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea. And when the enemy pursued and overtook, to divide the spoil, to satisfy his lust upon the children of Israel, to destroy them, Thou did cause the mighty wind to blow them into the sea; and they sank as lead in the ocean. Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like Thee; glorious in holiness and judicious in praise, doing wonders. Thou stretched out the right hand of Thy servant, and they were swallowed by the waters. Thou in Thy mercy hast led forth the people whom Thou hast redeemed; Thou hast guided them, in Thy strength, unto the holy habitation. The people shall hear, and be afraid; sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestine (Palestina). The dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men of Moab shall tremble; and the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away, in fear and dread. By the greatness of Thine arm, O Lord, may they be as still as a stone, till Thy people pass over, O Lord, till Thy people pass over, the people whom Thou hast purchased. May Thou bring them, and plant them in the mountain of Thine inheritance; in the place, O Lord, which Thou hast made for Thyself to dwell in, in Thy sanctuary, O Lord, which Thine hands have established (in Mount Sinai). The Lord shall reign for ever and ever.

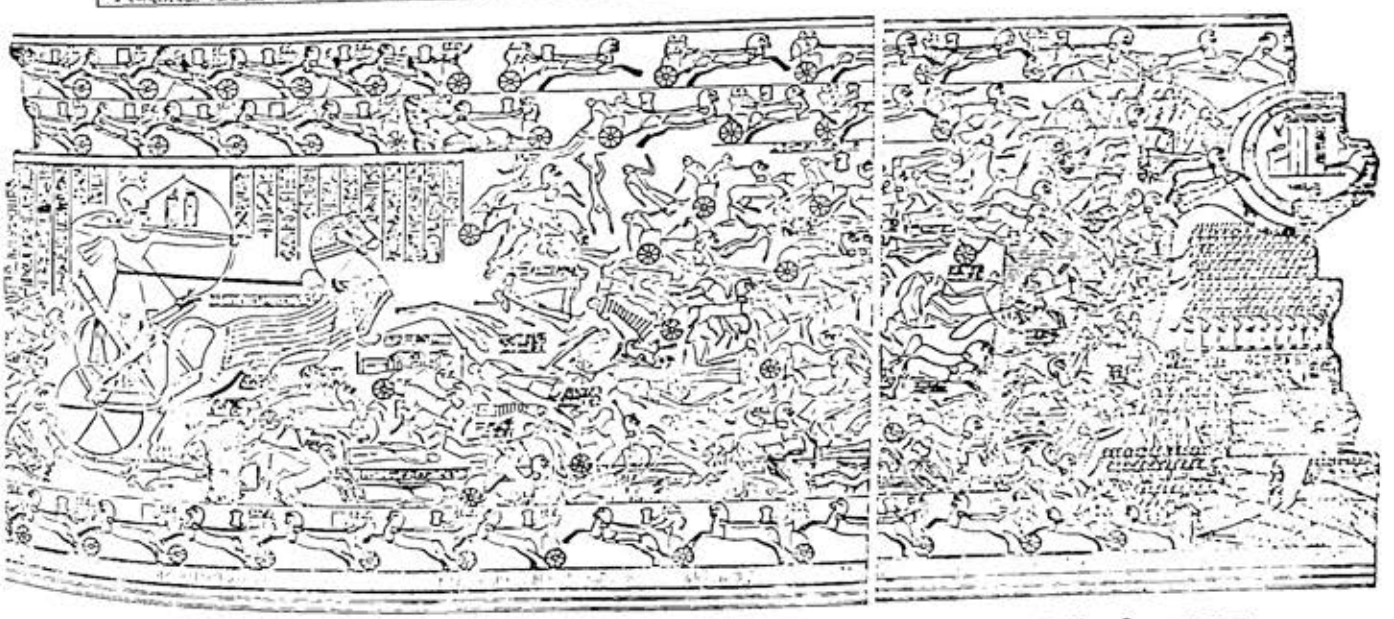
Then, Miriam the prophetess, and sister of Moses and Aaron, took a tambourine in her hand; and all the other women went after her and danced and made merry. And Miriam yelled unto them: Sing ye unto the Lord, "For He hath triumphed gloriously, the horse and his chariot hath He thrown into the sea."

III. THE THIRD EPOCH: FROM ISAAC TO MOSES (1918 - 1473 B.C.)

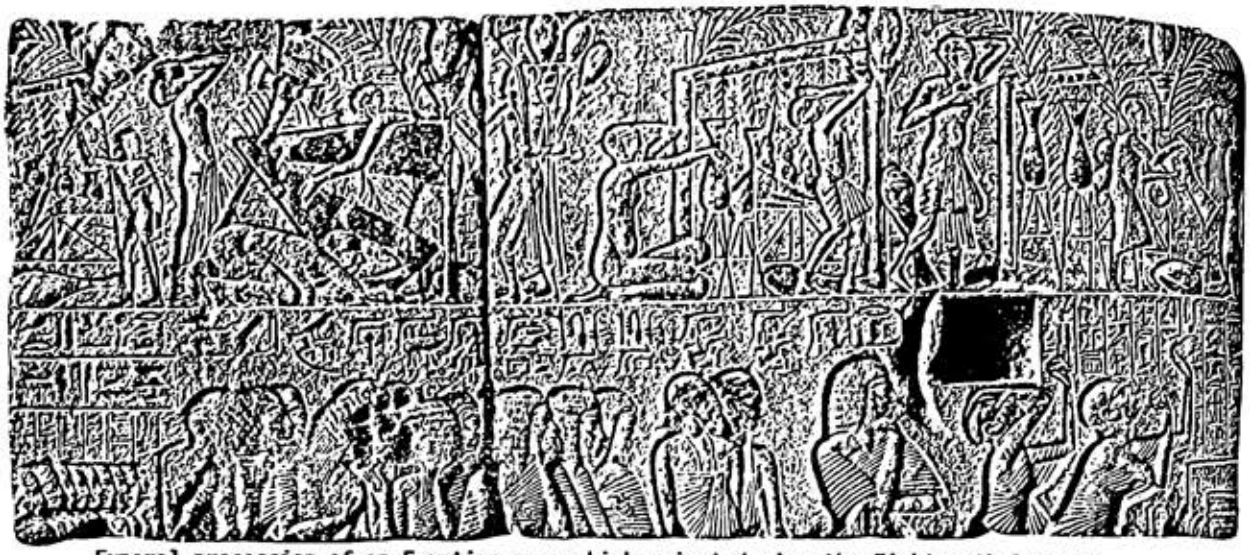
Some perspective into the lives of our forefathers during the time of the Exodus (1513 B.C.) can be gained through the following photographs of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egyptian rulers (1580-1346 B.C.):



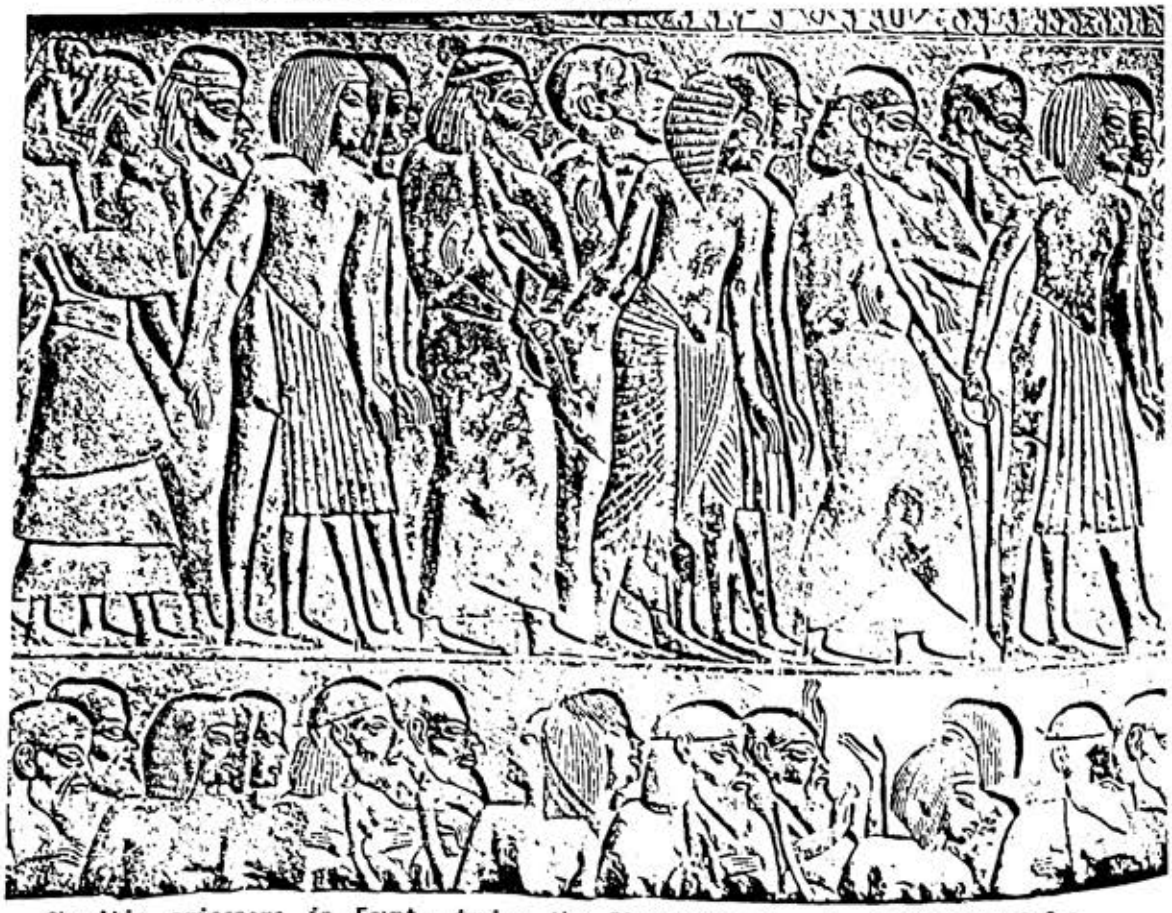
Chariot at the time of the Exodus (Nisan 14, 1513 B.C.)
Made of wood, bronze and leather, such chariots were used by the Pharaoh against the children of Israel. Royal Egyptian chariots usually had six spokes and the Shemitic and Hittite chariots were built with eight spokes. (Museo Archeologico, Florence)



Battle scene from the reliefs of Ramses II on the walls of the Ramesseum (1292-1225 B.C.)
Over two hundred years after the Exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt, when the chariots of the Pharaoh were thrown into the waters near the isthmus of the Red Sea, the Egyptians avenged the Hittite king's army, by drowning them in the river. The relief shows Ramses II in his royal chariot of six spokes; the chariots of the enemy are shown with eight-spoke wheels, some in the river, some fallen to the ground, and some in pursuit. The scene depicts the Pharaoh charging and driving the eastern wing of the enemy into the river; the fugitives are shown swimming across and are pulled out by their comrades on the other shore. On the right, where the wall is broken, once stood the Hittite king in his chariot surrounded by 8,000 footmen, in the doubly-moted city of Kadesh. The fallen lords of the Hittite army are shown, each with his name and title engraved beside him in Egyptian hieroglyphs.



Funeral procession of an Egyptian pagan high priest during the Eighteenth Dynasty
Above: Servants of the high priest build funeral booths, while lamenting his departure.
Below: Near kinsfolk of the deceased marching behind the coffin (extreme right only partially shown). (Berlin Museum)



Shemitic prisoners in Egypt, during the Eighteenth Dynasty (1580-1346 B.C.; the Exodus was in 1513 B.C.)
Shemitic prisoners in their beards and heavy robes were taken captive in pairs; oval wooden manacles tied to a rope were used as handcuffs; between each pair of prisoners were half-naked Egyptian guards. The women became the property of the guard who captured them. (Leyden Museum)

Thus, the entire congregation of Israel was baptized unto the Most High God, by means of the Lord's cloud and the congealed waters of the sea. This en masse baptism was performed by the mighty hand of the Lord God of Israel. The God who, according to the testimony of Prophet Daniel, changes times and seasons; removes kings and sets up kings, gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who know understanding. The God who reveals the deep and concealed things, and knows what is in the darkness. And with Him dwelleth the light. Thus on Nisan 16, 1513 B.C. the children of Israel truly became the Lord's firstborn, when they crossed over to the other side of the Red Sea.

The entire congregation was now encamped on the east bank of the Red Sea (Gulf of Suez), near Baal-zephan. Here an army of Moses and Aaron was sent on a three-day journey into the wilderness of Shur, in the direction of Jerusalem, to the place of worship designated to Pharaoh and his servants. And the men returned in six days, on Nisan 21, for they found no water; and a feast was held unto the Lord at the end of the festival of unleavened bread, according to the ordinance of the Lord, which was given to the children of Israel on Nisan 14.

MARAH

And the entire congregation left Baal-zephon, near the King's Highway, and continued their journey southward through the wilderness of Etham. They journeyed three days but found no drinking water; and after three days when they did find water, they couldn't drink it, for it tasted brackish (bitter); so they named the place Marah (Marrah). And people began to murmur against Moses, saying: What shall we drink? And he cried unto the Lord, and He showed Moses a tree, which when he had cast the cutting from it into the water, the waters were made sweet. And here the Lord made a statute and an ordinance, and said: If you will diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and do that which is right in His sight, and keep His commandments, I will put none of the diseases upon you, which I have brought upon the Egyptians; for I am the Lord that healeth thee.

From Marah they came to Elim (Illum), about 10 miles southeast of Marah. Here they found an oasis with twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees; and the congregation encamped here for thirty days.

Oasis of Elim (Illum, Elam), where some of the offspring of the original seventy palm trees are still found to this day.

And they continued their journey southward about 10 miles from Elim, and reached near the eastern shore of the Red Sea (Gulf of Suez); and encamped there. And they journeyed from near the Red Sea, and camped in the wilderness of Sin, between Elim and Mount Sinai (Horeb); across the dry bed of the creek (Wady Feiran), a barren and dreary desert, where the ground was parched, and not a blade of grass was seen.

And they arrived on Ziv or Iyyar 29, at the wilderness of Sin on the fifteenth day of the second month of their journey which began Nisan (Abib) 14, c.1513 B.C. Here, at the wilderness of Sin, the entire congregation began to murmur against Moses and Aaron, saying: Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the pots full of meat and ate bread to our fill; and ye have brought us here to kill this whole assembly with hunger. And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel. Speak unto them, saying: In the evening ye shall eat meat (flesh), and in the morning ye shall be filled with the bread, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God. Behold, I will rain bread from heaven and the people shall go out and gather a certain amount each day; and on the sixth day they shall gather and prepare twice as much as they gather daily (the seventh day was to be the day of rest, the holy sabbath unto the Lord), that I may prove them whether they walk in my law or not.

And in the evening, flocks of quails came up and covered the entire camp. (Even to this day, at certain intervals, quails fly over this region in such great numbers that the skies turn black with them; and they become exhausted and land in the wilderness, and are easily caught. During this season the markets are filled with them from Jerusalem to various cities in Egypt.)

And in the morning, the Lord sent them bread from heaven. When the dew was gone, behold, there lay upon the surface of the wilderness small round things, as small as hoar frost on the ground, about the size of coriander seed; similar to bdellium gum, a waxlike, transparent substance resembling a pearl. And it tasted like wafers made with honey. (After being ground in a hand mill or pounded in a mortar, it was boiled or made into cakes and baked.) And when the children of Israel saw it, they knew not what it was, as they had never seen such a thing before, so they called it "Manna," "What is the meaning of this?" or "What does this mean?" And Moses said unto them: This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat; which is to be gathered by every person according to the size of his family, an omer (2 dry quarts; 2.2 liters) for every person in the household. And let no man leave it till the next morning. But some of them saved the leftover manna until the next morning, and it bred worms, and stank; and when the sun waxed hot it melted. And Moses said unto Aaron: Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna in it, and lay it up before the Lord to be kept for your generations. And Aaron laid it before the temporary (wooden) ark of the testimony. (Later when the golden ark of the covenant was completed, manna was put in a jar of gold, and placed inside the sacred chest, along with Aaron's rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant. And the children of Israel did eat manna for forty years, until they came to the borders of the land of Canaan. And the Lord suffered them to eat it for nearly forty years to prove them and to know what was in their hearts; and to teach them that man does not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord.)

But the priests, kings and saints should also know the more profound meaning of manna (mana), "hidden manna," "the very bread of powerful ones," "divine provision," etc.; for the word manna throughout the islands of the Pacific and among some of the lost tribes of Israel, even to this day, means "supernatural strength," "hidden power," and similar meanings. It also means the sublime powers of man that one develops through self-sacrifice, self-deprivation, hardships, and such, not a staple or food. Reference to manna is also found in the divine blessings of the Lord. More than fifteen hundred years later, Christ Jesus made a point of this, saying: I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. But the Jews murmured at him because Jesus said, "I am the bread which came down from heaven". Also in the Book of Revelation it is written that: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna. This is a significant difference in the interpretation of the meaning - - it is the difference between the word of the Law, and the spirit of the Law (Amen).

And the congregation of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, and encamped at Dophkah; and they departed from Dophkah, and encamped at Alush. And from Alush they journeyed to Rephidim, and pitched there. Here at Rephidim, there was no drinking water available; and people rebuked Moses, and said: Give us water that we may drink. Wherefore is this the reason thou hast brought us out of Egypt, to kill us, our children and our cattle with thirst? And they tempted the Lord, saying: Is the Lord among us or not? And Moses cried unto the Lord, saying: What shall I do unto this people? They are almost ready to stone me.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Go on before the people, and take with thee the elders of Israel, and thy rod with which thou smote the river. Behold I will stand before thee upon the rock in Horeb (near Mount Sinai), and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders; and called the name of the place Massah, and Meribah, because of the rebuke of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord.

Then came the Amalekites from the north and fought with Israel at Rephidim. And Moses said unto Joshua: Choose your men, and go out and fight. Tomorrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand. So Joshua did as Moses had commanded him, and fought with the Amalekites, who were descendants of Esau's firstborn Eliphaz, by his concubine Timna. Amalek, a grandson of Esau, was one of the fourteen sheiks (dukes) of Edom. They were known to be a warlike people. The center of their territory was north of Kadesh-barnea in the Negeb desert, in the southern part of Palestine (Palestina), with their tributary camps spreading out into the Sinai peninsula and northern Arabia.

JEBEL SERBAL AND THE VALLEY

So the next day Moses, Aaron and Hur went up to the summit of Jebel Serbal. And when Moses lifted up his hand over the battle below, Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand, the Amalekites prevailed. This continued until Moses' hand became tired, so Aaron and Hur took a stone for him to sit upon, and they held up Moses' hands, one on each side, and thus his hands remained steady until sundown. And Joshua defeated them with the edge of his sword. And Moses built an altar there, and called its name Jehovah-nissi, for he said: Because the Lord hath sworn that He will war with the Amalekites from generation to generation.

And when Jethro, the Melchizedek priest of Midian and father-in-law of Moses, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and Israel His people; and that the Lord had brought them out of Egypt with His mighty hand, he took Zipporah, Moses' wife and his two sons Gershom and Eliezer to Rephidim, for they were sent back to Midian from Egypt, prior to Israel's exodus from Egypt. And Moses went out to meet Jethro and his wife and sons; and greeted his father-in-law with a kiss, and they came into the tent of Moses.

And Jethro, who had bestowed upon Moses the Holy Melchizedek priesthood, while he was shepherding in Midian, by laying on of hands, rejoiced in knowing all that had happened to his son-in-law and the children of Israel during and after their departure from Egypt. And Jethro said: Praised be the Lord, who hath delivered you out of the hands of the Egyptians. Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods. And he took a burnt offering and sacrifices for the Lord; and Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eat with Jethro before God.

Next day when Jethro observed that Moses judged the people from morning till evening, and all else that he did during the day, he asked Moses: Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning till the evening? And Moses answered: Because the people come unto me to inquire of God. And when they have a dispute, they come unto me, and I judge between them; and I do make them know the statutes of God and His laws. And Jethro said unto Moses: The thing that thou doeth is not good. Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou and these people. The burden is too heavy for one person to bear. Hearken now unto my voice, as I give thee counsel, and may the Almighty (Eloah, Allah, Elohim) be with thee. May thou continue the people in righteousness, and judge the cases in holiness; and teach them ordinances and laws, and the way in which they must walk, and the work they must do. Moreover, thou shalt choose out of all the people, able and righteous men who fear God, men of truth who hate covetousness, and place them over the people, to be rulers over the tens, the fifties, the hundreds, and the thousands. And let them judge the people throughout the year, in all seasons. It may be that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter shall be judged by those who have been placed. So while it shall be easier for thyself, others shall bear the burden gladly with thee. And if thou shalt do this and God shalt bless thine undertakings, then thou shalt be able to endure and the people shall find peace.

And Moses hearkened to the words of his father-in-law, and did all that he had advised. And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens, and they judged the people in all seasons. The hard cases they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves. And Moses let his father-in-law depart, and he returned to Midian, the land to the south and east of Mount Sinai, and across the right arm of the Red Sea (Gulf of Aqabah).

In the third month, Sivan (May-June) 14, on the same day of the month when the children of Israel left the land of Egypt, they arrived near Mount Sinai, from Rephidim. And here Israel camped before Mount Sinai (Horeb).

Camp before Mount Sinai: one of the twelve tribes of Israel, as represented by an artist.

Moses went up the mount of God (Mount Sinai), and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying: Thus shalt thou say to the children of Israel, the house of Jacob: ye have seen how the Egyptians were subdued, and how you were carried across the waters on eagles' wings, and brought unto me. Now therefore if ye will keep my commandments and obey my voice in truth, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all my children, for all the earth is mine, and I do have many children; and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation. And Moses came down, and called the elders of Israel, and spoke to them all that the Lord had commanded him to say. And all the elders answered in unison, and said: All that the Lord hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned to Mount Sinai to convey unto the Lord the response of the elders. And the Lord said unto Moses: Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and believe thee forever. Go unto the people, and sanctify them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their clothes, and be ready the third day; for on the third day the Lord will come down in the sight of all the people upon Mount Sinai. And thou shalt set bounds, that no one goes near the mountain; for whosoever toucheth the mount shall surely be put to death, stoned or shot through. But, when the trumpet soundeth long, then they may come up to the mount.

And Moses went down from Mount Sinai, and said unto them all that the Lord had commanded him. And he sanctified the people, and told them to be ready on the third day; and not to go near their wives. On the third day in the morning there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceedingly loud and horrifying, such that all the people of the congregation trembled with fear. And Moses brought forth the people out of their tents to meet God, as they stood at the foot of the mountain. And Mount Sinai was altogether smoke because the Lord descended upon it in fire, and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount shook, as if by a huge earthquake. And when the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spoke, and God answered him by a voice; and appeared on the top of Mount Sinai, and called Moses up to the top of the mount, and Moses went up. And the Lord said unto Moses: Go down and tell the people to tarry where they are, lest they break through to gaze upon the Lord and many of them perish, for the trumpet had already sounded long. And Moses replied: The people cannot come up to Mount Sinai, for thou had commanded us to set bounds around the mountain, and sanctify it. And the Lord said unto him: Away, get thee down amongst the people, lest the Lord break forth upon them. So Moses went down, and told them that they were not to go up to the mount, although the sign of the trumpet had come to pass.

And God spoke these words, saying: I am the Lord your God, who have brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image or any likeness of anything which is in the heaven above, or earth below (so that they may not revert back to idolatry and false worship of gods of Egypt, in the form of animals, birds, and other objects); nor shalt thou bow down to these graven images; for the Lord your God is a jealous God, who visits the iniquities of the fathers upon their children unto the third and fourth generation, of those who hate Him; and who bestows mercy upon thousands who love Him, and keep His commandments.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain.

Thou shalt remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days thou shalt labor, and do all thy work, but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord your God. In it thou shalt not do any work.

Thou shalt honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long.

Thou shalt not kill.

Thou shalt not commit adultery. (Any thought or action, out of wedlock, that adulterates the purity of thought or body is called adultery.)

Thou shalt not steal.

Thou shalt not bear false witness.

Thou shalt not covet. (To eagerly desire, to lust after, or to long for anything whatsoever, which belongs to someone else, is called covetousness.)

And when all the people witnessed the presence of God upon Mount Sinai, the thunderings, the lightnings, the mountain smoking, the noise of the trumpet, the fear took hold of them, and they became exceedingly afraid. And they removed themselves from near the bounds that were set around the mount, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses: Speak thou with us, and we will hear, but let not God speak to us, lest we die. And Moses replied: Fear not, for God is come to prove you, that His fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not. And while the people stood afar off, Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was. And the Lord said unto Moses: Thus thou shalt tell the children of Israel: Ye have seen that I have talked with you from heaven. Ye shall not make gods of silver and gold; but an altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and sacrifice thereon your burnt offerings, your peace offerings, your sheep and oxen. In all places where I record my name, I will come unto you and bless you. And if you make me an altar of stone, you shall not build it of hewn stone, for if ye lift up your tools upon it, you have polluted it. Neither shall you go up by steps unto mine altar, that your nakedness be not discovered thereon.

Besides the Ten Commandments (Decalogue), the Lord also revealed to the children of Israel fundamental laws pertaining to servants, marriages, the death penalty for divers offenses; the giving of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, and regulations governing damage done by oxen. The laws were given pertaining to stealing, destruction by fire, care of property of others, borrowing, lascivious acts, sacrifices to false gods, afflicting widows, usury, reviling God, the firstborn of man and animals, and holiness of the men of Israel. And the laws were set forth pertaining to integrity and godly conduct, sabbatical or rest year for the agricultural land; and observance of three feasts during the year, namely: the feast of unleavened bread, the feast of harvest (the firstfruits of the labor), and the feast of ingathering or festival of booths.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Come up unto the Lord, thou, Aaron, Nadab and Abihu (Aaron's sons), and seventy of the elders of Israel. And worship ye afar off. But Moses alone shall come near to the Lord. And Moses kept a record of all that the Lord had spoken; and rose up early the next morning, and built an altar; and twelve pillars at the foot of Mount Sinai to represent the twelve tribes of Israel, and sent young men of the children of Israel to offer burnt offerings and peace offerings of oxen unto the Lord. And Moses took half of the blood of a slain animal and put it in a container, and the other half he sprinkled on the altar. And he read from the book of the covenant (Book of Remembrance), which had been kept since the time of Seth, to the congregation. And the children of Israel said: All that the Lord hath commanded we will do, and be obedient to His voice. Then Moses took the blood from the container and sprinkled it on the people and said: May this be the testimony of the covenant which you have made with the Lord today concerning all these words.

Then Moses, Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy elders of Israel went up into Mount Sinai, and saw the God of Israel. And there was under His feet, as it were, a paved work of sapphire stone, as the body of heaven in its clearness. And they did eat and drink with Him.

A few days later, the Lord said unto Moses: Come up to me into the mount; and there I will give thee tablets of stone, a law and commandments which I have written. This you may teach to the people. And Moses arose to go up into the mountain, and his minister Joshua said unto the elders: Tarry ye here for us, until we return, and behold, Aaron and Hur are with you; and if anyone has any matter to resolve, let him come to them. And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered Mount Sinai for six days; and on the seventh day the Lord called Moses out of the midst of the cloud. The sight and glory of the Lord was like devouring fire on top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel. And Moses went through the midst of the cloud, into the mount, and remained there for forty days and forty nights. And during his stay in Mount Sinai, the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israel that they bring me an offering. Of every man that giveth willingly with his heart, ye shall accept his offerings of gold, silver, and brass; blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twined linen, goat's hair for the tent covering, ram's skins dyed red, badger's skins, acacia (shittim) wood, olive oil for lamps, spices for anointing oil and sweet incense; onyx stones for the ephod, and precious stones for the breastplate; and let them make a tabernacle, a sanctuary according to the design and details which I show thee, that I may dwell amongst them.

And the Lord gave Moses the complete pattern for the tabernacle, commanding him: See that you make all things after the pattern which has been shown to thee. And since it served as a shadow of heavenly things, its construction required obedience to the minutest detail.

The tabernacle was to be thirty cubits in length, ten cubits wide, and ten cubits high. (One cubit equals about 17.5 inches.) Its north and south sides were to be made of twenty boards (or panel frames) each; and the western (rear) side was to be of six boards of acacia (shittim) wood; plus two corner panels or posts joined together beneath, and above the head into a ring on each side. All the boards of acacia wood were to be overlaid with gold, and to measure 10 cubits x 1½ cubits each, with two tenons in each to be fitted into mortises (hollows or cavities). A total of 48 such boards or panels was required for the structure, which stood on 96 pedestals with sockets to receive tenons, one panel requiring two pedestals. Each of these pedestals was to be of silver, weighing a talent (about 92 troy pounds). Additionally four such silver pedestals were to be molded for the four pillars of acacia wood, overlaid with gold, which divided the Holy from the Most Holy. Thus a total of 100 silver pedestals were to serve as the foundation for the tabernacle. Additionally, five pedestals of brass with sockets were to be molded for the five pillars of acacia wood overlaid with gold, their capitals and fillets also overlaid with gold, which were to stand at the entrance door of the tent. A hanging of blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle work, was to be made for the five pillars.

The tabernacle was to be covered with ten curtains of blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twined linen. The length of each curtain was to be 28 cubits and the breadth 4 cubits. Five of these curtains were to be joined into one large section; and the other five curtains were also to be joined into one section. These two sections, of five curtains each, were to be coupled together with fifty loops of blue thread at the edge of each, so that the loops may take hold of one another. These loops were to be coupled together, with fifty clasps (hooks) of gold, to form one large covering of 28 cubits x 40 cubits for the tabernacle. Upon this covering were to be embroidered cherubim, according to the pattern shown in the mount. And a framework of five beams (bars) of acacia wood, overlaid with gold, on each side of the tabernacle was to be supported by the panels (boards) on both sides. And five beams (bars) each for the two sides westward, in the rear and middle, were to serve as the truss, forming support for the roof and the structure. And the middle beam was to shoot through the middle from one end to another.

Eleven curtains of goat's hair, 30 cubits x 4 cubits each, were to be made for the tent of the tabernacle. Five of these curtains were to be joined together into one section; and the remaining six were to be joined together into another, and the sixth curtain was to be doubled in the front of the tabernacle. These two sections of 30 cubits x 20 cubits and 30 cubits x 24 cubits were to be coupled together by fifty loops at the edge of each piece, with fifty clasps (hooks) of brass; making one large piece of 30 cubits x 44 cubits. One cubit of excess material was to be allowed for each side of the tabernacle, to cover it with tent pins made of brass; and the remnant was to be used to cover the backside of the tabernacle. Additionally, the tent was to be covered by ram's skins dyed red, and a covering of badger's skins on top of it.

The tabernacle was to be divided into two compartments by a curtain (veil) of blue, purple, scarlet, and of fine twined linen, of cunning work, with cherubim embroidered on it. The curtain was to hang over the four pillars, which stood on four pedestals of silver with sockets. The outer compartment, called the Holy Place or the Holy, was to be 20 cubits in length, 10 cubits wide and 10 cubits high (inside measurements); and the inner compartment, a cube of 10 cubits (also inside measurements), was called the Holy of Holies or the Most Holy. The outer compartment, or the Holy, was to contain three pieces of furniture, namely: the altar of incense, the candlestick, and the table of shewbread. The altar of incense was to be placed near the middle of the curtain with cherubim which divided the Holy from the Most Holy. The altar of incense was similar in construction to the altar of the burnt offering, but smaller and overlaid with gold, instead of brass. On it, incense was burned in the morning and evening; and upon its horns, which were on its four corners, was to be put once a year, on the Day of Atonement, the blood of the sin offering. But no animal sacrifices were to be performed on this altar. On the south side of the Holy compartment was to stand the candlestick of pure gold of beaten work, with six branches and seven lamps. Pure olive oil was to be burned in the lamps. And Aaron and his sons were to light the lamps in the evening, and dress them in the morning. The lamps were to burn continuously, and this was to be a statute forever in behalf of the children of Israel. And on the north side of the Holy compartment was to be placed the table of shewbread, with 12 unleavened cakes, made of fine flour. They were to be placed in two piles of six each, and frankincense was to be put on each pile. The shewbread or the "bread of face" or "presence bread," which continuously represented the twelve tribes of Israel before God, was to be replaced every Sabbath day, and eaten by the Aaronic priests in this compartment. Thus it served both as a communion and a sacrifice.

The Holy of Holies or the Most Holy compartment was to contain only one piece of furniture, referred to by at least twenty names such as: the Ark of the Covenant, the Ark of the Testimony, the Ark of Jehovah, the Sacred Chest, or the Coffin. It was the central and most important object within the tabernacle; and highly cherished and revered by the entire camp of Israel. The sacred chest was to be $2\frac{1}{2}$ cubits long, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cubits wide and $1\frac{1}{2}$ cubits high. It was to be made of acacia wood, overlaid inside and out with pure gold. An artistic border was to serve as the crowning wreath around it. Its cover was to be of solid gold, not merely overlaid with gold. Mounted on this cover, which was called the mercy seat or "propitiatory cover," were to be cherubim of hammered workmanship, one on each end of the cover, facing each other, heads bowed, and their wings extending upward and overspreading the Ark. Long poles of acacia wood, overlaid with gold, were to be made to carry the Ark. These poles were to be inserted through two rings on each side of the chest, and were not to be removed from their rings. The mercy seat also served as the lid of the sacred chest, and as the altar on the Day of Atonement. The Aaronic high priest was to enter the Most Holy compartment once a year on the Day of Atonement to sprinkle the blood of the sin offering on the mercy seat. This was the highest atonement known to the Jewish law. The mercy seat was also the place of the manifestation of God's glory. It was God's throne in Israel. The Lord God of Israel dwelt between the cherubim, and spoke from there. And when Moses went into the Most Holy to speak to Him, he heard the voice of One speaking unto him from off the mercy seat that was upon the Ark of the Testimony, from between the two cherubim.

The courtyard surrounding the tabernacle was to be 100 cubits x 50 cubits. A fencelike curtain of fine twined linen, five cubits high, surrounded it. The hanging for the entrance gate of the courtyard, on the east side, was to be made of blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twined linen with needlework. Its length was to be 20 cubits and breadth 5 cubits. It was to cover five pillars of the entrance gate (the fourth through the eighth pillars). Over the remaining six pillars on the east side was to hang the fencelike curtain, white in color, which also covered all the other sides of the courtyard. On the north and south sides of the courtyard, twenty pillars, each filleted with silver, and their capitals and hooks also of silver, were to stand on brass pedestals with sockets, and ten such pillars, each with their pedestals, were required on the east and the west sides of the courtyard of the tabernacle.

Between the entrance gate of the courtyard on the east side and tabernacle was to stand the altar of the burnt offering. It was to be a square of five cubits, three cubits high; and its frame was to be of acacia wood, overlaid with brass. (The hollow was filled with unhewn stones or earth). All the vessels for the altar of the burnt offering, including pans to receive ashes, shovels, basins, meat hooks and firepans, were to be made of brass. Around and halfway up the altar was to be a ledge, supported by a grating network of brass. The altar was to have rings and staves by means of which it could be carried.

And between the altar of the burnt offering and the door of the tent was to stand a laver of brass, on a base of brass. It was to be used by the Aaronic priests for washing their hands and feet, when they entered the tent for any priestly purpose.

Besides all the details concerning the tabernacle and its furniture, the Lord also revealed to Moses, during his stay in Mount Sinai for forty days and nights, many details concerning the establishment of the Aaronic priesthood. Aaron and his sons were to be consecrated and anointed to minister in the office of Aaronic priesthood. Aaron's garment was to include a breastplate, an ephod, a robe, a coat, a mitre (turban), and a girdle, and Urim and Thummin to be carried in the breastplate, and a plate of pure gold with HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD engraved upon it. Also revealed were various sacrificial rites that were to be performed for the atonement of the sins of the people; and the Lord promised to dwell amongst the children of Israel.

And in Mount Sinai, the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Behold, I have named Bezaleel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah to devise cunning works in gold, silver and in brass; and in cutting stones, to set them, in carving wood, and to work in all manner of workmanship. And I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, understanding and knowledge.

And Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, behold, an engraver and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, purple, scarlet, and fine linen. And in the hearts of all who are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee. And at the end of His communion and communication with Moses upon Mount Sinai, the Lord gave him two tablets of stone, written with the finger of God. These were the Ten Commandments.

But when the children of Israel saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, they gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said: Get up and make us gods which shall go before us; as for this Moses, the man who brought us out of Egypt, we know not what is become of him. And Aaron said to them: Break off the earrings of gold which are in the ears of your wives, your sons, and your daughters, and bring them to me. And all the people took off the gold earrings from their ears, and brought them to Aaron and said: These be thy god, O Israel, which brought you out of the land of Egypt. And Aaron, knowing the wickedness of the people, made for them a golden calf of acacia wood and adorned it with ornaments, and built an altar for it and made a proclamation, saying: Tomorrow is a feast unto the Lord.

And the next day, people rose up early, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and people ate and drank, made merry and played. And the Lord said unto Moses: Go, get thee down, for thy people, whom thou hast brought from the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves. They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them. They have made a golden calf and worshiped it, and offered sacrifices thereunto; and said that it was the gods made of gold which had brought them out of Egypt.

But the Lord said unto Moses: I have seen this people, they are a stiffnecked lot. Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, that I may consume them; and make of thee a great nation. And Moses pleaded with the Lord his God in behalf of the people, saying: O, Lord, why doth Thy wrath wax hot against Thy people whom Thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt with great power and a mighty hand? Wherefore should the Egyptians speak, and say that for mischief did their God bring them out of Egypt to slay them near the wilderness and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from Thy fierce wrath, O Lord, and repent of this evil which Thou hast thought in Thine heart. Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Israel), Thy servants, to whom Thou hast sworn by Thine own self, and said unto them: I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven and as the sand upon the seashore, and they shall inherit the land of their promise forever. And the Lord repented of the evil which He thought to do unto the children of Israel.

Israel worships the golden calf made of acacia wood and adorned with gold. (an artist's representation)

And Moses left, and came down the mount with the two tablets in his hand. The tablets were the work of God, and the writing was engraved on both sides of the tablets. And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said to Moses: There is a noise of war in the camp. It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for being overcome, but the noise of them that sing do I hear.

And as soon as Moses came near the camp, and saw the calf and the dancing, his anger waxed hot, and he cast the tablets out of his hands and broke them beneath the mount. And he took the calf which they had made and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder; and mixed the ashes with water and made the children of Israel drink of it.

And Moses said unto Aaron: What did this people unto thee that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them? And Aaron replied: Let not the anger of my master wax hot. Thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief, for they asked me to make them gods, which shall go before them. For, they said, this man Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him. And I said unto them: Whosoever hath any gold earrings, let them break them off from the ears of their wives, sons and daughters, and bring them unto me. Then I cast them into the fire; and there came this calf!

When Moses saw that people were naked, for Aaron had made them naked unto their shame, he stood in the gate of the camp, and said: Who is on the Lord's side? Let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him. And Moses said: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp and slay every naked person. Consecrate yourselves today to the Lord, every man, his son and his brother, that He may bestow upon you His blessings this day. And the sons of Levi did according to the word of Moses; and there fell that day three thousand people.

The next day Moses said unto the people: Ye have sinned a great sin, and now I will go up unto the Lord; that peradventure I make an atonement for your sin. And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said: This people, O Lord, have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold. Yet now, may Thou forgive their sin; and if not, blot me out of Thy book which Thou hast written. And the Lord said unto Moses: Whosoever hath sinned against me will I blot out of my book. Therefore now go, lead the people unto the land which I swore unto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Mine angel shall go before thee, nevertheless in the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them. And I will not go up in the midst of you, for thou art a stiffnecked people, lest I consume you in the way. And the Lord plagued the people, because they worshiped the calf which Aaron made.

And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned, and no man put on his ornaments. And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by Mount Sinai.

And Moses took a tent and pitched it outside the camp of Israel, afar off from the camp, and called it the Tabernacle of the Congregation. And everyone who sought the Lord went out to this tabernacle. And it came to pass that when Moses was walking toward the Tabernacle of the Congregation, that the people stood at their tent doors and watched Moses, until he entered. And as Moses entered the Tabernacle, the pillar of cloud descended, and stood at the door, and the Lord talked with Moses; and when people saw the pillar of cloud, they rose up and worshiped, every man by his tent door. And the Lord spoke unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend, but he did not see His face. And Moses said unto the Lord: Behold, Thou command me to lead the people unto the Land of Promise; but who wilt Thou send with me, if Thou wilt not go up in the midst? Yet Thou hast said, "I know thee by name and thou hast found grace in my sight." Now therefore, I pray Thee, if I have found grace in Thy sight, show me Thy ways, that I may know Thee; and know for a surety that this nation is Thy people. And if Thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence. If Thou goest not with us, then how shall it be known that I and Thy people have found grace in Thy sight; and I and Thy people be separated from all the people on the face of the earth? I beseech Thee, O Lord, show me Thy glory.

And the Lord said: My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest. And I will do this thing also that thou hast asked, for thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name. I will make my goodness pass before thee, and manifest the name of the Lord before thee; and I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will show mercy on whom I will show mercy. Thou canst not see my face, for there shall no mortal see me and live. Behold, there is a place nearby, and thou shalt stand upon the rock; and it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a cliff of the rock, and cover thee with my hand while I pass by. And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts, but my face shall not be seen. Now, hew thee two tablets of stone like unto the first, and I will write upon these tablets the words that were on the first tablets, which thou hast broken. And be ready in the morning, and come up in the top of the mount. No man shalt come up with thee, nor any man, flocks or herds, be seen anywhere near the mountain.

Then Moses returned to the camp, but his servant Joshua, son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the Tabernacle of the Congregation. And Moses hewed two tablets like unto the first, rose up early in the morning, and went up into Mount Sinai, as the Lord had commanded him, and carried with him the two tablets of stone. And the Lord descended in the cloud and manifested the name of the Lord in His glory, as He passed by before Moses, saying: The Lord, the Lord God, Merciful and Gracious, Long-suffering, and abundant in Goodness and Truth; keeping mercy for thousands, ignoring their iniquity and transgression and sin, which by no means clears the guilty; visiting the iniquity of fathers upon their children, unto the third and fourth generation. And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth and worshiped, and said: If now I have found grace in Thy sight, O Lord, let my Lord, I pray Thee, go among us, for it is a stiffnecked people,and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for Thine inheritance.

And the Lord said: Behold I make a covenant before all thy people. Observe thou that which I command thee this day. Take heed to thyself, lest you fall into the snares of the inhabitants of the land whither you goest. Ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves; and worship none of their gods, nor go a whoring after their illusions, which lead to endless torment and spiritual death. Neither shall ye take daughters unto thy sons, nor make thy sons go a whoring after them and their gods. Ye shall worship no molten gods, for they are an abomination and a snare, which take you captive and destroy you.

And ye shalt keep all the commandments which I have given you previously; for Lo, the Lord, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God. And the Lord said unto Moses: Write thou all the things that I have revealed to thee; and that I have made a covenant with thee and Israel. And Moses was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; and he did neither eat bread, nor drink water for forty days; and he wrote upon the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments (Decalogue).

And when Moses came down from Mount Sinai with the two tablets of testimony in his hand, the skin of his face shone while he spoke to the congregation. And when Aaron and the children of Israel beheld Moses, that the skin of his face shone, they were afraid to come near him. And Moses called unto them, Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation, and spoke to them all which the Lord had revealed to him in the mount; and he put a veil on his face while he spoke. And thenceforward, whenever Moses spoke to the children of Israel, he put the veil on his face; but whenever he went before the Lord to speak with Him, he took off the veil. And Moses put the two tablets of testimony in the (temporary) ark of acacia (shittim) wood which he had made, according to the Lord's commandments before he went up into Mount Sinai with the two hewn stones in his hands.

And Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel in a solemn assembly and said unto them: These are the words which the Lord hath commanded you to do. Six days shall ye work, but the seventh day shall be to you a holy day, a sabbath of rest to the Lord. Whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death. Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations on the sabbath day. And this is the thing which the Lord hath commanded, saying: Take ye from among you an offering unto the Lord; whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring an offering to the Lord; gold, silver and brass; blue, purple, scarlet, and fine linen; goat's hair, rams' skins dyed red, badgers' skins, and acacia (shittim) wood; and oil for the lamps; spices for anointing oil and sweet incense; onyx stones for the ephod, and precious stones for the breastplate. And every wise-hearted among you shall come, and make all that the Lord hath commanded: the tabernacle, its tent and covering, clasps (hooks), boards (panels), beams (bars), pillars, and pedestals with sockets; the Ark, its carrying poles and mercy seat, the curtain (veil) of the covering; and the table of shewbread. Plus the candlestick and olive oil for the lamps; an altar of incense and its staves; the anointing oil and sweet incense; the hanging for the door at the entrance of the tabernacle; the altar of burnt offering, with its brazen grate, its staves and all its vessels and utensils; the laver and its base (foot); the hangings for the court, its pillars and pedestals with sockets; and hangings for the entrance gate of the courtyard; the pins for the tabernacle and the courtyard, and their cords; the cloths of service for the Holy Place; and the holy garments for Aaron, the priest, and garments for his sons to minister in the priest's office.

And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses. Then every one whose heart was stirred and spirit made willing returned with offerings. Both men and women brought bracelets, earrings, rings, and all manner of jewelry of gold as an offering unto the Lord, for the tabernacle. And every person with whom was found blue, purple, scarlet, and fine linen, goat's hair, red skins of rams, and badger skins brought them. They made offerings of silver and brass, and acacia (shittim) wood. And all the women that were wise-hearted spun with their hands and brought that which they had spun. And the rulers brought onyx stones and the precious stones for the ephod and the breastplate; plus spices for sweet incense and olive oil for the lamps and anointing. Thus the children brought a willing sacrifice unto the Lord, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing. And Moses said unto them: Behold, the Lord hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; and He hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, understanding and knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship; to devise curious works in gold, silver and brass; in cutting and setting the stones, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work. And along with Bezaleel, the Lord hath filled Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of cunning work of the engraver and of the embroiderer and weaver in blue, purple, scarlet, and in fine linen.

Then Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise-hearted man, in whose heart the Lord had put wisdom; and everyone whose heart was stirred to do the work of building the tabernacle, and elaborated the details of what was required of them. And the children of Israel continued to bring their offerings every morning and volunteer their services to the Lord. And their generosity was so overwhelming that they had to be restrained from bringing offerings; and Moses had to issue a proclamation, saying: Let no man or woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. And according to all that the Lord commanded, so the children of Israel did all the work, and were obedient to the Lord's instructions to the minutest detail. And Moses did look upon the work they had done, and marvelled, and blessed them.

And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: On the first day of the first month (Nisan or Abib) thou shalt set up the tabernacle, its tent, the altar of the burnt offering, the laver, and the court; and all the curtains and hangings. Thou shalt put the Ark of the Covenant in the Most Holy; and the altar of incense, the table of shewbread and the candlestick, their vessels, anointing oil and sweet incense, and twelve unleavened cakes, in the Holy Place. And thou shalt take the anointing oil and anoint the tabernacle, and all its furniture, and the altar of the burnt offering outside the tent and the laver and its base, and all the vessels and utensils thereof. And thou shalt hallow and sanctify them. And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle and wash them with water; and put upon Aaron the holy garments and anoint him and sanctify him that he may minister unto me in the priest's office. And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them with coats, and anoint them as thou didst their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office; for know it for a surety that their anointing shall constitute an everlasting priesthood throughout all generations. Thus Moses, the Melchizedek high priest, did all that the Lord had commanded him.

Hoet

Moses sets up the Tabernacle near Mount Sinai (artist's representation)

On the first day of the first month of the second year, Nisan or Abib 1, 1512 B.C., the tabernacle was reared up near Mount Sinai. And Moses fastened its pedestals with sockets, and set up the boards (panels) and the nine pillars, and spread the covering over the tabernacle. And he put up the beams (bars) on both sides and westward for the tent coverings. And Moses took the two stone tablets from the temporary ark of acacia wood, and put them in the golden Ark of the Covenant, and inserted the two poles through their rings in the sacred chest, and covered it with the mercy seat, and brought the Ark into the tabernacle, and placed it in the Most Holy compartment by the curtain (veil) which separated the Holy from the Most Holy. And he put the table of shewbread in the north side of the Holy compartment, and set two piles of six unleavened cakes with frankincense on top of each pile on the table. And he put the candlestick on the south side of the Holy, across the table of shewbread; and lighted the lamps before the Lord, as he was commanded to do. Then he put the altar of incense on the west side of the Holy compartment, near the middle of the curtain, with cherubim, which divided the Holy from the Most Holy; and burnt sweet incense thereon. And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle. Then he set the altar of the burnt offering in the front of the tabernacle; and offered upon it the burnt offering and meat offering, according to the Lord's commandments. And he set the laver between the altar of the burnt offering and the door of the tabernacle and filled it with water, to wash withal, and here Aaron and his sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar washed their hands and feet. (And whenever the Aaronic priests went into the tabernacle or came near the altar, they washed their hands and feet.) And finally Moses reared up the court with twenty pillars on each side, north and south, and ten pillars each on the east and west sides; with its hanging which went all around it, separated by the hanging over the court gate in the east. So Moses finished the work, according to the Lord's commandments.

Then, a cloud covered the tent of the tabernacle, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. The denseness of the cloud was such that Moses could not enter the tabernacle. It was the same cloud which had been with the children of Israel since the time they departed from Succoth on Nisan 14, 1513 B.C. It served as cloud by day and light by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout their journeys. Whenever the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel resumed their journey; but if it stayed over the tabernacle, they remained encamped, and did not move.

A total of 603,550 men, twenty years old and upward, made the offerings of gold, silver and brass, for the building of the tabernacle. All the gold offerings amounted to 29 talents and 730 shekels, or about 2,690 troy pounds. (One talent equals approximately 92 troy pounds, or 3,000 shekels.) This gold was used in the following manner:

(1) The Ark of acacia (shittim) wood, $2\frac{1}{2}$ cubits x $1\frac{1}{2}$ cubits x $1\frac{1}{2}$ cubits, and its two carrying poles (staves) were overlaid with gold; and its four rings for the poles, the mercy seat with two cherubim, and a crowning wreath around it, were made of solid gold.

(2) The table of acacia wood for the shewbread, 2 cubits long, 1 cubit wide, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ cubits high, its four legs, and two carrying poles were overlaid with gold; and a border of an handbreadth around it and a crowning wreath, plus four rings, which were placed upon the four corners by its four legs, were made of solid gold.

(3) The candlestick, its shafts, branches, bowls, knops, and flowers; and its tongs and snuffdishes were made of solid gold. A total of one talent or about 92 troy pounds was used for the candlestick and its vessels.

(4) The ten curtains of blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twined linen with cherubim of cunning work, utilized fifty clasps (or hooks) of solid gold.

(5) The incense altar of acacia wood, one cubit in length and breadth, square, and two cubits high, with four horns (one in each corner), plus its two carrying poles, were overlaid with gold; and its four rings for the poles, located by each corner on both sides, under its crown; and a crowning wreath around it were of solid gold. (The holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary, were placed on it.)

(6) Forty-eight boards (panels) of acacia wood, each 10 cubits x 1½ cubits, and twenty beams (bars) were overlaid with gold; and their twenty rings were made of solid gold.

(7) The four pillars of acacia (shittim) wood were overlaid with gold; and the hooks for the curtain (veil) of blue, purple, scarlet, and fine linen, with cherubim of cunning work embroidered on it, which hung over the pillars, and divided the Holy compartment from the Most Holy, were made of solid gold.

(8) The five pillars of acacia wood that stood at the entrance door of the tabernacle, and their capitals and fillets were overlaid with gold; and the curtain for the tabernacle door of blue, purple, scarlet and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework which hung over the pillars utilized hooks made of pure gold.

(9) Additionally, gold beaten into thin plates was cut into wires to work it into blue, purple, scarlet, and fine linen, of cunning work for ephod and the breastplate; and the chains for the breastplate of wreathen work and its rings were made of solid gold.

(10) The bells upon the hem of Aaron's robe (a bell and a pomegranate, followed by a bell and a pomegranate all around the hem of the robe); plus the plate for the holy crown for Aaron's turban, with HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD engraved upon it, were made of solid gold.

And all the silver which was received as offerings for the tabernacle amounted to 100 talents and 1,775 shekels, or about 9,255 troy pounds; half a shekel (bekah) from every one of the 603,550 men twenty years old and upward; or 301,775 bekahs. The 100 talents of silver were used for the one hundred silver pedestals with sockets, each weighing one talent, for the foundation of the tabernacle. 96 such pedestals were used for the 48 boards (panels), two to a board, and four pedestals were used for the four pillars which divided the Holy compartment from the Most Holy; each weighing one talent or about 92 troy pounds. And 1,775 shekels of silver were used to make hooks for the sixty pillars around the court; and to overlay their capitals and to fillet them.

The total offerings of brass amounted to 70 talents and 2,400 shekels, or about 6,514 troy pounds. This brass was used for making five pedestals with sockets for the five pillars at the door of the tabernacle; the brazen altar in the courtyard, its grate and all its vessels; sixty brass pedestals, one for each of the sixty pillars of the court (there were twenty pillars each on the north and south sides, and ten pillars on the west and east sides); plus all the tent pins for the court and the tabernacle tent were made of brass.

The total of 603,550 men, twenty years old and upward, by tribe, who made offerings to the Lord for the building of the tabernacle, is summarized below:

1.	The children of Reuben	46,500
2.	The children of Simeon	59,300
3.	The children of Gad	45,650
4.	The children of Judah	74,600
5.	The children of Issachar	54,400

6.	The children of Zebulun	57,400
7.	The children of Ephraim	40,500
8.	The children of Manasseh	32,200
9.	The children of Benjamin	35,400
10.	The children of Dan	62,700
11.	The children of Asher	41,500
12.	The children of Naphtali	53,400
	Total males, twenty years old and upward who made offerings of gold, silver and brass	603,550

This total excludes the children of Levi, for the Lord commanded Moses, saying: Thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, nor include their total with the children of Israel. But thou shalt appoint the Levites over all things belonging to the tabernacle. They shall bear the tabernacle and all the vessels thereof, and minister unto it; and shall encamp around the tabernacle. And during the journeyings, the Levites shall take it down, and when it is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up; and the stranger that cometh near to defile it shall be put to death.

And on the same day, Nisan or Abib 1, 1512 B.C., when Moses had completed setting up the tabernacle, and finished its anointing and sanctifying according to the Lord's commandments, the princes of Israel, who were the heads of the houses of their fathers, and heads of the thousands in Israel, brought their offerings for the dedication of the tabernacle. These princes were appointed by Moses over nine months before, in Rephidim; just before their arrival at Mount Sinai from Egypt, in the third month, Sivan 14, 1513 B.C., at the counsel of his father-in-law Jethro (Reuel), the Melchizedek priest of Midian. The names of these princes and their tribes are listed below:

1. Elizur, son of Shedeur, of the tribe of Reuben;
2. Shelumiel, son of Zurishaddai, of the tribe of Simeon;
3. Nahshon, son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah;
4. Nethaneel, son of Zuar, of the tribe of Issachar;
5. Eliab, son of Helon, of the tribe of Zebulun;
6. Elishama, son of Ammihud, of the tribe of Ephraim;
7. Gamaliel, son of Pedahzur, of the tribe of Manasseh;
8. Abidan, son of Gideoni, of the tribe of Benjamin;
9. Ahiezer, son of Ammishaddai, of the tribe of Dan;
10. Pagiel, son of Ocran, of the tribe of Asher;
11. Eliasaph, son of Deuel, of the tribe of Gad;
12. Ahira, son of Enan, of the tribe of Naphtali.

And the princes brought their offerings of six covered wagons with twelve oxen; a wagon for two princes, and an ox for each prince. And they presented them in the service of the tabernacle. And Moses took the wagons and oxen and gave them to the Levites. Two wagons and four oxen were given to the sons of Gershom (Gershon); and four wagons and eight oxen were given to the sons of Merari under the hand of Ithamar, son of Aaron. But to the sons of Kohath he gave none, because their service to the tabernacle required carrying the items upon their shoulders. During their journeys, the Aaronic priests carried the Ark of the Covenant, Kohathites carried the holy furniture on their shoulders, walking. The Gershonites, having two wagons, transported the tent clothes, except the curtain with the cherubim which divided the Most Holy from the Holy, which was placed over the Ark, the coverings of the tabernacle, screens, tent cords and certain service utensils. The Merarites, having four wagons, took care of the very heavy items, the boards (panels), the pillars, the pedestals (sockets), tent pins and cords of both the tabernacle and the courtyard.

And the princes made offerings for the dedication of the altar, the first day of Nisan or Abib 1, when it was hallowed and sanctified, until the twelfth day of Nisan or Abib 12, 1512 B.C. On the first day, the offerings were made by Nahshon, son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah; and his offering was one silver charger of 130 shekels weight; one silver bowl of seventy shekels, both of them filled with fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering; one spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense; one young bullock; one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt offering; one kid of the goats for a sin offering. And for sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, and five lambs of the first year.

On the second day Nethaneel, the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar made his offering. He offered one silver charger of 130 shekels weight, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, both of them filled with fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering; one spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense; one young bullock; one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt offering; one kid of the goats for a sin offering. And for sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nethaneel, son of Zuar.

And, thus, each of the twelve princes offered his offerings, in exactly the same manner, each with the following items, until the twelfth day, Nisan or Abib 12, 1512 B.C.:

One silver charger, the weight of which was 130 shekels;
One silver bowl of seventy shekels (both of them were filled with fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering);
One spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense;
One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering;
One kid of the goats for a sin offering;
Two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year, for the peace offerings.

The combined total of all the silver vessels amounted to 2,400 shekels, or about 74 troy pounds; and all the spoons of gold amounted to 120 shekels, or about 3.7 troy pounds. All the oxen for the burnt offering were twelve, twelve rams, twelve lambs, with their meat offering; and twelve kids of goats for the sin offering. And all the oxen for the sacrifice of the peace offerings were twenty-four; and sixty rams, sixty he-goats, and sixty lambs. All this was for the dedication of the altar of the burnt offering, after it was anointed, hallowed and sanctified on Nisan or Abib 1, 1512 B.C.

And during a seven day ceremony, from Nisan or Abib 1 through 7, 1512 B.C., Aaron and his sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar were washed, anointed, clothed in priesthood robes, and consecrated before all Israel. The Aaronic priesthood was now officially established, to be an everlasting priesthood, by the commandment of the Lord, under the hand of Moses, the Melchizedek priest.

On the eighth day, Nisan or Abib 8, Moses called Aaron and his sons and the seventy elders of Israel. And Aaron was told to take himself a young calf for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering, without blemish, and offer them before the Lord; and to speak to the children of Israel, saying: Take ye a kid of the goats for a sin offering, and a calf and a lamb of the first year without blemish, for a burnt offering; and a bullock and a ram for peace offerings, and a meat offering mingled with oil, to sacrifice unto the Lord, for today the Lord will appear unto you. And they brought that which was commanded them, before the tabernacle; and all the congregation drew near and stood before the Lord. And after he performed all the sacrifices, Aaron lifted up his hand toward the people, and blessed them. Then Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle and came out, and together blessed the people; and the glory of the Lord appeared unto all the people, as there came a fire out from before the Lord, and consumed the burnt offering and fat which was upon the altar. When the people saw this, they shouted and fell upon their faces.

And Nadab and Abihu, sons of Aaron, took their censers and put fire inside and burned incense on them, and offered strange fire before the Lord, which they were not commanded to do. So there came another fire from the Lord, and devoured them, and they died before the Lord.

Then Moses said unto Aaron, this is what the Lord meant, when He said: I will be sanctified in them that come near me; and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron held his peace. Then Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and told them to carry their brethren from before the tabernacle out of the camp. So they went near, and carried Nadab and Abihu wrapped in their coats, out of the camp. And Moses told Aaron, Eleazer and Ithamar (the remaining two sons of Aaron): Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes, lest ye die and the wrath come upon all the people; but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the Lord hath kindled. And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle, lest ye die, for the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses. And the Lord spoke unto Aaron, saying: Do not drink wine or strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle, lest ye die. It shall be a statute forever throughout all generations, that ye may put difference between holy and unholy, and between clean and unclean; and that ye may teach the children of Israel the statutes the Lord hath given them by the hand of Moses. And Moses told Aaron, Eleazar and Ithamar to take the remains of the meat offering, which was consumed by the fire of the Lord, and eat it with no leaven, by the altar in the Holy Place (the Holy compartment of the tabernacle); because it is your due, for so I am commanded.

And the Lord God of Jeshurun gave His firstborn, the kingdom of priests and an holy nation, His chosen seed separated from all the people on the face of the earth, the following dietary laws; the laws pertaining to what they may or may not eat, and what things are clean and unclean, through Moses and Aaron:

— Among all the beasts that are on earth, whatsoever is of parted hoof and clovenfooted (foot divided or cleft into two or more parts, as ox, sheep, and such), and chews the cud ye shall eat. And if the animal chews the cud, but is not of the divided hoof such as the camel, hare, rabbit and such, it shall be unclean to you; for it chews the cud, but its hooves are not divided. Swine ye shall not eat, for its hoof is divided, but it chews not the cud. It shall be unclean to you. Ye shall neither eat the meat, nor touch the carcass.

— Among all that live in waters, rivers and seas, ye may eat whatsoever hath fins and scales; but those that have no fins and scales, and live in waters, you shall not eat. They shall be an abomination to you, even their carcass shall be an abomination to you.

— Among all the flying-creeping things, that also go on all fours and leap, ye may eat the locust and bald locust and its kind, the beetle and its kind, the grasshopper and its kind. But all other flying creeping things that have four feet, shall be an abomination to you. Whosoever touches their carcass shall be unclean until he washes himself and his clothes.

— Among all the fowl ye shall not eat the eagle, the vulture, the falcon and hawk and its kind; the owl, the cuckow, the cormorant, the swan, the pelican, the stork, the heron and its kind; the lapwing, the parrot and its kind; the bat; and all fowl that also creep and go on all fours. These ye shall not eat. They shall be an abomination to you.

— Among all the creeping things that creep upon the earth, these shall be unclean to you: the weasel, the mouse, the tortoise, the ferret, the chameleon, the lizard, the snail, the mole, the snake and their kind. Whosoever touches them, when they are dead, shall be unclean, until the person and his clothes are washed. And upon whatsoever any of them that are dead does fall, it shall become unclean; whether it be upon a vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, it shall become unclean, and it must be washed and cleaned. If it falls on an earthen vessel, ye shall break it. Whatever goes upon the belly, and all fours; or those that have many feet among all creeping things ye shall not eat. They are an abomination. Ye shall not make yourself abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth; neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye may not be defiled. For I am the Lord your God who bringeth you out of Egypt to be your God, ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves and be holy, for I am holy. This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and the creatures that live in water, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth; that ye may know the difference between the clean and unclean, between edible and the abominable.

— No fat or blood of the animal is to be eaten by the children of Israel, the chosen seed of the Lord God of Jeshurun.

Although the duties of Aaronic priests and related sacrificial rites and ceremonies are discussed in the next chapter, The Fourth Epoch, which begins with Aaron and ends with John the Baptist; it would suffice to know that various ordinances and laws given by the hand of Moses to the children of Israel, after the completion of the tabernacle, dealt with the remission of various sins and clearance of their resultant guilt, which in no other way would be possible, and would lead to spiritual death and innumerable diseases of the mind and body that ensue thereof. These rites and ceremonies included: sacrifices of unblemished animals for the atonement of sins, forgiveness of sins through trespass offerings, sacrifices, confession of sins, making amends and restitutions. Various vows, consecration of property, rendering thanks, and reconciliation with God was made through sacrifices. Burnt offerings were made for a sweet savor unto the Lord. (Meat offerings were made of flour with oil and incense.)

Israel was commanded to be holy, live righteously, to love their fellowmen, and keep the commandments. Enchantments, wizardry, prostitution and whoredom, and all evil practices were forbidden. The death penalty was prescribed for sacrifices unto false gods, including Molech. Bestiality, adultery, homosexuality were punishable by death. The priests of Israel were to be holy. The high priest was not to marry a widow, nor a divorced woman, or a harlot (prostitute). The seed of Aaron with physical deformities (blemishes) were not to offer sacrifices at the altar. The daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father, and was to be burned with fire. Israel was to keep the sabbath, the day of rest and holy convocation, each week; and the six feasts or festivals, namely: the feast of the passover (Abib or Nisan 14); the feast of unleavened bread or the feast of unfermented cakes (Abib or Nisan 15-21); the feast of the firstfruits or the feast of harvest or weeks (originally on Nisan 16, when Israel crossed the Red Sea; later on the fiftieth day from Nisan 16, or Sivan 6. This festival was later known as Pentecost); the feast of trumpets or new year (Ethanim or Tishri 1, first day of the seventh sacred month); the day of atonement (Ethanim or Tishri 10); and the feast of tabernacles, also called festival of booths, festival of ingathering or festival of Jehovah (Ethanim or Tishri 15-21, with solemn assembly, or sabbath, on the 22nd). Additionally, each seventh year was to be a sabbath year for the agricultural land. Each fiftieth year was to be a jubilee year, in which liberty was to be proclaimed throughout the land. Laws were also given for sale and redemption of land, houses, and servants — the land is the Lord's, as are the servants; and usury was prohibited. Israel was also commanded to pay tithes (10%) of their crops, flocks and herds.

Israel was also commanded not to live as the Egyptians or as the Canaanites. Thus the Lord God of Israel gave them a moral code by the hand of Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israel and say unto them, I am the Lord your God. After the doings of the land of Egypt, wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do, nor after the doings of the land of Canaan, whither I bring you. Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgements; for if a man abides in them, he shall live. I am the Lord.

— None of you shall approach anyone who is near of kin, to uncover their nakedness; I am the Lord.

— The nakedness of your father and your mother shalt thou not uncover; nor shalt thou uncover the nakedness of thy father's wife, it is thy father's nakedness. The man who lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness; both of them shall surely be put to death.

— The nakedness of thy sister, or the daughter of thy father or the daughter of thy mother, thou shalt not uncover. If a man lies with his sister, or his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, both shall be cut off from their people. It is wickedness; and they shall bear their iniquity.

— Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor thy father's sister, for thou uncovereth the nakedness of thy near kin; both shall bear their iniquity. It is also wickedness.

— Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother or his wife; and if a man lies with his uncle's wife he has uncovered his uncle's nakedness, both shall bear their sin, and they shall die childless. And if a man lies with his brother's wife, both shall die childless, for it is an unclean thing, and he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness.

— Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy son's daughter, or thy daughter's daughter, for theirs is thine own nakedness; neither shalt thou take a wife and also her sister, while one is still alive.

— Thou shalt not lie with thy wife and thy wife's mother, it is wickedness. And if a man lies with them, both shall be burnt with fire, that there be no wickedness among you.

— Thou shalt not lie with thy daughter-in-law; and if a man lies with his daughter-in-law, both shall surely be put to death; they have wrought confusion, and their blood shall be upon them.

— If a woman is put apart for her uncleanness, thou shall not uncover her nakedness, to lie with her, as long as she is put apart; nor shalt thou lie with the wife of thy fellowman or stranger, to defile thyself with her.

— A man or woman shalt not lie with their own kind (commit homosexuality or lesbianism), and if a person commits this abomination, they shalt surely be put to death.

— A man or woman shall not lie down with any beast. And if a man lies down with a beast to defile himself, he shall surely be put to death, and ye shall slay the animal. And if a woman defiles herself with a beast, she shall surely be put to death; thou shalt kill the woman and slay the beast.

— Thou shalt not prostitute thy daughter, to cause her to be a whore, lest the land fall into whoredom and become full of wickedness.

— Thou shalt not let any of thy seed pass through the (carnal) fire of Molech or any other gods of the natural man. Whosoever among the children of Israel gives his seed to these gods, shall be surely put to death. And if any man gives his seed to Molech in an underhanded way, and people ignore it, the Lord shall set his face against that person and his family, and will cut them off. And all who go a whoring after Molech, or after familiar spirits and wizards, to commit whoredom, shall be cut off from among their people.

Ye shall therefore keep all my statutes and judgements, and abide in them; that the land whither I bring you to dwell in, spew you not; that ye may walk not in the manner of nations, which I cast out in the past; for they all committed these things, and I abhorred them.

A priest of Israel shall not take a wife that is a whore, a harlot or prostitute, or profane; neither shall he take a divorced woman, for the priest is holy unto his God. The daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father; she shall be burnt with fire. The high priest shall take, from among his own people, a wife that is virgin. A widow, or a divorced woman, a harlot, whore or prostitute, or profane, shall he not take.

Therefore, defile not yourselves in any of these things, for in all these things nations and lands are defiled. And when I do visit the iniquity thereof, the land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants. Ye, or any stranger that sojourneth among you, shall therefore keep my statutes and judgements; and not commit any of these abominations. For all of these abominations have been done by men who were before you; and the land became defiled, and souls taken captive into eternal torment and misery. Thus I have given you my statutes and judgements, for whosoever shall commit these abominations, that person shall be cut off from among their people. I am the Lord your God.

And it came to pass that on the first day of the second month (Ziv or Iyyar 1, 1512 B.C.), in the second year after they came out of the land of Egypt, the Lord spoke unto Moses in the tabernacle, saying: Take ye the census of all the congregation of the children of Israel, by each tribe, who are twenty years old and upward; all that are able to go to war. Thou and Aaron, and the princes (heads) of Israel shall number them by their armies.

Then all the congregation gathered together on the same day, and the princes (heads) of each tribe declared their pedigree, according to the house of their fathers, and their total numbers of twenty years old and upward in each tribe. The combined total of all twelve tribes of Israel added up to 603,550 men, the same number that made the offerings of 301,775 bekahs or half a shekel of silver each for the building of the tabernacle. And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Every family of the children of Israel shall pitch their tent by their own standard (banner) with the ensign of their tribe, far off around the tabernacle. All twelve tribes were to be divided into four camps, namely: the camp of Judah, of Reuben, of Ephraim, and of Dan; and each camp was to consist of three tribes.

(Illustration 10)
Tabernacle and the Camps of Israel (1512 B.C.)

On the east side toward the rising sun was to be the camp of Judah; and Nahshon, son of Amminadab, was to be their captain. And those who pitched next to him were to be the tribes of Issachar and Zebulun. Nethaneel, son of Zuar, was to be captain over the tribe of Issachar; and Eliab, son of Helon, the captain over Zebulun. And the total of all that were numbered in the camp of Judah were 186,400 men.

On the west side was to be the camp of Ephraim; and their captain was to be Elishama, son of Ammihud. And those who pitched next to him were to be the tribes of Manasseh and Benjamin. The captain over the tribe of Manasseh was to be Gamaliel, son of Pedahzur; and Abidan, son of Gideoni, captain over Benjamin. And the total of all that were numbered in the camp of Ephraim were 108,100 men.

On the north side was to be the camp of Dan; and the captain of their tribe was to be Ahiezer, son of Ammishaddai. And those who pitched next to him were the tribes of Asher and Naphtali. Pagiel, son of Ocran, was to be captain over the tribe of Asher; and Ahira, son of Enan, over Naphtali. And the total of all that were numbered in the camp of Dan were 157,600 men.

And on the south side was to be the camp of Reuben; and their captain was to be Elizur, son of Shedeur. And those who pitched next to him were the tribes of Simeon and Gad. The captain over the tribe of Simeon was Shelumiel, son of Zurishaddai; and the captain over the tribe of Gad was Eliasaph, son of Deuel. And the total of all that were numbered in the camp of Reuben were 151,450 men.

Since the tribe of Levi was appointed to be the custodian of the tabernacle, all its furniture and utensils; and was also responsible for the taking down and setting up of the tabernacle, they were commanded to pitch near and around the tabernacle. And the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord had commanded, by the hand of Moses.

Near the east of the tabernacle, before the entrance gate of the courtyard, were to encamp the families of Moses and Aaron; to keep the charge of the tabernacle. And if an unauthorized person were to come near, he was to be put to death. The census of the Levites was taken separately for all males from a month old and upward. They totaled 22,000. And the Lord said unto Moses: Number all the firstborn males of the children of Israel from a month old and upward, and take the total of their names. And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the Lord) instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel; and the cattle of the Levites, instead of the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

And Moses numbered all the firstborn males among the children of Israel, a month old and upward. They totaled 22,273. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine. I am the Lord. And the excess of 273 firstborn of the children of Israel shall be redeemed by five shekels each (one shekel equaled twenty gerahs). And thou shalt give the money of those redeemed, having an odd number, to Aaron and his sons. Thus a total of 1,365 shekels was received as the redemption money of the firstborn of the children of Israel, over and above that were redeemed by the Levites. and Moses gave Aaron his portion of money, as the Lord had commanded him to do. And the Lord also gave the Law of the Nazarites, whereby the children of Israel may consecrate themselves to the Lord by a vow, that they drink no wine and strong drink, nor eat anything that is made of the vine, or its kernels or the husk. And during all the days of the vow of his separation, there shall no razor come upon his head, until the days be fulfilled. He shall remain holy and let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

Then the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Make thee two trumpets of silver, of a whole piece, that you may use for calling the assembly, and for journeyings of the camps. The sons of Aaron the priest shall blow them, and this shall be an ordinance for you forever throughout all generations: If they blow one trumpet, then the princes, the heads of thousands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee. And when you blow an alarm signal, the camps on the east side (of Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun) shall march forward; when you blow the alarm signal the second time, the camps on the south side (of Reuben, Simeon, and Gad) shall come forward; but when the congregation is to be gathered together, ye shall blow both trumpets, without sounding an alarm. And if ye go to war against your enemy that oppresseth you, ye shall blow both trumpets, with alarm signal; and ye shall be remembered before the Lord your God, and be saved from your enemies. Also in the day of your gladness, in your appointed feast days (solemn days), and at each new moon (beginning of each lunar month) ye shall blow the trumpets over the burnt offerings and communion (peace) sacrifices; that they may serve as a memorial before God. I am the Lord your God.

And it came to pass that the Lord God of Israel spoke unto Moses and Aaron, saying: Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount (Sinai). Turn you, and take your journey, and go to Seir (a mountain between Kiriath-jearim or Baalah and Chesalon, about nine miles west of Jerusalem); and unto all the places nearby, in the plains, in the hills, and in the valleys (or lowlands); and in the south (Negev) and by the seaside, to the land of Canaanites; and in the north unto Lebanon, and the great river Euphrates. Behold I have set the land before you. Go in and possess (dispossess) it as the Lord had sworn unto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to give unto them and their seed.

On the twentieth day of the second month in the second year (Ziv or Iyyar 20, 1512 B.C.), the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle; and the children of Israel took their journey from near Mount Sinai, after spending twenty-three days less than a year, from the time they arrived here on Sivan 14, 1513 B.C.

Their march toward the wilderness of Paran began first with the Aaronic priests bearing the Ark of the Covenant, covered with the curtain of the Most Holy, on their shoulders; followed by the armies of Judah, then Issachar and Zebulun. Then set forth the sons of Gershon and Merari, having two wagons and four wagons respectively, with the tent coverings, tabernacle covering, screens, tent cords, certain utensils, the boards (panels), pillars, pedestals, and tent pins of both the tabernacle and the courtyard. This was followed by the armies of Reuben, Simeon and Gad; then Kohathites marched forward with the holy furniture, including: the table of shewbread, the lampstand, the altars, and the utensils of the Holy compartment of the tabernacle. The Kohathites, other than Aaron and his sons, were not to see any utensils, or touch the Holy Place, lest they die. Due to the sacredness of their burden, they carried their loads on their shoulders. They were the last of the Levites to pull away from the encampments. The Kohathites were followed by the armies of Ephraim, Mannaseh and Benjamin. The armies of Dan were in the rearmost part of the march, followed by Asher and Naphtali. Each tribe marched with their respective banners (standards), under the leadership of their designated captains. Also Hobab, son of Jethro (Reuel, Raguel), brother-in-law of Moses, accompanied them to serve as a guide, for he was familiar with the rough country, being a Midianite (Kenite). But it was not until Moses urged him, and offered him a share in the blessings of Israel, that he was persuaded to go with them.

After a three-days' journey (on Ziv or Iyyar 24, 1512 B.C.), the cloud of the Lord rested in the southern part of the wilderness of Paran. And here Israel began to murmur and complain, and the anger of the Lord was kindled; and the fire of the Lord burnt among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp. Because of this incident, they called the name of the place Taberah, i.e., burning, for the fire of the Lord burnt among them. But when Moses supplicated with the Lord in behalf of the people, the fire was quenched. And here also, a mixed multitude fell a lusting, complaining and weeping, saying: who shall give us meat (flesh) to eat. We remember the fish, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic, which we did eat freely in Egypt. But now our soul is dried away, there is nothing besides this manna before our eyes. And when Moses saw the people murmur and complain throughout their camps, he was displeased, and the anger of the Lord was kindled greatly. And Moses said unto the Lord: Wherefore hast Thou afflicted Thy servant? And wherefore have I not found favor in Thy sight, that Thou layest the burden of all this people upon me? Have I conceived all these people? Have I begotten them, that Thou should say unto me: Carry them in thy bosom as a nursing father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which Thou had sworn unto their fathers? When should I have meat (flesh) to give unto all this people? For they weep unto me, saying: Give us meat, that we may eat. I am not able to bear all these people alone, because it is too heavy for me. And if Thou deal thus with me, kill me, I pray Thee, if I have found favor in Thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Gather unto me the seventy elders of Israel, and bring them into the tabernacle, that they may stand there with thee. And I will come down and talk with thee there; and I will take the spirit which is upon thee and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone. And say unto the people: Sanctify yourselves against tomorrow, and ye shall eat meat; for ye have wept in the ears of the Lord, saying: Who shall give us meat to eat? For it was well with us in Egypt. Therefore, the Lord will give you meat, and ye shall eat. Ye shall eat not one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten, nor twenty days, but even a whole month, until it come out of your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you; because you have despised the Lord which is among you.

And Moses replied: The people among whom I am are over six hundred thousand footmen, and Thou hast said that Thou will give them meat that they may eat a whole month. Shall the flocks and herds be slain for them, or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered to suffice them? And the Lord said unto Moses: Is the Lord's hand waxed short? Thou shalt see now whether my word shall come to pass or not. And Moses went out and told the people the words of the Lord, and gathered the seventy elders of Israel, and set them round about the tabernacle. And the Lord came down in a cloud and rested, and took the spirit that was upon Moses and gave it to the seventy elders; and the spirit rested upon them, and they began to prophecy and did not cease. But two men, whose names were Eldad and Medad were so taken by the spirit that they remained in the camp and continued to prophecy. Then a young man ran and told Moses that Eldad and Medad ceased not to prophecy in the camp; and Joshua, son of Nun, a young man, said: My lord Moses, forbid them. And Moses replied: Enviest thou for my sake? Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put His spirit upon them! Then Moses and the elders of Israel returned to the camp.

And there went forth a wind from the Lord, and brought quail from the sea, and let them fall by the encampment, as it was about a days journey on this (east) side, as it was on the other (west) side, of the Sinai Peninsula. The grounds around the camps were covered with them in heaps as high as two cubits (over three feet). And people stood up all that day and all that night, and all the next day to gather the quail for themselves. He that gathered the least, gathered ten homers (62 bushels); and they were spread out throughout the camps. And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, before it could be chewed, the wrath of God was kindled against the people; and the Lord smote them with a severe plague, and called the name of the place Kibroth-hattaavah (graves of lust or graves of cravings), because there they buried many a people who lusted after meat. And the people ate quail for thirty days, and a multitude of people died with gluttony and other sicknesses. (It may be remembered that about the same time, a year before, Ziv or Iyyar 29, 1513 B.C., the quail were sent on the west side of the Sinai Peninsula, in the wilderness of Sin; but not in such a large quantity.)

Before the end of the third month, the people journeyed from Taberah (Kibroth-hattaavah) to Hazeroth and remained there a little over a week. Here Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses, because of the Cushite (Ethiopian) woman whom he had married; and they said: Does the Lord speak only through Moses? Does he not speak also by us? And the Lord heard it. And suddenly He spoke to Moses, who was one of the meekest men in his generation, and to Aaron and Miriam, saying: Come out ye three into the tabernacle. And the three of them went, and the Lord descended in a pillar of cloud and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and asked Miriam and Aaron to come forward, and said: Hear now my words, if there be any prophet among you, I the Lord will make myself known unto him in a vision, and speak to him in a dream. But my servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all mine house. With him I will speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the Lord shall he behold. Wherefore, then, were ye not afraid to speak against my servant? Then He departed, as the anger of the Lord was kindled against them, and the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, lo, Miriam became leprous, white as snow. And Aaron looked upon Miriam and beheld she was leprous. And Aaron said unto Moses: Alas my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us wherein we have done foolishly, and have sinned. Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed, and flaky as when one comes out of his mother's womb. And Moses cried unto the Lord, saying: Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee. And the Lord said unto Moses: If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days? Let her be shut out from the camp seven days, and after that let her be received in again. And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days; and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again. Afterward, the people removed from Hazeroth, and encamped in the northern part of the wilderness of Paran, in Rithmah or Atharim, also known as Kadesh-barnea, near the way to Shur; about eleven days journey from Mount Sinai (Horeb).

Thus after departing from Mount Sinai, Israel passed through a great and terrible wilderness, and arrived at Kadesh-barnea (also Qedeis), where the cloud of the Lord rested. And here Moses said unto the congregation: Ye are come unto the mountain of the Amorites, which the Lord our God gives unto us. Behold, the Lord your God hath set the land before you. Go up and possess (dispossess) it, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath said unto you. Fear not, neither be discouraged. So the heads of the congregation came near unto Moses, and said: We will send men before us, and they shall search out the land, and bring us word as to by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come. And this proposal pleased Moses. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan. Of every tribe shall ye send a man, everyone a ruler among them. And Moses, by the commandment of the Lord, sent these men to search out the land of Canaan, from Kadesh-barnea, in the wilderness of Paran:

Shammua, son of Zaccur, of the tribe of Reuben;
Shaphat, son of Hori, of the tribe of Simeon;
Caleb, son of Jephunneh, of the tribe of Judah;
Igal, son of Joseph, of the tribe of Issachar;
Joshua (Oshea, Jehoshua), son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim;

Palti, son of Raphu, of the tribe of Benjamin;
Gaddiel, son of Sodi, of the tribe of Zebulun;
Gaddi, son of Susi, of the tribe of Manasseh;
Ammiel, son of Gemalli, of the tribe of Dan;
Sethur, son of Michael, of the tribe of Asher;
Nahbi, son of Vophsi, of the tribe of Naphtali; and Geuel, son of Machi, of the tribe of Gad.

And Moses sent away the search team of twelve leaders of Israel, saying: Get you up by Negev (Negeb), and go up into the mountain (Mount Seir, between Kiriath-jearim and Chesalon; about nine miles west of Jerusalem), and find out what kind of land it is and the people that dwell there; whether they are strong or weak, few or many; whether they are good or bad; whether they live in tents or in strongholds. Is the land fat or lean; is there any wood or not? And be ye of good courage, and bring back the fruit of the land. So they went up through the wilderness of Zin to Rehob, by the access to Hamath; and they went through Negev (Negeb) and came into Hebron, where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak, were. After they searched out the land, they took with them the fruit of the land, pomegranates, figs; and grapes which they cut down at the brook (valley) of Eshcol, a bunch with a cluster of grapes, and bore it between two men upon a staff; and returned after forty days to Kadesh-barnea (Rithmah, Atharim), in the northern part of the wilderness of Paran, where Israel was encamped.

Thus the twelve leaders of Israel brought back the word to Moses, Aaron, and the congregation, and showed the fruit of the land, saying: We came into the land whither thou sent us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey. Nevertheless the people seem to be strong who dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great. Moreover we saw the children of Anak. The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south (Negev); and the Hittites, the Jebusites, and the Amorites dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea and by the coast of Jordan. The land through which we have gone to search, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants. There we saw giants, the sons of Anak, who come of the Nephilim (giants); and we seemed as grasshoppers in their presence. Then Caleb stilled the people before Moses, saying: Let us go up at once and possess it, for we are well able to overcome it. But his other brethren, excluding Joshua, son of Nun, who went up with him, said: We be not able to go up against the people, for they are stronger than we are.

Then all the congregation lifted up their voices and cried, and people wept that night. And the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, and said: Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! Or would God we had died in this wilderness! Wherefore hath the Lord brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives and our children should be prey? Were it not better for us to return to Egypt? And they said to one another: Let us make a captain, and let us return to Egypt. Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the children of Israel. And Joshua, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephunneh, rent their clothes, and spoke to the congregation, saying:

The land which we passed through to search, is an exceedingly good land. If the Lord delight in us, then He will bring us into the land and give it to us, a land which floweth with milk and honey. Only rebel not against the Lord, neither fear ye the people of the land, for they are bread for us. Their defence shall depart from us, for the Lord is with us. Fear them not. But the congregation hearkened not to their voice, and threw stones at them. And the children of Israel would not go up to possess (dispossess) the land, and rebelled against the commandment of the Lord, and murmured in their tents, saying: Because the Lord hated us, He hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us - whither shall we go up? Our brethren have discouraged our hearts. The people is greater and taller than we are; the cities are great and fortified (walled) up to heaven; and moreover we have seen the sons of Anakim.

Then Moses said unto them: Dread not, neither be afraid of them. The Lord your God which goeth before you, shall fight for you, according to all that He did for you in Egypt before your eyes; and in the wilderness how He bore you, as a man beareth his son, in all the ways that ye went, until ye came into this place. Yet ye do not believe, but doubt the Lord your God, the Lord which went in the way before you, to search out a place to pitch your tents, in fire by night, and in a cloud by day, to show you which way ye should go.

Then the glory of the Lord appeared at the tabernacle, before all the children of Israel. And the Lord said unto Moses: How long will this people provoke me? And how long will it be before they believe me, after all the signs which I have shown them? I will smite them with pestilence, and disinherit them, and make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they. And Moses said unto the Lord: Then the Egyptians shall hear it, for they have seen Thy mighty works, and have heard that Thou, Lord, art among this people; that Thou, Lord, are seen face to face; and that Thy cloud standeth over them, and Thou goest before them in a pillar of cloud by day and in a pillar of fire by night. Now if you should kill this people, then the nations which have heard of Thy fame will say: Because the Lord was not able to bring this people into the land which He had sworn unto them, He hath slain them in the wilderness. And now I beseech Thee, let the power of my Lord be great, as He is long-suffering, of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon their children unto the third and fourth generations, and by no means clearing the guilty. Pardon, I beseech Thee, the iniquity of this people according to the greatness of Thy mercy, as Thou hast forgiven them from Egypt until now. And the Lord said: I have forgiven according to thy words. But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord; for all these men who have seen my glory and my miracles in Egypt and in the wilderness, and have tempted me these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice, shall surely not see the land which I had sworn unto their fathers; neither any of them who provoked me shall see it. But my servant Caleb, because he has another spirit with him, and hath followed me fully, will I bring into the land, and his seed shall possess it, along with Joshua, son of Nun.

Then the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron, saying: How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, that murmurs against me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel against me. Say unto them: As truly as I live, saith the Lord, as ye have spoken in my ears, so will I do to you. Your carcasses shall fall in the wilderness; and all that were numbered among you, from twenty years old and upward, who have murmured against me, shall surely not come into the land which I had sworn unto their fathers, save Caleb, son of Jephunneh, and Joshua, son of Nun. But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, will I bring in; and they shall inherit that land which ye despised. But as for you, your carcasses shall fall in the wilderness. And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and bear your whoredoms and suffer for your faithlessness; until your carcasses be wasted. The number of days you spent searching the land, even forty days, each day for a year shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, since the time ye left Egypt; and ye shall feel my displeasure. Shortly, the ten of the twelve leaders who were sent by Moses to search out the land of Canaan, and brought back evil report and caused the children of Israel to murmur, died by a plague before the Lord. But Joshua, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephunneh lived. Then Moses and Aaron told these things to all the congregation, and the people mourned greatly. They rose up early next morning and went up on top of the mountain, saying: We have sinned against the Lord, we will go up unto the place which the Lord hath promised. And Moses said unto them: Wherefore now do you transgress the commandments of the Lord? Go not up, for the Lord is not among you, lest ye be smitten by your enemies. The Amalekites and Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword, because ye are turned away from the Lord, and the Lord will not be with you. But they hearkened not to his voice, and girded on every man his weapons of war and went up presumptuously into Mount Seir (about nine miles west of Jerusalem). And the Amorites who dwelt in that mountain came out against them and chased them away as bees, and smote and discomfited them, even unto Hormah. And they returned and wept before the Lord, but the Lord would not hearken to their voice, nor give ear unto them. So they moved to the wilderness of Zin and built themselves the city of Kadesh (Petra, meaning rock), near the uttermost border of Edom. Here they built many obelisks, tombs and other monuments carved out of solid rock; and wandered for nearly thirty-eight years.

And it came to pass that Korah, son of Izhar; Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab; and On, son of Peleth, and 250 leaders, who were well-known to the congregation, gathered themselves together; and rose up against Moses and Aaron, saying: Ye take too much glory upon yourselves, seeing all the congregation is holy, every one of them. Why then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord? And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face, then spoke unto Korah and all his company, saying: Even tomorrow the Lord will show who are His and who is holy; and upon whomsoever He hath bestowed the Priesthood Authority, will

He cause to come near unto Him. Do this, then, Korah and all your company: Take your brazen censers, every man, and put fire therein, and burn incense before the Lord, near the door of the tabernacle tomorrow. And it shall be that the man whom the Lord doth chose, he shall be holy. Ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi. It seemeth but a small matter unto you that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near unto Himself, in service of the tabernacle, to perform ordinances and to minister unto the congregation. Now seek ye the Holy (Melchizedek) Priesthood also? ("No man taketh this honor upon himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.") For this reason both thou and thy company are gathered together against the Lord; furthermore, what has Aaron done that you murmur against him?

Then Moses sent to call for Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab, from their tents, who said: We will not come. Is it a small thing that thou hast brought us out of Egypt to go into the land that floweth with milk and honey, and to kill us in the wilderness; except thou hast made thyself supreme sovereign over all of us? Moreover thou hast not kept thy promise, for thou hast not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards. Wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? We will not come. And Moses was very wroth, and said unto the Lord: Respect not their offerings (in the same sense as, unto Cain and his offering the Lord had not respect). I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them. And he said unto Korah: Be thou and all thy company, and Aaron, before the Lord tomorrow. Take every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers, and put fire in them, and bring incense to put therein before the Lord.

The next day Korah gathered all his men, except Dathan and Abiram, two hundred and fifty men with censers, and put fire in them and laid incense therein, and stood near the door of the tabernacle with Moses and Aaron. And the glory of the Lord appeared unto all the congregation; and the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying; Separate yourselves from among these rebels, that I may consume them in a moment. And Moses and Aaron fell on their faces, and said: O God, the Father of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and thou be wroth with all the congregation? And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Speak unto the congregation to get themselves away from the tents of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses rose up and went to their tents, and the elders of Israel followed him. And he spoke to the people, saying: Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs lest ye be consumed in all their sins. So, those who hearkened to the voice of Moses, removed themselves from the tents of Korah, Datham and Abiram on every side. Datham and Abiram came out of their tents, and stood at the door of their tents with their wives, and children. And Moses said: Hereby ye shall know that the Lord hath sent me to do all these works, and I have not done them of my own mind. If these men, who appertain to Korah, die the common death of all men, by natural death, as all men die, then the Lord hath not sent me. But if the Lord maketh a new thing, and the earth opens up her mouth and swallows them with all their belongings, and they go down quickly into the pit, then ye shall know that these men have provoked the Lord. And as Moses made an end of speaking these words, the ground cleaved asunder and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them, their households, and all the men that appertained to Korah, including Dathan and Abiram and all their belongings. They and all that were with them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them, and they perished from among the congregation. And all Israel that was around about them fled with a great cry. Then there came out a fire from the Lord, and consumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense at the door of the tabernacle.

And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Speak unto Eleazar, son of Aaron, the priest, that he take up the censers, of these sinners against their own souls, out of the burning, for they are hallowed; and have them made into broad plates for a covering of the altar; for they were offered before the Lord, therefore they are hallowed. Then Eleazar the priest gathered the brazen censers, and they were made into broad plates for a covering of the altar; to serve as a memorial unto the children of Israel, that no unauthorized person come near to offer incense before the Lord, lest they be destroyed as Korah and his company.

But the next day, the congregation of the children of Israel murmured again, and gathered themselves against Moses and Aaron, saying: Ye have killed the people of the Lord. And as they looked toward the tabernacle, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the Lord appeared. Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle, and the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Get you up from among the congregation, that I may consume them in a moment. And they fell upon their faces; and Moses said unto Aaron: Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly to the congregation and make an atonement for them, for there is wrath gone out from the Lord, the plague is begun. Then, Aaron took his censer, and ran into the midst of the multitude and beheld the plague was begun; and he put on incense and made an atonement for the people. And as the plague subsided, he stood between the dead and the living. Those who died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, besides those who died in the rebellion of Korah and his company.

Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of the tribes a rod, according to the house of their fathers, twelve rods. And write thou each tribe's name upon its rod; and upon Levi's rod thou shalt write the name of Aaron; and lay them up in the tabernacle before the Ark of the Covenant, where I will meet with thee. And it shall come to pass that the man's rod, whom I shall choose (and bestow Priesthood Authority) shall blossom. And I will make to cease the murmurings of the children of Israel, in this matter.

And Moses spoke to the rulers (heads) of the children of Israel; and every one of the rulers gave him a rod, twelve rods altogether, and Aaron's rod was also among them. And Moses laid the rods before the

Aaron's rod budded, bloomed, blossomed, and yielded almonds. (an artist's representation)

Lord in the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle, where the Ark of the Covenant was kept. The next day Moses went into the tabernacle, and beheld the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi, which had budded, and brought forth blossoms, and yielded almonds. And Moses brought all the rods from before the Lord, and each of the twelve rulers of the children of Israel picked their own; but Aaron's rod, which budded, was kept before the Ark of the Covenant, as a token against the rebels.

Thus, it came to pass that according to the judgement of the Lord, which was poured upon them in Kadesh-barnea (Rithmah, Atharim), in the wilderness of Paran, the children of Israel had to wander in the wilderness for forty years, until Abib or Nisan, 1473 B.C. It was c.1511 B.C. when the children of Israel left Kadesh-barnea to dwell in the city of Kadesh (Petra, meaning rock), which they built and named in the wilderness of Zin, along the border of Edom. Here they built obelisks, tombs and other stone monuments carved out of solid rock. And it was in Kadesh (Petra) that Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron, died and was buried. After their departure from Kadesh-barnea (Rithmah or Atharim), they encamped in Rimmon-parez; and they left Rimmon-parez, and encamped in sixteen different locations, including: Libnah, Rissah, Kehelathah, Mount Shapher, Haradah, Makheloth, Tahath, Tarah, Mithcah, Hashmonah, Moseroth, Bene-jaakan (Bani-jaakan, near Mount Hor), Hor-hagidad (Mosera), Jotbathah, Ebronah, and Ezion-gaber (geber). And from Ezion-gaber they made unsuccessful efforts to go up by the King's Highway. During the period of about thirty-seven years (from c.1511 B.C. till c.1474 B.C.) they not only built the stone city of Kadesh (Petra; meaning rock) but also sent out emissaries to various kings, rulers and lands to gather intelligence; and promote peace and goodwill; and prepared themselves to cross over the Jordan by the Way of the Red Sea (not the Reed Sea, as in some Biblical translations), through the plains of Moab and Mount Nebo into the plains of Jericho. The Way of the Red Sea is a long and narrow valley, with a long row of mountains of Seir, from a half-mile to ten miles long on each side; running north-south, from the Dead Sea (Salt Sea) to the right arm of the Red Sea (Gulf of Aqabah). This region is also known as Arabah.

In the first month of their fortieth year (thirty-nine full years) of wandering, from the time they departed from Egypt in 1513 B.C.; in Abib or Nisan c.1474 B.C., the entire congregation arrived at the desert region of the wilderness of Zin. Here no water was to be found, and people began to murmur again, contending and striving with Moses and Aaron, saying: Would God that we had died when our brethren died before the Lord! Why have ye brought us into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die? And why have ye made us come out of Egypt, to bring us into this evil place? It is no place of seed, or figs, or vines, or of pomegranates; nor is there any water to drink. Then Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly into the door of the tabernacle, and fell upon their faces, and the glory of the Lord appeared unto them. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Take thy rod, and thou and Aaron thy brother gather the assembly together, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it should give forth its water, and thou shalt bring forth the water out of the rock, for the congregation and their beasts to drink. So Moses took the rod from before the Lord; and Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation before the rock, and Moses said unto them: Hear now, ye rebels, must we fetch you water out of this rock? (And he sanctified not the Lord before the congregation.) And he lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice; and the water came out abundantly for the congregation and their beasts to drink. And the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron: Because ye believed me not to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, ye (Moses and Aaron) shall not bring the congregation into the land which I have given them. This is the water of Meribah, because the children of Israel strove with the Lord, after He was sanctified in them.

(Illustration 11)

Israel's Journey from Egypt to Kadesh-Barnea (1513 B.C. to 1511 B.C.)

During the same year, c.1474 B.C., Moses sent out emissaries (messengers) from Kadesh (Petra), in the wilderness of Zin, unto the King of Edom, saying: Thus saith thy brother Israel, thou knoweth all the travail that hath befallen us; how our fathers went down into Egypt, and we dwelt there a long time; and the Egyptians vexed us and our fathers. And when we cried unto the Lord, He heard our voice, and an angel hath brought us forth out of Egypt. And, behold, we are in Kadesh (Petra), a city in the uttermost of thy border. Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country. We will not pass through the fields, or the vineyards; neither will we drink of the water of the wells. We will go by the King's Highway. We will not turn to the right or left, until we have passed through thy territory. And Edom replied: Thou shalt not pass through my land, lest I come out against thee with the sword. And the children of Israel said: We will go by the King's Highway, and if we and our cattle drink thy water, we will pay for it. We will, without doing anything else, pass on foot. And Edom replied: Thou shalt not pass, and he came out against Israel with a large and strong army; refusing to allow passage through the King's Highway, which passes by the Great Pyramids in Memphis, in Egypt, through Pi-hahiroth and Baal-zephon, and through Ezion-gaber near Eloth (Elath), northward to Damascus. So Israel retreated to Kadesh (Petra), a few miles southward from the borders of Edom, in the wilderness of Zin. Israel had wandered in this region for over thirty-seven years; and built the stone city hewn out of solid rock. The children of Israel built temple, tombs, obelisks, and other monuments; sent emissaries to various kings, rulers, and lands to gather intelligence, and promote peace and goodwill; and prepared themselves to reach the Promised Land by crossing the Jordan into the plains of Jericho, by the way of the King's Highway. A few photographs of this noteworthy city of stone, which they named Kadesh (modern Petra, meaning rock or stone), are included here, showing the skills and character of the children of Israel between c.1511 B.C. and c. 1474 B.C. under the leadership of Moses and Aaron; and under the Divine guidance of the Lord God of Israel.

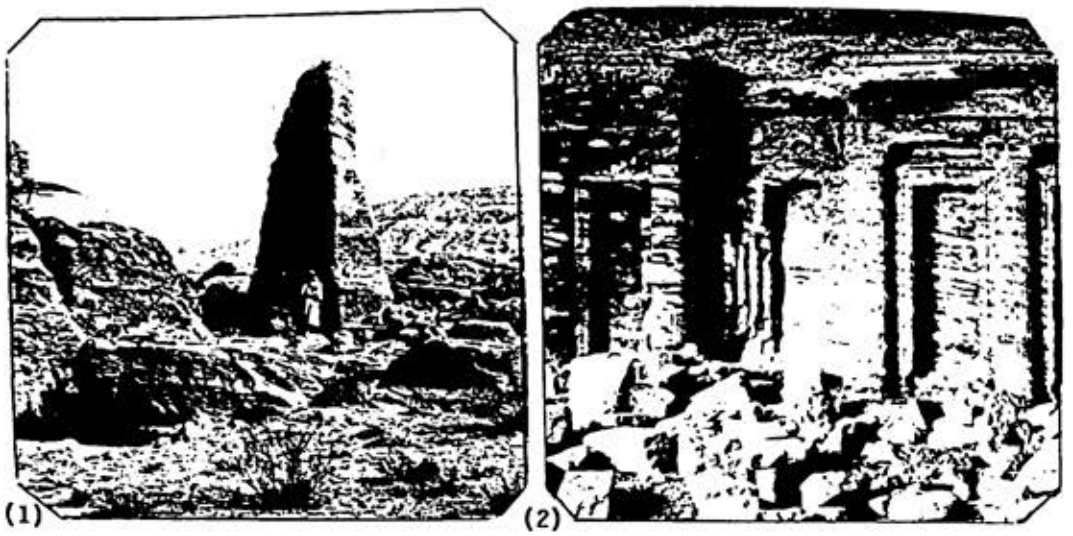
(1)

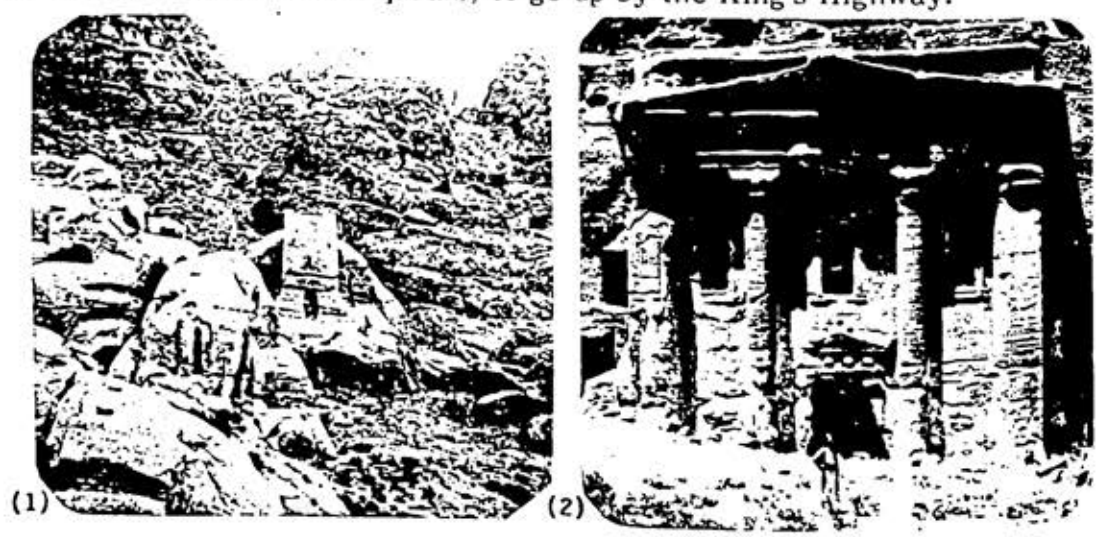
(2)

(1) Kadesh (Petra). Miriam, sister of Moses and Aaron, was buried in one of these tombs (hewn out of solid rock). (2) A tomb in Kadesh (Petra) hewn out of solid rock.



(1) An obelisk built by the children of Israel in Kadesh (Petra). (2) Interior of a tomb hewn out of solid rock by Israel in Kadesh (Petra).

In the fourth month of the fortieth year (thirty-nine full years) from the time they departed from Egypt, in the month of Tammuz, 1474 B.C.; the entire congregation of the children of Israel moved from Kadesh (Petra) for the last time; and abandoned their city of abode, which had been the region of their wanderings for nearly thirty-eight years. They moved a few miles southward to Mount Hor, on their way to Ezion-gaber near Eloth (Elath), which is located at the northern tip of the right arm of the Red Sea (Gulf of Aqabah), to go up by the King's Highway.

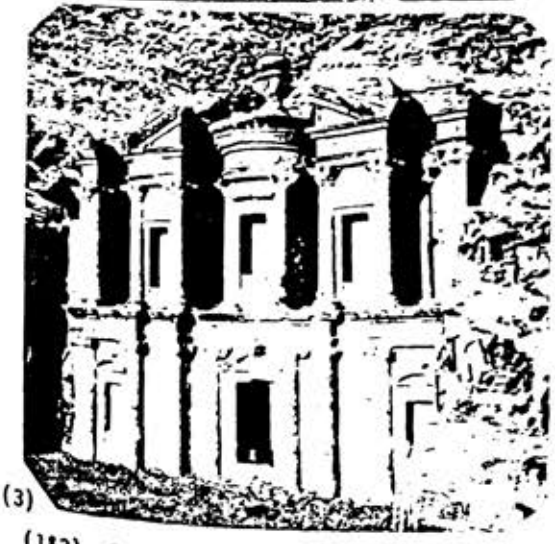


(1) Tombs on the way to Mount Hor. (2) Another tomb in Kadesh (Petra).

In Mount Hor, near Mosera, by the border of the land of Edom, Aaron was to die. And the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron in Mosera,

(1)

(2)



(3)

(1&3) A Temple (Ed-Deir) is cut out of solid rock; the interior extends back into the hill. (2) Notice the size of urn on top of the building, compared to the size of the man standing at its side.

saying: Aaron shall be gathered unto his people; for he shall not enter into the land which I have given to the children of Israel, because ye did not sanctify me at the waters of Meribah, when the children of Israel rebelled against me. Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them into Mount Hor; and strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar, then Aaron shall be gathered unto his people and die there. And Moses did as the Lord commanded him. Moses and Aaron and Eleazar went up into Mount Hor in the sight of the congregation. And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon his son Eleazar; and Aaron died there on top of the mount, on the first day of the fifth month, Ab 1, 1474 B.C., at the age of 123 years. Then Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount. And when the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, all the house of Israel mourned for thirty days.

During the period of mourning for Aaron's death, after nearly thirty-eight years, Moses sent out a division of his army, strong men of war, to Kadesh-barnea (Rithmah, Atharim) by the way of Kadesh-barnea (also known as the Way of the Spies) to search out the land; for Edom would not allow Israel passage through the King's Highway, which passed through his land. And when the king of Arad, the Canaanite (or Amorite), was told that Israel was coming by the Way of the Spies, he gathered up his men and fought against Israel, and took some of them prisoners. So the army of Israel vowed a vow unto the Lord, saying: If the Lord will indeed deliver this people into our hands we will utterly destroy their cities. And the Lord hearkened to their voice, and delivered the Canaanites (Amorites); and Israel utterly destroyed them and their cities. And they called the name of the place Hormah, meaning destruction, after the city of Hormah, less than ten miles southeast of the city of Beer-sheba, where nearly thirty-eight years before, the Israelites were shamefully defeated by the Amorites; when rebellious Israel presumptuously went up against the Lord's commandment.

Close view of the masonry decorative designs in Kadesh (Petra).

Then the victorious men of war returned by the Way of the Spies (Kadesh-barnea; Atharim or Rithmah) to Ezion-gaber(geber), near Eloth (Elath), at the tip of the right arm of the Red Sea (Gulf of Aqabah) to go up by the King's Highway. Here, while Edom had fortified himself with all his armies to block Israel's passage along the King's Highway, the congregation of Israel fled from Kadesh, a few miles north of Mount Hor; to go around the land of Edom to Punon, near the King's Highway. The northward journey to Punon, from Mount Hor, was hard and terrible, for it was a rough country; and the people began to lose their spirit, and spoke against God and Moses, saying: Why have ye brought us out of Egypt to die in this wilderness? For there is no bread, neither is there any water; and our soul loatheth this light bread. So the Lord sent fiery serpents among the people, which bit them, and many people died. Then they came to Moses and said: We have sinned, for we have spoken against the Lord and against thee. Pray unto the Lord, that He take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people, and had a serpent of brass made, to be put upon a pole, where people could go and look at it; and those who did what they were told to do, lived. And they called the place Zalmonah (cruel or fiery place).

In this mountain region (hill country) of Seir they spent many days exploring the ways to go around the land of Edom. Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: You have compassed these mountains long enough, move ye northward and pass through the border of your brethren the children of Esau, who dwell in the mountains of Seir; and they shall be afraid of you. Take good heed therefore, meddle not with them, for I will not give you their land, not so much as one footstep, for I have given this region to Esau for a possession. Ye shall buy meat from them for money, that ye may eat; and ye shall buy water from them for money, that ye may drink. For the Lord thy God hath blessed thee in all thy works, and He knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness. The Lord thy God hath been with thee for the past forty years, and thou hast lacked nothing. Israel was commanded also not to distress the Moabites, nor to contend with them in battle; for the Lord had given Ar unto the children of Lot for a possession. Thus, Moses spoke to the children of Israel, saying: Now rise up, and get you over the (torrent valley) brook of Zered (Zared). So they moved forward to Punon, and encamped there; and did buy food and water from their brethren, the children of Esau. From Punon they finally reached the King's Highway, and continued their journey northward to Oboth and encamped there. From Oboth they marched to Ije-Abarim (Iye-Abarim, or Iyim), also known as Iyye-ha-Abarum, near the border of Moab. From Ije-Abarim the camps of Israel moved ahead to the nearby valley (brook) of Zered (Zared), and encamped there. Now the space of time between their departure from Kadesh-barnea (Rithmah, Atharim), until they crossed over to the torrent valley of Zered (Zared) was thirty-eight years. During this time all the generations of men of war, those who were rebellious and unbelievers, had perished from the camp of Israel; for the hand of the Lord was against them. Thus when all these men were dead and consumed, the Lord spoke to Moses: Thou art to pass over through Ar, in the territory of Moab, this day. And when thou comest near the children of Ammon, distress them not, nor meddle with them, for I have given the land unto the children of Lot for a possession. Rise up. Take your journey and pass over the (torrent valley) river Arnon. Behold, I have given into

(Illustration 9)
Ancient Map of Egypt and Campsites of Israel in Various Wildernesses
(1513 B.C. to 1473 B.C.)

thine hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land; begin to possess (dispossess) it and contend with him in battle. This day I will begin to put dread and fear of thee upon the nations that are under the whole heaven; and they shall hear report of thee, and tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

So, from the wilderness of Kedemoth, about ten miles northeast of Dibon, Moses sent out emissaries (messengers) unto Sihon the Amorite king of Heshbon, with words of peace, saying: Let us pass through by the King's Highway. We will pass through on foot, and neither will we turn to the right nor to the left. You may sell us food (meat) for money, that we may eat; and water for money, that we may drink; in the same manner as the children of Esau and the Moabites have done unto us; until we pass over the Jordan into the land which the Lord our God giveth us. But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let them pass, for the Lord God of Israel had hardened his heart, so that He might deliver him to the children of Israel.

Then Sihon the Amorite king of Heshbon came out against Israel, with his army, to fight at Jahaz. And the Lord God of Israel delivered him to them; and they smote him, his sons, and all his people; and took all his cities, his cattle and spoil of the cities. From Aroer which is at the brink of the (torrent valley) river Arnon unto the entire region of Gilead, the Lord had delivered them all, except the land of the children of Ammon, and other places which the Lord forbade them to take.

It came to pass that the children of Reuben and Gad, who had a very great multitude of cattle, saw the land of Jazer and the land of Gilead, an excellent place for cattle, and they came and spoke to Moses, Eleazar the priest and the heads of the congregation, saying: Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Shebam, Nebo, and Beon, even the country which the Lord smote before the congregation of Israel, is a land for cattle, and thy servants have cattle. If we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given to thy servants for a possession, and bring us not over Jordan. We will build sheepfolds there for our cattle, and cities for our little ones. But we ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place; and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities because of the inhabitants of the land. We will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have inherited every man his inheritance. For we will not inherit with them on the other side of the Jordan and beyond; because our inheritance is fallen to us on this side of the Jordan. And Moses said unto them: If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the Lord to war; and will go all of you armed over Jordan before the Lord until He hath driven out His enemies from before Him, and the land be subdued before the Lord, then afterward ye shall return, and be guiltless before the Lord, and before Israel; and this land shall be your possession before the Lord. But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the Lord; and be sure your sin will find you out. (So) build your cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth. And Moses commanded Eleazar the Aaronic high priest, Joshua, son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of Israel, saying: If the children of Gad and Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the Lord, and subdue the land before you, then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession. But if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan. And the children of Gad and Reuben answered: Thy servants will do as our lord commandeth. Our little ones, our wives, our flocks and cattle shall be there in the cities of Gilead. We will pass over armed before the Lord into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side of the Jordan may be ours.

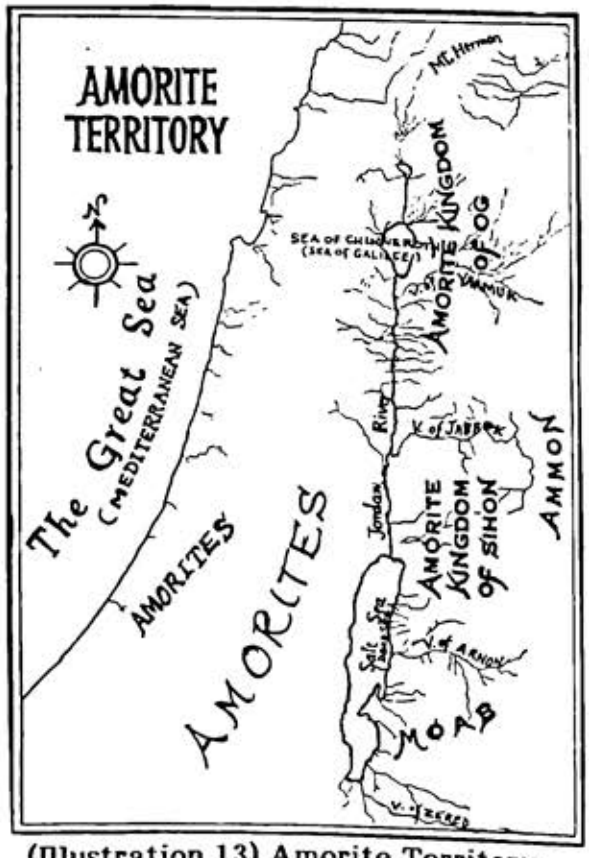
And Moses gave unto the children of Gad and Reuben, and unto half the tribe of Manasseh, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land and the cities with their borders, even the cities of the country round about. And the children of Gad rebuilt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Shophan, Jaazer, and Jogbehah, Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fortified cities; and folds for their sheep. And the children of Reuben built Heshbon, Elealeh, Kirjathaim, Nebo, and Baal-meon (their names being changed), and Shibmah; and gave other names to the cities which they had built. And the children of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it; and other small towns thereof, and called them Havvoth-jair; and they took Kenath and the villages thereof, and called it Nobah.



(Illustration 13) Amorite Territory

The children of Israel continued their journey northward to Bashan, by the way of the King's Highway; and here the Amorite king Og of Bashan came out against Israel, to battle at Edrei, about twelve miles southeast of Ashtoreth.

And the Lord said unto Moses: Fear him not, for I will deliver him, all his people and his land into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him as thou did unto Sihon the king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon (Hesbon). So the Lord their God delivered into their hands Og, the king of Bashan, the territory east of the Jordan River, from Mount Hermon in the north to the torrent valley of Jabbok in the south; and all his people, and all the sixty cities, until there was not one left. And all these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; plus a great many unwalled towns, all the region of Argob. And the Amorites of Bashan were utterly destroyed, as were the Amorites of Heshbon. All their men, women and children were destroyed, but all the cattle and the spoil of the cities were taken for a prey. Og, king of Bashan, was the only surviving giant (acromegalic); his bedstead was made of iron, nine cubits long and four cubits wide. Thus, Israel took out of the hands of two Amorite kings all their land from the torrent valley of Arnon unto Mount Hermon; and the land was divided among the tribes of Reuben, Gad and half the tribe of Manasseh. And Moses reminded them saying: The Lord your God hath given you this land to possess it. All ye men of valor shall pass over Jordan armed, before your brethren the children of Israel. But your wives, your little ones, and your cattle (for they had much cattle) shall abide in your cities which I have given you; until the Lord have given your brethren rest, as well as unto you; when they also possess the land the Lord your God hath given them beyond Jordan; then shall ye return, every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

And Moses commanded Joshua, saying: Thine eyes have seen all the Lord your God hath done unto these two kings, so shall the Lord do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passeth. Ye shall not fear them, for the Lord your God shall fight for you. And Moses besought the Lord, saying: O Lord God, Thou hast begun to show Thy servant Thy greatness, and Thy mighty hand. For what God is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to Thy works, and Thy might? I pray Thee, let me go over (as the commander of the armies), and see the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon. But the Lord would not hear him, for the sake of the children of Israel, saying: Let it suffice thee. Speak no more unto me of this matter. Get thee up into the top of Pisgah (Ras en-Siyaghah, a headland located about ten miles east of the location, where the Jordan empties into the Salt Sea, or the Dead Sea; a little northwest of Mount Nebo, or Jebel en-Neba); and lift up thine eyes westward, northward, southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes. For thou shalt not go over the Jordan, before the children of Israel; but charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him; for he shalt go over before this people, and shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see. So Moses dwelt in the valley of Heshbon (Hesbon), over against Beth-peor, about five miles north-northeast of Mount Nebo. (This is the same location where Balaam the Prophet was later taken by Balak, the king of Moab, as the final place to curse Israel.)

And the children of Israel also encamped in the plains of Moab, across the Jordan from Jericho, near Beth-peor (or Mount Peor). And when Balak, son of Zippor, king of the Moabites, saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites, he became sore afraid and distressed. So Moab said to the elders of Midian: Now shall this company of Israelites lick up all that are round about us, as an ox licketh up grass of the field? And Balak sent messengers unto Balaam, son of Beor to Pethor (Aram) in Mesopotamia, to call him, saying: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, and they cover the face of the earth, and they are encamped over against my land. Come now, I pray thee, and curse this people for me; for they are too mighty for me. Peradventure I may prevail against them, and smite them, and drive them away. For I know that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed. And Balak offered money, cattle and great honors to Balaam to curse Israel. But th Lord forbad him to do so; and an angel of the Lord also opposed him on the way. So Balaam refused to go, for the Lord would not allow him to curse the people who were blessed by God; and he said unto the messengers of Balak: If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the Lord my God to do less or more. I shall only speak that which the Lord putteth in my mouth; and he sent them away. But because of Balak's insistence, and his own desire to see the children of Israel, Balaam did give in to Balak's request, and left Mesopotamia with the messengers of Balak; and travelled by the way of the Sea of Chinnereth (Sea of Galilee), through the Jordan unto the Salt Sea (Dead Sea); and Balak came to meet him in the city near the brook (river) Arnon, in the land of Moab. And Balak said unto Balaam: Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee? Wherefore came not thou unto me? Am I not able indeed to promote thee to honor? And Balaam replied: Lo, I am come unto thee. Have I now any power at all to say anything? The words that God putteth in my mouth, only those shall I speak. Then Balak took Balaam and the princes (rulers) of Moab to Kirjath-huzoth, and offered oxen and sheep. The next morning, Balak took Balaam to the high places (shrines) of Baal, so that he might view the camps of Israel from various locations. Then at a high place of Baal, a bare hill, Balaam said unto Balak to build seven altars and prepare there seven oxen and seven rams. And he stood by his burnt sacrifice with Balak and the princes of Moab, and said: Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from Aram (in Mesopotamia), out of the mountains of the east, saying: Come curse me Jacob, and denounce Israel. How shall I curse whom God hath not cursed? Or how shall I denounce whom the Lord hath not denounced? For from the top of the rock I see him (Israel), and from the hills I behold him. Lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations. Who can count the dust of Jacob, and number even the fourth part of Israel? Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his! And Balak said unto Balaam: What hast thou done unto me? I brought thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast blessed them altogether. And he replied: Must I not take heed to speak that which the Lord hath put in my mouth? Then Balak said unto him: Come, I pray thee, with me into another place, from whence thou mayest see them. Thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not be able to see all of them, and curse them for me from thence. And he brought Balaam into a lookout point, the field of Zophim, to the summit of Pisgah, and built here seven altars and offered a bullock and a ram on each altar. And Balaam stood with Balak and his princes of Moab by the burnt sacrifice, and said: Rise up, Balak, and hear; and hearken unto me thou son of Zippor: God is not a man, that He should lie, neither is He the son of man, that He should repent. Hath He said and shall not do it? Or hath He spoken, and shall not make it good? Behold, I have received commandment to bless, and He hath blessed them; and I cannot reverse it. He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath He seen perverseness in Israel. The Lord his God is with him (Israel); and the shout of a king is among them. God brought them out of Egypt; and Israel hath, as it were, the strength of a unicorn (a wild ox). Surely no enchantment, nor divination can prevail against Israel, except it may be said, what hath God wrought! Behold, the people shall rise up as a great lion, and lift up as a young lion; Israel shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink its blood. Then Balak said unto Balaam: Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all. But Balaam answered: Told I not thee, that all the Lord speaketh, that I must do? And Balak said unto Balaam: Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee unto another place; peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse them for me from thence. And Balak brought Balaam to the top of Mount Peor (Beth-peor), that overlooks the desert, toward Jeshimon; and here also seven altars were built and seven bullocks and seven rams were offered at the altars. And when Balaam saw that it pleased the Lord to bless Israel, he performed no acts of divination or enchantment, as he did on the other two occasions, but he set his face toward the wilderness; and lifted up his eyes and saw the magnificent sight of the camps of Israel, their tents according to each tribe. And the spirit of God came upon him, and he fell into a trance, and uttered these words, while his eyes were open: How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy dwellings, O Israel. As the valleys are they spread forth; as gardens by the river side; as the trees of lign-aloes (soft resinous wood of a tree, burnt as perfume), which the Lord hath planted; and as cedar trees beside the waters. Water shall flow from his (Israel's) branches, and his seed shall be in many waters; and his kingdom shall be higher than Agag (the Amalekites), and shall be exalted. God brought him forth out of Egypt. He (Israel) hath, as it were, the strength of a unicorn. He shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall break their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows. He couched and lay down as a great lion, who shall stir him up? Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee. Now Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, so he clapped his hands together, and said: I called thee to curse mine enemies and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether these three times. Therefore, now flee thou to thy place. I thought to promote thee unto great honor; but lo, the Lord hath kept thee back from honor. And Balaam replied: Spoke I not to thy messengers, whom thou sent unto me, saying: If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the Lord, to do either good or bad of mine own mind, but what the Lord saith, that will I speak? And now, behold, I go unto my people. Come therefore, and I will tell thee what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days, and he said: Balaam the son of Beor hath said, the man whose eyes are opened hath said, he who heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the Most High hath said, he who saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance but having his eyes open thus hath said it: In the future shall come a Star out of Jacob; and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth. And Edom and Seir shall become a possession of Israel. Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy that which is left of the city. And Balaam glanced toward the territory of the Amalekites, and said: Amalek is counted among the first of the nations (that came into existence after the Flood), but in the end he will perish forever. Then he looked toward the Kenite territory, and said: Strong is thy dwelling place, and thou puttest thy nest in the rocks. Nevertheless Asshur shall carry thee away captive, and the Kenites shall be wasted. Alas, who shall live when God doeth this! And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim and shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict Eber,and he also shall perish forever. Then Balaam rose up, and returned to his place in Mesopotamia; and Balak also went his way.

And while Israel was encamped in Shittim, the princes (rulers) of Moab and Midian began to plot secretly against them, by using intrigue and secret combinations; for they could not confront Israel in battle. So they used their daughters, whores, and prostitutes, to beguile the men of Israel and to corrupt their soul and make them weak. They devised mock rituals and ceremonies, and ways of worship to beguile Israel into believing how happy, generous and free they were, compared to the Israelites. And they did succeed in controlling and poisoning their minds, and taking many souls captive; and men of Israel fell into their snares and committed whoredoms with the daughters of Moab. Then they called the men of Israel into their sacrifices, and men did eat and bowed down to their gods and idols; and many joined themselves unto the worship of Baal at Mount Peor. Then, the Lord said unto Moses: Take all the chief men of Israel who were joined unto Baal of Peor and hang them before the Lord, facing the sun, that the Lord's wrath may be turned away from Israel. And Moses said unto the judges of Israel: Slay ye every one of your men that were joined unto Baal of Peor. And, lo, one of the children of Israel came and brought unto his brethren, a Midianitish woman in the sight of Moses and the elders of Israel, who were weeping before the tabernacle. And when Phinehas, the son of Eleazar the Aaronic high priest saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand, and went after them into the tent of the Israelite, and thrust them both in their belly. So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel. But those who had already died in the plague were twenty three thousand Israelites and one thousand Moabites and Midianites. And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Phinehas, the son of Eleazar the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, while he was zealous for my sake, that I consume not the children of Israel in my jealousy. Wherefore say unto him: Behold, I give my covenant of peace. And he and his seed shall have it, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood (Aaronic Priesthood); because he was zealous for his God, and made an atonement for the children of Israel. The name of the Israelite who was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, son of Salu, the head of a patriarchal clan, among the Simeonites. And the name of the Midianitish woman was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur, who was head over a people. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Vex the Midianites, and smite them. For they vex you with their wiles, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi.

And it came to pass that after the plague, which killed 23,000 Israelites, the Lord spoke to Moses and Eleazar the Aaronic high priest, saying: Take a census of all the congregation of the children of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, by their father's house, by each tribe; all that are able to go to war. Then Moses and Eleazar spoke to the elders and rulers of Israel in the plains of Moab by Jordan, near Jericho, to take the census, according to the Lord's commandment. (It may be recalled that nearly thirty-nine years prior to this, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they came out of the land of Egypt, on Ziv/Iyyar 1, 1512 B.C., a similar census was taken of all the men twenty years old and upward, who were able to go to war, near Mount Sinai; and they totalled 603,550 men.) The following table shows the results of the census taken in the plains of Moab, before crossing the Jordan River. The total of all able-bodied men was 601,730, a net decrease of 1,820 men, after a period of nearly thirty-nine years:

		Census taken near Mt. Sinai (1512 B.C.)	Census taken in plains of Moab near Jericho (1474 B.C.)	Increase or (Decrease)	% Increase or (Decrease)
1.	The tribe of Reuben	46,500	43,730	(2,770)	(6)
2.	The tribe of Simeon	59,300	22,200	(37,100)	(63)
3.	The tribe of Gad	45,650	40,500	(5,150)	(11)
4.	The tribe of Judah	74,600	76,500	1,900	3
5.	The tribe of Issachar	54,400	64,300	9,900	18
6.	The tribe of Zebulun	57,400	60,500	3,100	5
7.	The tribe of Manasseh	40,500	52,700	12,200	30
8.	The tribe of Ephraim	32,200	32,500	300	1
9.	The tribe of Benjamin	35,400	45,600	10,200	29
10.	The tribe of Dan	62,700	64,400	1,700	3
11.	The tribe of Asher	41,500	53,400	11,900	29
12.	The tribe of Naphtali	53,400	45,400	(8,000)	(15)
	Total males twenty years old and upward, excluding the tribe of Levi	603,550	601,730	(1,820)
	Plus the tribe of Levi, not numbered among the children of Israel; all males from one month old and upward	22,000	23,000	1,000	5%

(Illustration 14)

Census Data by Each Tribe of Israel (1512 B.C. and 1474 B.C.)

Thus after they moved from Almon-diblathaim, they encamped in the mountains of Abarim, before Mount Nebo; and they departed from here and moved to Beth-jesimoth (Jeshimoth; tell-el Azeimeh), about 11 miles southeast of Jericho, to Abel Shittim, a distance of about five miles, the last encampment on the plains of Moab near Jericho before crossing the Jordan into Canaan.

And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites. Afterward thou shalt be gathered unto thy people. And Moses spoke unto the congregation, saying: Arm some of you unto war, and go against the Midianites, and avenge the lords of Midian. Of every tribe, a thousand shall you send to the war, a total of twelve thousand (out of more than six hundred thousand able-bodied men). So Moses sent the twelve thousand men with Phinehas, son of Eleazar the Aaronic high priest, to the war, with the holy instruments and the trumpet to blow in his hand. And they warred against the Midianites, as the Lord commanded Moses, and they slew all the males, and the five kings of Midian, namely, Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba; and a Balaam, son of Beor (Bosor), was also slain. Then the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives and their little ones, and took the spoils of all their cattle, flocks and goods; and burnt all their cities where they dwelt, and all their closed encampments, with fire. And they brought the captives, and their prey and the spoil unto Moses and Eleazar the priest, unto the camp of the children of Israel in the plains of Moab, by Jordan, near Jericho. And Moses and Eleazar the priest, and all the leaders of the congregation went forth to meet them outside the camp. And Moses was wroth with the captains over the thousands and over the hundreds, who returned from the battle, saying: Have ye saved all the women alive? Behold these caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to commit whoredom and trespass against the Lord in the matter of Peor, and caused the plague among the congregation of the Lord. Now therefore kill every woman that hath known a man by lying with him, and every male child among them. But all females that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves. And all those who have killed a person, or touched the body of a slain person, were to remain outside the camp; to purify themselves and their captives on the third day and on the seventh day; and to purify all their raiment, and all that is made of skins or goat's hair, or wood. Then Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war who went to battle: This is the ordinance of the law which the Lord commanded Moses, that the gold, silver, brass, iron, tin, lead, and everything that may withstand the fire, shall ye make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean; nevertheless all that abide not the fire, ye shall purify with water for cleaning impurity. And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and be clean. Afterward ye shall come into the camp.

Then Moses, Eleazar and the chief fathers of the congregation were commanded by the Lord to take inventory of all the spoil and booty of the war, and to divide it. The prey (females and beasts) was to be divided into two parts; between those who took part in the war, and the rest of the congregation. And a tribute of five hundred each of persons, beef, asses, and sheep was levied unto the Lord, of the men who went to battle. Half of these, or 250 each, were to be given to Eleazar the priest for an heave offering (contribution) to the Lord; and of the half portion of the rest of the congregation, 50 each of persons, beef, asses, flocks and all manner of beasts were to be given to the Levites, who keep the charge of the tabernacle of the Lord. And it was all done according to the commandment of the Lord. This is the net inventory of the booty of the war with the Midianites; before a 0.2% tribute unto the Lord of them who went to war:

675,000	sheep
72,000	beef
61,000	asses
32,000	females who had not known man by lying with him

The portion that belonged to the 12,000 men who went to war, and the Lord's tribute amounted to:

337,500	sheep; less the Lord's tribute of 675 sheep
36,000	beef; less the Lord's tribute of 72 beef
30,500	asses; less the Lord's tribute of 61 asses
16,000	persons; less the Lord's tribute of 32 persons

The portion that belonged to the rest of the congregation, and the portion belonging to the Levites amounted to:

337,500	sheep; less the Levites' portion of 50 sheep
36,000	beef; less the Levites' portion of 50 beef
30,500	asses; less the Levites' portion of 50 asses
16,000	persons; less the Levites' portion of 50 persons

Then the officers who were over the thousands, the captains of thousands and hundreds, came near unto Moses, and said: Thy servants have taken the census of the men who went to war, and are under our charge; and there lacks not one man among us. Therefore, we have brought an oblation for the Lord, whatever each of us hath gotten of jewels of gold, chains, bracelets, rings, earrings and tablets, to make an atonement for our souls before the Lord. For every man of war had taken spoil for himself. So Moses and Eleazar the priest carried the gold and all the ornaments from them, and brought it into the tabernacle, for a memorial for the children of Israel before the Lord. And all the gold offering that was offered up to the Lord amounted to sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels (or about 513 troy pounds).

Thus, Moses the Melchizedek high priest, after the Order of the Son of God, of the tribe of Levi, the Prophet, Seer, Revelator, Writer, Commander and Lawgiver of the nation of Israel; supreme leader of the first holy nation of the Lord, separated from all other nations on the face of the globe; and the Mediator of the firstborn of the Lord God of Jeshurun, was soon to be gathered unto his people, and die in a valley in the land of Moab. And these are the testimonies, statutes, judgements, and ordinances which Moses set before the congregation of the children of Israel, on the east side of the Jordan; in the valley over against Beth-peor; in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who once dwelt at Heshbon, and was smitten by the armies of Moses. And they possessed his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, from Aroer, which is by the bank of the torrent valley (river) Arnon, unto Mount Sion or Herman (also known as Sirion by the Sidonians; and as Shenir by the Amorites). The following is the substance of the last words of Moses spoken to the congregation of the children of Israel on the first day of the eleventh month, in the fortieth year (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.), after they departed from the land of Egypt. Moses was 120 years old on this day:

Now hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes and judgements which I teach you, that you may do them and live; and go in and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers giveth you. Ye shall not add any false doctrine unto the words which I command you, nor shall ye take out the weightier and hidden matters from them, to diminish or adulterate the commandments of the Lord your God. Your eyes have seen what the Lord did when the children of Israel worshiped Baal at Beth-peor (Mount Peor); for all those who worshiped Baal, the Lord your God destroyed from among you. Twenty-three thousand children of Israel perished in the plague. But every one who cleaved unto the Lord is alive unto this day. Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgements, as the Lord my God commanded me, that ye may abide in them, in the land whither ye go to possess it. Keep therefore and live all the commandments of the Lord; for these are your blessings, your wisdom and understanding, and your mission. And when the nations will hear them, they shall say: Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people. For what nation is there so great who hath God so near unto them, as the Lord our God is; that in all things we call upon Him? And what nation is so great that hath statutes and judgements so righteous, as the law which I set before you this day?

Only take heed to yourselves, and keep your soul uncorrupted, lest you forget the things which your eyes have seen, and lest they depart from your heart forever. Teach them to your children, and their children's children. Remember the day when you stood before the Lord your God in Horeb (Mount Sinai), the Lord said unto me: Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days of their lives upon the earth, and that they may teach their children. And ye came near and stood at the foot of the mountain; and the mountain burned with fire of heaven, in the midst of darkness, clouds, and thick darkness. And the Lord spoke unto you out of the midst of the fire, and ye heard the sound of the words, but saw no similitude (likeness or form); only ye heard the voice of Him. And He declared unto you His covenant, even the Ten Commandments, which He commanded you to do and obey; and He wrote these words upon the two tablets of stone. At that time the Lord commanded me to teach you statutes and judgements, that ye might abide in them and perform them in the land whither ye go over to possess it. Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves: For ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spoke unto you in Horeb (Mount Sinai) out of the midst of the fire, lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make graven images, or similitudes of the Lord thy God, and fall into idol worship (idolatry), and die spiritually the death of the natural man; and lest ye lift up your eyes unto heaven, and when you see the sun, the moon, and the stars, and all the host of heaven, be driven to worship them, and serve them, which the Lord your God hath forbidden you to do. The Lord hath divided them unto all nations under the heaven.

The Lord hath taken you, and brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, to be unto Him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day (first day of the eleventh month, or Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.). Take heed unto yourselves, lest ye forget the covenant of God, that idol worship of any kind is forbidden to you, for this evil is a great abomination in the sight of the Lord your God, and provokes Him to anger. I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day that if ye disobey the commandments of the Lord, ye shall utterly perish from the land whither ye go to possess it. Ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall be utterly destroyed. And the Lord shall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen (gentiles). And there ye shall serve similitudes, the gods of wood, stone, metal and clay.

When ye have lived long enough in the land whither you goeth (the Promised Land), and generations have begotten children and their children's children, ye shall again corrupt yourselves, and worship idols, become carnal, sensual and devilish, and shall do evil in the sight of the Lord your God, and shall provoke Him to anger, and the Lord shall scatter you among other nations, among the heathen, where ye shall serve gods made in the image of man, the gods of wood, stone, metal and clay. But if from thence, you seek the Lord your God, with all your heart and with all your soul, you shall find Him. And when all these things are come upon you, and when you are in tribulation even in the latter days, if you turn to the Lord your God and be obedient to His statutes, judgements and commandments, He will not forsake you; for the Lord your God is a merciful God; and He remembers the covenant which He made with your fathers.

Ask now of the days that are past, which were before you, since the day that God created man upon earth; and ask from one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing, or hath anything like it ever been heard? Did ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live? Or hath God assayed to go and take Him a nation by trials and tests, by signs and wonders, by war, and a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm and by great terrors, according to all that the Lord your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes? Unto you these things were shown that you might know that the Lord is God. There is none else beside Him. Know it therefore this day, and keep it in thine heart that the Lord is the only God in heaven above and upon the earth beneath; there is none else.

Out of heaven He caused you to hear His voice, that ye might be instructed; and upon earth He showed you His great fire; and you heard His words out of the midst of the fire. Because He loved your fathers, He chose their seed after them, and brought you out in His sight with His mighty power out of Egypt; to drive out the nations before you that are greater and mightier than you; to bring you, and give you their land for an inheritance; as is the case this day. You shall therefore keep His statutes and commandments which I set before you this day and be obedient to them, that it may be well with you, and with your children after you, and that you may prolong your days in the land, which the Lord your God giveth you forever.

Then Moses set apart three cities of refuge, on the east side of the Jordan, for the unintentional man slayer, namely Bezer on the plateau of the Reubenites, and Ramoth in Gilead of the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan of the Manassites.

And Moses continued to exhort and expound, saying: Hear, O Israel, the statutes, judgements, commandments and ordinances which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them and keep them and obey them. The Lord did not make this covenant with our fathers, but only with us, who are here alive this day. The Lord talked to you face to face from the mount (Sinai), out of the midst of the fire. I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to show you the word of the Lord; for ye were afraid of Him, by the reason of the fire, earthquake, thunder and lightnings and the sound of the trumpet. And when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, for the mountain did burn with fire, ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes and your elders; and ye said: Behold the Lord our God hath shown us His glory and His greatness, and we have heard His voice out of the midst of the fire. We have witnessed this day that God doth talk with man, and that He liveth. Now, therefore, if we hear the voice of the Lord our God any more, this great fire will consume us, and we will die. For who is there of all flesh, that hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived? Go thou (Moses) near, and hear all that the Lord our God shall say; and speak thou unto us all that the Lord our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear thee, and be obedient.

And the Lord heard the voice of your words, when ye spoke unto me (Moses); and the Lord said unto me: I have heard the voice of the words of this people who have spoken unto thee. They have well said that which they have spoken. O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them, and with their children forever! Go say to them, get you into your tents again. But as for thee (Moses), stand thou here by me; and I will speak unto thee all the commandments and statutes, and judgements and ordinances, which thou shall teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

Therefore, O Israel, ye shall be obedient to the commandments, statutes and judgements of the Lord your God, which I set before you this day. Ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall observe all that the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live; and that it may be well with you, and ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess. Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I have set before you this day, shall be in thine heart. And you should teach them diligently unto your children, and talk of them during your wakeful hours; and bind them for a sign upon your hand; and as frontlets between thine eyes (two tiny square leathern boxes, containing scrolls of parchment, are bound on the left arm and forehead, known as Phylacteries, and are worn by the Jews during morning prayer, in remembrance of the law of God, given by the hand of Moses).

And you shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates (passages of the law written on tiny scrolls, enclosed in a small container and nailed to the right door post or gate, are also an ordinance of remembrance; these are known as Mezuzot to the Jews).

And it shall be that when the Lord your God shall have brought you into the land which He had sworn unto your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; to give you goodly cities which you builded not; and houses full of good things, which you filled not, and wells digged, which you digged not, vineyards and olive trees, which you planted not; and when you shall have eaten and be full, then beware lest you forget the Lord which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage. You shall fear the Lord your God, and serve Him, and live by His name. Ye shall not go after other gods, the gods of the people which are round about you; for the Lord your God is a jealous God, lest the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and destroy you from off the face of the earth. Ye shall also not tempt the Lord your God, and put Him to the test, as you have done on several occasions in the wilderness. Therefore, you shall diligently keep all the commandments of the Lord your God; and do that which is right and good in the sight of the Lord, that it may be well with you. And when your son or daughter asketh you: What do the testimonies, statutes, judgements and ordinances of the Lord our God mean? Then you shall say unto your children: We were in bondage in Egypt under Pharaoh; and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand. And the Lord showed signs and wonders, great and sore, and grievous upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh and his household, before our eyes. And he brought us out from thence, that He might bring us in, to give us the land which He had sworn unto our fathers. And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, and judgements, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that He might preserve us alive, as He hath unto this day. And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe and do all these commandments before the Lord our God, as He hath commanded us.

On the same day Shebat 1, 1474 B.C., Moses continued to expound and exhort the statutes, judgements, ordinances, and commandments to the congregation of Israel, saying: When the Lord your God shall bring you into the land whither you goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; these seven nations greater and mightier than you; and when the Lord thy God shall deliver them before you, you shall smite them, and utterly destroy them. You shall make no covenant with them, nor show mercy unto them. Neither shall you make marriages with them. Your daughters shall you not give unto their sons, nor their daughters shall you take unto your sons. For they will turn away your children from following the laws given to you. But ye shall destroy their altars, and break down their idols, images and pillars; and cut down their groves (Asherim), and burn their graven images with fire. For you are an holy people, a nation consecrated to the Lord your God. The Lord your God hath chosen you to be a special (peculiar) people unto Himself, above all other people upon the face of the earth.

The Lord did not set His love upon you, nor chose you, because ye were more in number, for ye were the fewest of all people. But because the Lord loved you and your fathers and had sworn unto them, thus He hath brought you with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Know therefore that the Lord your God is the only true and living God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenants, and bestows mercy upon those who love Him and keep His commandments, to a thousand generations. And He repayeth (punishes) them that hate Him, to their face, to destroy them. He will not be slack to him that hateth Him. He will surely repay him to his face. (It shall be shown on their faces.) Therefore, thou shalt keep all His commandments, and the statutes and judgements, which I have set before you this day, that it may be well with you.

Wherefore it shall come to pass, if ye hearken to these judgements, and keep and do them, that the Lord your God shall keep unto you the covenant and the mercy which he had sworn unto thy fathers. And He will love you, and bless you, and multiply you. He will also bless the fruit of your womb, and the fruit of your land, your grain (corn) and your wine, and oil, the increase of your cattle and the flocks of your sheep, in the land which He had sworn unto your fathers to give you. You shall be blessed above all people. There shall not be a male or female barren among you, or among your cattle. And the Lord will take away from you all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which you knowest, but will lay them upon all those that hate you. And ye shall consume all the people which the Lord your God shall deliver you. Your eyes shall pity them not, for they shall be pricks in your eyes, thorns in your sides, vexation to your spirit, and a snare unto thee; they will lead you astray into eternal misery and torment. Thou shalt not be afraid of them, but shall well remember what the Lord your God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt. As the great trials which your eyes have seen, and as by His wonders, and mighty hand, and stretched out arm, the Lord your God brought you out; so shall He do unto all the people of whom you are afraid. Moreover, the Lord your God shall send the hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from you, be destroyed. You shall not be terrified by them, for the Lord your God is among you, a mighty and awesome God. The Lord your God will put out these nations before you little by little. You may not consume them all at once, lest the wild animals (beasts) become too numerous for you. But the Lord your God shall deliver them unto you, and throw them into great tumults. And He shall deliver their kings into your hands, and you shall destroy their names from under heaven. There shall no man be able to stand before you, when you have destroyed them.

The graven images of their gods shall ye burn with fire. You shall not desire the silver or gold that is on them, nor take it unto yourselves, lest you be snared therein, for it is an abomination to the Lord your God. Neither shall you bring such abomination into your house, lest ye be cursed like it; but ye shall utterly detest it, and utterly abhor it, for it is a cursed thing.

All the commandments which I set before you this day (on Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.) shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply. And you shall remember all the ways the Lord your God led you these forty years in the wilderness, to humble you, to prove you, to know what was in your hearts, whether you would keep His commandments, or not. And He suffered you to hunger, and fed you with manna, which you knew not, neither did your fathers; that He might make you know that man doth not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord. Your raiment waxed not old upon you, neither did your feet swell these forty years. You should also consider in your heart that as a man chasteneth his son, so the Lord your God chasteneth you. Therefore you shall keep the commandments of the Lord your God, to walk in His ways, and to fear Him. For the Lord your God bringeth you into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills; a land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates, a land of olive trees, and honey. A land wherein ye shalt eat bread without scarceness, a land of abundance, whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills you may dig bronze, copper, brass. When you have eaten and are full, then ye shall bless the Lord your God for the good land which He hath given you. Beware that you forget not the Lord your God, in not keeping His commandments, judgements, and statutes; lest when you have eaten and are full, and have built goodly houses, and dwelt therein; and when your herds and your flocks multiply; and your silver and gold, and all that you have is multiplied; your heart be lifted up with pride and you forget the Lord your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage. The Lord your God who led you through the great and terrible wilderness, where were fiery serpents, scorpions; and no water, and He brought you forth water out of the rock of flint; and fed you with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that He might humble you, and prove you, and that it may be good at your latter end. And when you say in your heart, it is my own power and might of mine hand that have gotten me this wealth, remember the Lord your God. For it is He that giveth you power to get wealth, that He may establish His covenant, which He had sworn unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

And it shall be that if you do forget the Lord thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, or worship them, I testify this day that ye shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish.

Hear, O Israel, this day. Thou art to pass over the Jordan, to go in to possess nations powerful and mightier than yourselves, cities great and fenced up high; a people powerful and tall, the children of the Anakim (acromegalic giants), about whom you have heard the saying: Who can stand before the children of Anak! Understand therefore, O Israel, this day (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.), that the Lord thy God is He which goeth over before you, as a consuming fire, to subdue them before you; then shall they be driven out and destroyed by you. Speak not in your hearts, after the Lord your God hath cast them out from before you, saying: For our righteousness the Lord hath brought us in to possess this land; nay, but for the wickedness of these nations the Lord doth drive them out before you. Not for your righteousness, or for the uprightness of your heart do you go to possess their land; but for the wickedness of these nations the Lord your God doth drive them out, that He may fulfill the promise which He had made unto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Understand therefore that the Lord thy God giveth you this good land not for the sake of your righteousness, for you are a stiffnecked people. Remember, and forget not how you provoked the Lord your God to wrath in the wilderness. From the time you departed Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the Lord. Also in Horeb (Mount Sinai) ye provoked the Lord to wrath, so that the Lord was angry with you to have destroyed you. When I was gone up into the mount (Sinai) to receive the tablets of stone, the tablets of the covenants, which the Lord made with you, I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights, I neither did eat bread nor drink water for forty days. And at the end of forty days, the Lord gave me the two tablets written with the finger of God, all the words which the Lord spoke with you from the mount, out of the midst of the fire, in the day of the assembly.

And the Lord said unto me: Arise, get thee down quickly from hence, for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them. They have made themselves a calf and worshiped it. And the Lord spoke unto me, saying: I have seen this people, and behold it is a stiffnecked people. Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under heaven; and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they. And when the Lord sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying: Go up and possess the land which I have given you, ye rebelled against the commandment, and would not go, for ye believed Him not, nor hearkened to His voice. Ye have been rebellious against the Lord from the day I knew you. And it came to pass that again I fell down before the Lord forty days and forty nights, as before, because the Lord had said that He would destroy you. I prayed therefore unto the Lord, and said: O Lord God, destroy not Thy people and Thine inheritance, which Thou hast redeemed through Thy greatness, which Thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand. Remember Thy servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness or sin.

And now, Israel, what doth the Lord your God require of thee, but to fear the Lord your God, to walk in all His ways, and to love Him, and to serve the Lord with all your heart, and all your soul; to keep His commandments and statutes which I set before you this day, for your good? Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's, the earth also with all there is in it. Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your hearts (purify your hearts), and be no more stiffnecked. For the Lord your God is the God of gods and the Lord of lords, a great God, a mighty and terrifying one which regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward. Therefore you shall fear the Lord your God; Him alone shall you serve, and to Him shall you cleave, and make an oath in His name. He is your praise and glory; which hath done all the great and terrifying things, that your eyes have seen. Your fathers went down to Egypt with seventy men (males); and now the Lord your God hath made you as the stars of heaven for a multitude.

The land whither you go to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where you broadcast your seeds and watered them, then stamped with your feet, as a vegetable garden; but the land whither you go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven; a land which the Lord your God careth for. The eyes of the Lord are always upon it, from the beginning unto the end of the year. And if ye hearken diligently unto the commandments that I set forth before you this day, to love your God with all your heart and with all your soul, He will give you the rain of your land in due season, the first rain and the latter rain, that you may gather in your grain, wine and oil. And He will send grass in your fields for your cattle, that you may eat meat and be full. Take heed to yourselves, that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn not aside to serve other gods, and worship them; lest the Lord's wrath be kindled against you, and He shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and the land yield not her fruit; and ye perish quickly from off the good land which the Lord giveth you.

Behold I set before you this day a blessing and a curse; a blessing if ye obey the commandments, and a curse if ye will not obey the commandments of the Lord your God, and turn aside out of the way to go after other gods of the natural man.

Furthermore, ye shall not do after all the things that we do here this day, every man doing whatsoever is right in his own eyes; for ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance, which the Lord your God giveth you. But when you cross over the Jordan, and dwell in the land which the Lord your God giveth you to inherit, and when He giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell in safety; then there shall be a place which the Lord your God shall choose to cause His name to dwell (temple, or sanctuary). Thither shall ye bring all that you are commanded to bring; your burnt offerings, your sacrifices, your tithes, the heave offering of your hand, and all your vows which ye vow unto the Lord. And ye shall rejoice before the Lord your God, ye and your sons and daughters, your menservants and maidservants; and the Levites who are within your gates, forasmuch as they have not part nor inheritance with you. Take heed to yourselves that you offer not your burnt offerings in every place that you see, but only in a place which the Lord shall choose in one of the tribes. There you shall offer your burnt offerings, and there you shall do all which has been commanded to you. Take heed to thyself that you forsake not the Levite, as long as you live upon the earth.

If there arise among you a false prophet or a dreamer of dreams, and giveth you a sign or wonder; and the sign or wonder comes to pass, and he says: Let us go after other gods, and serve them, you shall not hearken to the words of such a prophet; for the Lord your God proveth (tests) you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul. Ye shall hearken only to the voice of the Lord your God, and keep His commandments, and serve Him alone, and cleave unto Him. And if thy brother or sister, or thy son or daughter, or Thy spouse or friend, or any other relative entice thee secretly to go a whoring after other gods, or to serve or worship them, thou shall not consent unto that person, nor hearken unto him; neither shall thine eye pity him, nor spare or conceal him.

And when you have entered the land which the Lord your God giveth you, and possess it, and dwell there, for some time, and say: We will set a king over us, like all the nations that are around us; ye may by all means set a king over you, whom the Lord thy God shall choose, from among thy brethren. You may not set a stranger (alien) over you, who is not your brother. And the king that ye shall choose shall not multiply horses to himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt, so that he may multiply his horses. For the Lord hath said unto you, ye shall from now on return no more that way. Neither shall the king of Israel multiply his wives to himself, that his heart turn not away; neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold. And when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, he shall write him a copy of this law in a book out of that which is in the hands of the priests the Levites. And he shall read and search the Scripture all the days of his life; that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all His commandments, statutes and judgements, and live them; that his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandments to the right hand, or to the left; to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children (family), in the midst of Israel.

The priests the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, shall have no part nor inheritance with Israel; they shall eat the offerings of the Lord made by fire, the Lord is their inheritance. Therefore they shall have no inheritance among their brethren; the Lord is their inheritance, as He hath said unto them. And this shall be the priest's due from the people, from them that offer sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; they shall give unto the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw (stomach). The firstfruits of your grain, of your wine, oil, and the fleece of your sheep shall also be given to him. For the Lord your God hath chosen him out of all thy tribes, to stand to minister in the name of the Lord, him and his sons forever. And if a Levite come from any of thy gates (cities or towns) out of all Israel, where he sojourned, and come with all the desire of his mind unto the place which the Lord shall choose, then he shall minister in the name of the Lord his God, as all his brethren the Levites do, who stand there before the Lord. The Levites shall have like portions to eat, beside that which cometh of the sale of his patrimony (heritage, inheritance).

When you are come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth you, you shall not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you anyone that maketh his son or daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an enchanter, a soothsayer, a witch, a charmer, or a consulter of familiar (evil, unclean) spirits, or a wizard or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord. And because of these abominations the Lord your God doth drive them out before you. Thou shalt be perfect and spotless with the Lord. For these nations, which you shall possess, hearkened unto the enchanters and diviners and soothsayers and such, and became a snare, that leads you captive unto endless torment, misery, and spiritual death. The Lord your God hath not suffered you to do these abominations.

The Lord your God will raise up unto you a Prophet (Jesus Christ) from the midst of you, of your brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken, according to all that you desired of the Lord your God in Horeb (Mount Sinai) in the day of the assembly. Remember, when you saw the great fire, mountain smoking, thunderings and lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, saying: Speak thou (Moses) with us, and we will hear; but let not God speak with us, lest we die. And the Lord said unto me: They have well said that which they have spoken. I will raise them up a prophet (Jesus Christ) from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he will speak in my name, that person will be judged accordingly.

But a false prophet, who presumes to speak a word in My name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or if he speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet shall die. And if you say in your hearts, How shall we know the words which the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, and if the thing follow not, nor comes to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken presumptuously; you shall not be afraid of him concerning that which he hath spoken.

And if there arise among you a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams, and gives you a sign or a wonder; and the sign or wonder comes to pass, and he says unto you: Let us go after other gods, and serve them or worship them, you shall not hearken unto the words of that prophet. Know ye also that the Lord proves (tests) you, to know if you truly love the Lord your God with all your heart and soul, and obey all His commandments. And if thy brother, a relative, or friend entice thee secretly, saying: Let us go serve other gods, the gods of the people which are round about you, near to thee, or far from thee, from one end of the earth unto the other, thou shalt not consent to that person, nor hearken unto him; neither shalt thine eyes pity or spare him, nor conceal him. Thine hands shall be first upon him, and afterwards the hand of all the people; for he hath sought to thrust thee into eternal torment and misery, leading thee away from the Lord thy God unto spiritual death. Such a person shalt be put to death, that Israel may fear the Lord, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and do no more such wickedness, as is now among you.

And when ye go out to battle against your enemies, and see the horses and chariots, and people more in number than you, be not afraid of them; for the Lord your God is with you, which brought you out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be that when you are come near to battle, that the (Aaronic) priest shall approach and speak unto the people, and say: Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies. Let not your heart faint, fear not, and do not tremble, nor be terrified because of them. For the Lord your God is He that goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you. And the officers shall speak unto the armies, saying: What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it. And what man is there that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet eaten of it? Let him also go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it. And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? Let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her. And the officer shall speak further unto the armies, saying: What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? Let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart faint (melt) as well as his heart. And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies to lead the people.

And when you come near unto a city to fight (war) against it, then proclaim peace unto it. If they answer in peace and open unto you, then it shall be that all the people in that city shall become tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee. If they make no peace with you, but make war against you, then you shall besiege that city. And when the Lord your God hath delivered it unto you, you shall smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword. But the women, little children, cattle, and all the spoil of that city, shall you take unto yourselves. Thus also shall you do unto all the cities which are not located in the land of your inheritance, but are far off in distant lands. You shall not save one man alive, but utterly destroy them, namely: the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; that they corrupt not your soul by their divinations, wizardry, and secret combinations. For all such things are abominations to the Lord your God and He abhors them.

When thou goeth to war against thine enemies, and the Lord thy God hath delivered them into thine hands; and thou hast taken them captive, and desireth to marry a goodly woman among the captives; then, thou shalt bring her home to thy dwelling, and she shall shave her head, and cut her nails, and put away the raiment of her captivity, and remain in thy dwelling and bewail her father and mother a full month. Then thou may go into her, and become her husband, and she thy wife. If thou hast no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; but thou shalt not sell her, nor treat her harshly, because thou hast humbled her.

If a man hast two wives, one beloved and another hated (despised), and both have borne him sons; and if his firstborn were to be of the hated one, then it shall be that when he maketh his sons to inherit that which he hath, he shall not put the son of the beloved over the firstborn of the hated. But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated as his firstborn, by giving him double portion of all that he hath; for he is the beginning of his strength. The right of the firstborn is his, unless he is judged to be stubborn, rebellious or morally corrupt.

When a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favor in his eyes, because she hath some uncleanness in her, then let him write a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house. And when she is departed, she may become wife of another man. If the latter husband writes her a bill of divorcement or dies, her former husband shalt not take her again to be his wife, if she was defiled by the latter. For that is an abomination before the Lord, and brings guilt upon the land, and causes the land to sin. And when a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, nor shall he be charged with any business, but he shall be free at home one year, and be happy with his wife which he hath taken.

He that is wounded in the stones (testes), or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord. A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord even to his tenth generation. An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation unto the tenth generation, and forever. Thou shalt seek neither their peace nor their prosperity in all your generations, forever. Thou shalt, however, not abhor an Edomite, for he is thy brother, nor shalt thou abhor an Egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his land. The children that are begotten of them, may enter the congregation of the Lord in their third generation.

When thou lendeth thy brother anything, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge. Thou shalt stand outside and the man to whom thou did lend shall bring out the pledge outside unto thee. If a man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge, but deliver him another pledge again when the sun goes down, that he may sleep without worry, and bless thee. And it shall be counted righteousness unto thee before the Lord thy God. Thou shalt also not take the lower or upper millstone as a pledge, for it is equivalent to taking a man's life as a pledge.

Take heed in the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to that which the priest-Levites shall tell you, as I have commanded them. Remember what the Lord thy God did unto Miriam at Hazeroth.

Ye shall not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be your brother or a stranger within your gates (towns or cities). The same day you shall pay him his wages, even before the sun goes down; for the laborer is a poor man and setteth his heart upon his wages; lest he cry against thee unto the Lord, and it be a sin unto thee.

Thou shalt not pervert justice due to a person being a stranger or fatherless; nor take a widow's raiment as pledge, but remember that thou wast a slave (bondman) in Egypt, and the Lord thy God redeemed thee.

When thou cuttest down the harvest in thy field, in the land of thy inheritance, and hast forgotten a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it; it shall be for the stranger, fatherless, and for the widow; that the Lord thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hands. And when thou beatest thine olive tree, thou shall not go over the boughs again; and when thou gathereth the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it afterward; it shall be for the stranger, the fatherless, and for the widow.

And if one be found slain in the land which the Lord giveth thee to possess, lying in the field; and it be not known who hath slain him; thou and thy elders and judges shall come forth, and they shall measure the distance to the cities which are round about the corpse. And it shall be that the elders of the city which is closest to the corpse of the slain man, shall bring down a heifer into a rough valley, which is neither plowed or sown, and shall strike the heifer's neck in the valley. And the priests of the sons of Levi shall come near, for the Lord thy God hath chosen them to minister unto Him, and bless in the name of the Lord. By their word shall every controversy and every case of assault be tried. And all the elders of the city, which is closest to the corpse of the slain man, shall wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley, and say: Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it. Be merciful, O Lord, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed; and let atonement be made for them, and lay not innocent blood unto the people of Israel's charge. And, in this manner shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, and the blood shall be forgiven them.

Judges and officers shall be placed within each tribe in all your towns and cities, which the Lord your God gives you. And they shall judge the people with just judgement; and not pervert justice, nor show partiality. They shall not respect persons, nor take gifts, for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the words of the righteous. Only that which is wholly just, shall they follow.

And on the same day, Shebat 1, 1474 B.C., Moses reminded the children of Israel as to what they may or may not eat, and what things are clean and unclean; and sexual immorality, plural marriages, marriage to brother's widow, just weights and measures, sanitation, usury and vows. Israel was not to eat anything that dies of itself; it may, however, be given to a stranger, that he may eat it, or it may be sold to an alien; nor was Israel to seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

And Moses continued to exhort and expound, saying: If thou happen to chance upon a bird's nest in a tree or on the ground, and the dam (mother) sitting with the young, thou shalt not take the dam with the young. But thou shalt let the dam go, and may take the young, that it may be well with thee, that thou may prolong thy days upon the land, which the Lord God giveth thee. And when thou buildest a new house, thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, that thou bring not blood upon thine house, if anyone fall from hence. Thou shalt also not sow thy vineyard with diverse seed, lest the fruit of thy vineyard be defiled; thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together; nor shall thou muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the grain (corn). And if thy brother's ass or ox fall down by the way, thou shalt not hide thy face, but surely help him to lift up the beast. And if thy brother's cattle or sheep or anything else is lost, thou shalt help him find it, and restore to him, that which thou hast found, and belongs to him.

Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant who is escaped from his master unto thee. He shalt dwell with thee, even in one of the towns or cities among you, where it pleases him best, and thou shalt not oppress him. And there shalt be no whore among the daughters of Israel, nor a Sodomite among the sons of Israel. And thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore, or the price of a dog, into the house of the Lord thy God. And when thou maketh a vow, thou shalt not slack to pay it, for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee, and it would be a sin in thee. But if thou forbear the vow, it shall be no sin to thee. That which goes out of thy lips, thou shall keep and perform, even the freewill offering, according to the vow unto the Lord. Thou shalt not lend upon usury (interest) to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals or any other which is lent upon usury; that the Lord thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it. Thou may lend upon usury unto a stranger.

The tithe of your grain (corn), wine, and oil, and of the firstlings of your herds and flocks, you shalt eat before the Lord thy God, in the place which the Lord shall choose (after ye cross over the Jordan and possess all the land of your inheritance), that you may learn to fear the Lord your God and remember Him always. And if the way to this place be too long for you, so that you are not able to carry all your tithe offerings; and if the place that the Lord shall choose to set His name there be too far from you, and when the Lord hath blessed you in the land of your inheritance; then you shall turn the offering into money, and bind up the money in your hand, and shall go to the place which the Lord shall choose; and bestow that money for whatsoever your soul desireth, for oxen, or sheep, or wine, or strong drink, or for whatsoever your soul desireth; and you shall eat there before the Lord your God,and rejoice with your household. And the Levite that is within your gates (towns or cities), you shall not forsake; for he hath no part nor inheritance with you. At the end of three years you shall bring forth all the tithes of your increase the same year, and shall lay it up within your gates. And the Levite, because he hath no part nor inheritance with you, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, who are within your gates, shall come, and eat and be satisfied; that the Lord your God may bless you in all the work of your hand.

And the children of Israel shall give unto the Levite of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in, for he hath no part nor inheritance with Israel. Ye shall give the Levites open areas for fields and pasture. They shall have cities to dwell in, and suburbs for their livestock, property and goods. Their suburbs shall reach from the wall of the city outward a thousand cubits (about 1,750 feet) all around it. And ye shall measure from the outside of the city, from the end of the thousand cubits, two thousand cubits each toward the north, south, east and west. This shall be to them the suburbs of the cities, with the walled city in the midst. Thus the children of Israel shall give the Levites a total of forty-eight cities, with their suburbs; of which six shall be the cities of refuge, three on the east side of the Jordan, and three in the land of Canaan, on the west side. These six cities of refuge shall be appointed for the man slayer who may flee thither, who killeth a person unintentionally, that the manslayer die not, until he stands before the congregation for judgement. These six cities shall be a place of refuge, both for the children of Israel, for the stranger, and sojourner among them. But if a person commits murder intentionally, he must be put to death.

At the end of every seven years (sabbatical year) Israel was to make a release, and pardon (or cancel) debts. Every creditor that lendeth ought unto his fellowman (neighbor) was to release the debt. He was not to exact it of his fellowman, or his brother; because it is called the Lord's release. Of a foreigner he may exact it again, but shall release his brother from the debt, to the end that there may be no needy or poor among the children of Israel; and they be greatly blessed in the land which the Lord thy God giveth them for an inheritance to possess it.

And if your brother, an Hebrew man or woman, be sold unto you, and serve you six years, then in the seventh year you shall let him go free. And when you set him free, you shall not let him go away empty handed; thou shall furnish him liberally out of thy flock, out of thy threshing floor, out of thy winepress, and out of all with which the Lord your God hath blessed you. And you shall remember that you were a bondman in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God redeemed you. And it shall be that if your bond person say unto you: I will not go away from you, because he loveth you and your house, because he is well with you, then you shall bring him before God (God's representatives, or judges); and his master shall pierce his ear through with an awl unto the door or the door post, and he shall be your servant forever. You shall do the same with the maidservant.

All the firstling males that come of your herd and of your flock you shall sanctify unto the Lord your God. You shall not put to work the firstlings of your bullocks, nor shall you shear the firstlings of your sheep. You and your household shall eat them before the Lord your God annually, in the place which the Lord shall choose. And if there be any blemish in them, if they be lame, or blind, or ill, you shall not sacrifice them unto the Lord your God. You shall eat them within your gates (towns, cities). Only you shall not eat the blood of the animal, but pour it upon the ground as water.

Israel shall keep the passover; also the feast of unleavened bread (unfermented cakes), the feast of weeks (harvest or pentecost), and the feast of tabernacles (ingathering or booths). Three times a year shall all males appear before the Lord your God at these three feasts in the place that the Lord shall choose. And they shall not appear before the Lord empty, every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessings of the Lord which He hath bestowed upon you.

And it shall be, when thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance and a possession, and to dwell in, that in the third year, thou shalt take of the firstfruits of all that which is brought forth from the ground; and put in a basket, and take it to the place which the Lord shall choose out of all the twelve tribes, to put His name there. Before thou taketh thy offerings to the Lord, thou shalt tithe a portion of all of thine increases in the third year, unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy cities and towns (gates), and be filled. Then, thou shalt present thy basket to the priest at the holy place, saying: I profess this day, unto the Lord my God, that I am come unto the country which the Lord had sworn unto our fathers. And the priest shall take the basket out of your hand and set it before the altar of the Lord. And thou shalt speak and say before the Lord thy God: A Syrian (Aramaean) ready to perish was my father, and he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a few, and became there a nation, great and mighty and populous; and the Egyptians treated us harshly, and afflicted us and laid upon us hard bondage. But when we cried unto the Lord God of our fathers, the Lord heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, our toil and oppression. And the Lord brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, an outstretched arm and with terrifying signs and wonders. And He hath brought us into this place, and given us this land, a land which floweth with milk and honey. And now, behold I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which Thou, O Lord, hast given me. I have brought Thee the consecrated things out of mine household, and also have given them unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, according to all Thy commandments. I have not transgressed Thy commandments, neither have I forgotten them. I have not eaten in mourning, nor have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for the dead; but I have hearkened to the voice of the Lord my God, and have done according to all that Thou hast commanded me. May Thou look down from Thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless Thy people and the land which Thou hast given us.

Then thou shalt worship before the Lord; and rejoice in every good thing, which the Lord thy God hast given unto thee and thine household.

This day (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.) the Lord thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes, judgements and ordinances. Thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart and with all thy soul. Thou hast declared this day to choose the Lord thy God, and walk in His ways, and keep His statutes, commandments and judgements and to hearken unto His voice. And the Lord hath confirmed this day that He chooseth you to be His peculiar people, to make you high above all nations on the face of the earth, a nation of holy people, if ye should keep all His commandments.

And on this same day, Moses and the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying: Keep all the commandments which have been set before you this day. And when ye pass over the Jordan into the land which the Lord your God giveth you, you shall set up large stones in plaster, and write upon them the words of this law very plainly; and set them up in Mount Ebal (now known as Jebel Islamiah, located opposite to Mount Gerizim, toward the northeast. These two mountains are separated by the fertile valley of Shechem, in which modern Nebulus is situated. Mount Gerizim, now known as Jebel et-Tor, and Mount Ebal are located in the heart of the district of Samaria. Before Israel's entry into the Promised Land in 1473 B.C., an important and powerful Canaanite city of Shechem was situated about one and a half miles southeast of modern Nebulus. Although the summit of Mount Gerizim [over 2,800 feet] is a little more than 200 feet lower than that of Mount Ebal, it offers an excellent view of the surrounding regions. From its summit one can see to the north the snowy peak of Mount Hermon; to the east the fertile valley of Jordan; to the south the mountains of Ephraim; and to the west the Plains of Sharon and the blue Mediterranean [the Great Sea]. It was also in the valley of Shechem, between Mounts Gerizim and Ebal, near the big trees, that Abram [Abraham] once encamped, and the Lord spoke unto him, saying: Unto thy seed I will give this land; and Jacob [Israel] also encamped in this valley. It may also be noted that the location of Mounts Ebal and Gerizim provide excellent acoustics, which were necessary to address hundreds of thousands of children of Israel.)

Mount Gerizim (left) and Mount Ebal (right); separated by the fertile valley of Shechem. (Joseph's bones are buried at Shechem)

Then, Moses and the priests the Levites spoke unto all Israel, saying: Take heed, and hearken O Israel: This day, (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.) thou art become the people of the Lord thy God. Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the Lord thy God, and do all His commandments and statutes. And Moses charged people saying: When thou hast crossed over the Jordan and come unto the land of thine inheritance, these shall stand upon Mount Gerizim to bless the people, namely: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin; and these shall stand upon Mount Ebal to curse the people, namely: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali. And the priests shall speak to them from their midst in a loud voice, saying:

Cursed be the man that serves or worships any god of wood, metal, clay or stone, made by man, in the image of man; or hides them in a secret place. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he who esteems lightly and disgraces his parents. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that removeth his neighbor's (fellowman's) landmark. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that misleads others, or maketh the blind to wander out of the way. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that perverteth the justice due to one being a stranger, fatherless or widow. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with his father's wife, or her who is his father's, for he uncovereth his father's skirt. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with any manner of beast. And the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with his sister, or his stepsister. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with his mother-in-law. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that smiteth his neighbor (fellowman) secretly. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that taketh reward (bribe) to slay an innocent person. And all the people shall say, Amen.

Cursed be he that keeps not all the commandments of the Lord (which were given in Horeb, near Mount Sinai); and each word of the law set before them this day. And all the people shall say, Amen.

And it shall come to pass, if thou hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, and be obedient to do all His commandments, that the Lord thy God will set thee high above all other nations on the face of the earth; and these blessings shall be bestowed upon thee:

Blessed shalt thou be in the city and in the field.

Blessed shalt be the fruit of thy body, the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle.

Blessed shalt be thy basket, thy kneading trough, and thy store.

Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in and when thou goest out.

The Lord shall cause thine enemies, that rise up against thee, to be smitten before thy face. They shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways.

The Lord shall bless thee in thy storehouses, and in all that thou settest thine hand unto; and He shall pour His blessings upon thee in the land of thine inheritance.

The Lord shall establish thee an holy people unto Himself, as He hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord, and walk in his ways.

All the people of the earth shall be afraid of thee, for they shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord.

The Lord shall make thee plenteous in goods, in the fruit of thy body, in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground in the land which He hath sworn unto thy fathers to give thee.

The Lord shall open unto thee His good treasure, the heaven to give rain unto thy land in its season, and to bless all the work of thine hand; and thou shalt lend unto many nations, and shalt not borrow.

The Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail, and thou shalt be above, and not beneath; if thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God, which I have set before thee this day, and be obedient to do them; and if thou shalt not go aside from any of the words, to the right hand or to the left, or to go after other gods to serve them.

But if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God and be obedient to all His commandments to do them, then these curses shall come upon thee and overtake thee:

Cursed shalt thou be in the city and in the field.

Cursed shall be thy basket, thy kneading trough, and thy store.

Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, the fruit of thy land, increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

The Lord shall send upon thee cursing, vexation, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand, until thou be destroyed, and perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doing, whereby thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God.

The Lord shall make the pestilence cleave unto thee, until He hath consumed thee from off the land of thine inheritance.

The Lord shall smite thee with tuberculosis and consumption, fever and swellings, with extreme burning and pain, with fungus and mildew; and with the sword and blasting. They shall pursue thee until thou perish. And the heaven over thy head shall be brass; and the earth below thy feet shall be iron.

The Lord shall rain upon the land powder and dust, until thou be destroyed.

The Lord shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies. Thou shalt go out against them one way, and flee seven ways before them; and shall be scattered unto all the kingdoms of the earth. And thy carcass shall be meat unto the fowls of the air and the beasts of the earth; and no man shall fray them away.

The Lord will smite thee with the sore botch (boils) of Egypt from head to toe, with tumors, with scab and itching, whereof thou canst not be healed.

The Lord shall smite thee with madness and insanity, with blindness and heart ailments; and with diseases of the organs of thy body. And thou shalt grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness and thou shalt not prosper, but be oppressed and robbed continually; and no man shall save thee.

Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her; thou shalt build a house, and shalt not dwell in it; thou shalt plant a vineyard and shalt not gather the grapes.

Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof; thine ass shalt be violently taken away from before thy face, and shall not be restored to thee; thy sheep shall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them.

Thy sons and daughters shall be given unto another people; and thine eyes shall look and fail with longing for them all the day long, and there shall be no power to prevent it. The fruit of thy land and all thy labors shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up, and thou shall be oppressed and afflicted in hard bondage. And thou shalt be driven mad by the sight thine eyes shall see.

The Lord shall bring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and there thou shalt serve other gods of wood, stone, metal and clay. And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a by-word, among all nations whither the Lord shall scatter thee.

Thou shalt plant much seed into thy field, and shalt gather but little, for locust, and insects shall consume it; thou shalt plant vineyards and dress them, but shalt neither drink of the wine nor gather the grapes; thou shalt plant olive trees throughout thy borders, but shall not anoint thyself with oil; for they shall all be consumed.

Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but thou shalt not enjoy them, for they shall be taken into captivity.

The stranger within thy gates (cities and towns) shall be brought up very high, and thou shalt be brought down very low. He shall lend unto thee, and thou shalt not lend unto him; he shall be the head, and thou shalt be the tail.

The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from far, even from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flieth, a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand. A nation of fierce countenance, which shall not regard the person of the old, nor show favor to the young. And they shall eat the fruits of thy cattle and thy land; and not leave either thy corn, wine or oil, until they have destroyed thee. And they shall besiege thee in all thy gates (towns and cities), until thy high and fenced walls, in which thou puttest thy trust, come down to the ground. And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and daughters, in the siege, in distress of hunger, and in bitterness.

And the man who is tender and delicate among you, his eye shall be evil toward his brother, toward the wife of his bosom, and his children. He shall eat the flesh of his children, and will not share it with others, because he hath nothing else left in the siege, and due to distress and bitterness. The tender and delicate woman among you, who would not adventure to set the sole of her feet upon the ground, her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, toward her sons and daughters, for she shall eat them under distress, for want of all things secretly.

The Lord will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou was afraid of, and they shall cleave unto thee. Also every sickness and every plague which is not written in the book of this law, the Lord will bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed. And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were as the stars of heaven for multitude, because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the Lord thy God. And it shall come to pass, that as the Lord rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you, so the Lord will rejoice over you to destroy you, and to bring you to nought; and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood, stone, metal and clay. Among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither the sole of thy feet have rest; but the Lord shall give thee trembling heart, failing eye, sorrow of mind, and anguish of soul. And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night with no assurance of thy life. In the morning thou shalt say, would God it were evening; and in the evening thou shalt say, would God it were morning! And the Lord shall bring thee into captivity again, and ye shall be led as slaves in the ships, and shall be sold unto your enemies as bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you. And ye shall be seen no more.

If ye wilt not observe to abide by the words of this law, and uphold the covenant that ye make this day (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.), which covenant was not made with your fathers, and keep all the commandments which are set before you, besides the covenant which was made in Horeb (near Mount Sinai), which covenant was not made with your fathers; and would not fear the glorious and fearful name of THE LORD THY GOD(Jehovah: יהוה,אלהיך), then all the curses shall come upon you in the land of your inheritance. And these curses shall pursue you and overtake you, till you are destroyed. And they shall be upon you as a sign and a wonder, upon your seed forever. Because you servedest not the Lord your God with joyfulness and gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things, you shall serve your enemies whom the Lord shall send against you, in hunger, in thirst, in nakedness, and in want of all things; and he shall put a yoke of iron upon your necks, until ye are destroyed.

And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, ye have seen all the Lord did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, his servants and all his land. The great trials (tests and temptations), signs and miracles, although your eyes have seen, yet the Lord hath not given you an heart to perceive it, eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day. And I have led you forty years in the wilderness; your clothes are not become worn upon you, and your shoes are not waxen old upon your feet. Ye have not eaten bread, nor have ye drunk wine or strong drink, that ye might know I AM (אהיה) the Lord your God.

You stand this day before the Lord your God, with the captains of your tribe, your elders and officers, all the men of Israel, and your littlel ones, your wives and the strangers that are in your camp, from your woodcutter (hewer of wood) to the drawer of water; that you enter into a covenant with the Lord your God, into His oath which He maketh with you this day: That He may establish you today as a people unto Himself, and that He may be unto you a God, as He hath said unto you, and sworn unto your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac and to Jacob. Neither with you alone doth He make this covenant and this oath, but also with all who stand here with us this day before the Lord our God, and with those who are not here this day. Should there be among you a man, woman, and family, or a tribe whose heart turneth away from the Lord our God, to go and serve the gods of other nations, the gods of wood, stone, metal and clay; or shall there be among you a root that beareth poisonous and bitter fruit, gall and wormwood; and when he heareth the words of these curses and justify himself in his heart, saying: I shall yet be blessed, though I walk in the imagination of mine heart (to add drunkenness to his heart), the Lord shall not spare such a person. The anger of the Lord and His jealousy shall smoke against that person, and the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, according to the judgements of the Lord, and the name of such person shall be blotted out from under heaven; and he shall be separated from all the tribes unto the lot of the cursed and evil ones. Keep therefore the covenant which you make this day with the Lord your God, besides the covenant you did make at Horeb (Mount Sinai); and obey all His commandments and statutes, that ye may live and prosper in the land of your inheritance, after you cross over the Jordan. May you remember also that the secret things and mysteries of Godliness belong to the Lord our God, but those things which are revealed, belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may be obedient to His commandments, and live according to His laws and statutes, which are set forth before you this day.

And it shall come to pass, when all the blessings and the curses, which I have set before you, are fulfilled, and Israel be scattered among all the nations whither the Lord your God hath driven him, that the words of this law shall come to his mind, and Israel shall seek and return to the Lord your God with all his heart and soul. Then the Lord your God will have compassion upon him, turn his captivity, and gather Israel from all the nations whither the Lord your God hath scattered him. If any of them be driven unto the utmost parts under heaven, from thence will the Lord your God gather Israel, and from thence will He fetch him. And the Lord your God will bring them into the land of their fathers, and they shall possess it again; and He will do them good and multiply them above their fathers. And the Lord your God will circumcise their hearts, that they might love the Lord your God with all their heart and soul, and live. And the Lord your God will put all these curses upon their enemies, and on them that hate and persecute them. Israel shall return and obey the voice of the Lord, and do all His commandments which have been set before you this day; and the Lord your God will, once again, make him plenteous in every work of his hands, in the fruit of his body, in the fruit of his cattle, in the fruit of his land, for good. The Lord will again rejoice over them, for good, as he rejoiced over their fathers. But you who are here on this day, must hearken unto the voice of the Lord your God, to keep all His commandments and statutes which are written in this book of the Law, and turn unto the Lord your God with all your heart and soul.

All that which is set before you this day, is not hidden from you, neither is it far off. It is not the secret kept in heaven, that you should say: Who shall go up to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear the Word and do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that you should say; Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it and do it? Nor is it hidden in the depths of earth below, that you should say: Who shall descend below into the depths of the earth, and bring the Word unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? But the Word is very nigh unto you, in your heart and soul, and in your mouth, that ye might do it. Behold, I have set before you this day (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.) the Word of life and good, and death and evil. And I exhort you this day to love the Lord your God, to walk in His ways, and to keep all His commandments, statutes and judgements, that you may live and multiply, and be blessed in the land whither you goest to possess it. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessings and cursings. Therefore choose life that both you and your seed may live, that you may love the Lord your God, obey His voice, and cleave unto him; for He is your life and the length of your days. But if your hearts turn away, so that ye wilt not hear, but draw away and worship other gods and serve them, I declare unto you this day that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land, when you passest over the Jordan to go to possess it.

And Moses continued to speak unto all Israel, saying: I am an hundred and twenty years old this day. I can no more lead your armies; also the Lord hath said unto me: Thou (Moses) shalt not go over the Jordan before the people. The Lord your God shall go before Israel to prepare the way, and Joshua (Hoshea), son of Nun, shall go before the people; and the nations across the Jordan will be destroyed, that you may possess them. And the Lord shall do unto them as He did unto Sihon and Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto their lands. Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them; for the Lord your God that doth go with you, will not fail you, nor forsake you. Then Moses called Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel: Be strong and of a good courage, thou must go with this people unto the land which the Lord hath sworn unto their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it. And the Lord that doth go before thee will be with thee, and will not fail, nor forsake thee. Fear not, neither be dismayed.

And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto the priests, the sons of Levi, and unto the elders of Israel to be copied; and commanded them, saying: At the end of every seven years (sabbatical year), in the solemnity of the year of release, during the feast of tabernacles (or festival of booths or ingathering), when all Israel is come to appear before the Lord your God, in the place which the Lord shall choose, ye shall read this law before all Israel. (And each year the priests and elders were to read all that which was set before them on this day, Shebat 1, 1474 B.C., to their families and children, that they may hear and learn to fear the Lord; and be obedient to His commandments, statutes and judgements, in all generations to come.)

And on this selfsame day the Lord said unto Moses: Behold, thy days approach that thou must die. Call Joshua and present yourselves in the tabernacle, that I may give him charge. And Moses and Joshua presented themselves in the tabernacle; and the Lord appeared in the pillar of cloud and stood over the door of the tabernacle. And He said unto Moses: Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, and go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land, and forsake me and break the covenants which they have made with me. Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and hide my face from them; and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall them. Then in that day they will say: Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us? And I will surely hide my face from them. Now therefore write down thy song, and teach it to the children of Israel; put it in their mouths that thy song may serve as a witness against the children of Israel. For when I shall have brought them into the land which I had sworn unto their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves and waxen fat, then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenants. And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that thy song shall testify against them as a witness; for I know their inclinations, which are already forming, even before I have brought them into the land which I had sworn. Moses therefore wrote down his song the selfsame day, and read it to the children of Israel. And the Lord gave Joshua, son of Nun, a charge, and said: Be strong and of a good courage; for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I had sworn unto them; and I will be with thee.

Then, when Moses had made an end of the words of his song in the book of the law, according to the Lord's commandments, he spoke to the Levites, saying: Take this book and place it on the side of the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there for a witness against you. For I know your rebellion, and your stiffneckedness. Behold, while I am yet alive, ye have been rebellious against the Lord; and how much more after my death? Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes and your officers, that I may speak these words also in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them. For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and the evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke Him to anger through the work of your hands. And Moses read to all the congregation of Israel the words of this song which he wrote:

Give ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distill as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as showers upon the grass; because I will proclaim the name of the Lord.

Ascribe ye greatness unto our God; for He is the Rock, His works are perfect, His ways are just; a God of truth and righteousness. The Eternal is His name, and endless are His works.

Lo, they have corrupted themselves; they are no longer His children; spotless they are no more, but perverse and crooked generation they have become.

Do ye thus requite the Lord, O foolish and unwise people? Is not He thy Father that hath created thee? Hath He not made thee, ransomed thee and established thee?

Remember the days of old; consider the years of generations past; ask thy Father, and He will show thee; thy elders will tell thee, when the Most High divided the nations their inheritance, when He separated the sons of Adam; He set bounds of the people according to His purposes.

Jacob is the lot of His inheritance. He found him in a desert land, in the waste, howling wilderness; and He led him about and instructed him, encircled him and cared for him; he kept him as the apple of his eye.

As the eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them and beareth them under her wings; so the Lord alone lead Jacob, and there was no strange god with Him.

He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and He made him suck honey out of the rock, oil out of the flinty stone; and butter of kine and milk of sheep, and partook fat lambs, rams and goats with the fat kernels of wheat; and didst drink the pure blood of the grape.

Then Jeshurun (righteous, upright) waxed fat, and kicked, as thou art waxen fat and grown thick; and foresook God who made him, and esteemed lightly the Rock of his salvation.

They provoked the Lord to jealousy with strange gods; with abominations they provoked Him to anger.

They sacrificed unto devils, not to God; they served new gods whom they knew not, nor did their fathers fear them.

Of the Rock that begat them, they became unmindful, and had forgotten the God that formed them.

And when the Lord saw it, He abhorred them, for His sons and daughters had provoked Him.

And He said: I will hide my face from them, and watch their end; for they are a perverse and faithless generation.

They have moved me to jealousy by serving other gods; and they have provoked me to anger with their vanities and whoredoms.

I will move them to jealousy with those who are not a people, and I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountain.

I will heap evils upon them, I will spend my arrows upon them. They shall be exhausted with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction; and I will send the ferocious beasts of the wild and the poisonous serpents of the dust upon them. The sword without and terror within shall destroy both the lad and the virgin, man and woman, young and old.

I would put an end to Israel and their remembrance from among the nations, were it not that I am aware of the ignorance and the wrath of their enemy; knowing that the adversary may behave strangely, and consider themselves above the Lord in their false pride and vanity; for the enemies are a nation void of counsel and any understanding. O that they were wise, that they understood this, and consider their latter end! How should one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had sold them, and the Lord had shut them up? For the rock of the adversary is not as the Rock of Israel, the enemies themselves being judges. For their vine is the vine of Sodom, and the fields of Gomorrah; their grapes are the grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter; their wine is the poison of the dragons, and cruel venom of asps. Is not this laid up in store with the Lord, and sealed up among His treasures?

To the Lord belongeth the vengeance and recompense; the feet of Israel shall slide in due time, for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

For the Lord shall judge His people, and repent Himself for His servants, when He seeth that their power is gone, and there is none left, bond or free; and He shall say, where are their gods, the rocks in whom they trusted; who did eat the fat of their sacrifices and drank the wine of their drink offerings? Let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.

Behold, now, that I am, even I, am He, and there is no other god beside me. I bring about death, and I bring about life; I wound and I heal. And there is none that can be delivered out of my hand.

For when the Lord lifts up His hands to heaven and proclaims: I live forever; if He whet His glittering sword and His hand take hold on judgement, He will render vengeance to His enemies, and judge them that hate Him; He will make His arrows drunk with blood, and His sword shall devour flesh; with the blood of the slain and captives.

Rejoice, O ye nations, with His people; for He will avenge the blood of His servants, and will render vengeance to His adversaries, and will be merciful unto His people and the land of their inheritance.

And Moses and Joshua, son of Nun, finished reading this song to the people; and Moses made an end of speaking all the words of the law to Israel, and he said unto them: Set your hearts unto all that which I have testified among you this day. Ye shall command your children to obey, and live by this law. For it is not a vain thing for you, because it is your life; through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over the Jordan to possess it.

And the Lord spoke to Moses that selfsame day, saying: Get thee up unto Mount Nebo, which is over against Jericho, in the land of Moab; and behold the land of Canaan which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession. And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people, as Aaron thy brother died in Mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people; because ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah, in the wilderness of Zin, and ye sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel. Yet thou shalt see the land before thee, but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give unto the children of Israel.

And finally, Moses the Melchizedek high priest in Jeshurun, who bestowed the Aaronic priesthood upon Aaron and his seed forever, and blessed Joshua to lead the nation of Israel, by laying on of hands, bestowed his blessings upon the twelve tribes of Israel with these words, just before his death:

-- Let Reuben live, and not die, and let not his men be few.
-- Hear, O Lord, the voice of Judah, and bring him unto his people. Let his hands be sufficient for him; and be Thou an help to him from his enemies.
-- Let Thy Urim and Thummim be with Levi(Lavi), Thy holy one, whom Thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom Thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah(Merhabah), who have devoted themselves to Thy word, and kept Thy covenant. They shall teach Jacob Thy judgements, and Israel Thy law; they shall put incense before Thee, and whole burnt sacrifice upon Thine altar. Bless, O Lord, his substance, and accept the work of his hands. Smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again.
-- Benjamin shall dwell in safety with the Lord, for the Lord loves him; and the Lord shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between His shoulders.
-- May the Lord bless the land of Joseph, with the precious things of heaven, with the dew, with the deep that coucheth beneath, and with the precious fruit brought forth by the sun and by the moon; and with the chief things of ancient mountains, and with the precious things of the everlasting hills. May Joseph be blessed with the precious things of the earth and fulness thereof; and with the goodwill of Him that appeared in the (burning) bush. May the blessings of the deep come upon the head of Joseph, upon the head of him who was separated from his brethren. His glory is like the firstling of his bullock; and his horns are like the horns of the unicorn, with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth; and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and the thousands of Manasseh.

-- Rejoice Zebulun in thy going out; and Issachar in thy tents. They shall call the people unto the mountain, and offer sacrifices in righteousness; for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas and of treasures hid in the sand.

-- Blessed be he that enlargeth Gad. He dwelleth as a lion, and teareth the arm as well as the crown of the head. And he provided the first part for himself, because there, in a portion of the lawgiver, was he seated; and he came to the heads of the people, and executed the justice and judgements of the Lord with Israel.

-- Dan is a lion's whelp, he shall leap from Bashan.

-- O, Naphtali, satisfied with favor, and full with the blessings of the Lord, possess thou the Sea of Chinnereth (Sea of Galilee) as an inheritance.

-- Let Asher be blessed with children. Let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him dip his foot in oil. Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be.

Know this, O Israel for a surety, that there is none like unto the God of Jeshurun (the upright, righteous), who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in His excellency on the sky. The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms; and He shall thrust out the enemy from before thee, and destroy them. Israel then shall dwell in safety alone. The fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of plenty, and heavens shall drop down dew. Happy art thou, O Israel. Who is like unto thee, O people, saved by the Lord, the shield of thy help and the sword of thy excellency! And thine enemies shall be found liars, and diminish before thee; and thou shalt tread upon their high places.

Then Moses, the Melchizedek high priest, after the Order of the Son of God, went up from the plains of Moab unto Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah (a little northwest of Mount Nebo), over against Jericho. Here, the Lord showed him all the surrounding regions, and said unto him: This is the land which I had sworn unto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto their seed. Today I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither. So Moses, the servant of the Lord, died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord. Although it was told that he was buried in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor, no man knew the burial place of Moses.

Moses was 120 years old when he died; his eyes were not dim, nor his natural force abated. And the children of Israel wept and mourned in the plains of Moab for thirty days.

During the lifetime of Moses, two important accomplishments were made, besides the deliverance of Israel from Egyptian bondage; namely, the establishment of two law covenants between the nation of Israel and Jehovah (יהוה;) their God. The first covenant was made in Horeb, in the third month after leaving Egypt, in 1513 B.C., when Moses told the people the words of the Lord, His statutes and judgements; and all the elders answered with one voice, saying: All the words which the Lord hath said will we do. And Moses wrote down all the words of the Lord and built an altar, and twelve pillars at the foot of Mount Sinai; and sprinkled blood at the altar; and read to the children of Israel from the book of the covenant, the continuation of the Book of Remembrance and the Book of Generations, which have been kept since the time of Seth, son of Adam (since 3761 B.C.). And the children of Israel said: All that the Lord hath commanded we will do, and be obedient to His voice. Then Moses took the remainder of the blood of the sacrificed animal and sprinkled it on the people, and said: May this be the testimony of the covenant which you have made with the Lord today concerning all these words. It was the same day when Moses, Aaron, Nadab, Abihu and the seventy elders of Israel went up into Mount Sinai and saw the God of Israel. And when Moses went up into Mount Sinai again, after Israel worshiped the golden calf, the Lord said unto Moses: Behold I make a covenant before all thy people. Observe thou that which I command thee this day. Take heed to thyself, lest you fall into the snares of the inhabitants of the land whither you goest. Ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves (Asherim); and worship none of their gods, nor go a whoring after their illusions, which lead to endless torment and spiritual death. Neither shall ye take daughters unto thy sons, nor make thy sons go a whoring after them and their gods. Ye shall worship no molten gods, for they are an abomination and a snare, which take you captive and destroy you. And ye shall keep all the commandments which I have given you previously; for lo, the Lord, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God. And the Lord said unto Moses: Write thou all the things that I have revealed to thee; and that I have made a covenant with thee and Israel. And Moses was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights, and He wrote upon the tablets the Ten Commandments (Decalogue).

The second covenant was made on the first day of the eleventh month, in the fortieth year (Shebat 1, 1474 B.C.), in the plains of Moab, seventy days prior to Israel's crossing the Jordan River. Here, just before the death of Moses, he spoke to the congregation of Israel, saying: If ye will not observe to abide by the words which are set before you this day, and uphold the covenant which ye make this day, besides the covenant ye made in Horeb (Mount Sinai), which covenants were not made with Abraham, Isaac or Jacob, ye shall be cursed, smitten and destroyed. Diseases, plagues and oppressions shall come upon you; and ye shall serve false gods and become a byword among all nations. Fierce nations shall enslave you; and ye shall eat the flesh of your own children in hunger and despair, and be scattered among all nations. But if Israel is obedient to these two covenants, ye shall be blessed temporally and spiritually.

III. THE THIRD EPOCH: FROM ISAAC TO MOSES (1918 - 1473 B.C.)

Due to the rebellion, transgressions and stiffneckedness of the children of Israel, the Melchizedek Priesthood was taken away from Israel with the death of Moses, and continued to be passed on through his worthy sons; and all the prophets of God were bestowed this Priesthood by the Holy Order, which never ceased to exist nor will cease as long as the earth continues to go around the sun. The Melchizedek Priesthood, which administered the gospel of Jesus Christ, and held the keys to the mysteries of the Kingdom and knowledge of God was replaced by a lesser priesthood which later came to be known as Aaronic Priesthood (or sometimes known as Levitical Priesthood). The Aaronic Priesthood was conferred upon Aaron and his seed by the Lord, under the hand of Moses, to administer the outward ordinances, characterized by rituals and ceremonies. For only in the performance of certain ordinances, the power of godliness is manifest; without the ordinances, and the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness is not manifest unto men in the flesh. And without such ordinances no man can see the face of God and live. It was for these reasons that Moses plainly taught the children of Israel during their wanderings, and sought diligently to sanctify his people that they might behold the face of God. But they were a stiffnecked lot, and could not endure His presence. Therefore, the Lord in His wrath, for His anger was kindled against them, swore that they should not enter into his rest, which rest is the fulness of His glory; and He took Moses out of their midst, and the Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God also.

The Aaronic Priesthood which holds the keys of the ministering angels and the preparatory gospel of repentance, baptism (washing), and remission of sins; along with other statutes, judgements and ordinances, was conferred upon Aaron, by Moses, during a seven-day ceremony, in Horeb, near Mount Sinai, on Nisan (Abib) 1-7, 1512 B.C. The Aaronic Priesthood, however, did not have the authority to confer the gift of the Holy Ghost, as this priesthood was subordinate to the power and authority of the Melchizedek Priesthood.

Thus, the Third Epoch of the Holy Priesthood of God, which began with the birth of Isaac in 1918 B.C., ended with the death of Moses in 1473 B.C.; and the Fourth Epoch begins with the birth of Aaron in 1597 B.C., and ends about the time of John the Baptist and his baptism, on the day of Pentecost, c.33 A.D.

CHAPTER FOUR

The Fourth Epoch: from Aaron to John the Baptist (c.1597 B.C. - c.33 A.D.)

Aaron (Harūn) was born in Egypt, circa 1597 B.C. to Amram (Emram, Emran), son of Kohath, son of Levi (Lavi). Three children were born to Amram and Jochebed; the eldest was Miriam, and Moses (Mūsa) was the youngest of the three. Aaron was the older brother of Moses by three years. Aaron married Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab, and had four sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. However, only two of his sons survived, for Nadab and Abihu died, because they offered strange fire before the Lord, which they were not commanded to do, and the fire of the Lord consumed them.

And, because Moses was not eloquent, and was slow of speech and tongue, the Lord had assigned Aaron to act as Moses' spokesman before Pharaoh and the children of Israel. Toward the end of his forty-year sojourn in Midian, the Lord spoke to Moses from the burning bush, and said: Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. Behold, he shall come forth to meet thee, and when he shall see thee, he will be glad in his heart; and thou shalt speak unto him and put words in his mouth; and I will be with thy mouth and his, and will teach thee what ye shall do. And Aaron shall be thy spokesman unto the people; and he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God. Moses was about eighty and Aaron about eighty-three years old at this time.

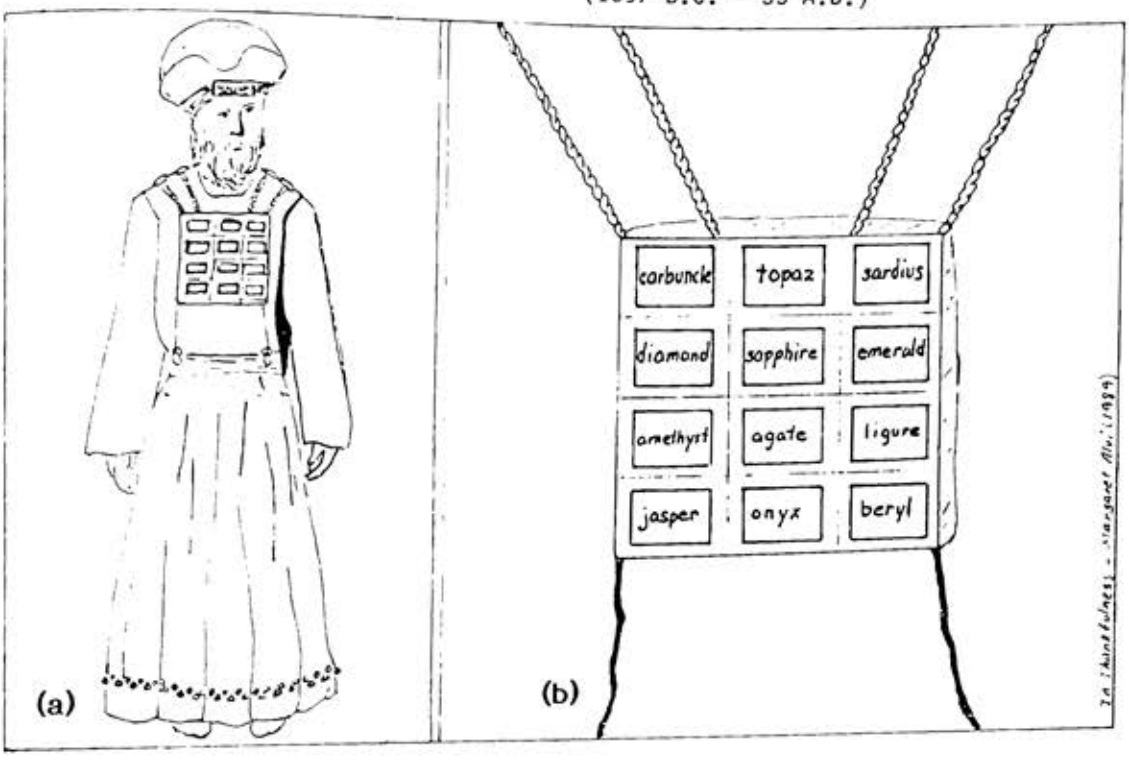
When Aaron was eighty-five years old, the "Aaronic" priesthood was conferred upon him by Moses, during a seven-day ceremony in Horeb, near Mount Sinai. This was the first official declaration of the formalized rituals and ceremonies for the children of Israel, under the authority of the "Aaronic" high priest, who was chosen by God to administer the outward ordinances. These ritualistic and ceremonial aspects of the holy priesthood of God became necessary, for it was only through the performance of certain ordinances, the power of godliness was manifest unto men in the flesh; and without the rituals and ceremonies, and the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness was not manifest to the children of Israel, who were mostly a carnal, sensual and rebellious lot.

After the Lord provided Moses with all the details concerning the building of the tabernacle, He commanded that Aaron and his sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar be consecrated and anointed to minister in the priest's office, saying unto Moses: Take thou Aaron, thy brother, and his sons from among the children of Israel that they may minister unto me; and Aaron shall be dressed in holy garments for glory and beauty. And these are the garments which shall be made for Aaron: an ephod, a girdle of ephod, a robe, a breastplate (breastpiece), an embroidered coat, and a turban (bound cap, or mitre).

The ephod for the Aaronic high priest was an apronlike garment, made of gold, blue thread and wool dyed reddish purple, coccus scarlet material, and fine twisted linen, the work of an embroiderer (cunning work). It consisted of front and back pieces fastened together at the shoulders. The ephod reached a little below the waist; and it was worn by the Aaronic high priest over the blue coat, called the "coat of ephod," which, in turn, was atop the linen robe. The ephod was not worn on all occasions. When it was necessary to inquire of the Lord about a matter of great importance, the high priest wore ephod, and the breastplate (breastpiece) containing Urim and Thummim. And on the Day of Atonement, after presenting the sin offerings, the Aaronic high priest would wash and change garments, taking off his usual pure white garments and putting on his special linen garment of splendor and beauty, including the ephod, the breastplate, and his turban, before offering the burnt offerings. A girdle of ephod, of the same material, was worn upon the ephod, in order to hold it tightly around the waist. On each side of the shoulder pieces of the ephod were two onyx stones, each engraved with the names of six tribes of Israel. From the gold settings of these stones hung the breastpiece (breastplate), by chains of gold having the workmanship of a rope. From the bottom corners of the breastpiece blue strings ran through the gold rings that were fastened to the ephod.

The sacred embroidered pouch worn by the Aaronic high priest over his heart (chest) whenever he entered the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle was called the breastpiece (breastplate). The breastpiece was to serve as a memorial, and was referred to as the breastpiece of judgement; because it contained the Urim and Thummim ("Lights and Perfections"), by means of which the Lord's judgements were revealed to the Aaronic high priest. Like the ephod, the breastpiece was made of the finest materials, gold, blue thread, wool dyed reddish purple, coccus scarlet and fine twisted linen. The same fabrics were used in making the curtain with cherubim, which separated the Holy compartment of the tabernacle from the Most Holy, and the screen for the entrance of the tent.

The fabric for the breastpiece was a cubit in length and a span in width, making a square when folded, and forming a pouch into which the Urim and Thummim were placed. The front of the breastplate (breastpiece) was adorned by twelve precious stones, fitted into sockets of gold and arranged in four rows of three stones each. On each stone the name of one of the tribes of Israel was engraved. The first row consisted of: a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle; the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, a diamond; the third row, a ligure, an agate, an amethyst; and the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. The breastpiece was tightly mounted on the ephod. Two wreathed chains of pure gold were attached to the two gold rings at the upper corners of the breastplate, and were fastened to the two gold settings of the shoulder pieces of the ephod. Two other gold rings in the bottom corners of the breastplate were tied with a blue string to the two gold rings on the forefront of the ephod, a little above the girdle of the ephod.



(Illustration 15)
(a) Aaronic High Priest Dressed in the Holy Garment. (b) Breastpiece (Breastplate)

And upon the hem of Aaron's robe were pomegranates of blue, purple, scarlet, and twined linen; and bells of pure gold. A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, all around the hem of his robe. And a turban (mitre) was placed on Aaron's head, with a plate of pure gold (holy crown), HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD engraved upon it, on a blue lace.

Although Aaron's sons, the underpriests, were to wear ephods, their ephods were made of plain white linen of lesser quality, not embroidered; the shape, however, was similar to that of the high priest's. They were to wear turbans (hats), robes and girdles for glory and beauty; and were to be washed, anointed, consecrated, and sanctified to minister in the priest's office. They were also required to wear linen breeches from the loins to their thighs to cover their nakedness. And the Lord said unto Moses: Take one bullock and two rams without blemish, unleavened bread (cakes) mingled (tempered) with oil, and unleavened wafers smeared (anointed) with oil, of wheat flour; and put them into a basket, and bring it with the bullock and two rams. Thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle, and wash them with water. Then thou shalt put upon Aaron the tunic (undergarment), and the holy garments, the robe, the ephod, skillfully woven girdle of the ephod, the breastpiece (breastplate), the turban (mitre), and the holy crown (gold plate with Holiness Unto the Lord engraved upon it) upon his turban. And take the anointing oil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him. Then thou shalt bring his sons and put on the tunics, the robes, the ephods and bind headdresses on their heads and consecrate them to minister in the priest's office. Then the bullock shall be brought before the tabernacle, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock, and it shall be sacrificed by the door of the tabernacle. The blood of the bullock shall be put upon the horns of the altar with thy fingers, and the remaining blood shall be poured at the bottom of the altar. And thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the innards, the caul (lobe) above the liver, the two kidneys and their fat, and burn them upon the altar. But the flesh of the bullock and his skin, and dung thou shalt burn with fire outside the camp of Israel; for it is a sin offering. Then thou shalt take one of the two rams, and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands upon the head of the ram, and thou shall slay the ram and take his blood and sprinkle it around about upon the altar; and cut the ram into pieces, and wash the innards and its legs (shanks), and burn the head, the pieces and the fat, the entire ram upon the altar. It is a burnt offering unto the Lord, a sweet savor and offering made by fire unto the Lord. Then thou shalt take the other ram (the ram of consecration); and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands upon the head of the ram, and thou shalt kill the ram, and take his blood, and put it upon the tip of their right ear, right thumb, and great toe of their right foot; and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about. And take the blood that is upon the altar and the anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon the garments of Aaron and his sons. Thus Aaron and his sons be sanctified and hallowed. Then thou shalt take the fat, the fat tail (rump), and all the fat that covereth the innards, the caul above the liver, the two kidneys and their fat, and the right shoulder; and out of the basket of unleavened bread (shewbread), one unleavened bread, plus one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer. Then thou shalt put all of these in the hands of Aaron and his sons, and wave them for a wave offering before the Lord. Then thou shall take them from their hands and burn them upon the altar; for they were consecrations for a sweet savor, an offering made by fire unto the Lord. And thou shalt take the breast of the ram of consecration, and wave it for a wave offering before the Lord, and it shall be thy (Moses') part.

And when the children of Israel present a heave offering of the sacrifice of their peace offerings unto the Lord, the breast of the wave offering, and the shoulder of the heave offering of the ram of consecration shall be Aaron's and his sons' by a statute forever.

And the holy garment of Aaron shall be his son's after him, who will be anointed and consecrated after him to replace him as the high priest, and that son shall put them on seven days, when he comes into the tabernacle to be consecrated unto the office of the high priest. And the flesh of the ram of consecration shall be cooked in the holy place; and Aaron and his sons shall eat it with the bread that is in the basket by the door of the tabernacle (the shewbread in the Holy compartment of the tabernacle). They shall eat these things by means of which atonement was made, to consecrate and sanctify them; but no stranger shall eat them, for they are holy. And if any of flesh of consecration or bread remain unto the morning, thou shalt burn the remainder with fire, it shall not be eaten. Thus thou shalt consecrate Aaron and his sons seven days. Every day thou shalt sacrifice a bullock for a sin offering and atonement; and cleanse the altar each day after the atonement. Seven days thou shalt anoint and sanctify the altar and make an atonement for it, for it shall be an altar most holy; and whosoever toucheth the altar must be holy.

Now, upon this altar, thou shalt offer each day two lambs of the first year, one in the morning and one in the evening. And with each lamb a tenth measure of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin (an hin equals about 3.87 quarts) of beaten (olive) oil; and fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering, for a sweet savor, an offering made by fire unto the Lord. This shall be a continuous burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle. And there I will speak unto thee and meet with the children of Israel; and sanctify the tabernacle and the altar, and both Aaron and his sons are to minister unto me in the priest's office. And I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will be their God. And they shall know that I am the Lord their God that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt. I am the Lord their God.

And it came to pass that on the first day of the first month of the second year, Nisan 1, 1512 B.C., the tabernacle was reared up; and Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water, and put upon Aaron the undergarment (tunic), and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon it, and girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and he put Urim and Thummim inside the breastpiece (breastplate) and mounted it on the ephod. Then he put the turban (mitre) upon Aaron's head, and upon the forefront of the turban he put the holy crown, the gold plate with the engraving "Holiness Unto the Lord." Then Moses took the anointing oil and anointed the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified it; and he sprinkled upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all the vessels, and the laver and its foot. Then he poured the anointing oil upon Aaron's head to anoint and sanctify him; and the anointing oil ran down upon Aaron's beard down to the skirts of his garments. From now on he was called Messiah (Meshiah), Christ (Khristos) or the anointed one. Aaron was not only placed over all the Aaronic priesthood, but was divinely declared to be the one from whose line all future Aaronic high priests must come. Aaron himself did not receive the priesthood by inheritance; nor did he take this honor of his own accord; but he was called of God to direct all ritualistic and ceremonial aspects of worship and to supervise the work of thousands of Levites who were engaged in lesser tasks. His priestly functions also included being the mediator between the twelve tribes of Israel and Jehovah (יהוה אלהים); and the teaching of the Word of God to the nation of Israel.

Then Moses brought Aaron's sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, who were dressed in long shirts and girded with girdles and wrap-around turbans (hats), and breeches from the loins to their thighs to cover their nakedness. And Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the bullock, and the bullock was slain for the sin offering. And Moses took the blood and put it upon the horns of the altar, round about with his fingers to purify the altar, and poured the remainder at the bottom of the altar to sanctify it. Then he took all the fat that was upon the innards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys with their fat, and burned it upon the altar. But the bullock's hide, his flesh and dung, he had it burned outside the camp of Israel, as he was commanded by the Lord. Then he brought the ram for the burnt offering; and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon its head, and the ram was killed as a burnt offering for a sweet savor unto the Lord; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about. Then the ram was cut into pieces, and burnt with the head and the fat; and he washed the innards and the legs (shanks) in water, and burnt the entire lamb upon the altar. Then he brought the second ram, the ram of consecration, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon its head, and it was slain; and Moses took some of its blood and put it upon the tip of Aaron's right ear, thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot. Then he brought Aaron's sons, and put the blood upon the tip of their right ear, thumb of their right hand, and great toe of their right foot, and sprinkled some blood upon the altar round about. Then he took the fat, the fat tail (rump), all the fat that was upon the innards, caul above the liver, the two kidneys and their fat, and the right shoulder; and out of the basket of unleavened bread that was before the Lord, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer and placed them on the fat and the right shoulder of the ram of consecration. Then he put all in the hands of Aaron and his sons, and waved them for a wave offering before the Lord. Then he took them from their hands and burnt them on the altar as consecrations for a sweet savor, an offering made by fire unto the Lord. Then Moses took the breast of the ram and waved it for a wave offering; it was Moses' portion, as commanded by the Lord. And he took the left shoulder and waved it, as the heave offering; which was for Aaron and his sons, to be a statute forever, from the children of Israel, as an heave offering, a sacrifice of their peace offering unto the Lord. Then Moses took the anointing oil, and the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon the garments of Aaron and his sons, and sanctified them.

And Moses said unto Aaron and his sons: Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle, and there eat it with the bread that is in the basket. And that which remaineth of the flesh and bread unto the morning, thou shall burn it with fire. It shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle for seven days (Nisan 1 through 7, 1512 B.C.), until the days of your consecration are ended; for you shall be consecrated unto the Lord to minister in the priest's office. Ye shall abide at the door of the tabernacle day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the Lord, that ye die not (spiritually), according to the commandments of the Lord. So Aaron and his sons did all things which the Lord had commanded by the hand of Moses.

On the first day of the seventh month (Tishri/Ethanim), 1512 B.C., there was also to be a holy convocation. Israel was not to do any servile work, for it was a day of blowing trumpets. One bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year, without blemish, were to be offered as burnt offerings for a sweet savor unto the Lord. And their meat (meal) offering was to be flour mingled with oil, three-tenth deal for the bullock; two-tenth deal for the ram; and one-tenth deal for each of the seven lambs. Plus one kid of goat for a sin offering to make an atonement, besides the usual daily burnt and meat offerings, and drink offerings.

And on the eighth day, Nisan 8, 1512 B.C., Moses called Aaron, his sons, and the seventy elders of Israel, and said unto them: Take thee a young calf for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering; and offer them before the Lord. And speak to the children of Israel that they take a kid of goat for a sin offering and a calf and a lamb of the first year without blemish, for a burnt offering; and a bullock and a ram for peace offering, and a meat offering (meal, cereal or flour) to sacrifice before the Lord. For today the glory of the Lord will appear unto you.

Now the children of Israel brought that which was commanded them before the tabernacle, and all the congregation drew near and stood before the Lord. And Aaron went to the altar and offered his sin offering, and his burnt offering, and made an atonement for himself; then he offered the offerings of the people and made an atonement for them. He slew the calf of the sin offering for himself; and the sons of Aaron brought the blood of the slain animal unto him, and he dipped his finger in the blood and put it upon the horns of the altar and poured the remainder at the bottom of the altar. The fat, the kidneys, the caul above the liver, he burnt upon the altar. The flesh, the hide and the dung were burnt outside the camp of Israel. Then he slew the ram of the burnt offering, and Aaron's sons brought the blood, which he sprinkled round about the altar; and they presented to him the burnt offering cut into pieces. The head and the fat he burnt upon the altar, and washed the innards and the legs (shanks) and burnt them also upon the altar, as a burnt offering unto the Lord, a sweet savor, an offering made by fire unto the Lord. Then he brought the people's offering, and took the kid of goat for the sin offering for the children of Israel, and slew it, and offered it as the first. Then he brought the people's calf and a lamb for the burnt offering, and offered them according to the statute; and took the handful of meat (meal) offering and burnt it upon the altar, besides the regular daily burnt sacrifice of the morning. Then Aaron slew the bullock and the ram as a peace offering in behalf of the people; and Aaron's sons presented him the blood of the animals which was sprinkled upon the altar round about. And the fat of the bullock and ram, including the fat tails (rump), fat that covereth the innards, the caul above the liver, the kidneys and their fat he placed on the breasts of the animals. And he burnt all the fat upon the altar, and the breasts and the right shoulders Aaron waved for a wave offering before the Lord, according to the statute. Then Aaron lifted up his hand toward the people and blessed them, and came down from offering the sin offerings, the burnt offerings, and the peace offering. Then Moses and Aaron went inside the tabernacle, and returned together to bless the people; and the glory of the Lord appeared unto all the people, as a fire came from before the Lord and consumed the burnt offering and fat upon the altar. And when the people saw, they shouted, and fell down on their faces.

And Nadab and Abihu, sons of Aaron, took their censers, and put fire therein, and burned incense on it; and offered strange fire before the Lord, which He commanded them not. Thus there came a fire from the Lord and consumed them, and they died before the Lord. And the Lord spoke to Aaron, saying: Do not drink wine nor intoxicating drink, thou nor thy sons, when ye go into the tabernacle, lest ye die. It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations, to distinguish between the holy and the profane (unholy), and between the impure (unclean) and the pure (clean) that ye teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the Lord hath given unto them by the hand of Moses.

After the death of Aaron's two sons, Nadab and Abihu, the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: Speak unto Aaron thy brother that he come not at all times into the Holy place within the vail before the mercy seat (the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle), that he die not; for I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat. But on the annual Day of Atonement, the day of propitiation or covering (erasing) of sins, which was commemorated on the tenth day of the seventh month of the sacred year (Tishri 10, 1512 B.C.), Aaron set aside his regular priestly garb, bathed in water and dressed himself in the holy linen garment. On this day Aaron the high priest was allowed to enter the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle. Every year on this day the Aaronic high priest offered sacrifice in behalf of himself and the tribe of Levi, and for the twelve non-priestly tribes of Israel, for the sins of the past year. It was also a time for cleansing the tabernacle from the polluting effects of sin; and a time of holy convocation and fasting. People were to afflict their souls and observe sabbath, and perform no regular labors.

On the Day of Atonement, the Aaronic high priest sacrificed a young bull as a sin offering for himself, his household, and the entire tribe of Levi. Then he took his censer (incense holder) and put burning wood (coals) from the altar of burnt offering, and burned perfumed incense on it, and entered the Most Holy, on the other side of the curtain with the cherubim which separated the Holy from the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle. The incense was burned near the Ark of the Covenant, the cloud of the burning incense overspreading the mercy seat. Then, Aaron returned from the Most Holy, and took some of the bull's blood, and entered again the Most Holy, and sprinkled around some blood with his finger, seven times in front of the mercy seat eastward. This completed the atonement for himself, his household and the tribe of Levi. Now, two male kids of goat, that were twins or exactly alike and unblemished were obtained from the assembly of the children of Israel. In order to determine which of the two goats shall be sacrificed unto the Lord, lots were drawn by the Aaronic high priest. Then the goat upon which the lot fell was sacrificed as the sin offering in behalf of all Israel; the other goat, the "goat for Azazel" or the "scapegoat," was to be released in the wilderness, to bear the sins of the sons of Israel.

The Aaronic high priest took the blood of the goat which had been killed as a sin offering for all Israel, to the Most Holy, and made an atonement for the twelve non-priestly tribes of Israel, in the same manner as with bull's blood. Then the high priest took some of the bull's blood and the goat's blood, and made atonement for the altar of the burnt offering, outside the tabernacle, and spattered some of the blood upon the horns of the altar with his finger, to sanctify it from the uncleanliness of the sons of Israel. Then the Aaronic high priest laid his hands upon the head of the goat for Azazel, and confessed all the sins, transgressions, iniquities and errors committed by all Israel; and the goat was sent away into the wilderness by a "ready man." Thus the goat for Azazel carried off the people's sins of the past year, disappearing into the wilderness. The man who led the goat away had to wash his garments and bathe his flesh in water before reentering the camp. (In later times, when the temple of Herod was rebuilt, the high priest cast lots over the two goats by drawing from a basket two lots made of boxwood or gold, one in each hand, and placing on the heads of the goats, one lot marked "for Jehovah [יהוה], and the other "for Azazel." The rabbis of the time of Christ Jesus made certain that the goat for Azazel died by having it pushed over a rocky cliff in the wilderness. A similar ordinance was prescribed for cleansing an Israelite or his entire household who had been healed of leprosy. In this case, a living bird was dipped in the blood of a bird which had been killed. The living bird, however, was permitted to fly away to the unknown.)

Then Aaron came into the tabernacle, stripped off the holy garment of linen, bathed, and put on his usual attire, and rendered his and the people's burnt offerings by slaying two rams, to make atonement; and made the fat of the sin offering smoke upon the altar. (Jehovah God always claimed the fat of a sacrifice for Himself, and Israelites were prohibited from eating it.) The remains of the carcasses of the bull and the goat of sin offering were taken from the court of the tabernacle to a place outside the camp, where they were burned. The one doing the burning had to wash his garments and bathe his flesh in water, after which he was allowed to return to the camp.

And the Lord commanded Moses, saying: Each year, on the tenth day of the seventh month (Tishri/Ethanim 10, 1512 B.C.), ye shall have a holy convocation, afflict your souls and shall perform no servile labors. But ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the Lord for a sweet savor; one bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year, which shall be without blemish. And their meat (meal) offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three-tenth deal for the bullock; two-tenth deal for the ram; and one-tenth deal for each of the seven lambs.

And on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (Tishri/Ethanim 15, 1512 B.C.), ye shall have another holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work, and keep a feast unto the Lord seven days (festival of booths or ingathering or tabernacles). And ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord; thirteen young bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish. And their meat (meal) offering shall be of flour mingled with oil; three-tenth deal for each of the thirteen bullocks, two-tenth deal for each ram, and one-tenth deal for each of the fourteen lambs, plus one kid of goat for sin offering, besides the usual daily burnt offerings, meat (meal) offerings and drink offerings. On the second day of the feast, the 16th of the month, ye shall offer twelve young bullocks, two rams and fourteen lambs, and their meat (meal) offerings, and drink offerings, plus a kid of goat for the sin offering, besides the daily morning and evening burnt offerings, their meat and drink offerings.

On the third day, the 17th of the month, ye shall offer eleven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs, with their meat (meal) and drink offerings, according to the statutes, plus a kid of goat for the sin offering, besides the usual daily burnt, meat and drink offerings. In this manner on the seventh day, the 21st of the month, ye shall offer seven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs, with their meat (meal) and drink offerings, according to the statutes, and a kid of goat for the sin offering, besides the usual daily burnt offerings, meat (meal) and drink offerings. And on the eighth day, the 22nd of the month, ye shall have a solemn assembly, and do no servile work; but ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord, one bullock, one ram, seven lambs of the first year without blemish, and their meat (meal) and drink offerings according to their numbers; and one kid of goat for a sin offering, besides the usual daily burnt, meal and drink offerings. These things shall ye do unto the Lord.

Jehovah God instituted an arrangement to cover or erase the consequences of man's sins, transgressions, iniquities, and ways of error, by means of offering animal sacrifices, in order to make atonement; to become "at one" with the Lord. But the animal sacrifices alone could not completely atone for human sins, without righteous actions and thoughts. From the earliest times men have presented offerings to God. Adam's oldest son Cain presented the firstfruits of the ground, and his younger son Abel the firstlings of his flock, although the reasons for offering the sacrifices were different. The family of Noah, after coming out of the Ark, offered thanksgiving sacrifice to the Lord, which was restful, soothing and comforting; after which the Lord made the "rainbow covenant" with Noah and his offspring. Abraham offered up his son Isaac to the Lord at His direction; although the Lord provided a ram for a substitute (it may well be said that this act of Abraham foreshadowed the Heavenly Father's offering his Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ, nearly nineteen centuries later).

Various statutes and ordinances given to the children of Israel by the Lord God of Israel concerning animal sacrifices and offerings included: burnt offerings, communion or peace offerings, thanksgiving offerings, sin offerings, guilt offerings, meat (meal) offerings, drink offerings, wave offerings, and heave offerings.

The entire burnt offerings were presented to the Lord; and no part of the animal was retained by the worshiper. The burnt offerings usually constituted an appeal to the Lord to accept the sin offering which sometimes accompanied them. Every day a bullock for a sin offering was offered at the altar; and one lamb was offered in the morning and one lamb in the evening; with each lamb a tenth deal of flour mingled with fourth part of an hin of beaten oil as a meat (meal or grain) offering, and fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering. It was called the burnt offering because it was sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord. The fire of the altar was to burn continuously, it was never to be put out. The priests were to burn wood in the altar every morning, and burn all the fat from daily offerings. The Aaronic priest was to put on his linen garment and his linen breeches and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed with the burnt offering on the altar, and put them beside the altar. Then he was to take off these garments and put on other garments to carry forth the ashes outside the camp unto a clean place.

The burnt offerings were offered on several occasions, including: first day of the lunar month; Passover and seven-day festival of unfermented bread; Day of Atonement; festival of firstfruits (Pentecost); each day of the festival of booths, or ingathering, or tabernacles; during communion (peace) offerings and certain guilt and sin offerings; during purifications and making vows; at consecration ceremonies of priesthood; during installation of Levites into various offices. Usually a bullock, a lamb, a ram, a male goat, turtledove or male pigeon was offered by the worshiper to God. The offerer laid his hands on the animal's head, to acknowledge that it was done in his behalf. The animal was then slaughtered; the blood was sprinkled round about upon the altar of the burnt offering, the animal was skinned and cut up into parts, its intestines and legs (shanks) were washed; the head and other body parts were all put on the altar, but no offal was burnt on the altar. The officiating priest received the skin. If it was a bird, the crop and feathers were removed, and the head and body were burned on the altar.

The communion or peace offerings denoted peace with God. Such offerings were made during the making of covenants, festival seasons, commencement of lunar month, and other occasions, to gain approval of God. Communion offerings were also made in times of uncertainty, misfortune, or other reasons to entreat and supplicate with God. Both male and female cattle, sheep and goats were acceptable; but no birds were acceptable, since they were not deemed sufficient to constitute a sacrificial meal. The offerer laid his hand on the animal's head, and the animal was slaughtered. The Aaronic priest sprinkled its blood round about upon the altar of burnt offering. The fat, including the fat tail, was burnt; the breast went to the priests on duty, the right leg to the officiating priest. The worshiper and his household partook in the courtyard of the tabernacle, where booths were set up around the inside of the courtyard (in later times, in the temple, dining rooms were provided). Therefore the priests, the worshipers, and Jehovah God were as if together at the meal, signifying peaceful communion. The person partaking the meal while in a state of any uncleanness proscribed in the law; or who ate the flesh after it had been kept beyond the designated time, was to be cut off from his people, for he had defiled and desecrated the meal and showed disrespect for the sacred things.

Another part of the communion or peace offerings was the thanksgiving offering. In such offerings God was praised for His provisions and blessings upon the offerer. The worshiper celebrated the occasion by eating flesh and both leavened and unleavened bread. But no leavened bread, or any sugary syrups, including honey, that may ferment, were offered at the altar of burnt offering.

The sin offerings were made by Israel for their sins through ignorance against any of the commandments of the Lord, or sins committed due to weakness of the imperfect flesh; thus having contracted guilt, a consequence of sin. If the high priest committed a sin, according to the sin of the people, then he was to bring for his sin, a young bullock without blemish unto the Lord. The bullock was brought to the door of the tabernacle, and the high priest laid his hand on the bull's head; the bullock was slaughtered, and its blood taken into the Holy compartment of the tabernacle, and sprinkled before the curtain which separated the Holy from the Most Holy; some of the blood was sprinkled upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense; the remainder was poured at the base of the altar of burnt offering, in the courtyard. The fat of the animal was burned on the altar of burnt offering; and the carcass, including the skin, was burned in a clean place outside the city, where the ashes from the altar were also put.

For the sin of the entire assembly, committed out of ignorance by the elders, the leaders of the assembly, the congregation brought a bullock, and the elders laid their hands on the bull's head; and one of them slaughtered it. The remaining procedure was the same as for the sin of the high priest. Sometimes, due to an error in judgement or in application of the law, or in matters of national policy, a sin of the high priest brought guilt upon the entire assembly. Therefore, in cases of sin of the high priest and of the entire assembly, the same procedure was followed as described previously. The blood of the bull was taken into the Holy compartment, and was sprinkled before the curtain which separated the Holy from the Most Holy. No priest could eat any portion of the offerings from which blood was taken into the Holy, because the offering was for sins of the entire assembly and the priests. Only on the Atonement Day the Aaronic high priest took the blood of the sin offerings into the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle, where the Ark of the Covenant was kept.

In cases of sin of a chieftain, a male goat, instead of a bull, was used. But the blood was not taken into the Holy compartment; it was put on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, the remainder was poured at the base. The fat of the goat was made to smoke on the altar, and the priests occasionally received a portion to eat, as in other sin offerings made by individuals. The vessels in which the meat was boiled was to be thoroughly scoured, or broken if earthenware; so that none of the holy things be desecrated, should any of the sacrifice cling to it.

The sin offerings for individuals required a female kid of goat or a female lamb. The remaining procedure was the same as for the sin of a chieftain. For the sins of omission, in which a person committed an error and did not obey all of God's commandments, or sins committed out of ignorance, a female goat was required for the sin offering. And the priest made an atonement for the person who sinned ignorantly before the Lord, and he was relieved of the sin and was forgiven. But the person that did sin presumptuously, whether he be born among the children of Israel or a stranger; that person was to be cut off from among the congregation.

The guilt offerings were made by the wrongdoer to get relief from the natural consequences of sins, transgressions, iniquities and ways of error. Occasions for guilt offerings included: a witness to a matter who failed to report or testify under oath; who had unwittingly become unclean by reason of a dead body or an unclean person; who rashly made an oath which he was unable to fulfill; who unwittingly appropriated grain set aside for tithe, and used it for himself or his household; or who sinned unintentionally against holy things of the Lord, or profaned sanctified things, and such. Although guilt offerings varied according to one's financial circumstances, a compensation plus one-fifth was to be given to the sanctuary (tabernacle); and a ram without blemish was presented as a guilt offering; the Aaronic priest, then, made an atonement for him, and the wrongdoer was relieved of guilt. If a person deceived his associate by taking valuables committed to his care, robbery, defrauding, keeping something found, lying or swearing falsely, first he was to confess his wrongdoing; then he was to make full compensation plus one-fifth to the injured person. If the wronged person had died, the nearest male relative received the compensation. If there was no near relative, the priest received it. Then the wrongdoer was to offer a ram for his guilt offering.

The meat (meal or grain) offerings were made along with burnt offerings, communion, peace or thanksgiving offerings, sin offerings, and with the firstfruits; at other times, independently; as it was a joyful offering of one in good standing with God. The meat offerings were often accompanied by oil and frankincense. But if the offering was made as a sin or guilt offering, no oil or frankincense was included. The meat (meal) offerings were in the form of fine flour or ring-shaped cakes or wafers, griddle-cooked or cooked in a deep-fat kettle, or roasted grain. Some of it was put on the altar of burnt offering, some was eaten by the priests; and in communion or peace offerings, the worshiper partook. None of the meat (meal or grain) offerings presented on the altar could contain leaven, or any sugary syrups, including honey, that may ferment.

The drink offerings were presented along with most of the other offerings, especially after the Israelites settled in the Promised Land. This consisted of wine, intoxicating liquor, which was poured on the altar.

The wave offering, the sacrifice presented by the worshiper, was waved by the Aaronic priest. The priest usually put his hands under the hands of the worshiper holding the sacrifice, and waved them to and fro; or the priest held the sacrifice in his own hands and waved it. Moses, who was the Melchizedek high priest after the Order of the Son of God, also did this for Aaron and his sons when consecrating them to the priesthood. Moses took out of the basket of unleavened bread which was in the Holy compartment of the tabernacle, one unleavened cake, a cake of oiled bread, one wafer, and put them upon the fat and the right shoulder of the ram of consecration which was offered; and put all upon Aaron's hands, and upon the hands of his sons, and waved them for a wave offering before the Lord. Then Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar of burnt offering. And Moses took the breast of the ram of consecration, and waved it for a wave offering, and this portion belonged to Moses, according to the commandment of the Lord. Sometimes a sheaf, a bundle of grain or straw, usually stalks and ears of wheat, barley or other grain, bound together as a cluster of arrows filling a quiver, were presented as a wave offering. The firstfruits of the barley harvest, for instance, on Nisan 16, was a wave offering, carried out by the Aaronic high priest. (It was on this date, Nisan 16, 33 A.D., that Christ Jesus was resurrected as "the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep in spiritual death.") On the day of Pentecost, two leavened loaves of the firstfruits of wheat were waved. (On this day Jesus, the Melchizedek high priest after the Order of the Son of God, was able to present to the Heavenly Father, His first spiritual children of the Christian congregation, taken from among the sinful mankind, and anointed by the pouring out of the Holy Spirit.)

The heave offerings, also known as the sacred portion ("terumah"), was that part of the sacrificial offering which was lifted up or heaved off as the portion belonging to the priests. After Israel conquered all the Promised Land, it became customary that when a person offered a sacrifice, the priest's servant came with a flesh-hook of three prongs in his hand; and he struck it into the pan, kettle, caldron, or pot, in which the sacrificial flesh (meat) was being boiled; and all that the flesh-hook brought up, became the portion belonging to the Aaronic priest. The heave offerings also included the "contribution" of things given to the sanctuary (tabernacle); which, with the exception of that which was sanctified on the altar of burnt offering, also went to Aaronic priests for their sustenance.

The qualifications for the Aaronic priests and the high priests were laid down by the Lord God of Israel. To be a priest, one had to be physically sound and of normal appearance. Those with certain blemishes or deformities could not approach the altar of burnt offerings, nor could they enter the Holy or the Most Holy compartments of the tabernacle. Such persons of the tribe of Levi (Lavi) were entitled to receive support from the tithes and could partake of the "holy" things provided as food for the Aaronic priesthood. The dignity, seriousness and responsibility of the Aaronic high priest is manifest in the fact that any sin on his part could bring guilt upon the entire congregation. Only the high priest could enter the Most Holy, and only one day a year, on the Day of Atonement. When he entered inside the tabernacle that day, no other priest was allowed with him. The high priest atoned for himself, his household, the tribe of Levi (Lavi), and the twelve non-priestly tribes of Israel. On special occasions, he intervened before the Lord in behalf of the people, when the Lord's anger was kindled against them. Whenever questions of national importance arose, the high priest approached the Lord with Urim and Thummim ("Lights and Perfections"). He also officiated at the slaughter and burning of the entirely red cow, the ashes of which were used in the "water for cleansing." The Aaronic high priest was allowed to take part in any priestly duty or ceremony, according to his wishes and desires. The sanctuary (tabernacle), its services and treasury were under the supervision of the high priest. There was also a chief assistant priest who assisted the high priest. (In later times this assistant was called the "Sagan," who officiated for the Aaronic high priest if for some reason the high priest was incapacitated.) Eleazar, son of Aaron, was responsible for the supply of oil for burning the lamps, the sweet incense, daily meat (cereal) offerings, the anointing oil, and the oversight of all the tabernacle and its vessels. The Aaronic high priest was the leader in the religious instruction of the nation of Israel. He and the secular rulers (Joshua, the judges, and later the king) were the high courts of the nation. Later on, when the great Sanhedrin, the supreme council and the tribunal of the Jews, consisting of seventy-one members, having religious, civil, and criminal jurisdiction, was formed; the Aaronic high priest usually presided over the body. When the children of Israel crossed over the Jordan River, Eleazar the high priest, son of Aaron, participated with Joshua in dividing the land among the tribes of Israel.

The service of the Levites at the sanctuary, including the tabernacle, began at the age of twenty-five (later reduced to twenty years in King David's time), and for the Kohathites was from thirty to fifty years. Retirement age for the non-priestly Levites, from the required (obligatory) service at the sanctuary, was fifty years; but there was no retirement age for the Aaronic priests.

The Lord spoke of the tribe of Levi (Lavi) as "mine," and the tribe was not given a block of land as an inheritance, but they were "scattered in Israel," receiving forty-eight cities in which to live with their families and cattle. The Levites were deprived of the tribal inheritance of land, because the Lord said: I am your share and your inheritance in the midst of the sons of Israel. And, behold, I have given the children of Levi (Lavi) all the tenth (tithe) in Israel for an inheritance. The Levites did the assigned work of their ministry, and maintained their houses and the pasture grounds of the cities allotted to them. They also cared for other land set apart by the sons of Israel for sanctuary use. Of the tithes or tenth the Levites received from the twelve non-priestly tribes of Israel, in turn, they gave one-tenth of the very best they received to the Aaronic priesthood. The Aaronic priesthood thus received one percent of the national produce, enabling them to devote all their time to assigned service of God. Of the forty-eight cities given to the tribe of Levi (Lavi) by the nation of Israel, the other twelve tribes, thirteen of these cities belonged to the Kohathites, the priests of Aaron's family. The tribes of Judah and Simeon gave nine cities, and four were given by the tribe of Benjamin. These thirteen cities were: Hebron, Libnah, Jattir, Eshtemoa, Holon (Hilen), Debir, Ain (Ashan), Juttah, Beth-shemesh (Beth-shamus), Gibeon, Geba, Anathoth, and Almon (Alemoth). (Hebron is one of the oldest cities in the world continuously inhabited unto this day. Its ancient name was "Kiriath-arba," located about nineteen miles S-SW of Jerusalem, and lies approximately 3,000 feet above sea level.

It was here, at Hebron, where Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob spent part of their lives, and were buried in the Cave of Machpelah, along with Sarah, Rebekah, and Leah. Today an Islamic mosque guards the Cave of Machpelah. The city and its neighboring hills have long been famous for their vineyards, pomegranates, figs, olives, apricots, apples, and nuts. Blessed with numerous springs and wells, Hebron is surrounded by miles of greenery.)

Besides the regular tithes, the Aaronic Priesthood also received redemption money for a firstborn male child or beast. In case of a firstborn bull, male lamb or goat, they received flesh for food; the redemption money for men and things holy and sanctified unto the Lord; and certain parts of the offerings brought by the people; and the shewbread became the priest's. The Aaronic priests also received the best of the first ripe fruits of grain, wine and oil. Except for certain specified portions that only the priests could eat, their entire household, including the slaves, also lawfully partook. The priests also shared in the third-year tithes for the Levites and the poor; as well as in the booty taken in war.

The Aaronic priests were required to maintain personal fleshly cleanliness and high moral standards. When entering the tabernacle and before presenting an offering at the altar, they were to wash their hands and feet at the laver in the courtyard, lest they incur the error, and die. They were also commanded not to partake of wine, intoxicating liquor or substance, when serving at the sanctuary, after the death of Nadab and Abihu, sons of Aaron; the Lord made an everlasting ordinance concerning this matter. In the performance of official duties, the Aaronic priests served barefoot, for the sanctuary was holy ground. They wore linen drawers extending from hips to the thighs for moral propriety, in order to cover the naked flesh. Over this they wore a fine linen robe tied about the body by a linen sash. Their headgears were wrapped upon them; and were somewhat different than that of the high priest, which was sewn into a wrap-around form and set upon the high priest's head. The Aaronic priests were commanded not to shave their heads, or the extremities of their beards, nor to make cuttings in themselves (as in tattooing and such). While the high priest could marry only a virgin, the Aaronic priests could marry a widow, but not a divorced woman, nor a whore, prostitute, or profane female. The priests and Levites were exempt from the military service, although some Levites served as blowers of trumpets and singers before the army.

The duties of Aaronic priests at the sanctuary included: the slaughtering of sacrificial animal or bird brought by the people; keeping the altar fire burning; accepting the offering; burning incense on the golden altar in the Holy compartment of the tabernacle; trimming and maintaining the lamps (keeping them supplied with oil). Their servants helped the priests in cutting up the sacrificial animals and cooking the meat. The Aaronic priests also took care of morning and evening burnt offerings, and all other sacrifices regularly made at the sanctuary; except those that were solely the responsibility of the high priest. And most importantly, according to the commandment of the Lord, "They (Levites) shall put my name upon the children of Israel, and I will bless them," the Levites blessed the people at the solemn assemblies in this manner, saying:

The Lord bless thee, and keep thee;
The Lord make His face shine upon thee,
and be generous unto thee;
The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

The Aaronic priests were primarily the ones who were learned and privileged to explain God's law, and they played a major role in Israel's judiciary. After the sons of Israel settled in the Promised Land, in the cities allotted to the priests, Aaronic priests assisted the secular judges in deciding difficult cases; and all judgements rendered by them were to be respected; deliberate disrespect or disobedience brought the death penalty.

The Aaronic priests were also the teachers of the Law (Torah) to the people, reading and explaining it to those who came to the sanctuary to worship. And when not on assigned duty, they taught in other parts of the land. (As in later times, Ezra the scribe and Aaronic priest, upon returning to Jerusalem from Babylon, assisted by other Aaronic priests and Levites, gathered the people and spent hours reading and explaining the Law to them.) The Aaronic priest was to judge between the clean and the unclean in cases of leprosy; and the priestly administration served as a safeguard to the nation of Israel in physical and moral cleanliness. The priest also officiated in the cleansing of those who had been defiled by a dead body, morbid discharge, and so forth.

The Aaronic priesthood was conferred only upon men of the tribe of Levi (Lavi); and within the three branches of the tribe, namely: Kohathites, Gershonites and Merarites, the three sons of Levi, son of Jacob, only Aaron (who was a Kohathite) and his sons could hold the office of the priest; and only from the firstborn of Aaron's sons was selected the high priest, also known as the president of the priests. The only exceptions were the death, or unworthiness of the firstborn son. The Aaronic priests were given the authority to offer sacrifices for the people, burn incense on the altar, and teach the laws and commandments of the Lord. The Levites, other than the priests, were employed as housekeepers of the tabernacle, keeping oil in the lamps, transporting the Ark of the Covenant, taking down and setting up the tabernacle during their journeys, and assisting the priests in related tasks. The Aaronic priesthood functioned only within the tribe of Levi (Lavi), and it was conferred upon an individual, based on his lineage and worthiness. (The Melchizedek priesthood, after the Order of the Son of God, however, had no lineal requirements; and was conferred upon the individual based solely on his worthiness. The Aaronic priesthood held the keys of the ministry of angels, and later, the keys of the preparatory gospel of repentance, baptism, and remission of sins; but did not have the authority to confer the gift of the Holy Ghost. Only the Melchizedek priest, who held the keys of the mysteries of the Kingdom and the knowledge of God could bestow upon an individual the gift of the Holy Ghost. The lineal requirements of the Aaronic priesthood were later removed by the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, more than fifteen hundred years later.) The "Aaronic" Priesthood was conferred upon Aaron by the Lord God of Israel, under the hand of Moses, to administer the outward ordinances, characterized by rituals and ceremonies. For without such ordinances, and the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness is not manifest unto men in the flesh. But no man taketh this honor upon himself of his own accord, for he must be called of God, as was Aaron. (The Aaronic priesthood continued until the time of John the Baptist, and ended on the day of Pentecost 33 A.D. John was baptized while he was yet in his childhood, and was ordained by the angel of God at the time he was eight days old, to prepare the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus, who once again restored the Melchizedek priesthood on earth for a time.)

And it came to pass that the Lord spoke unto Moses in Mosera, near Mount Hor, by the border of the land of Edom, saying: Aaron shall be gathered unto his people; for he shall not enter into the land which I have given to the children of Israel, because ye did not sanctify me at the waters of Meribah (Merhabah), when the children of Israel rebelled against me. Take Aaron and his son Eleazar, and bring them into Mount Hor; and strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar, then Aaron shall be gathered unto his people and die there. And Moses did as the Lord commanded him. Moses, Aaron and Eleazar went up into Mount Hor in the sight of the congregation. Then Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon his son Eleazar; and Aaron died there on top of the mount, on the first day of the fifth month, Ab 1, 1474 B.C., at the age of 123 years. And Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount. And when the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, all the house of Israel mourned for thirty days. About six months later, Israel arrived at the plains of Moab, where Moses on Shebat 1, 1474 B.C. explained the law and established another covenant with the nation of Israel, besides the covenant which was made in Horeb (Mount Sinai). He exhorted and explained all the commandments, statutes, judgements, laws and ordinances which he himself wrote by the power and divine guidance of the Lord. He explained to Israel the sacrifices that would be necessary during and after the change from a nomadic camp life of nearly forty years to a settled life in their own land. If Israel was obedient they would be blessed temporally and spiritually; if disobedient, they would be cursed, smitten, and destroyed; diseases, plagues, and oppressions would come upon them; they would serve false gods and become a byword among all nations; fierce nations would enslave them; they would eat their own children, and be scattered among all nations; their Promised Land would become as brimstone and salt. And in the twelfth month of the fortieth year, Adar, 1474 B.C., Moses announced to his people that according to the Lord's appointment, Joshua would succeed him. Joshua was then blessed and commissioned to be the new (secular) leader of Israel, and was exhorted to be courageous. Finally after reciting a song, and blessing the twelve tribes of Israel, Moses went into Mount Nebo, according to the Lord's command, to view the Promised Land, and to die there. Moses was 120 years old when he was translated. His eye had not grown dim, and his vital strength had not fled, however, when he died. He was buried by the angels of God at a place not, then, known to man.

(1)

(2)

(1) Summit of Mount Hor (dying place of Aaron). (2) Tomb of Aaron (now an Islamic Shrine).

After the death of Moses, who died about eight months after Aaron, the Lord spoke unto Joshua, son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim, saying: Moses my servant is dead. Now therefore arise, go over the Jordan, thou and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them. Every place that the sole of your feet shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses; from the wilderness of Lebanon even unto the great river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the Great Sea (Mediterranean Sea) toward the going down of the sun, shall be your border. There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life. As I was with Moses, so will I be with thee. I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. Only be thou strong and of a good courage; for unto this people shalt thou divide the land for an inheritance; that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee; turn not to the right hand or to the left; that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest. This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth. Thou shalt meditate thereon day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein. Then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and have good success. Have I not commanded thee to be strong and of a good courage? Be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord thy God is with thee, withersoever thou goest.

Then Joshua commanded the heads of the families and the tribes, saying: Pass through the encampment (host), and command the people to prepare their victuals (food), for after three days ye shall pass over the Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the Lord your God giveth you to possess it. And to the tribe of Reuben and Gad, and half tribe of Manasseh, Joshua spoke, saying: Remember the word which Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying: The Lord your God hath given you rest, and this land. Your wives and children, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side of the Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren armed, all the mighty men of valor, and help them; until the Lord hath given your brethren rest, as He hath given you; and they have also possessed the land of their inheritance. Then ye shall return unto the land of your possession which Moses, the Lord's servant, gave you on this side of the Jordan, to enjoy it. And they answered Joshua, saying: All that thou commandest we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go. Accordingly, as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee. Only the Lord thy God be with thee, as He was with Moses. Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy orders, and hearkens not unto all thy words, he shall be put to death. Only be strong and courageous.

And Joshua sent from Shittim two spies to search out Jericho and the surrounding land; and the spies lodged at the house of Rahab, who was known as an harlot (prostitute); but she was in truth a woman of faith in the Lord. It was told the king of Jericho that there came that night men of the children of Israel to spy the country; and the king of Jericho sent his men unto Rahab's house, saying: Bring forth the men that are come to thee and have entered into thine house, for they may have come to spy the country. But the woman brought the men up to the roof of her house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which were laid upon the roof to dry; and said to the messengers of the king: There came men unto me, but I know not from which place they were. And it came to pass about the time of shutting the gate, when it was dark, the men went out. Where the men went I know not. Pursue after them quickly, for ye shall overtake them! And the king's men pursued after them to the Jordan, unto the fords. And as soon as the men who pursued after them left the city, the gates of the city were closed shut. Then the woman went up to the roof, and said unto the men: I know that the Lord hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and all the inhabitants of the land melt away with fear because of you. For the people have heard how the Lord dried up the water of the Red Sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side of the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed. And as soon as all of us heard these things, our hearts did melt, neither did there remain any more courage in any man. For the Lord your God, He is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath. Now, therefore, I pray you, swear unto me by the Lord, since I have shown you kindness, that ye will also show kindness unto my father's house, and give me a true token. And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brothers and sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

And the two men of Israel answered her, saying: Our life for yours, if ye utter not our business. And it shall be, when the Lord hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee. Then she let them down by a rope through the window, for her house was upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall. And she said unto them, get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers return. Afterward may ye go your way. And the men said unto her: We will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear. Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt tie this rope of scarlet thread in the window thou didst let us down by; and thou shalt gather thy father, and thy mother, and thy brothers and sisters unto thy house. And it shall be that whosoever shall come out of the doors of thy house into the street, shall be spared. And they departed, and the woman tied the scarlet rope in the window.

So the men remained three days in the nearby mountains, and returned to Joshua and told him all things that befell them, and said: Truly the Lord hath delivered into our hands all the land; for even all the inhabitants of the country do melt away with fear because of us.

After three days, the heads of the families and the tribes of Israel went through the encampment (host), saying: When ye see the priests and Levites bearing the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord your God, ye shall remove from your place, and march behind it. Keep a distance of about two thousand cubits between you and the Ark, come not near it. The Ark of the Covenant shall guide the way, for ye have not passed this way before. And Joshua said unto the people: Sanctify yourselves (make yourselves clean and holy, by ritual washings and proper behavior), for tomorrow the Lord will do wonders among you. And he said unto the priests, saying: Take up the Ark of the Covenant, and pass over before the people. So Joshua rose up early next morning, and the entire congregation removed from Shittim, and followed the Levites who carried the Ark, and encamped at the eastern side of the Jordan, before crossing over.

And the Lord said unto Joshua: This day I will begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee. Thou shalt command the priests that bear the Ark of the Covenant, saying: When ye are come to the brink of the waters of the Jordan, ye shall stand still. Then Joshua said unto the children of Israel: Come hither and hear the words of the Lord your God. Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and He will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Hivites, the Perizzites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites. Behold the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into the Jordan. Now therefore take yourselves twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, one man out of every tribe. And it shall come to pass, that as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the Ark of the Lord shall rest in the waters of the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap. And it came to pass that as soon as the Aaronic priests who carried the Ark dipped their feet into the waters of the Jordan River (for the Jordan overfloweth all its banks during the time of harvest), the waters which came down from above, toward the Salt Sea (Dead Sea), were cut off. And the waters stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, which was near Zaretan. And while the priests who bore the Ark stood firm on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan, all the Israelites crossed over to the other side, right against the fortified city of Jericho. And when all the people crossed over the Jordan, the Lord spoke unto Joshua, saying: Take twelve men, one out of every tribe, and command them to pick twelve stones from the midst of the Jordan, where the priest's feet stood firm; and ye shall carry them over to your first resting place (encampment), this night, on the west side of the Jordan. And Joshua called the twelve men, one from each tribe; and they did as Joshua commanded them. They picked twelve stones out of the midst of the Jordan, and carried them over to their encampment, and laid them down there. Then Joshua also set up twelve stones in the midst of the Jordan, where the feet of the priests who carried the Ark stood. The priests that bore the Ark of the Covenant remained in the midst of the river bed until every one had crossed over, and Joshua finished speaking to the people. Then Joshua spoke to the priests that bore the Ark, saying: Come ye up out of the Jordan. And as soon as the priests came out of the midst of the Jordan, and the soles of their feet touched the dry land on the west side, the water of the Jordan returned and overflowed its bank, as before. And the children of Reuben, and Gad, and half tribe of Manasseh, about forty thousand men armed with weapons of war, marched before the children of Israel unto the plains of Jericho.

It was the tenth day of the first month (Nisan 10, 1473 B.C.) that all Israel crossed over the Jordan, after nearly forty years of wanderings in the wilderness; and encamped in Gilgal, the eastern border of Jericho. And the twelve stones that were carried by the twelve men, were pitched by Joshua in Gilgal. And he spoke unto the children of Israel, saying: When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, what mean these stones? Then ye shall let your children know that Israel crossed over the Jordan on dry land; for the Lord your God dried up the waters of the Jordan from before you, until you had crossed over; as the Lord your God did to the Red Sea, which He dried up from before us, until we were gone over; that the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord is mighty, that ye may love and obey the Lord your God forever. On this day, Nisan 10, the Lord truly magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

And when all the kings of the Amorites on the west side of the Jordan, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the Great Sea (Mediterranean Sea), the Philistines, heard that the Lord had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the children of Israel, until they were passed over, their hearts melted (fainted), neither was there any spirit left in them.

At Gilgal, where all Israel was encamped, the Lord spoke to Joshua, saying: Make thee sharp (flint) knives, and circumcise the children of Israel. So Joshua had sharp knives made, and the children of Israel were circumcised at the hill of the foreskins. Although all the people who came out of Egypt were circumcised, the children of the rebellious men of war, who were born in the wilderness, were not circumcised. Israel wandered in the wilderness for forty years, till all the rebellious men of war were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the Lord; unto these men the Lord had sworn that He would not show the land which He promised unto their fathers, the land which floweth with milk and honey. But their children, whom He had raised up in their stead, Joshua had them circumcised. And after all people were circumcised, they remained in their camps, until they were completely healed.

On the fourteenth day of the first month, Nisan 14, 1473 B.C. (the very same day, forty years before, on Nisan 14, 1513 B.C., they left the land of Egypt), the Lord spoke unto Joshua, saying: This day I have rolled away the reproach of Egypt from you. Wherefore the name of the place was called Gilgal. This was also the day of Passover; and the children of Israel kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the month in the plains of Jericho. And they did eat the corn of the land from the previous year, on the morning after the Passover, unleavened bread and roasted (parched) corn; and the manna ceased the morning after they had eaten of the old corn of the land, and they ate the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

And it happened that when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and beheld a man standing against him with his sword drawn in his hand; and Joshua approached him and asked, Art thou for us, or for our adversary? And the angel of the Lord said: Nay, but as the captain of the host of the Lord I am now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did venerate, and said unto him: What saith my lord unto his servant? And the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua: Loosen thy shoe from off thy foot, for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so. Then the messenger of the Lord explained that the Lord had given unto the hands of Joshua Jericho, its king and mighty men of valor, saying: All your men of war shall compass (go around) the city six days; and seven priests shall follow them before the Ark of the Covenant with seven trumpets of rams' horns,and the rearguard shall follow the Ark. And on the seventh day ye shall go around the city seven times, while the priests blow the trumpets; and when they blow the horns with a long continuous blast, all the men shall give out a great shout, and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the men shall besiege the city. So Joshua prepared his priests and men of war accordingly; and the armed men went before the priests that blew the trumpets and the rearguard went after the Ark. And Joshua commanded them, saying; Ye shall not shout, nor utter a word, or make any sound, until the day I bid you shout. Then ye shall shout.

Fall of Jericho: An artist's representation. Note: The carrying poles on the Ark appear to be somewhat lower than most other representations of the Ark.

Photographs of the ruins of Jericho.

The gates of Jericho had been shut from the time the children of Israel crossed the Jordan, for it was a fortified city; and none went in or out of the city. Every morning, for six days, Joshua, the vanguard and the rearguard, the priests that carried the Ark of the Covanant, and the seven priests who went ahead of the Ark blowing their trumpets of rams' horns, went around the city.

On the seventh day, all the men and the priests rose at dawn and went around the city in the usual manner; except on this day they went around the city seven times. And when the priests blew their horns with a long blast, Joshua gave the men the sign to shout, saying: Shout, for the Lord hath given you the city. The city shall be accursed, and all who dwell there; only Rahab and her household shall be spared, for she hid our messengers. And ye in no wise shall take the accursed thing (gold, silver and such things), lest ye make yourselves and the camp of Israel accursed. But all the silver and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, and such, shall be consecrated unto the treasury of the Lord. So the people shouted with a great shout, and the wall of Jericho fell down flat, and the city was besieged and utterly destroyed. All that was in the city, both men and women, young and old, ox, sheep, and ass; except Rahab and her household, were utterly destroyed. And after all the gold and silver, and vessels of brass and iron were gathered for the treasury of the Lord, the city was burnt to the ground.

Then Joshua charged the people, with an oath, saying: Cursed be the man before the Lord that riseth up and buildeth (rebuilds) the city of Jericho; his firstborn shall be the foundation of the city, and his youngest son shall be buried in the foundation of the city gates.

So all went well with Joshua, and his fame was noised throughout the land of Canaan and other parts of the country. But Achan, son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah committed a trespass by keeping an accursed thing unto himself. The anger of the Lord was kindled against the children of Israel, for Israel not only had deceived the Lord and sinned, but also transgressed His covenant by stealing the cursed thing, and hiding it among their own stuff.

Then, Joshua sent a few of his chosen men from Jericho to Ai, beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, to view the country. And when they returned, they said: Let not all the people go up and smite Ai, nor make all the people to labor thither, for they are but few. Let about two or three thousand men go and smite Ai. So Joshua sent about three thousand men of war to Ai. And the men of Ai smote about thirty-six men, and chased them unto Shebarim (quarries) and smote them while retreating into the descent, going down. Thus the Israelites fled from Ai, and their hearts melted with fear.

When Joshua and the elders heard that which had befallen the men of Israel in Ai, Joshua rent his clothes and fell to the earth upon his face before the Ark of the Lord until that evening; and the elders of Israel put dust upon their heads. And Joshua said: Alas, O Lord God, wherefore hast Thou at all brought this people over the Jordan to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side of the Jordan! O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies! For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall surround us, and cut off our name from the earth, then what wilt Thou do unto Thy great name? And the Lord said unto Joshua: Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face? Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed, for they have taken of the accursed thing, and stolen and dissembled also, and they have even hid it among their own stuff. Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed; neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you. Up, sanctify the people against tomorrow, for thus saith the Lord God of Israel: There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel. Thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you. In the morning ye shall be brought according to your tribes, and it shall be that the tribe which the Lord taketh (picks) shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the Lord shall take (pick) shall come by households; and the household which the Lord shall take shall come man by man. So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by each tribe; and the tribe of Judah was taken. Then the family of Zarhites, of the tribe of Judah, was brought man by man, and Zabdi was taken. And Zabdi's household was brought man by man, and Achan, son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah was taken. And Joshua said unto Achan: My son, give I pray thee, glory to the Lord God of Israel, and make confession unto Him; and tell me now what thou hast done, hide it not from me. And Achan answered Joshua, saying: Indeed I have sinned against the Lord God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done: When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I coveted them, and took them; and behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it. So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent, and beheld, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it. And they took them out of the midst of the tent and brought them unto Joshua, the elders of Israel, and the children of Israel, and laid them out before the Lord. And Joshua and the elders of Israel took Achan, and the silver, the garment, the wedge of gold; and his sons and daughters, his oxen, asses, sheep, and tent and all his possessions unto a valley. And Joshua said unto Achan: Why hast thou troubled us? The Lord shall trouble thee this day. And he was stoned there, then a fire was set, and a great heap of stones was raised. Wherefore the name of the place was called, the valley of Achor. So the Lord turned from the fierceness of His anger.

And the Lord said unto Joshua: Fear not, neither be thou dismayed. Take all the men of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai. Behold, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai and his people, his city and land. And thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst to Jericho and her king; only the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves. Lay thee an ambush for the city from behind it. So Joshua arose, and the men of war, to go up against Ai. He chose thirty thousand mighty men of valor and sent them away by night, saying: Behold, ye shall lie in wait toward the rear of the city, not very far from the city, but be ye all ready. And I and all the men that are with me will approach the city from the front. And when they come out against us, as the first time, we will flee before them, and they shall chase after us. Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize the city, for the Lord your God will deliver it into your hands. And when ye have taken the city, ye shall set the city on fire, according to the commandment of the Lord. Joshua, therefore, sent them forth, and they went to lie in wait to attack from an ambush, on the west side of Ai, between Beth-El and Ai; but Joshua remained that night with the camp of Israel. Next morning Joshua and the elders rose up early, and numbered the men of war and went up to Ai, and drew near the city and encamped across a valley on the north side of Ai; and he sent about five thousand men to lie in ambush with the other thirty thousand men, between Beth-El and Ai. Then, that night Joshua and his men moved into the valley, between them and Ai. And when the king of Ai saw it, in the early morning, all his men went out against Israel to battle in the plains, at a time appointed; but they knew not that there were thirty-five thousand men lying in ambush on the west side of Ai. So Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness; and all the men of Ai and also of Beth-El pursued them, and were drawn of the name of the Lord thy God. For we have heard the fame of Him, and all that He did in Egypt. And what He did to the two kings of the Amorites beyond the Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon and to Og king of Bashan. Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spoke to us, saying: Take victuals (bread, or provisions) with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them that we are your servants. Therefore now make ye a league with us. This is our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses, behold, now it is dry and mouldy. And these bottles of wine which we filled were new; and behold, now they are shattered and empty, and our garments and shoes are torn and rent. Then these men took their victuals, with no fear, without praising the Lord. But Joshua made peace with them, and made a league (treaty) with them to let them live; and the rulers of Israel made a covenant with them. Three days after they made the treaty and covenant with them, Israel found out that they were their neighbors, and that they dwelt among them. But they smote them not, because the rulers of the congregation had sworn unto them by the Lord God of Israel; and all the congregation murmured against the rulers. Then all the rulers (princes) spoke unto the congregation, saying: We have sworn unto them by the Lord God of Israel; now therefore we may not touch them. This we will do to them, however. We will let them live, because of the oath; but they shall be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation. And Joshua called them and said: Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, we are from a very far country, when ye dwell among us? Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God. And they answered, saying: Because it was told to thy servants that the Lord thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land, therefore we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing. And now, behold, we are in thine hand. Do unto us as it seemeth good and right unto thee. Thus they were made to serve the congregation and the altar of the Lord, as the drawers of water and hewers of wood forever.

It came to pass that when Adoni-zedek, king of Jerusalem, heard how Joshua had taken Ai and Jericho; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth and Kirjath-jearim had made peace with Israel, he and his people feared greatly, for Gibeon was a great city, a royal city greater than Ai, and the men of Gibeon were mighty. So Adoni-zedek sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, Piram king of Jarmuth, Japhia king of Lachich, and Debir king of Eglon emissaries, saying: Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon; for it hath made peace with Joshua and the children of Israel. Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon, gathered themselves together, and all their armies, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it. And the men of Gibeon asked for help from Joshua and Israel who were encamped at Gilgal, saying: Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.

So Joshua, with all his men of war, mighty men of valor, went westwards from Gilgal. And the Lord said unto Joshua: Fear them not, for I have delivered them into thine hands. There shall not one of them stand before thee. Joshua therefore left in a hurry and travelled all night; and slew them with a great slaughter in Gibeon and put them to flight; and chased them along the way to Beth-horon, and smote them unto Azekah and Makkedah. While they were on the way to Beth-horon, the Lord cast down huge hailstones upon the enemy, until they arrived at Azekah. More men died with the hailstones than they whom the children of Israel had slain with the sword.

Then Joshua prayed to the Lord that day, when the Lord had delivered the Amorites into the hands of the children of Israel, saying: Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou Moon in the valley of Ajalon. So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and did not go down about a whole day, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. There had never been such a day in history, when the sun was made to stand still, and the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man. And this event was recorded in the Book of Jasher (Yasher). Later on, Joshua and all his men returned unto the camp at Gilgal. But the five kings of the Amorites, the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon fled and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah. And when it was told Joshua that the five kings were found hidden in the cave, he ordered his men to roll huge stones upon the mouth of the cave, to keep them there; and to march forward after the enemies and to smite the hindmost of them, so that they might not enter into their cities.

And when Joshua and his men made an end of slaying their enemies with a very great slaughter, they returned to Makkedah and opened the mouth of the cave where the five kings were hidden; and they were brought out unto Joshua. Then, Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war who went with him: Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon their necks. And Joshua said unto his men: Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage. For this shall the Lord do to all your enemies against whom ye fight. Afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them; then hanged them on five trees until that evening. At the time of going down of the sun, Joshua commanded his men to take their bodies down off the trees and cast them into the cave where they were found, and lay huge stones to cover the mouth of the cave.

From Makkedah, Joshua and his men passed unto Libnah and conquered it. Next they fought against Lachish, and captured it. Then Horam king of Gezer came to help Lachish, but all of them were smitten, until none remained. From Lachish they moved to Eglon and utterly destroyed it. From Eglon they moved to Hebron and captured the city and destroyed all its inhabitants. Then Joshua and his men of war went to Debir and fought against it and took all its cities, and smote all the souls and its king with the edge of the sword. So Joshua and his men smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and the lowland (foothill area), and of the springs and all their kings. They left none alive, as the Lord God of Israel had commanded them by the hand of Moses. From Kadesh-barnea unto Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon; all the land and their kings were captured, for the Lord God of Israel fought for them. Then Joshua and his armies returned unto the camp at Gilgal.

And it came to pass that when Jabin king of Hazor had heard what Joshua and his men had done to the other kings and their land, he formed a league with the kings of Madon, Shimron, Achshaph, and the kings of the north of the mountains, of the plains south of Chinneroth (Galilee), of the valley and in the borders of Dor in the west; and the kings of Canaanites on the east and west, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites in the mountains, and the Hivites below Mount Hermon in the land of Mizpah. And all the kings met together, and encamped at the waters of Merom (the region between Lake Huleh, about ten and a half miles north of the Sea of Galilee, and the torrent valley and spring near Meiron, Wadi Meiron, about twelve miles south-southwest of Lake Huleh basin, to the stream running near Jebel-meiron), along with their armies, horses and chariots, many people, even as sand that is upon the seashore in multitude, to fight against Israel.

And the Lord said unto Joshua: Be not afraid of them, for tomorrow about this time I will deliver them up. Thou shalt hock (hough) their horses and burn their chariots with fire. So Joshua and all his men of war came to the waters of Merom quickly, and fell upon their enemy. And the Lord delivered them into the hands of Israel, who smote them and chased them unto Zidon (Sidon) and Misrephoth-maim, and unto the valley of Mizpah eastward. And Joshua did unto them as the Lord bade him; he hocked their horses and burnt their chariots with fire. Then, Joshua turned back and took Hazor and smote their king and burnt the city to the ground, for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms. And the spoil of the cities and the cattle, the children of Israel took as the booty and the plunder to themselves. So Joshua did all that was commanded him by Moses; and there was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, except the Hivites, the inhabitants of Gibeon. For the Lord had hardened their hearts to come against Israel in battle, so that they might be utterly destroyed, as it was foreordained by the hand of Moses, the servant of the Lord. Thus, Joshua made wars for several years and defeated thirty-one kings on the west side of the Jordan. These are the kings that Joshua and his men had smitten: king of Jericho; king of Ai; king of Beth-El; king of Makkedah; king of Libnah; king of Lachish; king of Gezer; king of Eglon; king of Hebron; king of Debir; king of Jerusalem; king of Jarmuth; king of Geder; king of Hormah; king of Arad; king of Adullam; king of Tappuah; king of Hepher; king of Aphek; king of Lasharon; king of Madon; king of Hazor; king of Shimron-meron; king of Achshaph; king of Taanach; king of Megiddo (Armageddon); king of Kedesh; king of Jokneam of Carmel; king of Dor; king of the people of Gilgal; and king of Tirzah.

And it came to pass that Joshua was old and stricken in years, when the Lord spoke unto him, saying: Thou art old and stricken in years, and there yet remaineth very much land to be possessed, namely: all the borders of the Philistines and Geshuri, from Sihor, which is before Egypt, unto the borders of Ekron northward belonging to the Canaanites; even the five lords of the Philistines (the Gazathites, the Ashdothites, the Eshkalonites, the Gittites, and the Ekronites), and all the Canaanites, Sidonians, and Hivites that dwell in Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal-herman unto the entrance of Hamath; plus the land of the Gilbites and the Avites. These lands were not given to Israel, so that the future generation might be taught the lessons of war; and also to test (prove) Israel, if they would hearken unto the commandments of the Lord. Thus the children of Israel dwelt among these people, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

Then came the time to divide the land by lot among the nine and a half tribes; the other two and one-half tribes of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh, were already given their inheritance on the east side of the Jordan. The initial division of the land took place from the camp at Gilgal; and Eleazar the Aaronic high priest, son of Aaron, heads of the fathers of the tribes of Israel, and Joshua supervised the division.

Drawing lots for division of land (an artist's representation)

(Illustration 16)
Division of the Land of Canaan among the Tribes of Israel (after 1432 B.C.)

Here, the tribes of Reuben, Gad, Manasseh, Ephraim and Judah received their portions of the land. Then the entire congregation assembled at Shiloh, and the tabernacle was set up there. Seven of the twelve tribes were yet to receive their inheritance. And Joshua said unto the children of Israel: How long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the Lord God of your fathers hath given you? Take from among you three men from each tribe, and I will send them to map the land, and they shall return to me. The land shall be divided into seven parts. But the Levites shall have no part among you, for the priesthood of the Lord is their inheritance. Go and walk through the land and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the Lord in Shiloh. And the men went and surveyed the land, and described it by cities into seven lots for them in Shiloh before the Lord; and the land was divided among the tribes of Benjamin, Simeon, Zebulun, Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Dan. Joshua was given the city of Timnath-serah in the mountainous region of Ephraim, as a special inheritance by the children of Israel, according to the word of the Lord. Six cities of refuge were also appointed for the unintentional manslayers, who were to be tried there. These cities were Kedesh in Mount Naphtali, Shechem in Mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba or Hebron in the mountain of Judah, on the west side of the Jordan; and on the east side of the Jordan were three cities, Bezer in the land of Reuben, Ramoth in the land of Gad, and Golan in the land of Manasseh. Then the children of Israel gave the Levites forty-eight cities with their suburbs. The tribes of Judah, Simeon and Benjamin gave thirteen cities to the Kohathites, the children of Moses and Aaron. The rest of the Kohathites received ten cities from the tribes of Ephraim, Dan and the half tribe of Manasseh. The Gershonites received thirteen cities from the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali and the half tribe of Manasseh (in Bashan). The Merarites received twelve cities from the tribes of Reuben, Gad and Zebulun.

Then Joshua called the tribes of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh, and said unto them: Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you. Ye have not left your brethren unto this day, and kept the commandments of the Lord your God. And now the Lord hath given rest unto your brethren, according to His promise; therefore, now return ye, get you unto your tents and unto the land of your possession, which Moses the servant of the Lord gave you on the other side of the Jordan. But take diligent heed to do the commandments and the law, which Moses the servant of the Lord gave you; to love the Lord your God, and to walk in all His ways; and to cleave unto Him; and to serve Him with all your heart and soul. Then Joshua blessed them and sent them away to their tents. Now to the one-half tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan; and to the other half Joshua gave their inheritance on the west side of the Jordan, among their brethren; and sent them away also, saying: Return with much riches unto your tents, and very much cattle, silver, gold, brass and iron, and with very much raiment. Divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren. So the children of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh departed from Shiloh, in the land of Canaan, to go to Gilead, the land of their possession, given to them by the hand of Moses. And when they reached the shore of the Jordan, they built there a great altar; not an altar for sacrifices or burnt offerings, but as a memorial that they are also the Lord's people, although they dwell on the other side of the Jordan. And they called the altar Ed (Eid); for it was to be a witness between them and the Lord their God. But when the children of Israel heard that the tribes of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh had built an altar in the land of Canaan, in the borders of the Jordan, the whole congregation gathered together at Shiloh, to go to war against them. And the children of Israel sent Phinehas, son of Eleazar, the high priest and ten heads of thousands from each tribe. When they reached the land of Gilead, they spoke to the children of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh, saying: Thus saith the whole congregation of the Lord, what trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away from following the Lord, for you have builded an altar, against the commandments of the Lord? Is the iniquity of Peor too little for us; from which we were not cleansed until this day, from the plague in the congregation of the Lord. For you have turned away from the Lord this day, tomorrow He will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel. If the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the Lord, where the tabernacle dwelleth (at Shiloh), and take possession among us; but rebel not against the Lord, nor rebel against us, by building another altar, besides the altar of the Lord our God. Did not Achan the Zerahite commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and the wrath of the Lord fell upon all the congregation of Israel? And that man perished not alone in his iniquity. Then, the children of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh spoke to Phinehas, son of Eleazar the high priest, and the heads of thousands of Israel, saying: The Lord God of gods, the Lord God of gods, He knoweth, and Israel shall know if it be in rebellion, or in transgression against the Lord; that we have built us an altar to turn from following the Lord our God, or to offer thereon burnt offering, meat offering, or peace offering against His commandments. Rather, we have done it in fear that in time to come, your children might speak unto our children, saying: What have ye to do with the Lord God of Israel? For the Lord hath made the Jordan a border between us and you. Ye children of Reuben and Gad have no part in the Lord; and so shall your children make our children cease from fearing the Lord. Therefore, we said: Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice, but as a witness between us and you, and our generations after us, that it shall be, when our children should ask us or ask our generations in time to come, we may say to them: Behold the altar of the Lord, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor sacrifices, but as a witness between us and you. God forbid that we should rebel against the Lord, and turn from following the Lord, and build another altar for burnt offerings, meat offerings, or for sacrifices, besides the altar of the Lord our God that is before His tabernacle.

And when Phinehas, son of Eleazar the high priest, and heads of the thousands of Israel heard the words which the children of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh spoke, it pleased them. And Phinehas said unto them: This day we perceive that the Lord is among us, because ye have not committed trespass against the Lord. Now ye have delivered the children of Israel against the wrath of the Lord.

Then Phinehas, and the heads (princes) of Israel returned from the land of Gilead unto the land of Canaan, and brought the children of Israel words from the tribes of Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh; and the children of Israel were pleased to learn that which was spoken to them, and they praised God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle.

And it came to pass that when Joshua was one hundred and ten years old, his time had come to go the way of all the earth, being old and stricken in age. And he called for all Israel, their elders, heads of each tribe, and their judges and officers, and said unto them: I am old and stricken in age. And ye have seen all that the Lord your God hath done unto these nations, and how He fought for you. Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from the Jordan even unto the Great Sea (Mediterranean Sea) westward. The Lord your God shall expel them from before you, and drive them out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, as the Lord your God had promised you. Be ye therefore courageous and diligent in keeping all that is written in the book of law of Moses, that ye turn not to the right or to the left; that ye come not among these nations that remain among you; that ye make not mention of the names of their gods, neither swear by them nor serve them, and bow yourselves unto them. But cleave unto the Lord your God, as ye have done unto this day; for the Lord hath driven out from before you great and strong nations, and no man hath been able to stand before you. One man among you shall chase a thousand of your enemies, for the Lord your God shall fight for you, as He hath promised you. Take good heed therefore, and love the Lord your God and keep His commandments; and if ye do in any wise go back to the ways of the natural man (carnal, sensual, devilish and wicked man), and make marriages with the remnant of these nations, know for a certainty that the Lord your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you. But they shall be snares and traps unto you, scourges in your sides and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.

Behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth; and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls that not one thing hath failed of all the good things the Lord your God spoke concerning you. All are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed. So shall the Lord bring upon you all the evil things, until ye are utterly destroyed from off this land, if ye hearken not to His commandments and serve Him not with all your hearts and souls. And Joshua continued to speak to all the tribes of Israel, their elders, heads, judges and officers at Shechem, saying: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel: Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flooding Euphrates, in the old times, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and Nahor (Nachor), the father of Terah; and they served other gods. And I took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout the land of Canaan, and gave him Isaac. And unto Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau; and I gave unto Esau Mount Seir to possess it; but Jacob and his children were led down to Egypt, where I multiplied their seed. I plagued the Egyptians, and brought you out of the land of Egypt by the hands of Moses and Aaron; and ye came unto the sea, and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red Sea. And when they cried unto the Lord, He put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and drowned them. Your eyes have seen what I have done to Egypt, and ye experienced mortality in the wilderness a long season. And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side of the Jordan, and they fought with you; and I delivered them into your hands, that ye may possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you. Then Balak the son of Zippor, King of Moab arose to war against Israel, and sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you. But I would not hearken unto Balaam; therefore, he blessed you instead. So you were delivered out of his hand. And ye went over the Jordan, and encamped at Gilgal, and the wall of Jericho was brought down flat, and the city was given to you. Then the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites fought against you, and I delivered them unto your hands. And I have given you a land for which ye did not labor, and cities which ye built not, to dwell in them; and the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not, for you to eat. Now therefore fear the Lord, and serve Him in sincerity and truth; and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt; and serve the Lord God of Israel. And if it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose ye this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and the gods of the heathen in whose land ye dwell, or the true and living God of Israel; as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. And the people answered, and said: God forbid that we forsake the Lord, to serve other gods; for the Lord our God is He who brought us and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage; and did great signs and wonders in our sight, and preserved us in every way we went, among all the people through whom we passed. And the Lord drove out our enemies from before us; therefore we will also serve the Lord, for He is our God.

And Joshua said unto the people: Ye cannot serve the Lord by your words alone; for He is an holy God; He is a jealous God. If your actions do not support your faith in Him, He will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins. If ye forsake the Lord, and serve strange gods, then He will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that He hath done you good. And the people said unto Joshua: Nay, but we will serve the Lord. And Joshua replied: Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen the Lord, to serve and obey Him. And they said, we are witnesses. Then Joshua said unto them: Now therefore put away the strange gods which are among you, and incline your hearts unto the Lord God of Israel. And the people replied: The Lord our God will we serve, and His voice will we obey. So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, in Shechem. And Joshua wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took a huge stone, and set it up under an oak, that was by the sanctuary of the Lord. Then Joshua spoke unto all the people, saying: Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard all the words of the Lord which were spoken unto us. It shall serve as a reminder of the covenant which ye made this day to serve the Lord, lest ye deny your God. Afterwards, Joshua let the people depart, every man to his inheritance.

Soon after, Joshua, son of Nun, the servant of God, died at the age of one hundred and ten years in c.1432 B.C.; and they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-serah, in Mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash. And Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who had known the works of the Lord, which He had done for Israel.

And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought from Egypt, were buried in Shechem; in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought, from the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem, for an hundred pieces of silver; which became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

Then Eleazar the Aaronic high priest, son of Aaron, also died; and they buried him in a hill which belonged to his son Phinehas, in Mount Ephraim.

After the death of Joshua, the children of Israel asked the Lord who should go up for them to fight against the Canaanites? And the Lord said: Judah shall go up, for I have delivered the land into his hand. Then, Judah said unto Simeon his brother: Come up with us into our lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and we likewise will go with you into your lot. So Judah joined forces with Simeon, and they went up; and the Lord delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hands; and they slew in Bezek ten thousand men. And they fought against Adoni-bezek, a powerful ruler of the Canaanites and Perizzites, and slew many of them; but Adoni-bezek fled. Later, he was captured, and his thumbs and great toes were cut off, in the same manner as he cut off the thumbs and great toes of seventy pagan kings. Then Adoni-bezek said: Three-score and ten kings, having their thumbs and great toes cut off, gathered their meat under my table, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, where he died later.

The children of Judah went alone to fight against Jerusalem, and captured the city and set the city on fire. Afterward they went down to fight against the Canaanites who dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the valley. Then they went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Kirjath-arba (Hebron), and slew Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai; and moved forward to Kirjath-sepher (Debir), which was given to Caleb, son of Jephunneh, of the tribe of Judah (who at the age of forty followed the Lord fully, when he was sent as one of the twelve spies to the land of Canaan by Moses, from Kadesh-barnea; and at the time that he was given Hebron or Kiriath-arba and surrounding territory, including Debir, as his inheritance, he was eighty-five years old). Here at Kirjath-sepher or Debir, Caleb said to the men of Judah: He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife. And Othniel, the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother (who later became the first judge of Israel), captured the city and won the prize. Caleb then gave his daughter, at her request, the upper and lower Gulloth-maim (springs of water) as a wedding present, in addition to the piece of land to the south.

Then the children of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, who came down from the city of palm trees, the valley of Jericho, with the children of Judah, into the wilderness of Judah, moved into the southern region of Arad, and dwelt there among the people. And Judah and Simeon slew the Canaanites of Zephath and utterly destroyed them, and they called the city Hormah. As the Lord was with Judah, they also took Gaza, Askelon (Ashkelon) and Ekron, along with their coasts by the Great Sea (Mediterranean); and also drove out the inhabitants of the mountains. But they could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron.

The Lord was also with the house of Joseph. They sent spies to Beth-El (Luz) to search out the land; and when the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, they said unto him: Show us, we beg thee, the entrance to the city, and we will show thee mercy. And he did show them the entrance to the city. Then the armies of Joseph entered and smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they spared the man and all his household. And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called its name Luz.

And it came to pass that Israel became strong, and they put the Canaanites and other nations to tribute; but did not utterly destroy them, as they were commanded by the Lord to do. The children of Benjamin dwelt with the Jebusites in Jerusalem, and did not drive them out of the land; neither did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean, Taanach, Dor, Ibleam, or Megiddo and their surrounding towns, but allowed the Canaanites to dwell in the land. And the children of Ephraim did not drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer, but they lived among them. Zebulun also allowed the Canaanites to dwell in Kitron, Nahalol; neither did Asher drive out the Canaanites from Accho (Acco), Zidon, Ahlab, Achzib, Helbah, Aphik, or Rehob. So did Naphtali permit the Canaanites to dwell in Beth-shemesh and Beth-anath as their tributaries, instead of driving them out of the land.

Although the tribe of Dan was given, for their inheritance, Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, Shaalabbin (Shaalbim), Ajalon (Aigalon), Jethlah, Elon, Timnathah, Ekron, Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, Me-jarkon, Rakkon, with the border before Japho, the territory of Dan was too small for them. As a result, the tribe of Dan was forced to move into the mountains by the Amorites; for the Amorites would not suffer them to come down to the valley. And the Amorites dwelt in Mount Heres in Ajalon, and in Shaalabbin; yet the hand of the house of Joseph prevailed, so they became tributaries.

And it came to pass that there was a man of Mount Ephraim, whose name was Micah, who took (stole) eleven hundred shekels of silver from his mother. Then, when he confessed and restored the silver, his mother said: Blessed be thou of the Lord, my son. I had wholly dedicated the silver unto the Lord, in thy behalf, to make a graven image and a molten image. Now therefore I give the silver unto thee. But he took not the silver from his mother, but restored it unto her. She then took two hundred shekels to a silversmith, who made a graven image and a molten statue; and they were brought to the house of gods, which Micah made. And Micah made an ephod and teraphim (domestic idols, usually in the size and shape of a man), and consecrated one of his sons to be the priest for his house of gods. It happened that there was a young man, a Levite, from Beth-lehem-judah who was travelling in search of a place to live and minister. As he journeyed, he came to Mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah. And Micah asked him: Whence comest thou? And the young man replied: I am a Levite of Beth-lehem-judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place to minister and live. So Micah said unto him: Dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a priest; and I will give thee ten shekels of silver a year, and a suit of apparel, and thy victuals (food). Then the Levite decided to dwell with him; and Micah treated him as one of his own sons, and consecrated the Levite as a priest for his house of gods. And Micah said unto himself: Now I know that the Lord will do me good, seeing that I have a Levite to my priest. It was in these days that the Danites were searching for additional territory to dwell in; for all their inheritance had not fallen unto them among the tribes of Israel. So the children of Dan sent out of their tribe five men of valour, from Zorah and Eshtaol to spy out the land and to search it. When these men came to Mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, they lodged there. When they were at the house of Micah, they recognized the voice of the young man the Levite, whose name was Jonathan, son of Gershom, son of Moses; and they said unto him: Who brought thee hither; and what makest thou in this place; and what has thou here? And he said unto them: Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hired me to be his priest. And they said unto him: Ask counsel, we pray thee, of God, that we may know whether our way which we go shall be prosperous. And the Levite said unto them: Go in peace, before the Lord is your way wherein ye go. Then the five men departed and came to Laish (Leshem); and saw that the people there lived securely and carelessly, after the manner of the Zidonians (Sidonians), inactive and quiet; and there was no magistrate that might put them to shame in any thing. And they dwelt away from Zidonians, and had no business with any outsiders. Then the five men returned to their brethren in Zorah and Eshtaol to report, and said: Arise, that we may go up against Laish; for we have seen the land, and behold, it is very good. Are ye inactive and slothful (as the Zidonians) to go and to possess the land? When ye go, ye shall come unto a people secure and land large; for God hath given it into your hands; a place where there is no want of any thing that is in the earth. Thus went from the tribe of Dan, out of Zorah and Eshtaol, six hundred men girded with weapons of war; and they encamped behind Kirjath-jearim, in Judah; and called the place Mahaneh-dan. Then they came to Mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah. Here the five Danites who came previously to search out the land, said unto their brethren: Do ye know that there is in these houses an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? Now therefore think what ye have to do. And they went to the house of the young man Levite, to the house of Micah, and saluted him; and the six hundred Danites girded with weapons of war stood in front of the entrance gate. Then the five men went inside Micah's house, and took the carved image, the ephod, the teraphim, and the molten image. And when the Levite asked them what were they doing, they said unto him: Hold thy peace, lay thine hand upon thy mouth, and go with us; and be to us a father and a priest. Is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or to be a priest unto a tribe and family in Israel? The priest's heart was glad; and he took the ephod, the teraphim, the graven image, and joined the men outside the house of Micah. Then they departed, with women, children, cattle and carriage ahead of the men. When they were a good distance away, Micah gathered up his neighbors and overtook the children of Dan, and yelled at them; so the Danites turned their faces, and said unto Micah: What aileth thee that thou cometh with such a company? And he said: Ye have taken my gods which I made, and the priest, and are gone away. What else have I now? And thou saith unto me, what aileth thee? And the children of Dan said unto Micah; Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest angry fellows run up on thee, and thou lose thy life along with thy household. And the children of Dan went their way. When Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back to his house. And the children of Dan came to Laish (Leshem or Lusi; about twenty-five miles north of the Sea of Galilee or Sea of Chinnereth), unto a people that were quiet and secure; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnt their city in the valley of Beth-rehob with fire. There was no one to rescue them, because it was far from Zidon (Sidon), and they had no business with the outsiders. And the Danites called the name of the city Dan, after the name of their tribe. Then the children of Dan set up the graven image; and Jonathan the Levite, son of Gershom, son of Moses the Lawgiver and the deliverer of Israel, became a pagan priest to the tribe of Dan. The sons of Jonathan also became priests to the tribe of Dan; and they set up and worshiped Micah's graven image, all the time the House of the Lord (tabernacle) was in Shiloh.

And it came to pass that Jonathan the Levite, grandson of Moses, dwelt in Mount Ephraim, and took a concubine out of Beth-lehem-judah; and she played the whore against him, and went away from him unto her father's house to Beth-lehem-judah, and remained there four whole months. So her husband arose and went after her, to speak friendly unto her, and to bring her back. He took with him his servant and a couple of asses. When the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced in meeting him; and Jonathan lodged with them three days, ate, drank and made merry. On the fourth day, Jonathan and his wife arose early in the morning to depart, and the damsel's father said unto his son-in-law: Comfort thine heart with a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way. And they sat down and ate and drank, for the damsel's father had said unto the man: Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and let thine heart be merry. On the fifth day the man and his concubine arose early in the morning to depart; but the damsel's father said: Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried until afternoon, and when the man, his servant and the concubine rose up to depart, his father-in-law said unto him: Behold, now the day draweth toward evening, I pray you tarry all night. Behold, the day groweth to an end, lodge here, that thine heart may be merry, and tomorrow get you early on your way, that you mayest go home. But the man would not tarry that night, and rose up and departed and came near Jebus, which is Jerusalem, with his concubine, two asses saddled, and his servant. As the day was far spent, the servant said unto his master; Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in into this city of the Jebusites, and lodge there. So his master answered: We will not turn aside hither into the city of the strangers, that is not of the children of Israel; we will pass over to Gibeah. Come, let us draw near unto Gibeah or Ramah, to spend the night there. At sunset they arrived at Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin; and sat themselves down in the street of the city, for there was no one that took them into his house to lodge. And, behold, there came an old man, returning from his work out in the field, who was also from Mount Ephraim, but dwelt in Gibeah, the city of the Benjamites. When he noticed a wayfaring man in the street of the city, the old man said: Whither goest thou? And whence comest thou? So the Levite answered: We are coming from Beth-lehem-judah, but I am from Mount Ephraim; now I am on my way to the House of the Lord in Mizpeh (Mizpah) and there is no man that receiveth me to lodge. Yet there is both straw and provender for our asses, bread and wine for me, and for thy handmaiden and the young man; there is no want of anything. And the old man said: Peace be with thee. Only lodge not in the street, and let all thy wants lie upon me; and he brought them into his house, and washed their feet, and gave provender unto the asses, and they ate and drank together. Now as they were making their hearts merry, lo, certain sons of Belial (worthless ones) surrounded the house, and beat at the door; yelling with loud voices: Bring forth the man that came into thine house, that we may know him. And the old man went out and said unto them: Nay, my brethren, nay, I pray you, do not so wickedly this folly, seeing that this man is come into mine house. Behold, there is my daughter, a maiden, and this man's concubine; them will I bring out, that ye may humble them, and do with them that seemeth good unto you, but unto this man do not so vile a thing. But the men would not hearken to him. So the man brought forth his concubine to them; and they took her and knew her, and assaulted her all that night, and at dawn they let her go. Then the woman managed to reach the door of the man's house, and fell down. In the morning her master rose up to leave the house. And as he opened the doors of the house to go out, he beheld his concubine fallen at the door, and her hands were upon the threshold. And the man said unto her: Up. Let us be going. But there was no answer, nor did she move. So the man lifted her up and put her upon the ass. When he arrived at his house, he took a saw and divided her, together with her bones, into twelve pieces, and sent them to all the territories of Israel. And it was so that all who came to know of such an evil deed, said: There has never been such deed done nor seen from the day the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day. Think of it, take advice, and speak your mind.

Then the congregation of the children of Israel, except the tribe of Benjamin, gathered together, united in purpose, in Mizpeh (Mizpah); where the House of the Lord (Beth-El), the tabernacle, was located; about twelve miles north of Jerusalem in the extreme southern part of the mountainous region of Ephraim. And the chiefs of all the tribes presented themselves in the assembly of the people of the Lord; four hundred thousand footmen girded with swords. Then the heads of the eleven tribes asked the Levite, who had slain his concubine and sent them the pieces of her body, to explain the meaning of such a wicked deed. And the Levite answered: I and my concubine came into Gibeah of Benjamin. And the men of Gibeah surrounded the house by night and rose up against me to slay me; and my concubine have they raped and assaulted, that she is dead. And I took my concubine and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout the land of inheritance of Israel; for they have committed lewdness and folly in Israel. Behold, ye are all children of Israel; give us your advice and counsel. Then all the chiefs arose as one man, and said; We will not any of us go to his tent, nor to his house; but now this shall be the thing that we shall do to Gibeah. We will go against it by lot. Throughout all the tribes of Israel, we will take ten men out of an hundred, an hundred out of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, and send them to fetch victuals for our men of war, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought in Israel. So all the men of Israel united themselves against Benjamin; and surrounded the city of Gibeah; and sent men throughout Benjamin, saying: What wickedness is this that you have done amongst you? Now therefore deliver us the children of Belial who dwell in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and put away evil from Israel. But the children of Benjamin would not hearken to the voice of their brethren the children of Israel; and they mustered to gather out of the other cities in Benjamin, twenty-six thousand men of war (besides seven hundred chosen men of Gibeah), and came to Gibeah to battle against the children of Israel. All of the seven hundred men of Gibeah were left-handed; and were trained to sling stones at an hair breadth, and not miss. Then the children of Israel arose and marched to Mizpeh to the House of the Lord, where the Ark of the Covenant was located; and asked counsel of the Lord, saying: Which one among us shall go up first to battle against the children of Benjamin; and they received the answer that Judah shall go up first. The next morning, the children of Judah encamped around Gibeah, and marched forward in battle formation to fight against Benjamin. But the seven hundred chosen men of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah; and twenty-six thousand from the surrounding cities of Benjamin, and destroyed down to the ground that day twenty-two thousand men of Judah. And the eleven tribes of Israel gathered themselves again in battle formation, at the same location as before; while Phinehas the Aaronic high priest, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, went into the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle to inquire of the Lord, if Israel shall go to battle against his brother Benjamin. He received the answer, Go. When the children of Israel came to battle against Benjamin the second day, Benjamin came out of Gibeah and destroyed down to the ground eighteen thousand men of Israel, who drew the sword. Then all the other tribes, except Benjamin, went to the House of the Lord in Mizpeh, and wept, and sat before the Lord and fasted until evening, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the Lord (for the Ark of the Covenant was there in those days). And Phinehas went before the Lord again to inquire if Israel should yet go to battle against his brother Benjamin, or should he cease? And Phinehas received the answer, Go; for the Lord was going to deliver the Benjamites into their hands. And the children of Israel set liers in wait around Gibeah, and went against Benjamin on the third day, in battle formation. And the children of Benjamin chased after Israel, and were drawn away from the city; and they began to smite the people, in the highways that led to the House of the Lord and to Gibeah, and killed about thirty men. So the children of Benjamin thought that Israel was smitten as before; and Israel pretended to be defeated and fled to draw them farther away from the city into the highways. Then the men of Israel rose up in ambush from their hiding places; and marched in battle formation from Baal-tamar, and out of the meadows of Gibeah. And there came against Gibeah ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel; and Benjamin fought a sore battle, but they knew not that evil was near them, for the Lord was with Israel. Benjamin was smitten, and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day twenty-five thousand and one hundred men; all those who drew the sword against Israel. But when the men of Israel retired from the battle, Benjamin began to smite and kill again, thinking Israel had retired because they were smitten; and the Benjamites smote and killed about thirty more persons. Now, there was an appointed sign between the men in ambush and the men of Israel, that they should make a great flame with smoke rising high above the city; and when the sign came to pass, and the flame began to rise up out of the city with a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites knew that they were smitten; and saw that the evil was come upon them. So the remnant of the men of Benjamin turned their back against Israel, and fled in fear and amazement toward the wilderness. But they and others who came out of the surrounding cities of Benjamin were overtaken by Israel and destroyed. On that day there fell eighteen thousand men of valour of Benjamin. A remnant of the Benjamites fled to the rock of Rimmon in the wilderness; five thousand men were slain in the highways; and Israel pursued hard after them to Gidom, and slew two thousand men there. Thus, all which fell that day of Benjamin were twenty-five thousand men of valour that drew the sword against Israel. Only six hundred men were able to reach the rock of Rimmon, and they dwelt in the rock four months. And the children of Israel continued to smite Benjamin, as well as other men of every city they passed through, as the beasts; and set the cities on fire.

Now, the children of Israel had previously sworn in Mizpeh, before the Lord, saying: There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife. After they had subdued their brother Benjamin, and killed almost the entire tribe of Benjamin, consisting of about forty-six thousand able-bodied men, the children of Israel repented of their actions, and went to the House of the Lord, lifted up their voices and wept sore, and stayed there till the evening; and said: O Lord God of Israel, why is this come to pass that there is one tribe lacking in Israel? The next morning the people rose up early, prepared the altar, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. And the children of Israel said: Whosoever among all the tribes of Israel that came not with the congregation unto the House of the Lord in Mizpeh, they shall surely be put to death. And, lo, there came none to the assembly at the House of the Lord from Jabesh-gilead (Yabis-galeed); for the people were numbered. And the congregation sent there twelve thousand most valiant men, and commanded them to go and smite all the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword, including women and children. They were to destroy every male and every woman that had lain with a man. So they went, and found among the inhabitants there four hundred young virgins that had known no man by lying with him; and they were brought to the camp of Israel in Shiloh, north of the House of the Lord, in the territory of Ephraim (toward the east of the highway that goes up from the House of the Lord to Shechem, the south of Lebonah). For it grieved the children of Israel, and their souls were sorely afflicted, so they repented, and the elders of Israel said unto them: How shall we provide wives for the remnant of our brother Benjamin, seeing that we have sworn by the Lord in Mizpeh that we will not give our daughters to Benjamin to wife; and seeing that women are destroyed out of Benjamin? Then the whole congregation sent a few men to the rock Rimmon, to call peacefully upon the children of Benjamin that dwelt in the rock; and gave them the four hundred women of Jabesh-gilead; yet they needed two hundred more virgins; and the elders of Israel said; There must be an inheritance for those Benjamites who have escaped, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel. Although we may not give them our daughters to wife; for the children of Israel had sworn, saying: Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin; but, behold, there is the yearly feast of the Lord in Shiloh; and if daughters of Shiloh come out to dance, then the Benjamites can come out of the vineyards and catch every man his wife, out of the daughters of Shiloh, and take them to the land of Benjamin. And it shall be that when their fathers or brethren come unto us to complain, we shall say unto them: Be favorable unto your brother Benjamin for our sakes; because we reserved not to each man his wife in the war. And if we did not give them wives now, we would become guilty. And the remnant of the Benjamites were commanded to lie in wait in the nearby vineyards in Shiloh; and, behold, when the daughters of Shiloh came out to dance in groups, every man was to catch himself a wife. And the children of Benjamin did so, and caught two hundred wives, out of the daughters of Shiloh, who came to dance. Then they departed to their land of inheritance, and repaired the cities, and dwelt in them. The children of Israel also returned, every man to his tribe and to his family.

(Illustration 17)
Map of the Land of Gilead (c.1432 B.C. - c.1122 B.C.)

It was during this time that an angel of the Lord was sent from Gilgal to Bochin, with a message of the Lord to the children of Israel, saying: I made you to go up out of the land of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which I had sworn unto your fathers; and I said, I will never break my covenant with you; and ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land, but throw down their altars, break down their images, cut down their groves, and burn their graven images with fire; ye shall utterly destroy them, and make no treaties with them; but ye have not obeyed my voice. Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you. And when the angel of the Lord spoke these words unto the children of Israel, the people lifted up their voices and wept; and they called the name of the place Bochin, and offered sacrifice unto the Lord.

The children of Israel, however, remained faithful to the Lord their God all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who were witness to the great works of the Lord, which He did for Israel. But when this generation of elders passed away, there arose another generation, which knew not the Lord, nor His great works which He had done for Israel. And the children of Israel forsook the Lord God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods of the people who were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and served Baal and Ashtoreth (Ishtar); and provoked the Lord to anger, and did evil in the sight of the Lord. And the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel, and He delivered them into the hands of the spoilers that spoiled them; and He sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so they could no longer stand before their enemies. Whithersoever they went, the hand of the Lord was against them continually, as the Lord had sworn unto them; and they were greatly distressed. Nevertheless the Lord raised up judges, who delivered them out of the hands of those that spoiled them. And yet they would not hearken unto their judges, but they went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them; they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the Lord.

And when the Lord raised up judges to deliver them out of the hands of their enemies, for it repented the Lord because of their groanings by reason of them that oppressed and vexed them; that they returned and corrupted themselves more than even before in following other gods and in bowing down unto them; when a judge died they ceased not from their own doings, nor from their stubborn ways. And the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel, and He said: Because this people hath transgressed my covenant which I made with their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice; I will not drive out any of the nations which Joshua left when he died; but through them I may prove (test) Israel whether they will keep the way of the Lord, to walk therein as their fathers, or not. Therefore, the Lord left those nations, without driving them out hastily, nor did He deliver them into the hand of Joshua, when he was alive. The Lord left five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, the Hivites that dwelt in Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal-hermon unto the entrance of Hamath to prove (test) Israel by them whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the Lord, and also to teach them war. So the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, the Jebusites, and the Girgashites. And they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods, Baalim, Ashtoreth, and others. Therefore the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel, and He sold them into the hand of Cushan-rishathaim king of Mesopotamia; and the children of Israel served him eight years. When the children of Israel cried unto the Lord, the Lord raised up a deliverer, Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother. The Spirit of the Lord was with him, and he judged Israel in righteousness and subdued Cushan-rishathaim. The land had rest forty years; and Othniel the first judge of Israel died.

Israel became corrupt again, and did evil in the sight of the Lord; so He strengthened Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, and he gathered unto him the children of Ammon and Amalek, and smote Israel and possessed the city of palm trees, in the valley of Jericho. The children of Israel served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years; and when they cried unto the Lord, the Lord raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a left-handed man; and by him the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab. But Ehud made him a two-edged dagger of a cubit length, and girded it under his raiment upon his right thigh. After he had delivered the present to Eglon who was a very fat man, he sent away the men who bore the present, but he himself returned from the quarries near Gilgal, and came to a summer parlour of Eglon king of Moab, and said: I have a secret errand unto thee, O King. And the king dismissed his servants by saying, Keep silence. Then Ehud arose out of his seat, saying: I have a message from God unto thee; and put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly. The handle of the dagger also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly, and the dirt came out. Then Ehud shut the doors and locked them, and left the parlour through the porch. Later, when the servants of Eglon noticed that the doors of the parlour were locked, they said: Surely he covereth his feet in his summer chamber. And they tarried till they were ashamed. And behold, when he opened not the doors of the parlour, the servants took a key and opened the doors, and saw that their master was dead on the ground. And Ehud escaped beyond the quarries unto Seirath, while the servants of Eglon tarried. When he reached the Mountain of Ephraim, he blew a trumpet, and said unto the children of Israel: Follow after me, for the Lord hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And Ehud led them from the mount, across the fords of the Jordan towards Moab; and they slew about ten thousand Moabites, all fat, hardy and lusty, men of valor. Thus Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel; and the land had rest eighty years.

Then Shamgar, son of Anath of the tribe of Naphtali, judged Israel less than a year and died; but before he died, he slew six hundred Philistine men with a cattle (ox) goad, and delivered Israel from their oppression. But the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord after the death of Ehud and Shamgar; and the Lord sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor. Sisera, who dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles, was the captain (commander) of the army of Jabin; and had nine hundred chariots of iron. He oppressed Israel mightily for twenty years. During this time Deborah, a prophetess and wife of Lapidoth, judged Israel. She dwelt under the Palm Tree of Deborah, between Ramah and Beth-El in Mount Ephraim; and the children of Israel came to her for judgement. And when the children of Israel cried unto the Lord, because of the oppression by Sisera, she sent for Barak, son of Abinoam who dwelt in Kedesh-naphtali, and said unto him: Hath not the Lord God of Israel commanded, saying: Go and draw toward Mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of Naphtali and of Zebulun. And I will draw unto thee, to the River Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand. And Barak said unto her: If thou wilt go with me, I will go; but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go. And she said: I will surely go with thee; notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honor; for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh-naphtali. Then, Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh, and he went up with ten thousand men, along with Deborah. Now, Heber the Kenite, who was a descendent of Hobab the son of the father-in-law of Moses, had separated himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent in the plain of Zaanaim, near Kedesh; and his people made peace with Jabin the king of Hazor and Sisera the captain of his armies; and they informed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to Mount Tabor. Then Sisera gathered together his nine hundred chariots of iron and all the people that were with him from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the River Kishon. And Deborah said unto Barak: Up, for this is the day that the Lord hath delivered Sisera into thine hand. Is not the Lord gone out before thee? So Barak left Mount Tabor with the army of ten thousand men of the tribes of Naphtali and Zebulun. And the Lord discomfited Sisera and all his chariots and men; and he fled on his feet toward the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite; and Barak pursued after the chariots and the men unto Harosheth of the Gentiles, and all the army of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword, until there was not a man left. And Jael went out of her tent to meet Sisera, and said unto him: Come inside, my master, come inside my tent, fear not; and when he entered into the tent, she covered him with a blanket. Then Sisera said unto Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him. Then he said to her: Stand in the door of the tent, and when anyone doth come and enquire of thee, saying, Is there any man there? Thou shalt say, no. When Sisera was fast asleep and weary, Heber's wife took a tent nail (pin, or peg) and an hammer in hand, and smote his head and pierced the nail through his temples, and fastened it into the ground. When Barak pursued Sisera unto the tent of Jael, she came out to meet him, and said: Come and I will show thee the man whom you seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the tent pin was pierced through his temples. Thus the prophecy of Deborah was fulfilled that the Lord shall deliver Sisera into the hands of a woman; and Jabin king of Canaan was subdued that day.

Then, Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam sang praises to the Lord, and Deborah spoke these words to Israel:

> Praise ye the Lord for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves. Hear O ye kings; give ear O ye princes; I, even I, will sing unto the Lord; I will sing praise to the Lord God of Israel. Lord, when Thou wentest out of Seir, when Thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water. The mountains melted from before the Lord, even as Sinai from before the Lord God of Israel.
>
> The highways were unoccupied, and travellers walked through byways in the days of Shamgar the son of Anath, as in the days of Jael today; the inhabitants of the villages ceased in Israel, until I Deborah arose; I arose a mother in Israel. They chose new gods, and there was war in the cities, but was there a shield or spear among forty-thousand in Israel? My heart is toward the rulers of Israel that offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the Lord. Speak, ye who ride on white asses, who sit to render judgement, and who walk by the way; for they are delivered from the noise of archers in places of drawing water; there they shall perform the righteous acts of the Lord, and the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of the villages of Israel; then they shall win the hearts of the people of the Lord, to go down and dwell in the cities. Awake, awake, Deborah, utter a song; arise

Barak and turn thy captivity around, and carry them as captives, those who have oppressed thee.

The Lord made a remnant of the Righteous to have dominion over the nobles among the people; and the Lord chose me to have dominion over the mighty. Out of Ephraim was there a root of them against Amalek, after thee Benjamin, among thy people. Out of Machir came down rulers, and out of Zebulun those that hold the scepter of the muster-officer (the marshal's staff). The princes of Issachar were with Deborah, and also Barak. He was sent on foot into the valley, for the divisions of Reuben there were great thoughts of heart; unstable as water were their thoughts and actions. Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that jeopardize their lives unto the high place of the field of battle; the heavens fought for them, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera. The river of Kishon swept the enemy away, the ancient river, the River Kishon, O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength. The kings came and fought, and the kings of Canaan fought in Taanach by the waters of Megiddo. The horsehoofs of the enemy were broken by means of prancings, the prancings of their mighty ones. Curse ye Meroz said the angel of the Lord, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to help of the Lord against the mighty. Blessed above the women in the tent be Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite; for Sisera asked for water, and she gave him milk, and brought forth curds (yogurt) in a bowl of nobles. She put her left hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workmen's hammer; and with the hammer she smote Sisera and pierced the nail through his temples to the ground. At her feet he bowed and fell; where he bowed, there he fell down dead. The mother of Sisera looked out of a window and cried through the lattice: Why is his chariot so long in coming? Why tarry the wheels of his chariot? Her wise ladies answered her, yea. Then she asked them: Are they not finding, and dividing spoil, to every man a damsel or two; and to Sisera a spoil of divers colors, a prey of divers colors of needlework on both sides, meet for the necks of those that take the spoil? Then, Deborah made an end to her utterance, saying: So let all Thine enemies perish, O Lord; but let them who love Thee be as the sun when it goeth forth in its might.

Then the land had rest forty years; and the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord delivered them into the hand of the Midianites for seven years. And because of their oppressions and cruelties, many children of Israel fled to the mountains and dwelt in the caves and strongholds. Whatever Israel had sown in the earth, was taken by Midianites, Amalekites, and also the children of the east; and they left no sustenance for Israel, neither sheep, nor ox, or ass, all the way to Gaza. The enemy came with their cattle and tents, as grasshoppers for multitude. They and their camels were without number, and they encamped throughout the land and dispossessed the Promised Land of Israel, and destroyed it.

Israel became greatly impoverished, because of the Midianites and the Amalekites; and the children of Israel cried unto the Lord. So the Lord sent a prophet, who said unto them: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I brought you forth from Egypt, the house of bondage; and I delivered you out of the hands of the Egyptians and all those who oppressed you; and drove them out from before you, and gave you their land. And I said unto you not to fear the gods of the Amorites in whose land ye dwell; but ye have not obeyed my voice. Then came an angel of the Lord, and sat under an oak tree in Orphah, which belonged to Joash the Abi-ezerite. Gideon, the son of Joash, was threshing wheat by the winepress, to hide it from the Midianites, and the angel of the Lord said unto him: The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of valour. And Gideon replied: Oh my lord, if the Lord be with us, why then all this has befallen us? And where be all His miracles which our fathers have told us, saying: Did not the Lord bring us up from Egypt? But now the Lord hath forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites. And the Lord looked upon him, and said: Go into this with all thine heart, mind, might and strength, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites; were they not sent by me? And Gideon answered: Oh my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? Behold, my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house. And the Lord said unto him: Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man. And Gideon said unto the angel of the Lord: If now I have found grace in thy sight, show me a sign that thou talkest with me. Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my present, and set it before thee. And Gideon went in, and made ready a kid, and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour; the flesh he put in a basket and broth in a pot, and brought them unto the angel of the Lord under the oak tree. And the angel of the Lord said unto Gideon: Take the flesh and the unleavened cake and lay them upon this rock, and pour out the broth. And he did so. Then the angel of the Lord put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and unleavened cakes; and there rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the Lord departed out of his sight. When Gideon perceived that he was indeed an angel of the Lord, he uttered: Alas, O Lord God! For I have seen an angel of the Lord, face to face. And the Lord said unto him: Peace be unto thee; fear not, thou shalt not die. The same night the Lord said unto him: Take thy father's young bullock, and also the second bullock of seven years old; and build an altar unto the Lord thy God upon the top of this rock (in Orphah); and take the second bullock and offer a burnt sacrifice with the wood of the grove (Asherim) which thou shalt cut down, and throw down the altar of Baal that thy father hath built. So Gideon took ten men servants and did by night as the Lord had commanded him to do, for he feared his father's household and the men of the city, during the day. Then he built an altar there on the rock, and called it Jehovah-shalom.

And when the men of the city arose early next morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove by it was cut down; and the second bullock was offered upon the new altar. So the men said one to another: Who hath done this thing? And when they found out that it was Gideon who did this, the men of the city said unto Joash, the father of Gideon: Bring out thy son, that he may die; because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and hath cut down the grove that was by it. And Joash replied unto all those who stood against him, saying: Will ye plead for Baal? Will ye save him? He that pleads for Baal, let him be put to death, while it is yet morning. If Baal be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar.

And on that day Joash called his son Jerubbaal, for he hath thrown down the altar of Baal. Then the Midianites, Amalekites, and the children of the east gathered together, and pitched (encamped) in the valley of Jezreel. But the Spirit of the Lord came over Gideon, and he blew a trumpet, and the Abi-ezerites gathered themselves. Then he sent messengers to the tribes of Manasseh, Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali; and they all, about thirty-two thousand men, gathered together, and came to meet Gideon, who was now called Jerubbaal. The next day all the people rose up early, and encamped beside the well of Harod; and the host of the Midianites and the Amalekites and the children of the east were encamped on their north side, by the Hill of Moreh, in the valley. Here, the Lord said unto Gideon: The people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites and all the hosts into their hand, lest Israel boast and rebel against me, saying: Mine own hand hath saved me. Now therefore go and proclaim in the ears of the people, saying: Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from Mount Gilead (Gilbon). And there returned about twenty-two thousand men. Then the Lord said unto Gideon: The people are yet too many. Bring them down to drink water, and I will try them for thee there. And it shall be that whom I say shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee, and of whomsoever I say shall not go with thee, the same shall not go. So Gideon brought down the people unto the waters, and the Lord said unto Gideon: Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise everyone who boweth down upon his knees to drink. These shalt be separated from those who lapped putting their hand to their mouth. All the people who lapped of the water with their hand were three hundred men; and the remainder (about nine thousand and seven hundred men) bowed down upon their knees to drink or lapped with their tongue.

And the Lord said unto Gideon: By these three hundred men I will save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hands; and let all the other men go, every man unto his place. And the same night the Lord said unto Gideon: Arise, get thee down into the host (the Midianites, the Amalekites and the children of the east), for I have delivered them into thine hand. But if thou fear to go down, take Phurah thy servant with thee, and thou shalt hear what they say, and afterward thine hands shall be strengthened. So Gideon and his servant went down to the valley where the armies of the Midianites, the Amalekites and the children of the east were encamped like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the seaside. When Gideon arrived at their encampment, he heard a man relating his dream to his fellowman, saying: Behold, I dreamed a dream, and lo, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the camp of the host, and came unto a tent, and smote it that it fell and overturned it, that the tent lay flat. And the fellow answered: This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon, son of Joash, a man of Israel; for into his hand hath God delivered Midian and all the host. And when Gideon heard the dream, and the interpretation thereof, he worshiped and returned to his own camp, and said: Arise, for the Lord hath delivered into your hands the host of Midian. Then he divided the three hundred men into three companies; and put a trumpet, an empty pitcher, and a lamp within each pitcher, in every man's hand; and said unto them: Look on to me and do likewise; and it shall be that when I leave our camp and blow my trumpet, I and all those that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of their camps, and cry: The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon. So Gideon took an hundred men, and went to the outskirts of the campsite of the Midianites and their host, about the time of the beginning of the middle watch; and blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers. The other two companies also blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers. Then the three companies stood in their assigned locations all around the campsite of the enemy, holding the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal; and cried, The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon. And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and the Lord caused every man's sword against his fellow throughout all the host of the Midianites; and the host fled unto Beth-shittah in Zererath and to the border of Abel-meholah unto Tabbath. Then the tribes of Naphtali, Asher, Zebulun and Manasseh gathered themselves together and pursued after the host of the Midianites; and Gideon sent messengers throughout all Mount Ephraim, saying; Come down against the Midianites and take them on before the waters unto Beth-barah and the Jordan. The Ephraimites gathered themselves, and conquered the territory between the Jordan and Beth-barah; and captured two Midianite princes, Oreb and Zeeb. Then they slew Oreb upon the rock Oreb, and Zeeb at the winepress of Zeeb; and after pursuing the host of the Midianites, they brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the other side of the Jordan. And the men of Ephraim chided (rebuked) Gideon, saying: Why hast thou calledst us not, when thou went to fight with the Midianites; why hast thou ignored us? And Gideon replied: What have I done in comparison with what you did; is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than vintage of Abi-ezer? God hath delivered unto your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb; what was I able to do in comparison with you? Then their anger subsided toward him, when they heard these words spoken by Gideon. Then Gideon and his three hundred men crossed over the Jordan, fatigued yet pursuing the Midianites; and when they came to Succoth, Gideon asked the princes (rulers) of Succoth, saying; Give, I pray thee, loaves of bread unto my men that they may faint not with hunger and fatigue; and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna (meaning "Butcher" and "Cruel," respectively, in Arabic), kings of Midian. So the princes of Succoth said: Are Zebah and Zalmunna in thine hand that we should give bread unto thine army? And Gideon said: Therefore when the Lord shall deliver Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers; and Gideon and his men moved on to Penuel, and spoke unto the men there likewise. And the men of Penuel answered in the same manner as the men at Succoth. Then Gideon left the place, saying: When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower.

And Gideon and his three hundred men went up by the way of the tent dwellers, east of Nobah and Jogbehah to Karkor; where Zebah and Zalmunna and their armies of fifteen thousand men were encamped, for an hundred and twenty thousand Midianites and their hosts already fell, who drew sword. Here, at Karkor, Zebah and Zalmunna were captured after pursuit, and all the host were discomfited. Then Gideon, son of Joash, returned to Succoth and caught a young man there, who described to him the princes of Succoth and seventy-seven elders. And Gideon came unto the princes and elders of Succoth and said: Behold Zebah and Zalmunna with whom ye did upbraid me saying, Are Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thy men that are weary? And he took the rulers of the city, and repaid them with thorns of the wilderness and briers; and he beat down the tower of Penuel, and slew the men of the city. Then Gideon asked the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna: What manner of men were they whom ye slew at Tabor? And they answered, as thou art, so were they; each one resembled the child of a king. And Gideon said, they were my brethren, even the sons of my mother; as the Lord liveth, if you wouldn't have slain them, I would have spared your lives. And Gideon said unto his firstborn son to slay the kings; but the youth drew not his sword; for he feared and was yet a youth. Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, Rise thou and fall upon us; for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the ornaments that were on their camels' necks.

Then the men of Israel said unto Gideon, who was also called Jerubbaal, rule over us, both thou and thy son, and thy son's son also; for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian. And Gideon replied: I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you; but the Lord shall rule over you. I would, however, desire a request of you, that ye give me every man the gold earrings of his prey (for the Midianites wore gold earrings, as did the Ishmaelites). And the men of Israel answered: We will willingly give them; and they spread a garment, and did cast therein every man the earrings of his prey. The weight of the golden earrings that were collected was one thousand and seven hundred shekels, besides the gold chains that were around the necks of their camels; and ornaments, collars and purple raiment that was on the kings of Midian. And Gideon had an ephod made of these materials, and put it to display in his city of Orphah; and all Israel went thither a whoring after it, and the thing became a snare unto Gideon and his house. Thus the Midianites and their host were subdued; and the country had quietness and peace for forty years, during the days of Gideon.

Jerubbaal, which is Gideon, had seventy sons of his body begotten, for he had many wives. And his concubine, who dwelt in Shechem, also had borne him a son, named Abimelech. And it came to pass that as soon as Gideon died in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father Joash, in Orphah; the children of Israel rebelled again against God, and went a whoring after Baalim, and made Baal-berith their god; and they remembered not the Lord their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every side. Neither did they show any kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely Gideon, after all the goodness he had shown unto Israel.

Now Abimelech, son of Jerubbaal, who dwelt among the relatives of his mother in Shechem, spoke unto his mother's brethren and all the family of the house of his mother, saying: Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem, whether it is better for you that all the seventy sons of Jerubbaal reign over you, or that one reign over you? Remember also that I am your flesh and bone. And his mother's kindred spoke of Abimelech in the ears of all the men of Shechem; and their hearts inclined toward Abimelech, for they said: He is our brother. And they gave him seventy pieces of silver out of the house of Baal-berith; and Abimelech used the money to hire vain and empty men to follow him. Then he took these men to Orphah, and slew his brethren, the sons of his father Jerubbaal, being seventy persons; but Jotham the youngest son of Jerubbaal escaped the massacre, for he hid himself. And all the men of Shechem and the house of Millo (house of Abimelech's mother's father) gathered together by the terebinth tree in the plain of the pillar, and made Abimelech their king.

When Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal (Gideon), heard this, he went and stood on the top of Mount Gerizim, lifted up his voice and cried, saying: Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, that God may witness unto you. Once upon a time the trees went forth to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive tree, Reign thou over us. But the olive tree replied: Should I leave my fatness, that by me they honor God, and man, and go to be promoted over the trees? So the trees said to the fig tree, come thou and reign over us. But the fig tree also declined, saying: Should I forsake my sweetness and good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees? Then said the trees unto the vine, come thou and reign over us; and the vine replied: Should I leave my wine, which cheereth God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees? Then said all the trees unto the bramble, come then and reign over us; and the bramble replied: If in truth ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my shadow; and if not, let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon. Now, therefore, if ye have done truly and sincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and dealt justly with the house of Jerubbaal, then rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him rejoice in you; but if not, let the fire come out from Abimelech and devour the men of Shechem and the house of Millo; and let the fire come out from the men of Shechem and house of Millo, and devour Abimelech. Then Jotham fled from Mount Gerizim, for he was afraid of Abimelech, his brother; and dwelt in Beer.

It took three years for the iniquities, sins and ways of error to fully ripen in Shechem, for the Lord's judgement. And it came to pass that when Abimelech had reigned three years over Israel, the Lord sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the hostility between the two increased; and they were driven by the consequence of the sin of slaying seventy persons of the house of Jerubbaal (Gideon). So the men of Shechem set liers in ambush against Abimelech on top of the mountains; and they robbed all that passed through the mountains. Then Gaal the son of Ebed (Obed) came with his brethren to Shechem, and took the men of the city into his confidence; and they all communed in their vineyards, trod the grapes and made merry; ate and drank in the house of their gods, Baalim and Ashtoreth (Ishtar), and cursed Abimelech. Here, Gaal the son of Ebed spoke to the people, saying: Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem that we should serve him? Is not he the bastard son of Jerubbaal (Gideon), and is not Zebul his headman? Serve we the men of Hamor, father of Shechem the Hivite; why should we serve him? (It was this Shechem who defiled Dinah, daughter of Jacob by Leah; and Simeon and Levi, sons of Jacob, in their anger, slew all the males of his household, in times past.) And would to God this people were under my command; then I would remove Abimelech. Then Gaal sent the word to Abimelech, saying: Increase thine army and come out to fight. And when Zebul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal, he became furious, and sent his messengers privily to Abimelech, saying: Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed and his men are come to Shechem, and turning the people of the city against thee. Now, therefore, up by night, thou and all thy men, and lie in wait in the field outside the city. And it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up thou and thy men shall rise early, and set upon the city; and when Gaal and his men come out against thee, mayest thou do to them as thou shalt find occasion. So Abimelech and all his men rose up by night, and laid wait against Shechem in four companies. And when Gaal the son of Ebed went near the entrance gate of the city to call on Zebul, behold, Abimelech and all his men rose up from the ambush. So Gaal said to Zebul: Behold, there come the people from the top of the mountains, thou art now surrounded! And Zebul replied: Thou seest the shadows of the mountains as if they were men. So Gaal said: See there come people down by the middle of the land and another company by the oak of the diviners (the plains of Meonenim). Then Zebul said unto him: Where is thy mouth now wherewith thou saidst: Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem that we should serve him? Is not this the people thou despised? Go out now, I pray, and fight with them! And Gaal and his men fought with Abimelech.

And Abimelech chased Gaal and his men unto the city gates of Shechem; and many were overthrown and wounded. Then Abimelech moved his camp to Arumah; and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his men from Shechem, for they were not allowed to dwell in the city. Next morning Abimelech was informed that Zebul had usurped all the power and authority through craftiness, and had thrust Gaal and his men out of Shechem. So Abimelech gathered his men, and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field outside the city; and when Gaal and his men came forth out of the entrance gate, Abimelech and his men rose up in ambush, and slew them. Then they entered the city and fought all day, and besieged Shechem, slew the people and sowed it with salt; but all the men of renown and leaders of the city hid themselves in the tower of Shechem. When Abimelech was informed that all the leaders of the city were gathered together into an hold of the house of god Berith in the Tower of Shechem, Abimelech and his men got themselves up to Mount Zalmon; and Abimelech took an axe in his hand, and cut down a branch from the tree, and commanded all his men to do the same, to gather enough wood to set up a pyre around the Tower of Shechem. And they set it on fire, killing all the men who hid themselves inside the tower, about a thousand men, women, and children.

Then Abimelech and his men moved to Thebez, and encamped there. And when the inhabitants of the city saw them, they all fled to a strong tower within the city; and shut the heavy door of the tower from inside, and got themselves to the top of the tower. And when Abimelech came near the door of the tower and struggled to open it and to burn it with fire, a certain woman cast a piece of the millstone upon Abimelech's head, and broke his skull. Then he called hastily unto the young man his armourbearer, and said unto him: Draw thy sword and slay me, that men say not of me, a woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died. When men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place. Thus God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, who had the blood of seventy brethren of the house of his father Gideon (Jerubbaal) upon his head; and the curse of Jotham, the youngest son of Gideon who survived the massacre, was fulfilled upon the men of Shechem.

After the death of Abimelech, Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, of the tribe of Issachar, judged and defended Israel twenty-three years, from Shamir in Mount Ephraim. Then he died, and was buried in Shamir. After him arose Jair, a Gileadite of the tribe of Manasseh. He judged Israel twenty-two years; and his thirty sons rode on thirty ass colts in thirty cities (Havoth-jair) in the land of Gilead. Then Jair died and was buried in Camon (Kamon). And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the Lord, and served Baalim, Ashtoreth, the gods of Syria, Sidon (Zidon), Moab, Ammon, and the Philistines; and foresook the Lord God of Israel. The anger of the Lord was kindled hot against Israel so they were delivered into the hands of the Philistines and the children of Ammon. And the Philistines and the Ammonites vexed and oppressed Israel for eighteen years in the land of Gilead, on the other side of the Jordan; moreover, the Ammonites crossed over the Jordan to fight against Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim. Israel became sore distressed, and the children of Israel cried unto the Lord, saying: We have sinned against Thee, both because we have forsaken the True and Living God of Israel, and also served other gods. And the Lord said unto them: Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, from the Amorites, and from the children of Ammon, and from the Philistines? The Zidonians (Sidonians) also, and the Amalekites and the Maonites; whenever ye cried unto me. And each time, soon after you were delivered, ye have forsaken me, and gone a whoring after other gods. Because my anger is now kindled hot against Israel, I shall deliver you not this time. Go and cry unto the gods which you have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation. So the children of Israel cried repentance unto the Lord, saying: We have indeed sinned. Do Thou unto us whatsoever seemeth good unto Thee; deliver us only, we pray Thee, this day. And they put away the strange gods from among them, and served the Lord diligently; and the Lord was grieved at the misery of Israel. Then the children of Ammon gathered together and encamped in the territory of Gilead; and elders and rulers (princes) of Israel gathered themselves at Mizpeh (Mizpah), in northern Gilead, in the territory of Manasseh; and said one to another: The man who leads the fight against the children of Ammon, the same shall be the head of all the land of Gilead (Galeed). Is there such a man amongst you? Now, there lived a man named Gilead (Galeed) in Manasseh; and Gilead begat Jephthah by a harlot, for his wife was barren. Then his wife conceived and bore him sons. And when the sons of Gilead's wife grew up, they obtained the favor of the elders and the people, and thrust out Jephthah, and said unto him: Thou shall not inherit our father's house, for thou art the son of a strange woman. And Jephthah, a mighty man of valour, fled from his brethren and dwelt in the land of Tob (east-southeast of the Sea of Chinnereth, the Sea of Galilee); amongst the vain and empty men who surrounded him day and night, and kept his company. And it came to pass that when the Ammonites made war against Israel, the elders of Israel in Gilead went to the land of Tob to fetch Jephthah, and said unto him: Come and be our commander (captain) that we may fight with the children of Ammon. And Jephthah said unto the elders; Did not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's house? Why are ye now come unto me, when ye are in distress? And the elders of the land of Gilead said unto Jephthah: For this reason now we have returned to thee, that you mayest go with us and fight with Ammon, and be our head over all the land of Gilead: And Jephthah replied: If ye bring me home again, and the Lord deliver the children of Ammon into my hands, shall I be your head? And the elders of Israel in Gilead said unto Jephthah: The Lord be witness between us, if we do not so according to thy words. So Jephthah went with them, to Mizpeh (Mizpah), and they made him head and commander (captain) over Israel, and Jephthah poured out his heart to the Lord. Then he sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, saying; What hast thou to do with me that thou art come to fight against me in my own land?

And the king of the Ammonites answered: Nay, because Israel took away my land, when they came from Egypt, from (the torrent valley of) Arnon unto (the torrent valley of) Jabbok, east of the Jordan. Now therefore restore our land peaceably, lest we fight against thee. So Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, saying: Thus saith Jephthah, Israel took not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon; but when Israel came up from Egypt, after walking through the wilderness of the Red Sea (Sinai Peninsula), then Israel sent messengers from Kadesh (Petra) unto the king of Edom and Moab, saying: Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land; but they would not hearken. So Israel went around the land of Edom, through the wilderness, by the way of Punon, Oboth, Ije-abarim, unto the border of Moab, near the valley of Zered. Then from Dibon (by the King's Highway) Israel sent messengers unto Sihon the Amorite king of Heshbon, saying: Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land in peace. But Sihon trusted not Israel to pass through his territory, and gathered all his people and fought against Israel at Jahaz. And the Lord God of Israel delivered into the hand of Israel Sihon and all his land and people, from Arnon unto Jabbok, then the Lord delivered the Amorite king Og of Bashan, who came to fight against Israel at Edrei; and all his land and people, from Jabbok unto Mount Herman in the north, a total of sixty cities, into the hand of Israel. Thus, the children of Israel possessed all the land of Gilead on the east of the Jordan; for the Lord God of Israel had dispossessed the Amorites from before His people Israel. Now thou desireth to possess that which was given to Israel as a land of their inheritance? Wilt not thou be content to possess that which Chemosh thy god hath given thee to possess? Whomsoever the Lord our God shall drive out from before us, them will we possess. Art thou any better than Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he ever strive or fight against Israel, while Israel dwelt in Heshbon (Hesbon) and her towns, in Aroer and her towns, and in all the cities by the shores of Arnon, for the past three hundred years (from 1473 B.C. until 1173 B.C.)? Why did ye not claim this during this time? Wherefore I have not sinned against thee, but thou doeth wrong to war against me. May the Lord the Judge judge this day between Israel and the children of Ammon. Nevertheless, the king of the Ammonites hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah. Then the Spirit of the Lord came upon Jephthah, and he departed from Mizpeh of Gilead and the territory of Manasseh, into the camp of the Ammonites in Gilead; and he vowed a vow unto the Lord, saying: If Thou shalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, then it shall be that whatsoever of mine comes forth of the door of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be the Lord's, and I will offer it up for a burnt offering.

So Jephthah fought against the Ammonites, and the Lord delivered them into his hands; and he smote them from Aroer to Minnith, unto the plain of the vineyards, a total of twenty cities, with a very great slaughter. Thus the Ammonites were subdued before Israel. Then Jephthah returned to Mizpeh (Mizpah) unto his house; and, behold, his daughter, his only child, came out of the door of his house, along with her maiden companions, to greet him with timbrels (tambourines) and dances. And when Jephthah saw his only child come out of the house, he rent his clothes, saying; Alas, my daughter! Thou hast indeed brought me to my knees, and caused this grief; for I have opened my mouth unto the Lord, and cannot go back. I had vowed a vow unto the Lord, saying: If thou wilt for a surety deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, then it shall be that whatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return, I will offer it up for a burnt offering. So the daughter of Jephthah said unto him: My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth unto the Lord, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth; forasmuch as the Lord hath taken vengeance for thee of thine enemies, even the children of Ammon. Let this thing be done for me; and let me alone two months, that I may go up and down upon the mountains, and bewail my virginity with my friends. And Jephthah said, Go. And he sent her away for two months. So she left with her companions and bewailed her virginity upon the mountains and knew no man. At the end of two months she returned unto her father, who did with her according to his vow. And it became a custom in Israel that the daughters of Israel went yearly upon the mountains to lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, four days a year.

Then, the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together and went northward, and rebuked Jephthah, saying; Wherefore passed thou over to fight against the children of Ammon, and didst not call us to go with thee? We will burn thine house upon thee with fire. So Jephthah said unto them: I and my people were at great strife with the children of Ammon; and when I called upon you, ye delivered me not out of their hands. And when I saw that ye delivered me not, I put my life in my hands, and marched aginst the children of Ammon; and the Lord delivered them into my hands. Wherefore then are ye come up unto me this day, to fight against me? Then Jephthah gathered together all his men of Gilead, and fought with Ephraim and smote them; because they said: Ye Gileadites are fugitives of Ephraim among the Ephraimites and the Manassites. And the Gileadites took away from the Ephraimites the access to the Jordan River, and the Ephraimites were not allowed to cross the Jordan on either side. And it was so, that when a man escaped to cross over the Jordan, the men of Gilead asked him: Art thou an Ephraimite? If he said, Nay; then they asked him to say the word Shibboleth, for the Ephraimites could not frame to pronounce it right, and said Sibboleth. In this manner forty-two thousand Ephraimites were slain and thrown into the River Jordan.

Thus Jephthah judged Israel six years; then he died, and was buried in one of the cities of Gilead. After him Ibzan of Beth-lehem judged Israel. He had thirty sons, and thirty daughters; and he sent away abroad his thirty daughters, and took in thirty daughters-in-law from abroad for his sons. Ibzan judged Israel seven years, then died and was buried at Beth-lehem. After him Elon, a Zebulunite, judged Israel ten years. Then Elon died, and was buried in Aijalon in the territory of Zebulun. The next judge of Israel was Abdon (Bedan) the son of Hillel, a Pirathonite of Ephraim. He had forty sons and thirty grandsons and nephews, that rode on seventy ass colts with him; and he judged Israel peacefully for eight years. Then Abdon died, and was buried in Pirathon, in the land of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

Then the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord delivered them into the hands of the Philistines for forty years. And there lived a certain man of the tribe of Dan in the city of Zorah, in Shephelah, about fourteen miles west of Jerusalem, between the territory of Dan and Judah, whose name was Manoah. His wife remained barren and could not conceive; and an angel of the Lord appeared unto the woman, and said: Behold now, thou art barren and bearest not; but thou shalt conceive and bear a son. Now, therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not strong drink nor wine, and eat not unclean things (things which are unclean according to the dietary laws of Jehovah). No razor shall come upon his head, for the child shall be a Nazarite unto God from the womb; and he shall begin to deliver Israel out of the hands of the Philistines. So the woman came to her husband, and said: A man of God appeared unto me, and his countenance was that of an angel, very terrifying; but I asked him not from where he came, neither did he tell me his name. But he said unto me: Behold thou shalt conceive, and bear a son, and now drink no wine or strong drink, neither eat anything unclean; for the child shall be a Nazarite unto God from the womb to the day of his death. Then Manoah entreated the Lord, and said: O my Lord, let the man of God which you didst send come again unto us, and teach us what we shall do unto the child that shall be born. And God hearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel of the Lord appeared again unto the woman as she sat in the field. She made haste and ran inside the house, and showed her husband the man, saying: Behold, this is the same man that appeared to me the other day. So Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and approached the man, saying: Art thou the man that spakest unto the woman? And the angel said, I am. And Manoah said: Now let thy words come to pass. How shall we raise the child, and what shall we do to him? The angel of the Lord replied: Of all that I said unto the woman let her beware. She may not eat anything that cometh of the vine, or drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing. All that I have commanded let her observe. Then Manoah said unto the angel: I pray thee, let us detain thee, until we have made ready a kid for thee. And the angel of the Lord replied: Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread. If thou wish to offer a burnt offering, thou must offer it unto the Lord. (For Manoah knew not that the man was an angel sent from the presence of the Lord.) Then, Manoah asked him: What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honor? The angel replied: Why askest thou thus, seeing it is secret? So Manoah took a kid with a meat (meal) offering, and offered it upon a rock unto the Lord, as the angel of the Lord and the woman reverently looked on. And, behold, as the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame. When Manoah and his wife saw this, they fell on their faces to the ground; and the angel of the Lord did no more appear unto them. Then Manoah knew that he was indeed an angel of the Lord; and said unto his wife: We shall surely die, because we have seen God. But his wife said unto him: If the Lord were pleased to kill us, He would not have received a burnt offering and a meat offering at our hands; neither would He have shown us all these things, and appeared the second time.

And it came to pass that the woman did conceive and bare a son, and called his name Samson; the child grew, and the Lord blessed him. The Spirit of God began to move him at times in the camp of Dan, between Zorah and Eshtaol. When Samson was at Timnath (Timnah, Tibnah), he saw one of the daughters of the Philistines, and she pleased him well; so Samson went to his father and mother, and said: I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines. Now, therefore, get her for me to wife. Then his father and mother said unto him: Is there not a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, or among all our people that thou goest to take a wife of the uncircumcised? And Samson said unto his father: Get her for me; for she pleaseth me well. But his father and mother knew not that it was a thing of the Lord, that He sought an occasion against the Philistines; for at that time the Philistines had dominion over Israel. Then Samson went down to Timnath with his father and mother, and encamped in the vineyards there. Behold, while he was wandering about the place, a young lion roared against him; and the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon Samson, and he rent the lion with his bare hand, as if he were a kid. But he told not his father and mother what he had done. Then they went to Timnath and talked with the family of the woman, and they made arrangements for the wedding. After a time Samson and his father and mother returned from the camp of Dan between Zorah and Eshtaol to Timnath, to take the bride; on their way, they encamped at vineyards of Timnath. Here Samson turned aside to see the carcass of the lion which he had killed the last time they were there. Behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcass of the lion. So he took the honeycomb out of the carcass, and walked back to his father and mother, eating honey; and gave them to eat also, but he told them not that he had taken the honey out of the carcass of the lion. When they reached the house of the woman in Timnath, Samson made there a feast seven days; for it was the custom to do so. Among the guests, Samson was in the company of thirty men of the Philistines, who came from Ashkelon. And Samson said unto these men: I will now put forth a riddle unto you. If ye can guess it within the seven days of the feast, then I will give you thirty sheets (tunics) and thirty new garments; but if ye cannot guess it, then ye give me thirty sheets and thirty new garments. And they said unto him: Put forth the riddle that we may hear it. And Samson said unto them: Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. Three days went by and they could not guess it; and each day Samson's wife wept before him, saying: Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not; thou hast put forth a riddle unto my people (the Philistines) and hast not confided in me. So Samson said unto her; Behold, I have not told my father and mother, and shall I tell it thee? And she wept before him seven days, while the feast lasted. On the seventh day the men from Ashkelon said unto Samson's wife: Entice thy husband that he may declare unto us the riddle, lest we burn thee and thy father's house with fire. Have ye called us to your wedding to rob us of our possessions? Is it not so? And it came to pass that on the seventh day, when the thirty men left for Ashkelon, Samson told his wife the riddle, because she lay sore upon him. Then she told the riddle to her people in the city; and the men of Timnath told Samson: What is sweeter than honey? And what is stronger than a lion? And he replied: If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye would not have found out my riddle. Then the Spirit of the Lord came upon him, and Samson went down to Ashkelon and slew the thirty men, and took their spoil, and gave change of garments unto the men in Timnath who expounded the riddle. And Samson left the house of his wife, and returned to his father's house, in the camp of Dan. While he was gone, the wife of Samson was given to a Philistine companion, his friend. A short time after, during the wheat harvest, Samson decided to visit his wife in Timnath, and took with him a kid. But when he reached there, the father of his wife said unto Samson: I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her; therefore I gave her to thy companion. Is not her younger sister fairer than she? Take her, I pray thee, instead of her. Then Samson thought in his heart, now I shall be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure; and he went and caught three hundred foxes, and tied a piece of burning wood (firebrand) between the two tails and set it on fire. Then he drove the foxes into the grain fields of the Philistines; and burnt up the piles of sheaves and standing grain, vineyards and olive orchards. So the Philistines gathered themselves together and asked who had done this? And when they knew that Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, had done this thing, because his father-in-law had given his wife to his Philistine companion; they burnt the Timnite and his younger daughter. And Samson said unto them: Though ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you, and after that I will cease; and he smote them hip and thigh, with a great slaughter, then fled from the Philistines and dwelt in the top of the rock Etam. So the Philistines went up and pitched in Judah and spread themselves in Lehi; and when the men of Judah asked why had they come against them, they answered: To bind Samson are we come up, to do unto him as he hath done unto us. Then three thousand men of Judah went to the top of the rock Etam, and said unto Samson: Knowest thou not that the Philistines are rulers over us? What is this that thou hast done unto us? And Samson replied: As they did unto me, so have I done unto them. So the men of Judah answered, saying: We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hands of the Philistines. And Samson said unto them: Swear unto me, that ye will not fall upon me yourselves. And they replied: No. But we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hands; surely we will not kill thee. Then they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock. And when they brought him to Lehi, the Philistines shouted against him, and the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, and the cords that bound his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire; and the bands were loosened from off his hands. Nearby he found a recent carcass of an ass, and he put forth his hand and took the jawbone.

With it he slew a thousand men. And Samson said: With the jawbone of an ass heaps upon heaps; with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men. Then he cast away the jawbone out of his hand, and called the place Ramath (Rahmath)-lehi. Soon after, he became very thirsty, and there was no water around. So he called on the Lord and said: Thou hast given this great deliverance into the hands of Thy servant; and now shall I die with thirst and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised? So the Lord led Samson to the carcass of the ass, and he found trapped water in the hollow (cavity) of the jaw. And when he had quenched his thirst, his spirit came again, and was revived. Wherefore he called the place En-hakkore. Thus, Samson judged Israel twenty years in the days of the Philistines.

And it came to pass that Samson went to Gaza, and there he saw an harlot and went in unto her. When it was told the Gazites that Samson was come hither, they compassed him in and laid in wait all night by the gate of the city; and remained quiet all night, saying: In the morning, when there is daylight, we shall kill him. But Samson arose at midnight and took apart the doors of the city gate, two posts, bars and all, and they were carried on shoulders to the top of an hill in Hebron. After some time, he loved a woman who dwelt in the (torrent) valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah. And the lords (rulers) of the Philistines came up to her and said: Entice him into revealing the secret of his great strength. Find out wherein lies his great strength, and by what means we may prevail against him, that we may bind him to afflict him. Each one of us will give thee eleven hundred pieces of silver. And Delilah asked Samson: Tell me, I pray thee, wherein lieth thy great strength, and how thou mightest be bound to be afflicted. And Samson replied: If they bind me with seven green withs (cords) that were never dried, then I shall become weak, as any other man. So the Lords of the Philistines brought to her seven green withs which had not been dried, and she bound him with them and said: The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he broke the withs as the pulling rope is broken, when it toucheth the fire, while the men laid in wait in the chamber of her dwelling place. And Delilah said unto Samson: Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies; now tell me, I pray thee, wherein lieth thy strength. So he said: If thou weavest the seven locks of my head with the web of the loom, then my strength shall fail. And while Samson was asleep, she took the hair of his head and fastened it to the pin of the beam, and weaved with the web, saying: The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he immediately awoke from his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam and the web. But she kept on pressing him daily with her words, that he might reveal his secret; and said unto him: How canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? Thou hast mocked me three times and hast not told me wherein lieth thy great strength. So when Samson could no longer bear the vexation to his soul by her daily probe, he told her all his heart, saying; There hath not come a razor upon mine head, for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb. If I be shaven, then my strength will leave me, and I shall become weak, like any other man. And when Delilah saw that he had told her the truth, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying: Come up this once, for he hath showed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philistines came up to her, and brought money in their hands. And she made him sleep upon her knees; and called for a barber and persuaded him to shave off the seven locks of his head; and she began to afflict him, while his strength left him. And when she said, the Philistines be upon thee, Samson, he awoke out of his sleep, and said unto himself, I will leave as other times before, and shake myself; but he knew not that the Lord had departed from him. Then the Philistines took him and put out his eyes and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house, nevertheless the hair of his head began to grow again. Then the lords of the Philistines gathered together to offer a great sacrifice unto Dagon their god, to rejoice, for they said: our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hands. And when the people saw Samson, they praised their god, saying: Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy and the destroyer of our country, who slew many of us. Afterwards, when their hearts were merry, they said: Call Samson out of the prison house, that he may make us sport; and they brought him out and set him between two of the pillars, upon which the roof of the structure was built. The building was full of men, women and children; and all the lords of the Philistines were there. Upon the roof of the building were about three thousand spectators. Then Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand: Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them. And Samson called upon the name of the Lord, and said: O Lord God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, one with his right hand and the other with his left, and said, Let me die with the Philistines; and bowed himself with all his might, holding and pushing the pillars away from him. Lo, the house fell upon the lords and all the people that were therein. More people were killed with him on that day than those whom he slew in his lifetime. Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and buried him in the burying place of Manoah his father, between Zorah and Eshtaol. Thus ended the twenty-year reign of Samson as a judge of Israel.

From the time Israel crossed the Jordan River, into the land of Canaan, under the leadership (judgeship) of Joshua, until the time of Samson, various judges judged the children of Israel in their own territories; and defended them against their enemies. These judges or rulers judged Israel in temporal matters; and the Aaronic high priest judged in spiritual matters. The council of the judges, however, was under the power and authority of the Aaronic high priest, who presided over them. During the three hundred and fifty-one years (from the time of Israel's entry into the Promised Land in 1473 B.C., until the end of the judgeship of Samson of Dan, in 1122 B.C.), thirteen chief judges judged Israel in various territories. These were Othniel, Ehud, Shamgar, Deborah, Gideon, Abimelech, Tola, Jair, Jephthah, Ibzan, Elon, Abdon, and Samson. During the same period, six Aaronic high priests, Eleazar, Phinehas, Abishua, Bukki, Uzzi, and Eli (of the line of Ithamar, son of Aaron) presided over these judges at various times. Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, until his death in 1432 B.C., and beyond; about forty years after the entry into the land of Canaan. Then Israel was oppressed by the Syrians under Cushan-rishathaim, eight years; the Moabites, under Eglon, eighteen years; the Canaanites, under Jabin of Jazor, twenty years; by the Midianites seven years; the Ammonites eighteen years; and by the Philistines forty years; a total of one hundred and eleven years Israel was oppressed. And at various intervals Israel had rest, and the land had no national disturbances for a total of two hundred years, during this period of three hundred and fifty-one years.

In those days there was no king in Israel; every man did that which was right in his own eyes. And it happened that during the beginning of the times of the judges, after the death of Joshua, there came a famine in the land; and a certain man of Beth-lehem-judah named Elimelech (my God is King) went to sojourn in the country of Moab, with his wife Naomi and two sons Mahlon and Chilion. They were Ephrathites, of Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem in Judah. And it came to pass that Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died there; and she was left with her two sons. And they took wives of the women of Moab; the name of one was Orphah (Ariphah), and of the other was Ruth. After they dwelt there about ten years, Mahlon and Chilion also died; and Naomi was left with the wives of her sons. Then she heard in the land of Moab, how the Lord had visited His people in giving them bread, on the other side of the Jordan; and Naomi said unto her daughters-in-law: Go, return each of you to your mother's house; may the Lord deal kindly with you, as you have dealt with the dead, and with me. The Lord grant that ye may find rest in Moab. Then she kissed them; and they lifted up their voices and wept, and said unto Naomi: Surely we will return with thee unto thy people. And Naomi said: Listen again, my daughters. Why will ye go with me? Are there yet any more sons in my womb, that they may be your husbands? Listen again, my daughters. Go your way; for I am too old to have an husband. If I should say so, I have hope, and even if I should have an husband this very night, and also bear sons; would ye tarry for them till they are grown? Would ye wait for them? Nay, my daughter, it grieveth me much for your sakes that the hand of the Lord is gone out against me. And they lifted up their voices and wept again; and Orphah kissed her mother-in-law, and left; but Ruth held on to her. And Naomi said unto her: Thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people and unto her gods; return thou also after thy sister-in-law. But Ruth replied: Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest, there will I die, and be buried. The Lord do so to me, and more, if ought but death part thee and me. When Naomi saw that she was steadfast in going with her, she stopped speaking. Then Naomi and Ruth left Moab, and came to Beth-lehem, in the land of Judah. When they arrived there in the beginning of the barley harvest, all the city gathered around them, and said: Is this Naomi? And she said: Call me not Naomi, seeing the Lord hath gone out against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me (for "Naomi" meant "my pleasantness"); call me Mara (or Marah, meaning bitter) for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me.

And Naomi had a kinsman of Elimelech, her husband's brother, named Boaz, a mighty man of wealth, who dwelt in Beth-lehem. And it came to pass that Ruth the Moabite said unto Naomi: Let me now go to the field of anyone, in whose sight I may find grace, and glean ears of corn. And she said unto her; Go, my daughter. So Ruth went out to seek a field to glean, along with other reapers; and her chance fell on a part of the field belonging to Boaz. Behold, Boaz came home from Beth-lehem, and said unto the reapers: The Lord be with you, and they answered: The Lord bless thee. Then Boaz inquired of his head servant over the reapers, as to who this damsel was. And the servant answered: She is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab. She came and said: I pray thee, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves; and hath continued even from the morning until now. Then Boaz walked unto Ruth, and said: Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence; but abide here fast (close) by my maidens (reapers). Let thine eyes be upon the field and the reapers. Have I not charged the young men that they shall not touch thee? And when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels, and drink that which the young men have drawn from the well for their master. Then Ruth fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him: Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou should take notice of me, seeing that I am a stranger? And Boaz replied: It hath fully been shown me all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law since the death of thine husband; and how thou hast left thy father and mother, and the land of thy birth, and art come unto a people which thou knowest not up to this time. May the Lord recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to trust. Then she said unto Boaz: Let me find favor in thy sight, my lord; for thou hast comforted me and hast spoken friendly unto thine handmaid, though I be not like unto one of thine handmaidens. And Boaz said unto her: At mealtime come thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar. So she went and sat beside the reapers, and ate her parched corn; which sufficed her, then she rose up and went about her work to glean; and Boaz commanded his young men, saying; Let her glean even among the sheaves; neither reproach nor rebuke her, but let some fall on purpose, handfuls here and there, that she may glean them. And she gleaned the field of barley, till the evening; then, she thrashed out that which she had gleaned; and it was about an ephah (about .62 bushel) of barley. Then she carried it into the city, and kept a portion for herself and gave Naomi her portion which she had reserved for her. Then Naomi asked her daughter-in-law: Where hast thou gleaned today? And where wroughtest thou? Blessed be he that did take notice of thee. So Ruth told her that the name of the man with whom she wrought today was Boaz. And Naomi said: Blessed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead; the man is near of kin unto us, one of our next kinsmen, a brother of Elimelech, having the right to redeem. And Ruth the Moabitess said: He also said unto me: Thou shalt keep fast (close) by my young men, until the end of the harvest season. Then Naomi said unto Ruth: It is good, my daughter, that thou goest out with his maidens and not in the fields of others. So Ruth kept close to the maidens of Boaz unto the end of the barley harvest and the wheat harvest; and dwelt with her mother-in-law.

Then one day Naomi said unto Ruth: My daughter, shall I not seek rest for thee, that it may be well with thee? Now, is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? Behold, tonight he winnoweth barley (separates, by fanning, the chaff from the grain), in the threshing floor. Wash and anoint thyself therefore, and put thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the threshing floor; but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking. And it shall be that when he lieth down to go to sleep, thou shalt mark the spot where he lieth, and go in and uncover his feet, and lay thee down by his feet; and he will tell thee what thou shalt do. Then Ruth replied: All that thou sayest unto me I will do; and then she went down to the threshing floor; and did according to all that her mother-in-law bade her. When Boaz had eaten and drunk, and his heart was merry, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of grain; and Ruth came softly, and took the shoes off his feet, and laid herself down by his feet. At midnight the man awoke and was afraid, for he found a woman lay at his feet. And he said unto her: Who art thou? And she answered: I am Ruth thine handmaid; spread therefore thy garment over thine handmaid, for thou art a near kinsman. And Boaz said: Blessed be thou of the Lord, my daughter, for thou hast shown more kindness in the latter end than at the beginning, inasmuch as thou followedst not young men, poor or rich. And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do unto thee all that which is expedient, for all the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman. Now it is true that I am thy near kinsman; but there is yet another kinsman nearer than I. Tarry this night, and it shall be in the morning, that if he will perform unto thee the duty of a kinsman, well, let him do; but if he will not do the duty of a kinsman to thee, then I will do the duty of a kinsman, as the Lord liveth. Lie down until the morning. And she laid at his feet until the morning, then she rose up and left before anyone could know that a woman had come into the threshing floor. But before she left, Boaz said unto her: Let it not be known that a woman came unto the floor. Bring the veil (a square piece of cloth worn as an outer robe) that thou hast upon thee, and hold it; and when she held it, he measured six seah measures (about two ephahs, or 1.24 bushels) of barley; and laid it on her, saying; Go not empty unto thy mother-in-law.

And she went into the city, to her mother-in-law, and told her all that the man had said and done to her, and she said: These six measures of barley gave he me, saying, Go not empty unto thy mother-in-law. Then Naomi said: Sit still my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall; for the man will not rest, until he has finished the business this day. And Boaz went up to the city gate, and waited for the kinsman, his older brother. Behold, his brother came by the gate, and Boaz said unto him: Ho, such a one (Mr. So and So)! Come here, and sit down; and he came and sat down. And he brought ten of the elders of the city, and said: Sit ye down here. And they sat down. And Boaz said unto his older brother: Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth a parcel of land belonging to our brother Elimelech. And I thought to inform thee. Buy it before the inhabitants, and the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it; but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me and let me know, that I may redeem it; for there is none to redeem it beside thee, and I am after thee. Then Boaz said: The day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must also buy Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance. And Boaz's older brother said unto him: I cannot redeem it, lest I mar my own inheritance. Redeem thou my right to thyself, for I cannot redeem it. Now this was the manner of the law in Israel concerning redeeming and concerning doing business (exchanging), to confirm all things, and to make them binding and official: If brethren dwelt together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the deceased shall not marry outside the family unto a stranger; rather, her husband's brother shall take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her. And the firstborn which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother who is deceased; that his name be not put out of Israel. And if the man like not to take his brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the gate unto the elders, and say: My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel; and he refuseth to perform the duty of my husband's brother. Then the elders of his city shall call him in the presence of the people, and if he persists in not taking her, then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the assembly, and loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, saying; So shall it be done unto that man that will not build up his deceased brother's house, and his name will be called in Israel, "The one that hath his shoe loosed." And the law concerning business transactions required that when an agreement is reached, a man plucked off his shoe, and gave it to his neighbor, as a witness and testimony in Israel. Thus, the older brother of Boaz said unto him: For I am unable to redeem unto myself, redeem thou my right to thyself; and he plucked off his shoe, as a witness. And Boaz said unto the elders and the people at the gate: Ye are witness this day that I have purchased (redeemed) all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi. Moreover Ruth, the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my wife; to do the part of her husband's brother, and to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, for there is none other near kinsman. At the gate of this place ye are witness this day. And all the people that were in the gate and the elders said: We are witness. And the elders blessed Boaz and Ruth, saying: May the Lord make the woman that is come into thine house like Rachel and Leah, the two that built the house of Israel; and do you worthily in Ephrathah, and be famous in Beth-lehem. Let thine house be like the house of Pharez (Perez), whom Tamar had borne unto Judah, of the seed which the Lord shall give thee of this young woman. Behold, this is the genealogy of Boaz: When Joseph was seventeen in 1751 B.C., his brethren sold him to the Midianite-Ishmaelite caravan of merchantmen, who, in turn, sold him to Potiphar in Egypt, an official of the Pharaoh and captain of the guard. At that time Judah, son of Jacob, left his brethren, to visit a certain Adullamite whose name was Hirah. And there, Judah saw a daughter of a certain Canaanite named Shuah; and he took her to wife; and she conceived and gave birth to three sons, Er, Onan, and Shelah. The youngest, Shelah, was born at Achzib (Chezib) in the hill country of Shephelah, to the southwest of Adullam. And it came to pass that Judah chose for Er his firstborn a wife, whose name was Tamar. But Er was wicked in the sight of the Lord, and he was slain. So Judah said unto Er's younger brother Onan to marry his deceased brother's wife, according to the custom of the people, and raise up seed to his brother. And Onan knew that if he performed the duty of her husband's brother, then it shall be that the firstborn which she beareth shall succeed the name of his brother, who is dead; so when he went in unto Tamar, his brother's wife, he wasted his semen on the ground, lest it should give offspring to his brother. And the thing Onan did displeased the Lord, wherefore he was slain also. Then Judah said to Tamar his daughter-in-law: Remain a widow at thy father's house, till my son Shelah be grown. Yet, even after Shelah had grown up, Judah, thinking that his youngest son might also die, did not give him in marriage to Tamar; and Tamar dwelt in her father's house. In the meantime, Judah's wife, the daughter of Shuah the Canaanite, died; and Judah was comforted, and planned to go to Timnath (Timnah, Tibnah) to his sheepshearers, with his friend, Hirah the Adullamite. By now, Shelah was grown up; but Tamar was not given to him by Judah, according to his promise; for Judah was afraid that his youngest son might also die, as Er and Onan, his brothers, who were also married to her. And when it was told Tamar that her father-in-law was about to go to Timnath to shear his sheep; she put off her widow's garment, covered her face with a veil, and disguised (wrapped) herself as an harlot, and sat in an open place at the entrance of Enaim (Enam), by the way of Timnath. When Judah saw her, she appeared to be an harlot, because her face was concealed; and he said unto her: Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee, and she replied: What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me? And Judah said: I will send thee a kid from the flock; and she said, Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it? And he said: What pledge shall I give thee? And she said: Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff that is in thine hand. And he gave them to her, and came in unto her; and she conceived; then went away, took off her disguise, and put on the garments of her widowhood. When Judah sent a kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to redeem his pledge from the woman's hand, he found her not. Then he asked the men of that place, saying; Where is the harlot, that was openly by the wayside? And they said; There was no harlot in this place. So the Adullamite returned to Judah, saying; I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said that there was no harlot in this place. And Judah said: Let her take the pledge to herself, lest we be ashamed in the sight of the people; seeing that I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her. And it came to pass that about three months later, it was told Judah that Tamar his daughter-in-law hath played the harlot; and behold, she is with a child by whoredom. And Judah said: Bring her forth, and let her be burnt. When she was sent to her father-in-law, she said: By the man to whom these things belong am I with child. Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff. And Judah acknowledged them, and said: Tamar hath been more righteous than I; because I gave her not to Shelah my son. And Judah knew her again no more. And it came to pass, in the time of her trevail that, behold, twins were in her womb; and when the time of delivery had arrived, Tamar gave birth to twins; and as the one put out his hand, the midwife bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying: This came out first. But as he drew back his hand, behold, his brother came out; and the midwife said; How hast thou broken forth? This breach be upon thee; therefore his name was Pharez (Perez); then came his brother that had the scarlet thread upon his hand, and he was called Zarah. The two sons of Pharez, Hezron and Hamul, went to Egypt with Jacob in 1728 B.C., when Jacob was one hundred and thirty years old; where Pharez, Hezron and Hamul became heads of individual families in Judah. At the age of sixty Hezron took the daughter of Machir, father of Gilead, to wife; and became father to Segub; his sons Jerahmeel, Ram (Arni, Aram) and Chelubai were born earlier. Hezron died at Caleb in Ephrathah, near Beth-lehem; and after this, his widow Abiah (Abijah) gave birth to his last child, Asshur, the father of Tekoa. Ram also lived in Egypt among the children of Israel; and he begat Amminadab; and Amminadab's son Nahshon was chieftain of Judah during Israel's wanderings in the wilderness; and his daughter Elisheba became Aaron's wife. And Nahshon assisted Moses with the first census taken of all the able-bodied men, twenty years or older, near Mount Sinai. He presented Judah's contribution toward the building of the tabernacle, during its inauguration ceremony on Abib 1, 1512 B.C.; and headed Judah's army of 74,600, that led Israel's line of march. And Nahshon begat Salmon (Salma); who married Rahab (Rachab) of Jericho, who played the harlot there. And Salmon and Rahab begat three sons, Elimelech, brother of Boaz, and Boaz; and Boaz was a worshiper of the Lord God of Israel; and a man of power and authority in the tribe of Judah. And Boaz married Ruth, the Moabitess; and she bore him a son, Obed. And Ruth took the boy to Naomi, and said: Blessed be the Lord, which hath not left thee this day without a kinsman, that his name may be famous in Israel. And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy life, and a nourisher of thine old age; for thy daughter-in-law, who loveth thee, is better to thee than seven sons. And Naomi took the child, and laid him in her bosom, and became a nurse to him. And the women in the neighborhood gave him the name Obed, saying: There is a son born to Naomi! And Obed begat Jesse; and Jesse fathered eight sons, Eliab (Elihu), Abinadab, Shimmah (Shamma, Shimea, Shimei), Nethaneel, Raddai, Ozem (Azam), David (Daūd), and an unnamed son; and two daughters, Zeruiah and Abigail.

Now, there was a certain man named Elkenah of Ramah (Ramathaim-zophim), of Mount Ephraim; son of Jeroham, son of Elihu, son of Tohu, son of Zoph (Zuph), a Kohathite Levite, and an Ephrathite. And Elkenah had two wives, namely, Hannah and Peninnah. Peninnah had children, but Hannah had none. And this man went with his family yearly to worship and sacrifice unto the Lord of Hosts in Shiloh; where the two sons of Eli the high priest (of the line of Ithamar, son of Aaron), Hophni and Phinehas, ministered as priests in the House of the Lord, for the tabernacle was in Shiloh at this time. And Elkenah gave portions of his offerings to Peninnah his wife and to all her sons and daughters; but to Hannah he gave a generous portion, for he loved her, but the Lord had shut up her womb. And her adversary, Peninnah, also provoked her sorely, to make her fret, because the Lord had shut up her womb. And as Elkenah did this year by year, they all went to the House of the Lord in Shiloh, and there Hannah wept and would not eat. Then said her husband unto her: Hannah, why weepest thou, and eatest thou not; and why is thine heart grieved? Am not I better to thee than ten sons? And after they all finished eating and drinking, she left in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord and wept sorely; and she vowed a vow, saying: O Lord of Hosts, if Thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of Thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget Thine handmaid, but give unto her a man child, then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life, and there shall no razor come upon his head, for I shall consecrate him unto Thee, and the child shall be a Nazarite, all the days of his life. Now Hannah continued praying silently before the Lord, only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard. And Eli the high priest, who sat upon a seat by a post of the tabernacle of the Lord, noticed her mouth, and said unto her: How long wilt thou be drunken? Put away thy wine from thee. And Hannah answered, saying; No, my Lord, I am a woman of sorrowful spirit; I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink; but have poured out my soul before the Lord. Think not thy handmaid to be a daughter of Belial (good-for-nothing; worthlessness); for in the abundance of grief and vexation have I spoken this day before the Lord. Then Eli said unto her: Go in peace; and may the God of Israel grant thee thy petition, that thou hast asked of Him. And Hannah went her way, saying: Let Thy handmaid find grace in Thy sight; and she did eat, and her countenance was no more sad. Next day they all rose up early in the morning, and worshiped before the Lord; then returned to their home in Ramah. And Elkenah went in unto his wife Hannah; and the Lord remembered her, and she conceived and bore a son, and called his name Samuel, saying; Because I have asked him of the Lord. When the time of yearly sacrifice unto the Lord came again, Elkenah and all his household went to Shiloh, but Hannah went not; for she said unto her husband: I will not go up until the child be weaned; and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the Lord, and there abide forever. And Elkenah her husband said unto her: Do what seemeth thee good; tarry until thou have weaned him; only the Lord establish His word. So the woman stayed in Ramah and gave her son suck until he was weaned. When the child was weaned, she took him up with her, along with three bullocks, and one ephah (about .62 bushel) of flour, and a bottle of wine; and brought him unto the House of the Lord in Shiloh; and they slew a bullock, and Hannah brought the child to Eli, and said: O my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the Lord: For this child I prayed, and the Lord hath granted my petition, which I had asked of Him. Therefore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord (as a Nazarite). And the child, Samuel, worshiped the Lord there; and Hannah uttered (offered) the following prayer to the Lord in front of the tabernacle in Shiloh:

> My heart rejoiceth in the Lord; mine horn is exalted in the Lord; my mouth is enlarged over mine adversaries; because I rejoice in Thy salvation. There is none holier than the Lord; for there is none beside Thee; neither is there any rock like our God. Talk no more so exceedingly proudly; let not arrogancy come out of your mouth; for the Lord is a God of knowledge, and by Him actions are weighed. The bows of the mighty men are broken, and they that stumbled are girded with strength. They that were full have hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry, are filled; so that the barren may have seven children and she that hath many is waxed feeble. The Lord killeth and maketh alive; He bringeth down to the grave and bringeth up again. The Lord maketh poor and maketh rich; He bringeth low and lifteth up. He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, and sets them among the princes, and causes them to inherit the throne of their glory; for the pillars of the earth are the Lord's and He hath set the world upon them. He will keep the feet of His saints; and the wicked shall be silent in darkness; for by his own strength shall no man prevail. The adversaries of the Lord shall be broken to pieces, out of heaven shall He thunder upon them. The Lord shall judge the ends of the earth; and shall give strength unto his king, and exalt the horn of His anointed.

And Elkenah and all his household returned to Ramah (Ramathaim-zophim); and the child Samuel remained with Eli the high priest in Shiloh.

Now the sons of Eli were sons of Belial (good-for-nothing, bullies), and they knew not the Lord. And it was the priest's custom with the people, that when a person offered sacrifice unto the Lord, the priest's servant came with a flesh-hook of three prongs in his hand, and he struck it into the kettle, caldron, or pot in which the sacrificial flesh was being boiled; and all that the flesh-hook brought up became the portion belonging to the priests. (It was called the heave offering, or the sacred portion, terumah, which was that part of the sacrificial offering which was lifted up or heaved off as the portion belonging to the Aaronic priests.) But even before the priest burnt the fat upon the altar, his servant would come, and speak unto the person that sacrificed, saying; Give raw flesh to the high priest to roast; for he will not have your boiled (or cooked) flesh, but raw (which was against the commandments of the Lord). And if any man said unto the servant of the priest: Let them first burn the fat (upon the altar), then take as much as thy soul desireth, then he would say: Nay, but thou shalt give it me now; and if not, I will take it by force. Wherefore the sin of the young men was very great before the Lord; for people abhorred (detested) the offerings unto the Lord. Samuel also ministered in the tabernacle of the Lord, being a child girded with a linen ephod. And each year his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice; and each year Eli blessed Elkenah and his wife Hannah, saying unto the husband: The Lord give thee seed of this woman, who hath given her seed unto the Lord; the petition which she asked of the Lord, the same hath she lent to the Lord; and they departed unto their home. And the Lord blessed Hannah again, that she conceived, and bore three more sons, and two daughters. In the meantime, the child Samuel grew before the tabernacle of the Lord in Shiloh, under the care of Eli the high priest.

Now Eli was very old, and knew all that his sons did unto the daughters of Israel, and to those who came to offer sacrifices at the altar of the Lord; and how they laid with the women that assembled at the door of the tabernacle, inside of which the Ark of the Covenant was kept. And Eli said unto them: Why do ye such things? For I hear your evil dealings by all this people. Nay, my sons, it is no good report that I hear. Ye make the Lord's people transgress and sin. If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him; but if a man sin against the Lord, who shall intreat for him? Yet they hearkened not unto the voice of their father, for their hearts were hardened, that they would be slain by the Lord. And the child Samuel grew on, and was in favor both with the Lord, and also with the people. And it came to pass, that there came a man of God unto Eli, and said, Thus saith the Lord, Did I plainly appear unto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt in Pharaoh's house? And did I choose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest; to offer upon my altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me? And did I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire of the children of Israel? Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifices and offerings, which I have commanded in my habitation; and honorest thy sons above me; to make yourselves fat with the choicest of all the offerings of Israel my people? Wherefore the Lord God of Israel saith: I did say indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father should walk before me forever; but now the Lord saith, Be far from it, for those who obey my commandments and glorify me, I will glorify; and those that rebel against me and despise me shall be lightly esteemed. Behold, the days come, that I will cut off thine arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thine house (that is there shall no man attain old age in the house of Eli); and a man of thine, whom I shall not cut off from mine altar, shall consume thine eyes, and grieve thine heart; and all the increase of thine house shall die in the flower (prime) of their age. And it shall be a sign unto thee that both of thy sons, Hophni and Phinehas, shall die in one day. And I will raise me a faithful priest, that shall do according to that which is in my heart and mind; and I will build him a sure house, according to his faithfulness; and he shall walk before mine anointed forever. (Inasmuch as there are those among you who deny my name, others shall be raised in their stead.) And it shall come to pass, that everyone that is left in thine house shall come and crouch to him for a piece of silver and a morsel of bread, saying: Put me, I pray thee, into one of the priests' offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.

And it came to pass, that Samuel ministered as a priest under Eli the high priest, at the House of the Lord (tabernacle) in Shiloh; and the word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no open vision. And when Eli became bed-ridden, because of old age, his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see. Soon after, one day when Samuel laid down to sleep, the lamp of God (the candlestick) in the holy compartment of the tabernacle went out; and the Lord called Samuel, and he answered: Here am I, and ran unto Eli saying, Here am I; for thou calledst me. And Eli said: I called not, so lie down. And Samuel went and lay down. Then he heard his name again, and Samuel went to Eli and said, Here am I, for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son, go lie down again. Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, neither was the word of the Lord revealed to him. And the Lord called Samuel again the third time; and he arose and went to Eli, and said: Here am I, for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the Lord had called the child. Therefore Eli said unto Samuel: Go lie down; and it shall be that if He yet call thee again, thou shalt say, Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went back to the Holy place and laid himself down; and the Lord appeared unto him in a vision; and He came and stood and called, Samuel, Samuel, as other times. Then Samuel answered: Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth. And the Lord said unto Samuel: Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, at which both the ears of every one that heareth shall tingle. In that day I will perform against Eli all things which I have spoken concerning his house. When I begin, I will also make an end; for I have told him that I will judge the house of Aaron for ever; and the iniquities of his house, he knoweth, because his sons made themselves vile, and he restrained them not. Therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that the iniquity of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.

And Samuel the Nazarite remained laid in the Holy compartment of the tabernacle all night and in the morning, he got up to open the doors of the House of the Lord; but he was afraid to show his vision to Eli. Then called Eli, saying, Samuel, my son; and Samuel answered: Here am I; and Eli asked: What is the thing that the Lord hath said unto thee? I pray thee hide it not from me. God do so to thee, and more also, if thou hide any thing from me of all the things that He said unto thee. So Samuel told him every whit, and hid nothing from him. And Eli said: It is the Lord. Let Him do what seemeth Him good.

And Samuel continued to grow, and the Lord was with him; and did let none of his words fall to the ground. And all Israel from Dan to Beersheba knew that Samuel was called of God to be a prophet of the Lord. And the Lord appeared again unto Samuel in Shiloh; and revealed Himself by the word of the Lord. And these words through Samuel came to all Israel. Now Israel was at this time at war with the Philistines; while the Israelites were encamped near Eben-ezer (about two and a half miles southeast of Aphek in Ephraim; some eleven miles east of modern Tel-Aviv), and the Philistines were encamped in Aphek. Then the Philistines put themselves in battle formation, and joined battle; and defeated the Israelites and slew in the field about four thousand men. And when the men of Israel returned to their camp, the elders of Israel said: Why hath the Lord smitten us today before the Philistines? Let us fetch the Ark of the Covenant out of Shiloh, that when it cometh among us, it may save us out of the hands of our enemies. So they sent people to Shiloh to fetch the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, which was kept in the Most Holy compartment of the tabernacle, separated by the curtain with the cherubim embroidered upon it. And the Ark was brought to the camp near Eben-ezer, along with the two sons of Eli the high priest, Hophni and Phinehas. When the men of Israel saw the Ark of the Covenant arrive at the camp, all shouted in unison, with a great shout, that the earth rang; and when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said: What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews; and they understood that the Ark of the God of Israel was come into the camp. And the Philistines became afraid, saying: God is come into the camp of Israel. Woe unto us! For there hath not been such a thing ever before. Woe unto us! Who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty Gods? These are the Gods that smote the Egyptians with all the plagues. Be strong, and behave like men, O ye Philistines, that ye may not become servants unto the Hebrews, as they have been to you. Behave yourselves like men, and fight. Then the Philistines fought and smote Israel; that day there fell some thirty thousand foot-men, and the remainder fled, every man to his tent; and the Ark of the Covenant was taken by the Philistines; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain.

Then a Benjamite ran out of the army of Israel, and came to Shiloh the same day; with his clothes rent and dirt upon his head. The man saw Eli the high priest sitting in a chair by the wayside, waiting for the Ark of God to return; for his eyes were beginning to wax dim, that he could not see too well, and his heart trembled for the Ark. And when the Benjamite told the men of Shiloh that the Ark of God was captured by the Philistines, they all cried out. And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said: What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man hastily came to Eli, and said: I am he that came out of the army of Israel. I fled out of the army today seeing Israel is fled before the Philistines; and there hath been also a great slaughter; and thy two sons Hophni and Phinehas are dead, and the Ark of God is taken. And when Eli heard the mention of the Ark, he fell from off the seat backward and broke his neck, and died. And Eli's daughter-in-law, Phinehas' wife, was pregnant, near the days of her delivery; and when she heard the evil tiding that the Ark of God was taken by the Philistines, and her husband and father-in-law were dead, her labor pains came upon her; and she bowed down and travailed. And she named the child Ichabod, saying, the glory is departed from Israel, because the Ark of God was taken, and her father-in-law and husband were dead. Until the time of her death, the woman servant that stood by her consoled her, saying: Fear not, for thou hast borne a son. But she answered not, neither did she regard it, all the remaining days of her life.

Eli was ninety-eight years old by now, and judged Israel forty years in spiritual matters, and presided over the council of the (secular) judges in Israel. Eli's house held the office of Aaronic high priest during the next four generations after the deaths of Eli and his sons Hophni and Phinehas; until Abiathar (son of Ahimelech, son of Ahiah [Ahijah], son of Ahitub, son of Phinehas, son of Eli. Abiathar was the last of the Aaronic high priests of the line of Ithamar, son of Aaron. In Solomon's time the office was returned to Zadok of the line of Eleazar, son of Aaron. Thus, the curse of the Lord upon the house of Eli was fulfilled; and the glory had indeed departed from Israel, because the Ark was taken by the Philistines).

The Philistines took the Ark of the covenant from the camp of Israel near Eben-ezer, and carried it into Ashdod, and set it by their god Dagon, in the house (shrine) of Dagon. Lo, the next day, the people in Ashdod beheld that Dagon was fallen upon the ground before the Ark of the Covenant. So the Philistines lifted Dagon up from the ground, and set him in his place. Next morning, Dagon was fallen again to the ground before the Ark, and his head and both palms of his hands were cut off, and were found at the threshold of the shrine; only the stump upon which Dagon was placed remained. Thenceforward, neither the priests of Dagon nor his worshipers entered the house (shrine) of Dagon in Ashdod. Soon after, the Lord smote the Philistines with boils and tumors (emerods) throughout Ashdod and its coasts (borders).

And the Philistines saw that the epidemic was great, and they said amongst themselves: The Ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us, for the hand of the Hebrew God is sore upon us and upon Dagon our god. So they gathered together all the five lords of the Philistines, and said unto them: What shall we do with the Ark of the God of Israel? And the lords of the Philistines answered: Let the Ark of the God of Israel be carried unto Gath (the birth place of Goliath and other giant warriors; the Anakims dwelt there at one time, and the inhabitants were called the Gittites). And as they carried the Ark near about the city, the Lord smote the men of Gath, both great and small, with boils and tumors (emerods) in their secret parts. Therefore they sent the Ark of God to Ekron (Akron). And as the Ark arrived at Ekron, the Ekronites cried out, saying: They have brought about the Ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us and our people. So they sent for and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said unto them: Send away the Ark of the God of Israel, and let it return to its people, that it may slay us not and our people; for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city of Ekron, and the hand of God was very heavy there; and the cry of the people went up to heaven.

The Ark of the Covenant was in the land of the Philistines seven months. Then the lords of the Philistines called for their priests and diviners, saying; What shall we do to the Ark of the Lord? Tell us how and to where shall we send it. And they replied: If ye send away the Ark of the God of Israel, return it not empty, but with a trespass offering of five golden emerods and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines. For one curse was upon all and the lords of the Philistines, ye shall make the golden images of your emerods that plagued the men, and golden images of the mice that mar the land; and ye shall give glory unto the God of Israel; that peradventure He may lighten His hand from off you, your gods and your land. Wherefore harden ye not your hearts, as the Egyptians and the Pharaoh, lest ye perish with plagues and drownings; now therefore, build a new cart, and take two nursing cows with their calves, on whom no yoke hath come, and tie the kine (cows) to the cart, and bring back their calves from them to their home; then take the Ark of the Lord, and lay it upon the cart, and put the images of gold for the trespass offering in a coffer (chest, trunk) by the side thereof, and let the kine carry the cart where they may. And it shall be that if the kine carrieth the cart by the way of its own coast (border) to Beth-shemesh, then the Lord God of Israel hath done this great evil which hath come upon us all; but if not, then we shall know that it was not the hand of the God of Israel upon us, but it was a chance that happened to us. And the men did so; they took two nursing cows with their calves, upon whom no yoke had come, and tied them to the new cart, and placed the Ark of the Lord upon the cart, and set the coffer with the trespass offering by its side; then took the calves away from their mothers, to their home in Ekron. Behold, the kine carried the Ark of the Covenant straight, along the highway, toward Beth-shemesh, lowing as they went, and turned aside neither to the right nor to the left; and the lords of the Philistines followed them unto the border of Beth-shemesh. At this time the Beth-shemites were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley; and when they saw the Ark, they rejoiced a great deal.

The cart came to the field of Joshua, a Beth-shemite, and stood there, by a huge rock (great stone of Abel); and the Levites took down the Ark of the Lord and the coffer with the jewels of gold, and put them on the rock. Then, the Beth-shemites cut up (clave) the wood of the cart, and offered the kine for a burnt offering unto the Lord. And when the five lords of the Philistines had witnessed it, they returned to Ekron the same day. The men of Beth-shemesh then looked into the Ark of the Lord; and beheld the five golden emerods and five golden mice which were in the coffer which the Philistines returned for a trespass offering unto the Lord; one for Ashdod, one for Gaza, one for Ashkelon, one for Gath, and one for Ekron.

Now the Lord's wrath was kindled against the men of Beth-shemesh, for they had looked into the Ark, and defiled it; and He smote fifty thousand and seventy men. And the people lamented for the great slaughter, and said: Who is able to stand before this Holy God? And to whom shall we send the Ark? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, saying: The Philistines have brought the Ark of the Lord; come ye down and fetch it up to you. And the men of Kirjath-jearim came and fetched the Ark, and brought it into the house of Abinadab in the hill; and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the Ark of the Lord. The Ark remained in Kirjath-jearim twenty years, and all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord.

And it came to pass that Samuel spoke unto the children of Israel, saying: If ye do return unto the Lord your God with all your heart and soul, and put away the strange gods of the heathen from among you, and obey the commandments of the Lord, He will deliver you out of the hands of the Philistines. Then, the house of Israel did put away Baalim and Ashtoreth, and served the Lord only. And Samuel said: Gather all Israel at Mizpeh, and I will pray in their behalf unto the Lord God of Israel. So all the house of Israel gathered at Mizpeh, where the Ark was now kept; and the water was drawn and poured out before the Ark, to hallow and sanctify it, and the whole congregation fasted that day, and repented, saying: We have sinned against the Lord our God; may He forgive our sins, and take us back into his fold.

At this time Samuel was residing at Ramah; and here he had built an altar unto the Lord, and judged Israel from there. Every year he went in circuit from Ramah to Beth-El, to Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Israel from these locations. And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered at Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel; and the children of Israel became sore afraid, and cried unto Samuel, saying: Cease not to cry unto the Lord our God in our behalf, that He may save us out of the hands of the Philistines.

So Samuel took a suckling lamb, and offered it for a burnt offering wholly unto the Lord; and Samuel cried unto the Lord for Israel, and the Lord heard him. And as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, and the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel, the Lord of Hosts thundered with a great thunder upon the Philistines and caused confusion, that they were discomfited and smitten before Israel. And the men of Israel pursued the Philistines out of Mizpeh, and smote many until they came under Beth-car. Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of the place Eben-ezer, saying: Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.

So the Philistines were subdued that day, and they came no more into the borders of Israel; and the hand of the Lord remained against the Philistines, all the days of Samuel. And the cities which were taken by the Philistines were restored to Israel, from Ekron (Akron) unto Gath; and there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

And it came to pass that when Samuel was old, he made his sons, Joel the firstborn and Abiah, the judges over Israel in Beer-sheba: But his sons walked not in his way and turned aside after lucre, and took bribes and perverted judgement. Then all the elders of Israel gathered themselves and came to Samuel in Ramah, and said: Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways; now, therefore, make us a king to judge us like all nations. But the thing displeased Samuel, and he prayed unto the Lord. And the Lord said unto Samuel: Hearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee; for they have not rejected thee, but have rejected Me, that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt unto this day, they have forsaken Me, and served other gods, so do they also unto thee. Now therefore hearken unto their voice, although yet protest solemnly unto them, and show them the manner of the king that shall reign over them.

So, Samuel told the people all the words of the Lord, saying: This will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: He will take your sons and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen; and some shall run before his chariots; and he will appoint him captains over thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens; and will set them to cultivate his ground and reap his harvest; and to make the instruments of war and instruments of his chariots. And he will take your daughters to be perfumers, ointment-makers and confectionaries, and to be cooks and bakers. And he will take your fields, your vineyards and oliveyards, even the best of them, and give them to his servants. And he will take the tenth of your seed, and of your vineyards and give to his officers and servants. And he will take your menservants and maidservants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, and put them to work. He will take the tenth of your sheep; and ye shall be his servants. And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen; and the Lord will not hearken to your voice.

Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel, and said: Nay, but we will have a king over us; that we may also be like all the other nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us and fight our battles. And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and rehearsed them in the ears of the Lord. And the Lord said unto Samuel: Hearken unto their voice, and make them a king. Then Samuel returned to the men of Israel and said: Go ye every man unto his city.

Now there was a man of Benjamin whose name was Kish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror (Zarrar), the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite and a mighty man of power; and he had a son, whose name was Saul, a choice and goodly young man; and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he; from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people. And it came to pass that the asses of Kish, Saul's father, were lost, so he said to Saul his son: Arise, and take now one of the servants with thee, and go seek the asses. And they passed through Mount Ephraim and the land of Shalisha, but they found them not; then they passed through the land of Shalim, and there they were not; and they passed through the land of the Benjamites, but there also they found them not. And when they came near the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant: Come, and let us return home, lest my father leave worrying about the asses, and take thought of us. But his servant replied: Behold, there in this city lives a man of God, and he is an honorable man; all that he saith cometh surely to pass. Now let us go thither, peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go. Then said Saul to his servant: Behold, if we go thither, what should we bring the man, for the bread is spent and there is not a present to bring to the man of God? And the servant answered Saul, saying: Behold, I have in my hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver; this I will give to the man of God, to tell us our way. (In ancient Israel, when a man went to inquire of God, he usually said: Come, let us go to the seer, for he that is now called a prophet was called a seer.) Then Saul said to his servant: Well said. Come, let us go thither. So they went to the city where the man of God was.

And as they went up the hill to the city, they found young maidens going out to draw water, and they said unto them: Is there a seer here? And the maidens answered: He is. Behold he is just ahead of you; make haste now, for he came today to the city, for today there is a sacrifice of the people in the high place (sanctuary); as soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him before he go up to the high place to eat; for the people will not eat until he come; because he doth bless the sacrifice, and afterwards they eat that be bidden. Now therefore get you up, for about this time ye shall find him. So Saul and his servant went up into the city; and when they came inside the city, behold, Samuel came out towards them to meet them, and to take them unto the high place.

Now the Lord had told Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying: Tomorrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be ruler over my people Israel; that he may save them out of the hands of the Philistines; for I have looked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me. And when Samuel saw Saul, the Holy Ghost revealed it to him that the man of whom the Lord hath spoken, that shall reign over Israel, is the selfsame man. Then Saul drew near unto Samuel inside the gate of the city, and said: Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is. And Samuel answered Saul, saying: I am the seer. Go up before me unto the high place, for ye shall eat with me today, and tomorrow ye may return, after I will tell thee all that is in thine heart. And as for thine asses that were lost three days ago, set not thy mind on them, for they are found. And, now, on whom is all the desire of Israel? Is not on thee and on all thy father's house? And Saul answered: Am not I a Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? And my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? Wherefore then speakest thou this way to me?

Then Samuel took Saul and his servant into the parlor (dining area), and made them sit in the chiefest place among those who were bidden, about thirty persons. And Samuel said unto the cook: Bring the portion which I gave thee and said unto thee to set it aside. And the cook brought in the shoulder and all that was upon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said unto the cook: Behold, that which is left set it before thee, and eat, for unto this time hath it been kept for thee since I said, I have invited the people. Thus Saul did eat with Samuel that day. And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon the rooftop of his house, and Saul spent the night at Samuel's house. At dawn Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, and said: Up, that I may send thee away; and Samuel walked with Saul till they reached the end of the city. Then Samuel said unto Saul: Bid the servant pass on before us, but stand thou still a while, that I may show thee the Word of God. Then Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said: Is it not because the Lord hath anointed thee to be ruler over His inheritance? Now, when thou art departed from me today, thou shalt find two men by Rachel's sepulchre in the Border of Benjamin at Zelgah; and they will say unto thee that the asses which thou wentest to seek are found; and, lo, thy father hath left the care of the asses, and sorroweth for thee, saying: What shall I do for my son? Then, shalt thou go on forward from thence and come to the plain of Tabor; and there shall meet thee three men going up to the House of the Lord at Beth-El; one carrying three kids, and the other carrying three loaves of bread, and the third carrying a bottle of wine. They will salute thee, and give thee two loaves of bread, which thou shalt receive of their hands. After that thou shalt come to the hill of God, where the garrison of the Philistines is kept. And it shall come to pass that when thou art come thither to the city, thou shalt meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place with a psaltery, and a tabret, a pipe, and a harp before them; and they shall prophesy. And the spirit of the Lord will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them and turn into another man. When these signs are come unto thee, do thou as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee. And thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal, and I will come down to offer burnt offerings and peace offerings there; seven days shalt thou tarry with me to be consecrated till I finish showing thee that which thou shalt do.

And it was so, that when Saul had turned his back to take leave of Samuel, God gave him another heart, and he was spiritually reborn, and all those signs came to pass that day. When Saul and his servant reached near the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him, and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them. And when all those who knew him saw that he prophesied among the prophets, the people said to one another: What is this that is come upon the son of Kish? Is Saul also among the prophets? Then Saul returned to the high place with the other prophets.

After Saul and his servant had returned home, Saul's uncle said: Whither went ye? And he said: To seek the asses that were lost, and when we saw that they were nowhere, we came to Samuel. And Saul's uncle said: Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said unto you. And Saul replied: He told us plainly that the asses were found. But the matter of the kingdom, which Samuel spake, he told him not. Then Samuel called the children of Israel to Mizpeh, where the Ark of the Lord was; and said unto them: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I brought up Israel out of Egypt and delivered you out of the hands of the Egyptians, and all others who oppressed you; and ye have this day rejected your God, who saved you out of all your adversities and tribulations, and said, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the Lord by your tribes, and by your thousands.

And when Samuel had caused all the tribes of Israel to have gathered together, the tribe of Benjamin was called to come near by their families; and the family of Matri was taken, then Saul the son of Kish was taken; but when they sought him he could not be found. Therefore they inquired of the Lord if the man should yet come hither; and they received the answer, behold, he hath hid himself among the stuff. So they ran and fetched him; and when he stood among the people, he was higher than any other people, from his shoulders and upward. And Samuel said to all the people: See ye him whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? And the entire congregation shouted, God save the king! Then Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the Lord. Then all the people were sent away, every man to his house; and Saul returned to his home in Gibeah, and there went with him a band of men whose hearts were touched by the Holy Spirit of God. But the children of Belial said: How should this man save us? And they despised him, and brought him no present; but Saul held his peace.

Then the men of Nahash the Ammonite came up and encamped against Jabesh-gilead; and the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee. And Nahash the Ammonite answered, saying: On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right eyes and lay it for a reproach upon all Israel. So the elders of Jabesh said unto him: Give us seven days' respite, that we may send messengers unto the borders (coasts) of Israel; and then, if there be no man to save us, we will come out to thee. The messengers were sent to Gibeah of Saul, and when the tidings were told in the ears of the people, all the people lifted up their voices and wept. And, behold, Saul came after the herd out of the field, and asked, What aileth the people that they weep? And they told him the tidings of the men of Jabesh. The Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and his anger waxed hot against them. And he took a yoke of oxen, and cut them into pieces, and sent them throughout all the borders of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying: Whosoever cometh not forth after Saul and Samuel, so shall it be done unto his oxen. And the fear of the Lord fell on the people, and they came out with one accord; and when Saul numbered them in Bezek, the children of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand; and the heads of these said to the messengers that were sent by the elders of Jabesh-gilead, saying: Thus shall ye say unto the men of Jabesh — tomorrow by the time the sun be hot ye shall have help. And the messengers showed the message to the men of Jabesh, and they were glad. And they said unto Nahash: Tomorrow we will come out unto you, and ye may do unto us that which seemeth good.

In the meantime Saul divided his men into three companies; and they reached the midst of the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day; and that which remained were scattered, so that two of them were not left together. Then the people said unto Samuel, who is he that said: Shall Saul reign over us? Bring the men that we may put them to death. And Saul said: There shall not a man be put to death this day; for today the Lord hath wrought salvation in Israel. So Samuel said unto the people: Let us go to Gilgal and renew the kingdom there. And all the people went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul king before the Lord, and offered sacrifices of peace offerings; and all men of Israel rejoiced greatly, as Saul became their first king.

And Samuel spoke to the gathered Israel, saying: Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you; and now, behold, the king walketh before you. I am old and gray-headed, but my sons I leave with you. I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day. Behold, here I am; witness against me before the Lord and his anointed: whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I stolen? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any bribe, to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you. And they said, thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken anything of any man's hand. Then Samuel said unto them, The Lord is witness against you this day and his anointed also, that ye have not found anything in my hand (meaning "my hands are clean"). And they answered, He is witness.

Then Samuel said unto the people: It is the Lord that advanced Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt. Now therefore stand still, that I may bring to remembrance before the Lord, of all the righteous acts, which he did for you and your fathers. Behold, after Jacob was come into Egypt, your fathers cried unto the Lord, then the Lord sent Moses and Aaron, that brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place. And when they forgot the Lord their God, he sold them into the hand of Sisera, captain of the hosts of Hazor, and into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them. Then they cried unto the Lord, and said: We have sinned, because we have forsaken the Lord, and have served Baalim and Ashtoreth; but now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee. And the Lord sent Jerubbaal (Gideon), Jephthah, and Bedan (Abdon), and Samuel, and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelt in safety. And when ye saw that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon came against you, ye said unto me: Nay, but a king shall reign over us, when the Lord your God was your king. Now therefore behold the king whom ye have chosen and desired! Behold, the Lord hath set a king over you. If ye will fear the Lord, and serve him, and obey his voice, and rebel not against his commandments, then both ye and the king that reigneth over you shall continue under the grace and mercy of the Lord. But if ye will not obey the voice of the Lord, then shall the hand of the Lord be against you, as it was against your fathers.

Now therefore, stand and see this great thing which the Lord will do before your eyes. Is it not wheat harvest today? I will call unto the Lord, and he shall send thunder and rain; that ye may see and know that your wickedness is great in the sight of the Lord, in asking for a king to rule over you. So Samuel called upon the name of the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder and rain that day; and all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samuel. And the congregation cried out to Samuel, saying: Pray for thy servants unto the Lord thy God, that we die not; for we have added unto all our sins this evil to have a king over us. And Samuel replied unto the people: Fear not. Ye have done this wickedness, yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart and soul. Turn ye not aside, for then you will go after vain things of the world, which cannot profit you nor deliver you, and bring upon your souls snares which shall keep you in bondage and captivity. The Lord will not forsake his people for his great name's sake, because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his people. Moreover as for myself, God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray in your behalf, or not to teach you the good and the right way. Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart and soul; for consider how great things he hath done for you. But if ye mock him in your hearts and do wickedly, ye and your king shall be consumed.

When Saul reigned two years over Israel, he chose three thousand men of war; two thousand of these men remained with Saul in Michmash and in mount Beth-El, and a thousand were sent with Jonathan, his son, to Gibeah of Benjamin. And Jonathan smote the garrison of the Philistines in Geba. Saul blew the trumpet throughout the land, saying: Let the Hebrews hear that Saul had smitten a garrison of the Philistines, and all Israel was had in abomination with the Philistines. Then all the men of war in Israel were to be gathered in Gilgal.

And the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand upon the seashore in multitude; and they pitched in Michmash, eastward from Beth-aven. When the men of Israel saw that they were in strait, for they were overtaken by fear, they hid themselves on all sides; in caves, in thickets, in rocks, in high places, and in pits; some of the Hebrews went over the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. But Saul and his men remained in Gilgal, trembling with fear. And Saul said: Bring hither a burnt offering and peace offerings to me. As soon as he made an end of offering a burnt offering, behold, Samuel came, and Saul went out to meet him, that he might salute him. And Samuel said unto Saul: What hast thou done? And Saul replied, saying: Because

I saw that the people were scattered from me, and thou camest not within the days appointed, and the Philistines gathered themselves together at Michmash; therefore, said I, the Philistines will come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not made supplication unto the Lord, so I forced myself and offered a burnt offering.

And Samuel replied, thou hast done foolishly, and kept not the commandment of the Lord thy God. For the Lord would have established thy kingdom upon Israel forever, but now thy kingdom shall not continue; the Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart, and hath commanded him to be captain over his people, who keepest not the commandment of the Lord. And Samuel arose, and left Gilgal and went to Gibeah of Benjamin. Then Saul numbered the men that were with him, about six hundred, and went to Gibeah of Benjamin; and his son Jonathan and his men also stayed in Gibeah. But the Philistines remained encamped at Michmash, and sent spoilers out in three companies — one company turned unto the way that leadeth to Orphah, towards the land of Shual; the other company went toward Beth-horon; and the third company went unto the border that overlooketh the valley of Zeboim, toward the wilderness.

Now there was no smith found throughout the land of Gibeah of Benjamin and the surrounding lands; for the Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears. But the Israelites went down to the Philistines, who were smiths, to sharpen every man his ploughshare and his coulter (cutter on the plough to cut the turf), his axe and his mattock (a grubbing hoe); and they did have a file for the mattocks, coulters, forks and axes, and to sharpen the goads. And, behold, on the day of battle, there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any men that were with Saul and Jonathan, except in the hands of Saul and his son Jonathan. And a garrison of the Philistines passed between the passage of Michmash to the other side.

Then Jonathan son of Saul said unto the young man that bore his armour, saying: Come, and let us go over to the Philistines' garrison that is on the other side; but he told not his father; and Saul tarried in the uttermost part of Gibeah under a pomegranate tree in Migron with his men, about six hundred in number; and Ahiah, the son of Ahitub, Ichabod's brother, son of Phinehas, son of Eli, the Lord's (Aaronic) priest in Shiloh, wearing an ephod, also waited there, and none knew that Jonathan was gone.

And the passage between the two sharp rocks, namely Bozez and Seneh, the forefront of the one was situated northward against Michmash and of the other southward against Gibeah, Jonathan sought to go over unto the Philistines' garrison; and he said to his young man that bare his armour: Come, and let us go over unto the garrison of these uncircumcised; perchance the Lord will work for us, for there is no restraint to what the Lord can perform, to save Israel by many or by few. And his armour-bearer said unto him, Do all that is in thine heart. Turn thee to it, behold, I am with thee according to thine heart. Then said Jonathan: Behold, we will pass over unto these men, and show ourselves unto them; if they say unto us, Tarry until we come to you, then we will stand still in our place, and will not go up unto them; but if they say, Come up unto us, then we will go up, for then it shall be a sign unto us that the Lord hath delivered them into our hands.

And both of them showed themselves unto the garrison of the Philistines; and the Philistines said amongst themselves, lo, the Hebrews come forth out of the holes where they had hid themselves! And the men of the garrison said unto Jonathan and his armourbearer: Come up to us, and we will show you a thing. And Jonathan spake unto his armourbearer, Come up after me, for the Lord hath delivered them into the hands of Israel. And he and his armourbearer climbed upon their hands and feet, and the men of the Philistines fell before Jonathan, and his armourbearer slew after them; they slaughtered about twenty men, in as it were an half acre of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow. And there was trembling in the host, in the field, and among all people; the garrison and spoilers also trembled, and the earth quaked, so it was a great trembling.

When the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah looked, and beheld the multitude in chaos, beating down one another, Saul said unto his men to number, to see who is gone from us. And, behold, when they had numbered, Jonathan and his armour bearer were not there. And Saul said unto Ahiah the priest: Bring hither the Ark of God. And while Saul was thus speaking with the priest, the noise amongst the host of the Philistines increased. Then Saul said unto the priest to withdraw himself, and all his men assembled themselves, and came to battle against the Philistines; moreover, the Hebrews that lived amongst the Philistines, and hid themselves in caves, rocks, pits, high places, and round about, came forth also to battle against the Philistines. And the men of Israel that hid themselves in mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they followed hard after them to battle. So the Lord saved Israel that day, and the battle passed over unto Beth-aven.

The men of Israel were distressed that day, for Saul had adjured the people, saying: Cursed be the man that eateth any food until evening, that I may be avenged on mine enemies. So none of the people tasted any food; and when they came to the woods, the place was filled with honeycombs, and honey dropped on the ground, but no man put his hand to his mouth, for people feared the oath. But Jonathan heard not his father's word concerning the oath, wherefore he put forth the end of his spear into the honeycomb, and ate the honey; and he was refreshed from being tired and hungry. Then charged one of the men unto Jonathan, saying: Thy father straitly bound the people with oath, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food this day. And Jonathan replied: My father hath troubled the land; see, I pray you, how I have been refreshed, because I tasted a little of this honey. How much more if haply the people had eaten freely today of the spoil of their enemies which they had found? Had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?

And the people were faint with hunger and thirst, but they smote the Philistines from Michmash to Aijalon. At the end of the day, the men of Israel flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground, and they ate them with their blood. And Saul rebuked them, saying: Behold, the people have sinned against the Lord, and ye have transgressed, for they have eaten the blood. And Saul said unto his men, Roll a huge stone unto me, then disperse yourselves among the people, and say unto them: Bring me hither every man his ox and his sheep, and slay them here; and eat according to the law; and sin not against the Lord in eating the blood. And it came to pass that all his men brought their spoils and slew them there, and ate according to the law. And of the huge stone Saul built there an altar, the same was the first altar he built unto the Lord.

And Saul said unto his men, Let us go down after the Philistines by night and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then the high priest said unto Saul, Let us draw near hither unto God. And Saul sought counsel of God, Shall I go down after the Philistines? Wilt thou deliver them into the hands of Israel? But he received no answer; now he knew that sin hath been committed in Israel, for someone must have broken the fast, and kept not the vow of not tasting food until evening. So Saul called all the chiefs of his army and told them to find out who has brought this curse upon Israel, saying: For, as the Lord liveth, who saveth Israel, though it be Jonathan my son, he shall surely die. But there was not a man who uttered a word against his son, who had tasted a little of the honey for he heard not when his father charged the people with the oath. Then said Saul unto his men, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son shall be on the other. And the people said unto Saul, Do what seemeth good unto thee. Then Saul prayed unto the Lord God of Israel, beseeching him to give a perfect lot, and bring forth right; and Saul and Jonathan were taken, and the people escaped judgement; and Saul said unto the chiefs of the people, to cast lots between him and his son Jonathan; and Jonathan was taken. Then Saul said to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done; and Jonathan told him and said, I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and lo, I must die. And Saul answered, God do so and more also; for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan.

And the people said unto Saul: Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid; as the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. Thus Jonathan was rescued by the common consent of the people, that he died not. After this, Saul and his men chased the Philistines away, but the war with them continued all the days of Saul; and whenever Saul saw any strong and valiant man, he took him unto himself, and the army of Israel grew in number and became powerful. And Saul and his men fought against all the enemies of Israel, on every side — against Moab, against the children of Ammon and Edom, against Zobah and the Philistines; and he gathered an host, and smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of those that spoiled them.

Now Saul was the son of Kish the Benjamite, who was the son of Abiel, son of Zeror, son of Bechorath, son of Aphiah; and he had three sons, Jonathan, Melchi-shua, and Ish-baal (Ishui); and two daughters, Merab the older and Michal the younger. The name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz; and the name of the captain of his army was Abner, the son of Ner (Saul's uncle), son of Abiel. And it came to pass that on a certain day Samuel visited Saul and said, The Lord has sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people Israel; now therefore hearken to the voice of the words of the Lord. For thus saith the Lord of Hosts: I remember that which Amalek did unto Israel in Rephidim, and I said unto my servant Moses, In my due time I shall utterly destroy Amalek from under heaven. Go now therefore and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare not one thing; slay every man, woman, and child, and spare not one ox, sheep, camel or ass, nor any of their beasts or fowl; that all which hath been written in the law be fulfilled.

So Saul gathered up his men, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah. And they all went to a city of Amalek, and laid waste in the valley; and Saul said unto the Kenites (Midianites) who dwelt there: Go, depart, get ye down from the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them; for ye shewed kindness to all the children of Israel when they came up out of Egypt. And the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites. Then Saul and his men smote the Amalekites from Havilah unto Shur, which is over against Egypt, as one goes toward Assyria; and took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive, and the best of the sheep, the oxen, the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good; and would not utterly destroy them; but they destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword.

Then came the word of the Lord unto Samuel, saying; It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king over Israel; for he is turned back from following me, and followeth the counsel of his own heart; for he hath not performed the commandment, but hath spared the things which were to be utterly destroyed; therefore he hath brought reproach upon Israel, and the seed of Amalek shall yet live to vex him in generations from now. The next morning Samuel rose early, and went to meet Saul in Gilgal. When Saul saw him, he said unto him, Blessed be thou of the Lord; I have performed the commandment of the Lord. And Samuel replied; What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear? And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites, for my men spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed. Then Samuel said unto Saul: Behold, I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me last night. Rememberest thou when thou wast small in thine own sight, was thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and wast anointed the king over Israel? And the Lord sent thee to utterly destroy the Amalekites, for their iniquities were now fully ripe, and to fulfil every whit which hath been written in the law. Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the Lord, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the Lord? And Saul replied, saying: Yea, but I have obeyed the voice of the Lord, and have gone the way which I was told, and behold, I have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites; but my men didst take of the spoil, sheep, oxen, the chief of the things, which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God in Gilgal.

And Samuel said unto Saul: Hath the Lord as much delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in the obedience of his commandments? Behold, to obey is better than to sacrifice, and to hearken better than an offering upon the altar. Rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. And as thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being a king in Isreal. Then Saul said unto Samuel: I have sinned, for I have transgressed the commandment of the Lord and thy words; because I feared the people more than God, and obeyed their voice. Now, therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sins, and turn again with me, that I may worship the Lord. And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee; for thou hast rejected the word of the Lord and hath brought reproach upon Israel, the Lord hath rejected thee from being king. And as Samuel turned about to go his way, Saul grabbed hold of the skirt of his mantle, and it was rent (torn); and Samuel said unto him, The Lord hath rent the kingdom of Israel from this day, and hath given it to a neighbor of thine, who is better than thee. And the Strength of Israel (meaning the Lord) neither lieth nor repenteth, for his judgements are just and sure. Then Saul cried again, saying: I have sinned; yet honor me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my men, and before Israel, and turn again with me, that I may worship the Lord thy God. And Samuel forgave Saul, and together they worshiped the Lord.

Then an evil spirit of passion came over Samuel, when he thought about the evils his own sons, Joel and Abiah, had committed in Beer-sheba by taking bribes and perverting judgement, and all the evil the Amalekites had done in the past, and how they shall vex Israel in the future. And he said, Bring ye hither to me Agag the king of the Amalekites. And Agag came unto him delicately, saying: Surely the bitterness of death is past. And Samuel said unto him: As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women; and Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the Lord in Gilgal. Then Samuel went to Ramah, and Saul to his home in Gibeah of Saul. And Samuel came no more to see Saul, for he was left alone to kick against the pricks, and the presence of the Lord was withdrawn from him; nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, and the Lord's soul was vexed that he made Saul king over Israel.

And it came to pass that the Lord said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? Fill thine horn (a vessel made of horn) with oil, and go to Jesse the Beth-lehemite; for I have provided me a king among his sons. And Samuel said, How can I go? If Saul hears it, he will kill me in his jealousy and anger. (In this also Samuel did err for he was more afraid of man, than the Lord.) So the Lord said, Take, then, an heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord; and call Jesse to the sacrifice, and by the power of the Holy Spirit shalt thou anoint unto me one of his sons. And Samuel did that which the Lord commanded him, and came to Beth-lehem. And the elders of the town trembled at his presence, saying: Comest thou peacably? And he replied, Peaceably; I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord; sanctify yourselves, and join me in sacrifice; and he called Jesse and his sons to the sacrifice.

When Samuel saw Eliab, the firstborn of Jesse, he said in his heart, Surely the Lord's anointed is before me; but the Holy Spirit of the Lord told him not to look at his height nor his stature, for the Lord looketh not upon the outward appearance of man, but on the purity of his heart. Then Jesse called his second son Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel, and he was refused also; and Jesse made Shammah to pass before Samuel, and all the seven sons of Jesse passed by Samuel, and the Holy Spirit refused them all. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he answered, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him, for we will not sit down at meat, till he come hither. Now when Samuel saw David, the youngest of the eight boys of Jesse, a ruddy lad of goodly countenance, he was moved upon by the power of the Holy Ghost, which said, Arise, anoint him; for this is he. Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed David (Davūd) in the midst of his brothers; and the Spirit of God came upon him from that day forward, but some of his brethren were taken over by the spirit of jealousy and envy, more so the eldest whose name was Eliab. Afterwards, Samuel rose up and departed to Ramah.

In the meantime,the Philistines gathered together their armies, and came to battle against Israel at Shochoh of Judah, and pitched between Shochoh and Azekah in Ephes-dammim. And Saul and his men were gathered together and pitched by the valley of Elah (Ellah); and when they saw the Philistines, they set in battle formation against them. The Philistines stood on a mountain on the other side, and a valley separated the two. And there came from the camp of the Philistines a giant named Goliath (Jeliath) of Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span (about nine feet and six inches); he was girded with a coat of mail and an helmet of brass upon his head, weighing five thousand shekels (about 125 lbs.); and armour of brass for the leg below the knee, a target of brass between his shoulders, and a sword on his side, and a spear in his hand was like a weaver's beam, and its iron head weighed six hundred shekels (about fifteen lbs.); and one bearing a shield went before him. And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? Am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? Choose yourselves a man from among you, and let him come down to fight with me; and if he be able to kill me, then we shall be your servants; but if I prevail against him, then ye shall be our servants, and serve us. For I defy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight. And when Saul and Israel heard these words of the giant, they were sore afraid.

Now, the three eldest sons of Jesse, namely, Eliab, Abinadab, and Shammah, went and followed Saul to the battle; and David the youngest returned to feed his father's sheep at Beth-lehem. And the giant of the Philistines drew near morning and evening, and presented himself forty days. And it came to pass that Jesse said unto his son David, Take now for thy brethren an ephah of this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp of thy brethren; and carry these ten cheeses unto the captain of their thousand, and bring report as to how thy brethren fare. At this time all Israel was encamped in the valley of Elah, prepared to give battle to the Philistines.

The next morning David rose up early, took all the things his father gave him to carry, left the sheep with a keeper, and journeyed toward the valley. When he reached near the trench, the host was going forth to fight, with a battle cry. And David left his donkey cart with the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army of Israel, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with them, behold, the giant of Gath, named Goliath, came out of the camp of the Philistines, and repeated the same words. The men of Israel fled from the giant; and David asked the men who stood by him, saying: What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God? And the men of Israel said, This giant cometh to defy Israel; and it shall be that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and make his father's house free in Israel; so shall it be done to the man who killeth him.

And when Eliab his eldest brother heard him speak with men, he was wroth with David, saying, Why camest thou hither? And with whom hast thou left those sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down to see the battle. And David said, What have I done now? Is there not a cause? Then he turned toward another man of Israel and asked the same question about the giant, and he received the same answer. Now David wanted to fight the Philistine; and the men of Israel reported this to Saul, and he sent for him. And Saul said unto David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight, for thou art but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth. And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, and a bear, and took a lamb out of the flock, and I went after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth; and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him; thy servant slew both the lion and the bear; and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God; the Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, Go and the Lord be with thee. Then Saul armed David with his armour, and he put an helmet of brass upon his head, and armed him with a coat of mail; and David girded his sword upon his armour; but he couldn't move, for it was too awkward and it did not fit him; so he put them off, and said unto Saul, I cannot go with these, for I have tried them not. And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in his shepherd's bag, and carried his sling in his hand; and drew near to the Philistine. And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, whose son is this youth? And Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell. And Saul said, Inquire thou whose son the young man is. Now, the Philistine also drew near unto David, and the man that bare the shield went before him. And when the Philistine looked about and saw but a youth, ruddy and of a fair countenance, carrying a staff in his hand, he was wroth with the utmost insult, saying: Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David with his gods. And the Philistine said to David: Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field. Then said David unto the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield, and armed with a coat of mail; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of Hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied; This day the Lord shall deliver thee into mine hand, and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give the carcass of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel; and all this assembly shall know that the Lord saveth not with sword and spear; for the battle is the Lord's and he will give you into our hands.

And as the Philistine drew nigh to meet him, David threw away his staff, and ran toward the army of Israel, and put his hand in his bag, and took out from thence a stone and put it in his sling; and aimed straight at the Philistine, who stood out behind the shield bearer, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead, and he fell upon his face to the earth, and his shieldbearer fled. So David prevailed against the Philistine with a sling and a stone; but there was no sword in the hand of David; therefore he ran and stood upon the body of the Philistine, and took out the Philistine's sword out of the sheath and cut off his head. And when the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they all fled. And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistines, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Beth-lehemite.

Then the children of Israel gave out a war cry and pursued the Philistines unto the gates of Ekron; and the wounded of the Philistines were found by the way of Shaaraim, even unto Gath and Ekron. After the tents of the Philistines were spoiled and taken for the booty, the children of Israel returned to their camp, and David took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem, and he kept the armour of the giant in his tent.

Now the Spirit of the Lord had departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the Lord troubled him. And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit from God troubleth thee; Let our lord now command thy servants, which are before thee, to seek out a man, who is a cunning player on an harp; and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand, and thou shalt be well. And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring him to me. Then answered one of the servants, saying, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Beth-lehemite, that is a cunning player, a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, prudent in matters, and a comely person, and the Lord is with him. Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, saying, Send me David thy son, that tends the sheep. And Jesse took an ass laden with bread, a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them by David his son unto Saul. And David came to Saul, and stood before him, and he loved him dearly; and he became his armour bearer. And Saul sent messengers to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray, stand before me; for he hath found favor in my sight. And it came to pass, when the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, that David took an harp, and played with his hands; so Saul was refreshed, and well; and the evil spirit departed from him.

And David came to stay with Saul; and Jonathan the son of Saul and David became dear friends, and it is written that Jonathan's soul was knit with the soul of David; and Jonathan and David made a covenant to be friends forever; and Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, even his garments, his sword, his bow, and his girdle; insomuch that David appeared as if he were Jonathan. From henceforth Saul took him unto himself, and would let him go no more to his father's house. And David went whithersoever Saul sent him, and behaved himself wisely; and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

Then it came to pass that David's fame was spread throughout the land, for he had beheaded the giant of the Philistines. And women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, with tabarets, and instruments of music, to meet King Saul; and speaking one unto another in the sight of Saul, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. And Saul was very wroth and the words of the women displeased him, and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me but thousands; and what can he have more but the kingdom. And Saul eyed David from that day forward. The next day the evil spirit from God again came upon Saul, and he prophecied in the midst of his house; and David played the harp, as before; and Saul had a javelin in his hand, and he threw the javelin, saying: I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided his presence twice. And Saul was afraid of David, because the Lord was with him, and was departed from Saul.

Thereafter Saul removed him from his company, and made him his captain over a thousand; and David went out and came in before the people, and behaved wisely in all his ways, and the Lord was with him. When Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him even more; but all Israel loved him, because he went out and came in before them. And it came to pass that Saul said to David, Behold my elder daughter Merab, her I give to thee to wife, for thou hast slain the Philistine; only be thou valiant for me, and fight the Lord's battles. For Saul said, Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him. And David said unto Saul, Who am I? And what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king? But it came to pass at the time when Merab Saul's daughter should have been given to David, that she was given unto Adriel the Meholathite to wife. And Michal Saul's daughter loved David, and they told Saul, and the thing pleased him; and Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be a snare to him, and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him. Wherefore Saul said to David, Thou shalt now this day be my son-in-law by one of my two daughters; but David gave him no answer.

Then Saul commanded his servants, saying, Commune with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee, now therefore be the king's son-in-law, and his servants spake these words in his ears; and David answered, Seemeth it to you a small thing to be a king's son-in-law, seeing that I am a poor man, and lightly esteemed? And the servants carried the message to Saul; and Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David — The king desireth not any dowry, but an hundred foreskins of Philistines, to be avenged of the king's enemies; but in his heart Saul desired to have David fall by the hand of the Philistines. And when his servants told David these words, it pleased him well to be Saul's son-in-law, and the days passed in excitement. Wherefore David and his thousand men arose and went, and slew two hundred men of the Philistines; and David brought their foreskins, and they gave full tale to the king, that he might be the king's son-in-law; and Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife.

And Saul saw and knew that the Lord was with David, and that Michal his daughter loved him; this made him even more afraid of David, and Saul became David's enemy continually. Then the princes of the Philistines went forth against David, but he behaved more wisely toward them than all the servants of Saul, so that his name was held in much esteem among them. And it came to pass that Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to his servants, that they should kill David, for he is esteemed by the enemy of Israel. And Jonathan brought the matter into the ears of David, saying: Saul, my father seeketh to kill thee, now, therefore, I pray thee, until the morning hide thyself in a secret place, and that which I see, I will tell thee. Then Jonathan came to Saul his father, and spake good of David, saying, Let not the king sin against his servant David, because he has not sinned against thee, but his works toward thee have been very good. For he did put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel; thou sawest it, and didst rejoice; wherefore, wilt thou sin by shedding innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?

Saul hearkened to the voice of Jonathan; and sware, As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain. And Jonathan returned to David and told him all these things; and brought him back to Saul, to be in his presence as before. Then came a war with the Philistines; and David went out and smote them, and they fled. And the evil spirit from the Lord began to trouble Saul again, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand, and David played the harp. Suddenly Saul sought to smite David even unto the wall with the javelin; but he slipped out of Saul's presence, as he threw the javelin into the wall, and David fled to his own house. Then Saul sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, and to slay him in the morning; and Michal told David, saying, If thou save not thy life tonight; tomorrow thou shalt be slain. So Michal let David down through a window, and he escaped; then she took a statuette and laid it in the bed and put a pillow of goat's hair for his bolster, and covered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, He is sick. Then Saul sent his messengers again, saying Bring him in his bed, that I may slay him. And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was a statuette in the bed, with a pillow of goat's hair for his bolster. And Saul said unto Michal, Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go, why should I kill thee?

So David escaped and came to see Samuel in Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done, and together they went to the retreat of Naioth (Nawoyth) and dwelt in the company of the prophets. It was told Saul that David is at Naioth in Ramah, and Saul sent messengers to take David. When they saw the company of prophets prophesying, and Samuel in the midst of them, the Spirit of God came upon the messengers of Saul, and they also began to prophecy. And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophecied likewise. And Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophecied also. Then he himself went to Ramah, and came to the great wall in Sechu, and asked the people there, Where are Samuel and David? And one said, Behold they be at Naioth in Ramah. And Saul went thither, and the Spirit of God came upon him and he went on prophecying, until he came to Naioth; and he stripped off his clothes also, and prophecied before Samuel in like manner, and lay down naked all that day and all that night. Wherefore it is said, Is Saul also among the prophets?

And David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came to Jonathan, and said unto him, What have I done? What is mine iniquity, and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life? And Jonathan replied, God forbid, thou shalt not die; behold, my father will do nothing great or small, but he will surely show me, why should my father hide this thing from me? It is not so. And David said, Yea, but thy father certainly knoweth that our souls are knit together, and we do love each other, for this reason he saith in his heart, Let not Jonathan know my intent, lest he be grieved; but truly as the Lord liveth, and thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death. Then said Jonathan to David, whatsoever thy soul desireth, the same will I do it for thee. And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, tomorrow is the new moon, and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat; but let me go, that I may hide myself in the field till the evening of the third day. And if thy father at all notice my absence, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run to Beth-lehem his city; for there is a yearly sacrifice for all his kinsfolk. If he says, It is well, thy servant shall have peace, but if he be wroth, then be sure that evil is determined by him. Therefore, thou mayest deal kindly with thy servant, for thou hast brought thy servant into a covenant with thee in the sight of God, notwithstanding, if there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself, for why shouldest I be taken to thy father to be slain. And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee; for if I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father against thee, then would not I tell thee? Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? Or what if thy father treats thee roughly for my sake?

And Jonathan took David into the field, and said, O Lord God of Israel, Be thou my witness, that when I have sounded my father anytime tomorrow, or the third day, and behold, if there be good toward David, then I shall come not hither to show thee, and the Lord do so and much more to Jonathan; but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will come hither and show it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace; and the Lord be with thee, as he hath been with my father. And thou shalt not only while I yet live show me the kindness of the Lord, that I die not; but also thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever; no, not even when the Lord hath cut off all the enemies of David from the face of the earth. So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, Let the Lord even require it at the hand of David's enemies. And Jonathan caused David to swear again, for he said that he loved him as he loved his own soul. Then Jonathan said to David, tomorrow is the new moon, and thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty; and when thou hast stayed three days, go quickly to the stone Ezel and hide thyself as before. And it shall be that I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as though I shot at a mark; and behold, if I send a lad to fetch the arrows, saying, The arrows are on the side of the stone, then come thou out, for there is peace for thee, and no hurt, as the Lord liveth; but if I say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are beyond the stone, Go thy way, for the Lord hath sent thee away. Again, as touching the matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold, the Lord be between thee and me forever.

So David hid himself in the field; and when the new moon was come, the king sat himself down upon a seat by the wall, as in times past; Abner sat by Saul's side, and David's place was empty. Nevertheless Saul spake not any thing that day, thinking, surely something hath befallen him, he is not clean, surely he is not clean. The next day, on the second day of the month, David's seat was empty again; and Saul asked Jonathan his son, Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat, neither yesterday, nor today? And Jonathan answered Saul, saying: David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Beth-lehem. And he said, Let me go, I pray thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and my brother, he hath commanded me to be there; now that I have found favor in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren; therefore he cometh not to the king's table. Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, Thou son of perverse rebellious woman, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness? For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Wherefore now send and fetch him unto me, for he shall surely die. And Jonathan answered his father, Wherefore shall he be slain? What hath he done? And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him, whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David. So Jonathan arose from his seat in fierce anger, and did eat no food this day; and he was grieved for David, because his father had made him ashamed.

In the morning, which was the third day, he arose early and prepared to go to the field at the appointed time; and he went to the field with a little lad; and said unto the lad, Run and fetch the arrows which I shoot; and as the lad ran, he shot an arrow beyond the stone Ezel. And when the lad came to the stone, Jonathan cried after the lad, saying, Is not the arrow beyond the stone; make speed, haste, stay not; and the lad brought the arrow to his master, but knew not anything, only Jonathan and David knew the matter; and Jonathan gave his artillery unto his lad, and said, Go carry them to the city.

And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of his hiding place toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times, and they kissed one another, and cried on each others shoulders, until David exceeded. Then Jonathan said unto David, Go in peace; for as much we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed forever. So Jonathan returned to the city, and David went to Nob (about one mile north-northeast of the temple in Jerusalem, near Mount of Olives; in this city dwelt the priests of Aaron with their families). And David came to Ahimelech the high priest, brother of Ahiah; but Ahimelech was afraid at meeting David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee? And David answered, The king hath commanded me on a business of a private nature. Now Ahimelech, great grandson of Eli, was changing the shewbread which was kept in the Holy Compartment of the tabernacle, with the fresh bread in the day; and David said, Now what hast thou under thine hand? Give me five loaves of bread, and what there is present. And the priest replied, There is no common bread under my hand, but there is hallowed bread, if the young men have kept themselves at least from women. And David answered the priest, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days, since I came out, and the vessels of the young men are holy, and the bread is in a manner common, yea, though it were sanctified this day. So the priest gave him the hallowed bread, for there was no bread there but the shewbread that was taken from before the Lord, to replace it with the hot bread in the day.

And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, Is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? For I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons, because the king's business required haste. And the priest said, The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in the valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod; if thou wilt take that, take it, for there is none other weapon here; and David said, yea, there is none like that sword, give it me. And as he was about to leave, a certain man of the servants of Saul, the chiefest of the herdsmen that belonged to Saul, who was set over the servants of Saul, saw David take the victuals and the sword of Goliath; this made him more afraid of Saul. Then David arose, and fled to Achish the King of Gath, for fear of Saul came upon him. And the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king of the land? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, Saul hath slain his thousands and David his ten thousands? Then David took these words to his heart, and became sore afraid of Achish the king of Gath. And he changed his behavior before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his saliva (spittle) fall upon the beard of the king. Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man is mad; wherefore then have ye brought him to me? Have I need of mad men, that ye have brought this fellow to play the mad man in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house, whose passions and fears delude his judgement, who is driven by his lusts, appetites and fears?

Therefore David escaped unto the cave Adullam; and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to see him. And those that were in distress, or in debt, or discontented, gathered themselves unto him near the cave, and he became a captain over them; about four hundred men were there with him. After this, he went to Mizpeh of Moab, and said unto the king of Moab, Let my father and mother, I pray thee, come forth hither and remain with you, till I know what God will do for me; and he brought them before the king of Moab, and they dwelt with him all the while David was in the hold. And Gad the prophet said unto David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah; and David departed into the forest of Hareth (Herat).

Now when Saul heard that David had been sighted, he said unto his servants that stood about him, Hear now, ye Benjamites — will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds; that all of you have conspired against me, and there is none that sheweth me that my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse, and there is none of you that is sorry for me; or sheweth unto me that my son hath stirred up my servants against me, to lie in wait, as at this day? Then said Doeg the Edomite unto Saul, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech the grandson of Ahitub; and he inquired of the Lord for him, and gave him victuals, and the sword of Goliath the Philistine. Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest and all his father's house, and all the priests that dwelt in Nob. And Saul said, Hear now, thou son (meaning grandson) of Ahitub; and he answered, Here I am, my lord. And Saul said unto him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse; in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast inquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as at this day? Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is the king's son-in-law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honorable in thine house? Did I then begin to inquire of God of him? Be it far from me; let not the king impute any such thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father; for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more. And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou and all thy father's house. And Saul said unto the footmen that stood about him, Turn, and slay the priests of the Lord; because their hand also is with David; because they knew when he fled, and they kept this from me. But the servants of the king would not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the Lord.

Then the king said unto Doeg, turn thou and fall upon the priests; and Doeg the Edomite turned, and he fell upon the priests, and slew on that day eighty-five persons that wore a linen ephod; then he and his men went to Nob, the site of the priests, and smote with the edge of their swords all men, women, and children that remained in the city. But one of the sons of Ahimelech the high priest escaped, and joined the men of David; and Abiathar told David that Saul had slain the Lord's priests. And David said unto Abiathar, I knew it that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul; therefore, now I have occasioned the death of all the persons of thy father's house; abide thou with me, and fear not; for he that seeketh my life seeketh also thine; but with me thou shalt be in safeguard.

And it came to pass that David was told, Behold, the Philistines fight against Keilah (or Qilah, which was a fortified town on a hill about nine miles northwest of Hebron), and they rob the threshing floors. So David inquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And he received the answer, Go, and smite the Philistines and save Keilah. But David's men said unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah, how much more then if we come against the armies of the Philistines at Keilah? Then David inquired of the Lord again, and he received the answer, Arise, go down to Keilah, for I will deliver the Philistines into thine hand. Then they went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines and smote them, and brought away their cattle; and the inhabitants of Keilah were saved from being robbed. And Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech the priest fled to David at Keilah, with an ephod in his hand; and David was ordained a priest of the Order of Aaron, that he may offer sacrifice and burn incense unto the Lord God of Israel.

Now when it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah, he said, God hath delivered him into my hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town that hath gates and bars; and Saul called all his men to gather for war, and to go to Keilah and beseige David and his men. And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod. Then David put on the ephod and said, O Lord God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, to destroy the city for my sake; will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? Will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O Lord God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. And he received the answer, He will come down; then David asked, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And he received the answer, They will deliver thee up.

Then David and his men, about six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah and fled whithersoever they could; and when it was told Saul that David was escaped from Keilah, he forbare to go forth after him. And David fled to the wilderness of Ziph, and dwelt in a mountain and the thicket of the forest. And when Jonathan the son of Saul knew the whereabouts of David, he went thither into the forest to strengthen him, and said, Fear not; for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee, and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee, and this knoweth also Saul my father. And they two made a covenant that they shall be friends unto death, and that David will not cut off Jonathan's seed nor destroy the name of his father's house; then Jonathan returned to his house.

And it came to pass that the men of Ziph went to Saul in Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strongholds in the forest, in the hill of Hachilah, which is on the south of Jeshimon? Now therefore, O king, come down according to all the desire of thy soul; and our part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand. And he said unto them, Blessed be ye of the Lord, for ye have compassion on me; go, I pray you, prepare yourselves, and keep watch of his places of hiding day and night, for it is told me that he dealeth very subtly. Go therefore and take report of all the lurking places where he hideth himself, and come ye hither again, when ye are certain, and I will go with you; and it shall come to pass, if he be in the land, that I will search him out throughout all the thousands of Judah. And the men arose and returned to Ziph; but David and his men were moved into the wilderness of Maon, in the plain, south of Jeshimon.

And when it was told Saul that David was in a mountain in the wilderness of Maon, Saul and his men pursued after him. When they arrived at the mountain, David and his men were on the other side of it; and Saul's men compassed the mountain, so they could not get away. But there came a messenger unto Saul, saying, Hurry, and depart, for the Philistines have invaded the land; wherefore, Saul left in a hurry to pursue after the Philistines; therefore they called the name of the mountain Sela-hammahlekoth, meaning the rock of divisions. Then David and his men went and dwelt in strongholds at En-gedi (Ain-jidi; about twenty-four miles southeast of Jerusalem on the shores of the Dead Sea).

After this, Saul returned from pursuing after the Philistines, and it was told him that David and his men are in the wilderness of En-gedi. Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and sought David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats. And they came to the sheepfolds along the way, where there was a cave; and Saul went inside to sleep; and David and his men saw Saul from the sides of his cave, and they said unto David, Behold the day of which the Lord said unto thee, I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it seemeth thee good! Then David arose, and privily went into the cave and cut off the hem of Saul's robe, while he laid asleep. Afterwards David's heart smote him, for he had cut off the hem of Saul's garment; and he said unto his men, The Lord forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the Lord's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand against him, seeing that he is the anointed of the Lord. So David stayed his servants with these words, that they might not rise up against Saul and slay him. Then Saul arose and went out of the cave; and David also arose and went out of his cave and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king; and when Saul looked behind, David bowed himself, and stooped his face to the ground.

And David said to Saul, Wherefore hearken thou unto men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt? Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how the Lord had delivered thee today into mine hand in the cave; and some bade me to kill thee, but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is the Lord's anointed. Moreover my father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand, for I had cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not when thou wast delivered into my hand. Know thou and see that there is no evil nor transgression in mine hand; and I have not sinned against thee, yet thou huntest my soul to take it; the Lord judge between me and thee, and avenge me of thee; but mine hand shall not be upon thee. As saith the proverb of the ancients, wickedness proceedeth from the wicked, but mine hand shall not be upon thee; now after whom the king of Israel came out? After whom dost thou pursue? After a dead dog, after a flea? Therefore, let the Lord be judge between me and thee, and deliver me out of thine hand.

And when David made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, Saul said, Is this thy voice my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice and wept; and he said unto David, Thou art more righteous than I, for thou hast rewarded me good, and I have rewarded thee evil; and this day thou hast proved thyself with thy kindness, that thou hast dealt well with me; forasmuch as when the Lord had delivered me into thine hand, thou killedst me not. And now, behold, I know well that thou shalt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in thine hand. Swear now unto me by the Lord, that thou wilt not cut off my seed after me; and that thou wilt not destroy my name out of my father's house; and David sware unto Saul; and Saul returned to his home in Gibeah, and David and his men went to a stronghold at En-gedi.

Then Samuel died, and all Israel was gathered together; and they lamented and buried him in his house at Ramah. After this, David and his men moved to the wilderness of Paran; and there was a man of Maon whose possessions were in Carmel of Judah, and he was a man of great wealth, having three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats, and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel. Now the name of the man was Nabal, and his wife's name was Abigail; and she was a woman of good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance, but the man was rude and evil in his doings, and was of the house of Caleb. And when David heard in the wilderness that Nabal was shearing his sheep in Carmel, he sent out ten young men, saying, Get ye up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and greet him in my name, and say unto him that liveth in prosperity, Peace be both unto thine house, and unto all that thou hast. I have heard that thou hast shearers; now when my men protected thy flocks of sheep and goats and thy shepherds, none was hurt or missing all the while they were in Carmel (for David and his men protected people and their possessions from the marauding bands). Ask thy young men, and they shall tell thee. Wherefore let the young men find favor in thine eyes, for it is the season of feasting and rejoicing; give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand unto thy servants, and to thy son David.

Now as David was chosen of the Lord, for the protection and safety of the children of Israel, he was by nature given unto the lusts and passions of man; and did see the nakedness of Jonathan's mother (Saul's wife) and sinned; also for the wife of Nabal he did crave in his heart. And David's young men came to Nabal and spake all that they were bidden. And Nabal answered, and said, Who is David? And who is the son of Jesse? There be many servants nowadays that break away every man from his master; shall I take my bread and water, and meat which I have prepared for my shearers, and give unto men, whom I know not whence they be? So David's young men returned and told David all the words of Nabal. And David said unto his men, Gird ye on every man his sword; and every man, and David also, girded on his sword, about four hundred men; and about two hundred stayed with the stuff.

But one of the young servants of Nabal told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he swooped upon them, and sent them away empty handed; behold, the men were good unto us and they protected us from the bands of robbers; they were very good unto us, a wall unto us both by day and night, while we kept the sheep, and were conversant with them in the fields. Now therefore know and do what thou wilt, for evil is determined against our master and all his household; because he is such a son of Belial that a man cannot speak to him. And Abigail made haste, and took two hundred loaves, two bottles of wine, five sheep ready dressed, five measures of parched corn, an hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses; and she said unto his servants, Go on before me, and behold, I come after you; but she told not her husband Nabal. And she rode on the ass, and came to the hidden part of the hill, as David and his men came against her.

Now David had said unto his men, Surely in vain have I protected all that this fellow hath in the wilderness, insomuch that not a shepherd was hurt nor was a goat or a sheep missing; and he hath returned me evil for good; so and more also do God unto the enemies of David, if I leave unto Nabal by the morning light any that pisseth against the wall. And when Abigail saw David, she hasted, and lighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and bowed herself to the ground; and fell at his feet, and said, Upon me, my lord, upon me let this iniquity be; and let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine audience, and hear the word of thine handmaid. Let not my lord, I pray thee, regard this man of Belial, even Nabal (meaning selfish miser); for as his name is, so is he; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him; but I thine handmaid saw not the young of the lord, whom thou didst send. Now therefore, my lord, as the Lord liveth, seeing that the Lord hath withheld thee from shedding blood, and from avenging thyself with thine own hand. Now let thine enemies that seek to do evil unto my lord, be avenged as Nabal; but this blessing which thine handmaid hath brought unto my lord, let it be given unto the young men that follow my lord. I pray thee, forgive the trespass of thine handmaid; for the Lord will certainly make my lord a sure house, because my lord fighteth the battles of the Lord; and evil hath not been found in thee all thy days. Yet a man is risen to pursue thee, and to seek thy soul; but the soul of my lord shall be bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God, and the souls of thine enemies shall he sling out, as out of the middle of the sling. And it shall come to pass, when the Lord shall have done unto my lord according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, then thou shalt be appointed ruler over Israel; that this shall be no grief unto thee, nor an offence of heart, that my lord hast escaped shedding of innocent blood, by avenging himself; and that when the Lord hath dealt well with my lord, then remember thine handmaiden.

And David said unto Abigail, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which sent thee this day to meet me here; and blessed be thy advice, and blessed be thou that hast kept me from shedding blood, and from avenging myself with mine own hand. In the very deed, the Lord God of Israel hath kept me back from hurting thee, for thou hast come to meet me hither; otherwise, surely there would have not been left one soul unto Nabal by the morning light, that pisseth against the wall. So David received of her hand all that she had brought on asses, and said, Go up in peace to thine house; see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have accepted thy person.

And Abigail came to Nabal, and, behold, he held a feast in his house, like a feast of a king; and Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken; wherefore she told him nothing until the morning light. But it came to pass in the morning, when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and became as a stone; and about ten days later he was smitten of the Lord, and died. When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, Blessed be the Lord, that hath pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal, and hath kept his servant from shedding blood; for the Lord hath returned the wickedness of Nabal upon his own head. Then David sent his servants to Abigail in Carmel, and they spake to her, saying, David sent us to thee, to take thee to him to wife. And she arose and bowed herself on her face to the earth, and said, Behold, let thine handmaid be a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my Lord. And Abigail hasted, and arose, and rode upon an ass, and five damsels, her attendants, went after her; and she came with the messengers of David, and became his wife; David also took Ahinoam of Jezreel to wife; now Saul's daughter Michal loved him, but as soon as they were married, she despised him and hated him; and the next day Michal let David down through the window of her room, and he escaped; therefore Saul gave her to Phaltiel the son of Laish of Gallim.

Then returned the Ziphites unto Saul at Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is on the south of Jeshimon? And Saul again arose and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, taking with him three thousand chosen men of Israel. And Saul and his men pitched in the hill of Hachilah. When it was told David concerning Saul, he sent out spies to see if in the very deed he hath come. Then David asked Ahimelech the Hittite and Abishai the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will go down with me to Saul's camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee. And David arose, and they came to the place where Saul had pitched; and David and Abishai beheld by night, that Saul lay sleeping within the barricade, and his spear struck in the ground by his bolster (head rest); and Abner and his people were pitched round about him. Then said Abishai to David, God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day; now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear even to the earth at one blow, and I will not smite him the second time.

And David said unto Abishai, Destroy him not; for who can stretch forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless? As the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend into battle and perish; the Lord forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed; but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear of Saul and the pitcher of water by Saul's bolster, and let us depart. So Abishai went and took the spear and the pitcher, while Saul and the entire company slept; and no guard saw him and heard him, for they all fell asleep, because a deep sleep from the Lord came upon them. Then David went over to the other side and stood on top of an hill afar off; and cried to the people and Abner the son of Ner, saying: Answerest thou not, Abner? And Abner answered, saying, Who art thou that criest unto the captain of the host of the king? And David said unto Abner, Art not thou a valiant man? And who is like unto thee in all Israel? Wherefore then hast thou not guarded the life of thy lord the king? For there came one of the people to destroy the king thy lord. This carelessness of thine is not good; as the Lord liveth, ye are worthy to die, because ye guarded not the life of your king, the Lord's anointed. Behold, here is the king's spear and his pitcher of water, that was by his bolster.

When Saul heard David's voice, he said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king; but wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? For what have I done? Or what evil is in mine hand? Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the Lord hath stirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering; but if they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lord; for they have driven me out this day from abiding in the inheritance of the Lord, saying, Go serve other gods. Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the Lord; for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains. Then Saul replied, I have sinned; return my son David, for I will no more do thee harm because my soul was precious in thine eyes this day; behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly. And David said, Behold the king's spear! Let one of the men come over and fetch it; the Lord render to every man according to his works; for the Lord delivered thee into mine hand today, but I would not stretch forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed; and behold, as thy life was spared this day, so my life be spared by the Lord, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation. And Saul said to David, Blessed be thou my son David; thou shalt do both great things and yet shalt prevail. So David went his way, and Saul returned to Gibeah.

And David said in his heart, no telling what Saul might and might not do; there is nothing better for me to do than to speedily escape into the land of the Philistines; then Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any border of Israel. So David arose, and passed over, with the six hundred men that were with him, unto Achish, the son of Maoch, king of Gath. And David dwelt with Achish at Gath with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess and Abigail the Carmelitess, Nabal's wife. And when it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath, he sought no more to go after him. And it came to pass that David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there, for why should thy servant and his men dwell in the royal city with thee? Then Achish gave him Ziklag that day.

Now David and his men dwelt in the country of the Philistines a year and four months; and David and his men invaded the Geshurites, the Gezrites, and the Amalekites; for these nations were of old that dwelt in the land as one goeth to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt. David and his men smote throughout the land, and took away their sheep, asses, camels, and other possessions, and returned to Achish; and many of these ancient people left their land to migrate to other lands, including Western Asia, the land of Sri Lanka (Ceylon), and other parts of ancient India. And there was not a man or woman left alive to bring tidings to Gath; for David said, Lest they should tell on us, saying, so did David while he dwelt with the Philistines. And Achish asked David, Whither have ye made the raid today? And David said, Against the south of Judah and against the south of the Jerahmeelites, and against the south of the Kenites. And Achish believed David, saying, Thou hast made thy people Israel utterly to abhor thee, therefore thou shalt be my servant forever.

And it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered their armies together for warfare, to fight with Israel. And Achish said unto David, know thou assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to battle against Israel, thou and thy men. And David answered, Surely thou shalt know what thy servants can do. So Achish said, If thou art true and faithful, I will make thee captain of my bodyguard forever.

Now after the death of Samuel, Saul had banished the soothsayers, sorcerers, wizards, and those that had familiar spirits from the land; yet they secretly practiced the craft in hidden and secret places. And it came to pass that the Philistines gathered themselves and pitched in Shunem, and Saul and all Israel gathered and pitched in Gilboa; and when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was sore afraid, and his heart trembled greatly. So Saul inquired of the Lord, and he answered him not by dreams or vision, neither by Urim and Thummim, nor by his ministering angels or prophets, for Saul was left to kick against the pricks; and the presence of the Lord was withdrawn from him. Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and inquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor. Then Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and went to the woman with two of his servants. And they came to the woman by night, and said, I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and bring him up, whom I shall name unto thee. And the woman said unto him, Behold thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off those that have familiar spirits and the wizards, out of the land; wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die? And Saul sware to her by the Lord, saying, As the Lord liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing. Then said the woman, Whom shall I bring up unto thee? And he said, Bring me up Samuel. And when the woman saw Samuel in her crystal, she cried with a loud voice, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? For thou art Saul. And the king said unto her, Be not afraid; for what sawest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I saw gods ascending out of the earth. And he asked her, What form is he of, meaning Samuel. And she said, An old man cometh up, and he is covered with a mantle. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground and bowed himself.

And while he thus remained in this position, Samuel came in his vision, and said unto Saul, Why hast thou disturbed me, and asked for me to come hither? And Saul answered, I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answereth me no more, neither by prophets, nor by dreams; therefore I have called upon thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do. Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the Lord is departed from thee, and thou hast become his enemy in thine heart? And the Lord hath done unto thee, as he spake by me; for the Lord rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and has given it to thy neighbor, David, who is not perfect before the Lord, but is more righteous than thou art. For thou obeyedst not the commandment of God, but obeyest the dictates of thine own heart, feareth man more than God, and offereth not acceptable sacrifice unto the Lord, the Lord hath turned his face from thee. Moreover, the Lord will deliver all Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines; and behold, tomorrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me; and the Lord shall also deliver Israel into the hand of the Philistines. Then Saul collapsed straightway to the ground, and a terrible fear came upon him, because of the words of Samuel which he heard in his vision; and there was no strength left in him, for he had eaten no food all that day, nor all that night.

When the woman that had a familiar spirit saw that Saul was sore troubled, she said unto him, Behold, thine handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have put my life in my hand, and hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me; now, therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou unto the voice of thy handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee, and eat that thou mayest have strength, and thou goest on thy way. But he refused, and said, I will not eat. But his servants and the woman compelled him, so he arose from the ground, and sat upon the bed. And the woman had a fat calf in the house; she killed it for the meat, and kneaded flour to bake unleavened bread; then she brought the food which she had prepared, and set it before Saul, and before his servants, and they did eat; then they rose up, returned to their camp in Gilboa.

Now it came to pass that the Philistines gathered together all their armies at Aphek; and the Israelites were pitched by the spring in Jezreel. And the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds, and by thousands; and David and his men also passed on in the rearward with the armies of Achish. Then said the princes of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews here? And Achish said unto the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David, the servant of Saul the king of Israel? that hath been with me these days, or these years; and I have found no fault in him since he fell to me unto this day. And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him, and they said unto Achish, Make this fellow return, that he may go again to the place which you have appointed him, even to Ziklag; and let him not come to battle with us, lest in the midst of the battle, he turn against us and serve his master, our adversary; for how else should he reconcile himself with his master? Should it not be with the heads of our men? Is not this David, of whom they sang one to another in dances, saying, Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands? Then Achish called David, and said unto him, Surely, as the Lord liveth, thou hast been upright; and thy going out and coming in with me in the host is good in my sight; for I have not found evil in thee since the day of thy coming to me unto this day; nevertheless the lords favor thee not. Wherefore now return, and go in peace, that thou mayest not displease the lords of the Philistines.

And David said unto Achish, But what have I done? And what hast thou found in thy servant, so long as I have been with thee unto this day, that I may not go to fight against the enemies of my lord the king? And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, as even an angel of God; nevertheless the princes of the Philistines have commanded that thou shalt not go to battle with us; wherefore now rise up early in the morning with thy master's servants that are come with thee, and depart ye early at daybreak. So David and his men rose up early and departed to Ziklag, and the Philistines went to Jezreel.

On the third day David and his men returned to Ziklag; behold, the Amalekites had invaded the south and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire; and had taken the women and children captive, but they slew them not. And when David and his men saw that it was burned with fire, and not a soul was to be found anywhere, they lifted up their voices and wept, until they could no longer weep. And David was distressed, because Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite were no more; and David was also distressed, for the people spake of stoning him, for he was the cause of their grief, for their wives, sons, and daughters were no more. Then David encouraged himself and took refuge in the Lord, and said unto Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod, that I may inquire of the Lord. And Abiathar brought the ephod to David; and he inquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I pursue after the troop that has done this thing? Shall I overtake them? And he received the answer, Pursue, for thou shall surely overtake them, and without fail recover all. So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to brook Besor; and here two hundred men were left behind, for they were so faint that they could not go over the brook, but four hundred did cross the brook.

Across the brook they found an Egyptian in the field, and they brought him to David, and gave him food and drink, a piece of cake of figs, two clusters of raisins, and made him drink water, for he was nearly dead, and had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days and three nights. And David asked him, To whom belongest thou? And whence art thou? And he said, I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite; and my master left me, because three days ago, I fell sick. We made an invasion upon the south of the Cherethites, and upon the coast which belongeth to Judah, and upon the south of Caleb, and we burned Ziklag with fire. And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And the Egyptian said, swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to his company. And he did bring them to the place where they were pitched; behold, they were spread abroad upon all the horizon, eating and drinking and dancing, because of all the great spoil which they had gathered from their raids upon Judah and the lands of the Philistines. And David and his men smote them from twilight unto the evening of the next day, and there escaped none, save four hundred young men, that rode upon camels, and fled. And all that was carried away by the Amalekites was recovered, their wives, children, flocks and herds; and they also took all the spoil of the other people which the Amalekites had gathered there; and David took all the flocks and herds, which they had driven from Judah, and other places of the Philistines saying, This is David's spoil.

Then arrived David and his men at the brook Besor, and crossed it with all the spoil; and the two hundred men that were left behind because they were faint, came forth to meet David and his men; and when David came near unto them, he saluted them; but all the men of Belial, the wicked men said, Because they went not with us, we will not give them out of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart. But David said, Nay my brethren, ye shall not do so with that which the Lord hath given us, and preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us, into our hand; for who will hearken unto you in this matter? Therefore as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff; both shall divide equally; from that day forward, it became a statute and an ordinance for his men, and later for all Israel.

And when David and his men came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoils to the elders of Judah, saying, Behold a present for you of the spoil of the enemies of the Lord; and he also sent parts of the spoil to his friends in Beth-El, south Ramoth, Jattir, Aroer, Siphmoth, Eshtemoa, Rachal, cities of the Jerahmeelites, cities of the Midianites (Kenites), Hormah, Khorasan (Chor-asan), Athach, and Hebron; and to other places where David and his men usually visited. Now it came to pass that the Philistines came to battle against the armies of Saul; and the men of Israel fled, and fell down slain in mount Gilboa. And the Philistines chased Saul and his sons, and slew Jonathan, Abinadab, and Melchi-shua, the sons of Saul; and the battle went sore against Saul, and he was hit by the archers. Then Saul said to his armourbearer, Draw thy sword and thrust me through, lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through and abuse me; but his armourbearer would not, for he was sore afraid to carry the blood of the king upon his head; therefore Saul took a sword and fell upon it. And when his armourbearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword and died with him. So Saul, his three sons, and his armourbearer died the same day; and Israel was left without a king. And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and beyond Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook their cities, and fled also whithersoever they could find refuge; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them. The next day when the Philistines went about the battlefield to strip the slain, they found Saul and his three sons fallen in mount Gilboa; and they cut off Saul's head, and stripped off his armour. And when they had stripped him, they took his head and his armour and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to carry tidings unto their idols, and to the people; and they put his armour in the house of their gods, and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon.

And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard of that which the Philistines had done, all the valiant men arose, and journeyed all night, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan, and returned to Jabesh; and buried their bones under an oak tree, and fasted seven days.

Now, David and his men dwelt two days in Ziklag, after their return from the slaughter of the Amalekites; and on the third day, a man came out from the camp of Saul with his clothes rent, and sand upon his head, and he fell to the ground and did obeisance. And David asked him, From whence comest thou? And he said, Out of the camp of Israel am I escaped. And David said unto him, How went the matter? I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, the people are fled from the battle, and many also are fallen and dead, Saul and Jonathan and his other sons are dead also. And David said unto the young man, How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan, his son be dead? And the young man said, As I happened by chance upon Mount Gilboa, behold, Saul leaned upon his spear and fell upon it; and lo, the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him; and when he looked behind him, and saw me, he called unto me, and said,

Who art thou? And I answered, I am an Amalekite. Then he said unto me, Stand, I pray thee, upon me, and slay me, for anguish is come upon me, because my life is yet whole in me; so I stood upon him, and slew him, for I was sure that he could not live, after that he was fallen; then I took the crown that was upon his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord.

Then David and all the men that were with him rent their clothes, and mourned, wept, and fasted until that evening; for Saul and his sons were dead, and the house of Israel was fallen by the sword. After this, David asked the young man, Whence art thou? And he answered, I am an Amalekite. And David said unto him, How wast not afraid to stretch forth thine hand against the Lord's anointed? And David commanded one of his men to fall upon the young man; and he smote him that he died; then David said, Thy blood be upon thy head, for thy mouth hath testified against thee, saying, I have slain the Lord's anointed. And David lamented with sore lamentation over Saul and his son Jonathan. And the selfsame day he began to teach his men to use the bow, as it is written in the book of wars, saying: The beauty of Israel is slain upon the high places, how are the mighty fallen! Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon, lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew nor rain upon you or upon your fields of offerings; for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil. From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty. Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives; and in their death they were not divided; they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions. Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put ornaments of gold upon your apparel. How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places; I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan; very pleasant hast thou been unto me; thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women; how are the mighty fallen, and weapons of war perished!

And it came to pass after this, that David inquired of the Lord if he should go into the cities of Judah; and he received the answer, Go up into Hebron. So David went up thither, with his two wives Ahinoam the Jezreelitess and Abigail, the wife of Nabal the Carmelite, and his men that were with him; and they all dwelt in and around Hebron. Here the elders of Judah came to David, saying, The men of Jabesh-gilead are they that buried Saul. And the elders anointed David king over the house of Judah (in 1077 B.C.), when he was thirty years old.

Then David sent messengers unto the elders of Jabesh-gilead, saying; Blessed be ye of the Lord, that ye have shown this kindness unto your lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him; now the Lord show kindness and truth unto you, and I also will requite you this kindness, because ye have done this thing; therefore now let your hands be strengthened, and be ye valiant, for your master Saul is dead, and also the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

In the meantime, Abner the son of Ner, captain of Saul's host, took Ish-bosheth the son of Saul; and brought him over to Mahanaim (a city east of the Jordan), and made him king over Gilead, the Ashurites, Jezreel, Ephraim, and over all Israel. Ish-bosheth was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years; but the house of Judah followed David. In Hebron David ruled seven and a half years, before moving his capitol to the captured Jebusite stronghold, Jerusalem. (There he built the city of David on Mount Zion and continued to rule over all Israel thirty-three years.)

And Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth went down from Mahanaim to Gibeon across the Jordan; and Joab the son of Zeruiah, with his brothers Abishai and Asahel, and the servants of David went up from Hebron to meet them. And they met together by the pool of Gibeon, one party sat down on one side of the pool and the other sat on the opposite side of the pool; and Abner said to Joab, Let the young men now arise and play before us! And Joab replied, Let them arise. And they arose and went over to battle, in companies of twelve of Benjamin, which pertained to Ish-bosheth against the twelve of David's servants, which pertained to Joab; and they caught every one his fellow by the head, and thrust his sword in his fellow's side, so they fell on all sides; and there was a very sore battle that day; wherefore the place was called Helkath-hazzurim, which is in Gibeon. Abner and the men of Israel were beaten; and Asahel, Joab's brother, light of foot as a wild roe, pursued after Abner, turning not to the left nor to the right he followed Abner. Then Abner stopped and looked behind, saying, Art thou Asahel? And he answered, I am. And Abner said to him, Turn aside on either side, and lay hold on one of the young men, and take thyself his armour. But Asahel would not turn aside from following him; then Abner repeated unto Asahel again, saying, Turn thee aside from following me, lest I smite thee to the ground. How should I then hold up my face to Joab thy brother? But Asahel refused to turn aside; wherefore Abner with the hinder end of his spear smote him under the fifth rib, that the spear came out behind him; and he dropped dead then and there; and many came to look at Asahel where he had fallen down, standing still in amazement.

Joab and Abishai also pursued after Abner, and by sundown they reached the hill of Ammah, which lieth before Giah, by the way of the wilderness of Gibeon. In the meantime the men of Benjamin gathered themselves together after Abner, and became one troop, and stood on a hill nearby. Then Abner called out to Joab, saying; Shall the sword devour forever? Knowest thou not that it will be bitterness and agony at the end? How long shall it be then, ere thou bid the people return from chasing after their brethren? And Joab answered, As God liveth, unless thou hadst spoken, surely in the morning the people would have gone up, one against another, after his brother. So Joab blew a trumpet, and all his people stood still, and after went Israel no more, neither did they fight anymore. And Abner and his men walked all that night, through the plain and passed over Jordan, and went through Bithron to Mahanaim.

When Joab gathered together all his men, there lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asahel; but the servants of David had smitten three hundred and sixty of Abner's men of Israel. And after they buried Asahel in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem, Joab and his men travelled all that night, and reached Hebron at the break of day.

And a long war continued between the house of David and the house of Saul; but David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. And it came to pass that while Abner made himself strong in the house of Saul, one day he went into Saul's concubine Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah; and Ish-bosheth said to Abner, wherefore hast thou gone in unto my father's concubine? This made Abner very wroth, and he said to Ish-bosheth, Am I a dog's head, which against Judah do shew kindness this day unto the house of Saul thy father, to his brethren, and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David, that thou chargest me today with a fault concerning this woman? So do God to Abner, and more also; except, as the Lord hath sworn to David, even so I do to him — to translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and to set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, from Dan even to Beer-sheba. And Ish-bosheth could speak not a word again to Abner, for he now feared him.

After this, Abner sent messengers to David on his behalf, saying, Whose land is this? Make thy league with me, and, behold, my hand shall be with thee, to bring about all Israel unto thee. And David replied, Well, I will make a league with thee; but one thing I require of thee, that thou shalt not see my face, except thou first bring Michal, Saul's daughter, when thou comest to see my face. Then David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth Saul's son, saying, Deliver me my wife Michal, which I espoused for an hundred foreskins of the Philistines. And Ish-bosheth sent his men, and took her from her husband Phaltiel son of Laish; and her husband went behind her weeping to Bahurim (a village near the Mount of Olives, northeast of Jerusalem). Here, Abner said unto him, Go return; and he returned home. Then Abner had communication with the elders of Israel, saying: Ye sought for David in times past to be king over you; now then do it, for the Lord hath spoken of David, saying, By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel out of the hand of the Philistines, and out of the hands of all their enemies. And he also spake in the ears of Benjamin and all that were good to Israel in Hebron.

Abner came to Hebron with twenty of his men; and here, David made a feast for him and his men; and Abner said unto David, I will arise and go, and gather all Israel unto my lord the king; that they may make a league with thee, and that thou mayest reign over all that thine heart desireth; and David sent Abner away in peace and goodwill. Then, behold, came the servants of David and Joab from pursuing a troop, and brought in a great spoil with them; and when they were told that Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and the king hath sent him away in peace, Joab came to the king, saying, What hast thou done? Behold, Abner came unto thee, and thou hast sent him away, that he is quite gone? Thou knowest Abner the son of Ner, that he came to deceive thee, and to know thy going out and coming in, and to know all that thou doest. Then Joab came out from David, and sent messengers after Abner, and they brought him back to Hebron from the Well of Sirah (Sarah); but David knew it not. And when Abner was brought to Joab, he and his brother Abishai took him aside in the gate to speak privily and smote him under the fifth rib, that he died, for the blood of their brother Asahel.

And afterward, when David heard it, he said, I and my kingdom are guiltless before the Lord forever from the blood of Abner the son of Ner; let it rest on the head of Joab and on all his father's house; and let there not fail from the house of Joab one that hath an issue, or that is a leper, or that leaneth on a staff, or that falleth on the sword, or that lacketh bread. Then David said to Joab and all the people that were with him, Rend your clothes and gird you with sackcloth, and mourn before Abner; and king David himself followed the coffin and its stand, which was carried upon the shoulders of the mourners; and they buried Abner in Hebron. And the king lifted up his voice and wept at the grave of Abner, also all the people wept, and said: Died Abner as a fool dieth? Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet put into fetters; as man falleth before wicked men, so fellest thou; and all people wept again over him.

And when those around him came to cause David to eat food while it was yet day, he sware, saying, So do God to me, and more also, if I taste bread, or ought else, till the sun be down. All the people took notice of it, and it pleased them; for whatsoever the king did pleased all his followers; for all David's people and Israel understood that day that it was not the king who had Abner slain. And David said unto his servants, Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel? And I am this day weak, though anointed king; and these men the sons of Zeruiah (namely Joab, Abishai and Asahel); the Lord shall reward the doer of evil according to his wickedness.

When Saul's son Ish-bosheth heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, his hands became feeble, and he lay on his bed in his bedchamber. Saul's other son Jonathan also left behind a son that was lame of his feet. He was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan out of Jezreel, his nurse took him up and fled, and as she fled in haste, he fell and became lame; his name was Mephi-bosheth. And it came to pass that Ish-bosheth's two captains of the bands, Baanah and Rechab, sons of Rimmon a Beerothite (for Beeroth also was reckoned to Benjamin), came in the heat of the day to the house of Ish-bosheth who was taking his noon nap; they came unto the house as though they would have fetched wheat, and they smote him under the fifth rib, and slew him; then beheaded him, and took his head and escaped through the plains. And Baanah and his brother Rechab brought the head to David in Hebron, saying to the king, Behold the head of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul thine enemy which sought thy life; and the Lord hath avenged my lord the king this day of Saul, and his seed. And David replied unto the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, saying: As the Lord liveth, who hath redeemed my soul out of all adversity; when one told me, saying, Behold Saul is dead, thinking to have brought good tidings, I took hold of him and slew him in Ziklag; who thought I would have given him a reward for his tidings; how much more, when wicked men have slain a righteous person in his own house upon his bed? Shall I not therefore now require his blood of your hand, and take you away from the earth? And David commanded his young men, that they slew them, and cut off their hands and their feet, and hanged them over the pool in Hebron; but they took the head of Ish-bosheth, and buried it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

After this, came all the tribes of Israel to David in Hebron, and spake, saying: Behold we are thy bone and thy flesh; and also, in times past, even when Saul was king, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel; and the Lord thy God said unto thee, Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a ruler over them. Therefore, cause all the elders of Israel to come to the king in Hebron; and David made a league with them before the Lord; and they anointed David king over Israel. David was thirty years old when he began to reign in Hebron as king over the house of Judah; and he reigned there seven years and six months. (As the king of Israel, David was to reign in Jerusalem thirty-three years.)

Now, at this time the inhabitants of Jerusalem, or Jebus, were the Jebusites; and when David and all Israel departed toward Jerusalem, the Jebusites said, Thou shall not come hither, except thou take away the blind and the lame; for they expected not David to come thither. And David said unto his men, Whosoever getteth up to the gutter, and smiteth the Jebusites, and the lame and the blind, that are hated of David's soul, he shall be chief and captain. So Joab the son of Zeruiah went up first, and was made chief. Nevertheless David took the castle (stronghold) of Zion, the same became the city of David. And David built up the city round about Millo, and Joab was made to oversee the repair of the city. Thus David waxed greater and greater, for the Lord of hosts was with him. And Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, with cedar wood, carpenters, and masons; and they built him an house; and David perceived that the Lord had now established him king over Israel, and had exalted his kingdom for his people Israel's sake. In Jerusalem David took unto himself more concubines and wives; and there were yet sons and daughters born unto him. A genealogical reckoning of David and his descendants is shown on the next page:

Judah (Yehūda) son of Jacob (Yaqūb)
Pharez (Perez)
Hezron
Arni (Ram)
Amminadab
Nahshon
Salmon
Boaz (Ruth's husband)
Obed (Obaid)
Jesse

(2 daughters)
(by Nahash)

Zeruiah (3 sons)
Abigail (1 son)
Amasa
Abishai
Joab
Asahel

(8 sons; daughters not listed)
(by mother of David)

Eliab (Elihu father of Abihail, wife of Rehoboam, son of Solomon)
Abinadab
Shammah (Shimeah, Shimei)
Nethanel
Raddai
Azam (Ozem)
Unnamed
David (Davoud)

(21 sons)
(Daughters of this line are not shown)

Born in Hebron (between 1076 and 1069 B.C.)

- by Michal (Saul's daughter) -- none
- by Ahinoam (the Jezreelitess) -- Amnon
- by Abigail (wife of Nabal the Carmelite) -- Chileab (Daniel)
- by Maacah (Malcah; the daughter of Talmai king of Geshur)
  - Absalom (brother of Tamar his sister; Absalom's daughter Malcah was wife of Rehoboam, son of Solomon)
- by Haggith -- Adonijah
- by Abital -- Shephatiah
- by Eglah -- Ithream

Born in Jerusalem (between 1069 and 1037 B.C.)

- by Bath-sheba (Bath-shua); wife of Uriah the Hittite
  - unnamed (died)
  - Shammua (Shimmea)
  - Shobab
  - Nathan
  - Solomon (Jedidiah, Al-Hakim, or Shlomoh)
- by lesser wives and concubines --
  - Ibhar
  - Elishama (Elishua)
  - Nogah
  - Elpalet
  - Nepheg
  - Yaphia
  - Elishama
  - Be-eliada (Eliada)
  - Eliphalet
  - Jerimoth (father of Mahaleth, wife of Rehoboam, son of Solomon)

Menilek Ibn Al-Hakim
(son by queen of Sheba who migrated to Abyssinia)

Rehoboam
(son by Naamah the Ammonitess)

And these are the bands of men of war of Israel that came to David in Hebron, to turn the kingdom of Saul to him, according to the word of the Lord:

The children of Judah that bare shield and spear were six thousand and eight hundred, ready and armed for war; the children of Simeon, mighty men of valour, seven thousand and one hundred; the children of Ephraim, mighty men of valour famous throughout the house of their fathers, twenty thousand and eight hundred; half tribe of Manasseh, eighteen thousand; the children of Issachar were represented by two hundred men who had the understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do in worldly matters, and all their bretnren were at their command. The children of Zebulun, experts in war and who went forth to battle with instruments of war, were fifty thousand; these were determined soldiers that could keep rank, and were not of double heart. The tribe of Naphtali came with thirty-seven thousand men with shield and spear, and one thousand captains over them; and the Danites, the experts in war strategies and judgment, were twenty-eight thousand six hundred; the tribe of Asher, fighters and warriors, were forty thousand; the children of Benjamin, the kindred of Saul, three thousand, for at this time the greatest part of them were still with the house of Saul; and Jehoiada, a counselor of David, was the leader of the Aaronites, with him were three thousand and seven hundred descendants of Aaron, and Zadok, one of the two Aaronic High Priests, and twenty-two priest-rulers; and of the sons of Levi or Al-Levi, four thousand and six hundred descendants of Moses were come to Hebron to hand over the reins of the kingdom of Israel to David, according to the word of the Lord.

And from across the Jordan, where dwelt the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, came with all manner of instruments of war, an hundred and twenty thousand men. Thus over 340,800 men came to Hebron for the coronation ceremonies of David; and all came with perfect heart, to make him king over all Israel; both the men of Spirit and virtue and of war and passion came with one heart to proclaim David their king. And they were with him in Hebron three days, eating, drinking, and making merry, for a great feast was prepared for them by their brethren. Moreover, bread, meat, meal, cakes of figs, bunches of raisins, wine, oil, oxen, and sheep in abundance were brought from surrounding cities and villages on asses, camels, mules and oxen. A reckoning (rounded off to the nearest one hundred) of the children of Israel who came to Hebron is shown below:

children of Judah	6,800
children of Simeon	7,100
children of Ephraim	20,800
half tribe of Manasseh	18,000 children of Issachar	200
children of Zebulun	50,000

children of Naphtali	38,000 children of Dan	28,600
children of Asher	40,000 children of Benjamin	3,000
tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half-tribe of Manasseh from across the Jordan	120,000
descendants of Aaron	3,700
descendants of Moses (the children of Levi)	4,600
Total guests that came to David's coronation and remained in Hebron three days	340,800

And when the Philistines heard that David was anointed king over all Israel, they spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim, and sent men after David; when David heard of it, he laid himself in a stronghold, and enquired of the Lord, Shall I go up to the Philistines? Wilt thou deliver them into mine hands? And he received the answer, Go up, for the Lord will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hands. So David and his men went to a place where the enemy was, and they smote the Philistines there; and David said, The Lord hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, as the bursting forth of waters, and he called the name of the place Baal-perazim; and there they left images, and carried the rest away. And it came to pass, that the Philistines came up again and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim; and David enquired of the Lord again if he should go up to the Philistines; and he received the answer, Thou shalt not go up, but surround them from behind, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees; and let it be that, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, thou shalt get ready; for then shall the Lord go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines. And David did so as he was commanded, and the Lord smote the Philistines from Geba (Gibeon) until Gazer.

And it came to pass that David consulted with the rulers of thousands and hundreds, and every leader, and said unto the congregation of Israel: If it seem good unto you, and if it be the will of the Lord our God, let us send unto our brethren every where, that are left in all the land of Israel; and with them also to the priests and Levites which are in their cities and suburbs, that they may gather themselves unto us; and let us bring again the Ark of our God to us, for we inquired not at it in the days of Saul. And all the congregation said that they would do so, for the thing was right in the eyes of all the people.

So David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, from Shihor of Egypt even unto the entrance of Hemath, to bring the Ark of God from Kirjath-jearim, or Baalah of Judah; to bring the Ark of God of the Lord of Hosts which dwelleth between the cherubim. Thirty thousand men of Israel came with David to Kirjath-jearim; and a new cart was built to carry to Ark of God from the house of Abinadab which was in Gibeah. And Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the cart, Ahio being in the front and Uzzah in the rear. And as they carried the Ark David and all Israel played with harps and psalteries, timbrels, cymbals, trumpets, and diverse instruments of music in joy and ecstasy of beholding the Ark of God, the symbol of the presence of God in the midst of Israel. And when they came to the threshing floor of Chidon, the cart came to a sudden halt, and Uzzah put forth his hand to hold the Ark unworthily, without reverence; and the Lord's anger was kindled against Uzzah, so he smote him, and he died before the Ark. This displeased David, because the Lord had made a breach upon Uzzah, and he called the name of the place Perez-uzzah (Pharze-uzzah). And David was afraid that day, for he knew not if it was a bad omen or a chance that caused the breach; therefore, he brought not the Ark to the city of David, but sent to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite, of the tribe of Levi (from Gath-rimmon the Levite city in Dan (in Ephraim's territory) which was assigned to the Kohathites.

And it was told king David, that the Lord hath blessed the house of Obed-edom and all his kinsfolk, because of the Ark; this made David glad, and they went and brought the Ark of God from Gath-rimmon into the city of David; and it was so that when they that bare the Ark had gone six paces, oxens and fatlings were sacrificed; and David, girded in a linen ephod, danced before the Ark of God, in joy and gladness with all his might; and all Israel gave out great shouts and cries of joy, with the sound of the trumpet. As the Ark of the Lord came into the city of David, Michal his wife (Saul's daughter) looked out through a window, and beheld king David leaping and dancing before the Lord; and she despised him in her heart.

Thus they brought the Ark of the Lord, and set it in the midst of the tabernacle that David had pitched for this purpose. And David offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and blessed the people in the name of the Lord of Hosts. The whole multitude of Israel, each man, woman and child was provided with a cake, a bread, a good piece of meat, and a flagon of wine; then all the people returned, every one to his house, pleased and content. And David returned to bless his household, and Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet him, saying, How glorious was the king of Israel today in the eyes of the handmaids of his servants, as one of the vain fellows shamelessly uncovereth himself! And David said unto Michal, It was before the Lord, which chose me before thy father, to appoint me ruler over the people of the Lord, over Israel; therefore I will play before the Lord; and I will yet be more vile then thus, and will be base in my own sight; and of the maidservants which thou hast spoken of, of them shall I be had in honour. Thenceforth David went to her no more, and she had no child unto the day of her death.

And it came to pass that David appointed certain of the sons of Moses, even the Levites or the Al-Levi's, to minister before the tabernacle, to keep records, to thank and praise the Lord God of Israel, to guide Israel in all Spiritual matters, and to raise kings and priests unto the eternal kingdom of God; Asaph was appointed the chief minister, who also played the cymbals; and his assistants were Zechariah, Jeil, Shemiramoth (Shemirahmot), Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah,

Obed-edom, and other Jeil, that played the stringed instruments, even psalteries and harps; Benaiah and Jahaziel the priests played the trumpets before the tabernacle of the Ark. And on the selfsame day David wrote his first psalm to thank the Lord and gave it to Asaph and his brethren (this psalm was later rearranged as Psalm 105):

> Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon his name; make known his deeds among the people; sing unto him psalms, talk ye of all his wondrous works. Glory ye in his holy name; let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. Seek the Lord and his strength, seek his face continually. Remember his marvelous works that he hath done, his wonders, and his judgments of his mouth.
>
> O ye seed of Israel his servant, ye children of Jacob his chosen ones, He is the Lord our God, his judgments are in all the earth; be ye mindful always of his covenant; the word which he commanded to a thousand generations; even the covenant which he made with Abraham and of his oath unto Isaac; and hath confirmed the same to Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant, saying: Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the lot of your inheritance.
>
> When ye were but few, even a few, and strangers in it; and when they (our fathers) went from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people, he suffered no man to do them wrong; yea, he reproved kings for their sakes, saying: Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.
>
> Sing unto the Lord, all the earth; shew forth from day to day his salvation; declare his glory among the heathen; his marvelous works among all nations. For great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised, he also is to be feared above all gods; for all the gods of the people are idols, but the Lord made the heavens. Glory and honor are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place. Give unto the Lord, ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come before him; worship the Lord in the beauty of his holiness. Fear before him all the earth.
>
> Let the world become stable, that it be not moved; let the heavens be glad, and earth rejoice; and let men say among the nations, The Lord reigneth; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; let the fields rejoice, and all therein; then shall the trees of wood sing out at the presence of the Lord, because he cometh to judge the earth.

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth forever; and say ye, Save us, O God of our salvation, and gather us together, and deliver us from the heathen, that we may give thanks to thy holy name, and glory in thy praise. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel forever and ever.

And all the people said, Amen, and praised the name of the Lord. Then David made Obed-edom and sixty-eight Levites, and also sons of Jeduthun and Hosah, porters in the tabernacle of the Lord; and Zadok the high priest and his brethren priests (of the Aaronic Order) were sent to minister at the tabernacle of the Lord in the high place, at Gibeon; to offer there burnt offerings upon the altar daily morning and evening, and to perform all other priestly duties, according to the law of Israel. Heman and Jeduthun, and others were also chosen to minister at Gibeon (el-Jib, about six miles north-northwest of Jerusalem), to give thanks and praise to the Lord, with trumpets, cymbals and other musical instruments.

And it came to pass, as David sat pondering in his house in peace and safety, for the Lord had given him rest from all his enemies round about him, that he said unto Nathan (Al-Levi) the prophet, Behold now, I dwell in an house of cedar, but the Ark of God remaineth within the tent. And Nathan replied, Then go, do all that is in thine heart, for the Lord is with thee. But the selfsame night the word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying, Go and tell David my servant, Thus saith the Lord: Thou shalt not build me an house to dwell in, for I have not dwelt in an house since the day that I brought Israel out unto this day; but have gone from tent to tent, from one tabernacle to another; wheresoever I have walked with all Israel, spake I a word to any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to feed my people, to build me a house of cedar? Now therefore, so shalt thou say unto my servant David: Thus saith the Lord of Hosts—I took thee from the sheepcote, from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people Israel; and I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have cut off all thine enemies out of thy sight, and have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth. Also I will ordain a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of the wicked afflict them anymore, as before time. And as since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies, also the Lord telleth thee that he will make thee an house.

And it shall come to pass, when thy days be expired, that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom; he shall build me a house, and I will establish this throne forever; I will be his father, and he shall be my son; and I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee. But I will settle him in mine house and in my kingdom forever. And according to all these words, and according to all this vision did Nathan speak unto David.

Then went David, king of Israel, and sat before the Lord, and said, Who am I, O Lord God? And what is mine house, that thou hast brought me hitherto? And yet this was an small thing in thine eyes, O God; for thou hast also spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come, and hast regarded me according to the estate of a man of high degree, O Lord God. And what can David speak more unto thee, O Lord God, for thou knowest thy servant. O Lord, for thy servant's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all this greatness, in making known all these great things. Thou art great, O Lord God, for there is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears. And what one nation in the earth is like thy people Israel, whom God went to redeem to be his own people; to make thee a name of greatness and terribleness, by driving out nations from before thy people, whom thou hast redeemed out of Egypt? For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel, to be a people unto thee forever; and thou, Lord, becamest their God. Therefore now, Lord, let the thing that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant and his house be established forever, and do as thou hast said; let thy name be magnified forever, saying, The Lord of Hosts is the God of Israel, even a God to Israel; and let the house of David thy servant be established before thee; for thou O Lord of Hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to thy servant, saying: I will build thee an house, therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray before thee. And now, O Lord God, thou art God and promised this goodness unto thy servant, now therefore let it please thee to bless the house of thy servants, that it may continue for ever before thee; for thou, O Lord God, hast spoken it; and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed forever.

After this, the Philistines again came to battle with Israel; but they were smitten and subdued, and Israel took Metheg-ammah out of the hands of the Philistines, and smote Moab, casting them down to the ground — two lines of infantrymen were trained to put them to death, and one line was to defend the fighters of Israel; so the Moabites became servants of David, and lived as tributaries to Israel.

David and his men also smote Hadadezer (Hadadazer), the son of Rehob, king of Zobah, as he went to recover his border at the river Euphrates; and Israel took from him a thousand chariots, seven hundred horsemen, twenty thousand footmen; and houghed all the chariot horses, but reserved of them an hundred chariots. And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succour Hadadezer king of Zobah, David and his men slew of the Syrians twenty-two thousand men; and garrisons were put in Syria of Damascus; and the Syrians too became servants and tributaries to Israel. And David took the shields of gold that were on the officers of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem; and from Betah and Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, David's men took great amounts of brass.

When Toi king of Hamath heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadadezer, he sent Joram his son unto David, to salute him, and to bless him in his behalf; for David had fought against Hadadezer, king of Zobah, son of Rehab who also had wars with Toi; and Joram brought vessels of silver and gold and brass unto king David, which he dedicated unto the Lord, along with the silver and gold that he had dedicated of all nations which he subdued, including of the Syrians, the Moabites, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and the Amalekites.

And when David and his eighteen thousand men returned, after defeating the Syrians in the valley of the salt, they were greeted with fervent zeal by the multitude. Thus it came to pass that garrisons were put throughout all Edom, and the Edomites became David's tributaries and servants; and the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went; and he reigned over all Israel, and judged in righteousness, and rendered justice unto all his people. Joab the son of Zeruiah was over the host (armies); Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was the court recorder; Zadok the son of Ahitub, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar were the high priests; and Seraiah was the scribe; and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was placed above the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were chief rulers, and priests (of the Aaronic Order) in Israel.

And it came to pass that the king was once again safe from his enemies, and the Lord had given him rest; and he said unto his counsellors, Is there yet any left of the house of Saul, that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake. And they replied, There is yet of the house of Saul a servant whose name is Ziba, perchance he may know. So they called Ziba, and David asked him, saying, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may show kindness of God unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath yet one son, that is lame on his feet; behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lodebar.

Then the king sent for him, and Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul was brought from the house of Machir. When he was come unto David, he fell on his face and did reverence in fear. And David said unto him, Mephibosheth my son, fear not, for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake; and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually. And he bowed himself, and said, What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such a dead dog as I am? Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said unto him, I have given unto thy master's son all that pertained to Saul and his house; thou therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, shall till the land for him; and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have food to eat; but Mephibosheth thy master's son shall eat bread always at my table as one of the king's sons. Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants, and he said unto the king, According to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so shall thy servant do. And Mephibosheth had a young son, whose name was Micha; and all those who dwelt in the house of Ziba became servants unto Mephibosheth, and served his son in Lodebar; and Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem, and did eat continually at the king's table, and remained lame on both feet all his life.

And it came to pass after this, that the king of the Ammonites died, and Hanun his son reigned in his stead. Then said David, I will show kindness unto Hanun son of Nahash, as his father showed kindness unto me; and David sent his servants to comfort him. But when David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon, their princes said unto Hanun their lord, thinkest thou that David doth honor thy father, for he hath sent comforters unto thee? Hath not rather David sent his servants unto thee to search the city, and to spy it and overthrow it? Wherefore Hanun took David's servants, and shaved off one half of their beards, and cut off their garments in the middle, to their buttocks, and sent them away.

When it was told David, he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed; and the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return. When the Ammonites knew that they stank before David, they hired the Syrians of Beth-rehob, of Zobah, twenty thousand footmen, and of the king of Maacah a thousand men, and of Ish-tob (land of Tob) twelve thousand men. And David sent Joab and all the host of the mighty men, to battle against the Ammonites and the Syrians. Joab and his brother Abishai, and their men, defeated the enemy and Joab returned to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians heard that they were smitten before Israel, they gathered themselves together; and Hadadezar, king of Zobah, sent and brought out the Syrian host that was beyond the Jordan; and they camped at Helam (Alema, Alma) under the captain of their host Shobach. And when it was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and passed over the Jordan, and came to Helam. And the Syrians set themselves in array against David, and fought with him. Here David and his men slew the men of seven hundred chariots of Syrians, and forty thousand horsemen; and smote Shobach the captain of their host, and he died there. And when all the kings that were tributaries to Hadadezar (Hadadazer) saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and became their servants and slaves; and the Syrians feared to help the Ammonites any more.

And after the year was expired, about the time when kings go forth to meet at battle, David sent Joab and his men with all the armies of Israel, and they destroyed the children of Ammon, and beseiged Rabbah, but David tarried at Jerusalem. And it came to pass that in an eveningtide, David arose from off his bed, and walked upon the roof of the king's house; and from the roof he saw a woman washing herself, and the woman was very beautiful to look at. David having craved and lusted after her, sent messengers to inquire of the woman; then one said, Is not this Bath-sheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite? And David sent messengers, and took her by intrigue, and lay with her, for he saw her purifying herself of her uncleanness; then she returned unto her house. And after the woman conceived, she sent and told David, saying, I am with child, yet my husband hath not touched me, for he is gone to battle in defense of Israel. So David sent messengers to Joab the captain of the hosts, saying, Send me Uriah the Hittite; and Joab sent Uriah to David. And when Uriah was come unto him, David asked him how Joab was doing, how the people were doing, and how war was progressing; and said to Uriah, Go down to thine house, and wash thy feet (meaning, rest a while!), and Uriah departed out of the king's house, and there followed him a mess of royal dainties, a gift from the king. But Uriah slept at the door of the king's house with all the servants of his lord, and went not to his house.

And when they had told David that Uriah went not down to his house, David said unto Uriah, Camest thou not from thy journey; why then didst thou not go down unto thine house? And Uriah said unto David, The Ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in tents; and my lord Joab, and his servants are encamped in the open field; shall I then go into my own house, to eat, and to drink, and to lie with my wife? Nay, as thou livest, and thy soul liveth, I will not do this thing. And David said to Uriah, Tarry here today also, and tomorrow I will let thee depart; so Uriah abode in Jerusalem that day, and the next; and when David called him to sit at meat, he did eat and drink before the king, and he was made drunk; then at evening he went out to lie on his bed with the servants of his lord, but went not down to his house. In the morning, David wrote a letter to Joab and sealed it with the royal seal, and sent it by the hand of Uriah. And he wrote, Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire ye from him, that he may be smitten and die. And after reading the letter, he pondered upon the most suitable place, and assigned Uriah to a city, where he knew that only the valiant men were. And the men of that city fought with the men of Joab; and some did fall of the servants of David; and Uriah the Hittite was also declared among the dead.

Then Joab, the captain of the host of David's armies, sent a messenger unto David, saying: When thou hast made an end of telling the matters of war to the king; and if perchance the king's wrath arise, and he might say unto thee, Why approached ye so nigh unto the city when ye did fight, knowing that they would shoot from the wall? Who smote Abimelech the son of Jerubbesheth (Gideon or Jerubbaal)? Did not a woman cast a piece of millstone upon him from the wall, that he died in Thebez? Why went ye nigh the wall? Then say thou, Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also. So the messsenger came and told David all that he was bidden by Joab, saying, Surely, my lord the king, the men prevailed against us, and came out unto us into the field, and we were upon them unto the entering of the gate, and the shooters shot from off the wall upon thy servants; and some of the king's servants be dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also. Then said David unto the messenger, Thus shalt thou say unto Joab, Let not this thing displease thee, for the sword devoureth one as well as another; make thy battle more strong against the city, and overthrow it; and encourage thou him. And when the wife of Uriah heard that her husband was dead, she mourned for him; and when the mourning days were past, David sent and fetched her to his house, and she became his wife, and bore him a son.

But the thing which David had done concerning this matter displeased the Lord; and the Lord sent Nathan the prophet unto David. And he came unto the king's chamber, saying, There were two men in one city, the one rich, and the other poor; the rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds, but the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he bought and raised up; and it grew with the man and his children; it did eat of his own, and drank of his own vessel, and lay in the man's bosom, and was unto him as a daughter. And there came a hungry traveller unto the rich man, but he took not of his own flock, and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man; but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him. And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man, and he said to Nathan: As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this thing shall surely die; and he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and had no pity. And Nathan said unto David, Thou art that man. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul, and I gave thee thy master's house, and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would moreover have given thee unto thine heart's content; wherefore hast thou done this evil, and despised the commandments of the Lord? Thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite by the hand of wayfaring Joab, with the sword of the children of Ammon; and now hast taken his wife to be thy wife. Now therefore the sword shall never depart from thine house, nor shall the kingdom be established forever in thy seed; for thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy wife. Yea, thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house, and I will take thy wives before thine eyes, and give them unto thy neighbor; and he shall lie with them in the daylight. Furthermore, for thou didst this thing in secret, and with intrigue, I will cause all Israel to know this thing, and they shall despise thee openly.

And David said unto Nathan, I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said unto David, The Lord also hath put away thy sin, that thou shalt not die; but because by this deed (karma) thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of God to blaspheme, the child that is born unto thee (by Bath-sheba) shall surely die. And after Nathan departed the house, the child that Uriah's wife bare unto David fell very sick; and David therefore besought God for the child, and fasted all day and lay all night upon bare ground. And the elders of his house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the ground; but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them.

On the seventh day the child died; and the servants of David feared to tell him the news; but when David saw that his servants whispered, he perceived that the child was dead; therefore David said unto his servants, Is the child dead? And they said, He is dead. Then David arose from the ground, washed, and anointed himself, changed his apparel, and came into the house of the Lord, and prayed; then he returned unto his own house, and they set the food before him, and he ate. Then said his servants unto him, What thing is this, O king, that thou hast done? Thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive; but when the child is dead, thou didst rise and eat bread? And David said, While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept; for I said, who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, that the child may live? But now he is dead, why should I fast now? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me.

And David comforted Bath-sheba (Bath-shua) his wife, and went in unto her and lay with her; and she bare him a son, and he called his name Solomon (Suleman), and the Lord loved the child, and sent Nathan the prophet to bless him, and called him Jedidiah ("the new one of the Lord"). And Joab, the general of David's armies, fought against the children of Ammon in Rabbah (about twenty-three miles east of Jordan on the north bank of a tributary of the Jabbok), and took the royal city; then sent messengers to David, and said, I have fought against the children of Ammon, and have taken the royal city of waters. Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it; lest I take all the city, and it be called after my name. And David then gathered together all his men of war, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took the entire city. And they took the king's crown from off his head, the weight of which was a talent (ninety-two pounds troy), of gold and precious stones, and it was set on David's head; and the spoil of the city in great abundance was brought back to Jerusalem; and the Ammonites were brought, and they were cut with saws, with harrows of iron, and with axes. Even so dealt David with all cities of the children of Ammon.

And it came to pass that Absalom, son of David, had a fair sister, whose name was Tamar; and Amnon, son of David by his wife Ahinoam, lusted and craved after her; and he was so vexed, that he fell sick for his step-sister. She was of a fair countenance and virgin; and Amnon thought it hard to find a way to see her nakedness. And Amnon had a friend Jonadab, the son of Shimeah (Shimea) David's brother, a very subtle man; and he said unto Amnon, Why art thou, being a king's son, so lean and feeble? What troubleth thee, will thou not tell me? And Amnon said unto him, I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister. And Jonadab said unto him, Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thyself sick; and when thy father cometh to see thee, say unto him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come, and give me food, and prepare the food in my sight, that I may see it with mine own eyes, and eat at her hand. So Amnon lay down, and feigned himself to be ill; and when the king was come to see him, Amnon said unto him, I pray thee, let Tamar my sister come, and make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat at her hand. Then David sent for Tamar, and said, Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and prepare him some food. So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house, and he was laid down; and she took flour, and kneaded it, and baked pancakes in his sight, and she took a pan, and poured them out before him, but he refused to eat, saying, Have out all men from me, and every man went out from him. Then Amnon said unto Tamar, Bring the food into the chamber that I may eat of thine hand; and she took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into Amnon's chamber. And when she had brought them unto him to eat, he took hold of her, saying, Come lie with me, my sister. And she answered him, Nay, my brother, do not force me; for no such thing ought to be done in Israel; do not thou this folly. And I, whither shall I cause my shame to go? And as for thee, thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel. Now, therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the king, for he will not withhold me from thee. Nevertheless, Amnon would not hearken to reason, for he was under the spell of his evil thoughts; and being stronger than she, he forced her to lie in bed and he didst see her nakedness. Then Amnon hated her exceedingly, so that the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he loved her. And Amnon, in shame and defeat, said unto her, Arise, and be gone; and she said unto him, There is no cause to feel shameful, for this evil of sending me away this way is greater than the other which thou didst; but he would not hearken unto her. Then he called his servant that ministered unto him, saying, Put now this woman out from me, and bolt the door after her; and she had a garment of divers colors upon her, for with such robes were the king's daughters that were virgins apparelled. And his servant brought her out, and bolted the door after her.

And Tamar put ashes on her head, and rent her garment, and laid her hand on her head, and went on crying. When Absalom saw her, he asked, Hath Amnon thy brother been with thee? But hold now peace, my sister; regard not this thing, for he is thy brother; so Tamar remained in misery in her brother Absalom's house.

But when king David heard of these things, he was very wroth; and Absalom spake unto his brother Amnon neither good nor bad for two years, for he hated Amnon, for he brought his sister to shame. And it came to pass that after two full years, Absalom invited all the king's sons to Baalhazor, near Ephraim, where he had sheepshearers. And he came to the king, and said, Behold now that thy servant hath sheepshearers, I beseech thee, let the king and his servants go with thy servant. And the king replied, Nay, my son, let us not all now go, lest we be a burden unto thee. And Absalom pressed him saying, If not, I pray thee, let my brother Amnon go with us, and sought David's blessings. And the king said unto him, Why should he go with thee? But Absalom again pressed him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, Mark ye now when Amnon's heart is merry with wine; and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon, then kill him, fear not; have not I commanded you? Be courageous, and be valiant. And the servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as they were commanded by their master; then all the king's sons arose, and every man got himself upon his mule, and departed. And while they were on their way, tidings came to David that Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left. Then the king arose, and tore his garments, and laid himself upon the bare ground; and all his servants rent their clothes, and stood by. And Jonadab, the son of Shimeah David's brother, said, Let not my lord suppose that all the young men the king's sons are slain, for Amnon only is dead; for Absalom had determined the day he forced his sister Tamar to do this evil. Now therefore, let not my lord the king take the thing to his heart, for Amnon only is dead, and not all the king's sons are dead.

Then Absalom fled to Geshur, to Talmai, the son of Ammihud, king of Geshur; and when the young man that kept the watch of Absalom's house lifted up his eye, he was surrounded by much people that came by the way of the hillside behind him; and Absalom remained in Geshur, at his mother's kinsfolk, three years. And David longed to see his son Absalom, for now he was comforted concerning Amnon, knowing he was dead.

Now Joab the son of Zeruiah perceived that which was in the king's heart. So he sent to Tekoah (Khirbet Taqua) and fetched from thence a wise woman (actress) and said unto her, I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparel, and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman that had mourned a long time for the dead; and come to the king, and speak the words which I shall put into thy mouth. So the woman of Tekoah came to the king's presence, and fell on her face to the ground, did obeisance, and said, Help, O king. And the king asked her, What aileth thee? And she answered, I am indeed a widow woman, and mine husband is dead; and thy handmaid had two sons, and they two strove together in the field, and there was none to part them, but one smote the other, and slew him. And, behold, the whole family is risen against thine handmaid, saying, Deliver him that smote his brother, that we may kill him, for the life of his brother whom he slew; and we will destroy the heir also. And so, O king, they shall quench my coal which is left; and shall leave to my husband neither name nor remainder upon the earth. And the king said unto the woman, Go to thine house, and I will give charge concerning thee. And the woman of Tekoah said unto the king,My lord, O king, the iniquity be on me, and on my father's house, and the king and his throne be guiltless. And king David said, Whosoever saith ought unto thee, bring him hither unto me, and he shall not touch thee anymore. Then she replied, I pray thee, let the king remember the Lord thy God, that thou wouldest not suffer the revengers of blood to destroy my son. And he said, As the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the ground. Then the woman said, Let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak one word unto my lord the king. And he said, Say on.

And the woman said, Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing against the people of God? For the king doth speak this thing as one who is at fault; in that the king doth not fetch home again his own banished! For we must needs die, and are as water spilled on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; neither doth God respect any person; yet doth he devise means, that his banished be not expelled from him. Now therefore that I am come to speak of this thing unto my lord the king it is because the people have caused me to become afraid, that thy handmaid may say, I will now speak unto the king, that perchance the king may perform the request of his handmaid; for the king will hear, to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of the man that would destroy me and my son out of the inheritance of God. Then thine handmaid said, The word of my lord the king shall now be comfortable; for as an angel of God, so is my lord the king to discern good and evil; therefore the Lord thy God will be with the king. Then the king answered, and said unto the woman, Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I shall ask thee. And the woman said, Let my lord the king now speak. And David said, Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this? And the woman answered, As thy soul liveth, my lord the king, none can turn to the right hand or to the left from ought that my lord the king hath spoken. For thy servant Joab didst put all these words in the mouth of thine handmaid, to fetch about this form of speech; my lord is wise, according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth. (This wise woman of Tekoah is said to be Saul's daughter Michal in disguise who dwelt in Tekoah or Khirbet Taqua, about ten miles south of Jerusalem.)

And the king said unto Joab, Behold now, I have done this thing; go therefore, and bring the young man Absalom again. And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed himself, and thanked the king, saying; Today thy servant knoweth that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king, in that the king hath fulfilled the request of his servant. So Joab arose and went to Geshur, to fetch Absalom and brought him to Jerusalem. But the king would not see him, saying, Let him turn to his own house, and let him not see my face; so Absalom dwelt in his own house, and saw not the king's face.

It is said that in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty; from the sole of his feet to the crown of his head there was no blemish in his skin. And when he cut off his hair every year, because the hair was heavy on him, he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels (about five pounds; including the weight of oil and unguent), after the king's weight. Unto Absalom were born three sons, and one daughter whose name was also Tamar, a woman of a fair countenance; and he had sons and daughters from other wives.

And it came to pass that Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, and saw not the king's face. Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to have sent him to the king; but Joab would not come to him; and when he sent for him the second time, and he would not come, Absalom said unto his servants, See, Joab's field of barley is near mine, go and set it on fire. Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom unto his house, and said, Wherefore have thy servants set my field on fire? And Absalom answered, saying, I sent for thee, that I may send thee to the king, to say, Wherefore am I come from Geshur? It would have been better for me to have been there still; now therefore let me see the king's face; and if there be any iniquity in me, let him kill me. So Joab came to the king, and told him; and the king called for Absalom; and when he came to the king, he bowed himself on his face to the ground; and the king kissed Absalom; and he dwelt in the house of the king, and was comforted.

And Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him. One day he rose up early, and stood by the way of the entrance gate; and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy came to the king for judgement and hearing, Absalom called unto him, saying, Of what city art thou? And if the man was of the tribes of Israel, Absalom said unto him, Behold, thy matters are good and right; but there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee; oh, that I were made judge in the land, that every man that hath a cause or complaint might come to me, and I would render him justice! And when any man came nigh to Absalom to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, embraced him, and kissed him. In this manner Absalom did unto all men who came to the king for judgement or to seek his audience; and he stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

And it came to pass that when Absalom was forty years of age, he said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the Lord; for thy servant while abiding at Geshur in Syria, made a vow in Hebron, saying, If the Lord shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then I will serve the Lord. And the king replied, Go in peace. So Absalom arose and went to Hebron, with two hundred men, in their simplicity, who knew not anything of Absalom's plans; and he sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, ye shall shout, Absalom reigneth in Hebron. And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, a native of the city of Giloh in the hills of Judah (the grandfather of Bath-sheba, daughter of Eliam or Ammiel), who was also a mighty counsellor of David, while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy of Absalom was great, for he didst win the hearts of the people through cunning designs and secret combinations. And there came a messenger to David, saying, The hearts of the men of Israel are turned after Absalom.

After this, David said unto all his servants that were with him in Jerusalem, Arise, and let us flee, lest we be not able to escape, if he overtakes us suddenly; make speed to depart, lest he bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword. So the king and all his household departed, except ten of David's concubines were left behind to keep the house. And the king went forth with his servants and all the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and later six hundred Gittites that came from Gath, went before him. When they reached a deep valley that separates Jerusalem from Mount of Olives (the torrent valley of Kidron), the king said to Ittai the Gittite, Wherefore goest thou also with us, return to thy place and serve the king; for thou art a stranger, and also an exile; thou camest but yesterday, should I this day make thee go up and down with us? Seeing I go whither I may; therefore return thou, and take back thy brethren — mercy and truth be with thee. And Ittai answered the king, saying, As the Lord liveth, surely in whatsoever place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also will thy servant be. So David said to Ittai, Go and pass over; and Ittai passed over the valley, with all his men, and young ones that were with him. And all the people in Jerusalem wept as the king and all his servants crossed over the brook Kidron; and they continued their journey toward the wilderness. And Zadok, son of Ahitub the priest and all the Levites (the Al-Levi) also crossed with the king, bearing the Ark of the Covenant; and they set down the Ark, and Abiathar the other priest of the line of Ithamar, crossed the brook after all the people had passed across. Then the king said unto Zadok, Carry back the Ark of God into the city; and if I shall find favor in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me again, and show me both it, and its habitation. But if he findeth no delight in me, behold, here am I, let him do to me as seemeth good unto him. Art thou not a seer in Israel? Return into the city in peace with thy two sons, Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar. Behold, I will tarry in the plain of the wilderness, until there come word from thee to uphold me. Then Zadok and Abiathar carried the Ark back to Jerusalem; and there they and the priests tarried.

After this, David and all the congregation that was with him, went up by the ascent of Mount of Olive (Olivet), weeping as they went up; and David had his head covered, as he walked barefoot, so did every person. And when one told David, saying, Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom, David said, O Lord, I pray thee, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness. And when all the congregation reached the top of the mount, David worshipped God; and as he was thus engaged, Hushai the Archite, David's friend, came to meet him with his coat rent, and soil upon his head, unto whom David said, If thou passest with us, thou shalt be a burden unto me; but if thou return to the city, and say unto Absalom, I will be thy servant, O king, as I have been thy father's servant, so will I now be thy servant; then mayest thou for me defeat the counsel of Ahithophel; and hast thou not Zadok and Abiathar the priests there? Therefore, it shall be that whatsoever thing thou shalt hear out of the king's house, thou shalt tell it to Zadok and Abiathar the priests; behold they have there with them their two sons, Ahimaaz Zadok's son, and Jonathan Abiathar's son; and by them ye shall send unto me all that ye can hear. So Hushai the Archite, David's friend, came into the city of Jerusalem, and Absalom dwelt in Jerusalem also. And when David was a little past the top of the mount, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth came to meet him, with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them two hundred loaves of bread, an hundred bunches of raisins, an hundred of summer fruits, and a bottle of wine. And the king said unto Ziba, What meanest thou by these? And Ziba said, the asses be for the king's household to ride on, and the bread and the summer fruit for the young men to eat, and the wine that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink. And the king said, And where is thy master's son? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold he abideth in Jerusalem; for he said, Today shall the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father. Then said the king to Ziba, Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth. And Ziba replied, I humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king!

When David and the congregation reached Bahurim (a village near Mount of Olives, modern Ras et-Tamim, a short distance northeast of Jerusalem), behold, there came a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was Shimei, the son of Gera; and he came forth upon David cursing, and began to cast stones at the king, as all the mighty men and kinsfolk of David that were on his right hand and on his left hand, stood still in amazement. And thus Shimei cursed David, saying; Come out, come out, thou bloody man, thou man of Belial (worthless bully); the Lord hath returned upon thee all the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; the Lord hath delivered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son, and behold, thou art now taken in thine own mischief, because thou art a bloody man of ignorance and passion. Then said Abishai the son of Zeruiah unto the king, Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? Let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head. And the king said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? Let him curse, because the Lord hath sent him to curse David; behold, my son which came forth of my bowels seeketh my life and coveteth the glory of the kingdom, how much more now may this Benjamite do it? Let him alone, and let him curse, for the Lord hath bidden him; it may be that the Lord will look on mine afflictions, and may requite me good for his cursing this day.

And the king and his men continued their journey, while Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, cursing, throwing stones, and casting dust at the king. And it came to pass that while Absalom, and Ahithophel and all the elders of Israel dwelt in Jerusalem, Hushai the Archite came to Absalom, saying, God save the king, God save the king. And Absalom said to Hushai, Is this thy kindness to thy friend the king? Why wentest thou not with him? And Hushai said unto Absalom, Nay, but whom the Lord and his people and all the men of Israel choose, his will I be, and with him will I abide, and again, whom should I serve? Should I not serve in the presence of his son? As I have served in thy father's presence, so will I be in thy presence. Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, Give counsel among you what we shall do. And Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Go in unto thy father's concubines, whom he hath left to keep the house; and all Israel shall hear that thou art abhorred of thy father; then shall the hands of all that are with thee be strong. So they spread Absalom a tent upon the top of the house, and Absalom went in unto his father's concubines in the sight of all the elders of Israel. And the counsel of Ahithophel was in those days, as if a man had enquired of the word of God; so was all the counsel of Ahithophel to both David and Absalom. Moreover Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Let me now choose out twelve thousand men; and I will arise and pursue after David this night; and I will come upon him while he is weary and weak-handed, and will make him afraid; and all the people that are with him shall flee. And I will smite the king only, and bring back all the people unto thee; the man whom thou seekest is as if all returned, so all the people shall be in peace. And the saying pleased well Absalom and all the elders of Israel.

Then said Absalom, Call now Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear likewise what he saith. And when Hushai came to Absalom, Absalom spake unto him, saying, Ahithophel hath given such a counsel, shall we follow his advice? If not, what speakest thou concerning this matter? And Hushai said unto Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath given is not good at this time; for thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty men, and they will turn bitter in their soul, as a bear robbed of her whelps in the field; and thy father is a man of war, and cannot be overthrown easily. Behold, he is hid now in a pit or some other place; and when any of his men be overthrown, they will give out a cry, saying, Behold the people that follow Absalom are marauders and murderers; and those that are valiant and whose hearts are as the lion's shall turn against thee. Therefore, I counsel that all Israel be gathered unto thee, from Dan to Beer-sheba, as the sand upon the seashore for multitude; then go thou to battle in thy own person, and in some place we shall come upon him as the dew falleth on the ground, so of him and all his men that are with him, there shall not be left so much as one; moreover, if he escapes to a (walled) city for refuge, then all Israel shall bring ropes to that city, and we will bring down that city, until not one stone or brick be found there. And Absalom and all the elders of Israel said, the counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel; for the Lord had appointed to defeat the counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that evil might befall Absalom.

After this, Hushai went to Zadok and Abiathar the high priests, and said, Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel, and thus I have counselled them. Now therefore send quickly, and tell David, saying, Lodge not this night in the plains of the wilderness, but speedily pass over, lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that are with him. So they sent Jonathan and Ahimaaz, their sons, to the camp of David; but they tarried at En-rogel (near Job's or Ayyub's well; at the boundary between Judah and Benjamin, near Jerusalem), for a peasant girl had warned that a lad had seen them, and told Absalom. And while they were hiding in a man's house in Bahurim, Absalom's servants came to the house, and said, Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan? And the woman replied, They be gone over the water, pointing to the brook nearby; but they hid themselves in the well that was in the court of the house; and the woman took and spread a covering over the well's mouth, and broadcast ground corn over it; and the servants of Absalom knew not this thing, and sought them some distance over the brook of water, and could not find them; so they returned to Jerusalem. After Absalom's men had departed, Ahimaaz and Jonathan came up out of the well, and went to king David, saying: Arise, and pass quickly over the water, for thus hath Ahithophel counselled against you; then, David arose, and all the people that were with him, and they crossed the Jordan; and by the morning light all had crossed over the river.

And when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddled his ass, gat him home to his city; put his household in order; then hanged himself and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father. When David and his men came to Mahanaim, Absalom and men of Israel had crossed over the Jordan and pitched in Gilead. And here Absalom made Amasa (son of Ithra, an Ishmaelite who went in to Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister to Zeruiah Joab's mother) the captain of his army, instead of Joab. Soon after, came to Mahanaim three men, Shoba son of Nahash of Rabbah the Ammonite, Machir son of Ammiel of Lodebar, and Barzillai the Gileadite of Rogelim; and they brought with them beds, basins, earthen vessels, wheat and barley, flour and parched corn, beans and lentils, parched mixed porridge, honey and butter, sheep and kine, and presented to David, saying: These we have brought for our lord the king, for the people is hungry, and weary and thirsty in the wilderness.

Now Bar-zillai was an aged man, even eighty years old, and a very great man; and the king said unto him, Come thou with me, and I shall feed thee with me in Jerusalem. And Bar-zillai said unto the king, How long have I to live, that I should go up with the king unto Jerusalem? I am this day fourscore years old, can I discern between good and evil? Can thy servant taste what he eateth or drinketh? Or can he hear any more voices of singing men and women, as he once did? Wherefore then should thy servant be yet a burden unto my lord the king? Thy servant will go a little way over Jordan with the king; why should the king recompense him with such a reward? Let thy servant, I pray thee, be left behind, that he may die in his own city, and be buried by the grave of his father and mother. But, behold, thy servant Chimham, let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him that which seemeth good unto thee. And the king answered, Chimham shall go over with me; and I shall do unto him that which shall seem good unto thee; and whatsoever else thou shall require of me, that will I do for thee. Then the king kissed Bar-zillai and blessed him; and David and his men crossed over the Jordan, and the three men returned to their own place. And the king went to Gilgal, and Chimham went with him. Behold, half the elders of Israel came to the king in Gilgal, saying, Why have our brethren the men of Judah stolen thee, thine household, and all thy men away, across the Jordan, and have brought the king back? And all the elders of Judah answered the men of Israel, Because the king is near of kin to us; wherefore then be ye angry for this matter? Have we eaten at all of the king's cost? Or hath he given us any gift? And the men of Israel answered, saying, We have ten parts in the king, we have more right in him than ye; why then did ye despise us, and not ask our advice in bringing back our king? And the words of the men of Judah were fiercer than the words of the men of Israel.

And it came to pass that David numbered the people that were with him, and set captains of thousands and hundreds over them. And he set forth a third part of the host under Joab, a third under Abishai (brother of Joab), and a third part under Ittai the Gittite; and said unto the people, I will surely go forth with you myself to battle. But the people said, Nay, thou shalt not go forth with us; for if we flee, they will not care for us, neither if half of us die; but thou art worth ten thousand of us, therefore now it is better that thou help us out of the city. And David replied, What seemeth you best I will do. And the king commanded Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, saying, Deal gently for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom.

So the people went out into the field against Israel, and fought the battle in the wood of Ephraim. There was a great slaughter that day of twenty thousand men of Israel; and it is said that the wood devoured more people in that day than the sword. And Absalom met with the servants of David, while riding upon a mule; and as he went under the thick boughs of a great oak, he was taken up, but his mule passed through. When a certain man saw it, he told Joab, saying, Behold, I saw Absalom hanged in an oak. And Joab said unto the man, Behold, thou sawest him, why then didst thou not smite him there to the ground? I would have given thee ten shekels of silver and a girdle. And the man said unto Joab, Though I should receive a thousand shekels of silver in mine hand, yet would I not put forth my hand against the king's son; for in our assembly the king charged thee, Abishai, and Ittai, saying, Beware that none touch the young man Absalom. Moreover, I would have wrought guilt upon myself, for there is no matter hid from the king; and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me. Then Joab said, I may not thus tarry with thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the midst of the oak; and ten young men that bare Joab's armour surrounded Absalom, smote him and slew him. Then Joab blew the trumpet, that the people returned from pursuing after Israel; and they took the body and cast it into a great pit in the wood, and laid a very great heap of stones upon it. After this, all Israel fled every one to his tent.

Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and reared for himself a pillar in the king's dale (in the low plains of Shaveh); for he said, I have no son that will keep my name in remembrance, therefore I shall call it Absalom's monument or place. Then Ahimaaz the son of Zadok the priest said unto Joab, Let me now run and bear the king tidings, as to how the Lord hath avenged his enemies. And Joab replied, Thou shalt not bear tidings this day, but thou shall bear tidings another day. And Joab said unto Cushi, Go tell the king what thou hast seen; and Cushi bowed himself unto Joab, and ran. Then Ahimaaz said unto Joab again, But howsoever, let me, I pray thee, also run after Cushi. And Joab said, Wherefore wilt thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings ready? But Ahimaaz insisted again, and Joab said, Run. And Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and overran Cushi.

As David sat between the two gates, the watchman went up to the roof over the gate of the wall, and saw a man running alone; and the watchman cried and informed the king. And the king said, If he be alone, there are tidings in his mouth. As the man drew near, the watchman beheld another man running alone; and the king said, He also bringeth tidings. Then the watchman said, Me thinketh the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok. And the king said, He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings. When Ahimaaz came near, he called unto the king, saying, All is well! and fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, Blessed be the Lord thy God which hath delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king. And the king said, Is the young man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab sent the king's servant, and me thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I know not what it was. And the king said unto him, Turn aside and stand here; and he turned aside and stood still. Then, behold, Cushi came, saying, Tidings my lord the king; for the Lord hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee. And the king said unto Cushi, Is the young man Absalom safe? And Cushi answered, The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is. And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate and wept; and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom, my son Absalom! Would God that I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

And when it was told Joab, Behold, the king weepeth and mourneth for Absalom, the victory that day was turned into mourning for all the people; for they were ashamed of the folly of their victory. And Joab came into the house of the king, saying, Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy sevants, which this day have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and daughters, and thy wives and concubines, in that thou lovest thine enemies, and hatest thy friends. For thou has declared this day that thou regardest neither princes nor servants; for this day I perceive that if Absalom had lived, and we all had died, then it would have pleased thee well. Now therefore arise, go forth, and speak comfortably unto thy servants; for I swear by the Lord, if thou go not forth, there will not tarry one with thee this night; and that will be worse unto thee than all the evil that befell thee from thy youth until now.

Then the king arose, and sat in the gate. And they told unto all the people, saying, Behold, the king doth sit in the gate. Many people then came to see the king. There were contentions, and the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. And Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back? And the king sent for Zadok and Abiathar the priests, and said unto them, Speak unto the elders of Judah, saying, Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his house, seeing the speech of all Israel is come to the king, even to his house? Ye are my bones and my flesh; wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king? And furthermore, say ye to Amasa, Art thou not of my bone and of my flesh? God do so to me, and more also, if thou be not the captain of the host before me continually in the room of Joab. Thus David won the heart of all the men of Judah, and they sent the word to the king, saying, Return thou and all thy servants. So the king and all his men came to Jordan; and Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king, to conduct him over the Jordan.

And Shimei the son of Gera a Benjamite, of Bahurim, hasted and came to meet the king with a thousand men of Benjamin; and with him came Ziba the servant of the house of Saul and his fifteen sons and twenty servants, to greet the king, who with his men crossed the Jordan on a ferry boat. And Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king, and said, Let not my lord the king impute iniquity unto me; neither do thou remember that which thy servant did perversely the day my lord the king went out of Jerusalem. For thy servant doth know that I have sinned; therefore, behold, I am come the first this day of all the house of Joseph to meet my lord the king. But Abishai the son of Zeruiah answered and said, Shall not Shimei be put to death, because he cursed the Lord's anointed (and threw stones and dust)? And David said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah, that ye should this day be adversaries unto me? Shall there any man be put to death this day in Israel? Therefore the king said unto Shimei, Thou shalt not die, and the king sware unto him.

And Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king; and had neither dressed his feet nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed from Jerusalem. And when they came to Jerusalem, the king said unto him, Wherefore wentest not thou with me Mephibosheth? And he answered, My lord, O king, my servants deceived me; for thy servant said I will saddle me an ass, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king, because thy servant is lame; but he hath slandered thy servant unto my lord the king. But my lord the king is an angel of God; do therefore what is good in thine eyes. For all my father's house were but dead men before my lord the king; yet didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thine own table. What right therefore have I yet to cry any more unto the king? And the king said unto him, Why speakest thou any more of thy matters? I have said, Thou and Ziba divide the land. And Mephibosheth said unto the king, Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is come again in peace unto his own house. And the king said, So be it.

And there happened to be a man of Belial (a bully, good-for-nothing man) whose name was Sheba son of Bichri, a Benjamite; and he blew a trumpet, saying, We have no part in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse; every man to his tent, O Israel. So every man of Israel departed from David, and followed Sheba son of Bichri; but the men of Judah clave unto their king, from Jordan to Jerusalem. And David came to his house in Jerusalem, and took the the women his concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in a ward, and fed them, but went not unto them; and they were shut up unto the day of their death living in widowhood, for they were defiled by Absalom, David's son. Then said the king to Amasa, Assemble me the men of Judah within three days, and be thou here present. So Amasa began to assemble the men of Judah, but took longer than the appointed time. And David said to Abishai, Now shall Sheba the son of Bichri do us more harm than did Absalom; take thou thy lord's servants, and pursue after him, lest he get him fenced cities, and escape us. And there went after Sheba Joab's men, and the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and all the mighty men; and they went out of Jerusalem to pursue after him. When they were at the great stone in Gibeon, Amasa went before them wearing the garment (uniform) of the captain of the hosts, and girded with a sword which was fastened upon his loins in its sheath; and as he went forth to meet Joab, it fell out, and Joab said to Amasa, Art thou in health, my brother? And he took Amasa by the beard with his right hand to kiss him, and with his left hand he smote him in the fifth rib, shedding his bowels to the ground, and he died. Joab and Abishai his brother pursued after Sheba the son of Bichri. But one of Joab's men stood by him, and said, He that favoreth Joab, and he that is for David, let him go after Joab. And Amasa wallowed in blood in the midst of the highway. When the man saw that all the people stood still in shock and amazement, he removed the body of Amasa out of the highway into the field, and cast a cloth upon him.

And Joab and his men went unto Abel, Beth-maachah, and to the camp of the Berites; then they all gathered together and pursued after Sheba the son of Bichri. When they found him in Abel of Beth-maachah, they besieged the city, and cast up a bank against the city, and it stood in the trench; and all the men that were with Joab battered the wall, and threw it down. Then cried a wise woman out of the city, saying, Hear, hear! Say, I pray you unto Joab, Come near hither, that I may speak with thee. And when Joab was come near to her, the woman said, Art thou Joab? And he answered, I am he. Then she said unto him, Hear the words of thine handmaid. And he answered, I do hear. Then she spake, saying: It was customary in old times to say, Men shall surely ask counsel at Abel! And so they ended the matter. I am one of those that are peaceable and faithful in Israel; thou seekest to destroy a city and a mother in Israel; why wilt thou swallow up the inheritance of the Lord? And Joab answered, saying, Far be it, far be it from me, that I should swallow up or destroy. The matter is not so; but a man of mount Ephraim, Sheba the son of Bichri by name, hath lifted up his hand against the king, even against David; deliver him alone, and I will depart from the city. And the woman said unto Joab, Behold, his head shall be thrown to thee over the wall. Then the woman went unto all the people in her wisdom, and the head of Sheba the son of Bichri, was cast out to Joab. So Joab blew a trumpet, and all his men retired from the city, every man to his tent, and Joab returned to Jerusalem unto the king.

And these were David's chief men in his last days — Joab was over all the hosts of Israel; Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; Adoram was over those who were under tribute to Israel; Jehoshphat the son of Ahilud was recorder; Sheva was over the scribes; Zadok and Abiathar were the high priests; and Ira the Jairite was a chief advisor and friend to David. And it came to pass that there came a famine three years, year after year; and David inquired of the Lord, and he received the answer that it was because of Saul and his bloody house for he had shed much blood, and made many wars, and transgressed many commandments of the Lord; especially the Gibeonites whom he slew and sought to slay in his zeal to the children of Israel (for the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, but of the remnant of the Amorites). Wherefore, David said unto them, What shall I do for you? And by what means can I make an atonement, that ye may bless the inheritance of the Lord? And the Gibeonites said unto him, We will have no silver or gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel. And he said, What ye say, that I shall do for you. And they answered the king, saying, The man that consumed us, and devised against us that we should be destroyed, and not dwell in the territory of Israel (meaning Saul); let seven men of his sons be delivered unto us, and we will hang them up unto the Lord in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lord did choose. And David answered, I will give them. But the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, son of Saul, for the sake of the oath between David and Jonathan. And he delivered Armoni and Mephibosheth, the sons of Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bare unto Saul; and the five sons of Michal the daughter of Saul, whom she brought up for Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite (Saul's daughter Merab was married to Adriel), into the hands of the Gibeonites; and they hanged them near the hill before the Lord. So all seven fell together and were put to death in the beginning days of barley harvest.

And Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it for her upon the rock on the hill; from that day until the rain fell from heaven, Rizpah guarded their bodies from the birds and the wild beasts. When David heard what Rizpah the concubine of Saul had done, he took the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son from the men of Jabesh-gilead, which were stolen from the street of Beth-shan, where the Philistines hanged them, after slaying Saul in Gilboa; and he took the carcasses of the seven men that were hanged, and carried them to Zelah in Benjamin; and buried the bones of Saul and Jonathan in the sepulchre of Kish the father of Saul, with all the rituals and ceremonies.

Soon after, the Philistines had yet another war with Israel; and David and his servants went down to fight against them. And Ishbi-benob, one of the sons of the giants (the Nephilim), carried a copper spear three hundred shekels (about 7½ pounds), and was on the verge of killing David, when Abishai the son of Zeruiah quickly came and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David sware unto him, saying, Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou quench not the light of Israel. The anger of the Philistines was now great, and they came to battle with Israel in Gob; here, Sibechai the Hushathite slew another giant named Saph (Sippai). The Philistines retreated, and then returned again to battle in Gob; but El-hanan the son of Jaare-oregim, a Beth-lehemite, slew another brother of Goliath the Gittite, whose staff was also like a weaver's beam. And there was yet another battle in Gath, where a giant, that had on each hand six fingers and on each foot six toes, twenty-four in number, came to the camp of Israel and defied Israel; so Jonathan the son of Shimea the brother of David slew him. These four giants were born to the giant in Gath.

Then David offered a hymn of praise to the Lord; and spoke to the congregation, saying, the Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue. The God of Israel, the Rock of Israel, spake to me, saying: He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God; he shall be as a light of the morning; when the sun rises, even a morning without clouds, as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain. Although my own house be not so with God; yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and sure; for this is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make my house not to grow.

Now this is the list of names of the mighty men of David, thirty-seven in all, including the king, before the murder of Uriah the Hittite; who strengthened themselves with all Israel: Adino the Tachmonite sat in the seat of chief among the first three chief captains; he lifted up his spear against eight hundred, whom he slew at one time (before him sat Jashobeam or Josheb-Basshebet in the seat, who lifted up his spear against three hundred, and slew them at one time). Next to him in authority was Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three chief captains; he smote the Philistines until his hand clave unto the sword, and the Lord wrought a great victory for Israel that day. After him was Shammah (Shagee) the son of Agee the Hararite; he smote the Philistines when they were gathered together in the parcel of ground full of lentils, and defended it while the people fled from the Philistines, and the Lord again wrought a great victory for Israel that day.

And three lesser chiefs were over the valiant men of the armies. These three were held in high esteem by David, for when David was in an hold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Beth-lehem, he longed to drink the water of the well of Beth-lehem, which was by the gate, saying, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Beth-lehem! And these three valiant men brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well, and brought it to David. Nevertheless, he would not drink it, but poured it out unto the Lord, and said, Be it far from me, O Lord, that I should do this; is not this the blood of men that put their lives in jeopardy to get it? And Abishai the brother of Joab, son of Zeruiah, was chief among the three, for he lifted up his spear against three hundred, and slew them over a period of time, and had a name among the three. Next to him was Benaiah the son of Jehoiada the son of a mighty man of Kabzeel; he slew two lionlike men of Moab, and slew a lion in the midst of a pit in the time of snow; and also slew an Egyptian, a goodly man. The Egyptian had a spear in his hand, but Benaiah fell upon him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with the same spear; so Benaiah became the second of the three chiefs of the valiant men of the armies. And Joab the brother of Abishai, who was once over all the armies of Israel, was the third chief of the valiant men. Now these are the thirty mighty men who were under the three chiefs:

Asahel the nephew of Joab and Abishai; El-hanan the son of Dodo of Beth-lehem; Shammah (Shammoth or Shamhuth) the Harodite; Elika the Harodite; Helez the Pelonite (Paltite); Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite; Abiezer the Anethothite (Antothite); Bebunnai (Sibbecai) the Hushathite; Zalmon (Ilai) the Ahohite; Maharai the Netophathite; Heleb the son of Baanah the Netophathite; Ittai (Ithai) the son of Ribai of Gibeah of Benjamin; Benaiah the Pirathonite; Hiddai (Hurai) of the brooks of Gaash; Abi-Albon (Abiel) the Arbathite; Azmaveth the Baharumite (Barhumite) and Eliahba the Shaalbonite, the sons of Hashem the Gizonite; Jonathan (Shammah) the son of Shage the Hararite; Ahiam the son of Sharar(Sacar) the Hararite; Eliphelet (Eliphal) the son of Ahasbai or Ur; Eliam the son of Ahithophel the Gilonite (replacing Ahijah the Pelonite); Hezrai (Hezro) the Carmelite; Paarai (Naarai) the son of Ezbai the Arbite; Igal son of Nathan of Zobah (replacing Joel the brother of Nathan); Bani the Gadite (replacing Mibhar the son of Haggeri); Zelek the Ammonite; Naharai the Beerothite, armourbearer to Joab the son of Zeruiah; Ira the Ithrite; Gareb the Ithrite; and Uriah the Hittite, husband of Bath-sheba.

And it came to pass that Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel; and the Lord's anger was kindled, so he moved David against them. And David said to Joab and the rulers, Go, number Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba, and bring the number of them to me, that I may know. And Joab said unto the king, The Lord make his people an hundred times so many more as they be; but, my lord the king, are they not all my lord's servants? Why then doth my lord require this thing? (Meaning taking the census of the people.) Why doth he be a cause of trespass to Israel? Nevertheless, the king's word prevailed against Joab, and the captains of the host. And they left the king's presence to number the people of Israel. They passed over the Jordan, and pitched in Aroer, in the torrent valley of Arnon, on the right side of the city that lieth in the midst of the river Gad, toward Jazer. Then they went to Gilead, and to the land of Tahtim-hodshi; to Dan-jaan, and around to Zidon, to the stronghold of Tyre; and to all the cities of the Hivites and the Canaanites, to the south of Judah, even to Beer-sheba; and they returned to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. The total number of able bodied men of Israel that drew sword was between eight hundred thousand and one million one hundred thousand; and of Judah about five hundred thousand. But the tribes of Levi or the Al-Levi and Benjamin were not numbered, for the king's word was abominable to Joab, and God was displeased with David and Israel.

Then David's heart smote him after he had numbered the people. And he said unto the Lord, I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing; but now, I beseech thee, do away the iniquity of thy servant, for I have done very foolishly. And when David was up in the morning, the word of the Lord came unto prophet Gad, David's seer (Gad and Nathan the prophet kept all the records of the court, as once did Samuel), that he should go and say unto David, Thus saith the Lord, I offer thee three choices, choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee. So Gad came to David, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Choose thee either three years' famine, or chastisement by thine enemies for three months while they pursue thee, or three days of the sword of the Lord, even pestilence in the land, and destruction by the angels of the Lord of all the boundaries of Israel. Now therefore advise thyself what word shall I bring again to him that sent me. And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait; let me fall now into the hand of the Lord, for very great are his mercies, but let me not fall into the hand of man. So the Lord sent pestilence upon Israel, and there fell of Israel seventy thousand men; and God sent the destroying angel unto Jerusalem, and the destruction was great. And when the Lord beheld the scene, his Soul was vexed, and He repented him of his harsh judgement; and said unto the angel of destruction, It is enough, stay now thine hand. And the angel of the Lord stopped at the threshing floor of Ornan (Araunah) the Jebusite.

And David lifted up his eyes, and saw the angel of the Lord stand between the earth and the heaven; bearing a drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders of Israel, who were clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces. And David said unto God, Is it not I that commanded the people to be numbered? Even I it is that have sinned and done evil indeed; but as for these sheep, what have they done? Let thine hand, I pray thee, O Lord my God, be on me, and on my father's house; but not on thy people, that they should be plagued. And Gad came to David that day, and said unto him, Go up, rear an altar unto the Lord in the threshingfloor of Ornan the Jebusite. And David went up at the saying of Gad, which he spake in the name of the Lord. And Ornan looked, and saw the king and his servants coming toward him. Now Ornan was threshing wheat, and his four sons hid themselves when they saw the king and the prophet approaching. And as David came near, Ornan went out of the threshing floor, and bowed himself to David with his face to the ground; and Ornan said, Wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? And David said, Grant the place of this threshingfloor, that I may build an altar unto the Lord, if thou shalt grant me for the full price, that the plague may be stayed from the people. And Ornan said unto David, Let my lord the king take and offer up what seemeth good unto him; behold, I give thee the oxen also for burnt offerings, and the threshing instruments of wood, and wheat for the meat (meal) offering; I give it all. And the king said unto Ornan, Nay, but I will verily buy it for the full price; for I will not take that which is thine for the Lord, nor offer burnt offerings without cost. So David gave to Ornan for the threshing floor and the oxen fifty shekels of silver, and later gave him six hundred shekels of gold by weight, for the place. And David built there an altar unto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and called upon the Lord; and he answered from heaven by fire upon the altar of burnt offering. And when David saw that the Lord was intreated for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel, David sacrificed at the threshing floor of Ornan again; for the tabernacle of the Lord, which Moses and the children of Israel built in the wilderness, and the altar of the burnt offering, were in the high place at Gibeon at this time; and David could not go before it, for he was afraid of the sword of the angel of the Lord.

Then David said, Here shall be built the house of the Lord God, and this shall be the altar of the burnt offering for Israel. And David commanded to gather together all those in Israel that were under the tribute; and he set masons to hew wrought stones to build the house of God; and prepared iron in abundance to make nails for the doors of the gates and joinings, and brass in abundance without weight; also cedar trees in abundance, for the Sidonians and they of Tyre brought much cedar wood to David. And David said unto the elders of Israel, Solomon my son is young and tender, and the house that is to be builded for the Lord must be exceedingly magnificent, and its fame and glory must reach throughout all the countries of the world; I will therefore make preparations for it. And this David did with diligence before his death. After this, he called for Solomon his son, and charged him to build an house for the Lord God of Israel; and said unto Solomon, My son, as for me, it was in my mind to build an house unto the name of the Lord my God. But the words of the Lord came to me saying, Thou hast shed blood abundantly, and hast made great wars; thou shalt not build an house unto my name, because thou hast shed much blood upon the earth in my sight. Behold, a son shall be born to thee, who shall be a man of rest; and I will give him rest from all his enemies round about, for his name shall be Solomon (Suleman), and I will give peace and quietness unto Israel in his days. He shall build an house for my name; and he shall be my son, and I will be his father; and I will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever. Now, my son, the Lord be with thee; and prosper thou, and build the house of the Lord my God, as he hath said of thee. Only the Lord give thee wisdom and understanding, and give thee charge concerning Israel, that thou mayest keep the law of the Lord thy God. Then shalt thou prosper, if thou takest heed to fulfill the statutes and judgements which the Lord gave unto Israel by the hands of Moses. Therefore, be thou strong and of good courage, my son, and dread not, nor be dismayed. Now, behold, in my troubled state, I have prepared for the house of the Lord, an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a million talents of silver; and of brass and iron without weight, for it is in abundance; timber also and stone have I prepared; and thou mayest add thereto. Moreover there are workmen in abundance, hewers and workers of stone and timber, and all manner of cunning men for every manner of work. Arise therefore, and prepare thyself for the task to which the Lord has appointed thee.

David also commanded all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying, Is not the Lord our God with you? And hath he not given you rest on every side? For he hath given the inhabitants of the land into mine hand; and the land is subdued before the Lord and his people. Now set your heart and your soul to seek the Lord your God. Arise therefore, and build ye the sanctuary of the Lord God, that the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, and the holy vessels of God, may be brought into the house that is to be built to the name of the Lord.

And it came to pass that when David was old and full of days, he gathered together all the princes of Israel, with the priests and the Levites (the Al-Levi). Now the Levites were numbered from the age of thirty years and upward; and their number was thirty-eight thousand, of which twenty-four thousand were to set forward the work of building the house of the Lord; six thousand were officers and judges in Israel; and four thousand were porters (the sons of the Korhites, of Asaph, of Meshelemiah, of Obed-edom and his descendants; also the children of Merari, the descendants of Hosah), who were assigned to maintain the house of the Lord; and four thousand were the singers and musicians, that praised the Lord with psalms and hymns. And David divided them into various courses (or work shifts) among the three branches of the Al-Levi, or the sons of Levi, namely: descendants of Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. And of the two sons of Amram (Imran), Aaron and Moses, the house of Moses or the Al-Levi was separated from that of Aaron, or the priests. The house of Aaron was assigned to sanctify the most holy things in the sanctuary, and to burn incense before the Lord forever; and to minister unto him, and bless in his name (through the transfer of merit), for ever. Now concerning Moses the man of God, his descendants were called, Of the tribe of Levi, or Al-Levi.

And David called those twenty years of age and upward of the sons of Moses to work for the service of the house of the Lord, and said unto them: The Lord God of Israel hath given rest unto his people, that they may dwell in Jerusalem for ever; and also the Levites shall no more carry the tabernacle, nor any vessel of it for the service thereof. The Levites were given the charge of the tabernacle, and of the Most Holy compartment, and of the sons of Aaron their brethren, to attend to their needs. And the sons of Aaron were the priests for the service of the house of the Lord, in the courts and chambers, in purifying of all holy things; both the shewbread, fine flour for meat offering and unleavened cakes, baked and fried; for offering thanks and praises unto the Lord morning and evening; and for offering all burnt sacrifices unto the Lord on the Sabbath, the new moons, and on the set feast days, and appointed days.

Also the sons of Aaron were appointed by lot, for the custodianship of the tabernacle of the Lord; and David divided them into twenty-four lots:

The first lot came forth to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim; the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, the seventh to Hakkoz. And in this manner the twenty-four divisions were established; from the eighth to the twenty-fourth, Abijah, Jeshua, Shecaniah, Eliashib, Jakim, Huppah, Jeshebeab, Bilgah, Immer (father of Pashur), Hezir, Aphses, Pethahiah, Jehezekel, Jachin, Gamul, Delaiah, and Maaziah.

Furthermore, David and the captains of his armies divided the services of the other Levites or the Al-Levi, who were the sons of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun; they prophecied and sang hymns of praise, with harps, psalteries and cymbals. All those who were instructed in the songs of the Lord and related duties were two hundred and eighty-eight; they were divided in twenty-four divisions, twelve men in each division.

Now the first lot came to Joseph (of the house of Asaph), the second to Gedaliah, the third to Zaccur; in this manner twenty-four divisions, each consisting of twelve sons or relatives of either of the houses of Asaph, Heman, or Jeduthun were established. From the fourth lot to the twenty-fourth, these are the names: Izri, Nethaniah, Bukkiah, Jesharelah, Jeshaiah, Mattaniah, Shimei, Azareel, Hashabiah, Shubael, Mattithiah, Jeremoth, Hananiah, Joshbekashah, Hanani, Mallothi, Eliathah, Hothir, Giddalti, Mahazioth, Romamti-ezer.

And of the Levites or the Al-Levi, Ahijah was appointed over both the treasuries of the Lord. Of the dedicated things, which David the king, the chief fathers, the rulers over thousands, and hundreds, and the captains of the armies had dedicated; the spoils won in battles, and all the holy manuscripts of the past, and the works of Samuel the Seer and a portion of the booty of Abner son of Ner, and all others who had dedicated unto the Lord, were under the hand of Shelomith and his brethren. And over the treasury of the undedicated things comprised of everything which did not belong in the other, the Levites also were appointed to fill various offices. Furthermore the king had his own treasury, and over it was placed Azmaveth the son of Adiel.

Over the storehouses in the fields, in the cities and the villages, and in the castles, was Jehonathan the son of Uzziah; and over those who worked in the fields and tilled the ground was placed Ezri the son of Chelub. Shimei the Ramathite was placed over the vineyards; and Zabdi the Shiphmite was appointed over the products of the vineyards and the wine cellars. Over the olive trees and the sycamore trees that were in the low plains was Baal-hanan the Gederite; and over the cellars of oil was Joash. And Shitrai the Sharonite was over the herds that were fed in Sharom; and Shaphat the son of Adlai was over the herds that grazed in the valley. Over the camels was Obil the Ishmaelite; and over the asses was Jeheiah the Meronothite; and over the flocks was Aziz (Jaziz) the Hagerite.

Now, all these were the rulers of the substance in the kingdom of Israel, when David was king. And the chief fathers and captains of thousands and hundreds and their officers, served the kingdom in various courses. And the armies came in and went out month by month, throughout the year; and each monthly rotational division of the armies consisted of twenty-four thousand men, as follows:

Over the first course for the first month was Joshobeam the son of Zabdiel, of the children of Perez; he was the chief of all the captains of the host for the first month. Over the second course of the second month was Dodai an Aholite, with Mikloth (who was under training); the third course of the third month was Benaiah with his son Ammizabad, the son of Jehoiada, a high priest. In this manner, each captain with his army of twenty-four thousand men, came in and went out month by month; the fourth captain for the fourth month was Asahel, the nephew of Joab, with Zebadiah his son; the fifth captain for the fifth month was Shamhuth the Izrahite; the sixth was Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite; the seventh was Helez the Pelonite (an Ephraimite); the eighth captain for the eighth month was Sibbecai the Hushathite (of the Zarhites); the ninth was Abiezer the Anetothite (of the Benjamites); the tenth was Maharai the Netophathite (also of the Zarhites); the eleventh was Benaiah the Pirathonite (of the Ephraimites); and the twelfth captain for the twelfth month was Heldai the Netophathite (of the sons of Othniel).

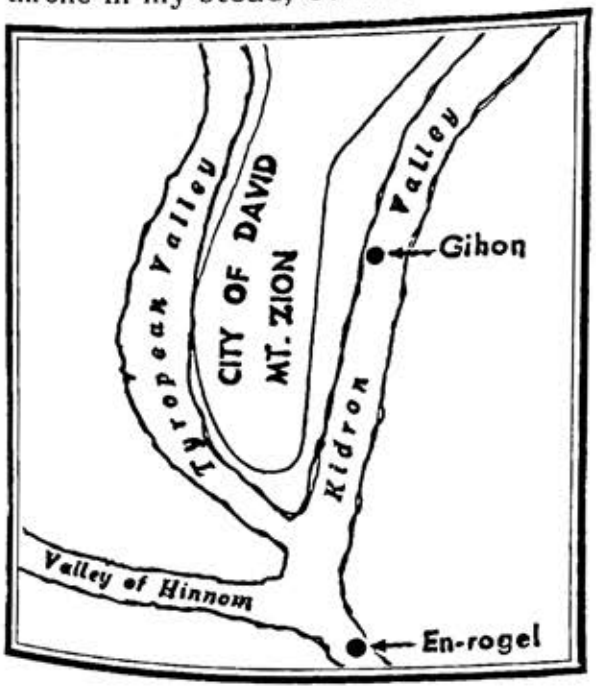
Furthermore, rulers were appointed over these tribes of Israel:

Ruler of the Reubenites was Eliezer the son of Zichri; of the Simeonites, Shephatiah the son of Maachah; of the Levites, Hashabiah the son of Kemuel; of the Aaronites, Zadok; of Judah, Elihu; of Issachar, Omri the son of Michael; of Zebulun, Ishmaiah the son of Obadiah; of Naphtali, Jerimoth the son of Azriel; of Ephraim, Hoshea the son of Azaziah; of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Joel the son of Pedaiah; of the other half-tribe in Gilead, Iddo the son of Zechariah; of Benjamin, Jaasiel the son of Abner; of Dan, Azareel the son of Jeroham. These were the princes (or rulers) of Israel by tribes. And among the chief counsellors of David, were Jonathan his uncle, Ahithophel, and after Ahithophel was Jehoiada the son of Benaiah, and Abiathar. And Jehiel the son of Hachmoni was the chief tutor of the king's sons.

And it came to pass that David was old and stricken in years; and they covered him with warm clothes, but he received no heat. So one of his servants said unto him, Let there be sought for my lord the king a young virgin; and let her stand before the king and cherish him, and let her lie in thy bosom, that my lord the king may get heat. And they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the borders of Israel, and found Abishag a Shunammite, and brought her to the king. And the damsel was fair and cherished the king, and ministered unto him; but the king knew her not. Then Adonijah the son of Haggith (David's wife), a goodly man whom his mother bare after Absalom, seeing his father's weakness, said, I will be king, and lusted in his heart; and prepared chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. And he confered with Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with Abiathar the priest, and gained their support. Then he slew sheep and oxen and fat cattle by the Stone of Zoheleth, which is by En-rogel ; and invited all his brethren the king's sons, and the elders of Judah the king's servants; but Nathan the prophet, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, Solomon his brother, and the mighty men of David, he invited not.

After this, Nathan the prophet spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of Haggith doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not? Now therefore come, let me, I pray, counsel thee, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son. Go and get thee unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? Why then doth Adonijah reign? Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I will also come after thee to confirm thy words. And Bath-sheba went into the king's chamber; and the king was very feeble and weary, while Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto him. Bath-sheba bowed, and did obeisance unto the king; and David said, What wouldest thou?

And she said unto him, My lord, thou swarest by the Lord thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne. And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king knowest it not. And he hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath invited all the sons of the king; and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host; but Solomon thy servant hath he not invited. And thou, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou shouldest tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted offenders. And, lo, while she yet talked with the king,Nathan the prophet came in and bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground, and said, My lord, O king, hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? For he is gone down this day, and hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance; and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, God save king Adonijah! But myself, even thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called. Is this thing done by my lord the king, and thou hast withheld from thy servant, who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him? And Bath-sheba, who left the presence of the king upon Nathan the prophet's arrival, was brought back in his audience; and David sware, and said, As the Lord liveth, that hath redeemed my soul out of all distress; and even as I sware unto thee by the Lord God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead, even so will I certainly do it this day. Then Bath-sheba bowed her face to the earth, and did reverence to the king, saying, Let my lord king David live forever.



After this, David said unto his servants, Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada (Yehuda). And they came before the king, and he said unto them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride upon mine own mule, and bring him down to Gihon (in the Kidron valley); and let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel; and blow ye the trumpets, and say, God save king Solomon; then ye shall return with him, to see to it that he sits upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead; and I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

And Benaiah the mighty warrior the son of Jehoiada the priest answered the king, and said, Amen, the Lord God of my lord the king say so too. As the Lord hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David. So Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah; and the Cherethites and the Pelethites went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon. And Zadok the priest took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon; and they blew the trumpet, and all the people said, God save king Solomon. Then all the people said, God save king Solomon. Then all the people returned, rejoicing with great joy, piping with pipes, so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

And when Adonijah and all the guests that were with him heard it, they had made an end of eating; and when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, Wherefore is this noise of the city in an uproar? And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came. And Adonijah said unto him, Come in, for thou art a valiant man, and bringest good tidings! And Jonathan answered, Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king; and the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, his chief bodyguard; and the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule. And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon; and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again; this is the noise that ye hear. And also Solomon sitteth on the throne of the kingdom. Moreover, the king's servants came to bless our lord king David, saying, God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne; and the king bowed himself upon the bed. And also thus said the king, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which hath given one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it!

Upon hearing these words, all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid; and rose up and dispersed, every man his way. Now Adonijah feared because of Solomon, so he arose and fled and caught hold on the horns of the altar. And when it was told Solomon, behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon, for he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar, saying, Let king Solomon swear unto me today that he will not slay his servant with the sword. And Solomon said, If he will shew himself a worthy man, there shall not an hair of him fall to the ground; but if wickedness shall be found in him again, he shall die. So king Solomon sent for him, and he was brought into his presence. And he bowed himself to Solomon, and Solomon said unto him, Go to thine house, my brother.

Now the days of David grew near that soon he should die; and he charged his son Solomon, saying, I too shall go the way of all the earth, be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man; and keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes and commandments, his judgements and testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses; that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself; that the Lord may continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to walk before me in truth with all their heart and soul, there shall not fail thee a man on the throne of Israel. Moreover thou knowest also what Joab the son of Zeruiah did to me and to the two captains of the hosts of Israel, unto Abner son of Ner, and unto Amasa son of Jether, whom he slew; and shed the blood of war in peace, put the blood of war upon his girdle which was upon his loins, and upon his shoes that were upon his feet. Do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace. But show kindness unto the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite; and let them be of those that eat at thy table; for so they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother. And behold, thou hast with thee Shimei the son of Gera, the Benjamite of Bahurim, who cursed me with a grievous curse, when I was in Mahanaim; but he came down to meet me at Jordan, and I sware to him by the Lord, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword. Now therefore hold him not guiltless; for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but his hoar head bring thou down to the grave with blood.

And it came to pass that David assembled all the princes of Israel, the princes of the tribes, the captains of the companies that served the king by course, the captains over the thousands and hundreds, and stewards over all the substance and possessions of Israel, of the king and his sons; all his officers and mighty men, unto Jerusalem. And David the king stood upon his feet and proclaimed, saying, Hear me, my brethren, and my people — as for me, I had in mine heart to build an house of rest for the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, and for the footstool of our God, and had made ready for the building; but God said unto me, Thou shalt not build an house for my name, because thou hast been a man of war, and hast shed blood. Nevertheless the Lord God of Israel chose me before all the house of my father to be king over Israel for ever; for he hath chosen Judah to be the ruler in Israel, and of the house of Judah, the house of my father; and among the sons of my father he liked me to make me king over all Israel. And of all my sons, for the Lord hath given me many sons, he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord, over Israel. And he said unto me, Solomon thy son, he shall build my house and my courts; for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father. Moreover I will establish his kingdom for ever, if he remains steadfast in keeping my commandments and my judgements, as he does at this day. Now therefore in the sight of all Israel, the congregation of the Lord of Hosts: and in the presence of God, keep all the commandments and seek only good; that ye may possess this goodly land, and leave it for an inheritance for your children after you forever.

And David turned toward Solomon his son, saying, And thou, Solomon, my son, know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and a willing mind; for the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts; if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee out for a surety. Take heed therefore for the Lord hath chosen thee to build an house unto his name; be strong and do it. Then David gave to Solomon the pattern of the porch, and the buildings thereof; of the treasuries, upper chambers, and inner parlours thereof, and of the place of the mercy seat. And the pattern of the courts of the house of the Lord; of the chambers round about, and of the treasuries of the Lord. And also the document for the courses of the priests and the Al-Levi (the Levites); and for all other work and services related to the service of the house of the Lord.

Furthermore, David presented gold, silver, brass, and iron; by weight and according to the pattern of things revealed unto him by the ministering angels of the Lord. Gold and silver by weight for the candlesticks and lamps, for the table of shewbread, for the flesh-hooks, bowls and cups, for the golden basin, for the altar of incense, for the chariot of the cherubim that spread their wings, and covered the Ark of the Covenant, with pattern for each, was given to Solomon. And David said, All this the Lord made me understand in writing by his hand upon me, even all the works of this pattern. And he said unto Solomon his son, Be strong and of good courage, and do it; fear not, nor be dismayed; for the Lord God, even my God, will be with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the Lord. And, behold, the courses of the priests and the Al-Levi (Levites), even they shall be with thee for all the service of the house of God. And there shall be with thee for all manner of workmanship, every willing skillful man, for any manner of service; also the princes and all Israel will be wholly at thy command.

Then David turned, and said unto the congregation, saying, Solomon my son, whom alone God hath chosen, is yet young and tender, and the work is great; for the palace is not for man, but for the Lord God. Now I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God the gold for the things to be made of gold, and the silver for the things to be made of silver, and the brass for the things of brass, the iron for the things of iron; and the wood for things of wood; also precious stones and gems of divers colors and sizes, and marble stones in abundance. Moreover, because I have set my affection to the house of my God, I have of mine own proper good, gold and silver, which I have given to the house of my God, over and above that which I have prepared for the holy house. Even three thousand talents of gold, of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the houses withal.

Then David addressed the congregation, saying, the gold for things of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and for all manner of work to be made by the hands of artificers. Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord? And it came to pass that the chief of the fathers and the princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and hundreds, and the officers of the king's court, offered willingly. And they gave five thousand talents and ten thousand drams of gold; ten thousand talents of silver; eighteen thousand talents of brass, and one hundred talents of iron; plus precious stones and gems, which were deposited with the treasurer of the house of the Lord, by the hand of Jehiel the Gershonite.

Wherefore all Israel rejoiced, for they gave willingly and with perfect heart to the Lord; and David the king and all his men rejoiced with great joy. Then David praised the Lord before all the congregation, and offered this prayer:

> Blessed be thou, Lord God of Israel our Father, for ever and ever. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine, thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. Both riches and honor come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might, and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all. Now therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly in this manner? For all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee. For we are strangers before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers. Our days on earth are as a shadow, and there is none abiding. O Lord our God, all this stone that we have prepared to build thee an house for thine holy name, cometh of thine hand, and is all thine own. I know also, my God, that thou triest the heart, and hast pleasure in uprightness. As for me, in the uprightness of mine heart have I willingly offered all these things; and now have I seen with joy thy people, which are present here, to offer willingly unto thee. O Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, keep this for ever in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and prepare their hearts unto thee. And give Solomon my son a perfect heart, to keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes; and to do all these things, and build the palace, for which I have made provision.

And David spake unto the congregation, saying, Now bless the Lord your God! And all the congregation bowed down their heads, and worshipped the Lord, and did obeisance to the king. The next morning they offered sacrifices unto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings, even a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, plus drink offerings and other sacrificial offerings in abundance. All Israel rejoiced greatly in the festivities and merry-making; and on the selfsame day Solomon was made king of Israel the second time, and was no more a co-regent with his father; and they anointed him unto the Lord to be the chief governor of his people; and Zadok, son of Ahitub, was anointed to be the chief priest.

It is also written of David that when he was at the summit of the Mount of Olives, he said to his servants, Go and find me an idol and bring it here! When David's servants went to do his bidding, they met Hushai the Archite, his loyal friend and spy who also thwarted Absalom's rebellion; and he asked the servants, Where are you going? They answered, David our king has commanded us to bring an idol. Puzzled and astounded, Hushai went to David and said, Tell me, O king, why did you bid thy servants to fetch you an idol? And David replied, I wish to bow before an idol. When Hushai heard these words he rent his garments and put ashes on his head, and cried aloud, Woe is me that a man like king David should bow his head before an idol. Then the king spoke, saying, Do not be grieved so, my friend! Don't you know how great my fame is throughout the world? All who have heard of me say, There is no man as virtuous as David. He rules his people with the fear of God in his heart; he does only good, metes out justice and fulfills all of God's commandments. Now, therefore, consider Hushai, when the people hear about my miserable plight, how my son Absalom attacked me and tried to kill me, what do you suppose they will think? Will they not say, What a waste to worship such a God! With Him there is neither justice nor reward of virtue. For that reason, I have decided to bow down before an idol, in order to defame myself. Then the people will be able to say, There you have proof, there is a God in heaven and a sovereign over the earth, he ruleth with truth and with justice, and punishes even mighty king David for his idol-worship.

Now David's misdeeds caught up with him, and he became deluded, full of doubts and fears. It is also written of David, that once he said to God, Lord of the Universe, I beg you, tell me the day when I will die. God answered, I have decreed that no mortal should know his last day. Then David said, Wilt thou be able to tell me how many years will I live? And God said, I have decreed that no mortal shall know the number of his years on earth. And David said, Tell me then, O Lord of the Universe, on what day in the week will I die? And God answered, You will die on the sabbath day. Then David pleaded, Let me die a day before the sabbath. God answered, No man may die before his hour cometh. Let me then die on the day after the sabbath, implored David. And God answered, That cannot be, for the rule of thy son Solomon begins on the day after the sabbath; Now hear this thou son of Jesse, Dearer to me is one that reads and ponders upon the Scriptures a single day than a thousand sacrifices thy son Solomon will bring upon my altar as king. From this time onward king David devoted the entire sabbath day to the study of the Torah. And it came to pass that on a sabbath, as he was descending the steps of his lovely palace garden, he lost his balance, and dropped dead to the ground. Thereupon, Solomon his son inquired of the elders and his officers, saying, What shall I do? My father lies dead in the fierce sun; the dogs are hungry, they bark and sharpen their teeth. And the elders said, Your father was a king in his life; now that he is dead, he is only a corpse; one may not violate the sabbath for the sake of a dead man. When Solomon heard this, he said, A live dog is better than a dead lion!

So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David. He reigned forty years; about seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. Thus David son of Jesse reigned over Israel; and the acts of David were recorded and preserved. Behold, they were written in the books of Samuel the seer, Nathan the prophet, and Gad the prophet; and were deposited in the treasury of the dedicated things.

And Solomon (Suleman, also Shlomoh) the son of David sat on the throne of Israel as king, and all the princes, and the mighty men, and all the sons of king David, submitted themselves to Solomon the king. And the Lord magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel. The royal sage could read the guilt or the innocence of those he judged merely by looking into their faces; his countenance had radiance, even God's Divine Radiance (sekhina), which dwelled upon him from time to time. And when the Holy Spirit descended upon him, he wrote proverbs, and other inspired writings. And because he had chosen the pursuit of wisdom, God rewarded him with splendor of power and great riches; and gave him dominion over the upper world of the angels, over the nether world of demons and spirits, and over the earth and all therein, including its inhabitants, beasts, reptiles, birds and fishes.

Then it came to pass that Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, and said, Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and all Israel set their faces on me, that I should reign; howbeit the kingdom is turned about, and is become my brother's; for it was his from the Lord. And now I ask one petition of thee, deny me not. And Bath-sheba said unto him, Comest thou peaceably? And he said peaceably. So she said, Say on. And Adonijah said, Speak, I pray thee, unto Solomon the king that he give me Abishag the Shunammite to wife. And Bath-sheba said, Well, I will speak for thee unto the king.

Bath-sheba therefore went to Solomon her son, to tell him all that which Adonijah had told her. And the king rose up to meet her, and bowed himself unto her, and she sat down on his right hand; on the seat which Solomon had caused to be built for the king's mother. When his mother had finished speaking, king Solomon said unto his mother, And why dost thou ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Ask for him the kingdom also, for he is my elder brother; and also for Abiathar the priest and Joab son of Zeruiah. Then king Solomon sware by the Lord, saying, God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not spoken these words against his own life. Now, therefore, as the Lord liveth, which hath established me, and set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath made me a house, as he hath promised, Adonijah shall be put to death this day. And king Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada (Yehuda), and he fell upon him that he died.

And unto Abiathar the priest said the king, Get thee to Anathoth, unto thine own fields, for thou art worthy of death; but I will not at this time put thee to death, because thou bearest the Ark of the Lord God, and because thou hast been afflicted in all wherein my father was afflicted. So Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being the priest, that he might fulfill the word of the Lord, which he spake concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh. The high priesthood of Aaron was then returned to the house of Eleazar, and the house of Ithamar fell from the grace of God.

Then tidings came to Joab who had turned to Adonijah; and Joab fled unto the tabernacle of the Lord, and caught hold on the horns of the altar. When Solomon was told that Joab was fled unto the altar of the tabernacle, he sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, Go fall upon him. And Benaiah came to the altar and said unto Joab, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay, but I will die here. So Benaiah returned to the king, saying, thus and thus saith Joab. And the king said unto him, Do as he hath said, and fall upon him, and bury him; that thou mayest take away the innocent blood which Joab shed, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lord shall return his blood upon his own head, who fell upon two men more righteous and better than he, even Abner the son of Ner (captain of the hosts of Israel) and Amasa the son of Jether (captain of the hosts of Judah). Their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab, and upon his seed for ever; but upon David and his seed, and upon his house and throne, shall there be peace forever from the Lord. So Benaiah went up, and fell upon him, and slew him; he was then buried in his own house in the wilderness. And the king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in the office of Joab, and Zadok the priest in the office of Abiathar.

And the king sent for Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, who once cursed David when he was in Mahanaim, and David said to him, Build thee an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and go not anywhere from thence. For it shall be, that on the day thou leavest thine abode and passest over the brook Kidron, know for a surety thou shalt die; and thy blood shall be upon thine own head. And Shimei replied, The word that I have heard is good; as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days. And it came to pass at the end of three years, that two of the servants of Shimei ran away unto Achish son of Maachah, king of Gath. And when Shimei was told that they were in Gath, he arose and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to seek his bondsmen, and succeeded in bringing them back. And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again. And the king called for Shimei, and said unto him, Did I not make thee to swear by the Lord, and warned thee, saying, Know for certain, on the day thou goest out of Jerusalem, thou shalt surely die? And did thou not agree? Why then hast thou not kept the oath of the Lord, and the commandment with which I charged thee? Thou knowest all the wickedness which thine heart knew, and didst to David my father; therefore the Lord shall return thy wickedness upon thine own head; and king Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the Lord for ever. So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and he fell upon him, that he died. Thus all his father David charged Solomon to do, he did fulfill; and the kingdom was established. And it came to pass that Solomon made a marriage alliance with Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David; and she brought with her from Egypt a thousand different musical instruments, and instructed Solomon in the use of all of them, and how they were to be played to honor this idol or that idol.

For there was no house of the Lord built, people sacrificed in high places; and Solomon loved the Lord, walking in his statutes and judgements, and keeping his commandments. And the king went to the great high place in Gibeon to offer sacrifices, and offered a thousand burnt offerings, and burnt incense there. In Gibeon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night, and said, Ask what shall I give thee. And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David my father great mercy, according to the ways in which he walked, according to the truth and righteousness and uprightness of his heart; and thou hast showed him this great kindness, by giving him a son to sit upon his throne, as it is this day. And now, O Lord my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father; I am but a little child to judge so great a people, and I know not my coming in or going out. And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen both great and innumerable in number. Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and evil!

And the speech pleased the Lord, for God said unto him, Because thou hast asked for this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life, neither riches for thyself, nor the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern judgement, behold, it shall be done according to thy words, for so have I decreed; lo, I have given thee a wise and understanding heart, so much so that there has not been any before thee, nor shall there be any among the kings like unto thee, all thy days. And Solomon awoke from the dream, and returned to Jerusalem; there he stood before the Ark of the Covenant, and offered up burnt offerings and peace offerings, and made a feast to all his servants.

Then came unto the king two women that were harlots, and stood before him. The one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child in her house. And it came to pass that the third day after I had delivered, this woman delivered also; and the two of us dwelled together, and there was no stranger with us in the house, just the two of us. And this woman's child died in the night, because she laid upon it, and suffocated the babe; and she arose at midnight and took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. And when I arose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead, but when I thought over the matter, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear. And the other woman said, Nay, but the living son is mine, and the dead is thine. Then said the king, One saith, This is my son that liveth, and thine is dead; and the other saith, Nay, but thy son is dead, and mine liveth. Bring me a sword that I may settle this matter. And a sword was brought before the king. And the king said, Divide the living child into two, and give half to the one, and half to the other. Then spake the woman whose child he truly was, for her bowels yearned upon her son, saying, O my lord, give her the child, and in no wise slay it; but the other said, Let it be neither mine or thine, but divide it. Then the king answered and said, Give the first the child, and in no wise slay it, for she is the mother. And all Israel heard of the judgement which the king had rendered; and they feared the king, for they saw the wisdom of God, and the hand of the Lord in it.

Now, these were the princes and officers in Solomon's court: Azariah son of Zadok the priest, Elihoreph and Ahiah, the sons of Shisha, were the scribes; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the recorder. Benaiah the son of Jehoiada (Yehuda) was over the armies; and Zadok was the high priest. Azariah son of Nathan was over the officers; and Zabud the other son of Nathan the prophet, was principal officer and king's friend. Ahishar was over the royal household; and Adoniram the son of Abda was over the tribute (drafted or slave labor).

Furthermore, Solomon's court had twelve officers over all Israel, that provided victuals for the king and his household; each officer in his month of the year made provision, and these are their names:

Son of Hur, in mount Ephraim;

Son of Dekar, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan;

Son of Hesed, in Aruboth, in Sochoh, and all the land of Hepher;

Son of Aminadab, in all the region of Dor (he was married to Solomon's daughter Taphath);

Baana son of Ahilud, to him belonged Taanach and Megiddo, and all Beth-shean (which is near Zartanah, beneath Jezreel); and the region from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah, even beyond Jokneam;

Son of Geber, in Ramoth-gilead; to him belonged the towns of Jair in Gilead, the region of Argob in Bashan, sixty great cities with walls and brasen bars;

Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim;

Ahimaaz the husband of Basmath the daughter of Solomon, was in Naphtali;

Baanah son of Hushai the Archite, in Asher and in Aloth;

Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar;

Shimei son of Elah, in Benjamin;

Geber son of Uri, in the country of Gilead, in the ancient territory of Og king of Basham and Sihon king of the Amorites.

And Solomon's provision for one day was thirty measures of fine flour, and sixty measures of meal; ten fat oxen, twenty oxen out of the pastures, an hundred sheep; besides harts, roebucks, fallowdeer, and fatted fowl. Moreover, Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. And every officer in his month provided victuals for king Solomon, and for all that came to his table; and barley and straw for the horses and the camels, every officer according to his charge; they lacked nothing. In this manner, Solomon reigned over Israel and all kingdoms from the river Euphrates unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt. He had dominion over all the region on this side of the river, from Tiphsah to Azzah, and had peace on all sides round about him. Judah and Israel dwelt in safety, eating, drinking, and making merry; every man confidently secure, from Dan to Beer-sheba. And there came people from all kingdoms of the earth to hear the wisdom of king Solomon, and to behold the splendor and glory of his court; and they brought gifts and presents, and remained loyal to Solomon all the days of his life.

And God continued to increase Solomon in wisdom, understanding, and benevolence. His wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and of all the wisdom of Egypt. Solomon was wiser than all the living wizards of the day, including Ethan the Ezrahite; Heman, Chalcol and Darda, the sons of Mahol; he spake three thousand proverbs, and his songs were a thousand and five. And he spake of trees, from the cedar tree of Lebanon to the hyssop that springeth out of the wall; he spake also of beasts and fowls, and of creeping things, and of fishes. And there came people to hear his wisdom, from all the kings of the earth, whosoever had heard of his wisdom.

It is written that in the days of Solomon king of Israel, there lived a miser named Bavsi (Babsi), the richest man in Jerusalem; he had acquired such an evil reputation of his tightfistedness, that throughout the land people used to say, "Evil as Bavsi" or "Stingy as Bavsi." He never married for the fear of being tricked by his wife, and in order not to have to support wife and children, who in the end might become the sole possessors of his riches. As great as was his wealth, so great was his wickedness and stiffneckedness. He oppressed his servants and his slaves, and made their days bitter with toil and harshness; from the time the rooster crowed at dawn, until late at night. Once his brother visited him, and lived with him; the selfsame day Bavsi reduced that much portion from the food of his servants and slaves, in order to make up for the expense his brother's dinner had caused him. And it came to pass that there came a famine that raged the land. The wealthy and the upright opened their granaries, and distributed food to the poor and the hungry. But Bavsi did not do so. He kept his granaries well secured, and put additional locks upon the doors. He even reduced the food ration of his household; and became a profiteer, selling for very high prices. In this manner he multiplied his wealth even more in those evil times. But Bavsi's conduct aroused scorn among the people, and they muttered angrily against him, until their indignation reached the ears of king Solomon. And the king grew wroth and devised a plan. He sent a royal chamberlain to Bavsi with an invitation to sit at meat with the king. Bavsi was overwhelmed by such an honor, and he rejoiced greatly in his heart, saying, It seems that I have found great favor in the eyes of the king; now, behold, how my enemies will rage over my good fortune! All day long Bavsi refrained from eating, thinking that he might consume more of the royal dainties.

Upon arrival at the royal palace a chamberlain conducted him graciously into a separate room, and said, The king will sup with you alone tonight. Therefore, I wish to instruct you on the rules of conduct, when you sit down at table with the king. You must do what I bid you, lest the king grow angry; and woe to you if the king should grow angry! I will do as you bid me, answered Bavsi, a little frightened. And the chamberlain said, Remember, first of all, you must never ask for anything, neither from the king nor from any of the servants. Secondly, no matter what you see happen you must not ask any questions nor utter any complaint. And lastly, when the king asks you whether you are enjoying the various courses, you must outdo him, and praise, even if they should not please you. Promise me, therefore, that you shall remember and obey these rules. And Bavsi swore uneasily, saying, I promise! Then the chamberlain said, Very well then, there is yet one more hour before supper, so I will have you wait in another room, until I call you. And he was conducted into a room, where an open door led into the royal kitchens. Here Bavsi waited patiently, observing the elaborate preparations for the royal supper. And as the aroma of the sizzling roasts and other dainties wafted to his nostrils, he gritted his teeth and waited for supper. For he had not eaten all day long, he was very hungry, and the smell of food only teased his appetite. Several times he had to exercise great effort to keep himself from going into the kitchen, so that he might calm the pangs of hunger.

The time arrived at last when Bavsi was called into the royal presence. King Solomon greeted him, saying, Sit down, my friend; do not be bashful and eat to your heart's content. As Bavsi seated himself, a servant entered and placed a baked fish on a golden platter before the king. The king began to eat, and as he ate he exclaimed in rapture, What fish! How delicious! And when the king had done with the fish, the servant then placed a generous portion of fish before Bavsi. Overjoyed, Bavsi made an eager motion toward the fish before him; but at that very instant another servant snatched it from him, and carried it off into the kitchens. Bavsi was on the verge of saying something, when he recalled the instructions of the chamberlain, and remembered the promise which he had made to obey.

A servant then brought the king a fine broth in a golden bowl. The king relished the broth, while Bavsi waited to be served. When the king had finished his soup, the servant, as in the first instance, also brought Bavsi a bowl of soup. But no sooner did he make a motion toward the bowl, than another servant snatched the bowl from before him, and carried it to the kitchens. Similarly it happened with the roast, and all other courses. Bavsi was beside himself with hunger and indignation. He cast looks of hatred at the servants, but he had to remain mute and smiling as he sat facing the king; to him it seemed as if the meal would never come to an end.

I hope you are enjoying your supper, king Solomon remarked politely. I am, indeed, O king! Everything is delicious, the unhappy Bavsi answered.

I am delighted to hear that, said the king. The food has the taste of paradise in it, cried Bavsi with enthusiasm, recalling again the chamberlain's instructions. As the royal meal ended, Bavsi, now faint with hunger, arose anxiously to take leave. But the king held him back, saying, Don't go, my friend! Do not part from me so fast, the night is still young. I have commanded my musicians to delight us with fine music. Reluctantly, Bavsi remained, recalling the instructions of the chamberlain. The musicians entered and played wondrous tunes upon their instruments; but the music only annoyed Bavsi, for he could think of nothing but food. After the musicians had finished, Bavsi once more arose to go; and again Solomon held him back, saying, Don't go, my friend. The hour is too late for you to go home. Sleep this night at the palace. And Bavsi knew that every word of the king must be obeyed, for it was a command. So he remained. He did not sleep all night long, for the pangs of hunger kept him awake. Angrily he began to ponder upon the possible meaning of all this and the king's conduct. Bavsi asked himself, Why did he invite me to a supper which I was not allowed to eat? Suddenly he became aware that the king had only meant to teach him a lesson in hunger; and he understood how the hungry and poor, whom he despised, do feel.

In this manner, the wisdom of Solomon was spread among all the kingdoms round about, and some distant lands. And when Hiram king of Tyre heard that Solomon was anointed king in the office of his father, he was overjoyed, for he was a dear and loyal friend of David. And Solomon told Hiram's messengers, saying, Thou knowest how David my father could not build an house unto the name of the Lord, for the wars were about him on every side. But now the Lord my God hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrence. And, behold, I intend to build an house unto the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spake unto David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name. Now therefore command thou that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants; and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants, according to all that thou shalt appoint. For thou knowest that there is not among us any that has the skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians. And when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly, and said, Blessed be the Lord this day, which hath given unto David a wise son over this great people Israel.

And it came to pass that Hiram sent messengers to Solomon, saying, I have considered the things which thou sentest to me; and I will do all thou desireth concerning the timber of cedar, and also fir. My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea; and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place thou shall appoint me; and will cause them to be discharged there that thou may receive them; and thou shalt provide wheat and oil for my household. And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand measures of wheat, and twenty measures of pure oil, year by year, in return for all the cedar and timber Solomon's men could cut and transport from Hiram's country.

And God continued to increase Solomon in all the wisdom of the world; and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and they made a league together. It came to pass that Solomon raised a levy of thirty thousand men out of all Israel; and sent them to Lebanon ten thousand a month by courses; one month they remained in Lebanon, and two months at home; and Adoniram was appointed over the levy. And Solomon reigned over all Israel, and all kingdoms from the river Euphrates unto the land of the Philistines, and the border of Egypt. The provisions for Solomon's household for one day were, ten fat oxen, twenty oxen out of the pastures, an hundred sheep; beside harts, roebucks, fallowdeer and fatted fowl. His dominion extended over all the region on this side of the river, from Tiphsah to Azzah (Gaza), over all the kings; both Judah and Israel also dwelt in peace and safety, each man under his vine (meaning confidently secure), from Dan to Beer-sheba, all the days of Solomon; and Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen.

And it came to pass that Solomon had resolved to build the temple, for there was peace on each side round about him. He remembered the sacred words of the Torah: "And if thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn stones; for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it." The tools of iron symbolized the sword, the instruments of war and death; while the altar and the temple were symbols of peace and life. Solomon desired that not only the altar, but all the stonework in the building of the house of the Lord should be made ready at the quarry and transported to the site of the temple ground. But even the wisest of monarchs was unable to find a means of cutting large blocks of stone and huge trees without the Israelites using any metal implement. In despair the king summoned his great council of state, consisting of the wisest of men in his kingdom. He told them the difficulty and asked them for their advice. The consellors listened to the words of their beloved monarch in silence. After a while one of the wisest of the counsellors spake, saying, Long live the king! Mighty sovereign! Haven't you heard that among the countless creatures of the Most High, there is one which can serve thee as thine heart's desire? It can cut stone better than the sharpest tool of iron. I refer to the tiny wormlike creature called Shamir, or diamond insect. Don't you know, O wisest of rulers, how the Almighty created ten marvels in the twilight of the eve of the first sabbath in the week of Creation? Among these marvels was the worm Shamir; it is endowed with miraculous power, for behold, it can split the hardest stone! Moreover, iron is broken by its mere presence! And Solomon replied, with great joy in his heart, You show excellent wisdom, beloved counsellor; now tell me, where is this marvellous little worm to be found? Then said the wise counsellor of the king, But more than I have told thee I do not know. No mortal being has ever discovered the home of the Shamir; and the sons of men know not their whereabouts. Hasn't God bestowed upon thee knowledge and understanding more than he hath bestowed upon any one else? Is it not so that thy wisdom exceeds that of all the children of men? Aren't thou ruler of all the demons, and spirits, and devils, all animals and birds? Seek their aid, Sire! And thou shalt find the Shamir. Invoke the wisest of the spirits who will reveal to thee even the secrets of the heaven above, of the earth below, and of the waters beneath!

The advice of the counsellor pleased Solomon, and after thanking his wise minister, he dismissed the council in order to carry out the plan. He looked at the ring on his right hand, which had the Ineffable Name (יהוה) engraved upon it. No sooner did he call upon the name of the Lord, than a demon appeared before him; and after doing obeisance, cried, What is your wish king Solomon? And Solomon said, I command you to tell me where the worm Shamir is to be found. In trembling voice the demon replied, Mighty king of man and spirits! I am your servant and I will always obey you if I have the power to do so. Be not angry with me, O king, for I fear I cannot help you now. The secret you desire to know has not been revealed to any of the inferior demons. It is only Ashmodai our king who is in possession of the secret. Tell me, then, where does Ashmodai, the king of the demons, dwell? interrupted king Solomon. And the demon replied, May it please your gracious majesty, Ashmodai lives far from the haunts of men. His palace is built on the top of a very high mountain. In the selfsame mountain he has dug a very deep well. Daily he fetches his drinking water from this well; when he has obtained sufficient water for his daily needs, he closes up the mouth of the well with an enormous rock, and seals it with his signet ring. He then flies up to heaven to receive orders from his superiors. His task takes him to the end of the earth, even beyond the great seas. With the going down of the sun in the west, he returns to his own home. He examines very carefully the seal on the rock at the mouth of the well, to make certain that it has not been tampered with in his absence. He then proceeds to uncover the well, and draws enough supply to last through the night, then he seals it afresh.

And Solomon sat on his great throne of ivory, overlaid with pure gold, and listened to the words of the demon, and not a word escaped his memory. He then dismissed the demon, who disappeared in an instant. Thereupon, Solomon summoned his friend and captain Benaiah son of Jehoiada (Yehuda). He told him the nature of the task, saying, Go, my trusty friend Benaiah, and capture Ashmodai, the king of the demons, and bring him before my presence. To assist you in your perilous undertaking, I give you this golden chain, on the links of which are engraved the letters forming the Divine Name. I will also entrust to your care my signet-ring, which is also engraved with the Holy Name of the Most High. Take with you also this large bundle of white wool and these skins full of strong wine. After giving him detailed instructions about the journey and the way to overcome Ashmodai, he sent Benaiah on his way, wishing him success in his undertaking.

After many days journey across the great desert he finally reached his destination. Never had he seen such a desolate spot. Before him stood a towering mountain without sign of human inhabitation. The mountain appeared to be the abode of silence and death. But Benaiah remained steadfast in his mission, and continued his journey undaunted. He began to climb the mountain, and feared neither man nor the spirits of the netherworld. When he reached half-way up, he bored a hole, according to the instructions of king Solomon, to locate the exact whereabouts of Ashmodai's well. Great was his delight when the hole reached into the well. He drained off the water, and plugged the hole with the wool which he had with him for this purpose. Then he dug another hole nearby and poured into the well all the wine in the skins; and hid himself behind a large rock, and waited patiently for the arrival of the king of the demons. Soon after sunset Ashmodai returned from fulfilling his duties in the celestial realm. He carefuly examined his seal upon the rock, according to his daily ritual, and found it intact as he had left it early that morning. After he had rolled away the rock, he descended into the well to quench his thirst. The fragrance of wine overpowered him, so that he ran up to the mouth of the well to inhale fresh air. Realizing that the well had been tampered with by his enemies, of which he was ever afraid, he again examined the seal and found it untouched by human hands. Meanwhile a burning thirst overpowered him, and he descended into the well in order to quench his thirst. No sooner had he tasted the wine than he desired to drink more and more. After he had drunk fully, he became drowsy; all his senses were overpowered; his head became heavy, his body staggered, and knees gave away; at last he fell to the ground and slept soundly.

Now Benaiah came forth from his hiding place, and crept slowly toward the sleeping demon. He quickly threw the golden chain around his neck, and sealed it with the signet-ring; now the demon was bound by the power of God. When the effects of the wine wore off, Ashmodai awoke, and found himself no longer free; for he saw the golden chain around his neck and beheld the Holy Name. He then groaned so loudly that the mountain shook. In vain Ashmodai struggled to rise; in his anger sparks of fire flew from his eyes and foam covered his mouth. He continued to struggle, but could not rise. He looked at Benaiah and cried in bitter anger, Is it you who hath bewitched me? Truly the name of the Lord is upon thee, replied Benaiah. Ashmodai immediately subsided, realizing that he was vanquished; and told Benaiah that he was quite ready to obey his orders. Then said Benaiah, Come then, we will go at once to king Solomon, your master. Arise and follow me! Ashmodai arose and followed Benaiah. On their way to the Holy City, Benaiah was surprised at the behavior of the captive; for wherever they passed, Ashmodai left behind him a trace of his might and power, even that of the demons. In a village he brushed against a palm tree; after its foliage was shaken off, he uprooted it with one hand. In another place he knocked his shoulder against a house and overturned it. When they passed the market-place of a large town, they met a happy bridal procession; when the bride and bridegroom passed, Ashmodai began to weep (for he could not bear the happiness and rejoicings of another, for his lot was misery and loneliness). When Benaiah asked him, Why do you weep? he said, Within three days the bridegroom will be a corpse! In the next town they overheard a farmer asking a bootmaker to make a pair of boots which were to last him for seven years. Ashmodai burst out in laughter, saying, The poor fellow will not wear his shoes for even seven days; behold, within a week he will die, yet he asks for shoes to last him seven years!

One day they met a blind man wandering hither and thither, trying to find his way, and Ashmodai set him on the right path; and he showed similar kindness to a drunkard, whom they met at the crossroads. On another occasion they saw a magician who was demonstrating his skills, and proclaiming to see the future and to reveal hidden mysteries. This made Ashmodai laugh again at the man, saying, Wouldn't you laugh at a man who pretends to reveal secrets, while at the same time he is unaware of the fact that a treasure lies buried at his feet? We demons judge persons according to their true nature and worth, not according to their deceptive appearance in the eyes of man; we discern their heart and Soul.

When they reached Jerusalem, Benaiah conducted his captive to the royal presence. As soon as Ashmodai beheld king Solomon, fear seized him, and he began to tremble violently in every limb. He held a long staff in his hand on which he supported himself, and Ashmodai threw it before the king. When king Solomon asked him, Why do you do this? Ashmodai replied, Mighty sovereign, don't you know that in spite of all your splendor, you will occupy after your death no more space in the earth than is measured by yonder staff; yet you are not satisfied with ruling the children of men, but must hold the spirits and demons in your subjection also. And Solomon said unto Ashmodai, Don't be vexed; you won't find me a hard master. I merely demand one little service of you. I wish to build a great temple to the glory of the Creator of heaven and earth; and for this purpose I require the services of the wonderful worm Shamir. Tell me now, where can I find this tiny creature? And Ashmodai replied, O wisest of mortals, Don't you know that the Shamir is not placed under my charge? Then Solomon cried, Where is it? Speak slave, and speak truly! And Ashmodai answered, Mighty master, since the days of Moses, who employed the Shamir when writing upon the tablets of stone, the worm has been entrusted to the care of the Prince of the Sea, who has given it to the charge of the woodcock; and the woodcock has sworn to carry the Shamir with him at all times. He dwells in a nest, built on top of a very high mountain. He uses the Shamir to split the rocks, so as to plant seeds in the clefts; and the vegetation that grows there serves as his food. Whenever he moves from one nest, to build another, he takes the Shamir with him, carrying him beneath his wings. And Solomon cried and said, Enough. You shall live with me until the temple is built.

After this, Solomon called his friend and captain Benaiah, and sent him on a mission to look for the nest of the woodcock, to obtain the Shamir and bring it to the Holy City. Benaiah obeyed with glad heart all the instructions which king Solomon gave him. He set out on his journey, crossing hill and dale, stream and desert. At last he discovered the nest of the woodcock, while he himself was away on one of his expeditions. Benaiah put a barrier of glass between the woodcock and his fledgelings, so that the woodcock was unable to enter his nest. And when he could not enter the nest, for the glass was hard and strong; and he saw through the glass his helpless young, in his anger he began to screech and tried to smash the barrier. All his efforts were in vain; so he decided to make use of the precious treasure entrusted to his care; and put the Shamir to work. As soon as the worm touched the barrier, it shattered into pieces. At that instant Benaiah raised a great cry and frightened the woodcock; so he dropped the Shamir from under his wings. It had barely fallen to the ground, when Benaiah seized it, and placed it in the wool, and put it in a small fold of lead. Then Benaiah set out on his homeward journey, rejoicing greatly in his success. In despair the woodcock killed himself, fearing the terrible vengeance the Prince of the Sea would bring on him, when the disappearance of the Shamir became known. Thus Benaiah delivered the Shamir unto king Solomon.

And it came to pass that Solomon had secured seventy thousand burden-bearers; eighty thousand hewers in the mountain (even the Shamir); besides the chief of Solomon's officers, three thousand and three hundred were the taskmasters, who ruled over the workers. These hewed great stones at the quarries, and brought them to be sanctified at the temple site; then the foundation of the house of the Lord was laid. And Hiram's (Huram's) builders cut the huge cedar and fir trees, which were also sanctified at the hallowed grounds, before they were used in the building. And in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel came out of the land of Egypt in the fourth year of Solomon's reign (which began in c.1037 B.C.); in the second day of the month of Ziv (Zif) the second month, in c.1034 B.C., the foundation for the house of the Lord was laid in a great ceremony, with great rejoicing.

The house of the Lord which Solomon built was sixty cubits in length, twenty cubits in breadth, and thirty cubits in height. The porch before the temple was twenty cubits in length and breadth, and ten cubits was the breadth before the house of the Lord. Recessed and latticed windows were made, and he built chambers round about, against the walls of the house, both around the temple and the holy of holies (the oracle). The innermost chamber was five cubits broad, the middle was six cubits, the third was seven cubits broad; for without in the wall of the house he made narrowed rests at intervals, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

The door for the middle chamber was in the right side of the house, and winding stairs led to the middle chamber, and into the third. The walls were built with boards of cedar, and the floors with planks of fir. The Most Holy compartment, or the oracle, was twenty cubits in length, breadth, and height; and Solomon overlaid it with pure gold, and so covered the altar, which was of cedar; and within it he made two cherubim of olive tree, each ten cubits high; each wing of the cherubim was five cubits; from uttermost part of one wing unto the uttermost part of the other were ten cubits; both cherubim were of one measure and one size. The height of each cherub was ten cubits. And he set the cherubim within the innermost house of the temple; and they stretched forth the wings of the cherubim, so that the wing of the one touched one wall, and of the other touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house. Then he overlaid the cherubim with gold; and carved the walls with figures of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers; and the floor was overlaid with gold; both within and without the oracle.

And for the entrance of the oracle he made doors of olive tree; the lintel and the side posts were a fifth part of the wall. The two doors were also of olive tree; and he carved upon them cherubim, palm trees and open flowers, then overlaid the carvings with gold; and highlighted the cherubim with powder of gold.

So also made he the doors of the temple posts, of olive tree, a fourth part of the wall; but the two doors were of fir tree. The two leaves of each door were folding, and carved upon them also were cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers; covered with gold, fitted upon the carved work. And he built the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, which were not hewed by the Israelites, but by the Shamir; and a row of cedar beams.

And Solomon sent for Hiram (Huram) king of Tyre; he was a widower's son, of the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a cunning artificer in brass, filled with wisdom and understanding to do all manner of works in brass. And he came to Solomon, and cast two pillars of brass, each eighteen cubits high, and the circumference of each was twelve cubits (about eighteen feet). And he made two carved heads (chapiters) of the pillars of molten brass to set upon the tops of the pillars; the height of their head was five cubits each. When set upon the platform, each pillar was thirty-five cubits high. And he made nets of checker work, and wreaths of chain work, for the chapiters, seven for each chapiter; and he made to cover the chapiters upon the pillars two rows upon the one network with pomegranates; four hundred pomegranates for two networks to cover the two bowls of the chapiters; and the chapiters were covered with lily work in the porch, four cubits. The belly of the chapiters also had pomegranates, above by the network; and the pomegranates were about two hundred in rows. And he set up the pillars in the porch of the temple. First he set the right pillar, and called its name Jachin (Yakayin); then the left pillar, and called its name Boaz (Bahaz), to represent uprightness and establishment. And the tops of the two chapiters were joined by lily work of masonry. So was the work of the pillars finished.

Then Hiram made a round molten sea, the baptismal font, ten cubits, from brim to brim; its height was five cubits; and its circumference was over thirty cubits. The knops were cast in two rows, when it was cast. Furthermore, it stood upon twelve oxen, representing the twelve tribes of Israel; three looking toward the north, three toward the south, three toward the east, and three toward the west. The molten sea was set upon the oxen, and all their hinder parts were inward. The molten sea was a hand breadth thick, and the brim was wrought like the brim of a cup, with flowers of lilies; it contained two thousand baths (about 11,620 gallons) of water.

And Hiram made ten bases and ten wash-basins (lavers) of brass; four cubits was the length and breadth, and three cubits the height of each base. They had borders between the ledges; and on the borders were engraved lions, oxen, and cherubim, representing the rulers, Israel, and the holy angels. Every base had four brazen wheels, and plates of brass, and the four corners had undersetters; and under the wash basin were molten undersetters, at every side of every addition. And there were four undersetters to the four corners of each base, and the undersetters were of the very base itself. On top of the base was a round compass, half a cubit high. And on top of the base, the ledges and borders were of the same; for on the plates of the ledges and the borders he engraved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, according to the proportion of every one, and scenery round about. And the mouth of each base within the chapiter and above was a cubit; but the mouth was round, after the work of the base, a cubit and a half; and upon the mouth were engravings with their border, square not round. And under the borders were four wheels; the axeltrees of the wheels were joined to the base; the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half. The work of the wheels was like the work of a chariot wheel; their axeltrees, naves, felloes, and spokes were all of molten brass. In this manner Hiram made the ten bases, all of them had one casting, one measure and one size.

Then he made ten lavers (or wash-basins) of brass. One laver contained forty baths (about 232.4 gallons); every laver was four cubits, and upon every one of the ten bases one laver. And he put five bases on the right side of the house, and five on the left; and set the molten sea to the southeast of the brazen altar. And this is the work which Hiram and his father did for king Solomon (Shlomoh), for the house of the Lord: the two pillars, and the two bowls of the chapiters that were on top of the two pillars, the two networks to cover the two bowls; the ten bases and ten lavers; one molten sea (font) and twelve oxen under the sea; the pots, the shovels, the basins, and the vessels; all were made of bright brass. In the plain of Jordan they were cast, in the clay ground between Succoth and Zarthan. And Solomon left all the vessels of brass unweighed, because they were exceedingly many, neither was there any record kept of the weight of the brass.

But all the vessels that pertained to the sanctuary, the altar of incense, the table of shewbread, the candlesticks (five on the left and five on the right side) before the oracle, with the flowers and the lamps and tongs; the bowls, the snuffers, the basins, the spoons, the censers; hinges both for the doors of the inner house and for the entrance doors of the temple; all these were of gold.

Thus in the eleventh year, in the month of Bul, the eighth month (circa 1027 B.C.), the house of the Lord, or the temple, was finished on mount Moriah; on the threshing floor of Ornan (Araunah) the Jebusite which David purchased from him. It took seven and a half years (from Ziv, 1034 until Bul, 1027 B.C.). The temple was basically of the same plan as that of the tabernacle which was built near Mount Sinai, under Moses and Aaron. The Holy and the Holy of Holies or Most Holy were of the same proportions but their inside dimensions were twice those of the tabernacle. The Holy compartment was forty cubits long (about 58.3 feet), and twenty cubits (about 29.2 feet) wide and high. The Most Holy was a cube of twenty cubits. Additionally there were roof chambers about ten cubits (about 14.6 feet) high, but the building of the temple was thirty cubits (about 43.8 feet). Other buildings surrounded the temple, containing storage chambers, dining rooms, kitchens, and such. Based on the modern archaeological evidence and scientific means, the annals of secular history have thus provided our generation with this conception of the Temple-Palace area of Jerusalem:

First permanent sanctuary or the temple of the Lord; since the time the children of Israel came out of Egypt in 1513 B.C., and built the tabernacle near mount Sinai in 1512 B.C.

The temple of Solomon or Shlomoh represented a symbolic image of the universe in that day; and resembled in its arrangements and furniture, all the temples of the ancients, going as far as the time of Adam or Atan, the first man taken from among the men, and made a high priest in the eternal kingdom of the Almighty God. The Holy of Holies formed a cube, in which there were 4 + 3 + 2, or 9 lines visible, and three sides or faces. The number four represented Nature, the four cardinal points (east, west, north and south) and seasons; number three represented the Deity engraven upon a triangular plate, and sunken into a cube of agate; and number two represented the duality of good and evil, light and darkness, heaven and hell, right and left hands of God, even Jachin and Boaz, or the spiritual and the temporal. The vault or ceilings of the temple were starred like the firmament; and were supported by twelve columns, representing the twelve months of the year. The border that ran around the columns represented the zodiac, and one of the twelve celestial signs was appropriated to each column.

And it came to pass that Solomon assembled all the elders of Israel, all the heads of the tribes, and chiefs of the fathers of the children of Israel unto a large assembly; that they may approve in bringing the Ark of the Covenant out of the city of David, which is Zion. And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon during the week of 15-21, in the month of Ethanim (or Tishri), the seventh month, at the festival of ingathering. And they brought the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, and the tabernacle of congregation, and all the holy vessels. On that day the sheep and oxen that were sacrificed upon the brazen altar could not be told nor numbered for multitude. And the priests and Levites brought the Ark of the Lord into the oracle, and placed it under the wings of the cherubim, and their stretched out wings covered the Ark and the staves thereof. And they drew out the staves, that the ends of the staves were seen in the oracle alone, and they were not seen without. There was nothing in the Ark, save the two tablets of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. And it is said that these tablets were hewn by the ancestors of the Shamir, who worked under Moses. And when the priests came out of the sanctuary, a cloud filled the house of the Lord. So much so that the priests could not minister, for the glory of the Lord had filled the place. And the Levite singers, of the houses of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, and their brethren, arrayed in white linen, with cymbals and psalteries and harps, stood at the east end of the brazen altar, and with them an hundred and twenty priests sounding trumpets. And in unison the priests and Levites sang hymns of praise and played the instruments. For it was when they sang the praise and thanked the Lord, that the cloud filled the house, and they could not sing nor play any instrument of music.

Then Solomon spake to the congregation, saying, The Lord said that he would dwell in the thick darkness. But this day I have built thee a house to dwell in, a settled place for thee to abide forever. And the king turned his face, and blessed the congregation of Israel, and all those that were present there; saying, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which spake with his mouth unto David my father, saying, Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build an house in, that my name might be there; neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel. But I have chosen Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and have chosen David to be over my people Israel. Now it was in the heart of my father David to build the house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. But the Lord said to David my father, Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well in that it was thy intention. Notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house, but thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name. The Lord therefore hath performed his word that he hath spoken, for I am risen up in the room of David my father; and am set on the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised; and have built the house unto the name of the Lord God of Israel.

And in it this day I have put the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, which covenant he made with the children of Israel.

And Solomon stood before the altar, in the presence of all the congregation; for a brazen platform, five cubits wide and long, and three cubits high, had he set in the midst of the court. Upon it he stood, and kneeled down upon his knees, and spread forth his hands toward heaven, and offered this prayer:

> O Lord God of Israel; there is no God like thee in the heaven, nor in the earth; which keepest covenant, and shewest mercy unto thy servants, that walk before thee with all their hearts. Thou which hast kept with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him; and spakest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.
>
> Now therefore, O Lord God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him, saying, There shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit upon the throne of Israel; if only thy children take heed to walk in my Law, as thou hast walked before me.
>
> Now then, O Lord God of Israel, let thy words be verified, which thou hast spoken unto thy servant David. But will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, the heaven of all heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built!
>
> Have respect therefore to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee. That thine eyes may be upon this house day and night, upon the place which thou hast said that thou wouldest put thy name there; to hearken unto the prayer which thy servant prayeth toward this place. Hearken therefore unto the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they shall make at this place. Hear thou from thy dwelling place, even from heaven; and when thou hearest, forgive.
>
> If a man sin against his neighbor, and an oath be laid upon him to make him swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house; then hear thou, O Lord, from heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, by requiting the wicked, by recompensing his way upon his own head; and by justifying the righteous, by giving him according to his righteousness.
>
> And if thy people Israel be put to the worse before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee; but when they return and confess thy name, and pray for forgiveness before thee in this house, then hear thou, O

Lord, from the heavens, and forgive the sins of thy people Israel; and bring them back into thy fold again.

When the heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; yet if they confess, and pray toward this place, and forsake from their sin; then hear thou, O Lord, from the heavens, and forgive the sins of thy servants and thy people Israel; and send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given unto thy people Israel for an inheritance.

If there be dearth in the land, if there be pestilence, or blasting (blight), mildew, locust or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them in the cities of their land, whatsoever plague or sickness there be; if any man so afflicted stretches forth his hand unto thee with broken and contrite heart; then hear thou, O Lord, from heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive; and render each man according to his works, whose work thou knowest; that they may fear thee, to walk in thy ways, so long as they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

Moreover concerning the stranger, which is not of thy people Israel, but is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, for thy mighty hand and stretched out arm; if they come and pray in sincerity of their hearts in this house; then hear thou, O Lord, from the heavens, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for; that all people of the earth may know that this house which I have built is called by thy name.

If thy people go out to war against their enemies by the way that thou shalt send them, and they pray unto thee facing toward this city, which thou hast chosen, then hear thou, O Lord, from the heavens, their prayers and supplications, and maintain their cause.

If they sin against thee, for there is no man that sinneth not; and thou be angry with them, and deliver them over before their enemies, and they carry them away captives unto whithersoever land, near or far; yet if they recall in their mind in the lands of their captivity; and turn and pray unto thee in that land, with a broken heart and a contrite spirit, facing toward the holy city and the house which I have built unto thy name; then hear thou, O Lord, from the heaven, even from thy dwelling place, their prayers and supplications, and maintain their cause, and forgive thy people which have sinned against thee.

Now, my God, let, I beseech thee, thine eyes be open; and let thine ears attend to the prayer that is made in this place. Therefore arise, O Lord God, into thy resting place; thou and the Ark of thy strength. Let thy priests, O Lord God, be clothed with salvation, and let thy saints and Levites rejoice in goodness. O Lord God, turn not away the face of thine anointed; remember the mercies of David thy servant.

And as Solomon had made an end of praying, the fire came down from heaven, and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices that were upon the altar; and the cloud filled the Lord's house, so much so that the priests and Levites could not enter into the house. When the children of Israel and all the congregation beheld how the fire came down, and the glory of the Lord upon the house, they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement; and worshipped and praised the Lord, saying, For the Lord is good, and his mercy endureth forever. Then the king and all others offered sacrifices before the Lord. On that day twenty-two thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep were sacrificed upon the middle of the court before the temple, which Solomon hallowed for this purpose, for the brazen altar was not able to receive such a large number of burnt offerings, the fat of the peace offering, and the meal offerings. And they dedicated the house unto the Lord God of Israel.

The feast and rejoicing lasted seven days; and a very great congregation, from the entrance of Hamath unto the wadi of Egypt (wadi El-arish), rejoiced in the festivities. And on the eighth day, the twenty-second day of Ethanim, they made a solemn assembly; for they dedicated the temple, and sacrificed upon the altar and the hallowed ground for seven days, and feasted seven days. And on the twenty-third day of the month they sent the people away into their tents and dwellings; merry and with gladdened hearts they all returned.

And it came to pass that as soon as the temple was finished, Solomon began to build the king's residence and other government buildings. When the king had finished the temple, and laid the foundation of his house, and did all that which he desired, the Lord appeared to Solomon the second time, as he appeared to him in Gibeon. And the Lord said unto Solomon: I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, which thou hast made before me; I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, to put my name upon it; and mine eyes and mine heart shall be there forever. And if thou wilt walk before me, in the integrity of thine heart, and in uprightness as did thy father David; and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and judgements, then I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel forever, as I promised to David thy father, saying, There shall not fail thee a man upon the throne of Israel. But if ye shall at all turn from following me, ye or your children, and will not keep my commandments and my statutes, but go and serve false gods and worship them, then will I cut off Israel out of the land of their inheritance; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight; and Israel will become a proverb and a byword among all people. And at this house, that which is high shall be brought down to the ground; that everyone that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss, saying, Why hath the Lord done thus unto this land and this house? And they shall answer, Because they forsook the Lord their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken upon themselves to worship strange gods, and to serve them; therefore the Lord hath brought this evil upon them.

And it came to pass that thirteen years after the completion of the temple, the king's residence or the royal palace (which was to the east of the brazen altar and east of the temple on mount Moriah) the porch of the throne, the porch of pillars, and the house of the forest of Lebanon were finished, at the end of twenty years, in circa 1014 B.C.; in the twenty-fourth year of Solomon's reign. Then it happened that Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar and fir trees; and his father, the most renowned man in Tyre in all the works of brass, which is an alloy consisting of copper and zinc in variable proportions, did all manner of works for the house of the Lord, with excellence and full devotion to his undertaking. Therefore Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. But when Hiram came out from Tyre to see the cities, they pleased him not; and he said unto Solomon, What cities are these which thou hast given me, my brother? They are but the land of Cabul, meaning filthy and fettered land. But Hiram remained loyal to Solomon until the end of his days. Soon after, Solomon needed some gold to settle his debts; for he had raised the levy for building the house of the Lord, his own house, the wall of Jerusalem, and rebuilding of the cities of Millo, Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer; and to upgrade and build the cities of Bethhoron, Baalath, Tadmor; and all the storage cities, chariot cities, cities for his horsemen; even Jerusalem and Lebanon. And Hiram sent to the king one hundred and twenty talents of gold. And it came to pass that king Solomon made a navy of ships in Ezion-geber, which is beside Eloth, on the shore of the Red sea, in the land of Edom. And Hiram sent in the navy of his servants, shipmen that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon; and they came to Ophir, and fetched from thence gold, four hundred and twenty talents, and brought it to king Solomon.

Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred and sixty-six talents; besides, he collected toll from the merchantmen and caravan tradesmen of all Arabia, their kings and governors. And king Solomon made two hundred breastplates of beaten gold, six hundred shekels of gold went into the making of one breastplate; and he made three hundred shields of beaten gold, three pounds of gold went into making one shield. And the king put them on display in the house of the forest of Lebanon, which was near the southern entrance gate.

Moreover the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold. The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round behind. There were arm rests (stays) on either side of the seat, and two lions stood beside the arm-rests. And twelve lions stood on either side of the six steps, six on each side. And there was not the like made in any kingdom. But the throne was built upon the same design as that of the throne of the Egyptian Lord of the Solar Spirits, the elder Horus, also the son of Osiris and Isis, known as Har-oeri or Haur-oeri, the Beneficent Eye of the Sun.

And all king Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; nothing was of silver, for it was counted as nothing in the days of Solomon. Furthermore, for the king had at sea a navy of Tharshish (Tarshish) with the navy of Hiram; once every three years came the fleet of Tharshish, bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, peacocks, spices, and such. Solomon had fourteen hundred chariots, twelve thousand horsemen whom he placed in the cities of chariots, and with the king at Jerusalem. And he made silver to be as stone in Jerusalem, worthless in value; and cedars made he to be as the sycamore trees that are in the valley, in abundance. Solomon had horses brought out of Egypt, and linen yarn from Cilicia (Kue); and the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price. Moreover, a chariot came up and went out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty.

So king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom; and those who heard of his riches and wisdom and splendor, came to Jerusalem to behold with their own eyes; and they brought with them presents of vessels of silver and gold, garments, armours, spices, horses, mules, and all sorts of necessities and amenities of life, at a rate each year.

And it happened, that king Solomon commanded all Animals and Birds, as well as demons and devils, to assemble. And when they had gathered, they danced and performed entertainment before him and the elders of the nation, who came to Jerusalem for this occasion. When he looked about him, he saw that the hoopoe (hoopoo), a bird with a slender curved beak, a mountain cock, was not among the guests of the state. He therefore became angry, and commanded the Eagles, saying, Bring before me the hoopoe so that I may punish him for his disobedience. So the eagles flew away to fetch the culprit; and they brought him to the presence of the king. Then pleaded the hoopoe, saying, please do not be angry with me, my lord the king, because I failed to make my appearance with all the other animals; believe me, truly, it wasn't out of evil intention, nor because I took your command lightly. Three months ago I decided to fly to all the far corners of the earth to inquire if there was one single nation that had not heard of the greatness and wisdom of my lord the king. And thus I flew about for ninety days and ninety nights; I neither ate nor drank anything unholy, until I reached the city of Kittor; it is located to the south and west, at the end of the world (meaning in Abyssinia or Ethiopia). What was my astonishment when I saw that the earth there was of pure gold! Although there was much silver rolling in the streets, no one seemed to take notice of it. (This country was a part of the land where once Gods dwelt, where the garden of Eden or Aden was; where Adam was made high priest; yea, even a land from which man first emerged from the dust; the spring from which mankind evolved into what he is today. This sacred and holy abode of the ancient of ancients was known to the Egyptians as the great land of Punt.) All about me stretched magnificent gardens and orchards, radiantly in blossom, as on the day when God created heaven and earth. The fertile fields were irrigated by a winding river. On the trees grew the most beautiful and delicious fruit I have ever tasted. But most wonderful of all, the inhabitants of the land were all peace-loving! Every man sat serenely in his own vineyard and under his fig tree; he carried no weapons, nor wished to learn the art of war. This tranquil land, my lord the king, is ruled over by a woman of wondrous wisdom and beauty. She is called the queen of Sheba; and her subjects, both the powerful and weak, the rich and the poor, serve her obediently.

When king Solomon (Shlomoh, or Jedidiah) heard the account of the hoopoe, he was delighted, and ordered his servants to give him the most delicious food and drink, in golden dishes. After he had his fill of the royal dainties, the hoopoe said, Now I am at your bidding. Then Solomon called his scribes and had them write this letter:

> Peace be with you, O queen of Sheba, and peace be with all your people! Know that God appointed me king over my lands and peoples. He made me sovereign over all the beasts and the animals, over the fish, the birds and the insects. Therefore, I promise you that if you will come and pay me homage, I will honor you and raise you above all the sovereigns under my rule. But, should you not obey me, then be forewarned that I will send against you my mighty legions, who will grind you and your kingdom to dust! Should you ask what are those mighty legions of which I speak — know then: that the birds in the sky are my cavalry and animals of the earth are my infantry. At my command, they will descend upon your land and annihilate you and your people; for against them you can find no protection.

Then, the scribes tied the message to a wing of the hoopoe, who as he went through the air, called upon all the other birds to follow him. It was early in the morning when the hoopoe and his retinue arrived in Abyssinia; and just at that hour when the queen of Sheba left her palace to worship the sun, he gathered all the birds about him and said to them, Do not scatter about in all directions, but assemble yourselves in the air to block the light of the sun; and the army of birds closed their ranks, that they hid the light of the sun, and the earth grew dark. At this the queen of Sheba became frightened, and cried, Woe is me! Something terrible has happened to me! I can no longer see, everything has gone dark before my eyes! Then the hoopoe alighted at the feet of the queen, and stretched out his wings. She saw the letter tied to his wing; and when she read it, she began to tremble. In haste she gathered her counsellors and sages, and read them the letter. And when they heard it, they looked puzzled and said, How odd that we have never heard of this king Solomon, nor of his kingdom! And against the advice of her counsellors, she summoned the captains of all her ships and placed in their care many gems, much gold and silver, and also six hundred beautiful boys and girls, all of the same size and proportions, and dressed alike. These she sent as gifts to king Solomon with this message:

And thus speaks the queen of Sheba: It is said in our country, that the span of a seven years' journey lies between my country and the land of Israel; but in order that I may hear your great wisdom from your own lips, I am starting out immediately on a long journey to Jerusalem. Be assured I will neither rest nor spare any effort to make the seven years' journey in only three years, for so great is my eagerness to see you!

And when the queen of Sheba arrived in Jerusalem, king Solomon sent his bosom friend Benaiah son of Jehoiada (Yehudah), to meet her outside the city limits. As she approached the Holy City, reclining in her couch (litter), she saw at a distance a wondrous rose growing at the edge of a lake. But when she came near, the rose was changed into a flashing star; the closer she came, the more dazzling was its light; she was enchanted with its radiance. When she reached a little ways along the lake's bank, she saw amidst a crowd of nobles dressed in magnificent raiment, a man of arresting beauty. So she said to her servants, I will alight from my litter and prostrate myself in homage, because my eyes are now gazing upon the face of Solomon, king of Israel. As she alighted, followed by her attendants, Benaiah ben Yehuda hastened to her and asked, Why have you left your litter, O queen of Sheba? And she answered, To pay homage to you, O king Solomon. And Benaiah said, Return to your litter, O queen, I am not the king Solomon, only one of his servants. At this the queen turned to her attendants, and nobles who accompanied her, and said, Before we may see the lion in his glory, he wishes us first to admire his lair, Jerusalem. Before we may have the joy of beholding the king in all his splendor, he has made us look upon one of his servants, the like of whose beauty I have never seen. Benaiah then hastened to the king to inform him of the arrival of the queen of Sheba. Thereupon, Solomon entered his crystal palace and seated himself upon his throne. When the queen entered and saw him seated on his wondrous throne, appearance as dazzling as the sun, it appeared to her as though he was floating in water. So, in order not to wet her garment, she lifted up the hem of her skirt, and came nearer. When the king saw her, he welcomed her and praised her beauty. Then he seated her on a throne at his right hand, which he had built for his mother Bath-sheba.

I will ask you some riddles, and if you answer them, I will then know that it is true when people call you wise, said the queen. And Solomon replied, Tell me your riddles. And the queen of Sheba asked, What water does not fall from heaven, nor does it gush from stones and the clefts of the rocks? Sometimes it is sweeter than honey, and at other times more bitter than gall, even though it has the same source. And Solomon answered, The tear comes neither from heaven nor from the clefts of the rock. It tastes sweet when man weeps for joy; and bitter when he weeps in sorrow. The queen of Sheba asked him another riddle: My loving mother gave me two gifts. One is set upon a beautifully rounded hole, the other can cut glass; the first is found in the sea, the second in the depths of the earth. And the king replied, The first gift is the ring with the pearl on your finger — the second is the pendant of diamond at your throat. Then she said, What is that which you bury before it is dead, and the more it lies and rots, the stronger it gets, and more life issues from it? And Solomon answered, You bury living seeds in earth, and they lie there and rot, the stronger they get and more life issues from them, and they shoot forth golden heads of wheat. Then said the queen of Sheba, Tell me O king, what is it, which when it descends from heaven is pure and white, but afterwards becomes sullied? In time it returns to heaven in the form of clouds, and again becomes as pure as it first was. And Solomon answered: What can be whiter than snow when it descends from heaven and which turns into mud on the highway? The clouds gave birth to it and sent it down upon the earth; and when it thaws in the sun, it goes back again from whence it came.

Now I will put your wisdom to the supreme test, the queen of Sheba said unto Solomon; and she ordered that the six hundred boys and girls which she had presented as gifts to the king be brought into their presence. Tell me, O wise king, which are the boys and which are the girls. And the king issued a command to assemble them; it was very difficult to distinguish between them, for they were all dressed alike, and were of the same height, and were made to appear exactly the same. The king said to his servants, Place before each a basin of water, and ask them to wash their hands and faces, but do not give them any towels. And so it was done, and the six hundred boys and girls began to wash, and when they were through, and found that there were no towels, those who were girls dried their hands and faces with the hems of their skirts; but those who were boys, not knowing what to do, remained standing uncomfortably with wet hands and faces. Afterwards the king ordered great baskets of nuts, apples, and pomegranates be brought. With his own hands he distributed them to the children. Those that put up their little skirts in which to gather the fruit, the king placed at his right hand; and those who held the fruit in their hands, he placed on his left. He then said to the queen, Those on my right are girls; and those on my left, boys. Filled with amazement, the queen of Sheba said to her seers and magicians, saying, By means of your magic you were able to make these six hundred boys and girls look alike; I ask you then, is what the king has done true or false? True, cried the seers and magicians with one voice, and they said, He is as wise as an angel of God!

So the queen of Sheba came to prove Solomon with hard questions and riddles. And she came with a great train, with camels laden with spices, very much gold and precious stones. And she communed with Solomon all that was in her heart; there was not a thing hid from the king, which he told her not. And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he had built; and the meat of his table, the courtesy of his servants and ministers, and their fancy apparel, and all the splendor, there was no more spirit left in her. And she said to the king, It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and thy wisdom. But I believed it not, until I came, and beheld with mine own eyes. Behold, the half was not told me; thy wisdom and prosperity exceed the fame which I heard. Happy are thy men; happy are these thy servants, that stand continually before thee, and hear thy wisdom. Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighteth in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel for ever; therefore made he the king, to do judgement and justice. And she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold, a great store of spices, precious stones, plus other riches of her country.

And it came to pass that Solomon took the queen of Sheba unto his wife. Once they rode together upon horseback outside Jerusalem. When they came near mount Lebanon, they dismounted and sat down on the grass to rest. And there was a woman singing out yonder in her farm dwelling; so the queen said unto Solomon, Do you hear a woman singing? but I do not understand her words. And Solomon replied, This is a farmer's wife; and she sings that her husband Abiezer works in the field, that her son Ahiezer is grazing his flock in the pasture, and she herself is doing the housework. She sings that although so humble, she is happier than I, Solomon king of Israel, is in his palace. Then cried the queen enchanted, What a good woman! Just see how unjust you were when you wrote that among a thousand men one may find one who is righteous, but that among all women you have found not even one who is virtuous. The king replied, I still hold to that opinion. To this the queen replied, I will not believe you, until you have proven this woman. And king Solomon said, Very well, let us now go to the house where this virtuous woman lives, and we will test her. So they went to the house of Abiezer and stood before the door. When the farmer's wife saw them, she bowed low and invited them to enter her lowly home. Then she placed before them a pitcher of cold water, milk, butter and sweet cakes. She begged them to eat, and ate herself. And the queen of Sheba said to the king, See, I have found a virtuous woman, but where would you find a virtuous man among a thousand?

King Solomon laughed, and said, Let us not keep this woman from her housework, for soon her husband and son will return tired and hungry from their work in the fields, and she must prepare their noonday meal. As they left the house Solomon said unto his bride the queen, saying, As you wish me to test this woman's virtue, I will do so, although I have no desire to disturb the tranquil life of this family. Then the king went back to his horse and returned carrying in his hand a little casket. He unlocked it and asked the queen to look inside. She saw in it a little white mouse and a tiny dish of seeds. The king then locked the casket, and said, With this I will test the virtue of this woman. If she withstands the temptation I am placing before her, then I will admit that I am in error. At that the king and the queen returned to the farmhouse, where they met Abiezer and his son. The farmer immediately recognized the king, because he had seen him on several occasions when he had gone to Jerusalem on pilgrimages; and he made obeisance to the king. Then the king said unto the wife of Abiezer, I am leaving this little casket with you for three days. Place it in that corner there, and under no circumstances must you move or open it. If you do so as I bid you, I will give you many fine gifts; but if you disobey me, you and your husband and your son will have to pay with your lives.

The king then gave the key of the box to Abiezer. He blessed him, his wife and his son, and returned to Jerusalem with the queen. Now, when the farmer and his family were eating their evening meal, the farmer's wife said to her husband, The Lord only knows what's inside this little box! Maybe the king has filled it with gems, it also might be that it is an enchanted box. And Abiezer replied, Better let us not think or speculate about this box; let it rest there in the corner until the king comes back for it in three days. Abiezer then went to bed, and early morning he arose for his daily labors. When he returned home for the noon meal, his wife placed food before him, but she herself would not touch any of it. When he asked her if she was ill or had received evil tidings from the home of her father, she answered, I have not slept all night long, dear husband, thinking about that little box. Even when I dozed off for a little while, I had nightmares. Oh, if I only knew what is inside of that locked box! And Abiezer said angrily, Stop talking about that box! Remember what the king said, and don't trifle with our lives! Then he returned to his work. When he came home in the evening, he found his wife in bed groaning and moaning. Then cried Abiezer, What aileth thee woman? And she replied, Let me be! Now I see that you think more of the little box than of me. Abiezer tried to comfort and soothe her, but to no avail. She persisted, saying, If you love me truly and wish me to get well, then let us both look through the keyhole of the box. I must confess that while you were at work, I wished to get near the box, but a terrible fright came over me; I have no doubt that the king has hidden a little demon inside. His wife vexed Abiezer so long with her nagging that finally he consented to give in to her, saying, Very well. Get out of bed and come with me to the box, but remember not to touch it by thine hands! And his wife answered, Have not anxiety on that score, dear husband, even if I were to touch it, no harm will come out of it. What king Solomon meant was that we should not move it from the corner. He never said anything about not touching it. And so she looked through the keyhole of the box, but she saw nothing; thereupon she was filled with disappointment, and said bitterly, The king has concealed his secret only too well; we will never know what's inside that box unless we open it. Hearing these words Abiezer began to tremble, and cried out in fright, What a terrible thought, God forbid! Do not speak in such a manner about opening that box, unless thou wish to forfeit our lives! Then he led her back to her bed, saying, You must rest now and try to calm yourself. In the morning you will get up feeling better. You'll begin doing your housework again and will forget about that box. Then they went to bed. At dawn Abiezer awoke; he made his ablutions, and said his morning prayers. Afterwards, he went to labor in the fields.

Now he had been at work only a short while when his son Ahiezer came running toward him, and cried, Quick father, come home! Mother is near death, and she wants to see you before she dies! When Abiezer heard this, he said, Woe is me! All these years I have lived in peace and contentment, then the king had to come and bring this misfortune upon us! Abiezer hurried home and found his wife in bed. He said to her, Take heart, my wife, and arise! But she answered, It is already two days that I have taken neither food nor drink, and my body is altogether weakened. I had a frightful dream last night. I shiver and quake even now when I think of it. In my dream I saw many demons and devils float out of this box until they filled the house. They danced and whirled about me, raised a great lamentation, and gnashed their teeth with rage. One devil sprang upon my bed and said to me: If you do not open that box and liberate us, we will again come tomorrow night and choke you. We will tear you limb from limb; we will burn you, grind you to dust, and cast you to all the seven winds! And when the devil finished speaking, he spat, and disappeared. I awoke trembling with fright. I called you but you did not answer. Abiezer's wife continued to weep, and said, Soon the devils will come and choke me. Therefore, I've sent for you, that you may prepare my grave. Abiezer reproached her, saying, Why do you tell me your foolish dreams? Don't you know that the dreams are false; if there really were demons and devils in the box, as you say, then it woudn't be you but me that they would try to frighten, because the key to the box is in my possession.

And when Abiezer's wife saw that he was determined not to open the box, she got out of bed, and fell weeping at his feet, but could explain no more. Then she pleaded with her husband, saying, Do me only one small favor. Give me the key and I will open the box only the tiniest bit; I will peep into it for just one instant, then I will close it quickly, and nobody will ever know about it. Again Abiezer cried, Dear wife, how drawn and pinched thy face looks! Come and eat, and you will feel better and calmer. Then you will be able to recall the warning of the king, concerning this box. Abiezer then helped her out of bed. He placed food before her, and urged her to eat. She ate, but no sooner had she finished, when again she began to wail, saying, O Abiezer, my loving husband, have pity on me! The king does not have to know anything about this. I will be very careful, and I swear that I will take only one little peep. And so she carried on until evening, until Abiezer could not longer endure her nagging. So he arose and said, Very well, we will open the box. But remember — for only one instant, just as you promised. So Abiezer inserted the key, and no sooner did he turn it in the lock, than the box sprang open and the little white mouse that was inside jumped out and disappeared.

Abiezer and his wife were frozen with terror. She rent her garments, and cried bitterly, for she had become guilty of disobedience, and had failed the test. And she said unto her husband, It is you Abiezer who will be the cause of our death. Had you been careful, the mouse would have not jumped out. How many times did I have to tell you to open the lid just the tiniest bit, and you had to go and open it altogether! It was all your fault. Had you only been a real man and had the will power, you would not have allowed yourself to be governed by a woman, and we would have avoided this misfortune. But Abiezer replied bitterly, Of what use now are lamentations and tears! We cannot undo our mistake that way. Better let us pray the Almighty to aid us!

On the third day, as Abiezer and his wife sat grieving, king Solomon and the queen of Sheba his wife arrived. The guilty woman fell at the feet of the king and cried. By your life, O my lord the king, know that it was I who opened the box! Have mercy and spare my life! Why did you disobey me, Abiezer, asked the king sternly. And Abiezer answered, It is I who is the guilty one, O king, because I allowed my wife to wheedle me into doing such a thing. Now I beseech you, have mercy on my wife, and let her live. If you wish to punish us, it is me that you should kill! And Solomon answered, Peace be to you both, my children! Be assured I wish you no harm; I only wished to prove (test) you. Then the queen of Sheba asked Abiezer to tell her all that had happened; and when Abiezer had finished his account of exactly what happened, the queen understood. And king Solomon exclaimed, One virtuous man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found!

Soon after this she departed to her homeland in Abyssinia, and then returned again to Jerusalem, to deliver her son at the Holy Land. So Solomon's son Menilek was born, and raised in the royal court, among the other princes of the royal household; and he was Solomon's favorite son. These are the Falashas or the Black Jews of Abyssinia; most of them are the descendants of the royal household of the queen of Sheba who later migrated with many of her own people, and others of Solomon's court, to their ancient land of the Gods, or the land of Punt; which included Yemen and Ethiopia. Others came to this land at the time of Moses, who had Ethiopian wives also. The descendants of these people prevail even in our day; a photograph of this faithful remnant, which preserves even in our generation the ancient culture and traditions, is shown below.

A remnant of the descendants of Solomon's court;
and some also of Moses, the Lawgiver.

(This photograph was taken in 1951, forty years ago.)

And it came to pass that Solomon became haughty and proud, when he saw the folly of delusion and false belief; and gradually descended to the regions of sensuality and death. And he lusted after many women, but never could he make one happy or content; so they despised him in their hearts. He had seven hundred wives and princesses in his harem, and three hundred concubines. In his royal palace dwelt the daughter of Pharaoh, and women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonians, and Hittites; the nations which were abominations to the Lord God of Israel.

So king Solomon ruled over all animals, and every creature upon the earth, over the sons of men, beasts and the birds; he had dominion over every earthly being. It is also written that God gave Solomon a green silk mantle to sit upon; interwoven with fine gold, and embroidered with scenes of all kinds; its length was sixty miles, and its breadth was sixty miles. And Solomon had four princes to do his bidding: the first prince was of the sons of men, his name was Asaf son of Berachiah; the second was of the demons, his name was Ramirat; the third of the beasts, he was the Lion; and the fourth of the birds, he was the Eagle. And when Solomon wished to ride the wind, he was able to do so. Sometimes he would take his morning meal in Damascus, and of the evening in Media.

Now one day Solomon was boasting, saying, Behold there is none like me in the world, for the Holy One hath given me wisdom and understanding, knowledge and discernment; and he hath made me ruler over all his creatures. At that moment the wind withdrew from him, and there fell from off the mantle forty thousand men. When Solomon saw this, he gave out a cry to the wind, saying, Return, O wind, and be tranquil. The wind answered, Return thou, O Solomon, to thy God, and boast not thyself; then will I return unto thee. In that hour Solomon was taken by the words of the wind. Another day while he was thus travelling, he passed over a valley in which dwelt the ants; and he heard the voice of a black ant, saying to her companions, Enter ye into your dwellings, lest ye be crushed by the hosts of king Solomon. When Solomon heard the voice of the ant, he was angry, and he said to the wind, Descend to the earth; and the wind descended. Then he sent after the ants, and said to them, Which of you was it that said, Enter ye into your houses, lest the armies of Solomon crush you? The ant that had spoken answered, It was I who said this to them. The king said to the ant, Why didst thou speak thus? She answered, Because I feared that they would go out to look upon the armies, and while thus doing so, cease from the praise and worship of the Holy One, and that the Almighty's anger would be kindled against us, and he destroy us. Then he said unto the ant, Why amongst all the ants didst thou alone speak? She answered, because I am the queen over them. He said to her, What is thy name? And she answered Machshamah.

And when the king said to her, I wish to ask thee a question, she replied, It is not fitting that the one who asks should be high, and the one who is asked should be below. So he lifted her up to the ground; and she said, It is not fitting that the one who asks should be seated on a throne, and the one who is asked on the ground; take me into thine hand and bring me face to face with thee, and I will answer, all that thou wishest to know. Solomon took her into his hand, so that she was before his face, and said unto her, Is there in the world greater than I? She said to him, Yes. He said, Who is it? She answered, It is I! Then Solomon said to her, How art thou greater than I? She said, If I were not greater than thou art, the Holy One would not have sent thee to me to take me into thy hand. When Solomon heard the words of the ant, he was very wroth; he cast her down to the ground, and said, Ant, thou knowest not who I am; I am Solomon, son of David the king, peace be unto him. She said to him, Consider that thou art sprung from a vile clot, and cease from boasting. In that hour Solomon fell on his face, and was ashamed and grieved at the words of the ant. He then said to the wind, Lift up the mantle and let us go. Then the wind obeyed. As the wind lifted him up, the ant said unto Solomon, Go, but forget not the Lord, nor boast thyself exceedingly.

Now, although Solomon ruled over all creatures upon earth, and beneath it, over the demons, the devils, and spirits of the netherworld; in the eyes of God he was only a wretched sinner and braggart, who deserved punishments for his misdeeds. Solomon violated the laws of God, by taking to himself a thousand wives, of the people that were cursed of God; by raising horses without number, and ruling by compulsion rather than persuasion; and by making treasures of gold and precious gems more valuable than the treasures of the Spirit.

One day king Solomon took captive Ashmodai, king of all the demons; he had him bound in iron chains so that he was powerless to do him harm. Whereupon Ashmodai said to king Solomon, I will confide to you a great secret about women, if you will lend me your magic ring. So Solomon trusted him, and gave him his ring upon which was engraved the Ineffable Name of God. But no sooner did Ashmodai have the ring in his hand, than he threw it into the Red Sea.

Deprived of his ring, Solomon lost all his supernatural powers. Then Ashmodai cast him away to a distant land, four hundred miles from Jerusalem, outside the boundaries of his kingdom. When he looked about him, he found that he was in a desert; every which way he turned he saw the endless sea of sand and the sky overhead. Now he understood what Ashmodai had done to him. Then the king taking courage arose, and began to look for a place to hide from the beasts of prey prowling round about him. He sought in vain. The sun beat down upon him fiercely, that he grew parched with thirst, then the pangs of hunger took over. After a while he saw a small oasis in the distance, where some shepherds were grazing their flocks. They took pity on him, and gave him food and drink. After finishing his meal, he asked them, How far is it to Jerusalem? And the shepherds exclaimed, Jerusalem! In what country is Jerusalem? We have never heard of such a city. King Solomon thought unto himself. These are young shepherds, therefore they haven't heard of Jerusalem; I will ask their elders; no doubt they will be able to give me the answer. It was toward the evening that Solomon met an old man returning from the fields, hobbling along on his stick. He greeted him reverently, and asked, Tell me, my good man, how far is it to Jerusalem, the famous capital of king Solomon, son of David? The old man answered, Jerusalem? I never heard of such a city. This is the first time I ever heard the name of such a king. King Solomon fell into a deep melancholy, when he heard the old man's words; and began to reproach himself bitterly, saying, What a vain fool I have been! All along I have deceived myself with the notion that my name was great among all peoples of the earth. Only now I see that it was only empty conceit that made me believe that. The next morning Solomon entered a nearby village, in ragged clothes and in a pitiful condition. He became distressed as the passersby looked upon him pitifully. Then he found a house in which lived a Jew and his wife; and Solomon said unto them, Don't be deceived by my appearance, my good friends! I may be barefoot and in rags, but know that I am Solomon, son of David, king of Jerusalem. I met with misfortune, and, as you see, I now find myself cast away, a stranger in a foreign land. Have pity on me then, and give me a crust of bread, for I am hungry! Hearing these words, the Jew and his wife burst into laughter. Oh you poor lunatic, do you think we don't know that our king Solomon lives in Jerusalem? Then Solomon began to swear by all things holy that he was speaking the truth. So they answered him mockingly, saying, We certainly are sorry that you have gone out of your mind, you poor unfortunate man! When Solomon heard these words, he fell silent. The woman gave him food, and he ate; and he thanked the woman, and went away without thanking the man. After much wandering, weary and footsore, king Solomon came to a large city. Here meeting with a man in rich garb on the street, he said to him, I beg you — take pity on me! Give me shoes, for my feet are bruised; give me clothing, for I am naked. When I return to Jerusalem, the capital of my kingdom, I will repay you a hundredfold. And the man answered, Who are you? And Solomon said, I am Solomon, the son of David and king of Jerusalem. The rich man shook with laughter and replied with a grin of mockery, If you really are Solomon, the wisest of all men, why did you leave your royal throne to wander about as a beggar in a foreign land? Is that a wise thing to do, O wisest of mortals?

Solomon then told the rich man all that had happened to him. The man listened attentively, and was filled with wonder and awe. Finally he took pity on him, and said to his wife, Give this man new clothes and shoes. Know that he is king Solomon of Jerusalem! Her husband's words filled the woman with amazement; and she cried, O you fool, do you have to believe everything you are told? But her husband called her aside, and told her everything which had befallen king Solomon. And when she was convinced that it may have been Solomon the wise king of Israel, she recalled something and became exceedingly angry. Without a word, she picked up a stick and began to beat upon Solomon, with much verbal abuse. And Solomon cried out, What is it woman? What harm have I done to thee that thou treatest me so? And the woman shaking him violently said, Why did you say that among a thousand men you found one virtuous one, but none among women? Calm yourself, I beg you, and don't be angry with me. If you will ponder well upon the matter, you will surely understand that I did not mean to defame women, but to do them good. And the woman remained angry, saying, How dare you say that your intention was to do them good, when you wrote about them with such contempt? King Solomon answered, Had I written otherwise, that among a thousand women one could find a virtuous one, it would have been a great calamity for all women. For the good and clever would have sought to become virtuous like unto that one, and only the dung and filth of the women would remain for the men of the world. And all men would have divorced their wives, saying, Look, the woman God gave me is wicked, seeing the difference betwen the virtuous and the wicked; the man would thus look upon all the faults of his woman, saying, She is an unbearable nag, let me divorce her and look for another; who knows, God in his goodness might bless me with a woman about whom Solomon had said to be the one virtuous among a thousand! Therefore, my dear woman, because I said that there was not one good woman to be found, now each man saith, What's the use of divorcing my wife, and taking another, since there is not one good and righteous woman in the whole lot! At this answer the woman's anger left her, and she said, May God in His mercy restore you to the throne of David, O wise and good king!

Thus the royal sage, known as Solomon (Shlomoh, or Jedidiah) became vainglorious, and forsook the commandments and statutes of the Lord God of Israel altogether. Therefore the Lord chastized him. First he was deprived of his dominion over the inhabitants of the upper world, the angels; then he was deprived of his dominion over the demons, devils, and spirits of the netherworld; then of the creatures of the earth; and lastly, over Israel. At the end he even lost his bed, and all that was left to him was a beggar's staff. And God appointed Ashmodai to be the avenging angel to drive Solomon from his throne, and to put the crown of Israel upon his own head. But after repenting of his misdeeds, and with a contrite heart Solomon begged the Lord's forgiveness, and he was forgiven. But Solomon was no longer useful to Israel, for he was old, and having experienced the follies of passion, he became like salt which hast lost its savor. And it came to pass that when Solomon's heart was turned away altogether from the Lord God of Israel, his wives led him to worship Ashtoreth the Goddess of the Zidonians, and Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites; and he built an altar unto Chemosh the abomination of the Moabites, upon the hill in the Holy City; and also unto Molech the abomination of the Ammonites. Likewise did he for all his wives, which burnt incense and sacrificed unto the false gods of abominations.

And the Lord was angry with Solomon, because his heart was no longer with the Holy One of Israel; who had appeared unto him twice, and commanded him concerning the selfsame thing; that he should not go a whoring after the gods of the world, even the false gods of the cursed nations. Wherefore, the Lord said unto Solomon, Forasmuch as this is done of thee, and thou hast not kept my covenant and my statutes which I have commanded thee, I will surely rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant. But in thy days I will not do it for David thy father's sake; but I will rend it from the hand of thy son. Notwithstanding I will not rend away all the kingdom; but will give one tribe to thy son, for the sake of David my servant, and for the sake of Jerusalem, my chosen city.

And the Lord stirred up an adversary unto Solomon, Hadad the Edomite; he was of David's seed in Edom, when David was in Edom, and Joab the captain of the host was gone up to bury the slain, after he had smitten every male in Edom. Joab remained in the land for six months with all Israel, until no male Edomite remained alive. It was during this time that Hadad, being yet a little child, fled to Egypt with certain Edomites of his father's household with him. So Hadad and his servants arose out of Midian, and came to Paran. And they took men with them from Paran, and came to Egypt, unto Pharaoh king of Egypt. And he gave them an house to dwell in, appointed victuals, and conferred upon them land to settle and cultivate. And Hadad found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, so he gave him to wife the sister of his own wife, the sister of Tahpenes the queen. And the sister of Tahpenes bare him Genubath his son, whom she weaned in Pharaoh's household, among the sons of Pharaoh. And when Hadad heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab the captain of the host was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, Let me depart, that I may go to mine own country. Then Pharaoh said unto him, But what hast thou lacked with me, that, behold, thou seekest to go to thine own country? And he answered, Nothing, howbeit let me go in any wise.

And God stirred up another adversary against Solomon, Rezon the son of Eliadah, who fled from his lord Hadadezer king of Zobah; and gathered men unto him, and became captain over a marauder's band, when David slew them in Zobah. So they went to Damascus, and dwelt therein as a band of thieves and robbers. He remained an adversary to Israel all the remaining days of Solomon, as did Hadad. And God also stirred Solomon a third adversary, Jeroboam the son of Nebat, an Ephrathite of Zereda, Solomon's servant; whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow woman. Jeroboam was a mighty man of valor; and when Solomon saw that the young man was industrious, he made him ruler over all the charge of the house of Joseph. And it came to pass that when Jeroboam was out of Jerusalem, the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite found him in the way; and when he met Jeroboam in the field, Ahijah the prophet rent his new garment into twelve pieces; and he said to Jeroboam, Take thee ten pieces; for thus saith the Lord God of Israel: Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee. But he shall have one tribe for his servant David's sake, for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which has been chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. Because they have forsaken me, and have worshipped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the Ammonites; nor do they keep my commandments or judgements or statutes. And thus saith the lord, I will take the kingdom out of the hands of Solomon's son, and will give unto thee, even ten tribes. And unto his son will I give one tribe. And I will take thee, and thou shalt reign according to all thy soul desireth; and thou shalt be king over Israel. And it shall be, if thou wilt hearken unto all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do that which is right in my sight, to keep my commandments, and statutes and judgements, as David my servant did; that I will be with thee, and build thee a sure house, as I built for David, and will give Israel unto thee. And for this, I will afflict the seed of David, but not ever.

And when Solomon heard, he sought to kill Jeroboam. In fear Jeroboam fled unto Shishak king of Egypt; and remained in Egypt until the death of Solomon. Thus Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years. And before his death, Solomon sent away all the people that came to Jerusalem with the queen of Sheba; the six hundred children and their descendants, Abyssinian (Ethiopian) sages and scholars; who remained in Jerusalem for nearly fifteen years. Also his son Menilek, with other princes of Solomon's court, left Jerusalem to return to his homeland. But, for Solomon knew of the future of Jerusalem and the temple, and the division of the nation of Israel, he took out the two Tables of Stone which were given to Israel under the hand of Moses, from the Ark of the Covenant, and in their stead placed a new copy of the Tables of the Law in the coffin. And he sent away the original to Abyssinia; and it is written that they were carried to Axum in Abyssinia, the land of Habash, along with Solomon's son by the queen of Sheba, namely, Menilek Ibn Al-Hakim.

Thus ended the reigns of David son of Jesse, and his son Solomon, which lasted eighty years (from 1077 B.C. to 997 B.C.). And Solomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David; and Rehoboam, Solomon's son, reigned in his stead. Now the psalms of David, and the proverbs of Solomon are re-written in the English language, and begin on the next page.

Collection of Psalms (Sacred Songs or Prayers)

The collection of one hundred and fifty psalms, sacred songs, prayers or utterances, is attributed to the writership of Adam, Enoch, Melchizedek, Abraham, Moses, the house of Asaph, Ethan and Heman the Ezrahites, and others; most were, however, written by David and for him. The psalms were written over a period of about a thousand years; from the time of Moses (c. 1593 - 1473 B.C.) until the return of the Jews from Babylonian captivity with Ezra, circa 468 B.C. These sacred utterances are a part of God's inspired word, which reveal life's joys, sorrows, fears, and disappointments; and teach that happiness stems from avoiding the wicked, and finding delight in God's law; that man should wait upon God, and pray unto Him for salvation and deliverance or release, albeit he must first learn to rely upon his own true Self. The psalms also bring forth God's purposes, His will, and His mind into focus; and teach that even the kings, prophets and sages of all ages must rely solely upon the grace and mercy of the Lord; that the only Way to find release from the inevitable pain and suffering which ariseth from the consequence of sins and transgressions is to win the battle between the lower self and the Higher Self or the Soul of man, and to put one's trust in God; for in the Soul of man dwelleth the Lord. The psalms also reflect the cry of the lower or natural self of man, which is striving to learn and understand the truths and lights of the Soul, or the Higher Self.

PSALM 1

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful; but findeth delight in the law of the Lord; and in His law doth he meditate day and night. Such an one shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth fruit in its season, and withereth not, neither its leaves nor roots; and whatsoever he doeth, in it he prospereth.

The ungodly are not so, but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgement, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous; for the Lord knoweth the way of righteousness, but the way of the ungodly leadeth them to death and suffering.

PSALM 2

Why do the heathen rage, and people imagine a vain thing? And the kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the Lord and his anointed, saying: Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us! But He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh and have them in derision. Then the Lord shall speak unto them in His wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure, saying: Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. And the Lord hath declared a decree, and said unto me: Thou art my Son, this day I have begotten thee; ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession; thou shalt break them with a rod of iron, and shall dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

Be wise now therefore, O ye kings, and be instructed O ye judges of the earth. Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice in trembling. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the Way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all that put their trust in him.

PSALM 3

(A psalm of David, when he fled from Absalom his son.)

Lord, how are they increased that trouble me! Many are they that rise up against me. Many there be which say of my soul, There is no help for him in God. Selah. But thou, O Lord, art a shield for me; my glory, and the lifter up of mine head.

I cried unto the Lord with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy hill. Selah. I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord sustained me. I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people, that have set themselves against me round about. Arise, O Lord; save me, O my God: for thou hast smitten all mine enemies upon the cheek bone; thou hast broken the teeth of the ungodly. Salvation belongeth unto the Lord: thy blessing is upon thy people. Selah.

PSALM 4

(To the chief musician on Neginoth [stringed instrument]; a psalm of David.)

Hear me when I call, O God of my righteousness; thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress; have mercy upon me, and hear my prayer. O ye sons of men, how long will ye turn my glory into shame? How long will ye love vanity, and seek after leasing? Selah. But know that the Lord hath set apart him that is godly for himself; the Lord will hear when I call unto him. Stand in awe, and sin not; commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still. Selah. Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the Lord. There be many that say, Who will shew us any good? Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased. I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety.

PSALM 5

(To the chief musician upon Nehiloth [wind instrument]; a psalm of David.)

Give ear to my words, O Lord, consider my meditation. Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God; for unto thee will I pray. My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee and will look up. For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness; neither shall evil dwell with thee. The foolish shall not stand in thy sight; thou hatest all workers of iniquity. Thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing; the Lord will abhor the bloody and deceitful man. But as for me, I will come into thy house in the multitude of thy mercy; and in thy fear will I worship toward thy holy temple (built by Abraham). Lead me, O Lord, in thy righteousness because of mine enemies; make thy way straight before my face. For there is no faithfulness in their mouth; their inward part is very wickedness; their throat is an open sepulchre; they flatter with their tongue. Destroy thou them, O God; let them fall by their own counsels; cast them out in the multitude of their transgressions; for they have rebelled against thee. But let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice; let them ever shout for joy, because thou defendest them; let them also that love thy name be joyful in thee. For thou, Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favour wilt thou compass him as with a shield.

PSALM 6

(To the chief musician on Neginoth [stringed instrument] upon Sheminith [the lower octave or the eighth key]; a psalm of David.)

O Lord, rebuke me not in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure. Have mercy upon me, O Lord; for I am weak; O Lord, heal me; for my bones are vexed. My soul is also sore vexed: but thou, O Lord, how long? Return, O Lord, deliver my soul; oh save me for thy mercies' sake. For in death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks? I am weary with my groaning; all the night make I my bed to swim; I water my couch with my tears. Mine eye is consumed because of grief; it waxeth old because of all mine enemies. Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity; for the Lord hath heard the voice of my weeping. The Lord hath heard my supplication; the Lord will receive my prayer. Let all mine enemies be ashamed and sore vexed; let them return and be ashamed suddenly.

PSALM 7

(Shiggaion of David, which he sang unto the Lord, concerning the words of Cush the Benjamite.)

O Lord my God, in thee do I put my trust; save me from all them that persecute me, and deliver me; lest the enemy tear my soul like a lion, rending it in pieces, while there is none to deliver. O Lord my God, if I have done this; if there be iniquity in my hands; if I have rewarded evil unto him that was at peace with me; (yea, I have delivered him that without cause is mine enemy) let the enemy persecute my soul, and take it; yea, let him tread down my life upon the earth, and lay mine honour in the dust. Selah.

Arise, O Lord, in thine anger, lift up thyself because of the rage of mine enemies; and awake for me to the judgment that thou hast commanded. So shall the congregation of the people compass thee about; for their sakes therefore return thou on high. The Lord shall judge the people; judge me, O Lord, according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity that is in me. Oh let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just; for the righteous God trieth the hearts and reins. My defence is of God, which saveth the upright in heart. God judgeth the righteous, and God is angry with the wicked every day. If the enemy turn not, he will whet his sword; he hath bent his bow, and made it ready; he hath also prepared for him the instruments of death; he ordaineth his arrows against the persecutors. Behold, the enemy travaileth with iniquity, and hath conceived mischief, and brought forth falsehood; he made a pit, and digged it, and is fallen into the ditch which he made; his mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate.

I will praise the Lord according to his righteousness; and will sing praise to the name of the Lord most high.

PSALM 8

(To the chief musician upon Gittith [musical instruments of Gath]; a psalm of David.)

O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hast set his glory above the heavens. Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength because of thine enemies, that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger. When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him; and the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet; all sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field; the fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas. O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!

PSALM 9

(To the chief musician upon Muth-labben; a psalm of David.)

I will praise thee, O Lord, with my whole heart; I will shew forth all thy marvellous works; I will be glad and rejoice in thee; I will sing praise to thy name, O thou most High.

When mine enemies are turned back, they shall fall and perish at thy presence. For thou hast maintained my right and my cause; thou satest in the throne judging right. Thou hast rebuked the heathen, thou hast destroyed the wicked, thou hast put out their name for ever and ever. O thou enemy, destructions are come to a perpetual end, and thou hast destroyed cities; their memorial is perished with them. But the Lord shall endure forever; he hath prepared his throne for judgment; and he shall judge the world in righteousness; he shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness. The Lord also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble. And they that know thy name will put their trust in thee; for thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek thee. Sing praises to the Lord, which dwelleth in Zion; declare among the people his doings. When he remembereth inquisition for blood, he remembereth them; he forgetteth not the cry of the humble.

Have mercy upon me, O Lord; consider my trouble which I suffer of them that hate me. Thou that liftest me up from the gates of death; that I may shew forth all thy praise in the gates of the daughter of Zion; I will rejoice in thy salvation. The heathen are sunk down in the pit which they made, in the net which they hid is their own foot taken. The Lord is known by the judgment which he executeth; the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands. Higgaion. Selah. The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God. For the needy shall not alway be forgotten, the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever.

Arise, O Lord; let not man prevail; let the heathen be judged in thy sight. Put them in fear, O Lord, that the nations may know themselves to be but men. Selah.

PSALM 10

Why standest thou afar off, O Lord? Why hidest thou thyself in times of trouble? The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor; let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined. For the wicked boasteth of his heart's desire, and blesseth the covetous, whom the Lord abhorreth. The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God; God is not in all his thoughts; his ways are always grievous. Thy judgments are far above out of the sight of the wicked; as for all his enemies, he puffeth at them. He hath said in his heart, I shall not be moved; for I shall never be in adversity; his mouth is full of cursing and deceit and fraud; under his tongue is mischief and vanity. He sitteth in the lurking places of the villages; in the secret places doth he murder the innocent; his eyes are privily set against the poor. He lieth in wait secretly as a lion in his den, he lieth in wait to catch the poor; he doth catch the poor, when he draweth him into his net. He croucheth, and lowereth himself, that the poor may fall by his strong ones. He hath said in his heart: God hath forgotten; he hideth his face; he will never see it.

Arise, O Lord, O God, lift up thine hand; forget not the humble. Wherefore doth the wicked contemn God, saying in his heart: Thou wilt not require it; thou hast seen it; for thou beholdest mischief and spite, to requite it with thy hand. The poor committeth himself unto thee; thou art the helper of the fatherless; break thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man; seek out his wickedness till thou find none; the Lord is King for ever and ever; the heathen are perished out of his land. Lord, thou hast heard the desire of the humble; thou wilt prepare their heart, thou wilt cause thine ear to hear; to judge the fatherless and the oppressed, that the man of the earth may no more oppress.

PSALM 11

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

In the Lord put I my trust: how say ye to my soul, Flee as a bird to your mountain? For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string, that they may privily shoot at the upright in heart. If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do? The Lord is in his holy temple, the Lord's throne is in heaven; his eyes behold, his eyelids try the children of men. The Lord trieth the righteous; but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth. Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, and an horrible tempest; this shall be the portion of their cup. For the righteous Lord loveth righteousness; his countenance doth behold the upright.

PSALM 12

(To the chief musician upon Sheminith [the eighth key, or the lower octave]; a psalm of David.)

Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men. They speak vanity every one with his neighbour; with flattering lips and with a double heart do they speak. The Lord shall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh proud things, saying: With our tongue will we prevail; our lips are our own; who is lord over us? For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the Lord; I will set him in safety from him that puffeth at him. The words of the Lord are pure words; as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. Thou shalt keep them, O Lord, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever. The wicked walk on every side, when the vilest men are exalted.

PSALM 13

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord? For ever? How long wilt thou hide thy face from me? How long shall I take counsel in my soul, having sorrow in my heart daily? How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me? Consider and hear me, O Lord my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death; lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him; and those that trouble me rejoice when I am moved. But I have trusted in thy mercy; my heart shall rejoice in thy salvation. I will sing unto the Lord, because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

PSALM 14

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good. The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledge? who eat up my people as they eat bread, and call not upon the Lord. There were they in great fear; for God is in the generation of the righteous. Ye have shamed the counsel of the poor and the righteous, because the Lord is his refuge. Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! When the Lord bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 15

(A psalm of David.)

Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? Who shall dwell in thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart; he that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doeth evil to his neighbour, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbour; in whose eyes a vile person is contemned, but he honoureth them that fear the Lord; he that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not; he that putteth not out his money to usury, nor taketh reward against the innocent. He that doeth these things shall never be moved.

PSALM 16

(Michtam of David.)

Preserve me, O God, for in thee do I put my trust. O my soul, thou hast said unto the Lord, Thou art my Lord; my goodness extendeth not to thee; but to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight. Their sorrows shall be multiplied that hasten after another god; their drink offerings of blood will I not offer, nor take up their names into my lips. The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup; thou maintainest my lot. The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage. I will bless the Lord, who hath given me counsel; my reins also instruct me in the night seasons. I have set the Lord always before me; because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and I rejoice in my glory; my flesh also shall rest in hope; for thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt shew me the Path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

PSALM 17

(A prayer of David.)

Hear the right, O Lord, attend unto my cry; give ear unto my prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips. Let my sentence come forth from thy presence;

let thine eyes behold the things that are equal. Thou hast proved mine heart; thou hast visited me in the night; thou hast tried me, and shalt find nothing; I am purposed that my mouth shall not transgress. Concerning the works of men, by the word of thy lips I have kept me from the paths of the destroyer. Hold up my goings in thy paths, that my footsteps slip not. I have called upon thee, for thou wilt hear me, O God; incline thine ear unto me, and hear my speech; shew thy marvellous lovingkindness, O thou that savest by thy right hand, them which put their trust in thee from those that rise up against them. Keep me as the apple of the eye, hide me under the shadow of thy wings, from the wicked that oppress me, from my deadly enemies, who compass me about. They are inclosed in their own fat; with their mouth they speak proudly. They have now compassed us in our steps; they have set their eyes bowing down to the earth; like as a lion that is greedy of his prey, and as it were a young lion lurking in secret places. Arise, O Lord, disappoint him, cast him down; deliver my soul from the wicked, which is thy sword; from men which are thy hand, O Lord, from men of the world, which have their portion in this life, and whose belly thou fillest with thy hid treasure; they are full of children and leave the rest of their substance to their babes.

As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.

PSALM 18

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David, a servant of the Lord, who spake unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul; and he said:)

I will love thee, O Lord, my strength. The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower. I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised; so shall I be saved from mine enemies. The sorrows of death compassed me, and the floods of ungodly men made me afraid. The sorrows of hell compassed me about; the snares of death prevented me. In my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried unto my God; he heard my voice out of his temple, and my cry came before him, even into his ears. Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations also of the hills moved and were shaken, because he was wroth. There went up a smoke out of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured; coals were kindled by it. He bowed the heavens also, and came down; and darkness was under his feet. And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly; yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind. He made darkness his secret place; his pavilion round about him were dark waters and thick clouds of the skies. At the brightness that was before him his thick cloud passed, hail stones and coals of fire. The Lord also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave his voice; hail stones and coals of fire. Yea, he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; and he shot out lightnings, and discomfited them. Then the channels of waters were seen, and the foundations of the world were discovered at thy rebuke, O Lord, at the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.

He sent from above, he took me, he drew me out of many waters. He delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them which hated me; for they were too strong for me. They prevented me in the day of my calamity, but the Lord was my stay. He brought me forth also into a large place; he delivered me, because he delighted in me. The Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me. For I have kept the ways of the Lord, and have not wickedly departed from my God. For all his judgments were before me, and I did not put away his statutes from me. I was also upright before him, and I kept myself from mine iniquity. Therefore hath the Lord recompensed me according to my righteousness, according to the cleanness of my hands in his eyesight.

With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful; with an upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright; with the pure thou wilt shew thyself pure; and with the froward thou wilt shew thyself froward. For thou wilt save the afflicted people; but wilt bring down high looks. For thou wilt light my candle; the Lord my God will enlighten my darkness. For by thee I have run through a troop; and by my God have I leaped over a wall.

As for God, his way is perfect; and the word of the Lord is tried; he is a buckler to all those that trust in him. For who is God save the Lord? Or who is a rock save our God? It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect. He maketh my feet like hinds' feet, and setteth me upon my high places. He teacheth my hands to war, so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms.

Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation; and thy right hand hath holden me up, and thy gentleness hath made me great. Thou hast enlarged my steps under me, that my feet did not slip. I have pursued mine enemies, and overtaken them; neither did I turn again till they were consumed. I have wounded them that they were not able to rise; they are fallen under my feet. For thou hast girded me with strength unto the battle; thou hast subdued under me those that rose up against me. Thou hast also given me the necks of mine enemies; that I might destroy them that hate me. They cried, but there was none to save them; even unto the Lord, but he answered them not. Then did I beat them small as the dust before the wind; I did cast them out as the dirt in the streets. Thou hast delivered me from the strivings of the people; and thou hast made me the head of the heathen; a people whom I have not known shall serve me. As soon as they hear of me, they shall obey me; the strangers shall submit themselves unto me. The strangers shall fade away, and be afraid out of their close places.

The Lord liveth; and blessed be my rock; and let the God of my salvation be exalted. It is God that avengeth me, and subdueth the people under me. He delivereth me from mine enemies; yea, thou liftest me up above those that rise up against me; thou hast delivered me from the violent man. Therefore will I give thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the heathen, and sing praises unto thy name. Great deliverance giveth he to his king; and sheweth mercy to his anointed, to David, and to his seed for evermore.

PSALM 19

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the Sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it; and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever; the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned; and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my Strength, and my Redeemer.

PSALM 20

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

The Lord hear thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob defend thee; send thee help from the sanctuary, and strengthen thee out of Zion; remember all thy offerings, and accept thy burnt sacrifice; Selah. Grant thee according to thine own heart, and fulfil all thy counsel. We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners; the Lord fulfil all thy petitions. Now know I that the Lord saveth his anointed; he will hear him from his holy heaven with the saving strength of his right hand. Some trust in chariots, and some in horses; but we will remember the name of the Lord our God. They are brought down and fallen; but we are risen, and stand upright. Save, Lord; let the King hear us when we call.

PSALM 21

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

The king shall joy in thy strength, O Lord; and in thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice! Thou hast given him his heart's desire, and hast not withholden the request of his lips. Selah. For thou preventest him with the blessings of goodness; thou settest a crown of pure gold on his head. He asked life of thee, and thou gavest it him, even length of days for ever and ever. His glory is great in thy salvation; honour and majesty hast thou laid upon him. For thou hast made him most blessed for ever; thou hast made him exceeding glad with thy countenance. For the king trusteth in the Lord, and through the mercy of the Most High he shall not be moved. Thine hand shall find out all thine enemies; thy right hand shall find out those that hate thee. Thou shalt make them as a fiery oven in the time of thine anger; the Lord shall swallow them up in his wrath, and the fire shall devour them. Their fruit shalt thou destroy from the earth, and their seed from among the children of men. For they intended evil against thee; they imagined a mischievous device, which they are not able to perform. Therefore shalt thou make them turn their back, when thou shalt make ready thine arrows upon thy strings against the face of them. Be thou exalted, Lord, in thine own strength; so will we sing and praise thy power.

PSALM 22

(To the chief musician upon Aijeleth Shahar [musical instruments of the city of Aijalon]; a psalm of David.)

My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring? O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou hearest not; and in the night season, am not silent. But thou art holy, O thou that inhabitest the praises of Israel. Our fathers trusted in thee; they trusted, and thou didst deliver them. They cried unto thee, and were delivered; they trusted in thee, and were not confounded. But I am a worm, and no man; a reproach of men, and despised of the people. All they that see me laugh to scorn; they shoot out the lip, they shake the head, saying, He trusted on the Lord that he would deliver him; let him deliver him, seeing he delighted in him. But thou art he that took me out of the womb; thou didst make me hope when I was upon my mother's breasts. I was cast upon thee from the womb; thou art my God from my mother's belly. Be not far from me; for trouble is near; for there is none to help. Many bulls have compassed me; strong bulls of Bashan have beset me round. They gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and a roaring lion. I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint; my heart is like wax; it is melted in the midst of my bowels. My strength is dried up like a potsherd; and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws; and thou hast brought me into the dust of death. For dogs have compassed me; the assembly of the wicked have enclosed me; they pierced my hands and my feet. I may tell all my bones; they look and stare upon me. They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture. But be not thou far from me, O Lord; O my strength, haste thee to help me. Deliver my soul from the sword; my darling from the power of the dog. Save me from the lion's mouth; for thou hast heard me from the horns of the unicorns. I will declare thy name unto my brethren; in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee. Ye that fear the Lord, praise him; all ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him; and fear him, all ye the seed of Israel. For he hath not despised nor abhorred the affliction of the afflicted; neither hath he hid his face from him; but when he cried unto him, he heard. My praise shall be of thee in the great congregation; I will pay my vows before them that fear him. The meek shall eat and be satisfied; they shall praise the Lord that seek him; your heart shall live for ever. All the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the Lord; and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee. For the kingdom is the Lord's; and he is the governor among the nations. All they that be fat upon earth shall eat and worship; all they that go down to the dust shall bow before him; and none can keep alive his own soul. A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the Lord for a generation. They shall come, and shall declare his righteousness unto a people that shall be born, that he hath done this.

PSALM 23

(A psalm of David.)

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 24

(A psalm of David.)

The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods. Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation. This is the generation of them that seek him, that seek thy face, O Jacob. Selah. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in. Who is this King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in. Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory. Selah.

PSALM 25

(A psalm of David.)

Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. O my God, I trust in thee; let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me. Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed; let them be ashamed which transgress without cause. Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day. Remember, O Lord, thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindnesses; for they have been ever of old. Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions; according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O Lord. Good and upright is the Lord; therefore will he teach sinners in the way. The meek will he guide in judgment; and the meek will he teach his way. All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies. For thy name's sake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great. What man is he that feareth the Lord? Him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose. His soul shall dwell at ease; and his seed shall inherit the earth. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant. Mine eyes are ever toward the Lord; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net. Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me; for I am desolate and afflicted. The troubles of my heart are enlarged; O bring thou me out of my distresses. Look upon mine affliction and my pain; and forgive all my sins. Consider mine enemies; for they are many; and they hate me with cruel hatred. O keep my soul, and deliver me; let me not be ashamed; for I put my trust in thee. Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee. Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

PSALM 26

(A psalm of David.)

Judge me, O Lord; for I have walked in mine integrity; I have trusted also in the Lord; therefore I shall not slide. Examine me, O Lord, and prove me; try my reins and my heart. For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes; and I have walked in thy truth. I have not sat with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers. I have hated the congregation of evil doers; and wil not sit with the wicked. I will wash mine hands in innocency; so will I compass thine altar, O Lord; that I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works. Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth. Gather not my soul with sinners, nor my life with bloody men; in whose hands is mischief, and their right hand is full of bribes. But as for me, I will walk in mine integrity; redeem me, and be merciful unto me. My foot standeth in an even place; in the congregations will I bless the Lord.

PSALM 27

(A psalm of David.)

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? When the wicked, even mine enemies and my foes, came upon me to eat up my flesh, they stumbled and fell. Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear; though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident. One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his temple. For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion; in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock. And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me; therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the Lord. Hear, O Lord, when I cry with my voice; have mercy also upon me, and answer me. When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek. Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger; thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation. When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up. Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies. Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies; for false witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty. I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living. Wait on the Lord; be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart; wait, I say, on the Lord.

PSALM 28

(A psalm of David.)

Unto thee will I cry, O Lord my rock; be not silent to me, lest, if thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit. Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands toward thy holy oracle. Draw me not away with the wicked, and with the workers of iniquity, which speak peace to their neighbours, but mischief is in their hearts. Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedness of their endeavours; give them after the work of their hands; render to them their desert. Because they regard not the works of the Lord, nor the operation of his hands, he shall destroy them, and not build them up. Blessed be the Lord, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications. The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped. Therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth, and with my song will I praise him. The Lord is their strength, and he is the saving strength of his anointed. Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance; feed them also, and lift them up for ever.

PSALM 29

(A psalm of David.)

Give unto the Lord, O ye mighty, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. The voice of the Lord is upon the waters; the God of glory thundereth; the Lord is upon many waters. The voice of the Lord is powerful; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord breaketh the cedars; yea, the Lord breaketh the cedars of Lebanon; he maketh them also to skip like a calf; Lebanon and Sirion like a young unicorn; the voice of the Lord divideth the flames of fire; the voice of the Lord shaketh the wilderness; the Lord shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh; the voice of the Lord maketh the hinds to calve, and discovereth the forests; and in his temple doth every one speak of his glory. The Lord sitteth upon the flood; yea, the Lord sitteth 1 King for ever. The Lord will give strength unto his people; the Lord will bless 2 his people with peace. 3

PSALM 30

(A psalm at the dedication of the house of David.)

I will extol thee, O Lord; for thou hast lifted me up, and hast not made 4 my foes to rejoice over me. O Lord my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast 5 healed me. O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave; thou hast kept 6 me alive, that I should not go down to the pit. Sing unto the Lord, O ye saints 7 of his, and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. For his anger 8 endureth but a moment; in his favour is life; weeping may endure for a night, 9 but joy cometh in the morning. And in my prosperity I said, I shall never be 10 moved. Lord, by thy favour thou hast made my mountain to stand strong, thou 11 didst hide thy face, and I was troubled. I cried to thee, O Lord; and unto 12 the Lord I made supplication. What profit is there in my blood, when I go down 13 to the pit? Shall the dust praise thee? Shall it declare thy truth? Hear, 14
O Lord, and have mercy upon me; Lord, be thou my helper. Thou hast turned for 15 me my mourning into dancing; thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with 16 gladness; to the end that my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. 17
O Lord my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever. 18

PSALM 31

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed; deliver me 19 in thy righteousness. Bow down thine ear to me; deliver me speedily; be thou 20 my strong rock, for an house of defence to save me. For thou art my rock and 21 my fortress; therefore for thy name's sake lead me, and guide me. Pull me out 22 of the net that they have laid privily for me, for thou art my strength. Into 23 thine hand I commit my spirit; thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth. I 24 have hated them that regard lying vanities, but I trust in the Lord. I will 25 be glad and rejoice in thy mercy, for thou hast considered my trouble; thou 26 hast known my soul in adversities, and hast not shut me up into the hand of 27 the enemy; thou hast set my feet in a large room. 28

Have mercy upon me, O Lord, for I am in trouble; mine eye is consumed with 29 grief, yea, my soul and my belly. For my life is spent with grief, and my years 30 with sighing; my strength faileth because of mine iniquity, and my bones are 31 consumed. I was a reproach among all mine enemies, but especially among my 32 neighbours, and a fear to mine acquaintance; they that did see me without fled 33 from me. I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind; I am like a broken vessel. 34
For I have heard the slander of many; fear was on every side; while they took 35 counsel together against me, they devised to take away my life. But I trusted 36 in thee, O Lord; I said, Thou art my God. My times are in thy hand; deliver 37 me from them that persecute me. Make thy face to shine upon thy servant; save 38 me for thy mercies' sake. Let me not be ashamed, O Lord; for I have called upon thee; let the wicked be ashamed, and let them be silent in the grave. Let the lying lips be put to silence, which speak grievous things proudly and contemptuously against the righteous.

Oh how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men! Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy presence from the pride of man; thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues. Blessed be the Lord; for he hath shewed me his marvellous kindness in a strong city. For I said in my haste, I am cut off from before thine eyes; nevertheless thou heardest the voice of my supplications when I cried unto thee. O love the Lord, all ye his saints; for the Lord preserveth the faithful, and plentifully rewardeth the proud doer. Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord.

PSALM 32

(A psalm of David, Maschil.)

Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile. When I kept silence (meaning, not proclaiming thy words) my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long; for day and night thy hand was heavy upon me; now, my moisture is turned into the drought of summer (meaning, I sweat no more). Selah. I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah. For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found; surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him; thou art my hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance. Selah. I will instruct thee (ye righteous and upright) and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go; I will guide thee with mine eye; be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding, whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee; many sorrows shall be to the wicked, but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about; be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous; and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

PSALM 33

Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous, for praise is comely for the upright. Praise the Lord with harp; sing unto him with the psaltery and an instrument of ten strings. Sing unto him a new song; play skillfully with a loud noise. For the word of the Lord is right and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment; the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord. By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap; he layeth up the depth in storehouses. Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast. The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought; he maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations. Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance. The Lord looketh from heaven; he beholdeth all the sons of men. From the place of his habitation he looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth. He fashioneth their hearts alike; he considereth all their works. There is no king saved by the multitude of an host; a mighty man is not delivered by much strength; an horse is a vain thing for safety, neither shall he deliver any by his great strength. Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy; to deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine. Our soul waiteth for the Lord; he is our help and our shield. For our heart shall rejoice in him, because we have trusted in his holy name. Let thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, according as we hope in thee.

PSALM 34

(A psalm of David, after he had changed his behavior before Abimelech; who drove him away, and he departed.)

I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make her boast in the Lord; the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together. I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears. They looked unto him, and were lightened; and their faces were not ashamed. This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles. The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. O taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in him. O fear the Lord, ye his saints; for there is no want to them that fear him. The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger; but they that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing.

Come, ye children, hearken unto me; I will teach you the fear of the Lord. What man is he that desireth life, and loveth many days, that he may see good? Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it. The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry. The face of the Lord is against them that do evil, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth. The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles. The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit. Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all. He keepeth all his bones, not one of them is broken. Evil shall slay the wicked; and they that hate the righteous shall be desolate. The Lord redeemeth the souls of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate.

PSALM 35

(A psalm of David.)

Plead my cause, O Lord, with them that strive with me; fight against them that fight against me; take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help; draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me; say unto my soul, I am thy salvation. Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after my soul; let them be turned back and brought to confusion that devise my hurt. Let them be as chaff before the wind, and let the angel of the Lord chase them; let their way be dark and slippery; and let the angel of the Lord persecute them. For without cause have they hid for me their net in a pit, which without cause they have digged for my soul. Let destruction come upon him unawares; and let his net that he hath hid catch himself; into that very destruction let him fall. And my soul shall be joyful in the Lord; it shall rejoice in his salvation. All my bones shall say, Lord, who is like unto thee, which deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that spoileth him? False witnesses did rise up; they laid to my charge things that I knew not. They rewarded me evil for good to the spoiling of my soul. But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth; I humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom. I behaved myself as though he had been my friend or brother; I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother. But in mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together; yea, the abjects gathered themselves together against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not; with hypocritical mockers in feasts, they gnashed upon me with their teeth. Lord, how long wilt thou look on? Rescue my soul from their destruction, my darling (only life) from the lions. I will give thee thanks in the great congregation; I will praise thee among much people. Let not them that are mine enemies wrongfully rejoice over me, neither let them wink with the eye that hate me without a cause. For they speak not peace; but they devise deceitful matters against them that are quiet in the land. Yea, they opened their mouth wide against me, and said, Aha, aha, our eye hath seen it. This thou hast seen, O Lord; keep not silence; O Lord, be not far from me. Stir up thyself, and awake to my judgment, even unto my cause, my God and my Lord. Judge me, O Lord my God, according to thy righteousness; and let them not rejoice over me. Let them not say in their hearts, Ah, so would we have it; let them not say; We have swallowed him up! Let them be ashamed and brought to confusion together that rejoice at mine hurt; let them be clothed with shame and dishonour that magnify themselves against me; let them shout for joy, and be glad, that favour my righteous cause; yea, let them say continually, Let the Lord be magnified, Which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant. And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness and of thy praise all the day long.

PSALM 36

(To the chief musician, a psalm of David.)

The transgression of the wicked saith within my heart, that there is no fear of God before his eyes. For he flattereth himself in his own eyes, until his iniquity be found to be hateful. The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit; he hath left off to be wise, and to do good; he deviseth mischief upon his bed; he setteth himself in a way that is not good; he abhorreth not evil.

Thy mercy, O Lord, is in the heavens; and thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds. Thy righteousness is like the great mountains; thy judgments are a great deep; O Lord, thou preservest man and beast. How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! Therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures. For with thee is the fountain of life; in thy light shall we see light. O continue thy lovingkindness unto them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart. Let not the foot of pride come against me, and let not the hand of the wicked remove me. There are the workers of iniquity fallen; they are cast down, and shall not be able to rise.

PSALM 37

(A psalm of David.)

Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb. Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed. Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass. And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noonday. Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him; fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. Cease from anger, and forsake wrath; fret not thyself in any wise to do evil. For evildoers shall be cut off, but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth. For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be; yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth. The Lord shall laugh at him, for he seeth that his day is coming. The wicked have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow, to cast down the poor and needy, and to slay such as be of upright conversation. Their sword shall enter into their own heart, and their bows shall be broken. A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked. For the arms of the wicked shall be broken, but the Lord upholdeth the righteous. The Lord knoweth the days of the upright, and their inheritance shall be for ever. They shall not be ashamed in the evil time, and in the days of famine they shall be satisfied. But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs; they shall be consumed; into smoke shall they be consumed away. The wicked borroweth, and payeth not again; but the righteous sheweth mercy, and giveth. For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off. The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord, and he delighteth in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down, for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand.

I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread. He is ever merciful, and lendeth; and his seed is blessed. Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell for evermore. For the Lord loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints, they are preserved for ever; but the seed of the wicked shall be cut off. The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever. The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom, and his tongue talketh of judgment. The law of his God is in his heart; none of his steps shall slide. The wicked watcheth the righteous, and seeketh to slay him. The Lord will not leave him in his hand, nor condemn him when he is judged. Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land; when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it. I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree. Yet he passed away, and lo, he was not; yea, I sought him, but he could not be found. Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace. But the transgressors shall be destroyed together; the end of the wicked shall be cut off. But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord; he is their strength in the time of trouble. And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them; he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him.

PSALM 38

(A psalm of David.)

O Lord, rebuke me not in thy wrath; neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure. For thine arrows stick fast in me, and thy hand presseth me sore. There is no soundness in my flesh because of thine anger; neither is there any rest in my bones because of my sin. For mine iniquities are gone over mine head, as an heavy burden they are too heavy for me; my wounds stink and are corrupt because of my foolishness; I am troubled; I am bowed down greatly; I go mourning all the day long. For my loins are filled with a loathsome disease, and there is no soundness in my flesh. I am feeble and sore broken; I have roared by reason of the disquietness of my heart. Lord, all my desire is before thee; and my groaning is not hid from thee. My heart panteth, my strength faileth me; as for the light of mine eyes, it also is gone from me. My lovers and my friends stand aloof from my sore; and my kinsmen stand afar off. They also that seek after my life lay snares for me; and they that seek my hurt speak mischievous things, and imagine deceits all the day long. But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and I was as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth. Thus I was as a man that heareth not, and in whose mouth are not reproofs. For in thee, O Lord, do I hope; thou wilt hear, O Lord my God. For I said, Hear me, lest otherwise they should rejoice over me; when my foot slippeth, they magnify themselves against me. For I am ready to halt, and my sorrow is continually before me; for I will declare mine iniquity; I will be sorry for my sin. But mine enemies are lively, and they are strong; and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied. They also that render evil for good are mine adversaries; because I follow the thing that good is. Forsake me not, O Lord; O my God, be not far from me. Make haste to help me, O Lord my salvation.

PSALM 39

(A psalm of David.)

I said, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue; I will keep my mouth with a bridle, while the wicked are before me. I was dumb with silence, I held my peace, even from good; and my sorrow was stirred. My heart was hot within me, while I was musing the fire burned; then spake I with my tongue, Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am. Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee; verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity. Selah. Surely every man walketh in a vain shew; surely they are disquieted in vain; he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them. And now, Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in thee. Deliver me from all my transgressions; make me not the reproach of the foolish. I was dumb, I opened not my mouth; because thou didst it. Remove thy stroke away from me; I am consumed by the blow of thine hand. When thou with rebukes dost correct man for iniquity, thou makest his beauty to consume away like a moth; surely every man is vanity. Selah.

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears; for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were. O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and be no more.

PSALM 40

(To the chief musician, a psalm of David.)

I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God; many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord. Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies. Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward; they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee; if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered. Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened; burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required. Then said I, Lo, I come; in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart. I have preached righteousness in the great congregation; lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest. I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation; I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation. Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord; let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me. For innumerable evils have compassed me about, mine iniquities have taken hold upon me, so that I am not able to look up; they are more than the hairs of mine head, therefore my heart faileth me. Be pleased, O Lord, to deliver me; O Lord, make haste to help me. Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul to destroy it; let them be driven backward and put to shame that wish me evil. Let them be desolate for a reward of their shame that say unto me, Aha, aha. Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee; let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified. But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me; thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God.

PSALM 41

(To the chief musician, a psalm of David.)

Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness. I said, Lord, be merciful unto me, heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee. Mine enemies speak evil of me, When shall he die, and his name perish? And if he come to see me, he speaketh vanity; his heart gathereth iniquity to itself; when he goeth abroad, he telleth it. All that hate me whisper together against me; against me do they devise my hurt. An evil disease, say they, cleaveth fast unto him; and now that he lieth he shall rise up no more. Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me. But thou, O Lord, be merciful unto me, and raise me up, that I may requite them. By this I know that thou favourest me, because mine enemy doth not triumph over me. And as for me, thou upholdest me in mine integrity, and settest me before thy face for ever. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Amen, and Amen.

PSALM 42

(To the chief musician, Maschil, for the sons of Korah.)

As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God; when shall I come and appear before God? My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God? When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me; for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept holy-day. Why art thou cast down, O my soul? And why are thou disquieted in me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him for the help of his countenance. O my God, my soul is cast down within me; therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from the hill Mizar. Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts; all thy waves and thy billows are gone over me. Yet the Lord will command his lovingkindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life. I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me? Why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy? As with a sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me; while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God? Why art thou cast down, O my soul? And why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM 43

Judge me, O God, and plead my cause against an ungodly nation; O deliver me from the deceitful and unjust man. For thou art the God of my strength; why dost thou cast me off? Why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy? O send out thy light and thy truth; let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles. Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy; yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God my God. Why art thou cast down, O my soul? And why art thou disquieted within me? Hope in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM 44

(To the chief musician, Maschil, for the sons of Korah.)

We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the times of old. How thou didst drive out the heathen with thy hand, and plantedst them; how thou didst afflict the people, and cast them out. For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own arm save them; but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favour unto them. Thou art my King, O God; command deliverances for Jacob. Through thee will we push down our enemies; through thy name will we tread them under that rise up against us. For I will not trust in my bow, neither shall my sword save me; but thou hast saved us from our enemies, and hast put them to shame that hated us. In God we boast all the day long, and praise thy name for ever. Selah. But thou hast cast off, and put us to shame; and goest not forth with our armies; thou makest us to turn back from the enemy, and they which hate us spoil for themselves. Thou hast given us like sheep appointed for meat; and hast scattered us among the heathen. Thou sellest thy people for nought, and dost not increase thy wealth by their price. Thou makest us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and a derision to them that are round about us. Thou makest us a byword among the heathen, a shaking of the head among the people. My confusion is continually before me, and the shame of my face hath covered me; for the voice of him that reproacheth and blasphemeth; by reason of the enemy and avenger. All this is come upon us; yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falsely in thy covenant. Our heart is not turned back, neither have our steps declined from thy way; though thou hast sore broken us in the place of dragons, and covered us with the shadow of death. If we have forgotten the name of our God, or stretched out our hands to a strange god, shall not God search this out? For he knoweth the secrets of the heart. Yea, for thy sake are we killed all the day long; we are counted as sheep for the slaughter. Awake, why sleepest thou,

O Lord? Arise, cast us not off for ever. Wherefore hidest thou thy face, and forgettest our affliction and our oppression? For our soul is bowed down to the dust; our belly cleaveth unto the earth. Arise for our help, and redeem us for thy mercies' sake.

PSALM 45

(To the chief musician, Maschil, upon Shoshannim, for the sons of Korah; a song of loves.)

My heart is stirred over a good matter; I speak of the things which I have made touching the king; my tongue is the pen of a ready writer. Thou art fairer than the children of men; grace is poured into thy lips, therefore God hath blessed thee for ever. Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with thy glory and thy majesty. And in thy majesty ride prosperously because of truth and meekness and righteousness; and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things. Thine arrows are sharp in the heart of the king's enemies; whereby the people fall under thee. Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre. Thou lovest righteousness, and hatest wickedness; therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows. All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad. Kings' daughters were among thy honourable women; upon thy right hand did stand the queen in gold of Ophir. Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear; forget also thine own people, and thy father's house; so shall the king greatly desire thy beauty; for he is thy lord; and worship thou him. And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift; even the rich among the people shall intreat thy favour. The king's daughter is all glorious within, her clothing is of wrought gold. She shall be brought unto the king in raiment of needlework; the virgins her companions that follow her shall be brought unto thee. With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought; they shall enter into the king's palace. Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth. I will make thy name to be remembered in all generations; therefore shall the people praise thee for ever and ever.

PSALM 46

(To the chief musician for the sons of Korah; a song upon Alamoth [stringed instruments suited for the maidens.])

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof roar and be troubled; though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the Most High. God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God shall help her, and that right early. The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved; he uttered his voice, the earth melted.

The Lord of Hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah. 1
Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the 2 earth. He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, 3 and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire. Be still, 4 and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted 5 in the earth. The Lord of Hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. 6
Selah. 7

PSALM 47

(To the chief musician; a psalm for the sons of Korah.)

O clap your hands, all ye people; shout unto God with the voice of triumph. 8
For the Lord most high is terrible; he is a great King over all the earth. He 9 shall subdue the people under us, and the nations under our feet. He shall 10 choose our inheritance for us, the excellency of Jacob whom he loved. Selah. 11
God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a trumpet. Sing 12 praises to God, sing praises; sing praises unto our King, sing praises. For 13 God is the King of all the earth; sing ye praises with understanding. God 14 reigneth over the heathen; God sitteth upon the throne of his holiness. The 15 princes of the people are gathered together, even the people of the God of 16
Abraham; for the shields of the earth belong unto God; he is greatly exalted. 17

PSALM 48

(A psalm for the sons of Korah.)

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in 18 the mountain of his holiness. Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole 19 earth is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King. 20 God is known in her palaces for a refuge. For, lo, the kings were assembled, 21 they passed by together. They saw it, and so they marvelled; they were troubled, 22 and hasted away. Fear took hold upon them there, and pain, as of a woman in 23 travail. Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish with an east wind. As we have 24 heard, so have we seen in the city of our God; God will establish it for ever. 25
Selah. 26
We have thought of thy lovingkindness, O God, in the midst of thy temple. 27
According to thy name, O God, so is thy praise unto the ends of the earth; thy 28 right hand is full of righteousness. Let mount Zion rejoice, let the daughters 29 of Judah be glad, because of thy judgments. Walk about Zion, and go round about 30 her; tell the towers thereof. Mark ye well her bulwarks, consider her palaces; 31 that ye may tell it to the generation following. For this God is our God for 32 ever and ever; he will be our guide even unto death. 33

PSALM 49

(To the chief musician; a psalm for the sons of Korah.)

Hear this, all ye people, give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world; both 34 low and high, rich and poor, together. My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the 35 meditation of my heart shall be of understanding. I will incline mine ear to a parable; I will open my dark saying upon the harp. Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil, when the iniquity of my heels shall compass me about? They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches; none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him (for the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth for ever) that he should still live for ever, and not see corruption. For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others. Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwelling places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names. Nevertheless man being in honour abideth not; he is like the beasts that perish. This their way is their folly; yet their posterity approve their sayings. Selah. Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling. But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave, for he shall receive me. Selah. Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased; for when he dieth he shall carry nothing away; his glory shall not descend after him. Though while he lived he blessed his soul; and men will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself. He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light. Man that is in honour, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

PSALM 50

(A psalm of Asaph.)

The mighty God, even the Lord, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined. Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him. He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people. Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. And the heavens shall declare his righteousness; for God is judge himself. Selah. Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel, and I will testify against thee; I am God, even thy God. I will not reprove thee for thy sacrifices or thy burnt offerings, to have been continually before me. I will take no bullock out of thy house, nor he goats out of thy folds. For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. I know all the fowls of the mountains; and the wild beasts of the field are mine. If I were hungry, I would not tell thee; for the world is mine, and the fulness thereof. Will I eat the flesh of bulls, or drink the blood of goats?

Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the Most High; and call upon me in the day of trouble, I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me. But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldest take my covenant in thy mouth? Seeing thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee. When thou sawest a thief, then thou consentedst with him, and hast been partaker with adulterers. Thou givest thy mouth to evil, and thy tongue frameth deceit. Thou sittest and speakest against thy brother; thou slanderest thine own mother's son. These things hast thou done, and I kept silence; thou thoughtest that I was altogether such an one as thyself; but I will reprove thee, and set them in order before thine eyes. Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver. Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me; and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God.

PSALM 51

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bath-sheba.)

Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness; according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions. Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. For I acknowledge my transgressions, and my sin is ever before me. Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight; that thou mightest be justified when thou speakest, and be clear when thou judgest. Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me. Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts; and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom. Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. Make me to hear joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice. Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities. Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee. Deliver me from bloodguiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation; and my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness. Lord, open thou my lips and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For thou desirest not a sacrifice; else would I give it; thou delightest not in burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise. Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion; build thou the walls of Jerusalem. Then shalt thou be pleased with the sacrifices of righteousness, with burnt offering and whole burnt offering; then shall they offer bullocks upon thine altar.

PSALM 52

(To the chief musician, Maschil; a psalm of David, when Doeg the Edomite came and told Saul, and said unto him, David is come to the house of Ahimelech.)

Why boastest thou thyself in mischief, O mighty man? The goodness of God endureth continually. Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs; like a sharp razor, working deceitfully. Thou lovest evil more than good; and lying rather than to speak righteousness. Selah. Thou lovest all devouring words, O thou deceitful tongue. God shall likewise destroy thee for ever, he shall take thee away, and pluck thee out of thy dwelling place, and root thee out of the land of the living.

Selah. The righteous also shall see, and fear, and shall laugh at him; Lo, this is the man that made not God his strength, but trusted in the abundance of his riches, and strengthened himself in his wickedness! But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God; I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever. I will praise thee for ever, because thou hast done it, and I will wait on thy name; for it is good before thy saints.

PSALM 53

(To the chief musician, Maschil, upon Mahalath; a psalm of David.)

The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they and have done abominable iniquity; there is none that doeth good. God looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek God. Every one of them is gone back; they are altogether become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. Have the workers of iniquity no knowledge? Who eat up my people as they eat bread; they have not called upon God. There were they in great fear, where no fear was; for God hath scattered the bones of him that encampeth against thee; thou hast put them to shame, because God hath despised them. Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! When God bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 54

(To the chief musician, Maschil, on Neginoth; a psalm of David, when the Ziphim came and said to Saul, Doth not David hide himself with us?)

Save me, O God, by thy name, and judge me by thy strength. Hear my prayer, O God; give ear to the words of my mouth. For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul; they have not set God before them. Selah. Behold, God is mine helper; the Lord is with them that uphold my soul. He shall reward evil unto mine enemies, cut them off in thy truth. I will freely sacrifice unto thee; I will praise thy name, O Lord; for it is good. For he hath delivered me out of all trouble, and mine eye hath seen his desire upon mine enemies.

PSALM 55

(To the chief musician, Maschil, on Neginoth; a psalm of David.)

Give ear to my prayer, O my God; and hide not thyself from my supplication. Attend unto me, and hear me; I mourn in my complaint, and make a noise; because of the voice of the enemy, because of the oppression of the wicked; for they cast iniquity upon me, and in wrath they hate me. My heart is sore pained within me; and the terrors of death are fallen upon me. Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and horror hath overwhelmed me. And I said, Oh that I had wings like a dove! For then would I fly away, and be at rest. Lo, then would I wander far off, and remain in the wilderness. Selah.

I would hasten my escape from the windy storm and tempest. Destroy, O Lord, and divide their tongues; for I have seen violence and strife in the city. Day and night they go about it upon the walls thereof; mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it. Wickedness is in the midst thereof; deceit and guile depart not from her streets. For it was not an enemy that reproached me; then I could have borne it; neither was it he that hated me that did magnify himself against me; then I would have hid myself from him; but it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance. We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company. Let death seize upon them, and let them go down quick into hell; for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them. As for me, I will call upon God; and the Lord shall save me. Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud; and he shall hear my voice. He hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me; for there were many with me. God shall hear, and afflict them, even he that abideth of old. Selah.

Because they have no changes, therefore they fear not God. He hath put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him; he hath broken his covenant; the words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart; his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords. Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee; he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved. But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction; bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in thee.

PSALM 56

(To the chief musician upon Jonath-elem-rechokim; michtam of David, when the Philistines took him in Gath.)

Be merciful unto me, O God, for man would swallow me up; he fighting daily oppresseth me. Mine enemies would daily swallow me up, for they be many that fight against me, O thou Most High. What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee. In God I will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

Every day they wrest my words, all their thoughts are against me for evil. They gather themselves together, they hide themselves, they mark my steps, when they wait for my soul. Shall they escape by iniquity? In thine anger cast down the people, O God. Thou tellest my wanderings; put thou my tears into thy bottle; are they not in thy book? When I cry unto thee, then shall mine enemies turn back; this I know, for God is for me. In God will I praise his word; in the Lord will I praise his word. In God have I put my trust; I will not be afraid what man can do unto me. Thy vows are upon me, O God; I will render praises unto thee, for thou hast delivered my soul from death; wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?

PSALM 57

(To the chief musician, Al-taschith; michtam of David, when he fled from Saul in the cave.)

Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me; for my soul trusteth in thee; yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge, until these calamities be overpast. I will cry unto God most high, unto God that performeth all things for me. He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth. My soul is among lions; and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth. They have prepared a net for my steps, my soul is bowed down; they have digged a pit before me, into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves. Selah. My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise. Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp; I myself will awake early. I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heaven; let thy glory be above all the earth.

PSALM 58

(To the chief musician, Al-taschith; michtam of David.)

Do ye indeed speak righteousness, O congregation? Do ye judge uprightly, O ye sons of men? Yea, in heart ye work wickedness; ye weigh the violence of your hands in the earth. The wicked are estranged from the womb; they go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies. Their poison is like the poison of a serpent; they are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear, which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely. Break their teeth, O God, in their mouth; break out the great teeth of the young lions, O Lord. Let them melt away as waters which run continually; when he bendeth his bow to shoot his arrows, let them be as cut in pieces. As a snail which melteth, let every one of them pass away; like the untimely birth of a woman, that they may not see the sun. Before your pots can feel the thorns, he shall take them away as with a whirlwind, both living, and in his wrath. The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance; he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked, so that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous; verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth.

PSALM 59

(To the chief musician, Al-taschith; michtam of David; when Saul sent, and they watched the house to kill him.)

Deliver me from mine enemies, O my God; defend me from them that rise up against me. Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men. For, lo, they lie in wait for my soul; the mighty are gathered against me; not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O Lord. They run and prepare themselves without my fault; awake to help me, and behold. Thou therefore, O Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel, awake to visit all the heathen; be not merciful to any wicked transgressors. Selah.

They return at evening; they make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city. Behold, they belch out with their mouth; swords are in their lips; for who, say they, doth hear? But thou, O Lord, shalt laugh at them; thou shalt have all the heathen in derision. Because of his strength will I wait upon thee, for God is my defence. The God of my mercy shall prevent me; God shall let me see my desire upon mine enemies. Slay them not, lest my people forget; scatter them by thy power, and bring them down, O Lord our shield. For the sin of their mouth and the words of their lips let them even be taken in their pride; and for cursing and lying which they speak. Consume them in wrath, consume them, that they may not be; and let them know that God ruleth in Jacob unto the ends of the earth. Selah. And at evening let them return; and let them make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city. Let them wander up and down for meat, and grudge if they be not satisfied. But I will sing of thy power; yea, I will sing aloud of thy mercy in the morning; for thou hast been my defence and refuge in the day of my trouble. Unto thee, O my strength, will I sing; for God is my defence, and the God of my mercy.

PSALM 60

O God, thou hast cast us off, thou hast scattered us, thou hast been displeased; O turn thyself to us again. Thou hast made the earth to tremble, thou hast broken it; heal the breaches thereof, for it shaketh. Thou hast shewed thy people hard things; thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment; thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth. Selah. That thy beloved may be delivered; save with thy right hand, and hear me. God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth. Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of mine head; Judah is my lawgiver; Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe; Philistia, triumph thou because of me. Who will bring me into the strong city? Who will lead me into Edom? Wilt not thou, O God, which hadst cast us off? And thou, O God, which didst not go out with our armies? Give us help from trouble, for vain is the help of man. Through God we shall do valiantly; for he it is that shall tread down our enemies.

PSALM 61

(To the chief musician upon Neginah; a psalm of David.)

Hear my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer. From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed; lead me to the rock that is higher than I. For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy. I will abide in thy tabernacle for ever; I will trust in the covert of thy wings. Selah. For thou, O God, hast heard my vows, thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear thy name. Thou wilt prolong the king's life, and his years as many generations. He shall abide before God for ever; O prepare mercy and truth, which may preserve him. So will I sing praise unto thy name for ever, that I may daily perform my vows.

PSALM 62

(To the chief musician, Jeduthun; a psalm of David.)

Truly my soul waiteth upon God; from him cometh my salvation. He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence; I shall not be greatly moved.

How long will ye imagine mischief against a man? Ye shall be slain, all of you, as a bowing wall shall ye be, and as a tottering fence. They only consult to cast him down from his excellency, they delight in lies; they bless with their mouth, but they curse inwardly. Selah.

My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him. He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence; I shall not be moved. In God is my salvation and my glory; the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God. Trust in him at all times; ye people, pour out your heart before him, God is a refuge for us. Selah.

Surely men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie; to be laid in the balance, they are altogether lighter than vanity. Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery; if riches increase, set not your heart upon them. God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God. Also unto thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy; for thou renderest to every man according to his work.

PSALM 63

(A psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.)

O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee; my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is; to see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary. Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee. Thus will I bless thee while I live; I will lift up my hands in thy name. My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and my mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips, when I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches. Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice. My soul followeth hard after thee; thy right hand upholdeth me. But those that seek my soul to destroy it, shall go into the lower parts of the earth; they shall fall by the sword; they shall be a portion for foxes. But the king shall rejoice in God; every one that sweareth by him shall glory; but the mouth of them that speak lies shall be stopped.

PSALM 64

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

Hear my voice, O God, in my prayer; preserve my life from fear of the enemy. 1
Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked; from the insurrection of the 2 workers of iniquity; who whet their tongue like a sword, and bend their bows 3 to shoot their arrows, even bitter words; that they may shoot in secret at the 4 perfect; suddenly do they shoot at him, and fear not. They encourage themselves 5 in an evil matter; they commune of laying snares privily; they say, Who shall 6 see them? They search out iniquities; they accomplish a diligent search; both 7 the inward thought of every one of them, and the heart, is deep. But God shall 8 shoot at them with an arrow; suddenly shall they be wounded. So they shall 9 make their own tongue to fall upon themselves; all that see them shall flee 10 away. And all men shall fear, and shall declare the work of God; for they shall 11 wisely consider of his doing. The righteous shall be glad in the Lord, and 12 shall trust in him; and all the upright in heart shall glory. 13

PSALM 65

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion; and unto thee shall the vow be 14 performed. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come. 15 Iniquities prevail against me; as for our transgressions, thou shalt purge them 16 away. Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, 17 that he may dwell in thy courts; we shall be satisfied with the goodness of 18 thy house, even of thy holy temple. By terrible things in righteousness wilt 19 thou answer us, O God of our salvation; who art the confidence of all the ends 20 of the earth, and of them that are afar off upon the sea; which by his strength 21 setteth fast the mountains, being girded with power; which stilleth the noise 22 of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people. 23
They also that dwell in the uttermost parts are afraid at thy tokens; thou 24 makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to rejoice; thou visitest the 25 earth, and waterest it; thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which 26 is full of water; thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it; 27 thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly; thou settlest the furrows thereof; 28 thou makest it soft with showers; thou blessest the springing thereof. 29
Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness; they 30 drop upon the pastures of the wilderness, and the little hills rejoice on every 31 side. The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also are covered over 32 with corn; they shout for joy, they also sing. 33

PSALM 66

(To the chief musician; a psalm.)

Make a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands; sing forth the honour of his 34 name; make his praise glorious. Say unto God, How terrible art thou in thy 35 works! Through the greatness of thy power shall thine enemies submit themselves unto thee. All the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thee; they shall sing to thy name. Selah.

Come and see the works of God; he is terrible in his doing toward the children of men; he turned the sea into dry land; they went through the flood on foot; there did we rejoice in him. He ruleth by his power for ever; his eyes behold the nations; let not the rebellious exalt themselves. Selah.

O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard; which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved. For thou, O God, hast proved us; thou hast tried us, as silver is tried. Thou broughtest us into the net; thou laidst affliction upon our loins. Thou hast caused men to rise over our heads; we went through fire and through water; but thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place. I will go into thy house with burnt offerings; I will pay thee my vows, which my lips have uttered, and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in trouble. I will offer unto thee burnt sacrifices of fatlings, with the incense of rams; I will offer bullocks with goats. Selah.

Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he hath done for my soul. I cried unto him with my mouth, and he was extolled with my tongue. If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me; but verily God hath heard me; he hath attended to the voice of my prayer. Blessed be God, which hath not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

PSALM 67

(To the chief musician on Neginoth; a psalm.)

God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; Selah. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee. O let the nations be glad and sing for joy; for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth. Selah. Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee. Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us. God shall bless us, and all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

PSALM 68

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered; let them also that hate him flee before him. As smoke is driven away, so drive them away; as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish at the presence of God. But let the righteous be glad; let them rejoice before God; yea, let them exceedingly rejoice. Sing unto God, sing praises to his name; extol him that rideth upon the heavens by his name Jehovah (or Jesus Christ), and rejoice before him. A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation. God setteth the solitary in families; he bringeth out those which are bound with chains; but the rebellious dwell in a dry land. O God, when thou wentest forth before thy people, when thou didst march through the wilderness, Selah, the earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God; even Sinai itself was moved at the presence of God, the God of Israel. Thou, O God, didst send a plentiful rain, whereby thou didst confirm thine inheritance, when it was weary. Thy congregation hath dwelt therein; thou, O God, hast prepared of thy goodness for the poor. The Lord gave the word; great was the company of those that published it. Kings of armies did flee apace; and she that tarried at home divided the spoil. Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

When the Almighty scattered kings in it, it was white as snow in Salmon. The hill of God is as the hill of Bashan; an high hill as the hill of Bashan. Why leap ye, ye high hills? This is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; yea, the Lord will dwell in it for ever. The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels; the Lord is among them, as in Sinai, in the holy place. Thou hast ascended on high; thou hast led captivity captive; thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah.

He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. But God shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses. The Lord said, I will bring again from Bashan, I will bring my people again from the depths of the sea; that thy foot may be dipped in the blood in thine enemies, and the tongue of thy dogs in the same. They have seen thy goings, O God; even the goings of my God, my King, in the sanctuary. The singers went before, the players on instruments followed after; among them were the damsels playing with timbrels. Bless ye God in the congregations, even the Lord, from the fountain of Israel. There is little Benjamin with their ruler, the princes of Judah and their council, the princes of Zebulun, and the princes of Naphtali. Thy God hath commanded thy strength; strengthen, O God, that which thou hast wrought for us. Because of thy temple at Jerusalem, shall kings bring presents unto thee. Rebuke the company of spearmen, the multitude of the bulls, with the calves of the people, till every one submit himself with pieces of silver; scatter thou the people that delight in war. Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God. Sing unto God, ye kingdoms of the earth; O sing praises unto the Lord; Selah.

To him that rideth upon the heavens of heavens, which were of old; lo, he doth send out his voice, and that a mighty voice. Ascribe ye strength unto God; his excellency is over Israel, and his strength is in the clouds. O God, thou art terrible out of thy holy places; the God of Israel is he that giveth strength and power unto his people. Blessed be God.

PSALM 69

(To the chief musician upon Shoshannim; a psalm of David.)

Save me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul. I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing; I am come into deep waters, where the floods before thy people, when thou didst march through the wilderness, Selah, the earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God; even Sinai itself was moved at the presence of God, the God of Israel. Thou, O God, didst send a plentiful rain, whereby thou didst confirm thine inheritance, when it was weary. Thy congregation hath dwelt therein; thou, O God, hast prepared of thy goodness for the poor. The Lord gave the word; great was the company of those that published it. Kings of armies did flee apace; and she that tarried at home divided the spoil. Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

When the Almighty scattered kings in it, it was white as snow in Salmon. The hill of God is as the hill of Bashan; an high hill as the hill of Bashan. Why leap ye, ye high hills? This is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; yea, the Lord will dwell in it for ever. The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels; the Lord is among them, as in Sinai, in the holy place. Thou hast ascended on high; thou hast led captivity captive; thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah.

He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. But God shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses. The Lord said, I will bring again from Bashan, I will bring my people again from the depths of the sea; that thy foot may be dipped in the blood in thine enemies, and the tongue of thy dogs in the same. They have seen thy goings, O God; even the goings of my God, my King, in the sanctuary. The singers went before, the players on instruments followed after; among them were the damsels playing with timbrels. Bless ye God in the congregations, even the Lord, from the fountain of Israel. There is little Benjamin with their ruler, the princes of Judah and their council, the princes of Zebulun, and the princes of Naphtali. Thy God hath commanded thy strength; strengthen, O God, that which thou hast wrought for us. Because of thy temple at Jerusalem, shall kings bring presents unto thee. Rebuke the company of spearmen, the multitude of the bulls, with the calves of the people, till every one submit himself with pieces of silver; scatter thou the people that delight in war. Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God. Sing unto God, ye kingdoms of the earth; O sing praises unto the Lord; Selah.

To him that rideth upon the heavens of heavens, which were of old; lo, he doth send out his voice, and that a mighty voice. Ascribe ye strength unto God; his excellency is over Israel, and his strength is in the clouds. O God, thou art terrible out of thy holy places; the God of Israel is he that giveth strength and power unto his people. Blessed be God.

PSALM 69

(To the chief musician upon Shoshannim; a psalm of David.)

Save me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul. I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing; I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me. I am weary of my crying; my throat is dried; mine eyes fail while I wait for my God. They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of mine head; they that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are mighty; then I restored that which I took not away. O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from thee. Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord God of hosts, be ashamed for my sake; let not those that seek thee be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel. Because for thy sake I have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face. I am become a stranger unto my brethren, and an alien unto my mother's children. For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up; and the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me. When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach. I made sackcloth also my garment; and I become a proverb to them. They that sit in the gate speak against me; and I was the song of the drunkards. But as for me, my prayer is unto thee, O Lord, in an acceptable time; O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation. Deliver me out of the mire, and let me not sink; let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters. Let not the waterflood overflow me, neither let the deep swallow me up, and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me. Hear me, O Lord; for thy lovingkindness is good; turn unto me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies. And hide not thy face from thy servant; for I am in trouble; hear me speedily. Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it; deliver me because of mine enemies. Thou hast known my reproach, and my shame, and my dishonour; mine adversaries are all before thee. Reproach hath broken my heart, and I am full of heaviness, and I looked for some to take pity, but there was none; and for comforters, but I found none. They gave me also gall for my meat; and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink. Let their table become a snare before them; and that which should have been for their welfare, let it become a trap. Let their eyes be darkened, that they see not; and make their loins continually to shake. Pour out thine indignation upon them, and let thy wrathful anger take hold of them. Let their habitation be desolate; and let none dwell in their tents. For they persecute him whom thou hast smitten; and they talk to the grief of those whom thou hast wounded. Add iniquity unto their iniquity; and let them not come into thy righteousness. Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous. But I am poor and sorrowful; let thy salvation, O God, set me up on high.

I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving. This also shall please the Lord better than an ox or bullock that hath horns and hoofs. The humble shall see this, and be glad; and your heart shall live that seek God. For the Lord heareth the poor, and despiseth not his prisoners. Let the heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and every thing that moveth therein. For God will save Zion, and will build the cities of Judah; that they may dwell there, and have it in possession. The seed also of his servants shall inherit it; and they that love his name shall dwell therein.

PSALM 70

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

Make haste, O God, to deliver me, make haste to help me, O Lord. Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek after my soul; let them be turned backward, and put to confusion, that desire my hurt. Let them be turned back for a reward of their shame that say, Aha, aha. Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee; and let such as love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified. But I am poor and needy; make haste unto me, O God; thou art my help and my deliverer, O Lord, make no tarrying.

PSALM 71

In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be put to confusion. Deliver me in thy righteousness, and cause me to escape; incline thine ear unto me, and save me. Be thou my strong habitation, whereunto I may continually resort; thou hast given commandment to save me; for thou art my rock and my fortress. Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel men. For thou art my hope, O Lord God; thou art my trust from my youth. By thee have I been holden up from the womb; thou art he that took me out of my mother's bowels; my praise shall be continually of thee. I am as a wonder unto many; but thou art my strong refuge. Let my mouth be filled with thy praise and with thy honour all the day. Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth. For mine enemies speak against me; and they that lay wait for my soul take counsel together, saying, God hath forsaken him; persecute and take him; for there is none to deliver him.

O God, be not far from me; O my God, make haste for my help. Let them be confounded and consumed that are adversaries to my soul; let them be covered with reproach and dishonour that seek my hurt. But I will hope continually, and will yet praise thee more and more. My mouth shall shew forth thy righteousness and thy salvation all the day; for I know not the numbers thereof. I will go in the strength of the Lord God; I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only. O God, thou hast taught me from my youth; and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works. Now also when I am old and grayheaded, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come. Thy righteousness also, O God, is very high, who hast done great things; O God, who is like unto thee! Thou, which hast shewed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again, and shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth. Thou shalt increase my greatness, and comfort me on every side. I will also praise thee with the psaltery,even thy truth, O my God; unto thee will I sing with the harp, O thou Holy One of Israel. My lips shall greatly rejoice when I sing unto thee; and my soul, which thou hast redeemed. My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long; for they are confounded, for they are brought unto shame, that seek my hurt.

PSALM 72

(A psalm of David for Solomon.)

Give the king thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the king's son. He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment. The mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness. He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor. They shall fear thee as long as the sun and moon endure, throughout all generations. He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass; as showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; and his enemies shall lick the dust. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents; the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. Yea, all kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him. For he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and him that hath no helper. He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall save the souls of the needy. He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence; and precious shall their blood be in his sight. And he shall live, and to him shall be given of the gold of Sheba; prayer also shall be made for him continually; and daily shall he be praised. There shall be an handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon; and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth. His name shall endure for ever; his name shall be continued as long as the sun, and men shall be blessed in him; all nations shall call him blessed. Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever; and let the whole earth be filled with his glory, Amen, and Amen.

PSALM 73

(A psalm of Asaph.)

Truly God is good to Israel, even to such as are of a clean heart. But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped. For I was envious at the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked. For there are no bands in their death, but their strength is firm. They are not in trouble as other men, neither are they plagued like other men. Therefore pride compasseth them about as a chain; violence covereth them as a garment. Their eyes stand out with fatness; they have more than heart could wish. They are corrupt, and speak wickedly concerning oppression; they speak loftily; they set their mouth against the heavens, and their tongue walketh through the earth. Therefore his people return hither (to earth), and waters of a full cup are wrung out to them; and they say, How doth God know? And is there knowledge in the Most High?

Behold, these are the ungodly, who prosper in the world; they increase in riches. Verily I have cleansed my heart in vain, and washed my hands in innocency. For all the day long have I been plagued, and chastened every morning. If I say, I will speak thus; behold, I should offend against the generation of thy children. When I thought to know this, it was too painful for me; until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end. Surely thou didst set them in slippery places; thou castedst them down into destruction. How are they brought into desolation, as in a moment! They are utterly consumed with terrors. As a dream when one awaketh; so, O Lord, when thou awakest, thou shalt despise their image. Thus my heart was grieved, and I was pricked in my reins. So foolish was I, and ignorant; I was as a beast before thee. Nevertheless I am continually with thee; thou hast holden me by my right hand. Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel, and afterward receive me to glory.

Whom have I in heaven but thee? And there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee. My flesh and my heart faileth; but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever. For, lo, they that are far from thee shall perish; thou hast destroyed all them that go a whoring from thee. But it is good for me to draw near to God; I have put my trust in the Lord God, that I may declare all thy works.

PSALM 74

(Maschil of Asaph.)

O God, why hast thou cast us off for ever? Why doth thine anger smoke against the sheep of thy pasture? Remember thy congregation, which thou hast purchased of old; the rod of thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed; this mount Zion, wherein thou hast dwelt. Lift up thy feet unto the perpetual desolations; even all that the enemy hath done wickedly in the sanctuary. Thine enemies roar in the midst of thy congregations; they set up their ensigns for signs. A man was famous according as he had lifted up axes upon the thick trees; but now they break down the carved work thereof at once with axes and hammers. They have cast fire into thy sanctuary, they have defiled by casting down the dwelling place of thy name to the ground. They said in their hearts, Let us destroy them together; they have burned up all the assembly places of God in the land. We see not our signs; there is no more any prophet; neither is there among us any that knoweth how long, God, how long shall the adversary reproach? Shall the enemy blaspheme thy name for ever? Why withdrawest thou thy hand, even thy right hand? Pluck it out of thy bosom. For God is my King of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth. Thou didst divide the sea by thy strength; thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters. Thou brakest the heads of leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness. Thou didst cleave the fountain and the flood; thou driedst up mighty rivers. The day is thine, the night also is thine; thou hast prepared the light and the sun. Thou hast set all the borders of the earth; thou hast made summer and winter. Remember this, that the enemy hath reproached, O Lord, and that the foolish people have blasphemed thy name. O deliver not the soul of thy turtledove unto the multitude of the wicked; forget not the congregation of thy poor for ever. Have respect unto the covenant; for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty. O let not the oppressed return ashamed; let the poor and needy praise thy name. Arise, O God, plead thine own cause; remember how the foolish men reproacheth thee daily. Forget not the voice of thine enemies; the tumult of those that rise up against thee increaseth continually.

PSALM 75

(To the chief musician, Al-taschith; a psalm of Asaph.)

Unto thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks; for that thy name is near thy wondrous works declare. When I shall receive the congregation I will judge uprightly. The earth and all the inhabitants thereof are dissolved; I bear up the pillars of it. Selah. I said unto the fools, Deal not foolishly; and to the wicked, Lift not up the horn; lift not up your horn on high; speak not with a stiff neck. For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south. But God is the judge; he putteth down one, and setteth up another. For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same; but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them. But I will declare for ever; I will sing praises to the God of Jacob. All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

PSALM 76

(To the chief musician on Neginoth; a psalm of Asaph.)

In Judah is God known; his name is great in Israel. In Salem also is his tabernacle, and his dwelling place in Zion. There brake he the arrows of the bow, the shield, and the sword, and the battle. Selah. Thou art more glorious and excellent than the mountains of prey. The stouthearted are spoiled, they have slept their sleep; and none of the men of might have found their hands. At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, both a chariot and horse are cast into a dead sleep. Thou, even thou, art to be feared; and who may stand in thy sight when once thou art angry? Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven; the earth feared, and was still, when God arose to judgment, to save all the meek of the earth. Selah. Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee; the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain. Vow, and pay unto the Lord your God; let all that be round about him bring presents unto him that ought to be feared. He shall cut off the spirit of princes; he is terrible to the kings of the earth.

PSALM 77

(To the chief musician, Jeduthun; a psalm of Asaph.)

I cried unto God with my voice, even unto God with my voice; and he gave ear unto me. In the day of my trouble I sought the Lord; my sore ran in the night, and ceased not; my soul refused to be comforted. I remembered God, and was troubled; I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed. Selah. Thou holdest mine eyes waking; I am so troubled that I cannot speak. I have considered the days of old, the years of ancient times. I call to remembrance my song in the night; I commune with mine own heart; and my spirit made diligent search. Will the Lord cast off for ever? And will he be favourable no more? Is his mercy clean gone for ever? Doth his promise fail for evermore? Hath God forgotten to be gracious? Hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies? Selah. And I said, This is my infirmity; but I will remember the years of the right hand of the most High. I will remember the works of the Lord; surely I will remember thy wonders of old. I will meditate also of all thy work, and talk of thy doings. Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary. Who is so great a God as our God? Thou art the God that doest wonders; thou hast declared thy strength among the people. Thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph. Selah. The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee; they were afraid; the depths also were troubled. The clouds poured out water; the skies sent out a sound; thine arrows also went abroad. The voice of thy thunder was in the heaven; the lightnings lightened the world; the earth trembled and shook. Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known. Thou leddest thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM 78

(Maschil of Asaph.)

Give ear, O my people, to my law; incline your ears to the words of my mouth. I will open my mouth in a parable; I will utter dark sayings of old, which we have heard and known, and our fathers have told us. We will not hide them from their children, shewing to the generation to come the praises of the Lord, and his strength, and his wonderful works that he hath done. For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, that they should make them known to their children; that the generation to come might know them, even the children which should be born; who should arise and declare them to their children; that they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, but keep his commandments; and might not be as their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation; a generation that set not their heart aright, and whose spirit was not steadfast with God. The children of Ephraim, being armed, and carrying bows, turned back in the day of battle. They kept not the covenant of God, and refused to walk in his law; and forgat his works, and his wonders that he had shewed them. Marvellous things did he in the sight of their fathers, in the land of Egypt, in the field of Zoan (Tanis). He divided the sea, and caused them to pass through; and he made the waters to stand as an heap. In the daytime also he led them with a cloud, and all the night with a light of fire. He clave the rocks in the wilderness, and gave them drink as out of great depths. He brought streams also out of the rock, and caused waters to run down like rivers. And they sinned yet more against him by provoking the Most High in the wilderness. And they tempted God in their heart by asking meat for their lust. Yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God furnish a table in the wilderness? Behold, he smote the rock, that the waters gushed out, and the streams overflowed; can he give bread also? Can he provide flesh for his people?

Therefore the Lord heard this, and was wroth; so a fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger also came up against Israel; because they believed not in God and trusted not in his salvation; though he had commanded the clouds from above, and opened the doors of heaven, and had rained down manna upon them to eat, and had given them of the corn of heaven. Man did eat angels' food; he sent them meat to the full. He caused an east wind to blow in the heaven; and by his power he brought in the south wind. He rained flesh also upon them as dust, and feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea; and he let it fall in the midst of their camp, round about their habitations. So they did eat, and were well filled; for he gave them their own desire. They were not estranged from their lust; but while their meat was yet in their mouths, the wrath of God came upon them, and slew the fattest of them, and smote down the chosen men of Israel. For all this they sinned still, and believed not for his wondrous works. Therefore their days did he consume in vanity, and their years in trouble. When he slew them, then they sought him; and they returned and enquired early after God. And they remembered that God was their rock, and the high God their redeemer. Nevertheless they did flatter him with their mouth, and they lied unto him with their tongues. For their heart was not right with him, neither were they stedfast in his covenant. But he, being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity, and destroyed them not; yea, many a time turned he his anger away, and did not stir up all his wrath. For he remembered that they were but flesh; a wind that passeth away, and cometh not again. How oft did they provoke him in the wilderness, and grieve him in the desert! Yea, they turned back and tempted God, and limited the Holy One of Israel. They remembered not his hand, nor the day when he delivered them from the enemy. How he had wrought his signs in Egypt, and his wonders in the field of Zoan; and had turned their rivers into blood; and their floods, that they could not drink. He sent divers sorts of flies among them, which devoured them; and frogs, which destroyed them. He gave also their increase unto the caterpillar, and their labour unto the locust. He destroyed their vines with hail, and their sycamore trees with frost. He gave up their cattle also to the hail, and their flocks to hot thunderbolts. He cast upon them the fierceness of his anger, wrath, and indignation, and trouble, by sending evil angels among them. He made a way to his anger; he spared not their soul from death, but gave their life over to the pestilence; and smote all the firstborn in Egypt; the chief of their strength in the tabernacles of Ham; but made his own people to go forth like sheep, and guided them in the wilderness like a flock. And he led them on safely, so that they feared not; but the sea overwhelmed their enemies. And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased. He cast out the heathen also before them, and divided them an inheritance by line, and made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tents. Yet they tempted and provoked the most high God,and kept not his testimonies; but turned back, and dealt unfaithfully like their fathers; they were turned aside like a deceitful bow. For they provoked him to anger with their high places, and moved him to jealousy with their graven images. When God heard this, he was wroth, and greatly abhorred Israel; so that he forsook the tabernacle of Shiloh, the tent which he placed among men; and delivered his strength into captivity, and his glory into the enemy's hand. He gave his people over also unto the sword; and was wroth with his inheritance. The fire consumed their young men; and their maidens were not given to marriage. Their priests fell by the sword; and their widows made no lamentation. Then the Lord awaked as one out of sleep, and like mighty man that shouteth by reason of wine. And he smote his enemies in the hinder parts; he put them to a perpetual reproach. Moreover he refused the tabernacle of Joseph, and chose not the tribe of Ephraim; but chose the tribe of Judah, the mount Zion which he loved. And he built his sanctuary like high palaces, like the earth which he hath established for ever. He chose David also his servant. And took him from the sheepfolds; from following the ewes great with young he brought him to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance. So he fed them according to the integrity of his heart; and guided them by the skilfulness of his hands.

PSALM 79

(A psalm of Asaph.)

O God, the heathen are come into thine inheritance; thy holy temple have they defiled; they have laid Jerusalem on heaps. The dead bodies of thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the heaven, the flesh of thy saints unto the beasts of the earth. Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem; and there was none to bury them. We are become a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision to them that are round about us. How long, Lord? Wilt thou be angry for ever? Shall thy jealousy burn like fire? Pour out thy wrath upon the heathen that have not known thee, and upon the kingdoms that have not called upon thy name. For they have devoured Jacob, and laid waste his dwelling place. O remember not against us former iniquities; let thy tender mercies speedily prevent us; for we are brought very low. Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; and deliver us, and purge away our sins, for thy name's sake. Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is their God? Let him be known among the heathen in our sight by the revenging of the blood of thy servants which is shed. Let the sighing of the prisoner come before thee; according to the greatness of thy power preserve thou those that are appointed to die; and render unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee, O Lord. So we thy people and sheep of thy pasture will give thee thanks for ever; we will shew forth thy praise to all generations.

PSALM 80

(To the chief musician upon Shoshannim-Eduth; a psalm of Asaph.)

Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubim, shine forth. Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy strength, and come and save us. Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved. O Lord God of hosts, how long wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people? Thou feedest them with the bread of tears; and givest them tears to drink in great measure. Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbours; and our enemies laugh among themselves. Turn us again, O God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved. Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt; thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it. Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land. The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedars. She sent out her boughs unto the sea, and her branches unto the river. Why hast thou then broken down her hedges, so that all they which pass by the way do pluck her? The boar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it. Return, we beseech thee, O God of hosts; look down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine; and the vineyard which thy right hand hath planted, and the branch that thou madest strong for thyself. It is burned with fire, it is cut down; they perish at the rebuke of thy countenance. Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself. So will not we go back from thee; quicken us, and we will call upon thy name. Turn us again, O Lord God of hosts; cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

PSALM 81

(To the chief musician upon Gittith; a psalm of Asaph.)

Sing aloud unto God our strength; make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob. Take a psalm, and bring hither the timbrel, the pleasant harp with the psaltery. Blow up the trumpet in the new moon, in the time appointed, on our solemn feast day. For this was a statute for Israel, and a law of the God of Jacob. This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony, when he went out through the land of Egypt; where I heard a language that I understood not. I removed his shoulder from the burden; his hands were delivered from the pots. Thou calledst in trouble, and I delivered thee; I answered thee in the secret place of thunder; I proved thee at the waters of Meribah. Selah. Hear, O my people, and I will testify unto thee, O Israel, if thou wilt hearken unto me; there shall no strange god be in thee; neither shalt thou worship any strange god. I am the Lord thy God which brought thee out of the land of Egypt; open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it.

But my people would not hearken to my voice; and Israel would none of me. So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lust; and they walked in their own counsels. Oh that my people had hearkened unto me, and Israel had walked in my ways! I should soon have subdued their enemies, and turned my hand against their adversaries. The haters of the Lord should have submitted themselves unto him, but their time should have endured for ever. He should have fed them also with the finest of wheat, and with honey out of the rock should I have satisfied thee.

PSALM 82

(A psalm of Asaph.)

God standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods. How long will ye judge unjustly, and accept the persons of the wicked? Selah.

Defend the poor and fatherless; do justice to the afflicted and needy. Deliver 1 the poor and needy; rid them out of the hand of the wicked. They know not, 2 neither will they understand; they walk on in darkness; all the foundations 3 of the earth are out of course. I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are 4 children of the Most High. But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of 5 the princes. Arise, O God, judge the earth; for thou shalt inherit all nations. 6

PSALM 83

(A psalm of Asaph.)

Keep not thou silence, O God; hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God. 7
For, lo, thine enemies make a tumult; and they that hate thee have lifted up 8 the head. They have taken crafty counsel against thy people, and consulted 9 against thy hidden ones. They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from 10 being a nation; that the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance. For 11 they have consulted together with one consent; they are confederate against 12 thee, the tabernacles of Edom, and the Ishmaelites; of Moab, and the Hagarenes; 13
Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek; the Philistines with the inhabitants of Tyre; 14
Assur also is joined with them; they have holpen the children of Lot. Selah. 15
Do unto them as unto the Midianites; as to Sisera, as to Jabin, at the brook 16 of Kison; which perished at En-dor; they became as dung for the earth. Make 17 their nobles like Oreb, and like Zeeb; yea, all their princes as Zebah, and 18 as Zalmunna, who said, Let us take to ourselves the houses of God in possession. 19
O my God, make them like a wheel, as the stubble before the wind. As the fire 20 burneth a wood, and as the flame setteth the mountains on fire, so persecute 21 them with thy tempest, and make them afraid with thy storm. Fill their faces 22 with shame; that they may seek thy name, O Lord; let them be confounded and 23 troubled for ever; yea, let them be put to shame, and perish; that men may know 24 that thou, whose name alone is JEHOVAH (Jesus Christ) are the Most High over 25 all the earth. 26

PSALM 84

(To the chief musician upon Gittith; a psalm for the sons of Korah.) 27

How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts! My soul longeth, yea, 28 even fainteth for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for 29 the living God. Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest 30 for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O Lord of hosts, 31 my King, and my God. Blessed are they that dwell in thy house; they will be 32 still praising thee. Selah. Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee; 33 in whose heart are the ways of them, who passing through the valley of Baca 34 make it a well; the rain also filleth the pools. They go from strength to 35 strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God. O Lord God of hosts, 36 hear my prayer; give ear, O God of Jacob. Selah. Behold, O God our shield, 37 and look upon the face of thine anointed. For a day in thy courts is better 38 than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. For the Lord God is a Sun and shield, and the Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly. O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

PSALM 85

(To the chief musician; a psalm for the sons of Korah.)

Lord, thou hast been favourable unto thy land; thou hast brought back the captivity of Jacob. Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of thy people, thou hast covered all their sin. Selah. Thou hast taken away all thy wrath; thou hast turned thyself from the fierceness of thine anger. Turn us, O God of our salvation, and cause thine anger toward us to cease. Wilt thou be angry with us for ever? Wilt thou draw out thine anger to all generations? Wilt thou not revive us again, that thy people may rejoice in thee? Shew us thy mercy, O Lord, and grant us thy salvation. I will hear what God the Lord will speak; for he will speak peace unto his people, and to his saints; but let them not turn again to folly. Surely his salvation is nigh them that fear him; that glory may dwell in our land. Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other. Truth shall spring out of the earth; and righteousness shall look down from heaven. Yea, the Lord shall give that which is good; and our land shall yield her increase. Righteousness shall go before him; and shall set us in the way of his steps.

PSALM 86

(A psalm of David.)

Bow down thine ear, O Lord, hear me; for I am poor and needy. Preserve my soul, for I am holy, O thou my God; save thy servant that trusteth in thee. Be merciful unto me, O Lord, for I cry unto thee daily. Rejoice the soul of thy servant; for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee. Give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer; and attend to the voice of my supplications. In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee, for thou wilt answer me. Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works. All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. For thou art great, and doest wondrous things; thou art God alone. Teach me thy Way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name. I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart; and I will glorify thy name for evermore. For great is thy mercy toward me; and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell. O God, the proud are risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul; and have not set thee before them. But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth. O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me; give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid. Shew me a token for good;

built up for ever; thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens. I have made a covenant with my chosen; I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. Selah. And the heavens shall praise thy wonders, O Lord; thy faithfulness also in the congregation of the saints. For who in the heaven can be compared unto the Lord? Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the Lord? God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him. O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? Or to thy faithfulness round about thee? Thou rulest the raging of the sea; when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them. Thou hast broken Rahab in pieces, as one that is slain; thou hast scattered thine enemies with thy strong arm. The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine; as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them. The north and the south thou hast created them; Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name. Thou hast a mighty arm; strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand. Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne; mercy and truth shall go before thy face. Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound; they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. In thy name shall they rejoice all the day; and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted. For thou art the glory of their strength; and in thy favour our horn shall be exalted. For the Lord is our defence; and the Holy One of Israel is our King.

Then thou spakest in vision to thy holy one, and saidst, I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people. I have found David my servant, with my holy oil have I anointed him; with whom my hand shall be established; mine arm also shall strengthen him. The enemy shall not exact upon him; nor the son of wickedness afflict him. And I will beat down his foes before his face, and plague them that hate him. But my faithfulness and my mercy shall be with him; and in my name shall his horn be exalted. I will set his hand also in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers. He shall cry unto me, Thou art my father, my God, and the rock of my salvation. Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth. My mercy will I keep for him for evermore; and my covenant shall stand fast with him. His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven. If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments, if they break my statutes, and keep not my commandments, then will I visit their transgression with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes. Nevertheless my lovingkindness will I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established for ever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven. Selah.

But thou hast cast off and abhorred; thou hast been wroth with thine anointed. Thou hast made void the covenant of thy servant; thou hast profaned his crown by casting it to the ground. Thou hast broken down all his hedges; thou hast brought his strong holds to ruin. All that pass by the way spoil him; he is a reproach to his neighbours. Thou hast set up the right hand of his adversaries; thou hast made all his enemies to rejoice. Thou hast also turned the edge of his sword, and hast not made him to stand in the battle.

Thou hast made his glory to cease, and cast his throne down to the ground. The days of his youth hast thou shortened; thou hast covered him with shame. Selah. How long, Lord? Wilt thou hide thyself for ever? Shall thy wrath burn like fire? Remember how short my time is; wherefore hast thou made all men in vain? What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? Shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave? Selah. Lord, where are thy former lovingkindnesses, which thou swarest unto David in thy truth? Remember, Lord, the reproach of thy servants; how I do bear in my bosom the reproach of all the mighty people; wherewith thine enemies have reproached, O Lord; wherewith they have reproached the footsteps of thine anointed. Blessed be the Lord for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

PSALM 90

(A psalm of Moses, the man of God.)

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men. For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night. Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep; in the morning they are like grass which groweth up. In the morning it flourisheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth. For we are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled. Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our secret sins in the light of thy countenance. For all our days are passed away in thy wrath; we spend our years as a tale that is told. The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labour and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away. Who knoweth the power of thine anger? Even according to thy fear, so is thy wrath. So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Return, O Lord, how long? And let it repent thee concerning thy servants. O satisfy us early with thy mercy; that we may rejoice and be glad all our days. Make us glad according to the days wherein thou hast afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil. Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.

PSALM 91

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress, my God; in him will I trust. Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence. He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust; his truth shall be thy shield and buckler. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday. A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked. Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the Most High, thy habitation; there shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling. For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone. Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder; the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet. Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him; I will set him on high, because he hath known my name. He shall call upon me, and I will answer him; I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him. With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.

PSALM 92

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High; to shew forth thy lovingkindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night, upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon the psaltery; upon the harp with a solemn sound. For thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy work; I will triumph in the works of thy hands. O Lord, how great are thy works! And thy thoughts are very deep. A brutish man knoweth not; neither doth a fool understand this. When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever; but thou, Lord, art most high for evermore. For, lo, thine enemies, O Lord, for, lo, thine enemies shall perish; all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered. But my horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an unicorn; I shall be anointed with fresh oil. Mine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me. The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing, to shew that the Lord is upright; he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

PSALM 93

The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself; the world also is established, that it cannot be moved; thy throne is established of old; thou art from everlasting. The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves. The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea. Thy testimonies are very sure; holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, for ever.

PSALM 94

O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself. Lift up thyself, thou judge of the earth; render a reward to the proud. Lord, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph? How long shall they utter and speak hard things? And all the workers of iniquity boast themselves? They break in pieces thy people, O Lord, and afflict thine heritage. They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless. Yet they say, The Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it. Understand, ye brutish among the people; and ye fools, when will ye be wise? He that planted the ear, shall he not hear? He that formed the eye, shall he not see? He that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? He that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know? The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are vanity. Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law; that thou mayest give him rest from the days of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked. For the Lord will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance. But judgment shall return unto righteousness; and all the upright in heart shall follow it.

Who will rise up for me against the evildoers? Or who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity? Unless the Lord had been my help, my soul had almost dwelt in silence; when I said, my foot slippeth; thy mercy, O Lord, held me up. In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul. Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by a law? They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood. But the Lord is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge. And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the Lord our God shall cut them off.

PSALM 95

O come, let us sing unto the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In his hand are the deep places of the earth; the strength of the hills is his also. The sea is his, and he made it; and his hands formed the dry land. O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand; to day if ye will hear his voice; harden not your heart, as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness, when your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my work. Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways; unto whom I sware in my wrath that they should not enter into my rest.

PSALM 96

O sing unto the Lord a new song; sing unto the Lord, all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day. Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people. For the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised; he is to be feared above all gods. For all the gods of the nations are idols; but the Lord made the heavens. Honour and majesty are before him; strength and beauty are in his sanctuary. Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come into his courts. O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness; fear before him, all the earth. Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth; the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved; he shall judge the people righteously. Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; let the field be joyful, and all that is therein; then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord; for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth; he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth.

PSALM 97

The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles be glad thereof. Clouds and darkness are round about him; righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne. A fire goeth before him, and burneth up his enemies round about. His lightnings enlightened the world; the earth saw, and trembled. The hills melted like wax at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth. The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory. Confounded be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols; worship him, all ye gods. Zion heard, and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgments, O Lord. For thou, Lord art high above all the earth; thou art exalted far above all gods. Ye that love the Lord, hate evil; he preserveth the souls of his saints; he delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked. Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart. Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.

PSALM 98

O sing unto the Lord a new song; for he hath done marvellous things; his right hand, and his holy arm, hath gotten him the victory. The Lord hath made known his salvation; his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heathen. He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel; all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all the earth; make a loud noise, and rejoice, and sing praise. Sing unto the Lord with the harp; with the harp, and the voice of a psalm. With trumpets and sound of cornet make a joyful noise before the Lord, the King. Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. Let the floods clap their hands; let the hills be joyful together before the Lord; for he cometh to judge the earth; with righteousness shall he judge the world, and the people with equity.

PSALM 99

The Lord reigneth; let the people tremble; he sitteth between the cherubim; let the earth be moved. The Lord is great in Zion; and he is high above all the people. Let them praise thy great and terrible name, for it is holy. The king's strength also loveth judgment; thou dost establish equity, thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob. Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy. Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the Lord, and he answered them. He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar; they kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them. Thou answeredst them, O Lord our God; thou wast a God that forgavest them, though thou tookest vengeance of their inventions. Exalt the Lord our God, and worship at his holy hill; for the Lord our God is holy.

PSALM 100

Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness; come before his presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name. For the Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations.

PSALM 101

(A psalm of David.)

I will sing of mercy and judgment; unto thee, O Lord, will I sing. I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk within my house with a perfect heart. I will set no wicked thing before mine eyes; I hate the work of them that turn aside; it shall not cleave to me. A froward heart shall depart from me; I will not know a wicked person. Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I cut off; him that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer. Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me; he that walketh in a perfect way, he shall serve me. He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house; he that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight. I will early destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all wicked doers from the city of the Lord.

PSALM 102

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and let my cry come unto thee. Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me; in the day when I call, answer me speedily. For my days are consumed like smoke, and my bones are burned as an hearth. My heart is smitten, and withered like grass; so that I forget to eat my bread. By reason of the voice of my groaning my bones cleave to my skin. I am like a pelican of the wilderness; I am like an owl of the desert. I watch, and am as a sparrow alone upon the house top. Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that are made against me are sworn against me. For I have eaten ashes like bread, and mingled my drink with weeping, because of thine indignation and thy wrath; for thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down. My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass. But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations. Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Zion: for the time to favour her, yea, the set time, is come. For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favour the dust thereof. So the heathen shall fear the name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth thy glory.

When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory. He will regard the prayer of the destitute, and not despise their prayer. This shall be written for the generation to come; and the people which shall be created shall praise the Lord. For he hath looked down from the height of his sanctuary; from heaven did the Lord behold the earth; to hear the groaning of the prisoner; to loose those that are appointed to death; to declare the name of the Lord in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem; when the people are gathered together, and the kingdoms, to serve the Lord. He weakened my strength in the way; he shortened my days. I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days; thy years are throughout all generations. Of old hast thou laid the foundations of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end; the children of thy servants shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee.

PSALM 103

(A psalm of David.)

Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's. The Lord executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed. He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel. The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. He will not always chide; neither will he keep his anger for ever. He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities. For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children; to such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them, the Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the Lord, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure. Bless the Lord, all his works in all places of his dominion; bless the Lord, O my soul.

PSALM 104

Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty; who coverest thyself with light as with a garment; who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain; who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters; who maketh the clouds his chariot; who walketh upon the wings of the wind; who maketh his angels spirits; his ministers a flaming fire; who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever.

Thou coveredst it with the deep as with a garment; the waters stood above the mountains. At thy rebuke they fled; at the voice of thy thunder they hasted away. They go up by the mountains; they go down by the valleys unto the place which thou hast founded for them. Thou hast set a bound that they may not pass over; that they turn not again to cover the earth. He sendeth the springs into the valleys, which run among the hills; they give drink to every beast of the field; the wild asses quench their thirst; by them shall the fowls of the heaven have their habitation, which sing among the branches. He watereth the hills from his chambers; the earth is satisfied with the fruit of thy works. He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man; that he may bring forth food out of the earth; and wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine, and bread which strengtheneth man's heart. The trees of the Lord are full of sap; the cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted; where the birds make their nests; as for the stork, the fir trees are her house. The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats; and the rocks for the conies (rock-badgers). He appointed the moon for seasons; the sun knoweth his going down. Thou makest darkness, and it is night; wherein all the beasts of the forest do creep forth. The young lions roar after their prey, and seek their meat from God; the sun ariseth, they gather themselves together, and lay them down in their dens; man goeth forth unto his work and to his labour until the evening; O Lord, how manifold are thy works! In wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of thy riches. So is this great and wide sea, wherein are things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts; there go the ships; there is that leviathan, whom thou hast made to play therein; these wait all upon thee; that thou mayest give them their meat in due season; that thou givest them they gather; thou openest thine hand, they are filled with good. Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled; thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust. Thou sendest forth thy Spirit, they are created; and thou renewest the face of the earth. The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever; the Lord shall rejoice in his works. He looketh on the earth, and it trembleth; he toucheth the hills, and they smoke. I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live; I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. My meditation of him shall be sweet; I will be glad in the Lord. Let the sinners be consumed out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more. Bless thou the Lord, O my soul. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 105

O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name; make known his deeds among the people. Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him; talk ye of all his wondrous works. Glory ye in his holy name; let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. Seek the Lord, and his strength; seek his face evermore. Remember his marvellous works that he hath done; his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth; O ye seed of Abraham his servant, ye children of Jacob his chosen. He is the Lord our God; his judgments are in all the earth. He hath remembered his covenant for ever, the word which he commanded to a thousand generations. Which covenant he made with Abraham, and his oath unto Isaac; and confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant, saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the lot of your inheritance, when they were but a few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in it; when they went from one nation to another, from one kingdom to another people. He suffered no man to do them wrong; yea, he reproved kings for their sakes, saying, Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm. Moreover he called for a famine upon the land; he brake the whole staff of bread. He sent a man before them, even Joseph, who was sold for a servant; whose feet they hurt with fetters; he was laid in iron, until the time that his word came; the word of the Lord tried him. The king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free. He made him lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance; to bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his senators wisdom. Israel also came into Egypt; and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham. And he increased his people greatly; and made them stronger than their enemies. He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtilely with his servants. He sent Moses his servant, and Aaron whom he had chosen; they shewed his signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham. He sent darkness, and made it dark; and they rebelled not against his word. He turned their waters into blood, and slew their fish. Their land brought forth frogs in abundance, in the chambers of their kings. He spake, and there came divers sorts of flies, and lice in all their coasts. He gave them hail for rain, and flaming fire in their land. He smote their vines also and their fig trees; and brake the trees of their coasts. He spake, and the locusts came, and caterpillars, and that without number; and did eat up all the herbs in their land, and devoured the fruit of their ground.

He smote also all the firstborn in their land, the chief of all their strength. He brought them forth also with silver and gold; and there was not one feeble person among their tribes. Egypt was glad when they departed; for the fear of them fell upon them. He spread a cloud for a covering; and fire to give light in the night. The people asked, and he brought quails, and satisfied them with the bread of heaven. He opened the rock, and the waters gushed out; they ran in the dry places like a river. For he remembered his holy promise, and Abraham his servant. And he brought forth his people with joy, and his chosen with gladness; and gave them the lands of the heathen; and they inherited the labour of the people; that they might observe his statutes, and keep his laws. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 106

Praise ye the Lord; O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. Who can utter the mighty acts of the Lord? Who can shew forth all his praise? Blessed are they that keep judgment, and he that doeth righteousness at all times. Remember me, O Lord, with the favour that thou bearest unto thy people; O visit me with thy salvation; that I may see the good of thy chosen; that I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation; that I may glory with thine inheritance. We have sinned with our fathers, we have committed iniquity, we have done wickedly. Our fathers understood not thy wonders in Egypt; they remembered not the multitude of thy mercies; but provoked him at the sea, even at the Red sea also, and it was dried up; so he led them through the depths, as through the wilderness. And he saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy. And the waters covered their enemies; there was not one of them left. Then believed they his words; they sang his praise. They soon forgat his works; they waited not for his counsel; but lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert. And he gave them their request; but sent leanness into their soul. They envied Moses also in the camp, and Aaron the saint of the Lord. The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan, and covered the company of Abiram. And a fire was kindled in their company; the flame burned up the wicked. They made a calf in Horeb, and worshipped the molten image. Thus they changed their glory into the similitude of an ox that eateth grass. They forgat God their savior, which had done great things in Egypt; wondrous works in the land of Ham, and terrible things by the Red sea.

Therefore he said that he would destroy them, had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the breach, to turn away his wrath, lest he should destroy them. Yea, they despised the pleasant land, they believed not his word; but murmured in their tents, and hearkened not unto the voice of the Lord. Therefore he lifted up his hand against them, to overthrow them in the wilderness; to overthrow their seed also among the nations, and to scatter them in the lands. They joined themselves also unto Baal-peor, and ate the sacrifices of the dead. Thus they provoked him to anger with their inventions; and the plague brake in upon them. Then stood up Phinehas, and executed judgment, and so the plague was stayed. And that was counted unto him for righteousness unto all generations for evermore. They angered him also at the waters of strife, so that it went ill with Moses for their sakes; because they provoked his spirit, so that he spake unadvisedly with his lips. They did not destroy the nations, concerning whom the Lord commanded them; but were mingled among the heathen, and learned their works. And they served their idols; which were a snare unto them. Yea, they sacrificed their sons and their daughters unto devils, and shed innocent blood, even the blood of their sons and of their daughters, whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan; and the land was polluted with blood. Thus were they defiled with their own works, and went a whoring with their own inventions. Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against his people, insomuch that he abhorred his own inheritance. And he gave them into the hand of the heathen; and they that hated them ruled over them. Their enemies also oppressed them, and they were brought into subjection under their hand. Many times did he deliver them; but they provoked him with their counsel, and were brought low for their iniquity. Nevertheless he regarded their affliction, when he heard their cry; and he remembered for them his covenant, and repented according to the multitude of his mercies. He made them also to be pitied of all those that carried them captives. Save us, O Lord our God, and gather us from among the heathen, to give thanks unto thy holy name, and to triumph in thy praise. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting; and let all the people say, Amen. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 107

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy; and gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and from the south. They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in. Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! For he satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness. Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, being bound in affliction and iron; because they rebelled against the words of God, and contemned the counsel of the Most High; therefore he brought down their heart with labour; they fell down, and there was none to help. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he saved them out of their distresses. He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and brake their bands in sunder. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! For he hath broken the gates of brass, and cut the bars of iron in sunder.

Fools because of their transgression, and because of their iniquities, are afflicted. Their soul abhorreth all manner of food; and they draw near unto the gates of death. Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he saveth them out of their distresses. He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing. They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. For he commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof; they mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths; their soul is melted because of trouble; they reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wits' end; then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses. He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

Let them exalt him also in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the elders. He turneth rivers into a wilderness, and the watersprings into dry ground; a fruitful land into barrenness, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein. He turneth the wilderness into a standing water, and dry ground into watersprings. And there he maketh the hungry to dwell, that they may prepare a city for habitation; and sow the fields, and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase. He blesseth them also, so that they are multiplied greatly; and suffereth not their cattle to decrease. Again, they are minished (diminished) and brought low through oppression, affliction, and sorrow. He poureth contempt upon princes, and causeth them to wander in the wilderness, where there is no way. Yet setteth he the poor on high from affliction, and maketh him families like a flock. The righteous shall see it, and rejoice; and all iniquity shall stop her mouth. Whoso is wise, and will observe these things, even they shall understand the lovingkindness of the Lord.

PSALM 108

(A psalm of David.)

O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise, even with my glory. Awake, psaltery and harp; I myself will awake early. I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; and I will sing praises unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great above the heavens; and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; and thy glory above all the earth; that thy beloved may be delivered; save with thy right hand, and answer me. God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth. Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of mine head; Judah is my lawgiver; Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe; over Philistia will I triumph. Who will bring me into the strong city? Who will lead me into Edom? Wilt not thou, O God, who hast cast us off? And wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our hosts? Give us help from trouble; for vain is the help of man. Through God we shall do valiantly; for he it is that shall tread down our enemies.

PSALM 109

(A psalm of David.)

Hold not thy peace, O God of my praise; for the mouth of the wicked and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me; they have spoken against me with a lying tongue. They compassed me about also with words of hatred; and fought against me without a cause. For my love they are my adversaries; but I give myself unto prayer. And they have rewarded me evil for good, and hatred for my love. Set thou a wicked man over him; and let Satan stand at his right hand. When he shall be judged, let him be condemned; and let his prayer become sin. Let his days be few; and let another take his office. Let his children be fatherless, and his wife a widow. Let his children be continually vagabonds, and beg; let them seek their bread also out of their desolate places. Let the extortioner catch all that he hath; and let the strangers spoil his labour. Let there be none to extend mercy unto him; neither let there be any to favour his fatherless children. Let his posterity be cut off; and in the generation following let their name be blotted out. Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered with the Lord; and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out. Let them be before the Lord continually, that he may cut off the memory of them from the earth. Because that he remembered not to shew mercy, but persecuted the poor and needy man, that he might even slay the broken in heart. As he loved cursing, so let it come unto him; as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him. As he clothed himself with cursing like as with his garment, so let it come into his bowels like water, and like oil into his bones. Let it be unto him as the garment which covereth him, and for a girdle wherewith he is girded continually. Let this be the reward of mine adversaries from the Lord, and of them that speak evil against my soul. But do thou for me, O God the Lord, for thy name's sake; because thy mercy is good, deliver thou me; for I am poor and needy, and my heart is wounded within me. I am gone like the shadow when it declineth; I am tossed up and down as the locust. My knees are weak through fasting; and my flesh faileth of fatness. I became also a reproach unto them; when they looked upon me they shaked their heads. Help me, O Lord my God; O save me according to thy mercy; that they may know that this is thy hand; that thou, Lord, hast done it. Let them curse, but bless thou; when they arise, let them be ashamed; but let thy servant rejoice. Let mine adversaries be clothed with shame, and let them cover themselves with their own confusion, as with a mantle. I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those that condemn his soul.

PSALM 110

(A psalm of David.)

The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool. The Lord shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion; rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power, in the beauties of holiness from the womb of the morning; thou hast the dew of thy youth. The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the Order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand shall strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He shall judge among the heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over many countries. He shall drink of the brook in the way; therefore shall he lift up the head.

PSALM 111

Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation. The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. His work is honourable and glorious; and his righteousness endureth for ever. He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered; the Lord is gracious and full of compassion. He hath given meat unto them that fear him; he will ever be mindful of his covenant. He hath shewed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen. The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. He sent redemption unto his people; he hath commanded his covenant for ever; holy and reverend is his name. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; a good understanding have all they that do his commandments; his praise endureth for ever.

PSALM 112

Praise ye the Lord. Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, that delighteth greatly in his commandments. His seed shall be mighty upon earth; the generation of the upright shall be blessed. Wealth and riches shall be in his house; and his righteousness endureth for ever. Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness; he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous. A good man sheweth favour, and lendeth; he will guide his affairs with discretion. Surely he shall not be moved for ever; the righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance. He shall not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord. His heart is established, he shall not be afraid, until he see his desire upon his enemies. He hath dispersed, he hath given to the poor; his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted with honour. The wicked shall see it, and be grieved; he shall gnash with his teeth, and melt away; the desire of the wicked shall perish.

PSALM 113

Praise ye the Lord. Praise, O ye servants of the Lord, praise the name of the Lord. Blessed be the name of the Lord from this time forth and for evermore. From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the Lord's name is to be praised. The Lord is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens. Who is like unto the Lord our God, who dwelleth on high; who humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven, and in the earth! He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth the needy out of the dunghill; that he may set him with princes, even with the princes of his people. He maketh the barren woman to keep house, and to be a joyful mother of children. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 114

When Israel went out of Egypt, the house of Jacob from a people of strange language, Judah was his sanctuary, and Israel his dominion. The sea saw it, and fled; Jordan was driven back. The mountains skipped like rams, and the little hills like lambs. What ailed thee, O thou sea, that thou fleddest? Thou Jordan, that thou wast driven back? Ye mountains, that ye skipped like rams; and ye little hills, like lambs! Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob; which turned the rock into a standing water, the flint into a fountain of waters.

PSALM 115

Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory; for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake. Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is now their God? But our God is in the heavens; he hath done whatsoever he hath pleased. Their idols are silver and gold, the work of men's hands; they have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not; they have ears, but they hear not; noses have they, but they smell not; they have hands, but they handle not; feet have they, but they walk not; neither speak they through their throat. They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them. O Israel, trust thou in the Lord; he is their help and their shield. O house of Aaron, trust in the Lord; he is their help and their shield. Ye that fear the Lord, trust in the Lord; he is their help and their shield. The Lord hath been mindful of us; he will bless us; he will bless the house of Israel; he will bless the house of Aaron. He will bless them that fear the Lord, both small and great. The Lord shall increase you more and more, you and your children. Ye are blessed of the Lord which made heaven and earth. The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's; but the earth hath he given to the children of men. The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence. But we will bless the Lord from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the Lord.

PSALM 116

I love the Lord, because he hath heard my voice and my supplications. Because he hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live. The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell gat hold upon me; I found trouble and sorrow. Then called I upon the name of the Lord; O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul. Gracious is the Lord, and righteous; yea, our God is merciful. The Lord preserveth the simple; I was brought low, and he helped me. Return unto thy rest, O my soul; for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee. For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling. I will walk before the Lord in the land of the living; I believed, therefore have I spoken.

I was greatly afflicted; I said in my haste, All men are liars. What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people. Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints. O Lord, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid; thou hast loosed my bonds. I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people; in the courts of the Lord's house, in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 117

O praise the Lord, all ye nations; praise him, all ye people. For his merciful kindness is great toward us; and the truth of the Lord endureth for ever. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 118

O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good; because his mercy endureth for ever. Let Israel now say, that his mercy endureth for ever; let the house of Aaron now say, that his mercy endureth for ever; let them now that fear the Lord say, that his mercy endureth for ever.

I called upon the Lord in distress; the Lord answered me, and set me in a large place. The Lord is on my side; I will not fear; what can man do unto me? The Lord taketh my part with them that help me; therefore shall I see my desire upon them that hate me. It is better to trust in the Lord, than to put confidence in man. It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes. All nations compassed me about; but in the name of the Lord will I destroy them. They compassed me about; yea, they compassed me about; but in the name of the Lord I will destroy them. They compassed me about like bees; they are quenched as the fire of thorns; for in the name of the Lord I will destroy them. Thou hast thrust sore at me that I might fall; but the Lord helped me. The Lord is my strength and song, and is become my salvation. The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the dwellings of the righteous; the right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly. The right hand of the Lord is exalted; the right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly. I shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord. The Lord hath chastened me sore; but he hath not given me over unto death. Open to me the gates of righteousness; I will go into them, and I will praise the Lord; this gate of the Lord, into which the righteous shall enter. I will praise thee; for thou hast heard me, and art become my salvation. The cornerstone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner. This is the Lord's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes. This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it. Save now, I beseech thee, O Lord; O Lord, I beseech thee, send now prosperity. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord; we have blessed you out of the house of the Lord. God is the Lord, which hath shewed us light; bind the sacrifice with cords, even unto the horns of the altar. Thou art my God, and I will praise thee; thou art my God, I will exalt thee. O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM 119

א ALEPH

Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart. They also do no iniquity; they walk in his ways.

Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently. O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes! Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments. I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I shall have learned thy righteous judgments. I will keep thy statutes; O forsake me not utterly.

ב BETH

Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word. With my whole heart have I sought thee; O let me not wander from thy commandments. Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Blessed art thou, O Lord; teach me thy statutes. With my lips have I declared all the judgments of thy mouth. I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches. I will meditate in thy precepts, and have respect unto thy ways. I will delight myself in thy statutes; I will not forget thy word.

ג GIMEL

Deal bountifully with thy servant, that I may live, and keep thy word. Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law. I am a sojourner in the earth; hide not thy commandments from me. My soul breaketh for the longing that it hath unto thy judgments at all times. Thou hast rebuked the proud that are cursed, which do err from thy commandments. Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies. Princes also did sit and speak against me; but thy servant did meditate in thy statutes. Thy testimonies also are my delight and my counsellors.

ד DALETH

My soul cleaveth unto the dust; quicken thou me according to thy word. I have declared my ways, and thou heardest me; teach me thy statutes. Make me to understand the way of thy precepts; so shall I talk of thy wondrous works. My soul melteth for heaviness; strengthen thou me according unto thy word. Remove from me the way of lying; and grant me thy law graciously. I have chosen the way of truth; thy judgments have I laid before me. I have stuck unto thy testimonies; O Lord, put me not to shame. I will run the way of thy commandments, when thou shalt enlarge my heart.

ה HE

Teach me, O Lord, the way of thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end. 1
Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart. 2
Make me to go in the path of thy commandments; for therein do I delight. 3
Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness. 4
Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity; and quicken thou me in thy way. 5
Establish thy word unto thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear. 6
Turn away my reproach which I fear; for thy judgments are good. 7
Behold, I have longed after thy precepts; quicken me in thy righteousness. 8

ו VAU (Waw)

Let thy mercies come also unto me, O Lord, even thy salvation, according to thy word. 9
So shall I have wherewith to answer him that reproacheth me; for I trust in thy word. 10
And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth; for I have hoped in thy judgments. 11
So shall I keep thy law continually for ever and ever. 12
And I will walk at liberty; for I seek thy precepts. 13
I will speak of thy testimonies also before kings, and will not be ashamed. 14
And I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I have loved. 15
My hands also will I lift up unto thy commandments, which I have loved; and I will meditate in thy statutes. 16 17

ז ZAIN (Zayin)

Remember the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope. 18
This is my comfort in my affliction; for thy word hath quickened me. 19
The proud have had me greatly in derision; yet have I not declined from thy law. 20
I remembered thy judgments of old, O Lord; and have comforted myself. 21
Horror hath taken hold upon me because of the wicked that forsake thy law. 22
Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage. 23
I have remembered thy name, O Lord, in the night, and have kept thy law. 24
This I had,because I kept thy precepts. 25

ח CHETH (Hheth)

Thou art my portion, O Lord; I have said that I would keep thy words. 26
I intreated thy favour with my whole heart; be merciful unto me according to thy word. 27 28
I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies. 29
I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments. 30
The bands of the wicked have robbed me; but I have not forgotten thy law. 31
At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments. 32
I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts. 33
The earth, O Lord, is full of thy mercy; teach me thy statutes.

ט TETH

Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word. 34
Teach me good judgment and knowledge; for I have believed thy commandments. 35
Before I was afflicted I went astray; but now have I kept thy word. 36
Thou art good, and doest good; teach me thy statutes. 37
The proud have forged a lie against me; but I will keep thy precepts with my whole heart. 38
Their heart is as fat as grease; but I delight in thy law. It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes. The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver.

י JOD (Yodh)

Thy hands have made me and fashioned me; give me understanding, that I may learn thy commandments. They that fear thee will be glad when they see me; because I have hoped in thy word. I know, O Lord, that thy judgments are right, and that thou in faithfulness hast afflicted me. Let, I pray thee, thy merciful kindness be for my comfort, according to thy word unto thy servant. Let thy tender mercies come unto me, that I may live; for thy law is my delight. Let the proud be ashamed; for they dealt perversely with me without a cause; but I will meditate in thy precepts. Let those that fear thee turn unto me, and those that have known thy testimonies. Let my heart be sound in thy statutes; that I be not ashamed.

כ CAPH (Kaph)

My soul fainteth for thy salvation; but I hope in thy word. Mine eyes fail for thy word, saying, When wilt thou comfort me? For I am become like a bottle in the smoke; yet do I not forget thy statutes. How many are the days of thy servant? When wilt thou execute judgment on them that persecute me? The proud have digged pits for me, which are not after thy law. All thy commandments are faithful; they persecute me wrongfully; help thou me. They had almost consumed me upon earth; but I forsook not thy precepts. Quicken me after thy lovingkindness; so shall I keep the testimony of thy mouth.

ל LAMED

For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. Thy faithfulness is unto all generations; thou hast established the earth, and it abideth. They continue this day according to thine ordinances; for all are thy servants. Unless thy law had been my delight, I should then have perished in mine affliction. I will never forget thy precepts; for with them thou hast quickened me. I am thine, save me; for I have sought thy precepts. The wicked have waited for me to destroy me; but I will consider thy testimonies. I have seen an end of all perfection; but thy commandment is exceeding broad.

מ MEM

O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day. Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies; for they are ever with me. I have more understanding than all my teachers; for thy testimonies are my meditation. I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts. I have refrained my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy word. I have not departed from thy judgments; for thou hast taught me. How sweet are thy words unto my taste! Yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth! Through thy precepts I get understanding; therefore I hate every false way.

נ NUN (Nūn)

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. I have sworn, and I will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments. I am afflicted very much; quicken me, O Lord, according unto thy word. Accept, I beseech thee, the freewill offerings of my mouth, O Lord, and teach me thy judgments. My soul is continually in my hand; yet do I not forget thy law. The wicked have laid a snare for me; yet I erred not from thy precepts. Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage for ever; for they are the rejoicing of my heart. I have inclined mine heart to perform thy statutes alway, even unto the end.

ס SAMECH (Samekh)

I hate vain thoughts; but thy law do I love. Thou art my hiding place and my shield; I hope in thy word. Depart from me, ye evildoers; for I will keep the commandments of my God. Uphold me according unto thy word, that I may live; and let me not be ashamed of my hope. Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe; and I will have respect unto thy statutes continually. Thou hast trodden down all them that err from thy statutes; for their deceit is falsehood. Thou puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross; therefore I love thy testimonies. My flesh trembleth for fear of thee; and I am afraid of thy judgments.

ע AIN (Ayin)

I have done judgment and justice; leave me not to mine oppressors. Be surety for thy servant for good; let not the proud oppress me. Mine eyes fail for thy salvation, and for the word of thy righteousness. Deal with thy servant according unto thy mercy, and teach me thy statutes. I am thy servant; give me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies. It is time for thee, Lord, to work; for they have made void thy law. Therefore I love thy commandments above gold; yea, above fine gold. Therefore I esteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right; and I hate every false way.

פ PE

Thy testimonies are wonderful; therefore doth my soul keep them. The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. I opened my mouth, and panted; for I longed for thy commandments. Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, as thou usest to do unto those that love thy name. Order my steps in thy word; and let not any iniquity have dominion over me. Deliver me from the oppression of man; so will I keep thy precepts. Make thy face to shine upon thy servant; and teach me thy statutes. Rivers of waters run down mine eyes, because they keep not thy law.

צ TZADDI (Tsadheh)

Righteous art thou, O Lord, and upright are thy judgments. Thy testimonies that thou hast commanded are righteous and very faithful. My zeal hath consumed me, because mine enemies have forgotten thy words. Thy word is very pure; therefore thy servant loveth it. I am small and despised; yet do not I forget thy precepts. Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth. Trouble and anguish have taken hold on me; yet thy commandments are my delights. The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting; give me understanding, and I shall live.

ק KOPH (Qoph)

I cried with my whole heart; hear me, O Lord; I will keep thy statutes. I cried unto thee; save me, and I shall keep thy testimonies. I prevented the dawning of the morning, and cried; I hoped in thy word. Mine eyes prevent the night watches, that I might meditate in thy word. Hear my voice according unto thy lovingkindness, O Lord, quicken me according to thy judgment. They draw nigh that follow after mischief; they are far from thy law. Thou art near, O Lord, and all thy commandments are truth. Concerning thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever.

ר RESH

Consider mine affliction, and deliver me; for I do not forget thy law. Plead my cause, and deliver me; quicken me according to thy word. Salvation is far from the wicked; for they seek not thy statutes. Great are thy tender mercies, O Lord; quicken me according to thy judgments. Many are my persecutors and mine enemies; yet do I not decline from thy testimonies. I beheld the transgressors, and was grieved; because they kept not thy word. Consider how I love thy precepts; quicken me, O Lord, according to thy lovingkindness. Thy word is true from the beginning; and every one of thy righteous judgments endureth for ever.

ש SCHIN (Shīn)

Princes have persecuted me without a cause; but my heart standeth in awe of thy word. I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great spoil. I hate and abhor lying; but thy law do I love. Seven times a day do I praise thee because of thy righteous judgments. Great peace have they which love thy law; and nothing shall offend them. Lord, I have hoped for thy salvation, and done thy commandments. My soul hath kept thy testimonies; and I love them exceedingly. I have kept thy precepts and thy testimonies; for all my ways are before thee.

ת TAU (Taw)

Let my cry come near before thee, O Lord; give me understanding according to thy word. Let my supplication come before thee; deliver me according to thy word. My lips shall utter praise, when thou hast taught me thy statutes. My tongue shall speak of thy word; for all thy commandments are righteousness. Let thine hand help me; for I have chosen thy precepts. I have longed for thy salvation, O Lord; and thy law is my delight. Let my soul live, and it shall praise thee; and let thy judgments help me. I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek thy servant; for I do not forget thy commandments.

PSALM 120

In my distress I cried unto the Lord, and he heard me. Deliver my soul, O Lord, from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue. What shall be given unto thee? Or what shall be done unto thee, thou false tongue? Sharp arrows of the mighty, with coals of juniper. Woe is me, that I sojourn in Mesech, that

I dwell in the tents of Kedar! My soul hath long dwelt with him that hateth peace. I am for peace; but when I speak, they are for war. | 1 2

PSALM 121

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; he that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore. | 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

PSALM 122

(A psalm of David.)

I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem; Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together; whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord; for there are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee. Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces. For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee. Because of the house of the Lord our God I will seek thy good. | 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19

PSALM 123

Unto thee lift I up mine eyes, O thou that dwellest in the heavens. Behold, as the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress; so our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until that he have mercy upon us. Have mercy upon us, O Lord, have mercy upon us; for we are exceedingly filled with contempt. Our soul is exceedingly filled with the scorning of those that are at ease, and with the contempt of the proud. | 20 21 22 23 24 25 26

PSALM 124

(A psalm of David.)

If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say; if it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us; then the waters had overwhelmed us, the stream had gone over our soul; then the proud waters had gone over our soul. Blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as | 27 28 29 30 31 a prey to their teeth. Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers; the snare is broken, and we are escaped. Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

PSALM 125

They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people from henceforth even for ever. For the rod of the wicked shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous; lest the righteous put forth their hands unto iniquity. Do good, O Lord, unto those that be good, and to them that are upright in their hearts. As for such as turn aside unto their crooked ways, the Lord shall lead them forth with the workers of iniquity; but peace shall be upon Israel.

PSALM 126

When the Lord turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing; then said they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for them. The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad. Turn again our captivity, O Lord, as the streams in the south. They that sow in tears shall reap in joy; he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

PSALM 127

Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain. It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of sorrows; for so he giveth his beloved sleep. Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord; and the fruit of the womb is his reward. As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man, so are children of the youth; happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them; they shall not be ashamed, but they shall speak with the enemies in the gate.

PSALM 128

Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord; that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands; happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee. Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house; thy children like olive plants round about thy table. Behold, that thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the Lord. The Lord shall bless thee out of Zion; and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life. Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children, and peace upon Israel.

PSALM 129

Many a time have they afflicted me from my youth, may Israel now say; many a time have they afflicted me from my youth, yet they have not prevailed against me. The plowers plowed upon my back; they made long their furrows. The Lord is righteous; he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked. Let them all be confounded and turned back that hate Zion. Let them be as the grass upon the housetops, which withereth afore it groweth up; wherewith the reaper filleth not his hand; nor he that bindeth sheaves his bosom; neither do they which go by say, The blessing of the Lord be upon you; we bless you in the name of the Lord. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9

PSALM 130

Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Lord. Lord, hear my voice; let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications. If thou, Lord, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand? But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared. I wait for the Lord; my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope. My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning; I say, more than they that watch for the morning. Let Israel hope in the Lord; for with the Lord there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption; and he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17

PSALM 131

(A psalm of David.)

Lord, my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty; neither do I exercise myself in great matters, or in things too high for me. Surely I have behaved and quieted myself, as a child that is weaned of his mother; my soul is even as a weaned child. Let Israel hope in the Lord from henceforth and for ever. | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21

PSALM 132

(A psalm of David.)

Lord, remember David, and all his afflictions; how he sware unto the Lord, and vowed unto the mighty God of Jacob; Surely I will not come into the dwelling of my house, nor go up into my bed; I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids, until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob. Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah; we found it in the fields of Ya'ar. We will go into his tabernacles; we will worship at his footstool. Arise, O Lord, into thy rest; thou, and the ark of thy strength. Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy saints shout for joy. For thy servant David's sake turn not away the face of thine anointed. The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne; if thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore; he will not turn from it. For the Lord hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation; | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 31 | 32 | 33 | 34 this is my rest for ever; here will I dwell; for I have desired it; I will abundantly bless her provision; I will satisfy her poor with bread; I will also clothe her priests with salvation; and her saints shall shout aloud for joy. There will I make the horn of David to bud; I have ordained a lamp for mine anointed. His enemies will I clothe with shame; but upon himself shall his crown flourish.

PSALM 133

(A psalm of David.)

Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard; that went down to the skirts of his garments, as the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion; for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

PSALM 134

Behold, bless ye the Lord, all ye servants of the Lord, which by night stand in the house of the Lord. Lift up your hands in the sanctuary, and bless the Lord. The Lord that made heaven and earth bless thee out of Zion.

PSALM 135

Praise ye the Lord; praise ye the name of the Lord; praise him, O ye servants of the Lord. Ye that stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God, praise the Lord; for the Lord is good; sing praises unto his name; for it is pleasant. For the Lord hath chosen Jacob unto himself, and Israel for his peculiar treasure. For I know that the Lord is great, and that our Lord is above all gods. Whatsoever the Lord pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, in the seas, and all deep places.

He causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth; he maketh lightnings for the rain; he bringeth the wind out of his treasuries; he who smote the firstborn of Egypt, both of man and beast; who sent tokens and wonders into the midst of thee, O Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants; who smote great nations, and slew mighty kings; Sihon king of the Amorites, and Og king of Bashan, and all the kingdoms of Canaan; and gave their land for an heritage, an heritage unto Israel his people. Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations. For the Lord will judge his people, and he will repent himself concerning his servants. The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the work of men's hands; they have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not; they have ears, but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouths; they that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them. Bless the Lord, O house of Israel; bless the Lord, O house of Aaron; bless the Lord, O house of Levi (Al-Levi), ye that fear the Lord, bless the Lord. Blessed be the Lord out of Zion, which dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM 136

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever. O give thanks unto the God of gods, for his mercy endureth for ever. O give thanks to the Lord of lords, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him who alone doeth great wonders, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him that by wisdom made the heavens, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him that stretched out the earth above the waters, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him that made great lights, for his mercy endureth for ever; the sun to rule by day, for his mercy endureth for ever; the moon and stars to rule by night, for his mercy endureth for ever. To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn, for his mercy endureth for ever; and brought out Israel from among them, for his mercy endureth for ever; with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, for his mercy endureth for ever. To him which divided the Red sea into parts, for his mercy endureth for ever; and made Israel to pass through the midst of it, for his mercy endureth for ever; but overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red sea, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him which led his people through the wilderness, for his mercy endureth for ever; to him which smote great kings, for his mercy endureth for ever; and slew famous kings, for his mercy endureth for ever; Sihon king of the Amorites, for his mercy endureth for ever; and Og the king of Bashan, for his mercy endureth for ever; and gave their land for an heritage, for his mercy endureth for ever; even an heritage unto Israel his servant, for his mercy endureth for ever; who remembered us in our low estate, for his mercy endureth for ever; and hath redeemed us from our enemies, for his mercy endureth for ever; who giveth food to all flesh, for his mercy endureth for ever. O give thanks unto the God of heaven, for his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM 137

By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof. For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion. How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy. Remember, O Lord, the children of Edom in the day of Jerusalem, who said; Rase it, rase it, even to the foundation thereof. O daughter of Babylon, who art to be destroyed; happy shall he be, that rewardeth thee as thou hast served us. Happy shall he be, that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones.

PSALM 138

(A psalm of David.)

I will praise thee with my whole heart; before the gods will I sing praise unto thee. I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy name for thy lovingkindness and for thy truth; for thou hast magnified thy word above all thy name. In the day when I cried, thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul. All the kings of the earth shall praise thee, O Lord, when they hear the words of thy mouth. Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the Lord; for great is the glory of the Lord. Though the Lord be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly; but the proud he knoweth afar off. Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me; thou shalt stretch forth thine hand against the wrath of mine enemies, and thy right hand shall save me. The Lord will perfect that which concerneth me; thy mercy, O Lord, endureth for ever; forsake not the works of thine own hands.

PSALM 139

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off. Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether. Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it. Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? Or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike to thee. For thou hast created my inward parts; thou hast covered me in my mother's womb, I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made; marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well. My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being imperfect; and in thy book all my members were written, which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them. How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! How great is the sum of them! If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand; when I awake, I am still with thee.

Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God; depart from me therefore, ye bloody men; for they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain. Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? And am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee? I hate them with perfect hatred; I count them mine enemies. Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.

PSALM 140

(To the chief musician; a psalm of David.)

Deliver me, O Lord, from the evil man; preserve me from the violent man, which imagine mischiefs in their heart; continually are they gathered together for war; they have sharpened their tongues like a serpent; adders' poison is under their lips. Selah. Keep me, O Lord, from the hands of the wicked; preserve me from the violent men, who have purposed to to overthrow my goings. The proud have hid a snare for me, and cords; they have spread a net by the wayside; they have set gins (traps) for me. Selah.

I said unto the Lord, Thou art my God; hear the voice of my supplications, O Lord, O God the Lord, the strength of my salvation; thou hast covered my head in the day of battle. Grant not, O Lord, the desires of the wicked; further not his wicked device; lest they exalt themselves. Selah. As for the head of those that compass me about, let the mischief of their own lips cover them. Let burning coals fall upon them; let them be cast into the fire, into deep pits, that they rise not up again. Let not an evil speaker be established in the earth; evil shall hunt the violent man to overthrow him. I know that the Lord will maintain the cause of the afflicted, and the right of the poor; surely the righteous shall give thanks unto thy name; the upright shall dwell in thy presence.

PSALM 141

(A psalm of David.)

Lord, I cry unto thee; make haste unto me; give ear unto my voice, when I cry unto thee. Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense; and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice. Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips. Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practise wicked works with men that work iniquity; and let me not eat of their dainties. Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break my head; for yet my prayer also shall be in their calamities. When their judges are overthrown in stony places, they shall hear my words, for they are sweet. Our bones are scattered at the grave's mouth, as when one cutteth and cleaveth wood upon the earth; but mine eyes are unto thee, O God the Lord; in thee is my trust; leave not my soul destitute. Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity. Let the wicked fall into their own nets, whilst that I withal escape.

PSALM 142

(Maschil of David; when he was in the cave.)

I cried unto the Lord with my voice; with my voice unto the Lord did I make my supplication. I poured out my complaint before him; I shewed before him my trouble. When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou knewest my path. In the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a snare for me. I looked on my right hand, and beheld, but there was no man that would know me; refuge failed me; no man cared for my soul. I cried unto thee, O Lord, I said: Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living; attend unto my cry, for I am brought very low; deliver me from my persecutors, for they are stronger than I; bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy name. The righteous shall compass me about, for thou shalt deal bountifully with me.

PSALM 143

(A psalm of David.)

Hear my prayer, O Lord, give ear to my supplications; in thy faithfulness, answer me in thy righteousness. And enter not into judgment with thy servant, for in thy sight shall no man living be justified. For the enemy hath persecuted my soul; he hath smitten my life down to the ground, he hath made me to dwell in darkness, as those that have been long dead. Therefore is my spirit overwhelmed within me; my heart within me is desolate. I remember the days of old; I meditate on all thy works; I muse on the work of thy hands. I stretch forth my hands unto thee; my soul thirsteth after thee, as a thirsty land. Selah. Hear me speedily, O Lord; my spirit faileth; hide not thy face from me, lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit. Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust; cause me to know the way wherein I should walk, for I lift up my soul unto thee. Deliver me, O Lord, from mine enemies; I flee unto thee to hide me. Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my God; thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness. Quicken me, O Lord, for thy name's sake; for thy righteousness' sake bring my soul out of trouble. And of thy mercy cut off mine enemies, and destroy all them that afflict my soul, for I am thy servant.

PSALM 144

(A psalm of David.)

Blessed be the Lord my Strength, which teacheth my hands to war, and my fingers to fight; my goodness, and my fortress; my high tower, and my deliverer; my shield, and he in whom I trust; who subdueth my people under me. Lord, what is man, that thou takest knowledge of him! Or the son of man, that thou makest account of him! Man is like to vanity; his days are as a shadow that passeth away. Bow thy heavens, O Lord, and come down; touch the mountains, and they shall smoke. Cast forth lightning, and scatter them; shoot out thine arrows, and destroy them. Send thine hand from above; rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity; and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood. I will sing a new song unto thee, O God; upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing praises unto thee. It is he that giveth salvation unto kings; who delivereth David his servant from the hurtful sword. Rid me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity,and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood. That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that our daughters may be as corner stones, polished after the similitude of a palace; that our garners may be full, affording all manner of store; that our sheep may bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets; that our oxen may be strong to labour; that there be no breaking in, nor going out; that there be no complaining in our streets. Happy is that people, that is in such a case; yea, happy is that people, whose God is the Lord.

PSALM 145

(A psalm of David.)

I will extol thee, my God, O king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever. Every day will I bless thee; and I will praise thy name for ever and ever. Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; and his greatness is unsearchable. One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts. I will speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works. And men shall speak of the might of thy terrible acts; and I will declare thy greatness. They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness. The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy. The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works.

All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power; to make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom. Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations. The Lord upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down. The eyes of all wait upon thee; and thou givest them their meat in due season. Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth. He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him; he also will hear their cry, and will save them. The Lord preserveth all them that love him, but all the wicked will he destroy. My mouth shall speak the praise of the Lord; and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever and ever.

PSALM 146

Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah). Praise the Lord, O my soul. While I live will I praise the Lord; I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being. Put not your trust in princes, nor in the sons of men, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God; which made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that therein is; which keepeth truth for ever; which executeth judgment for the oppressed; which giveth food to the hungry. The Lord looseth the prisoners; the Lord openeth the eyes of the blind; the Lord raiseth them that are bowed down; the Lord loveth the righteous; the Lord preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow; but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down. The Lord shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah).

PSALM 147

Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah); for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant; and praise is comely. The Lord doth build up Jerusalem; he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel. He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds. He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names. Great is our Lord, and of great power; his understanding is infinite. The Lord lifteth up the meek; he casteth the wicked down to the ground. Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God; who covereth the heaven with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains. He giveth to the beast his food, and to the young ravens which cry; he delighteth not in the strength of the horse; he taketh not pleasure in the legs of a man. The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear him, in those that hope in his mercy. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem; praise thy God, O Zion. For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; he hath blessed thy children within thee. He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat. He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth; his word runneth very swiftly; he giveth snow like wool; he scattereth the hoarfrost like ashes. He casteth forth his ice like morsels; who can stand before his cold? He sendeth out his word, and melteth them; he causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow. He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statute and his judgments unto Israel; he hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah).

PSALM 148

Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah). Praise ye the Lord from the heavens; praise him in the heights; praise ye him, all his angels; praise ye him, all his hosts; praise ye him, sun and moon; praise him, all ye stars of light; praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens. Let them praise the name of the Lord; for he commanded, and they were created. He hath also established them for ever and ever; he hath made a decree which shall not pass. Praise the Lord from the earth, ye dragons (sea monsters), and all deeps; fire and hail; snow and vapour, stormy wind fulfilling his word; mountains, and all hills, fruitful trees, and all cedars; beasts, and all cattle, creeping things, and flying fowl; kings of the earth, and all people, princes, and all judges of the earth; both young men, and maidens, old men, and children; let them praise the name of the Lord; for his name alone is excellent; his glory is above the earth and heaven. He also exalteth the horn of his people, the praise of all his saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto him. Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah).

PSALM 149

Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah). Sing unto the Lord a new song, and his praise in the congregation of saints. Let Israel rejoice in him that made him; let the children of Zion be joyful in their King. Let them praise his name in the dance; let them sing praises unto him with the timbrel and harp. For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people; he will beautify the meek with salvation. Let the saints be joyful in glory; let them sing aloud upon their beds. Let the high praises of God be in their mouth, and a twoedged sword in their hand; to execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishments upon the people; to bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron; to execute upon them the judgment written; this honour have all his saints. Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah).

PSALM 150

Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah). Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him in the firmament of his power; praise him for his mighty acts; praise him according to his excellent greatness. Praise him with the sound of the trumpet; praise him with the psaltery and harp; praise him with the timbrel and dance; praise him with stringed instruments, pipes and flutes; praise him upon the loud cymbals; praise him upon the high sounding cymbals. Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord (Halleluyah).

Words of Wisdom of King Solomon the Preacher*

(also known as The Proverbs and Ecclesiastes)

Most of these words of wisdom were recorded during the reign of King Solomon (1037-997 B.C.), son of David by Bath-sheba; but others were recorded during the reign of King Hezekiah (or Lemuel) of Judah (745-716 B.C.).

SECTION 1

The Words of Wisdom or the Proverbs of Solomon the son of David, king of Israel. To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding; to receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and equity; to give subtilty to the simple, to the young man, knowledge and discretion.

A wise man will hear, and will increase learning, and a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels; to understand a proverb, and the interpretation, the words of the wise, and their mysterious sayings.

---

* He was also ordained an Aaronic Priest, by the Holy Priesthood of God; with power and authority to offer sacrifices and offerings unto the Lord, to bless the congregation, and to burn incense in the house of the Lord; as was his father David, son of Jesse, king of Judah and Israel.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction. My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother; for they shall be an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck. My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not; if they say, Come with us, let us lay wait for blood, let us lurk privily for the innocent without cause; let us swallow them up alive as the grave, and whole, as those that go down into the pit; we shall find all precious substance, we shall fill our houses with spoil; cast in thy lot among us; let us all have one purse! My son, walk not thou in the way with them; refrain thy foot from their path, for their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed blood. Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird, and they lay wait for their own blood; they lurk privily for their own lives. So are the ways of every one that is greedy of gain, which taketh away the life of the owners thereof.

Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets; she crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates; in the city she uttereth her words, saying: How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? And the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge? Turn you at my reproof; behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you. Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded; but ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof. I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh; when your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you. Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me; for they hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord. They would none of my counsel; they despised all my reproof. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices; for the turning away of the simple shall slay them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them. But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil.

SECTION 2

My son, if thou wilt receive my words, and treasure my commandments with thee; so that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding; yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding; if thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures; then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God. For the Lord giveth wisdom; out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding. He layeth up sound wisdom for the righteous; he is a buckler to them that walk uprightly; he keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints. Then shalt thou understand righteousness, and judgment, and equity; yea, every good path.

When wisdom entereth into thine heart, and knowledge is pleasant unto thy soul, discretion shall preserve thee, understanding shall keep thee; to deliver thee from the way of the evil man, from the men that speaketh froward things, who leave the paths of uprightness, to walk in the ways of darkness; who rejoice to do evil, and delight in the frowardness of the wicked; whose ways are crooked, and they froward in their paths; to deliver thee from the strange woman, even from the stranger which flattereth with her words; which forsaketh the guide of her youth, and forgetteth the covenant of her God; for her house inclineth unto death, and her paths unto the dead; none that go unto her return again, neither take they hold of the paths of life. That thou mayest walk in the way of good men, and keep the paths of the righteous; for the upright shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it; but the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressors shall be rooted out of it.

SECTION 3

My son, forget not my law, but let thine heart keep my commandments; for length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee. Let not mercy and truth forsake thee; bind them about thy neck, write them upon the table of thine heart; so shalt thou find favour and good understanding in the sight of God and man. Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord, and depart from evil; it shall be health to thy navel, and marrow to thy bones. Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine. My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, neither be weary of his correction; for whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth.

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold. She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her; length of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand riches and honour; her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace; she is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her; and happy is every one that retaineth her. The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens. By his knowledge the depths are broken up, and the clouds drop down the dew. My son, let not them depart from thine eyes; keep sound wisdom and discretion; so shall they be life unto thy soul, and grace to thy neck; then shalt thou walk in thy way safely, and thy foot shall not stumble. When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid; yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet. Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken. Withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it. Say not unto thy neighbour, Go, and come again, and to morrow I will give; when thou hast it by thee. Devise not evil against thy neighbour, seeing he dwelleth securely by thee. Strive not with a man without cause, if he have done thee no harm. Envy thou not the oppressor, and choose none of his ways; for the froward is abomination to the Lord; but his secret is with the righteous. The curse of the Lord is in the house of the wicked; but he blesseth the habitation of the just. Surely he scorneth the scorners, but he giveth grace unto the lowly. The wise shall inherit glory, but shame shall be the promotion of fools.

SECTION 4

Hear, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding. For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my law. For I was my father's son, tender and only beloved in the sight of my mother. He taught me also, and said unto me, Let thine heart retain my words; keep my commandments, and live; get wisdom, get understanding; forget it not; neither decline from the words of my mouth; forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee; love her, and she shall keep thee.

Wisdom is the principal thing, therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding. Exalt her, and she shall promote thee; she shall bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her; she shall give to thine head an ornament of grace, a crown of glory shall she deliver to thee. Hear, O my son, and receive my saying; and the years of thy life shall be many. I have taught thee in the way of wisdom; I have led thee in right paths. When thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened; and when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble. Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go; keep her, for she is thy life. Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men. Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away. For they sleep not, except they have done mischief; and their sleep is taken away, unless they cause some to fall; for they eat the bread of wickedness, and drink the wine of violence. But the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. The way of the wicked is as darkness, they know not at what they stumble. My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart; for they are life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh. Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. Put away from thee a froward mouth, and perverse lips put far from thee. Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee. Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left; remove thy foot from evil.

SECTION 5

My son, attend unto my wisdom, and bow thine ear to my understanding; that thou mayest regard discretion, and that thy lips may keep knowledge. For the lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb, and her mouth is smoother than oil; but her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a twoedged sword; her feet go down to death; her steps take hold on hell. Lest thou shouldest ponder the path of life, her ways are moveable, that thou canst not know them. Hear me now therefore, O ye children, and depart not from the words of my mouth. Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the door of her house; lest thou give thine honour unto others, and thy years unto the cruel; lest strangers be filled with thy wealth; and thy labours be in the house of a stranger; and thou mourn at the last, when thy flesh and thy body are consumed; and say, How have I hated instruction, and my heart despised reproof; and have not obeyed the voice of my teachers, nor inclined mine ear to them that instructed me! I was almost in all evil in the midst of the congregation and assembly.

Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well (meaning to rely on your own intuition, and on your own Higher Self or Soul); let thy fountains be dispersed abroad, and rivers of waters in the streets; let them be only thine own, and not strangers' with thee. Let thy fountain be blessed; and rejoice with the wife of thy youth; let her be as the loving hind and pleasant roe; let her breasts satisfy thee at all times; and be thou ravished always with her love. And why wilt thou, my son, be ravished with a strange woman, and embrace the bosom of a stranger? For the ways of man are before the eyes of the Lord, and he pondereth all his goings. His own iniquities shall take the wicked himself, and he shall be holden with the cords of his sins. He shall die without instruction; and in the greatness of his folly he shall go astray.

SECTION 6

My son, if thou be surety for thy friend, if thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger; thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth, do this now, my son, and deliver thyself, when thou art come into the hand of thy friend; go, humble thyself, and make sure thy friend. Give not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber to thine eyelids. Deliver thyself as a roe from the hand of the hunter, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler. Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise; which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest. How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep? Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep; so shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man. A naughty person, a wicked man, walketh with a froward (perverse) mouth; he winketh with his eyes, he speaketh with his feet, he teacheth with his fingers; frowardness is in his heart, he deviseth mischief continually; he soweth discord. Therefore shall his calamity come suddenly; suddenly shall he be broken without remedy.

These six things doth the Lord hate; yea, seven are an abomination unto him: a proud look, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent blood, an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, a false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren. My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother; bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck. When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou awakest, it shall talk with thee. For the commandment is a lamp; and the law is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life; to keep thee from the evil woman, from the flattery of the tongue of a strange woman. Lust not after her beauty in thine heart; neither let her take thee with her eyelids. For by means of a whorish woman a man is brought to a piece of bread; and the adulteress will hunt for the precious life. Can a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned? Can one go upon hot coals, and his feet not be burned? So he that goeth in to his neighbour's wife; whosoever toucheth her shall not be innocent. Men do not despise a thief, if he steal to satisfy his soul when he is hungry; but if he be found, he shall restore sevenfold;

he shall give all the substance of his house. But whoso committeth adultery with a woman lacketh understanding; he that doeth it destroyeth his own soul. A wound and dishonour shall he get; and his reproach shall not be wiped away. For jealousy is the rage of a man; therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance. He will not regard any ransom; neither will he rest content, though thou givest many gifts.

SECTION 7

My son, keep my words, and lay up my commandments with thee. Keep my commandments, and live; and my law as the apple of thine eye; bind them upon thy fingers, write them upon the table of thine heart. Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman; that they may keep thee from the strange woman, from the stranger which flattereth with her words. For at the window of my house I looked through my casement; and beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths, a young man void of understanding, passing through the street near her corner; and he went the way to her house, in the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night; and, behold, there met him a woman with the attire of an harlot, and subtil of heart. (She is loud and stubborn; her feet abide not in her house; now is she without, now in the streets, and lieth in wait at every corner.) So she caught him, and kissed him, and with an impudent face said unto him, I have peace offerings with me; this day have I payed my vows. Therefore came I forth to meet thee, diligently to seek thy face, and I have found thee; I have decked my bed with coverings of tapestry, with carved works, with fine linen of Egypt; I have perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon; come, let us take our fill of love until the morning; let us solace ourselves with loves. For the goodman is not at home, he is gone on a long journey; he hath taken a bag of money with him, and will come home at the day appointed. With her much fair speech she caused him to yield, with the flattering of her lips she forced him. He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks; till a dart strike through his liver; as a bird hasteth to the snare, and knoweth not that it is for his life. Hearken unto me now therefore, O ye children, and attend to the words of my mouth. Let not thine heart decline to her ways, go not astray in her paths. For she hath cast down many wounded; yea, many strong men have been slain by her; her house is the way to hell, going down to the chambers of death.

SECTION 8

Doth not wisdom cry? And understanding put forth her voice? She standeth in the top of high places, by the way in the places of the paths; she crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors: Unto you, O men, I call, and my voice is to the sons of man; O ye simple, understand wisdom, and ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart; hear, for I will speak of excellent things, and the opening of my lips shall be right things; for my mouth shall speak truth, and wickedness is an abomination to my lips. All the

he shall give all the substance of his house. But whoso committeth adultery with a woman lacketh understanding; he that doeth it destroyeth his own soul. A wound and dishonour shall he get; and his reproach shall not be wiped away. For jealousy is the rage of a man; therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance. He will not regard any ransom; neither will he rest content, though thou givest many gifts.

SECTION 7

My son, keep my words, and lay up my commandments with thee. Keep my commandments, and live; and my law as the apple of thine eye; bind them upon thy fingers, write them upon the table of thine heart. Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman; that they may keep thee from the strange woman, from the stranger which flattereth with her words. For at the window of my house I looked through my casement; and beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths, a young man void of understanding, passing through the street near her corner; and he went the way to her house, in the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night; and, behold, there met him a woman with the attire of an harlot, and subtil of heart. (She is loud and stubborn; her feet abide not in her house; now is she without, now in the streets, and lieth in wait at every corner.) So she caught him, and kissed him, and with an impudent face said unto him, I have peace offerings with me; this day have I payed my vows. Therefore came I forth to meet thee, diligently to seek thy face, and I have found thee; I have decked my bed with coverings of tapestry, with carved works, with fine linen of Egypt; I have perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon; come, let us take our fill of love until the morning; let us solace ourselves with loves. For the goodman is not at home, he is gone on a long journey; he hath taken a bag of money with him, and will come home at the day appointed. With her much fair speech she caused him to yield, with the flattering of her lips she forced him. He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks; till a dart strike through his liver; as a bird hasteth to the snare, and knoweth not that it is for his life. Hearken unto me now therefore, O ye children, and attend to the words of my mouth. Let not thine heart decline to her ways, go not astray in her paths. For she hath cast down many wounded; yea, many strong men have been slain by her; her house is the way to hell, going down to the chambers of death.

SECTION 8

Doth not wisdom cry? And understanding put forth her voice? She standeth in the top of high places, by the way in the places of the paths; she crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors: Unto you, O men, I call, and my voice is to the sons of man; O ye simple, understand wisdom, and ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart; hear, for I will speak of excellent things, and the opening of my lips shall be right things; for my mouth shall speak truth, and wickedness is an abomination to my lips. All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing froward or perverse in them. They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge. Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold. For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it. I, wisdom, dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions. The fear of the Lord is to hate evil; pride, arrogancy, the evil way, and the froward mouth, do I hate. Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom; I am understanding; I have strength; by me kings reign, and princes decree justice; by me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth; I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me. Riches and honour are with me; yea, durable riches and righteousness. My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver. I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment; that I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures. The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old. I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. When there were no depths, I was brought forth, when there were no fountains abounding with water; before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth; while as yet he had not made the earth, nor the fields, nor the highest part of the dust of the world. When he prepared the heavens, I was there; when he set a compass upon the face of the depth; when he established the clouds above; when he strengthened the fountains of the deep; when he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment; when he appointed the foundations of the earth; then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him; rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth; and my delights were with the sons of men. Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children; for blessed are they that keep my ways. Hear instruction, and be wise, and refuse it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors. For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord. But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul; all they that hate me love death.

SECTION 9

Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars; she hath killed her beasts; she hath mingled her wine; she hath furnished her table; she hath sent forth her maidens; she crieth upon the highest places of the city, Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither; as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him, Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled. Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding.

He that reproveth a scorner getteth to himself shame; and he that rebuketh a wicked man getteth himself a blot. Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee; rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee. Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser; teach a just man, and he will increase in learning. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; and the knowledge of the holy is understanding. For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased. If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself; but if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it.

A foolish woman is clamorous; she is simple, and knoweth nothing. For she sitteth at the door of her house, on a seat in the high places of the city, to call passengers who go right on their ways, Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither; and as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him, Stolen waters are sweet, and bread eaten in secret is pleasant. But he knoweth not that the dead are there; and that her guests are in the depths of hell.

SECTION 10

A wise son maketh a glad father; but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother. Treasures of wickedness profit nothing; but righteousness delivereth from death. The Lord will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish; but he casteth away the substance of the wicked. He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich. He that gathereth in summer is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame. Blessings are upon the head of the just; but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked. The memory of the just is blessed; but the name of the wicked shall rot. The wise in heart will receive commandments; but a prating fool shall fall. He that walketh uprightly walketh surely; but he that perverteth his ways shall be known. He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow; but a prating fool shall fall. The mouth of a righteous man is a well of life; but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked. Hatred stirreth up strifes; but love covereth all sins. In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found; but a whip is for the back of him that is void of understanding. Wise men lay up knowledge; but the mouth of the foolish is his destruction. The rich man's wealth is his strong city; the destruction of the poor is their poverty. The labour of the righteous tendeth to life; the fruit of the wicked to sin. He is in the way of life that keepeth instruction; but he that refuseth reproof erreth. He that hideth hatred with lying lips, and he that uttereth a slander, is a fool. In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin; but he that refraineth his lips is wise. The tongue of the just is as choice silver; the heart of the wicked is little worth. The lips of the righteous feed many, but fools die for want of wisdom. The blessing of the Lord maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it. It is as sport to a fool to do mischief; but a man of understanding hath wisdom. The fear of the wicked, it shall come upon him; but the desire of the righteous shall be granted. As the whirlwind passeth, so is the wicked no more; but the righteous is an everlasting foundation. As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes, so is the sluggard to them that send him. The fear of the Lord prolongeth days; but the years of the wicked shall be shortened. The hope of the righteous shall be gladness; but the expectation of the wicked shall perish. The way of the Lord is strength to the upright; but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity. The righteous shall never be removed; but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth in peace. The mouth of the just bringeth forth wisdom; but the froward (perverse) tongue shall be cut out in due time. The lips of the righteous know what is acceptable; but the mouth of the wicked speaketh frowardness.

SECTION 11

A false balance (deceptive scale) is abomination to the Lord; but a just weight is his delight. When pride cometh, then cometh shame; but with the lowly wisdom and blessings are their reward. The integrity of the upright shall guide them; but the perverseness of transgressors shall destroy them. Riches profit not in the day of wrath; but righteousness delivereth from death. The righteousness of the perfect shall direct his way; but the wicked shall fall by his own wickedness. The righteousness of the upright shall deliver them; but transgressors shall be taken in their own naughtiness. When a wicked man dieth, his expectation shall perish, and the hope of unjust men perisheth. The righteous is delivered out of trouble; and the wicked cometh in his stead. An hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbour; but through knowledge shall the just be delivered. When it goeth well with the righteous, the city rejoiceth; and when the wicked perish, there is shouting. By the blessing of the upright the city is exalted; but it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked. He that is void of wisdom despiseth his neighbour; but a man of understanding holdeth his peace. A talebearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter.

Where no counsel is, the people fall, but in the multitude of counsellors there is safety. He that is surety (for debts) for a stranger shall smart for it; and he that hateth suretiship is sure. A gracious woman retaineth honour; and strong men retain riches. The merciful man doeth good to his own soul; but he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh. The wicked worketh a deceitful work; but to him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward. As righteousness tendeth to life; so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death. They that are of a froward heart are abomination to the Lord; but such as are upright in their way are his delight. Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished; but the seed of the righteous shall be delivered. As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which is without discretion. The desire of the righteous is only good; but the expectation of the wicked is wrath.

There is he that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is he that withholdeth more than is meet, but tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself. He that withholdeth grain, the people shall curse him; but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it. He that diligently seeketh good procureth favour; but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him. He that trusteth in his riches shall fall; but the righteous shall flourish as a branch. He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind, and the fool shall be servant to the wise of heart. The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise. Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth; but much more the wicked and the sinner.

SECTION 12

Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledge; but he that hateth reproof is brutish. A good man obtaineth favour of the Lord; but a man of wicked devices will he condemn. A man shall not be established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous shall not be moved. A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but she that maketh ashamed is as rottenness in his bones. The thoughts of the righteous are right; but the counsels of the wicked are deceit. The words of the wicked are to lie in wait for blood; but the mouth of the upright shall deliver them. The wicked are overthrown, and are not; but the house of the righteous shall stand. A man shall be commended according to his wisdom; but he that is of a perverse heart shall be despised. He that is despised, and hath a servant, is better than he that honoureth himself, and lacketh bread. A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel. He that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread; but he that followeth vain persons is void of understanding. The wicked desireth the net of evil men; but the root of the righteous yieldeth fruit. The wicked is snared by the transgression of his lips; but the just shall come out of trouble. A man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth; and the recompence of a man's hands shall be rendered unto him. The way of a fool is right in his own eyes; but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise. A fool's wrath is presently known; but a prudent man covereth shame.

He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness; but a false witness deceit. There is he that speaketh like the piercings of a sword; but the tongue of the wise is health. The lip of truth shall be established for ever; but a lying tongue is but for a moment. Deceit is in the heart of them that imagine evil; but to the counsellors of peace is joy. There shall no evil happen to the just; but the wicked shall be filled with mischief. Lying lips are abomination to the Lord; but they that deal truly are his delight. A prudent man concealeth knowledge; but the heart of fools proclaimeth foolishness. The hand of the diligent shall bear rule; but the slothful shall be under tribute. Heaviness in the heart of man maketh it stoop, but a good word maketh it glad. The righteous is more excellent than his neighbour, but the way of the wicked seduceth them. The slothful man roasteth not that which he took in hunting; but the substance of a diligent man is precious. In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathways thereof there is no death.

SECTION 13

A wise son heareth his father's instruction; but a scorner heareth not rebuke. A man shall eat good by the fruit of his mouth; but the soul of the transgressors shall eat violence. He that keepeth his mouth keepeth his life; but he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction. The soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing; but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat. A righteous man hateth lying; but a wicked man is loathsome, and cometh to shame. Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way; but wickedness overthroweth the sinner.

There is he that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; and there is he that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches. The ransom of a man's life are his riches; but the poor heareth not rebuke. The light of the righteous is to rejoice; but the lamp of the wicked shall be put out. Only by pride cometh contention; but with the well advised is wisdom. Wealth gotten by vanity shall be diminished; but he that gathereth by labour shall increase. Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but the righteous desire is a tree of life. Whoso despiseth the Word shall be destroyed; but he that feareth the commandment shall be rewarded. The law of the wise is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death. Good understanding giveth favour; but the way of transgressors is hard. Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge; but a fool layeth open his folly. A wicked messenger falleth into mischief; but a faithful ambassador is health. Poverty and shame shall be to him that refuseth instruction; but he that regardeth reproof shall be honoured. The desire accomplished is sweet to the soul; but it is abomination to fools to depart from evil. He that walketh with wise men shall be wise; but a companion of fools shall be destroyed. Evil pursueth sinners; but to the righteous good shall be repayed. A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children; and the wealth of the sinner is laid up for the just. Much food is in the tillage of the poor; but there is he that is destroyed for want of judgment. He that spareth his rod (whip) hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes. The righteous eateth to the satisfying of his soul; but the belly of the wicked shall want.

SECTION 14

Every wise woman buildeth her house; but the foolish plucketh it down with her hands. He that walketh in his uprightness feareth the Lord; but he that is perverse in his ways despiseth him. In the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride; but the lips of the wise shall preserve them. Where no oxen are, the crib is clean; but much increase is by the strength of the ox. A faithful witness will not lie; but a false witness will utter lies. A scorner seeketh wisdom, and findeth it not; but knowledge is easy unto him that understandeth. Go from the presence of the foolish, when thou perceivest not in him the lips of knowledge. The wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way; but the folly of fools is deceit. Fools make a mock at sin; but among the righteous there is favour. The heart knoweth his own bitterness; and a stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy. The house of the wicked shall be overthrown; but the dwelling (tent) of the upright shall flourish.

There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is the ways of death. Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful; and the end of that mirth is heaviness. The backslider in heart shall be filled with his own ways; and a good man shall be satisfied from himself. The simple believeth every word; but the prudent man looketh well to his going. A wise man feareth, and departeth from evil; but the fool rageth, and is confident. He that is soon angry dealeth foolishly; and a man of wicked devices is hated. The simple inherit folly; but the prudent are crowned with knowledge. The evil bow before the good; and the wicked at the gates of the righteous. The poor is hated even of his own neighbour; but the rich hath many friends. He that despiseth his fellowman sinneth; but he that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he. Do they not err that devise evil? But mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good. In all labour there is profit; but the talk of the lips tendeth only to penury. The crown of the wise is their riches; but the foolishness of fools is folly. A true witness delivereth souls; but a deceitful witness speaketh will he condemn. A man shall not be established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous shall not be moved. A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but she that maketh ashamed is as rottenness in his bones. The thoughts of the righteous are right; but the counsels of the wicked are deceit. The words of the wicked are to lie in wait for blood; but the mouth of the upright shall deliver them. The wicked are overthrown, and are not; but the house of the righteous shall stand. A man shall be commended according to his wisdom; but he that is of a perverse heart shall be despised. He that is despised, and hath a servant, is better than he that honoureth himself, and lacketh bread. A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel. He that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread; but he that followeth vain persons is void of understanding. The wicked desireth the net of evil men; but the root of the righteous yieldeth fruit. The wicked is snared by the transgression of his lips; but the just shall come out of trouble. A man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth; and the recompence of a man's hands shall be rendered unto him. The way of a fool is right in his own eyes; but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise. A fool's wrath is presently known; but a prudent man covereth shame.

He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness; but a false witness deceit. There is he that speaketh like the piercings of a sword; but the tongue of the wise is health. The lip of truth shall be established for ever; but a lying tongue is but for a moment. Deceit is in the heart of them that imagine evil; but to the counsellors of peace is joy. There shall no evil happen to the just; but the wicked shall be filled with mischief. Lying lips are abomination to the Lord; but they that deal truly are his delight. A prudent man concealeth knowledge; but the heart of fools proclaimeth foolishness. The hand of the diligent shall bear rule; but the slothful shall be under tribute. Heaviness in the heart of man maketh it stoop, but a good word maketh it glad. The righteous is more excellent than his neighbour, but the way of the wicked seduceth them. The slothful man roasteth not that which he took in hunting; but the substance of a diligent man is precious. In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathways thereof there is no death.

SECTION 13

A wise son heareth his father's instruction; but a scorner heareth not rebuke. A man shall eat good by the fruit of his mouth; but the soul of the transgressors shall eat violence. He that keepeth his mouth keepeth his life; but he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction. The soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing; but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat. A righteous man hateth lying; but a wicked man is loathsome, and cometh to shame. Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way; but wickedness overthroweth the sinner.

There is he that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; and there is he that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches. The ransom of a man's life are his riches; but the poor heareth not rebuke. The light of the righteous is to rejoice; but the lamp of the wicked shall be put out. Only by pride cometh contention; but with the well advised is wisdom. Wealth gotten by vanity shall lies. In the fear of the Lord is man's strong confidence, and his children shall have a place of refuge; the fear of the Lord is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death. In the multitude of people is the king's honour; but in the want of people is the destruction of the prince. He that is slow to wrath is of great understanding; but he that is hasty of spirit exalteth folly. A sound heart is the life of the flesh; but envy the rottenness of the bones. He that oppresseth the poor reproacheth his Maker; but he that honoureth Him hath mercy on the poor. The wicked is driven away in his wickedness; but the righteous hath hope in his death. Wisdom resteth in the heart of him that hath understanding; but that which is in the midst of fools is made known. Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. The king's favour is toward a wise servant; but his wrath is against him that causeth shame.

SECTION 15

A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger. The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright; but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness. The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good. A wholesome tongue is a tree of life; but perverseness therein is a breach in the spirit. A fool despiseth his father's instruction; but he that regardeth reproof is prudent. In the house of the righteous is much treasure; but in the revenues of the wicked is trouble. The lips of the wise disperse knowledge; but the heart of the foolish doeth not so. The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord; but the prayer of the upright is his delight. The way of the wicked is an abomination unto the Lord; but he loveth him that followeth after righteousness. Correction is grievous unto him that forsaketh the way; and he that hateth reproof shall die (in the spirit).

Hell and destruction are before the Lord; how much more then the hearts of the children of men? A scorner loveth not one that reproveth him; neither will he go unto the wise. A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance; but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken. The heart of him that hath understanding seeketh knowledge; but the mouth of fools feedeth on foolishness. All the days of the afflicted are evil; but he that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast. Better is little with the fear of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith. Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a fattened ox and hatred therewith. A wrathful man stirreth up strife; but he that is slow to anger appeaseth strife. The way of the slothful man is as an hedge of thorns; but the way of the righteous is made plain. A wise son maketh a glad father; but a foolish man despiseth his mother. Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom; but a man of understanding walketh uprightly. Without counsel purposes are disappointed; but in the multitude of counsellors they are established. A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth; and a word spoken in due season, how good it is!

The way of life is above to the wise, that he may depart from hell beneath. The Lord will destroy the house of the proud; but he will establish the border of the widow. The thoughts of the wicked are an abomination to the Lord; but the words of the pure are pleasant words. He that is greedy of gain troubleth his own house; but he that hateth gifts shall live. The heart of the righteous studieth to answer; but the mouth of the wicked poureth out evil things. The Lord is far from the wicked; but he heareth the prayer of the righteous. The light of the eyes rejoiceth the heart, and a good report maketh the bones fat. The ear that heareth the reproof of life abideth among the wise. He that refuseth instruction despiseth his own soul; but he that heareth reproof getteth understanding. The fear of the Lord is the instruction of wisdom; and before honour is humility.

SECTION 16

The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue, is from the Lord. All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes; but the Lord weigheth the spirits. Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established. The Lord hath made all things for himself; yea, even the wicked for the day of evil. Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord; though hand join in hand, he shall not be unpunished. By mercy and truth iniquity is purged; and by the fear of the Lord men depart from evil. When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right. A man's heart deviseth his way; but the Lord directeth his steps. A divine sentence is in the lips of the king, his mouth transgresseth not in judgment. A just weight and balance are the Lord's; all the weights of the bag are his work. It is an abomination to kings to commit wickedness; for the throne is established by righteousness. Righteous lips are the delight of kings; and they love him that speaketh right. The wrath of a king is as messengers of death; but a wise man will pacify it. In the light of the king's countenance is life; and his favour is as a cloud of the latter rain.

How much better is it to get wisdom than gold! And to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver! The highway of the upright is to depart from evil; he that keepeth his way preserveth his soul. Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall. Better it is to be of an humble spirit with the lowly, than to divide the spoil with the proud. He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good; and whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he. The wise in heart shall be called prudent; and the sweetness of the lips increaseth learning. Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it; but the instruction of fools is folly. The heart of the wise teacheth his mouth, and addeth learning to his lips. Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones. There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is the ways of death. He that laboureth laboureth for himself; for his mouth craveth it of him.

An ungodly man diggeth up evil; and in his lips there is as a burning fire. A froward man soweth strife; and a whisperer separateth chief friends. A violent man enticeth his neighbour, and leadeth him into the way that is not good; he shutteth his eyes to devise froward things, moving his lips he bringeth evil to pass. The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness. He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city. The lot is cast into the lap; but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord.

SECTION 17

Better is a dry morsel, and quietness therewith, than an house full of sacrifices with strife. A wise servant shall have rule over a son that causeth shame, and shall have part of the inheritance among the brethren. The fining pot is for silver, and the furnace for gold; but the Lord trieth the hearts. A wicked doer giveth heed to false lips; and a liar giveth ear to a naughty tongue. Whoso mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker; and he that is glad at calamities shall not be unpunished. Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers. Excellent speech becometh not a fool; much less do lying lips a prince. A gift of God is as a precious stone in the eyes of him that hath it; whithersoever it turneth, it prospereth. He that covereth a transgression seeketh love; but he that repeateth a matter separateth very friends. A reproof entereth more into a wise man than an hundred stripes into a fool. An evil man seeketh only rebellion; therefore a cruel messenger shall be sent against him. Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man, rather than a fool in his folly. Whoso rewardeth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house.

The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water; therefore leave off contention, before it be meddled with. He that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are abomination to the Lord. Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a fool to get wisdom, seeing he hath no heart to it? A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity. A man void of understanding striketh hands, and becometh surety in the presence of his friend. He loveth transgression that loveth strife; and he that exalteth his gate seeketh destruction. He that hath a froward heart findeth no good; and he that hath a perverse tongue falleth into mischief. He that begetteth a fool doeth it to his sorrow; and the father of a fool hath no joy. A merry heart doeth good like a medicine; but a broken spirit drieth the bones. A wicked man taketh a gift out of the bosom to pervert the ways of judgment. Wisdom is before him that hath understanding; but the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth. A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her that bare him. Also to punish the just is not good, nor to strike princes for equity. He that hath knowledge spareth his words; and a man of understanding is of an excellent spirit. Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise; and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding.

SECTION 18

Through righteous desire a man, having separated himself, seeketh and intermeddleth with all wisdom. A fool hath no delight in understanding, but that his heart may discover itself. When the wicked cometh, then cometh also contempt, and with ignominy reproach. The words of a man's mouth are as deep waters, and the wellspring of wisdom as a flowing brook. It is not good to accept the person of the wicked, to overthrow the righteous in judgment. A fool's lips enter into contention, and his mouth calleth for strokes. A fool's mouth is his destruction, and his lips are the snare of his soul. The words of a talebearer are as wounds, and they go down into the innermost parts of the belly. He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great waster. The name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it, and is safe. The rich man's wealth is his strong city, and as an high wall in his own conceit. Before destruction the heart of man is haughty, and before honour is humility. He that answereth a matter before he heareth it, it is folly and shame unto him. The spirit of a man will sustain his infirmity; but a wounded spirit who can bear? The heart of the prudent getteth knowledge; and the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge. A man's gift maketh room for him, and bringeth him before great men. He that is first in his own cause seemeth just; but his neighbour cometh and searcheth him. The lot causeth contentions to cease, and parteth between the mighty. A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city; and their contentions are like the bars of a castle. A man's belly shall be satisfied with the fruit of his mouth; and with the increase of his lips shall he be filled. Death and life are in the power of the tongue; and they that love it shall eat the fruit thereof. Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favour of the Lord. The poor useth intreaties; but the rich answereth roughly. A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly; and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

SECTION 19

Better is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than he that is perverse in his lips, and is a fool. Also, that the soul be without knowledge, it is not good; and he that hasteth with his feet sinneth. The foolishness of man perverteth his way; and his heart fretteth against the Lord. Wealth maketh many friends; but the poor is separated from his neighbour. A false witness shall not be unpunished, and he that speaketh lies shall not escape. Many will intreat the favour of the prince; and every man is a friend to him that giveth gifts. All the brethren of the poor do hate him; how much more do his friends go far from him? He pursueth them with words, yet they are wanting to him. He that getteth wisdom loveth his own soul; he that keepeth understanding shall find good. A false witness shall not be unpunished, and he that speaketh lies shall perish. Delight is not seemly for a fool; much less for a servant to have rule over princes. The discretion of a man defereth his anger; and it is his glory to pass over a transgression. The king's wrath is as the roaring of a lion; but his favour is as dew upon the grass. A foolish son is the calamity of his father; and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping. House and riches are the inheritance of fathers; and a prudent wife is from the Lord. Slothfulness casteth into a deep sleep; and an idle soul shall suffer hunger. He that keepeth the commandment keepeth his own soul; but he that despiseth his ways shall die. He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again. Chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying. A man of great wrath shall suffer punishment; for if thou deliver him, yet thou must do it again. Hear counsel, and receive instruction, that thou mayest be wise in thy latter end. There are many devices in a man's heart; nevertheless the counsel of the Lord shall stand. The desire of a man is his kindness; and a poor man is better than a liar. The fear of the Lord tendeth to life; and he that hath it shall abide satisfied; he shall not be visited with evil. A slothful man hideth his hand in his bosom, and will not so much as bring it to his mouth again. Smite a scorner, and the simple will beware; and reprove one that hath understanding, and he will understand knowledge. He that wasteth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son that causeth shame, and bringeth reproach. Cease, my son, to hear the instruction that causeth to err from the words of knowledge. An ungodly witness scorneth judgment; and the mouth of the wicked devoureth iniquity. Judgments are prepared for scorners, and stripes for the back of fools.

SECTION 20

Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. The fear of a king is as the roaring of a lion; whoso provoketh him to anger sinneth against his own soul. It is an honour for a man to cease from strife; but every fool will be meddling. The sluggard will not plow by reason of the cold (in winter); therefore shall he beg in harvest, and have nothing. Counsel in the heart of man is like deep water; but a man of understanding will draw it out. Most men will proclaim every one his own goodness; but a faithful man who can find? The just man walketh in his integrity; his children are blessed after him. A king that sitteth in the throne of judgment scattereth away all evil with his eyes. Who can say, I have made my heart clean, I am pure from my sin? Divers weights, and divers measures, both of them are alike abomination to the Lord. Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right. The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them.

Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty; open thine eyes, and thou shalt be satisfied with bread. It is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer; but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth. There is gold, and a multitude of rubies; but the lips of knowledge are a precious jewel. Take his garment that is surety for a stranger; and take a pledge of him for a strange woman. Bread of deceit is sweet to a man; but afterwards his mouth shall be filled with gravel. Every purpose is established by counsel; and with good advice make war. He that goeth about as a talebearer revealeth secrets; therefore meddle not with him that flattereth with his lips. Whoso curseth his father or his mother, his lamp shall be put out in obscure darkness. An inheritance may be gotten hastily at the beginning; but the end thereof shall not be blessed. Say not thou, I will recompense evil; but wait on the Lord, and he shall save thee. Divers weights are an abomination unto the Lord; and a false balance is not good. Man's goings are of the Lord; how can a man then understand his own way? It is a snare to the man who devoureth that which is holy, and after vows to make enquiry. A wise king scattereth the wicked, and bringeth the wheel over them. The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord, searching all the inward parts of the belly. Mercy and truth preserve the king; and his throne is upheld by mercy. The glory of young men is their strength; and the beauty of old men is the gray head. The blueness of a wound cleanseth away evil; so do stripes the inward parts of the belly.

SECTION 21

The king's heart is in the hand of the Lord; as the rivers of water, he turneth it whithersoever he will. Every way of a man is right in his own eyes; but the Lord pondereth the hearts. To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice. An high look, and a proud heart, and the plowing of the wicked, is sin. The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness; but of every one that is hasty only to want. The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a vanity tossed to and fro of them that seek death. The robbery of the wicked shall destroy them; because they refuse to do judgment. The way of man is froward and strange; but as for the pure, his work is right. It is better to dwell in a corner of the housetop, than with a brawling woman in a wide house. The soul of the wicked desireth evil; his neighbour findeth no favour in his eyes. When the scorner is punished, the simple is made wise; and when the wise is instructed, he receiveth knowledge. The righteous man wisely considereth the house of the wicked; but God overthroweth the wicked for their wickedness. Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard. A gift in secret pacifieth anger; and a reward in the bosom strong wrath. It is joy to the just to do judgment; but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity. The man that wandereth out of the way of understanding shall remain in the congregation of the dead. He that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man; he that loveth wine and oil shall not be rich. The wicked shall be a ransom for the righteous, and the transgressor for the upright. It is better to dwell in the wilderness, than with a contentious and an angry woman. There is treasure to be desired and oil in the dwelling of the wise; but a foolish man spendeth it.

He that followeth after righteousness and mercy findeth life, righteousness, and honour. A wise man scaleth the city of the mighty, and casteth down the strength of the confidence thereof. Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles. Proud and haughty scorner is his name, who dealeth in proud wrath. The desire of the slothful killeth him, for his hands refuse to labour; he coveteth greedily all the day long, but the righteous giveth and spareth not. The sacrifice of the wicked is abomination; how much more, when he bringeth it with a wicked mind? A false witness shall perish; but the man that heareth speaketh constantly. A wicked man hardeneth his face; but as for the upright, he directeth his way. There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord. The horse is prepared against the day of battle, but safety is of the Lord.

SECTION 22

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold. The rich and poor meet together; the Lord is the maker of them all. A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished. By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, honour, and life. Thorns and snares are in the way of the froward; he that doth keep his soul shall be far from them. Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it. The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender. He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity; and the rod of his anger shall fail. He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor. Cast out the scorner, and contention shall go out; yea, strife and reproach shall cease. He that loveth pureness of heart, for the grace of his lips the king shall be his friend. The eyes of the Lord preserve knowledge, and he overthroweth the words of the transgressor. The slothful man saith, There is a lion without, I shall be slain in the streets. The mouth of strange women is a deep pit; he that is abhorred of the Lord shall fall therein. Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him. He that oppresseth the poor to increase his riches, and he that giveth to the rich, shall surely come to want.

Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart unto my knowledge; for it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them within thee; they shall withal be fitted in thy lips, that thy trust may be in the Lord; I have made known to thee this day, even to thee. Have not I written to thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge, that I might make thee know the certainty of the words of truth; that thou mightest answer the words of truth to them that send unto thee? Rob not the poor, because he is poor; neither oppress the afflicted in the gate; for the Lord will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of those that spoiled them. Make no friendship with an angry man, and with a furious man thou shalt not go; lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare to thy soul. Be not thou one of them that shake hands, or of them that are sureties for debts. If thou hast nothing to pay, why should he take away thy bed from under thee? Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set. Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before the wicked.

SECTION 23

When thou sittest to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before thee; and put a knife to thy throat, if thou be a man given to appetite. Be not desirous of his dainties, for they are deceitful meat. Labour not to be rich; cease from thine own wisdom. Wilt thou set thine eyes upon that which is not? For riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven.

Eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye, neither desire thou his dainty meats; for as he thinketh in his heart, so is he; Eat and drink saith he to thee, but his heart is not with thee. The morsel which thou hast eaten shalt thou vomit up, and lose thy sweet words. Speak not in the ears of a fool, for he will despise the wisdom of thy words. Remove not the old landmark, and enter not into the fields of the fatherless; for their redeemer is mighty; he shall plead their cause with thee. Apply thine heart unto instruction, and thine ears to the words of knowledge. Withhold not correction from the child; for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die; thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell. My son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine. Yea, my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips speak right things. Let not thine heart envy sinners; but be thou in the fear of the Lord all the day long. For surely there is an end; and thine expectation shall not be cut off. Hear thou, my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way. Be not among winebibbers, among riotous eaters of flesh; for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags. Hearken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old. Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding. The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice; and he that begetteth a wise child shall have joy of him. Thy father and thy mother shall be glad, and she that bare thee shall rejoice. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. For a whore is a deep ditch, and a strange woman is a narrow pit; she also lieth in wait as for a prey, and increaseth the transgressors among men.

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things. Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast. They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not sick; they have beaten me, and I felt it not; when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again.

SECTION 24

Be not thou envious against evil men, neither desire to be with them. For their heart studieth destruction, and their lips talk of mischief. Through wisdom is an house builded; and by understanding it is established; and by knowledge shall the chambers be filled with all precious and pleasant riches. A wise man is strong; yea, a man of knowledge increaseth strength; for by wise counsel thou shalt make thy war; and in multitude of counsellors there is safety. Wisdom is too high for a fool; he openeth not his mouth in the gate. He that deviseth to do evil shall be called a mischievous person. The thought of foolishness is sin; and the scorner is an abomination to men. If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small; if thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn unto death, and those that are ready to be slain; if thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? And he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it? And shall not he render to every man according to his works? My son, as thou eat honey, because it is good, and the honeycomb, which is sweet to thy taste, so shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul; when thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off. Lay not wait, O wicked man, against the dwelling of the righteous; spoil not his resting place, for a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again, but the wicked shall fall into mischief. Rejoice not when thine enemy falleth, and let not thine heart be glad when he stumbleth; lest the Lord see it, and it displease him, and he turn away his wrath from him. Fret not thyself because of evil men, neither be thou envious at the wicked; for there shall be no reward to the evil man; the candle of the wicked shall be put out. My son, fear thou the Lord and the king; and meddle not with them that are given to change; for their calamity shall rise suddenly; and who knoweth the ruin of them both? These things also belong to the wise. It is not good to have respect of persons in judgment. He that saith unto the wicked, Thou art righteous; him shall the people curse, nations shall abhor him. But to them that rebuke him shall be delight, and a good blessing shall come upon them. Every man shall kiss his lips that giveth a right answer. Prepare thy work without, and make it fit for thyself in the field; and afterwards build thine house. Be not a witness against thy neighbour without cause; and deceive not with thy lips. Say not, I will do so to him as he hath done to me; I will render to the man according to his work.

I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding; and, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down. Then I saw, and considered it well; I looked upon it, and received instruction. Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep; so shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth; and thy want as an armed man.

SECTION 25

These Words of Wisdom or the Proverbs of Solomon were copied out and written by the men of Hezekiah (or Lemuel) king of Judah (c.745-716 B.C.): It is the glory of God to conceal a thing; but the honour of kings is to search out a matter. The heaven for height, and the earth for depth, and the heart of kings is unsearchable. Take away the dross from the silver, and there shall come forth a vessel for the finer; take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne shall be established in righteousness. Put not forth thyself in the presence of the king, and stand not in the place of great men; for better it is that it be said unto thee, Come up hither; than that thou shouldest be put lower in the presence of the prince whom thine eyes have seen.

Go not forth hastily to strive, lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof, when thy neighbour hath put thee to shame. Debate thy cause with thy neighbour himself; and discover (or reveal) not a secret to another, lest he that heareth it put thee to shame, and thine infamy turn not away. A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver; as an earring of gold, and an ornament of fine gold, so is a wise reprover upon an obedient ear. As the cold of snow in the time of harvest, so is a faithful messenger to them that send him; for he refresheth the soul of his masters. Whoso boasteth himself of a false gift is like clouds and wind without rain. By long forbearing is a prince persuaded, and a soft tongue breaketh the bone. Hast thou found honey? Eat so much as is sufficient for thee, lest thou be filled therewith, and vomit it. Withdraw thy foot from thy neighbour's house; lest he be weary of thee, and so hate thee. A man that beareth false witness against his neighbour is a maul (war club) and a sword, and a sharp arrow. Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble is like a broken tooth, and a foot out of joint. As he that taketh away a garment in cold weather, and as vinegar upon nitre, so is he that singeth songs to an heavy heart.

IV. THE FOURTH EPOCH: FROM AARON TO JOHN THE BAPTIST (1597 B.C. - 33 A.D.)

If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink; for thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head (to purge him of his iniquity), and the Lord shall reward thee. The north wind driveth away rain; so doth an angry countenance a backbiting tongue. It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop, than with a brawling woman and in a wide house. As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. A righteous man falling down before the wicked is as a troubled and corrupted spring ruined by wading. It is not good to eat much honey; nor for men to search their own glory. He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls.

SECTION 26

As snow in summer, and rain in harvest, so honour is not seemly for a fool. As the bird by wandering, and swallow by flying, so the curse causeless shall not come. As a whip for the horse, and a bridle for the ass, so is a rod for the fool's back. Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou also be like unto him; answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit. He that sendeth a message by the hand of a fool cutteth off the feet, and drinketh damage. The legs of the lame are not equal; so is a parable in the mouth of fools. As he that bindeth a stone in a sling, so is he that giveth honour to a fool. As a thorn goeth up into the hand of a drunkard, so is a parable in the mouth of fools. The great God that formed all things both rewardeth the fool, and rewardeth transgressors. As a dog returneth to his vomit, so a fool returneth to his folly. Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him. The slothful man saith, There is a lion in the way, a lion is in the streets; as the door turneth upon its hinges, so doth the slothful upon his bed; the slothful hideth his hand in his bosom, it grieveth him to bring it again to his mouth. The sluggard is wiser in his own conceit than seven men that can render a reason.

He that passeth by, and meddleth with strife belonging not to him is like one that taketh a wild dog by the ears; as a mad man who casteth firebrands, arrows, and death; so is the man that deceiveth his neighbour, and saith, Am not I in sport? Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out; so where there is no talebearer, the strife ceaseth. As coals are to burning coals, and wood to fire; so is a contentious man to kindle strife. The words of a talebearer are as wounds, and they go down into the innermost parts of the belly. Burning lips and a wicked heart are like a potsherd covered with silver dross. He that hateth dissembleth with his lips, and layeth up deceit within him; when he speaketh fair, believe him not, for there are seven abominations in his heart, whose hatred is covered by deceit; his wickedness shall be shewed before the whole congregation. Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein; and he that rolleth a stone, it will return upon him. A lying tongue hateth those that are afflicted by it; and a flattering mouth worketh ruin.

SECTION 27

Boast not thyself of tomorrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth. Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips. A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both. Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous; but who is able to stand before envy? Open rebuke is better than secret love. Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful. The full soul loatheth an honeycomb; but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet. As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is a man that wandereth from his place. Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart; so doth the sweetness of a man's friend by hearty counsel. Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not; neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity; for better is a neighbour that is near than a brother far off. My son, be wise, and make my heart glad, that I may answer him that reproacheth me. A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished. Take his garment that is surety for a stranger, and take a pledge of him for a strange woman. He that blesseth his friend with a loud voice, rising early in the morning, it shall be counted a curse to him. A continual dropping in a very rainy day and a contentious woman are alike; whosoever hideth her hideth the wind, and the ointment of his right hand, which bewrayeth (betrayeth) itself. Iron sharpeneth iron; so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend. Whoso keepeth the fig tree shall eat the fruit thereof; so he that waiteth on his master shall be honoured. As in water face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man. Hell and destruction are never full; so the eyes of man are never satisfied. As the fining pot for silver, and the furnace for gold; so is a man to his praise. Though thou shouldest bray (pound) a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him.

Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks, and look well to thy herds; for riches are not for ever, doth the crown endure to every generation? The hay appeareth, and the tender grass sheweth itself, and herbs of the mountains are gathered; the lambs are for thy clothing, and the goats are the price of the field; and thou shalt have goats' milk enough for thy food, for the food of thy household, and for the maintenance for thy maidens.

SECTION 28

The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous are bold as a lion. For the transgression of a land many are the princes thereof; but by a man of understanding and knowledge the state thereof shall be prolonged. A poor man that oppresseth the poor is like a sweeping rain which leaveth no food. They that forsake the law praise the wicked; but such as keep the law contend with them. Evil men understand not judgment; but they that seek the Lord understand all things. Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich. Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son; but he that is a companion of riotous (gluttonous) men shameth his father. He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, shall gather it for him that will pity the poor. He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination. Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way, he shall fall himself into his own pit; but the upright shall have good things in possession. The rich man is wise in his own conceit; but the poor that hath understanding searcheth him out. When righteous men do rejoice, there is great glory; but when the wicked rise, a man is hidden. He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy. Happy is the man that feareth alway; but he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief. As a roaring lion, and a ranging bear; so is a wicked ruler over the poor people. The prince that wanteth understanding is also a great oppressor; but he that hateth covetousness shall prolong his days. A man that doeth violence to the blood of any person shall flee to the pit; let no man stay him. Whoso walketh uprightly shall be saved; but he that is perverse in his ways shall fall at once. He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread; but he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough. A faithful man shall abound with blessings; but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent.

To have respect of persons is not good; for for a piece of bread that man will transgress. He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him. He that rebuketh a man afterwards shall find more favour than he that flattereth with the tongue. Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression; the same is the companion of a destroyer. He that is of a proud heart stirreth up strife; but he that putteth his trust in the Lord shall be made fat. He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool; but whoso walketh wisely, he shall be delivered. He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack; but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse. When the wicked rise, men hide themselves; but when they perish, the righteous increase.

SECTION 29

He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy. When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn. Whoso loveth wisdom rejoiceth his father; but he that keepeth company with harlots spendeth his substance. The king by judgment establisheth the land; but he that receiveth gifts overthroweth it. A man that flattereth his neighbour spreadeth a net for his feet. In the transgression of an evil man there is a snare; but the righteous doth sing and rejoice. The righteous considereth the cause of the poor; but the wicked regardeth not to know it. Scornful men bring a city into a snare; but wise men turn away wrath. If a wise man contendeth with a foolish man, whether he rage or laugh, there is no rest. The bloodthirsty hate the upright; but the just seek his soul. A fool uttereth all his mind; but a wise man keepeth it in till afterwards. If a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked. The poor and the deceitful man meet together; the Lord lighteneth both their eyes.

The king that faithfully judgeth the poor, his throne shall be established for ever. The rod and reproof give wisdom; but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame. When the wicked are multiplied, transgression increaseth; but the righteous shall see their fall. Correct thy son, and he shall give thee rest; yea, he shall give delight unto thy soul. Where there is no vision, the people perish; but he that keepeth the law, happy is he. A servant will not be corrected by words; for though he understand he will not answer. Seest thou a man that is hasty in his words? There is more hope of a fool than of him. He that delicately bringeth up his servant from a child shall have him become his son at the length. An angry man stirreth up strife, and a furious man aboundeth in transgression. A man's pride shall bring him low; but honour shall uphold the humble in spirit. Whoso is partner with a thief hateth his own soul; he heareth cursing, and bewrayeth it not. The fear of man bringeth a snare; but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe. Many seek the ruler's favour; but every man's judgment cometh from the Lord. An unjust man is an abomination to the just; and he that is upright in the way is abomination to the wicked.

SECTION 30

The words of Agur the son of Jakeh, the prophecy (the man spake unto Ithiel, even unto Ithiel and Ucal): Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man; I neither learned wisdom, nor have the knowledge of the holy -- who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended? Who hath gathered the wind in his fists? Who hath bound the waters in a garment? Who hath established all the ends of the earth? What is his name, and what is his Son's name, if thou canst tell?

Every word of God is pure; he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him. Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die -- remove far from me vanity and lies; give me neither poverty nor riches. Feed me with food convenient for me, lest I be full, and deny thee, and say, Who is the Lord? Or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain. Accuse not a servant unto his master, lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty. There is a generation that curseth their father, and doth not bless their mother. There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet are not washed from their filthiness. There is a generation, O how lofty are their eyes! And their eyelids are lifted up. There is a generation, whose teeth are as swords, and their jaw teeth as knives, to devour the poor from off the earth, and the needy from among men. The horseleach (blood-sucking parasite) hath two daughters, crying, Give, give.

There are three things that are never satisfied, yea, four things which say not, It is enough: the grave, the barren womb, the earth that is not filled with water, and the fire; that saith not, It is enough.

The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.

There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four which I know not: the way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid.

Such is the way of an adulterous woman; she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no wickedness.

For three things the earth is disquieted, yea, four which it cannot bear: a servant when he reigneth, a fool when he is filled with meat, an odious woman when she is married, and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress.

There be four things which are little upon the earth, but they are exceeding wise: the ants are a people not strong, yet they prepare their meat in the summer; the conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks; the locusts have no king, yet go they forth all of them by bands; the spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces.

There be three things which go well, yea, four are comely in going and against which there is no rising up: a lion which is strongest among beasts, and turneth not away for any; a greyhound; an he goat; and a king, against whom there is no rising up.

If thou hast done foolishly in lifting up thyself, or if thou hast thought evil, lay thine hand upon thy mouth. Surely the churning of milk bringeth forth butter, and the wringing of the nose bringeth forth blood; so the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife.

SECTION 31

The words of king Lemuel (another name of Hezekiah) the wisdom that his mother taught him: What, my son? And what, the son of my womb? And what, the son of my vows? Give not thy strength unto women, nor thy ways to that which destroyeth kings. It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink; lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted. Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy hearts; let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more. Open thy mouth for the dumb in the cause of all such as are appointed to destruction. Open thy mouth, judge righteously, and plead the cause of the poor and needy.

Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil; she will do him good and not evil all the days of her life; she seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands; she is like the merchants' ships, she bringeth her food from afar; she riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household, and a portion to her maidens; she considereth a field, and buyeth it; with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard; she girdeth her loins with strength, and strengtheneth her arms; she perceiveth that her merchandise is good, her candle goeth not out by night; she layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff; she stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy; she is not afraid of the snow for her household, for all her household are clothed with scarlet; she maketh herself coverings of tapestry, her clothing is silk and purple. Her husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land; she maketh fine linen, and selleth it, and delivereth girdles unto the merchant. Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindess. She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all. Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates.

SECTION 32

The words of the Preacher (Solomon) the son of David, king in Jerusalem. Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity. What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh; but the earth abideth for ever. The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose; the wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to its circuits. All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again. All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it; the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing. The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun. Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? It hath been already of old time, which was before us. There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem. And I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven; this sore travail (evil business, of little profit) hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised therewith. I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit. That which is crooked cannot be made straight; and that which is wanting cannot be numbered. I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem; yea, my heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge. And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly; I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

SECTION 33

I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure; and, behold, this also is vanity. I said of laughter, It is mad; and of mirth, What doeth it? I sought in mine heart to give myself unto wine, yet acquainting mine heart with wisdom; and to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was that good for the sons of men, which they should do under the heaven all the days of their life. I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards; I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kind of fruits; I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees; I got me servants and maidens, and had servants born in my house; also I had great possessions of great and small cattle above all that were in Jerusalem before me; I gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces; I gat me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as musical instruments, and that of all sorts. So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem; also my wisdom remained with me. And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour; and this was my portion of all my labour. Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do; and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun.

And I turned myself to behold wisdom, and madness, and folly; for what can the man do that cometh after the king? Even that which hath been already done. Then I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness. The wise man's eyes are in his head; but the fool walketh in darkness; and I myself perceived also that one event happeneth to them all. Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity. For there is no remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? As the fool. Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me; for all is vanity and vexation of spirit. Yea, I hated all my labour which I had taken under the sun; because I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me. And who knoweth whether he shall be a wise man or a fool? Yet shall he have rule over all my labour wherein I have laboured, and wherein I have shewed myself wise under the sun. This is also vanity. Therefore I went about to cause my heart to despair of all the labour which I took under the sun. For there is a man whose labour is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in equity; yet to a man that hath not laboured therein shall he leave it for his portion. This also is vanity and a great evil. For what hath man of all his labour, and of the vexation of his heart, wherein he hath laboured under the sun? For all his days are sorrows, and his travail grief; yea, his heart taketh not rest in the night. This is also vanity.

There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labour. This also I saw, that it was from the hand of God. For who can eat, or who else can hasten hereunto, more than I? For God giveth to a man that is good in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy; but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good before God. This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

SECTION 34

To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; a time to bruise, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up; a time to weep, and a time to laugh;

a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; a time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

What profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he laboureth? I have seen the travail, which God hath given to the sons of men to be exercised in it. He hath made every thing beautiful in his time; also he hath set the world in their heart, so that no man can find out the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end. I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice, and to do good in his life. And also that every man should eat and drink, and enjoy the good of all his labour, it is the gift of God. I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever; nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past.

And moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgment, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there. I said in mine heart, God shall judge the righteous and the wicked; for there is a time there for every purpose and for every work. I said in mine heart concerning the affairs of the sons of men, that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts. For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast; for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again. Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth? Wherefore I perceive that there is nothing better, than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion; for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?

SECTION 35

So I returned, and considered all the oppressions that are done under the sun; and behold, the tears of such as were oppressed, and they had no comforter; and on the side of their oppressors there was power, but they had no comforter. Wherefore I praised the dead which are already dead more than the living which are yet alive. Yea, better is he than both they, which hath not yet been, who hath not seen the evil work that is done under the sun.

Again, I considered all travail, and every right work, that for this a man is envied of his neighbour. This is also vanity and vexation of spirit. The fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh. Better is an handful with quietness, than both the hands full with travail and vexation of spirit.

Then I returned, and I saw vanity under the sun. There is one alone, and there is none beside him, yea, he hath neither child nor brother; yet is there no end of all his labour; neither is his eye satisfied with riches; neither saith he, For whom do I labour, and bereave my soul of good? This is also vanity, yea, it is a sore travail. Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour. For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow; but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up. Again, if two lie together, then they have heat; but how can one be warm alone? And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king, who will no more be admonished. For out of prison he cometh to reign; whereas also he that is born in his kingdom becometh poor. I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second child that shall stand up in his stead. There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them; they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

SECTION 36

Keep thy foot when thou goest to the house of God, and be more ready to hear, than to give the sacrifice of fools; for they consider not that they do evil. Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter any thing before God; for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth; therefore let thy words be few. For a dream cometh through the multitude of business; and a fool's voice is known by multitude of words. When thou vowest a vow unto God, defer not to pay it; for he hath no pleasure in fools; pay that which thou hast vowed. Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay. Suffer not thy mouth to cause thy flesh to sin; neither say thou before the angel, that it was an error; wherefore should God be angry at thy voice, and destroy the work of thine hands? For in the multitude of dreams and many words there are also divers vanities; but fear thou God.

If thou seest the oppression of the poor, and violent perverting of judgment and justice in a province, marvel not at the matter; for he that is higher than the highest regardeth; and there be higher than they. Moreover the profit of the earth is for all; the king himself is served by the field. He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase; this is also vanity. When goods increase, they are increased that eat them; and what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes? The sleep of a labouring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much; but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep. There is a sore evil which I have seen under the sun, namely, riches kept for the owners thereof to their hurt. But those riches perish by evil travail; he begetteth a son, and there is nothing in his hand. As he came forth of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came, and shall take nothing of his labour, which he may carry away in his hand. And this also is a sore evil, that in all points as he came, so shall he go; and what profit hath he that hath laboured for the wind? All his days also he eateth in darkness, and he hath much sorrow and wrath with his sickness.

Behold that which I have seen: It is good and comely for one to eat and to drink, and to enjoy the good of all his labour that he taketh under the sun all the days of his life, which God giveth him; for it is his portion. Every man also to whom God hath given riches and wealth, and hath given him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to rejoice in his labour; this is the gift of God. For he shall not much remember the days of his life; because God answereth him in the joy of his heart.

SECTION 37

There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men: A man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honour, so that he wanteth nothing for his soul of all that he desireth, yet God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it; this is vanity, and it is an evil disease.

If a man beget an hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years be many, and his soul be not filled with good, and also that he have no burial; I say, that an untimely birth is better than he. For he cometh in with vanity, and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness. Moreover he hath not seen the sun, nor known any thing, this hath more rest than the other; yea, though he live a thousand years twice told, yet hath he seen no good. Do not all go to one place? All the labour of man is for his mouth, and yet the appetite is not filled. For what hath the wise more than the fool? What hath the poor, that knoweth to walk before the living? Better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of the desire; this is also vanity and vexation of spirit.

That which hath been is named already, and it is known that it is man; neither may he contend with him that is mightier than he. Seeing there be many things that increase vanity, what is man the better? For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, all the days of his vain life which he spendeth as a shadow? For who can tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?

SECTION 38

A good name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's birth. It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of feasting; for that is the end of all men; and the living will lay it to his heart. Sorrow is better than laughter; for by the sadness of the countenance the heart is made better. The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth. It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than for a man to hear the song of fools; for as the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fools; this also is vanity.

Surely oppression maketh a wise man mad; and a gift destroyeth the heart. Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof; and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit. Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools. Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? For thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this.

Wisdom is good with an inheritance; and by it there is profit to them that see the sun. For wisdom is a defense, and money is a defence; but the excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth life to them that have it. Consider the work of God; for who can make that straight, which he hath made crooked? In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider; God also hath set the one over against the other, to the end that man should find nothing after him. All things have I seen in the days of my vanity; there is a just man that perisheth in his righteousness, and there is a wicked man that prolongeth his life in his wickedness. Be not righteous over much, neither make thyself over wise; why shouldest thou destroy thyself? Be not over much wicked, neither be thou foolish; why shouldest thou die before thy time? It is good that thou shouldest take hold of this; yea, also from this withdraw not thine hand; for he that feareth God shall come forth of them all. Wisdom strengtheneth the wise more than ten mighty men which are in the city; for there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not. Also take no heed unto all words that are spoken, lest thou hear thy servant curse thee; for oftentimes also thine own heart knoweth that thou thyself likewise hast cursed others.

All this have I proved by wisdom; I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me. That which is far off, and exceeding deep, who can find it out? I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness. And I find more bitter than death, the woman whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands; whoso pleaseth God shall escape from her; but the sinner shall be taken by her. Behold, this have I found, saith the preacher, counting one by one, to find out the account. Which yet my soul seeketh, but I find not -- one man among a thousand have I found, but a woman among all those have I not found. Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.

SECTION 39

Who is as the wise man? And who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? A man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the boldness of his face shall be changed. I counsel thee to keep the king's commandment, and that in regard of the oath of God. Be not hasty to go out of his sight; stand not in an evil thing; for he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him. Where the word of a king is, there is power; and who may say unto him, What doest thou? Whoso keepeth the commandment shall feel no evil thing; and a wise man's heart discerneth both time and judgment.

Because to every purpose there is time and judgment, therefore the misery of man is great upon him. For he knoweth not that which shall be; for who can tell him when it shall be? There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; and there is no discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it. All this have I seen, and applied my heart unto every work that is done under the sun; there is a time wherein one man ruleth over another to his own hurt. And so I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of the holy, and they were forgotten in the city where they had so done; this is also vanity. Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil. Though a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him; but it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God. There is a vanity which is done upon the earth: that there be just men, unto whom it happeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the righteous; I said that this also is vanity. Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry; for that shall abide with him of his labour the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

When I applied mine heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth, (for also there is that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes), then I beheld all the work of God, that a man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun; because though a man labour to seek it out, yet he shall not find it; yea further, though a wise man think to know it, yet shall he not be able to find it.

SECTION 40

For all this I considered in my heart even to declare all this, that the righteous and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God; no man knoweth either love or hatred by all that is before them. All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not; as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath. This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all; yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead.

For to him that is joined to all the living there is hope; for a living dog is better than a dead lion. For the living know that they shall die, but the dead know not any thing; neither have they any more a reward, for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works. Let thy garments be always white; and let thy head lack no ointment. Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all the days of thy vanity; for that is thy portion in this life, and in thy labour which thou takest under the sun. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all. For man also knoweth not his time, as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them.

This wisdom have I seen also under the sun, and it seemed great unto me: There was a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built breat bulwarks against it. Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man. Then said I, Wisdom is better than strength; nevertheless the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard. The words of wise men are heard in quiet more than the cry of him that ruleth among fools. Wisdom is better than weapons of war; but one sinner destroyeth much good.

SECTION 41

Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour; so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honour. A wise man's heart is at his right hand; but a fool's heart at his left. Yea also, when he that is a fool walketh by the way, his wisdom faileth him, and he saith to every one that he is a fool. If the spirit of the ruler rise up against thee, leave not thy place; for yielding pacifieth great offences.

There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, as an error which proceedeth from the ruler -- folly is set in great dignity, and the rich sit in low place; I have seen servants upon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the earth.

He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; and whoso breaketh an hedge, a serpent shall bite him. Whoso removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby. If the iron be blunt, and he do not whet the edge, then must he put to more strength; but wisdom is profitable to direct. Surely the serpent will bite without enchantment; and a babbler is no better.

The words of a wise man's mouth are gracious; but the lips of a fool will swallow up himself; the beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness, and the end of his talk is mischievous madness. A fool also is full of words; a man cannot tell what shall be; and what shall be after him, who can tell him? The labour of the foolish wearieth every one of them, because he knoweth not how to go to the city.

Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning! Blessed art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles, and thy princes eat in due season, for strength, and not for drunkenness! By much slothfulness the building decayeth; and through idleness of the hands the house droppeth through. A feast is made for laughter, and wine maketh merry; but money answereth all things.

Curse not the king, no not in thy thought; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber; for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter.

SECTION 42

Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days. Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth. If the clouds be full of rain, they empty themselves upon the earth; and if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be. He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap. As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child; even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all. In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.

Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun; but if a man live many years, and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness, for they will be many. All that cometh is vanity. Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes; but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment. Therefore remove sorrow from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh; for childhood and youth are vanity.

SECTION 43

Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them; while the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain; in the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened, and the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of music shall be brought low; also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way; and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail; because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets; or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern; then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; all is vanity.

And moreover, because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he gave good heed, and sought out, and set in order many proverbs. The preacher sought to find out acceptable words; and that which was written was upright, even words of truth. The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails fastened by the masters of assemblies, which are given from One Shepherd. And further, by these, my son, be admonished; of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh. Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man; for God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

Now, the reigns of all kings of the divided kingdoms of Israel and Judah, of the northern ten-tribe and the southern two-tribe kingdoms, began to be reckoned from the time of their anointing or election; but it meant not that the son of the father began to rule on that date; rather, the chosen son, or heir to the throne, would serve as coregent with his father king, until death, illness, political circumstances, or the fulfillment of the word of God, demanded a change in rulership; then he was crowned, and officially became the king.

Rehoboam, son of Solomon by his Ammonite wife Naamah, succeeded his father to the throne in c.997 B.C., at the age of forty-one, and reigned in Judah (Jerusalem) seventeen years. Rehoboam was the last king of the united kingdom of Israel, and the first ruler of the southern two-tribe kingdom of Judah and Benjamin. Soon after he was anointed and crowned king at Shechem by all Israel, the united kingdom which grew under David and Solomon was divided; and men of virtue and peace were separated from the men of passion and war. Ten of the twelve tribes of Israel withdrew their support of Rehoboam, and made Jeroboam the Ephraimite (son of Nebat, one of Solomon's officers in the village of Zeredah) their king, as was foretold by Ahijah the prophet. The reign of the kings of Israel lasted two hundred and fifty-seven years, from c.997 to 740 B.C.; until Shalmaneser V king of Assyria besieged Samaria, and took captive Israel, and planted them into various cities of Assyria, Media, Persia, and Armenia. And the reign of the kings of Judah lasted three hundred and ninety years, from 997 to 607 B.C.; until Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylonia besieged Jerusalem and Judah, and took captive Jews to Babylonia. An abridgement of the record of all the twenty kings of Judah, and nineteen of Israel, and known prophets of this period, begins with Rehoboam and Jeroboam the kings; and Ahijah, Shemaiah, and Iddoh (Iddo) the prophets.

And it came to pass that Jeroboam, who dwelt in Egypt, was informed of the death of Solomon and the coronation of his son Rehoboam; and all Israel called him back to his homeland. And Jeroboam joined the congregation of Israel, and came to Rehoboam, saying: Thy father made our yoke grievous; now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee. And Rehoboam said, Depart yet for three days, then come again to me; and Jeroboam and those with him departed. Then king Rehoboam consulted the old men, that once stood before Solomon his father, and said, How do you advise that I may answer this people? And they said unto him: If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, they will be thy servants forever. But he forsook the counsel of the elders, and consulted the young men with whom he grew up, and those that stood before him. And Rehoboam said unto them, What counsel give ye that we may answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter? And the young men spake unto him, saying, Thus shalt thou speak unto this people — My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins; and now whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke; my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with stinging whips (scorpions).

And when Jeroboam and his people came to Rehoboam the third day, the king answered them crossly, and forsook the old men's counsel; and spake to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying: My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke; my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with stinging whips. So the king hearkened not unto the people, for the cause was from the Lord, that he might fulfill the prophecy made by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam, when he rent his garment into twelve pieces, and gave Jeroboam ten pieces, saying: For thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee.

So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people rebelled against the king, saying: What portion have we in David? Neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse! to your tents, O Israel; now see to your own house, David! And Israel departed to their dwellings. But as for the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them. And it came to pass that when Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was over the tribute, Israel stoned him to death; and in fear Rehoboam fled in his chariot to Jerusalem. Thus Israel rebelled against the house of Judah, and the congregation elected Jeroboam king over the ten tribes of Israel, except the tribe of Dan which remained loyal to the house of Judah.

Then Rehoboam assembled the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and chose an hundred and eighty thousand warriors to fight against Israel. But the word of the Lord came to Rehoboam through Shemaiah the prophet, saying: Thus saith the Lord, ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren, the children of Israel; return every man to his house, for this thing is from me. So they all returned, each man to his dwelling place.

And it came to pass that Jeroboam rebuilt Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Penuel near the ford of the Jabbok river, and dwelt in Shechem. Now Jeroboam became afraid, saying in his heart, If the people go to Jerusalem to offer sacrifices in the house of the Lord, the heart of the people may turn again unto their Lord, and unto Rehoboam king of Judah; then they will kill me and the kingdom shall return to the house of David. Whereupon Jeroboam took counsel, and made two golden calves, and spake unto Israel, saying, Behold thy God, O Israel, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt! And he set one in Beth-el and the other in Dan. And this thing became a sin, for all Israel worshipped the calves from Dan to Beth-el. And he appointed priests of the lowest order, not from the house of Aaron, to perform the rituals and ceremonies, nor from the house of Levi (or the Al-Levi) to seek Spiritual guidance and direction. In the eighth month, on the fifteenth day, Jeroboam offered upon the altar in Beth-el burnt incense and sacrificed calves; and proclaimed it a feast day for all Israel.

And, behold, there came a man of God out of Judah by the word of the Lord to Beth-el, and cried, saying, O altar, altar, thus saith the Lord — Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee. Behold, today I give the sign, this altar shall be rent (torn down), and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out. When king Jeroboam heard the words of the man of God, he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, Lay hold on him. But his hand which he put forth against him dried up, so that he could not pull it in again to him; and the altar was rent, and ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the Lord.

Then the king humbled himself, and said unto the man of God, Intreat now the Lord thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored unto me again. And the man of God besought the Lord, and Jeroboam's hand was restored again, and became as it was before. And the king said unto the man of God, Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and I will give thee a reward. And the man of God replied, If thou wilt give me half thine house, I will not go with thee; neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place; for so it was charged me by the word of the Lord, not to eat bread nor drink water, nor to turn again by the same way that thou camest. So he went another way, and returned not by the way he came to Beth-el. Now,there dwelt an old prophet in Beth-el; and his sons told him all the works the man of God from Judah had done that day. And he said unto his sons, What way went he? For his sons had seen what way the man of God went, and he said unto his sons, Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him an ass, and he rode thereon after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak. And they said unto him, Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah? And he said, I am. Then he said unto him, Come home with me, and eat bread. And he replied, I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee; neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place; for it is given me by the word of the Lord, not to eat bread nor drink water in this place. So the man lied unto him, saying, I am a prophet also as thou art; and an angel spake unto me by the word of the Lord, saying, Bring him back with thee into thine house, that he may eat bread and drink water. So he went back with him, and ate bread and drank water. And as they sat at the table after their meal, the old prophet cried unto the man of God from Judah, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Forasmuch as thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and hast not kept the commandment of the Lord, and hast eaten bread and drunk water in this place, thy carcass shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers. And it came to pass that while the man of God was gone, a lion met him by the way, and slew him, and his carcass was cast in the way; and his ass and also the lion stood by the carcass.

And, behold, men passed by and saw the carcass cast in the way; and the lion and the ass standing by the carcass; the lion had not eaten the carcass nor the ass. When the old prophet heard, he said unto his sons, It is the man of God who was disobedient unto the word of the Lord; therefore the Lord hath delivered him unto the lion, which hath torn him, and slain him; now therefore saddle me the ass that I may go thither and fetch his carcass. And the old prophet went and found the carcass, and the ass and the lion standing by it. He took up the carcass in the sight of the lion and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back to the city, to mourn and bury him. Then he laid the carcass in his own sepulchre; and they mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother! After he had buried the carcass, he spake to his sons, saying, When I am dead, bury my bones alongside his bones; for the saying which he cried against the altar in Beth-el, and against all the houses of the high places in the cities of Samaria, shall surely come to pass.

Jeroboam, however, did not return from his evil ways; but made again the lowest of the people, the thieves, the liars, the whoremongers, and such, the priests of the high places. Whosoever would, he consecrated him; and he consecrated himself the chief priest of the high places. And this thing became an abomination in the sight of the Lord; so much so that the house of Jeroboam was cursed to be cut off and destroyed from the face of the earth.

Soon after, Abijah, a son of Jeroboam, fell sick, and Jeroboam said to his wife, Arise, I pray thee, and disguise thyself that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam, and get thee to Shiloh; behold there is Ahijah the prophet which told me that I should be king over this people. Take with thee ten loaves and cracknels, and a cruse of honey, and go to him; he shall tell thee what shall become of the child. And Jeroboam's wife did so, and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were set by reason of his age. And the Lord said unto Ahijah, Behold, the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son, for he is sick; and it shall be when she cometh in, that she shall feign herself to be another woman. And it was so. When Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, he said, Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam, why feignest thou to be another? And she said, For I am sent to thee with heavy tidings. So Ahijah the prophet said, Go tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel, and rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it thee; yet thou hast not been as my servant David, who followed me with all his heart, and obeyed the commandments which were given to him. But thou hast done evil above all that were before thee; for thou hast dwindled and made thee other gods, and molten images, to provoke me to anger, and cast me behind thy back. Therefore, behold, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and cut off from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up and left in Israel; and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh away dung, till it be all gone. Him that dieth in the city shall the dogs eat, and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat; for the Lord hath spoken it. Arise thou therefore, get thee to thine own house; and when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die. And all Israel shall mourn for him, and bury him; for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him alone is found some good thing toward the Lord God of Israel. Moreover the Lord shall raise him up a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam that day, even now. Moreover, for the Lord shall smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water, and shall root up Israel out of this goodly land which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river (Euphrates); because they have made their asherim (groves of trees), provoking the Lord to anger. And he shall give Israel up, because of the sins of Jeroboam, who caused Israel to sin. And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, and came to Tirzah; and when she reached the threshhold of the door, the child died. And they buried him, and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the Lord spoken by Ahijah the prophet. And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he warred and reigned, were recorded in the book of chronicles of the kings of Israel.

In the eighteenth year of Jeroboam king of Israel began Abijah (Abijam, or Abia) to reign over Judah; his mother's name was Michaiah the daughter of Uriel of Gibeah. He reigned three years in Jerusalem, and there was a war between Abijah and Jeroboam. Abijah set the battle in array with an army of four hundred thousand valiant men of war. Jeroboam also set the battle in array against him with eight hundred thousand chosen men, mighty men of valour. And Abijah stood upon mount Zemaraim in mount Ephraim, and said, Hear me, thou Jeroboam, and all Israel. Ought ye not to know that the Lord God of Israel gave the kingdom over to the house of David, even to him and his sons by a covenant of salt? Yet, behold, Jeroboam the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon the son of David, is risen up and hath rebelled against his lord. And there are gathered unto him vain men, the children of Belial (scoundrels); and have strengthened themselves against Rehoboam the son of Solomon, when he was yet young and tenderhearted, and could not withstand them. And now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the Lord with a great multitude, and with the golden calves which Jeroboam made you for gods. Have ye not cast out the priests of the Lord, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites; and have made you priests after the manner of the nations of strange lands? So that whosoever cometh to consecrate himself with a young bullock and seven rams, the same may become a priest of them that are no gods. But as for us, the Lord is our God, and we have not forsaken him; and the priests that minister unto the Lord, are the sons of Aaron, and the Levites wait upon their business. And they burn unto the Lord every morning and every evening burnt sacrifices and sweet incense; the shewbread also set they in order upon the pure table; and the candlestick of gold with the lamps thereof, to burn every evening; for we keep the charge of the Lord our God, but ye have forsaken him. And, behold, God himself is with us for our captain; and his priests with sounding trumpets to cry alarm against you. O children of Israel, fight ye not against the Lord God of your fathers, for ye shall not prosper.

But Jeroboam caused an ambushment to come from behind, so Judah was trapped between the two. And when the men of Judah looked behind, and saw that battle was before and behind them, they cried unto the Lord, and the priests sounded the trumpets. And it came to pass that as the men of Judah gave a shout of the battle cry, God smote Jeroboam, and all Israel fled in confusion. And God delivered them into the hands of Abijah and his men, that they slew them with a great slaughter, and on that day fell down slain of Israel five hundred thousand chosen men. And Abijah pursued after the children of Israel, and took Beth-el and surrounding towns, Jeshanah with towns thereof, and Ephraim and towns thereof.

Thus Jeroboam reigned as king of Israel twenty-two years, and slept with his fathers, and Nadab his son reigned in his stead. Now, Rehoboam son of Solomon was forty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the Lord did choose out of all the tribes of Israel. But Judah did evil in the sight of the Lord, and continued to provoke him to jealousy, with their sins and abominations. For they also built themselves high places, molten images, and groves on the hills and among the green trees. And they dwelt with Sodomites, and did according to all their abominations, which the Lord had forbidden them. Therefore, in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, the Lord caused Shishak the king of Egypt to come up against Jerusalem with twelve hundred chariots, sixty thousand horsemen, and innumerable multitude of the Egyptians, the Libyans (Lubim), the Sukkim, and the Cushites (Nubians). And he took away the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house, even all. He took away all the shields of gold which Solomon had made. And Rehoboam made in their stead brazen shields, and committed them unto the hands of the chief guards, that kept the door of the king's house, and to guard the chamber. Then came Shemaiah the prophet to Rehoboam and to the princes of Judah that were gathered together in Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said unto them, Thus saith the Lord, Ye have forsaken me, therefore I have left you in the hand of Shishak. Whereupon the princes of Judah and the king humbled themselves, saying, The Lord is righteous. And when the Lord saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the Lord came to Shemaiah, saying, For they have humbled themselves I will not destroy them, but will grant them some deliverance; and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak. Nevertheless they shall be his servants, that they may know my works, and the works of the kingdoms of the countries. So Rehoboam the son of Solomon by his Ammonite wife Naamah reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, and slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David; and Abijah (Abijam, Abia) his son reigned over Judah.

In the eighteenth year of Jeroboam king of Israel, Abijah son of Maachah, the daughter of Absalom (Abi-shalom), began his reign over Judah. Three years he reigned in Jerusalem, but his heart was not right with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David; And Abijah walked in all the sins of his father, which he had committed before him. Abijah married fourteen wives, and begat twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. So Abijah, one of the twenty-eight sons of Rehoboam, became the second king of the two-tribe kingdom of Judah, and reigned from circa 980 B.C. to 977 B.C. Abijah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David, and his son Asa reigned in his stead. And prophet Iddo kept the book of records of the kings of Judah during this time.

In the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Asa over Judah. And Asa did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. He took away the altars of the false gods from the high places, cut down the asherim (groves), and removed the Sodomites from the land, and all the idols that his father Abijam made unto strange gods. And his grandmother Maachah the daughter of Absalom (Abi-shalom) was removed from the royal office, because she had made an idol in a grove; he took away her idol and burnt it by the brook Kidron. And he commanded Judah to seek the Lord God of their fathers, and to keep the commandments and statutes of the Lord. He built fenced cities in Judah, and spake unto the people, saying, Let us build these cities, and make about them walls, towers, gates and bars, while the land is yet before us, for the Lord hath given us rest on every side (except there was a war between Baasha king of Israel and Judah all their days).

Asa had an army of five hundred and eighty thousand men; three hundred thousand of Judah that bare large shields (targets) and spears, and two hundred and eighty thousand men of Benjamin that bare shields and used bows and arrows. And it came to pass that there came against Judah and Benjamin, Zerah the Libyan with an host of a million men, and three hundred chariots, unto Mareshah. And they fought the battle in the valley of Zephathah. Then cried Asa unto the Lord, and said, Lord it is nothing with thee to help, whether they be many or a few; help us, O Lord our God, for we rest on thee, and in thy name we go against this multitude. O Lord, thou art our God, let not these men prevail against thee. So the Lord smote the Libyans and the Ethiopians, and they fled. Asa and his people pursued them unto Gerar, and carried away very much spoil, sheep and camels in abundance, unto Jerusalem.

And the Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Oded; and he went out to meet Asa, and said unto him; Hear me, Asa, and Judah and Benjamin — The Lord is with you, for ye have put your trust in him; and if ye continue to seek him, he will be found of you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you. Now for a long season Israel hath been without the true God, and without a teaching priest and the law; but when they sought him with contrite heart and faith, in their trouble, he didst come to their rescue. Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak, for ye shall be rewarded according to your works. And when Asa heard these words and the prophecy of the son of Oded, he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and resident aliens, out of Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon, unto Jerusalem in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa (in 963 B.C.). And they offered unto the Lord of the spoils which they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep. And they entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers, with all their heart and soul; that whosoever would not abide in the law of the Lord God of Israel shall be put to death, whether small or great, man or woman. And all the people sware unto the Lord with a loud voice and shouting, with trumpets, and with horns (shofarim); and the congregation rejoiced greatly at the oath which they had sworn; and remained steadfast in obeying the law. And the Lord gave them rest round about, and there was no war unto the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

And Nadab the son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned two years. He did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the ways of his father, and caused Israel to sin. In the third year of Asa king of Judah, Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against Nadab and slew him at Gibbethon (which belonged to the Philistines). And Baasha began to reign in Israel. After he was established, he smote all the house of Jeroboam, leaving not one alive to carry his name. Thus all was fulfilled that was spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite, the prophet of the Lord, concerning the house of Jeroboam.

In the third year of Asa king of Judah began Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, and twenty-four years he reigned. And there was war between Asa and Baasha all their days. And Baasha did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the ways of Jeroboam; and in his sin caused all Israel to sin. Then the word of the Lord came to Jehu the son of Hanani, against Baasha, saying, Forasmuch as I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel, thou hast walked in the ways of Jeroboam, and hast made my people to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins and abominations. Behold, I will take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house; and will make thine house like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat. Him of Baasha that dieth in the city shall the dogs eat; and he of him that dieth in the fields shall the fowls of the air eat.

In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha king of Israel came up against Judah to build up Ramah; with the intention that none could go out or come in to Jerusalem to worship the Lord. Then Asa took silver and gold out of the treasury of the house of the Lord and from the king's treasury, and sent it away to Ben-hadad king of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, for safekeeping; saying, There is a league between me and thee, as there was between my father and thy father; behold, I have sent thee silver and gold, go therefore, and break thy league with Baasha king of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Asa, and sent the captains of his armies against the cities of Israel; and they smote Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim, all Chinoreth (Chineroth), and all the storage cities of Naphtali. When Baasha heard it, he left his work at Ramah; and Asa the king of Judah carried away all the cut stones and timber which Baasha had brought to Ramah, and used it to build up Geba and Mizpah.

And it came to pass that Hanani the seer went to Asa, and said, Because thou hast relied on the king of Syria, and not on the Lord thy God, to drive away Baasha king of Israel, herein thou hast done foolishly, and from henceforth thou shalt have wars. Were not the Libyans and the Ethiopians a huge host, with very many chariots and horsemen? Yet, because thou didst rely on the Lord, he delivered them into thine hands. When Asa heard these words, he was wroth with the seer, and put him in a prison house. And it came to pass that in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, Asa was diseased in his feet, but he again sought not the Lord, but the soothsayers and magicians. His disease continued to increase, and he died in the forty-first year of his reign; and they buried him in his own sepulchre which he had prepared during his lifetime, in the city of David. And they laid him in the bed which was filled with sweet odors of divers kinds of ointments and spices prepared by the apothecaries' art; and they burnt his bed in a great ceremony. Thus Asa reigned as the king of Judah, from 977 B.C. to 937 B.C., then slept with his fathers; and Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel.

And it came to pass that Baasha king of Israel slept with his fathers, and was buried in Tirzah; and Elah his son reigned in his stead. In the twenty-sixth year of Asa king of Judah began Elah son of Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, two years. And his servant Zimri, captain of half his chariots, conspired against him, as he was getting drunk in Tirzah, in the house of Arza, steward of his house there. And Zimri went in and killed Elah son of Baasha, in the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned in his stead over Israel. And as soon as Zimri began to reign, the day he sat upon the throne, he slew all the house of Baasha. Thus all that which was spoken by Jehu was fulfilled. In the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah did Zimri reign over Israel seven days, in Tirzah; and the people were encamped against Gibbethon of the Philistines. But when the people heard that Zimri hath conspired, and hath slain Elah, behold, they made Omri, captain of the hosts of other half of the chariots of Israel, king over Israel that day. And Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah. And when Zimri saw that the city was taken, he fled into the palace of the king's house, and burnt the king's house over him with fire, and died.

Then the people of Israel divided themselves into two groups; half of them followed Omri, and the other half followed Tibni son of Ginath. But the followers of Omri prevailed against those of Tibni; so Tibni died, and Omri reigned. In the thirty-first year of Asa king of Judah Omri was crowned to reign over Israel. He reigned twelve years over Israel, six of which were in Tirzah.

Omri bought the hill Samaria for two talents of silver, and built upon the hill a city named Shemer, meaning owner of the hill Samaria. But Omri did evil in the sight of the Lord. He walked in all the ways of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin caused Israel to sin, and they provoked the Lord God of Israel to anger with their vanities and abominations. And Omri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria; and Ahab his son reigned in his stead. In the thirty-eighth year of Asa king of Judah began Ahab the son of Omri to reign over Israel; and he reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. And Ahab did evil in the sight of the Lord above all that were before him. He walked in all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat; and took to wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal king of the Zidonians, and served Baal and worshipped him. And he reared up an altar in Samaria for Baal in the house of Baal.

Then he made a grove, to provoke the Lord God of Israel to anger; and did more to provoke the Lord than all the kings that were before him. In his days did Hiel the Bethelite build Jericho, against the cursing of Joshua the son of Nun, saying, Cursed be the man before the Lord, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho; he shall lay the foundation thereof in his firstborn, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it! Hiel the Bethelite laid the foundation, and his firstborn Abiram died; and he set up the gates thereof, and his youngest son Segub was taken up; according to the words of the Lord, which he spake by Joshua the son of Nun.

And Elijah (also Eliyahu, Eliyah, Helias or Elias) the prophet, from Tishbeh of Gilead, said unto Ahab the king of Israel, As the Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word. And the word of the Lord came to Elijah, saying, Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. And it shall be that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. So he went and did according to the word of the Lord, and dwelt by the brook Cherith; and the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and in the evening; and he drank of the brook. And it came to pass that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land. And the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, Arise, get thee to Zarephath, which pertaineth to Zidon, and dwell there; behold, I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee. So Elijah arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow woman was there, gathering sticks; and he called to her, saying, Fetch me, I pray, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink. And as she was going to fetch it, he called to her again, saying, Bring me, I pray, a morsel of bread in thine hand. And she said, As the Lord thy God liveth, I have not a morsel of bread, but an handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a jar. And, behold, I am gathering a couple of sticks, that I may go in and cook it for me and my son, that we may eat, and die not. And Elijah said unto her, Fear not, go and do as thou hast said, but make me thereof a little cake of bread first, and bring it unto me; and after make for thee and thy son. For thus saith the Lord God of Israel, The barrel of meal shall not exhaust, and the jar of oil shall not deplete, until the day the Lord sendeth rain upon the earth. And she went and did according to the words of Elijah; and he, she and her son did eat many days. And the barrel of meal exhausted not, nor the jar of oil depleted. And it came to pass, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore that there was no breath left in him. And she said unto Elijah, What have I to do with thee, O thou man of God? Art thou come unto me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son? And Elijah said unto her, Give me thy son; and took him out of her bosom, and carried him up to a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his bed. And he cried unto the Lord, and said, O Lord my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son? And he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the Lord, saying, O Lord my God; I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again. And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah, and the soul of the child came unto him, and he revived. And Elijah took the child and brought him down into the house, and delivered him unto his mother, and said, See, thy son liveth! And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the Lord is truly in thy mouth.

And it came to pass, that the word of the Lord came to Elijah in the third year, saying, Go shew thyself unto Ahab, and I will send rain upon the land. And Elijah went to shew himself unto Ahab the king of Israel, while there was a sore famine in Samaria. And Ahab called Obadiah, the governor of his house, and said unto him, Go into the land, unto all fountains of water, and unto all brooks; peradventure we may find grass to save the horses and mules from starvation, that we may not lose all the beasts. And they divided the land between the two; and Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself. Now Obadiah feared the Lord greatly; and once when Jezebel cut off the prophets of the Lord, Obadiah took an hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty in a cave; and fed them with bread and water. And as Obadiah was on his way to search the land for water, Elijah met him. Obadiah knew him, and fell on his face, and said, Art thou my lord Elijah? And he answered, I am; go tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here. And Obadiah said, What have I sinned that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me? As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord (Ahab) hath not sent his spies to seek thee; and when they said, He cannot be seen anywhere; the king took an oath by the kingdom and nation that thou shalt be seen no more. And now sayest thou, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here! It shall surely come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee to inform the king, the Spirit of the Lord shall carry thee whither I know not; so when I tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me; behold, I thy servant, fear the Lord from my youth. Was it not told my lord what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the Lord, and how I hid an hundred men of the Lord's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water? And now, lo, thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here, that he may slay me for a surety. And Elijah said unto Obadiah, As the Lord of Hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely shew myself unto him today. So Obadiah went to Ahab, and told him, and Ahab came to meet with Elijah. When Ahab saw Elijah, he said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And Elijah said, I have not troubled Israel, but thou and thy father's house; in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim. Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, that eat at Jezebel's table. So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets unto mount Carmel. And Elijah spake unto the congregation, saying, How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him. And the people listened, but said not a word. Then said Elijah unto the people, I even I only, remain a prophet of the Lord; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men. Let them therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it into pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under. And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord; and the God that answereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, It is well spoken!

And Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, Choose ye one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first, for ye are many; and call upon the name of your gods, but put no fire under. And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon, saying, O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any answer. And they leaped upon the altar, yet no help came. At noon Elijah mocked them, saying, Cry aloud, for he is a god; either he is talking, or pursuing, or is on a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked. And they cried aloud, leaped and cut themselves with knives and lancets, till blood gushed out upon them. And when midday was past, and they propitiated and performed severe self-mortifications until the time of offering evening sacrifice, yet without any help or answer from Baal, Elijah said unto all the people, Come near unto me. And all the people came near to him. And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob; unto whom the word of the Lord came, saying, Israel shall be thy name. And with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord, and he made a trench about the altar, as large as it would contain two measures of seed; and put the wood in order; and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid it on the wood, and said unto the people, Fill four barrels with water, and pour it on the burnt sacrifice, and on the wood. So they did. And Elijah said, Do it the second time. So they did the second time. And he said do it the third time; and they did it the third time. And the water ran round about the altar, and he filled the trench also with water. At the time of offering the evening sacrifice Elijah the prophet came near, and said: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things at thy word. Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again. Then the fire of the Lord fell upon the burnt sacrifice, and consumed it, and the wood, the stones, the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces, and said, The Lord, he is the God; the Lord, he is the God.

And Elijah said unto them, Take the prophets of Baal, let not one of them escape. And they took them, and Elijah brought them to the brook Kishon, and there they were slain.

And Elijah said unto Ahab the king of Israel, Get thee up, eat and drink, for there is a sound of abundance of rain. So Ahab went up to eat and drink, and Elijah went up to mount Carmel; and he cast himself down upon the ground, and put his face between his knees, and said to his servant, Go up now, look toward the sea. And he went, and looked, and said, There is nothing. And Elijah said, Go again seven times. And it came to pass, that the seventh time when the servant went to look for any sign of rain, behold, there arose a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And Elijah said, Go up, say unto Ahab, Prepare thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not. In the meanwhile, the sky turned black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode and went to Jezreel. And Elijah received the word of the Lord, and girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

Now Ahab told his wife Jezebel, the daughter of Ethbaal king of the Zidonians, all that Elijah had done, and how all the prophets of Baal were slain at brook Kishon. Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by tomorrow about this time. And Elijah knowing the intent of Jezebel's heart, fled for his life, and came to Beer-sheba in Judah, and left his servant at Jezreel. Burdened with a heavy heart, and blood of men upon his head, he went a day's journey into the wilderness, and sat down under a juniper tree; and he requested the Lord that he might die, saying, It is enough, now O Lord, take away my life; for I am no better than my fathers. And as he lay asleep under the tree, behold, an angel of the Lord touched him, and said, Arise and eat. And Elijah saw there was a cake baked on coals, and a jar of water by his head. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again. And the angel of the Lord came again the second time, and touched him, saying, Arise and eat, because the journey is too great for thee. And he arose, and did eat and drink; and went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights unto Horeb, the mount of God. And Elijah came to a cave, and lodged there. Behold, there the word of the Lord came to him, saying, What doest thou here, Elijah? And he replied, I have been very zealous for the Lord God of Hosts; for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away. And Elijah heard the voice, saying, Go forth and stand upon the mount before the Lord. And Elijah went up to the top of the mount (Sinai), and stood there. Behold, a great and strong wind rent part of the mountain and broke into pieces small rocks. The Lord passeth by, thought Elijah; but the Lord was not in the wind; then came an earthquake, and the Lord was not in the earthquake; after the earthquake came a fire, but the Lord was not in the fire also; and after the fire came a still small voice, saying, What doest thou here, Elijah? And when Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out, and stood at the entrance of the cave. Behold, there came a voice unto him again, saying, What doest thou here, Elijah? And he replied, I have been very zealous for the Lord God of Hosts; because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away. And the Lord said unto him, Go return on thy way to the wilderness of Damascus; and when thou comest, thou mayest anoint Hazael to be king over Syria, and Jehu the son of Nimshi to be king over Israel; and Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abel-Meholah shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room. And it shall come to pass that him that escapeth the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay; and him that escapeth the sword of Jehu shall Elisha slay. Yet I have left me seven thousand in Israel, all the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, nor their mouths have kissed him.

So Elijah departed from Horeb, and on his way found Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was plowing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and he with the twelfth; and Elijah passed by him, and cast his mantle upon him. And Elisha left the oxen and ran after Elijah, and said, Let me, I pray, kiss my father and mother; and then I will follow thee. And Elijah said, Go back, for what have I done for thee? But Elisha took Elijah to his home, and took a yoke of oxen and slew them, and boiled their flesh with the instruments of oxen, and gave unto the people. And they did eat, and blessed the Lord. After this Elisha kissed his kinsfolk, his father and mother, and followed Elijah, and ministered unto him.

And it came to pass, that Ben-hadad king of Syria gathered all his host together, and thirty-two kings, their horses, and chariots; and together they went up and besieged Samaria, and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Ahab king of Israel into the city, saying, Thus saith Ben-hadad, Thy silver and gold is mine; thy wives, and thy children, even the goodliest are mine. And the king of Israel answered, My lord, O king, according to thy saying, I am thine, and all that I have. Then the messengers came again from Ben-hadad king of Syria, saying, Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, Although thou shalt deliver me thy silver, and thy gold,and thy wives and children, yet will I send my servants unto thee tomorrow about this time, and they shall search thine house and the dwellings of thy servants; and it shall be that whatsoever is pleasant in thine eye, the same shall be put in their hands to be taken away.

At this Ahab king of Israel was wroth, and he called all the elders of Israel, and said, Mark, I pray you, and see how this man seeketh mischief; for he sent unto me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver and my gold; and I denied him not. And all the elders and his counsellors said unto him, Hearken not unto him, nor consent! Wherefore Ahab said unto the messengers of Ben-hadad, Tell my lord the king, All that thou didst send for to thy servant at the first I will do; but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed; and brought him word again, saying, The gods do so unto me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for the handfuls that shall follow me. Then Ahab answered, saying, Tell him, Let not him that girdeth the armour boast himself, as the one that putteth it off!

And when Ben-hadad heard this message, he and the kings were drinking in the pavilions; and he said unto his servants, Set yourselves in array; and they set themselves in array to go against the city.

In the meantime, for Ahab humbled himself in the sight of God, a prophet of the Lord was sent to him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Hast thou seen all this great multitude? Behold, I will deliver it into thine hand this day; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. And Ahab said, By whom shalt thou deliver? And the prophet said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Even by the young men of the princes of the provinces shalt it be delivered into thine hand. Then he said, Who shall order the battle? And he answered, Thou. After this, Ahab numbered the young men of the princes of the provinces of Israel; and they were two hundred and thirty-two. Then he numbered all the children of the prophets, unknown in all Israel, and they were seven thousand. So the princes of the provinces and the children of the prophets went out; and the armies of Israel followed after them, and smote all the thirty-two kings that came with Ben-hadad, while they were drinking and merry-making in the pavilions. Ben-hadad king of Syria escaped on a horse with the other horsemen, and the Syrians fled.

And the prophet of the Lord said unto Ahab king of Israel, Go strengthen thyself, and prepare thyself for the onslaught, for next year the king of Syria will come again to battle against Israel. Now, the counsellors of the king of Syria said unto him, The gods of Israel are gods of the hills and high places, therefore they were stronger than we are; but let us fight against them in the plains, valleys, and low places, and we shall surely be stronger than they. Moreover do this thing: Take all the kings away, every king and ruler out of his place, and put captains of the army in their rooms (offices); and number thee an army, like the one thou hast lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot; and we will fight against Israel in the plain; and surely we will be stronger than they. And Ben-hadad hearkened to their counsel, and did so. And Ben-hadad king of Syria numbered his people, and went to Aphek to fight against Israel, and the Syrians filled the country. And, behold, an angel of the Lord came to the king of Israel, and said, Thus saith the Lord, Because the Syrians have said, The Lord is God of the hills, but not of the valleys, therefore I will deliver all this great multitude into thine hand, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

And they pitched one camp against the other seven days; and on the seventh day the battle began. The children of Israel slew of the Syrians an hundred thousand footmen that day. But the rest fled unto the city, to Aphek; and there a wall of soldiers fell upon twenty-seven thousand of them. And Ben-hadad fled into the inner chamber of the city. Then the counsellors of Ben-hadad king of Syria said unto their king, Behold now, it is said that the kings of Israel are just and merciful; let us, I pray thee, put sackcloth on our loins and ropes upon our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; peradventure he will save thy life. So in this manner they appeared before the house of the king of Israel. And Ben-hadad sent the messenger, saying, Thy servant Ben-hadad saith, I pray thee, let me live. And Ahab said, Is he yet alive? He is my brother; go ye, bring him; and he caused him to be brought in the royal chariot. And Ben-hadad said unto him, The cities which my father took from thy father, I will restore; and thou shalt make trade centers (bazaars) for thyself in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria. Then said Ahab, I will send thee away with this covenant; and he sent him away. But the thing was of God. And a certain man of the sons of the prophets spake unto his neighbor, saying, Smite me in the name of the Lord, I say unto thee; but the man refused to smite him. So the son of the prophets said unto him, Because thou hast not obeyed the word of the Lord, spoken in his name; behold, as soon as thou art departed from me, a lion shall slay thee. And as soon as he was departed from him, a lion found him, and slew him. Then he found another man, and said, Smite me, saith the Lord. And the man smote him, and in doing so wounded him. So the son of the prophets departed, and waited for the king by the wayside, and disguised himself with ashes upon his face, and headband around his head.

And as Ahab king of Israel passed by, the man of the sons of the prophets cried unto the king, and said, Thy servant went out into the midst of the battle; and behold, a man turned aside, and brought a man unto me, saying, Keep this man; and if by any means he be missing, then shalt thy life be for his; or else thou shalt pay a talent of silver. And as thy servant was busy here and there, he was gone. And the king of Israel said unto him, So shall thy judgement be, thyself hath decided it. And he hasted and wiped the ashes away from the man's face, and discerned that he was of the sons of the prophets. And he said unto the king, Thus saith the Lord, Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man whom I appointed to utter destruction; and wast taken by his bribery and deceit, therefore thy life shall go for his, and thy people for his people. And Ahab returned to his house in Samaria, heavy of heart and displeased.

And it came to pass after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard in Jezreel, next to the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs; because it is near unto my house; and I will give thee in exchange a better vineyard, or if it seem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of the money. And Naboth replied, saying, God forbid, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee. So Ahab returned to his house, heavy and displeased with the words of Naboth; and he laid himself down upon his bed, turned away his face, and would eat no bread. But Jezebel his wife came to him, and said, Why is thy spirit so sad, that you eatest no bread? And he said unto her, Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another for it; but he refused to give me his vineyard. And Jezebel said unto her husband Ahab, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? Arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry; and I, even I, will get thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite! Then she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal; and sent them to the elders and the nobles that dwelt in Jezreel. And she wrote, saying, Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people; and set two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst blaspheme God and the king; then carry him out, and stone him to death. And the men of the city, even the elders and nobles of Jezreel, did according to the letters which they received from Jezebel. They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people. And there came two men of Belial (bullies) and sat before him, and the men of Belial bare false witness against Naboth, in the presence of all the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city; and he was stoned, that he died. Then they sent messengers to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

When Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, she said unto Ahab her husband, Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money, for Naboth is not alive, but dead. And when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, he rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth in Jezreel, to take possession of it. And the word of the Lord came to Elijah the prophet of Tishbeh, saying, Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel in Samaria; behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, to take possession thereof; and thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? For thou and thy wife Jezebel have done this evil, in the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, shall they lick thy blood, even thine. And Ahab said to Elijah, Is this thy judgement, O mine enemy? And he answered, It is the judgement of the Lord, because thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord. Behold, he will bring evil upon thine house, and take away thy posterity; and will cut off from Ahab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up and left in Israel; and will make thine house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah; for thou hast provoked him to anger, and caused Israel to sin, saith the Lord. Moreeover, of Jezebel thy wife also spake the Lord, saying, The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel; and him of Ahab that dieth in the city, the dogs shall eat, and him that dieth in the field, shall the fowls of the air eat.

So there was not one in the past like Ahab and his house, which did so wickedly in the sight of the Lord; he burned incense to the idols of the Amorites, and caused Israel to sin and to do the most abominable and detestable things of the heathen nations, which were forever cursed by the Lord. And when Ahab king of Israel heard the word of Elijah the prophet, he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and humbled himself. Then the word of the Lord came again to Elijah, saying, Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself; and because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring the evil in his days; but in his son's days will I bring evil upon his house. And for three years there was no war between Syria and Israel.

Now Jehoshaphat son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel. Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem; his mother's name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi. He made peace with the king of Israel, and caused the ships of Tharshish (Tarshish) to go to Ophir for gold; but they went not, for the ships were destroyed at Ezion-geber. He also placed forces in all the fenced (fortified) cities of Judah, and set garrisons throughout Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had taken. Jehoshaphat sought the Lord God of his fathers, and walked in his commandments and statutes, not after the abominations of Israel. Therefore the Lord established the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah brought him presents, riches and honor in abundance. Moreover, he took away all the high places and groves out of Judah.

In the third year of his reign, Jehoshaphat sent to his princes, Ben-hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethaneel, and Micaiah, to teach the law of Moses in the cities of Judah. And they went to the Levites (Al-Levi), Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah; and Elishama and Jehoram the (Aaronic) priests; and they taught the Law of the Lord from the book (scroll) which they carried, throughout all the cities of Judah. And the fear of the Lord fell upon all the inhabitants of the land, and upon all the kingdoms round about Judah; so they made no war against Jehoshaphat. Some Philistines brought him presents and tribute of silver; and the Arabians brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams, and seven thousand seven hundred he-goats.

And Jehoshaphat waxed great exceedingly, and built in Judah castles (fortified cities) and storage cities. These were his chief men: Adnah was the chief over the captains of thousands, and with them three hundred thousand mighty men of valor; next to him was Jehohanan the captain, and with him two hundred and eighty thousand mighty men of valor. Of Benjamin, Eliada was the chief over the captains of thousands, and with him two hundred thousand armed men with bows and shields; and next to Eliada of Benjamin was Jehozabad, and with him one hundred and eighty thousand men prepared for war. These waited upon Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, besides those whom the king put in the fenced cities throughout all Judah.

Now Jehoshaphat with riches and honor in abundance, joined forces with Ahab. Every so often he went down to Ahab to Samaria, and Ahab killed sheep and oxen for him and his guests in abundance. And it came to pass that Ahab king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-gilead? And he answered, I am as thou art, and my people as thy people; and we will be with thee in war. And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, Enquire, I pray thee, at the word of the Lord today if we shall go to Ramoth-gilead to battle? Therefore the king of Israel gathered together four hundred of his false prophets, and asked them if they should go to battle or not; and they said, Go up, for God will deliver it into the king's hand. But Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the Lord, that we may enquire of him? And Ahab replied, There is yet one man by whom we may enquire of the Lord; but I hate him, for he never prophecied good unto me, but always evil; the same is Micaiah the son of Imla. And Micaiah was to be brought into the presence of the kings of Israel and Judah; who sat upon their thrones in an open place at the entrance gate of Samaria, clothed in their royal robes; while the false prophets of Israel prophecied, saying, Go up to Ramoth-gilead and prosper, for God shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

And Zedekiah the son of Chenaniah had made him horns of iron (primitive loudspeakers, signaling instruments), and said, Thus saith the Lord, With these thou shalt push Syria until they be consumed! And when the messengers of the king went to fetch Micaiah the prophet, they said unto him, Behold, the words of the prophets of Israel declare good to the king with one voice, let thy words, therefore, I pray thee, be like one of theirs, and speak thou good also. And Micaiah replied, As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak. And when Micaiah was brought into the presence of the kings, the king of Israel said unto him, Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle or not? And Micaiah said, Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand. And the king said unto him, How many times shall I adjure thee that thou say nothing but the truth to me in the name of the Lord? So Micaiah answered, I did see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd; and the Lord said, These have no master, let them remain every man in his own house in peace. And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, Did I not tell thee that he would not prophecy good unto me but evil? So Micaiah spake again, saying, Therefore hear the word of the Lord; I saw the Lord sitting upon his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right hand and on his left. And the Lord said, Who shall entice Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one spake saying such and such, and another spake saying such and such; then there appeared a familiar spirit before the Lord, and stood before him, saying, I will entice him; I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets! And he was approved, and sent to entice Ahab. Now therefore, behold, the Lord hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of all thy prophets, and the Lord hath spoken evil against thee. Then Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah came near, and smote Micaiah upon the cheek, saying, Which way went the Spirit of the Lord from me to speak unto thee? And Micaiah replied, Behold, thou shalt see that day when thou shalt go into an inner chamber to hide thyself. Then Ahab said unto his servants, Take ye Micaiah, and carry him back to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king's son, and say, Thus saith the king, Put this fellow in the prison and feed him with bread of affliction and with water of affliction, until I return in peace. And Micaiah said, If thou certainly return in peace, then hath not the Lord spoken to me, hearken all ye people!

And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, I will disguise myself, and will go to battle; but put thou on thy robes. So Ahab and Jehoshaphat went to Ramoth-gilead to battle with the Syrians. Now the king of Syria had commanded his captain of the chariots, saying, fight ye not with small or great, save only with the king of Israel. And it came to pass that when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, It is the king of Israel! And they surrounded him to fight; but Jehoshaphat cried out unto the Lord for help; and God caused them to depart from him. For, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. And a certain man drew a bow at a venture, and smote Ahab the king of Israel in disguise, between the joints of the harness; therefore he said to his chariot man, Turn thine hand that thou mayest carry me out of the host, for I am wounded. And the battle increased that day; and about the time of sunset the king of Israel died. And Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned to his house in peace to Jerusalem.

And Jehu the son of Hanani the prophet went out to meet Jehoshaphat, and said unto the king, Shouldest thou help the ungodly and love them that hate the Lord? Therefore the wrath of God is upon thee; nevertheless there are good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves (asherim) out of the land, and hast prepared thine heart to seek God.

And Jehoshaphat dwelt in Jerusalem, and went out to preach from Beer-sheba to mount Ephraim; and brought them back into the fold of the Lord God of their fathers. He also set judges in each fenced city of Judah, and said to the judges, Take heed what ye do; for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in each of your judgements.

Wherefore now let the fear of the Lord be upon you; take heed and do it; for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor bribery. So Jehoshaphat set the Al-Levi or the Levites, the chief of the priests, and chief of the fathers of Israel, as judges in Jerusalem; to judge all people by the law of the Lord, even all controversies and disputes. Moreover Jehoshaphat charged them, saying, Thus shall ye render justice in the fear of the Lord, faithfully and with a perfect heart. And whatsoever cause shall come before you of your brethren of the city, between blood and blood, between the law and commandments, statutes, and judgements, all shall be judged by the law of the Lord. Ye shall warn them that they trespass not against the Lord, lest his wrath come upon you and your brethren; this do ye diligently, that ye trespass not. And, behold, Amariah the chief priest is over all matters of the sanctuary; and Zebadiah the son of Ishmael, the ruler of the house of Judah, over all the king's matters; and the Levite officers are all at your service. Deal courageously and faithfully and the Lord shall bless you with his just recompense.

And it came to pass that there came a great multitude of the Moabites and the Ammonites against Jehoshaphat from beyond the sea on this side of Syria, and they encamped at Hazazontamar in En-gedi. In fear Jehoshaphat set himself to seek the Lord, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. And Judah gathered themselves together of all the cities to ask help of the Lord, and to seek the Lord. Jehoshaphat stood in their midst and spake unto the congregation from the new court before the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, and said:

> O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven? and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee? Art not thou our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend for ever? And they dwelt therein, and have built thee a sanctuary therein for thy name, with thy divine promise; if evil befall us, as the sword, judgement, pestilence or famine; if we stand before this house, and in thy presence, and cry unto thee in our affliction, then thou wilt hear and help.

And now, behold, the children of Ammon and Moab and mount Seir, whom thou wouldest not let Israel invade, when they came out of the land of Egypt, behold, the nations that were not destroyed by our fathers, the same have become our bitter enemy. Behold, how they reward us, to come to cast us out of thy possession, which thou hast apportioned us as our inheritance.

O our God, wilt thou not judge them? For we have no might against this great company that cometh against us; neither know we what to do, but our eyes are upon thee.

And all Judah stood before the house of the Lord, with their little ones, their wives and children. Then the Spirit of God came upon Jahaziel the son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph; and he spake in the midst of the congregation, saying, Hearken ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat, Thus saith the Lord, Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for the battle is not yours, but God's. Tomorrow go ye down against them; behold, they come up by the cliff of Ziz, and ye shall find them at the end of the brook before the wilderness of Jeruel. Ye shall not need to fight in this battle; set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the deliverance of the Lord, O Judah and Jerusalem. Fear not, nor be dismayed; tomorrow go ye out against them, for the Lord will be with you. And Jehoshaphat bowed his head with his face to the ground, and all Judah and Jerusalem fell before the house of the Lord, and worshipped the Lord God of their fathers. And the Levites, of the children of the Kohathites and the Korhites, stood up to sing praises to the Lord God of Israel with a loud voice.

Next morning they rose early, to go forth into the wilderness of Tekoa; and as they were about to march, Jehoshaphat stood and spake unto them, saying, Hear me, O Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem; believe in the Lord your God, that ye may be established; believe his prophets, that ye may prosper. And when he had consulted with the people, he appointed singers unto the Lord, that they should sing hymns of praise and holiness, as they went before the army; and to say, Praise be the Lord, for his mercy endureth forever! And when he had consulted with the people, he appointed singers unto the Lord, that they should sing hymns of praise and holiness, as they went before the army; and to say, Praise be the Lord, for his mercy endureth forever! And when they began to sing and praise, the Lord set ambushments against the children of Ammon, Moab, and Seir, and they were smitten. For the children of Ammon and Moab stood up against the inhabitants of mount Seir, and utterly destroyed them. And when Judah came toward the watchtower in the wilderness, they saw a multitude of dead bodies scattered throughout Seir, so much so that none escaped. When Jehoshaphat and his people came to take away the spoil, they found among the dead bodies abundance of precious jewels; which they stripped off from them, more than they could carry away; and they were three days in gathering the spoils. On the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley (of the Berachah) and there they blessed the Lord, and called the name of the place valley of the Berachah. Then they all returned to Jerusalem and other cities of Judah, every man to his dwelling place, with joy and great rejoicing, for the Lord had brought them victorious over their enemies.

And Jehoshaphat in the forefront of his people returned to Jerusalem, with the Levite singers with psalteries, harps, and trumpets, unto the house of the Lord. From this time onward God gave him rest round about, and the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet. He walked in the way of the Lord, as did his father Asa, and departed not from it, doing that which was right in the sight of the Lord. After this, Jehoshaphat king of Judah joined forces with Ahaziah king of Israel, who did very wickedly. Together they built ships at Ezion-geber (on the gulf of Aqabah) to be sent to Tarshish, but the ships never did reach Tarshish; for Eliezer the son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophecied against Jehoshaphat, because he had made an alliance with Ahaziah, an enemy of the Lord.

Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat were recorded by Jehu the son of Hanani. Jehoshaphat began to reign over Judah when he was thirty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. And the fear of God fell on all the kingdoms that heard how the Lord had fought against the enemies of Israel and delivered them out of the hands of the Ammonites and Moabites. And it came to pass that Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And Jehoram his son reigned in his stead.

Now Moab rebelled against Israel also, after the death of Ahab king of Israel. And Ahaziah the son of Ahab fell down through a lattice in his upper chamber, when he was in Samaria, and he became paralyzed; so he sent messengers, saying, Go, enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron, whether I shall recover of this disease? But the angel of the Lord said to Elijah the Tishbite, Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? Now therefore thus saith the Lord, Thou shall not come down from that bed on which thou art, but shall surely die. And Elijah the prophet, of Tishbeh, departed to meet the messengers; and told them that which he was bidden to say. And the messengers returned to the king, and said, Behold, there came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, Go, return unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? Therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die. And Ahaziah said unto them, What manner of man was he that came to meet you, and told you these words? And they answered him, He was a hairy man, girt with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said, It is Elijah the Tishbite. Then the king sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty; and he went up to Elijah, and spake to him, while the prophet sat on top of an hill; saying, Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down. And Elijah answered to the captain of the fifty, If I be a man of God, then let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came a fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty. And Ahaziah the king of Israel again sent a captain of the fifty, with his men; and Elijah repeated the same words, saying, If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And the fire of God came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty. Then the king sent a captain of the third fifty with his fifty. And the captain came, and fell on his knees before Elijah, and besought him, saying, O man of God, I pray thee, let my life and the life of these fifty thy servants be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifty with all their men; therefore let my life now be precious in thy sight. And the angel of the Lord said unto Elijah, Go down with him, be not afraid of him! And he arose,and went down with him to the king. And he said unto the king, Thus saith the Lord, Forasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron, is it not because there is no God in Israel to enquire of his word? Therefore thou shalt not come down off that bed on which thou art gone up, but shall surely die. So Ahaziah son of Ahab died, according to the words of Elijah the prophet; and Joram (Jehoram) reigned in his stead, in the second year of Jehoram (Joram) the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah; because he had no son.

Now Jehoshaphat had other sons, Azariah (I), Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah (II), Michael, and Shephatiah. And he had given them great gifts of silver and gold and precious stones, with fenced cities in Judah; but the kingdom he bestowed upon Jehoram, because he was the firstborn. But when Jehoram was risen up to the kingdom of Judah, he strengthened himself and slew all his brethren with the sword of their enemy. Jehoram was thirty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem, and walked not in the way of his father, but in the ways of the kings of Israel, like as the house of Ahab; and took Ahab's daughter to wife, and wrought all that which was evil in the sight of the Lord.

In the days of Jehoram, the Edomites revolted from under the dominion of Judah, and made themselves a king; and surrounded Jehoram, his captains of the chariots, and his princes, when they came to battle; but Jehoram rose up by night and smote the Edomites. And the Edomites became his bitter enemies. At the same time Libnah also revolted against Judah, for the king of Judah had forsaken the Lord God of his fathers. Moreover, Jehoram built high places in the mountains of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Judah to commit fornication, and compelled Judah to participate in the whoredoms.

And, behold, there came a word to Jehoram from Elijah the prophet, saying, Thus saith the Lord God of David thy father, Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Asa king of Judah; but hast walked in the way of the kings of Israel; and hast made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to go a whoring, like the whoredoms of the house of Ahab; and also hast slain thy brethren of thy father's house, which were better than thyself; behold, with a great plague will the Lord smite thy people, thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods. And thou shalt have great sickness by disease of thy bowels, until thy bowels fall out by reason of the sickness day by day. Moreover, the Lord stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians (Yemenites) that were near the Ethiopians. And they came up and brake into Judah, and carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, his sons and his wives; except his youngest son Jehoahaz or Azariah (who was later made king Ahaziah of Judah).

After this Jehoram was smitten in his bowels with an incurable disease; and after the end of two years, his bowels fell out by reason of his sickness, so he died of sore disease. And his people made no burning for him (the burning of all his possessions) as was the custom. Thus Jehoram began his reign when he was thirty-two years old, and reigned eight years in Jerusalem, and departed without being desired. And they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings of Israel.

And it came to pass, when the Lord would soon take up Elijah unto himself by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with Elisha from Gilgal; and said unto Elisha, Tarry here, I pray; for the Lord hath sent me to Beth-El. And Elisha said unto him, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they went down to Beth-El together, and the sons of the prophets that were there came forth to meet Elisha, and said, Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thy presence today? And he said, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace. And Elijah said unto Elisha, Tarry here Elisha, knowest thou not that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head today? And he answered, Yea, I know it; hold your peace. And Elijah said unto him again, Tarry, I pray, here; for the Lord hath sent me to Jordan. And he said, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they travelled together to Jericho. And the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho, came to Elisha, and said, Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head today? And he answered, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace. And Elijah again said unto Elisha, Tarry here, I pray; for the Lord hath sent me to Jordan. And Elisha repeated the same words, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they went on, as fifty men of the sons of the prophets stood to view afar off. As they stood by the river Jordan, Elijah took his mantle, wrapped it together, and smote the waters; that the waters divided hither and thither, so they walked across the bed of the river on dry ground. And when they had crossed the river, Elijah said unto Elisha, Ask, what shall I do for thee? And Elisha replied, I pray thee, let a double portion of thy Spirit be upon me. And he said, Thou hast asked a hard thing; nevertheless, if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so.

And as they walked on and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, with horses of fire, parting Elijah and Elisha asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. And when Elisha saw it, he cried, My father, my father! as the chariot of Israel and the horsemen disappeared, and he saw them no more. Then he took hold of his own clothes, and rent them in two pieces; and took the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and stood by the bank of the Jordan. And he took the mantle of Elijah, and smote the waters, saying, Where is the Lord God of Elijah? And when he also had smitten the waters, they parted hither and thither, and Elisha went over the Jordan. When the sons of the prophets which were to view him at Jericho saw him, they said, The Spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and bowed themselves to the ground before him. And they said to him, Behold now, there be with thy servants fifty strong men; let them go, we pray, and seek thy master; lest peradventure the Spirit of the Lord hath taken him up, and cast him upon some mountain or some valley. But Elisha said, Ye shall not seek my master. And when they urged him till he was ashamed, he agreed. And the fifty sons of the prophets went in all directions and searched three days, but found him not. And when they returned to Jericho, Elisha said unto them, Did I not say unto you, Go not? And the men replied, Behold, we pray, the situation in this city is pleasant, as our lord seeth; but the water is naught, and the ground barren. So Elisha took a jar of salt, and he sprinkled it forth into the springs of water; and said unto the men, Behold, I have hallowed these waters, that there shall no more be death from these waters, nor shall the land be barren. And it was so, according to the words of Elisha.

After this, he went up to Beth-El; and as he was travelling, there came forth the youths of belial (bullies) out of the city, and mocked him, saying, Go up thou bald head, Go up thou bald head! When they kept on provoking him, Elisha turned back, looked at them and cursed them in the name of the Lord. And there came forth two she-bears out of the woods, and tare forty-two of them. Then he went to mount Carmel, and from thence he returned to Samaria.

And it came to pass, that Joram (Jehoram) son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria, in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years. He wrought evil in the sight of the Lord, but not as much as his father and mother; for he put way the image of Baal that his father had made. Nevertheless he cleaved unto the sins and abominations of the body and mind, and remained in the realm of lust and death. Now Mesha king of Moab was a sheepmaster, and did render unto the king of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and an hundred thousand rams, with wool, as his annual tribute. But when Ahab was dead, the king of Moab rebelled against Jehoram king of Israel. So Jehoram sent messengers to Jehoshaphat king of Judah, saying, The king of Moab hath rebelled against me; wilt thou go with me against Moab to battle? And he said, I am as thou art, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. So the king of Israel and king of Judah went against Moab through the wilderness of Edom; then the king of Edom joined forces with them. And the three kings and their men took a seven days' journey, and reached a desolate region, without water; and the host and the cattle that followed them were exhausted with thirst. Then Joram king of Israel said, Alas! that the Lord hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab! But Jehoshaphat replied, Is there not a prophet of the Lord, that we may inquire of the Lord by him? And one of the servants of the king of Israel said, There is Elisha the son of Shaphat, who poured water on the hands of Elijah. And Jehoshaphat said, The word of the Lord is with him. So the three kings went to see Elisha. And Elisha said unto the king of Israel, What have I to do with thee? Get thee to the (false) prophets of thy father and mother. And Joram replied, Nay; for the Lord hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab. And Elisha said, As the Lord of Hosts liveth, before whom I stand, were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, I would not look toward thee, nor see thee. But now bring me a minstrel. So the minstrel was brought, and while he played, the Spirit of the Lord descended upon him; and Elisha said unto the kings, Thus saith the Lord, Make this valley full of ditches; for ye shall not see wind, nor rain, yet the valley shall be filled with water, that both ye, your cattle,and your beasts may drink therein. Yea, this is but a light thing in the sight of the Lord; and he will deliver the Moabites also into your hand. And, behold, in the morning, when the meat offering was offered, there came water by the way of Edom, and the valley was filled with water.

Now when all the Moabites heard that the kings of Judah, Israel, and Edom were come up to fight against them, they gathered up their armies, girded with weapons of war, and stood at the borders of Moab. In the early morning, when the sun shone upon the freshly digged ditches of red clay in the dried up torrent valley, the Moabites saw the water on the other side as red as blood; and they said, This is blood, the kings are surely slain, and they have smitten each other! Now therefore, Moab to the spoil! And when the Moabites came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites smote the Moabites, so that they fled. Then all Israel pursued after them, and smote them, and beat down their cities, stopped their wells, and hewed down all their good trees; only in Kir-haraseth they spared a few statues of stone. And when Mesha king of Moab saw that the battle was too sore for him, he took with him seven hundred men, girded with weapons of war, to break through unto the king of Edom, but they could not. Then he took his eldest son, that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him up for a burnt offering unto his god Chemosh, upon the wall; and there was a great anger and indignation against Israel.

Before the death of Mesha king of Moab he had an inscription of his military exploits, and accomplishments engraved upon a stone; it records the breaking of Israel's dominion, which lasted forty years (for each year Moab was to pay Israel a tribute of 100,000 lambs and 100,000 unshorn male sheep). Mesha worshipped the god Chemosh (Khamosh); and also knew the name of the Lord God of Israel; for in the eighteenth line of this stone document the Tetragrammaton (יהוה)is found. The inscription records that the vessels of Yehweh were taken by the king, and were dragged before Chemosh; and that Medeba, Ataroth, Nebo, and Jehaz were captured. Moreover, Mesha praises his god Chemosh, for enabling him to build cities and highways.

The Moabite Stone

Inscription of Mesha king of Moab; was discovered at Dhiban or Dibon in A.D. 868; and measures forty-four by twenty-eight by fourteen inches.

And it came to pass, that a certain woman of the wives of the sons of the prophets cried unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead, and thou knowest that thy servant did fear the Lord; and now the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be his bondmen. And Elisha said, What shall I do for thee? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thine handmaid hath not any thing in the house, save a pot of oil. And he said, Go, borrow thee broad empty vessels of all thy neighbors; and when thou art come in, shut the door upon thee and thy sons, and pour out the oil into those vessels, and set them aside after each one is filled. So she did as she was bidden; and she filled all the vessels which she borrowed, and yet her pot of oil remained full. Then she came and told Elisha the man of God. And he said, Go, sell the oil and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest.

One day Elisha passed by Shunem, in the valley of Jezreel, and a prominent woman of the valley insisted that he eat bread at her table. For so it was that, as often as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread. And she said unto her husband, Behold now, I perceive that this is a holy man of God; therefore let us build a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall, and set for him there a bed, and a table, a stool, and a candlestick; and it shall be, when he comes hither, he may turn in there. And a chamber was built for him; and on a certain day he came thither, and turned into his chamber, and lay there. And he said to his servant Gehazi (Jehazi), Call this Shunnamite. And when he called her, she stood before him. And Elisha said unto his servant, now say unto her, Behold thou hast been mindful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? Wouldest thou be spoken for to the king, or to the captain of the host? And she answered, I dwell among mine own people. And he said, What then is to be done for her? And Gehazi answered, Verily she hath no child, and her husband is old. And Elisha said, Say unto her, about this time next year, she shall embrace a child in her bosom. And the woman said, Nay, my lord, thou man of God, do not lie unto thine handmaid. Behold, the woman conceived and did bear a son, in the time which Elisha said that she would.

And it came to pass that the child grew, and on a certain day went out to his father to the reapers, saying, My head, my head! And he said to a lad, Carry him to his mother. When he was brought to his mother, the lad sat on his mother's knees till noon, then died. So she took the boy up, and laid him on the bed of the man of God, shut the door, and went out. With one of her servants she came to the man of God, to mount Carmel. And when Elisha saw her afar off, he said to his servant Gehazi, Behold, yonder is that Shunnamite; run now, I pray, to meet her, and ask, Is it well with thee, and thy husband, and thy child? And she answered him, It is well! And when she came near to the man of God at the hill, she caught him by his feet; but Gehazi came near to thrust her away. And Elisha said, Let her alone, for her soul is vexed within her; and the Lord hath not revealed it to me. Then she said, Did I desire a son of my Lord? Did I not say, Do not deceive me?

Then Elisha said to Gehazi, Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way. If thou meetest any man, salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not; and lay my staff upon the face of the child. Gehazi departed. And the mother of the child said, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee, till thou look upon the child. So Elisha arose, and followed her. And Gehazi passed on before them, and went up to the chamber of his master and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but he could neither hear nor speak. And when Elisha was come into the house, behold, the child was dead, and laid upon his bed. Then Elisha shut the door upon the twain, and prayed unto the Lord. He lay upon the child, and put his mouth upon his to blow air into his lungs; and he set his eyes upon his, and his hands upon his; and he stretched himself upon the child; and the flesh of the child began to wax warm. Then he walked in his chamber to and fro, and stretched himself upon him again. Behold, the child sneezed seven times, then opened his eyes. And he called Gehazi, and said, Call the Shunnamite that she may take up her son. When the woman beheld her son, she fell at Elisha's feet, and bowed herself to the ground; then took up her son, and departed.

Then Elisha returned to Gilgal, and there was a dearth in the land, and the sons of the prophets were sitting before him. And Elisha said unto his servant, Set on the large pot, and boil some stew of the herbs. So one went out into the field to gather herbs, and found a wild vine, and gathered wild gourds his lap full, and came and shred them into the pot of pottage, for they knew not that it was poisonous. And as they were eating of the pottage, they cried out, saying, There is death in the pot; and they could not eat thereof. But Elisha said, Then bring some meal (coarsely ground grain) and he cast it into the pot; and said, Pour out for the people, that they may eat in the name of the Lord. And all the sons of the prophets didst eat, and there was no harm in it.

And there came a man from Baal-shalisha, and brought the man of God bread of the firstfruits, twenty loaves of barley, and full ears of corn in the husk. And Elisha said, Give unto the people that they may eat. And his servant Gehazi said, What, should I set this before an hundred men? So Elisha said again, Give unto the people, that they may eat; for thus saith the Lord, They shall eat, and yet there shall be left thereof. And they did eat their fill, and yet was left, according to the word.

Now Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was held in great esteem by his master; for he was honorable, and it was through him that the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria; moreover, he was a mighty valiant man; but he was a leper. And when the Syrians had gone to battle against Israel in companies, they had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid, and she waited on Naaman's wife. And on a certain day she said unto her mistress, Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! For he would recover him of his leprosy. When the king of Syria heard what the little maid of the land of Israel said, he said unto Naaman, Go, go to the king of Israel; and I will send a letter to the king of Israel. And Naaman left with his horses and chariots, ten talents of silver, six thousand pieces of gold,and ten changes of raiment. And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, which said, Now when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest cure him of his leprosy. And when the king of Israel had read the letter, he rent his clothes, saying, Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to cure a man of his leprosy? Wherefore consider, I pray thee, and see how he seeketh a quarrel against me. And when Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had rent his clothes, he sent a messenger to the king, saying, Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? Let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel. So Naaman came with his horses and chariots, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha. And Elisha sent messengers unto him, saying, Go and wash in the Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be made clean. But Naaman was wroth, and went away saying, Behold, I thought he would surely come out to meet me, and stand and call upon the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper. Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? May I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned and went away in rage. Then his servants came near, and spoke unto Naaman the captain of the host of the king of Syria, and said, Our lord, if the prophet had bid thee to do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? How much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean? Then went he down to the Jordan, and dipped himself seven times, according to the words of the man of God; and it came to pass that his flesh came again like the flesh of a little child, and he recovered, and was made clean.

And Naaman returned to Elisha the prophet, with a great company, and stood before him; and said, Behold, now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel; now therefore, I pray thee, take an offering of thy servant. But Elisha refused, saying, Behold, as the Lord liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none. And he urged him again, but he refused. And Naaman said unto him, Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden of earth? For thy servant will henceforth offer neither burnt offering nor sacrifice unto other gods, but unto the Lord. In this thing may the Lord pardon thy servant, that when my master (the king of Syria) goeth into the house of Rimmon (the god of wind, rain, and storm) to worship there; and he leaneth on my hand and I bow myself in the house of Rimmon, may the Lord pardon thy servant.

And Elisha the prophet of the Lord said unto him, Go in peace. So he departed from him a little way. But Gehazi, the servant of Elisha, coveted the offerings which Naaman had brought for the man of God; but he refused to accept it. And Gehazi ran after Naaman. When Naaman saw him running toward him at a distance, he lighted down from his chariot to meet him, and said, Is all well? And he said, All is well. My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, even now there be come to me from mount Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets; give them, I pray thee, a talent of silver, and two changes of garments. And Naaman said, Be content, take two talents; and with gladdened heart he bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants; and they bare them before him. And when Gehazi came to the tower of the city, he took the bags of silver and the garments from the burden-bearers of Naaman, and took them in the house; and he let the men go; and they departed. But when he went and stood before his master, Elisha said, Whence comest thou, Gehazi? And he said, Thy servant went no whither. And Elisha said unto him, Went not mine heart with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? Is it a time to receive money, or to receive garments, or oliveyards and vineyards, or sheep, or oxen, or menservants and maidservants? Therefore the leprosy of Naaman shall cleave unto thee, and unto thy seed. And he departed from the presence of Elisha the prophet of the Lord, and didst become a leper as white as snow.

And it came to pass, that the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, the place where we dwell with thee is too narrow for us. Let us go, we pray, unto Jordan; and take thence every man a beam, and let us build us a place there to dwell in. And he answered, so be it. So they all came to Jordan, and cut down wood. But as one was felling a beam, the axe head fell into the water; and he cried unto Elisha, saying, Alas, master! for it was borrowed. And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he showed him the place. And Elisha cut down a stick, and cast it hither and thither, and the axe head did swim up to the surface. And the man stretched his hand, and took it.

Then the king of Syria came to battle against Israel; and took counsel with his servants in secret chambers, saying, In such and such a place shall we camp. And Elisha sent messengers to the king of Israel, saying, Beware that thou pass not such and such a place for thither the Syrians are come down. And the king of Israel sent his men to the places which he named; and was thus saved not once but twice. Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was sore troubled; and he called his servants,and said unto them, Will ye not show me which of us is a spy for the king of Israel? And one of the servants came forth, and said, None my lord, O king; but Elisha the prophet in Israel telleth the king of Israel the words which thou speaketh in thy bedchamber. And the king said, Go spy his whereabouts, that I may send forth and fetch him. And it was told him, Behold, he is in Dothan. Therefore, thither he sent horses and chariots, and a great host; and they came by night and surrounded the city. Now, when an attendant of Elisha saw early in the morning a host with horses and chariots surrounded the city, he said unto Elisha the prophet, Alas my master, an host hath compassed the city both with horses and chariots! And he answered, Fear not, for they that be with us are more than they that be with them. And Elisha prayed that this young man's eyes be opened that he might see things hidden and far. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man, that he saw and beheld that the mountain was full of horses, and chariots of fire round about Elisha. And when they came closer to Elisha's dwelling, he prayed unto the Lord, saying, Smite this people, I pray thee, with blindness. And the men in the chariots of fire were blinded. And Elisha said unto them, This is not the way, neither is this the city; follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom ye seek. And they were led to Samaria. And when they reached Samaria, Elisha prayed unto the Lord, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw that they were in the midst of Samaria. And the king of Israel said unto Elisha, when he saw the hosts with chariots, My father, shall I smite them? Shall I smite them? And he answered, Thou shalt not smite them; wouldest thou smite those whom thou hast taken captive with thy sword and with thy bow? Therefore set food and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and return to their master. And he prepared great provisions for them; and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away to their master; and the Syrians returned to their king Ben-hadad.

And it came to pass after this, that Ben-hadad king of Syria gathered all his host and came down, and besieged Samaria. There was a great famine also when they besieged it, so much so that an ass's head was sold for eighty pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of doves dung (which was used as fuel) for five pieces of silver. As the king of Israel walked upon the wall of the city, there cried a woman unto him, saying, Help my lord, O king. And he said, If the Lord do not help thee, whence shall I help thee? Out of the barnfloor? Or out of the winepress? And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said unto me, Give thy son that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow. So we boiled my son, and did eat him; and I said unto her on the next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him; and she hath hid her son. And when the king of Israel heard these words, he rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth. Then he said, God do so and more also to me, if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat shall stand on him this day.

Now as Elisha sat in his house, and the elders of Israel with him, the king sent a messenger to fetch him; but before the messenger came to him, Elisha said, See how this son of the murderer of the prophets of the Lord hath sent to take away mine head? Look, when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door; is not the sound of his master's feet behind him? And while he yet talked the messenger came at the door, and said, Behold, this evil is of the Lord, why should I wait for the Lord any longer? Then Elisha was brought to the king's presence. And he said, Hear ye the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord, Tomorrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria. Then the chief advisor to the king of Israel said unto the man of God, Behold if the Lord would make windows in heaven, might this thing be? And Elisha said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

In the meantime the Lord had made the host of the Syrians to hear a noise of chariots, and of horses, even a noise of a great host; and they said to one another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired the kings of the Hittites and the kings of the Egyptians to come up against us. Wherefore, they arose and fled in the twilight, leaving all their possessions, their tents, their horses and asses, their silver and gold. And there were four leprous men at the entrance gate of Samaria; and they said one to another, Why sit we here until we die? If we enter into the city, behold, the famine is in all the city, and we shall die there; and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians. If they save us alive, we shall live, and if they kill us, we shall but die. So they rose up in the twilight to go unto the camp of the Syrians. And when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, behold, there was no man there (for they had all fled after hearing the noise, which was of the Lord of Hosts). And when the lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver and gold, and raiment, and went and hid it; and came again and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and hid it. Then they said one to another, we do not well; this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace; if we tarry till morning light, some mischief may befall us. Now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household. So they came to the guard of the city, and told him, saying, We came to the camps of the Syrians; and behold, there was no man there, neither voice of any man, but horses tied, and asses tied, and the tents as they were. And he called the other guards, and they told it to the king's house within.

And the king of Israel arose in the night, saying, I will now show you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we be hungry, therefore are they gone out of the camp to hide themselves in the field, saying, When they come out of the city, we shall catch them alive, and get into the city. And one of his counsellors said, Let some take, I pray thee, five of the horses that remain in the city, and search out the camp of the Syrians. They took two chariot horses, and the king sent them after the hosts of the Syrians, saying, Go and search out. And they searched after them unto the Jordan, but none was to be found. And, lo, all the camp was full of garments and vessels, and their horses and asses were tied near their tents, which the Syrians had left behind, when they fled in fear of the Hittites and the Egyptians; for the Lord's hand was in it. And the messengers returned and told the king. Then the king declared to all the people to go and take the spoil; and they went and spoiled the tents of the Syrians. And a measure of fine flour didst sell for a shekel, and two measures of barley didst sell for a shekel, according to the word of Elisha the prophet of the Lord. And the chief advisor to the king of Israel (who said unto Elisha, Behold, if the Lord would make windows in heaven, might this thing be!) was placed by the king to have charge of the entrance gate of Samaria; and people trod upon him in the gate, that he died. And according to the words of the man of God, behold, he didst see it with his own eyes, but ate not thereof.

Then Elisha returned to Shunem, and spake unto the woman, whose son he had revived to life, saying, Arise, and go thou and thine household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst sojourn; for the Lord hath called for a famine, and it shall come upon the land seven years. And the woman arose, and did after the words of the man of God; and she went with her household, and sojourned in the land of the Philistines seven years. At the end of seven years the woman returned to Shunem, and saw that her house and land was taken over. So she went to the king of Israel, to cry for her house and her land. Now, Gehazi the servant of Elisha, after he fell from the grace of his master, was struck with leprosy; and he dwelt with the king's household in a separate chamber. And the king talked with Gehazi, saying, Tell me, I pray thee, all the great things that Elisha hath done. And as he was telling the king how he had restored a dead body to life, behold, the woman, whose son he had restored, entered his presence, crying to the king for her house and her land. And Gehazi said, My lord, O king, this is the woman, and this is her son whom Elisha restored to life. And when the king asked the woman, she told him all about the man of God. So the king appointed her a certain officer, saying, Restore all that was hers, and all the fruits of the field since the day she left the land, even until now.

After this, Elisha went to Damascus, and Ben-hadad king of Syria was sick. And when it was told him that the man of God is come hither, the king said unto Hazael, one of his high officers, saying, Take a present in thine hand, and go meet the man of God; and enquire of the Lord by him, if I shall recover of this disease? So Hazael went to meet him, and took a present with him, of every good thing of Damascus, forty camels' burden; and stood before Elisha, and said, My son, Ben-hadad king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying, Shall I recover of this disease? And Elisha said, Go say unto him, Thou mayest certainly recover, howbeit the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surely die of himself; and the servant of the king of Syria was struck in amazement. Then the man of God wept. And Hazael said, Why weepeth my lord? And he answered, Because I know the evil that thou wilt bring unto the children of Israel; their strongholds of the wicked wilt thou set on fire, and their sons of belial (bullies) wilt thou slay with the sword; and rip their women of whoredoms, the venomous serpents, into pieces.

And Hazael said, But what, is thy servant a dog, that he should do this awful thing? And Elisha said, the Lord hath showed me that thou shalt be king over Syria. So he took leave of Elisha, and came to his master, who said to him, What said Elisha to thee? And he answered, He told me that thou shall surely recover. And it came to pass, one morning Ben-hadad king of Syria took a thick towel, and dipped it in water, and spread it on his face to cool himself of the scorching heat of the desert; and he suffocated himself, while he slept. So Hazael reigned in his stead.

Now in the fifth year of Joram (Jehoram) son of Ahab king of Israel, Jehoram (Joram) son of Jehoshaphat, began to reign in Judah. Thirty-two years old was he when he began to reign; and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. He walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, for a daughter of Ahab was his wife; and he did evil in the sight of the Lord. In his days Edom revolted against Judah, and made a king over themselves. So Jehoram went over to Zair, with all his chariots, and rose up at night, and smote the Edomites. Yet Edom revolted again to escape the bonds of tribute; and Libnah also revolted against Judah, thus weakening its power and dominion over the bond nations. And Jehoram slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David; and Ahaziah his son reigned in his stead.

In the twelfth year of Joram, son of Ahab king of Israel, did Ahaziah son of Jehoram begin to reign. Twenty-two years old was Ahaziah when he began, and reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, daughter of Omri king of Israel; and he did evil in the sight of God, and walked in the ways of the house of Ahab. And he went with Joram son of Ahab to war against Hazael king of Syria in Ramoth-gilead (Ramah); and the Syrians wounded Joram. And he went back to be healed in Jezreel; and Ahaziah, son of Jehoram king of Judah, came to see him there.

And it came to pass, that Elisha the prophet called one of the sons of the children of the prophets, and said unto him, Gird up thy loins, and take this vial of oil and go to Ramoth-gilead; and there seek out Jehu the son of a certain Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi; and make him rise up from among his brethren, and take him to an inner chamber of the dwelling; then take the vial of consecrated oil, and pour on his head, and say, Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over Israel. Then open the door and depart, and tarry not. So the priest of Aaron went to Ramoth-gilead. Here the captains of the host of Israel were sitting in a meeting, when the priest entered and said, I have an errand to thee, O captain. And Jehu said unto him, Which of us? And he said, To thee, O captain. Then he took him into a chamber of the house, and poured the oil on his head; so he anointed him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over the people of the Lord, even over Israel. And thou shalt smite the house of Ahab thy master, that I may avenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and saints, at the hand of Ahab and his house. For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; and I will cut off from Ahab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up and forsaken in Israel. I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah. And the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the portion of Jezreel, and there shall be none to bury her. And the priest opened the door and fled. Then came forth Jehu to the servants of Joram king of Israel, the captains of the host and his counsellors; and one said to him, Is all well? Wherefore came this mad fellow to thee? And Jehu said unto them, Ye know the man, and his communication. And they said, Nay, but tell us! And he said, Thus and thus spake he unto me, and said, Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over Israel. And they hasted, and took every man his garment, and put it under him on top of the stairs, and blew the trumpets, and cried, Jehu is king. So Jehu, son of a certain Jehoshaphat son of Nimshi, conspired against Joram king of Israel, and sought occasion to slay him. Now Joram had kept the host of Israel in Ramoth-gilead, because of Hazael king of Syria; but since he was wounded by the Syrians, he was convalescing in Jezreel, at the palace of the king of Israel; next to the vineyard of Naboth, which Jezebel, the king's wife, acquired for him, by causing Naboth to be killed.

And Jehu rode in a chariot with Bidkar, and the company of his captains followed to Jezreel. And when the watchman on the tower in Jezreel saw them at a distance, he informed Joram king of Israel; and Ahaziah king of Judah who was come down to see Joram. And Joram said, Send a horseman to meet him, and let him say, Is it peace? So there went one on horseback to meet him, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu said to him, What hast thou to do with peace? Turn thee behind me. And the man on the watchtower in Jezreel saw that the messenger returned not but remained with the company. And he came down to the king's chamber and said, the messenger went to them, but cometh not again. Then he sent out a second man on horseback; and he came to them, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu answered, What hast thou to do with peace? Turn thee behind me. And the watchman returned to the king, saying, Even he came unto them, and cometh not again; and the driving of the chariot is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously. And Joram said, make ready our chariot. And Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah each went out in his chariot. And they went out to meet him near the portion of Naboth's vineyard. When Joram saw Jehu, he said, Is it peace, Jehu? And he answered, What peace, so long as the whoredoms of thy mother Jezebel and her witchcrafts prevail in all Israel? And Joram turned his hands, and fled, and said to Ahaziah, There is treachery, O Ahaziah! And Jehu drew the bow with his full strength, and smote Joram between his arms, and the arrow pierced through his heart, and he sunk down in his chariot. Then said Jehu to Bidkar (Bidekar) his captain, Take up, and cast him in the field of Naboth; for remember how that, when I and thou rode together after Ahab his father, the Lord laid this burden upon him. Surely I have seen the blood of Naboth and his sons, saith the Lord; and I will requite thee in this plot, saith the Lord. Now therefore take and cast him into the plot of ground, according to the word of the Lord.

And when Ahaziah king of Judah saw this, he fled by the way of the garden house. And Jehu followed after him, and said unto his captains, Smite him also in the chariot. And they pursued after him unto Gur, near Ibleam, and wounded him. But he fled to Megiddo, and died there. His servants carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers, in the city of David. In the eleventh year of Joram son of Ahab began Ahaziah to reign over Judah, and he reigned less than a year.

And when Jehu came into the palace gate in Jezreel, Jezebel, the wife of Ahab, mother of Joram, heard of it, and she painted her face, adorned her head, and looked out of a window. And as Jehu entered, she said, Had Zimri peace, who slew his master? And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, Who is on my side? Who? And there looked out to him two or three eunuchs. And he said unto them, Throw her down; so they threw her down; and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses; and he trod her under foot; and while he went in to eat and drink, the dogs tore her apart into pieces. And when Jehu finished eating his meal, he said to his servants, Go, see now this cursed woman, and bury her, for she is a king's daughter. But when they went to fetch her body, they found no more than skull, the feet, and the palms of her hands, for the dogs had torn the carcase of Jezebel into pieces. Wherefore, they came and told him, and said, This is the word of the Lord which he spake by his servant Elijah of Tishbeh, the prophet of the Lord, saying, In the portion of Jezreel shall dogs eat the flesh of Jezebel; and the carcase of Jezebel shall be as dung upon the face of the field; so that they shall not say, This is Jezebel.

After this, Jehu wrote letters, and sent them to the rulers in Samaria and Jezreel, and to the elders, and to them that brought up Ahab's seventy sons; saying, As soon as this letter cometh to you, seeing that your master's sons are with you, and chariot, horses, armour, and a fenced city also, look out amongst the best and meetest of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house; but they were exceedingly afraid, saying, Behold two kings could not stand before him, how then shall we stand? And the ruler over the king's house, he that was over the city, the tutors of the seventy sons of Ahab, and the elders of Israel, sent the messengers to Jehu, saying, We are thy servants, and we will do all that thou shalt bid us, and we will not make a king out of the royal seed; therefore do that which is good in thine eyes. Then Jehu wrote a second letter to them, saying, For ye say ye are mine, and will hearken to my voice, take ye the heads of the men of your master's sons, and come to me to Jezreel tomorrow this time. Now Ahab's seventy sons were raised by the great men of the city. And after they received the letter, they slew the head of seventy persons, and took them in baskets to Jezreel. And Jehu had them laid in two heaps at the entrance gate of the city, and they remained there until the next morning. In the morning he went out and stood by the gate, and said unto the people, Hear ye,

O Israel, be ye righteous; behold, I conspired against my master, and slew him; but who slew all these? Know now that there shall fall nothing unto the earth of the word of the Lord, which the Lord spake concerning the house of Ahab; for the Lord hath done that which he spake by his servant Elijah. Then Jehu slew all that remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, all his counsellors, his kinsfolk, and his priests.

After this, Jehu went to Samaria. And as he passed by the shearing house, along the way, he met with the brethren of Ahaziah king of Judah; and said, Who are ye? And they answered, We are the brethren of Ahaziah, and we go down to salute the children of the king of Israel and the children of the queen. And he said, Take them alive. And they took them and slew them at the pit of the shearing house, forty-two men, not one was left alive. Then Jehu went to the king's palace in Samaria; and Jehonadab son of Rechab came to greet him; and Jehu saluted him, and said, Is thine heart right with me, as mine is with thine? And Jehonadab answered, It is. And Jehu said unto him, If it be, give me thine hand. And when he gave him his hand, Jehu pulled him into his chariot, and said, Come with me, and see my zeal for the Lord. So they made him ride in his chariot, and took him to the city. There he slew the remainder of Ahab's house, and destroyed his household until all that which was spoken by the mouth of Elijah the prophet of the Lord, was fulfilled.

Then Jehu gathered all his counsellors and captains together, and said, Ahab served Baal a little; but Jehu shall serve him much. Now therefore call unto me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants; let none miss the assembly, for I have a great sacrifice to do to Baal; whosoever shall be missing, he shall not live. (But Jehu did it in subtility, to the intent that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal.) And he said unto them, Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal; and they proclaimed it throughout Samaria. And all the worshippers of Baal came, so that there was not a man that came not. And they gathered into the house of Baal, and the house was full from one end to another. And Jehu said unto the one who was over the vestry (wardrobe), Bring ceremonial robes for all the worshippers of Baal, search and look that there be here with you none of the Lord's servants, but the worshippers of Baal only. And when they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings, Jehu appointed eighty guards outside the house of Baal, saying, If any of the worshippers in vestments escape from your hands, he that letteth him go, his life shall be for the life of him. And as soon as the priest of Baal made an end of offerings, Jehu said to his guardsmen, Go in, and slay them; let none come forth. And they smote them with the edge of the sword, and brought forth the images out of the house of Baal, and burned them in the city, and brought down the house of Baal to the ground. Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made all Israel to sin, Jehu departed not; and he kept the golden calves that were in Beth-el and in Dan. And the Lord said unto Jehu, Because thou hast done well in executing that which is right in mine eyes, and hast done unto the house of Ahab according to all that was in mine heart, thy children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel.

Nevertheless, Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart, for he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam. In those days the Lord began to cut Israel short, and Hazael the king of Syria smote them in all the borders of Israel. From Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer by the river Arnon unto Gilead and Bashan, were smitten by Hazael.

Later, Jehu became a servant to Shalmaneser III king of Assyria, and paid tribute to him. Thus the ten-tribe northern kingdom of Israel became subject to Assyria. The Black Obelisk of Shalmaneser III, below, now at the British Museum, shows him receiving tribute from an emissary of Jehu king of Israel, a descendant of Omri (Hu-um-ri), who built Samaria and made it the capital city of Israel.

Shalmaneser III receiving tribute from an emissary of Jehu (circa 904-876 B.C.); it included silver, gold, a golden saplu bowl, a golden vase with pointed bottom, golden tumblers and buckets, tin, and a staff for the king.

Now the Assyrian nation was very great and cruel. They were not only covetous, desirous, revengeful and hateful, but they built elegant palaces, lining the walls with sculptured slabs, with potent and marvelous scenes of war and peace. Human-headed, winged bulls, carved from a single block of limestone weighing as much as forty tons, adorned the entranceways. Their cylinder seals show cunning work of engravings. Their knowledge of metallurgy and metal-casting was unequalled in the world. Their kings built aqueducts and developed systems of irrigation, built royal botanical and zoological parks, where plants and animals of all sorts were brought from many lands. The palace buildings included excellent drainage and sanitation systems. The Assyrian kings built great libraries, containing tens of thousands of cuneiform clay tablets, prisms, and cylinders; recording major historical, religious, legal and commercial matters. The harshness of their laws included mutilation for the punishment of certain crimes. A slave girl was not allowed to go veiled in public, and for violating such ordinance, her ears were to be cut off. Married women were not only bound by numerous laws and ordinances, but her husband had the legal right to beat her, pull out her hair, and injure her ears; there was no legal guilt in it. Assyrian hostility and aggression toward Israel began with Ashurnasirpal, who was known for his cruelty and trespasses. This warrior monarch describes his punishment of a rebellious king under his dominion:

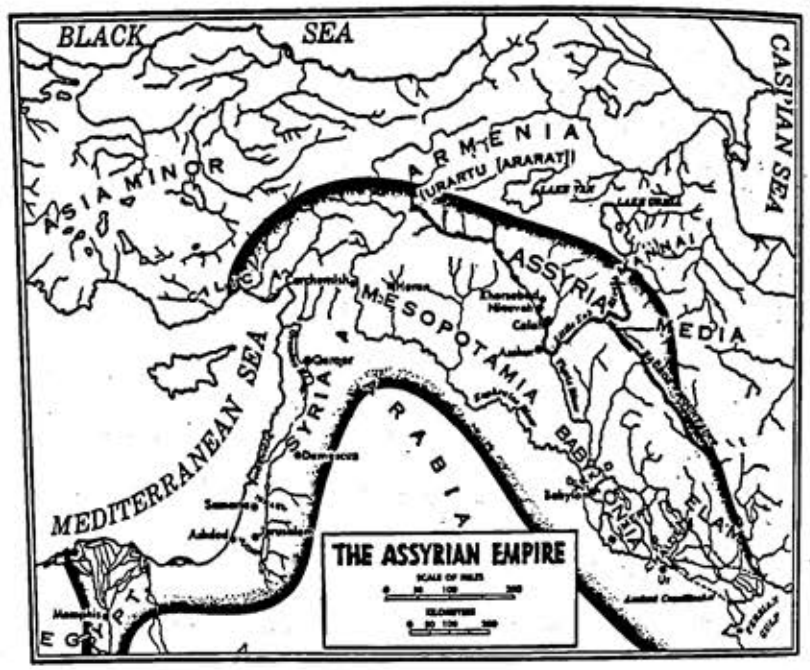
> I built a pillar over against his city gate and I flayed all the chiefs who had revolted, and I covered the pillar with their skin. Some I walled up within the pillar, some I impaled upon the pillar on stakes, . . . And I cut the limbs of the officers, of the royal officers who had rebelled. . .
>
> Many captives from among them I burned with fire, and many I took as living captives. From some I cut off their noses, their ears and their fingers, of many I put out the eyes. I made one pillar of the living, and another of the heads, and I bound their heads to tree trunks round about the city. Their young men and maidens I burned in fire.
>
> Twenty men I captured alive and I immured them in the wall of his palace; the rest of his warriors I consumed with thirst in the desert of the Euphrates.

Moreover, the Assyrian monarchs took their captives, and led them by cords attached to hooks that pierced the nose or the lips, or put out their eyes at the point of a spear. Such sadistic torture was the usual feature of Assyrian warfare; about which they boasted without shame, and recorded the events in their cuneiform script. Although they looked upon Babylon as their chief religious center, their own national god was Asshur. The Assyrian king served as the high priest of Asshur. The Assyrians worshiped the chief triad of Aner (representing heaven), Bel (representing the region inhabited by man, animals, and birds), and Ea (representing the subterranean dwellings and waters on earth). The second triad was composed of Sin the moon, Shamash the Sun, and Ramman the god of wind and storm; although Ramman's place was often taken by Ishtar or Ashtoreth, the queen of the stars, symbolized by the crescent moon. Then followed the five gods representing five planets. There were other innumerable minor deities, many serving as patrons of towns. Their religion was animistic, as of the primitive Egyptians or the Hindus of Ind (Hind or India); but with the difference, that the Assyrians believed that war was the truest expression of the national religion. Thus a deluded and fierce people the Assyrians remained throughout their history.

Now the land of Assyria took its name from Asshur, a son of Shem.

And these Shemites populated the region shortly after the flood of 2370 B.C. But Ham's grandson Nimrod entered into Assyria, and built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah and Resen. Then the descendants of Ishmael son of Abraham reached Assyria in their nomadic movements. The capital of Assyria, Nineveh, was built upon the Babylon of Akkad; and a mixture of races and tongues in Spiritual blindness, driven by covetousness, greed and lusts of their heart, formed the core of Assyrian royalty, priests, merchantmen and farmers.



Assyria occupied the northern end of the Mesopotamian plain, the northern portion of the modern country of Iraq. It lay within the triangle formed by the Tigris and Little Zab Rivers; these rivers constituted its western and southern boundaries, and the mountains of Urartu (Armenia) formed the northern boundary; and Zargos mountain range and the land of Media the eastern boundary. But these boundaries were quite flexible; Assyria spreading south of the Little Zab when Babylon weakened, but retreating again, or spreading to the west of the Tigris river, when political conditions so required. There was a strong bond between the Assyrians and Babylonians as the sons who leave home look up to their parents, and are bound by their memory. Both were neighboring states jointly occupying a region with no natural (geographical) division to serve as a frontier between the two countries. Assyria proper was a highlands area, generally of rugged terrain with a far better climate than that of Babylonia. The climate was considered salubrious, and people appear to have been more lively and hard-working than the Babylonians. They are represented in carved reliefs as of strong physique, dark-complexioned, with heavy eyebrows and beard, and prominent nose. The city of Asshur was the only city located west of the Tigris river, and was the original capital; but both Calah and Khorsabad were used at times as capitals of Assyrian monarchs. A trade route to the Mediterranean sea and Asia Minor ran along the northern part of Assyria; and other routes branched off into Armenia in the north, and to Lake Urmiah in the east. Much of the Assyrian warfare was in order to gain or maintain control of such trade routes and trade centers, or to punish a ruler who was negligent in paying his annual tribute, or due to blood vengeance. The city of Ninevah was called a city of bloodshed, for the Assyrians had waged many wars; and after their conquest they used brutal means of killing their captives. The two mounds currently located on the east bank of the Tigris river, namely Quyunjiq and Nebi Yūnus (Prophet Jonah), mark the site of the once great city of Nineveh. Today a village with a cemetery and mosque, occupies Nebi Yūnus. At Quyunjiq the archaeological excavations have brought to light thousands of cuneiform tablets from Ashurbanipal's (Asenappar's or Sardanapalu's) library. It was Ashurbanipal who later (between 716 and 661 B.C.) transported the inhabitants of Susa (Sushan), capital of Elam, to Samaria. During his time Assyria had twenty kings as his tributaries, including king Manasseh of Judah. Ashurbanipal was the son of Esar-haddon, and grandson of Sennacherib. Under him Assyria reached its zenith. For about four years he reigned with his father as coregent, then he took the throne of his father after his death; and his brother Shamash-shumukin was given the lesser throne of Babylon. (In 1845 A.D., archaeological excavations revealed some 25,000 clay tablets and texts. In one inscription he says: I, Ashurbanipal, learned in wisdom of Nebu, the entire art of writing on clay tablets . . . I received the revelation of the wise Adapa, the hidden treasure of the art of writing . . . I considered the heavens with the learned masters . . . I read the beautiful clay tablets from Sumer and the obscure Akkadian writing which is hard to master. I had my joy in the reading of the inscriptions on stone from the time before the flood. Moreover, Ashurbanipal sent scribes to all the ancient temples of Babylon and Egypt to copy their works. Among the works found in his library are those of the Babylonian accounts of the Creation and the Flood; in addition to incantations, prayers and hymns, treatises on history, geography, astronomy, mathematical tables, medicine, grammar; as well as business transactions and records of contracts, sales and loans. Smallest of the clay tablets is one inch square, yet others measure eight and a half by fifteen inches.)

Although Jehu king of Israel (904-876 B.C.) became a tributary of Shalmaneser III, it was Ashurbanipal who crossed the Euphrates and overran northern Syria and exacted tribute from the cities of Phoenicia. His successor Shalmaneser III, in one inscription is called, "the king of the world, the king without rival, the great dragon, the only power within the four rims of the earth. In the Monolith Inscription of Shalmaneser III a description is given of the battle of Qarqar (near Hamath in the Orontes valley), which was fought in the sixth year of Shalmaneser's reign. The Assyrians there battled with the coalition of twelve kings. In later Assyrian inscriptions Samaria is called Samerina or Bit Hu-um-ri-a or the land of Omri (king of Israel 951-940 B.C., who was the builder of Samaria). In the eighteenth year of Shalmaneser III, or twelve years after the battle of Qarqar, he fought against Hazael of Damascus; and began to receive tribute of the inhabitants of Tyre, Sidon, and Jehu the descendant of Omri. Another inscription of Shalmaneser III records: Hadadezer or Ben-hadad of Damascus (Adad-idri) perished; and Hazael, a commoner (a son of nobody) seized the throne. And hostilities with Hazael are noted in Shalmaneser's eighteenth and twenty-first years; the Assyrians gaining victories, but never able to capture Damascus.

And it came to pass that Jehu reigned twenty-eight years over Israel (904-876 B.C.), then slept with his fathers; and they buried him in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his son reigned in his stead.

And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, the youngest son of Jehoram, king over Judah; for the band of Arabians had spared his life. Forty-two years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign. He reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah the daughter of Omri. Ahaziah also walked in the ways of his father and the house of Ahab, for his mother counselled him to do evil continually in the sight of God. Moreover the men of the house of Ahab counselled him to do wickedly; and Ahaziah went with Joram the son of Ahab king of Israel to war against Hazael king of Syria at Ramoth-gilead; and the Syrians smote Joram. So he returned to be healed in Jezreel, because he was wounded in battle at Ramah. And Azariah son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Joram at Jezreel; and together they went against Jehu the son of Nimshi, whom the Lord had anointed to cut off the house of Ahab.

When they saw that Jehu was executing judgement upon the house of Ahab, and was wroth for he saw the princes of Judah and brethren of Ahaziah in the condemned house, Ahaziah fled in fear and hid himself in Samaria. And Jehu had the princes of Judah and Ahaziah's brethren slain, for the thing was of God. Then they sought Ahaziah, and brought him from Samaria to Jehu, and he slew him; and said, Let us bury him, because he is a grandson of Jehoshaphat, who didst seek the Lord with all his heart. But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed royal of the house of Judah. But Jehoshabeath, the daughter of king Jehoram, took Jehoash (Joash) the son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from the midst of the king's sons that were slain; and put him and his nurse in a bedchamber. So Jehoshabeath, who was married to Jehoiada the priest, the sister of Ahaziah, hid Joash from Athaliah, so that she slew him not; and Athaliah reigned in Jerusalem. Thus Athaliah, daughter of king Ahab of Israel and his wife Jezebel, grandaughter of Omri, sister of Israel's king Joram, and sister or half-sister of the seventy sons of Ahab (who were ordered to be killed by Jehu) made herself the queen of Judah for six years; and during this time she robbed the holy things from the house of the Lord, and offered them up to Baal.

In the seventh year, Jehoiada the priest strengthened himself; and took five captains of hundreds, Azariah the son of Jehoram, Ishmael the son of Jehohanan, Azariah the son of Obed, Maaseiah the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri, into covenant with him. And they went about in Judah, and gathered the Levites and the chief of the fathers of Israel out of all the cities of Judah, and they came to Jerusalem. And all the congregation made a covenant in and around the house of the Lord. And Jehoiada said unto them, Behold, the king's son shall reign, as the Lord hath spoken of the sons of David — This is the thing that ye shall do: A third part of you entering on the Sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, shall be porters at the doors; a third part shall be at the king's house; and a third part at the gate of the foundation; and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the Lord. But let none come into the house of the Lord, save the priests, and they that minister of the Levites; they shall go in for they are raised up holy by the Lord; but all the people shall keep watch. And the Levites shall compass the king's son round about, every man with his weapons in his hand. So the Levites and all Judah did according to all that Jehoiada the priest had commanded them; and he set all the people with weapons in their hands, from the right side of the temple to the left, by the altar and around the temple, and round about the king's son. Then they brought the king's son Jehoash, and put upon his head the crown, and gave him the divine charge, and made him king. And Jehoiada and his sons anointed him, and said, God save the king!

Now when Athaliah heard the noise and tumult of the people, and congregation praising the king, she came to the priests at the house of the Lord; and beheld the boy-king standing by the pillar of the entrance door, while the princes and the priests rejoiced greatly with the sounds of trumpets, music and singing. Then Athaliah rent her clothes, and cried, Treason! Treason! And Jehoiada the priest called the captains of hundreds that were set over the host, and said unto them, Have her forth of the ranges; and whoso followeth her, let him be slain with the sword. But slay her not near the house of the Lord. So they laid hands on her, and brought her to the entrance of the horse gate by the king's house; here they slew her.

And Jehoiada made a covenant between himself, the congregation and the king, that they must all become the Lord's people. And they all agreed. Then the people went to the house of Baal, and brake it, and its altars and images into pieces; and slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. And Jehoiada the Aaronic high priest revitalized all activities of the house of the Lord as in the time of David, by assigning lots and courses to the priests and the Levites; to offer the burnt offerings, according to the law of Moses, and to offer hymns of praises unto the Lord. And he assigned porters (guards) at the gates of the house of the Lord, that none who was unclean in any thing should enter in. And he took the captains of hundreds, the nobles, the governors of the people, and laymen; and brought king Jehoash from the house of the Lord to the king's house; and here they all assembled, and Jehoash was set on the throne of the kingdom. The land rejoiced greatly, and the city was quiet after they had slain Athaliah with the sword.

Jehoash (Joash) was seven years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem; his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. And Jehoash did that which was right in the sight of God all the days of Jehoiada the priest; and received two wives under the hand of Jehoiada, and begat sons and daughters. And it came to pass that Jehoash was charged with the repair of the house of the Lord. So he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said unto them, Go out into the cities of Judah and gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see to it that ye hasten this matter. But the Levites hastened it not. And the king called Jehoiada the priest, and said unto him, Why hast thou not required of the Levites to bring out of Judah and out of Jerusalem the collection, according to the commandment of Moses the servant of the Lord, and according to the congregation of Israel? For the sons of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God, and the treasury of the dedicated things of the house of the Lord, and offered up all unto Baalim.

Therefore, at the king's commandment they made a chest, and set it at the gate of the house of the Lord. And they made a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the Lord the collection (tithes), according to the law of Moses. And all the princes and the people rejoiced, and each brought in according to his capacity, and cast into the chest, until the chest was full. Now when the chest was brought to the king's office by the Levites; and when they saw that there was much money, the king's scribes and the high priest's officers came and emptied the chest, and carried it back to the place again. Thus they did day by day, and gathered money in abundance. And the king and Jehoiada used the money to hire masons and carpenters to repair the house of the Lord, and also smiths that wrought iron and brass to mend the house of the Lord. So the workmen did their work with perfect heart, and the house of the Lord was strengthened and repairs were finished.

After all the works of repair were complete, they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada; and they used the money to make new vessels for the house of the Lord, the vessels to minister and offer withal, and spoons and vessels of gold and silver. And they offered burnt offerings in the house of the Lord daily all the days of Jehoiada. But Jehoiada waxed old, and was full of days when he died, one hundred and thirty years old was he when he died. And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, both toward God and his house.

Now after the death of Jehoiada came the princes of Judah and did obeisance to the king, and turned his heart away from the Lord. And Jehoash (Joash) hearkened unto their light-mindedness and abominations; and served false gods and idols in groves and high places. The Lord's anger was kindled against them, so he sent prophets to bring them again unto the Lord; but they despised the Lord and his prophets, and would not give ear. And the Spirit of God came upon Zechariah the son of Jehoiada the priest, so he arose and spake unto them, saying, Thus saith God, Why transgress ye the commandments of the Lord, knowing that ye cannot prosper? Because ye have forsaken the Lord, he hath also forsaken you.

And Jehoash (Joash) and the princes of Judah conspired against him, and stoned him to death in the court of the house of the Lord, at the command of the king. Thus Jehoash remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada the father of Zechariah had done to him, but slew his son. And when he died, Jehoash said, The Lord look upon it, and require it! And it came to pass that at the end of the year the host of Syria came up against Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the princes of the people, and sent all the spoil of them to the king of Damascus. Although the army of the Syrians came with a small company of men, the Lord delivered a very great host into their hand, for Judah had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers. And they executed judgement against Jehoash. When the Syrians departed from him, he was in great distress; his own servants conspired against him for the blood of the son of Jehoiada the priest; and they slew Jehoash (Joash) in his bed, and he died; and they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings. And these are they that conspired against him: Zabad (Jozachan) the son of Shimeath an Ammonitess, and Jehozabad the son of Shimrith (Shomar) a Moabitess. And Amaziah son of Jehoash reigned in his stead.

In the second year of Joash (or Jehoash) son of Jehoahaz king of Israel, reigned Amaziah the son of Jehoash (Joash) king of Judah. He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign in Jerusalem, and he reigned twenty-nine years. His mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, but not with a perfect heart. Now it came to pass, when the kingdom was established in his hand, that he slew his servants that had killed Jehoash his father But he slew not their children, for he said, It is written in the Law, in the book of Moses The fathers shall not die for the children, neither shall the children die for the sins of their fathers; but every man shall be accountable for his own deeds.

After this Amaziah gathered together all Judah, and made them captains over thousands and hundreds, according to the house of their fathers, throughout all Judah and Benjamin. And he numbered them twenty years old and above, and found them three hundred thousand choice men, able to go forth to war, that could handle spear and shield. He also hired an hundred thousand mighty men of valour out of Israel for an hundred talents of silver. But there came a man of God to Amaziah, saying, O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee, for the Lord is not with Israel, to wit, with all the children of Ephraim. If thou wilt do it to strengthen the army of Judah, God shall make thee fall before the enemy; for God hath power to help and to cast down. And Amaziah said to the man of God, But what shall we do for the hundred talents which I have given to the army of Israel? And the man of God answered, The Lord is able to give thee much more than this. So Amaziah separated the army of Israel that had come to him out of Ephraim, and told them to go home again. Wherefore, their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned home full of hostility.

And Amaziah strengthened himself, and led forth his people to the valley of the salt, by the Dead Sea, and smote the children of Seir, the Edomites, ten thousand; and other ten thousand they carried away alive unto the top of the rock, and cast them down from the top of the rock, so that they were broken into pieces. But the soldiers of the army of Israel which Amaziah had rejected, returned not to Ephraim but fell upon the cities of Judah, from Samaria unto Beth-horon, and smote three thousand men, and took much spoil. Now it came to pass, that after Amaziah returned to Jerusalem from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the gods of the children of Seir, and set them up to be his gods, bowed down before them, and burnt incense unto them. Wherefore the anger of the Lord was kindled against Amaziah; and he sent him Zechariah the prophet. And the prophet asked him, Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, who could not deliver their own people out of thine hands? And the king of Judah said unto him, Art thou made to be the king's counselor? Forbear, why shouldest thou be smitten? So the prophet forbore, and said, I know that God hath determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this thing, and hearkened not to my counsel.

And it came to pass that Amaziah king of Judah sent to Joash (Jehoash) king of Israel, saying, Come let us face each other on the battle field. And Joash king of Israel sent his reply to Amaziah, saying, The thistle that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife; and there passed by a wild beast that was in Lebanon, and trod down the thistle. Lo, thou hast smitten the Edomites, and thine heart lifteth thee up to boast; therefore abide at home, why seekest thou to meddle to thine own hurt? That thou shouldest fall, even thou and Judah with thee? But Amaziah would not hear it, for the thing was of God, that he might deliver him into the hand of his enemies, for he and Judah sought after the gods of Edom.

So Joash king of Israel went down to battle against Amaziah king of Judah at Beth-shemesh, in Judah. And Judah was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled every man to his tent. Then Joash captured Amaziah and brought him to Jerusalem; and they broke down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate, four hundred cubits. And Israel took all the gold and silver, and all the vessels from the house of the Lord, which were with Obed-edom, and from the king's treasury, and returned to Samaria.

In the fifteenth year of Amaziah king of Judah, Jeroboam II son of Joash king of Israel, began to reign in Samaria, and reigned forty-one years. And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin. He restored the border of Israel from the entrance of Hamath unto the sea of the plain (Salt Sea) according to the words of Jonah the prophet the son of Amittai, of Gath-hepher. And Jeroboam II also paid tribute to the king of Assyria, as did Jehu, Jehoahaz, and Joash (Jehoash), his fathers. Now the word of the Lord came to Jonah the prophet, saying, Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me. But Jonah (Yūnus) obeyed not the word of the Lord, and fled to Joppa, from the presence of the Lord; and there found a ship going to Tarshish (Tharshish), over twenty-two hundred miles west of Nineveh; and he paid the fare to go to Tarshish. But the Lord sent out a great wind and a mighty tempest into the sea, so that the ship was likely to be broken. Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and cast forth the wares that were in the ship, to lighten it of the load; but Jonah was gone down in the sides of the ship, and there he lay, and was fast asleep. So the shipmaster came to him, and said, What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy God, so he may look upon us, that we perish not. And they said every man to his fellow, Come, and let us cast lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is come upon us. So they cast lots, and it fell upon Jonah. And they said unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us? What is thine occupation? And whence comest thou? What is thy country, and of what people art thou? And he said unto them, I am an Hebrew; and I fear the Lord, the God of heaven, which hath made the sea and dry land. Then were the men exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? For the men knew that he had fled the presence of the Lord, because they were of God. Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may be calm unto us? For the sea wrought, and was tempestuous. And he said unto them, Take me up, and cast me into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you, for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you. Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring the vessel to the shore, but they could not. Wherefore they cried unto the Lord, saying, We beseech thee, O Lord, we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and lay not upon us innocent blood; for thou, O Lord hast done as it pleased thee. So they took up Jonah, and cast him into the sea, and the sea ceased from its rage. Then the men feared the Lord exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows.

Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and nights. Then Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God out of the fish's belly, and said, I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord, and he heard me; out of the belly of hell I cried, and thou heardest my voice. For thou hadst cast me into the deep, in the midst of the seas, the floods compassed me about, and thy billows and thy waves passed over me. Then I said, I am cast out of thy sight, yet I will look again toward thy holy temple. The waters compassed me about, even to the point of death; the depths choked me, and the weeds were wrapped about my head; I went down to the bottoms of the mountains; the earth with her bars was always about me; yet hast thou brought up my life from corruption, O Lord my God. When my soul was faint within me, I remembered the Lord; and my prayer came unto thee, into thine holy temple. They that observe falsehood and vanities forsake their own mercy; but I will offer a willing sacrifice unto thee, with the voice of thanksgiving; yea, I will pay that which I have vowed, for the salvation is of the Lord alone. And the Lord spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land.

And the word of the Lord came the second time unto Jonah, saying, Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it that which I bid thee. So Jonah arose and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the Lord. It was a three days' journey to that great city. Jonah entered the city, and the selfsame day he cried unto the people, saying, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown! And the people of Nineveh believed in God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from their greatest to the least of them; and the king of Assyria arose from his throne, and he took off his robe, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. And he caused it to be proclaimed and published throughout Nineveh, by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying, Let neither man or beast, herd or flock, taste anything; let them not eat, nor drink water; but let them be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God; yea, let them turn every man from his evil ways, and from the violence which is in their hands. Who can tell if God will turn away his fierce wrath and be merciful, that we perish not? And God saw that they turned and repented of their evil works, and sought the mercy of the Lord in sincerity of their hearts; therefore the Lord had compassion upon him, and brought not upon them the evil which he was to bring.

But it displeased Jonah exceedingly that the Lord brought not the evil upon the inhabitants of Nineveh; and he was very angry. And he prayed unto the Lord, and said, I pray thee, O Lord, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country (city of Khirbet-ez-zurra, about two and a half miles north-northeast of Nazareth, just south of Meshed)? Therefore I fled toward Tarshish, for I knew that thou art a gracious God, merciful, slow to anger, of great kindness, and the evil vexeth thy Soul. Therefore now, O Lord, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live.

Then said the Lord, Doest thou well to be angry? So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side, and made there a booth, and sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would become of the city; and the Lord God caused a gourd (castor bean plant) to come up over Jonah, that there might be shade over his head, to deliver him from the scorching heat of the sun; and Jonah was exceedingly glad of the gourd. But God caused a worm to smite the gourd, so that the next day it withered and died. And when the sun came up, God prepared a strong east wind that blew away the booth which Jonah had set there; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah (or Yūnus), and he fainted; and he wished in his heart to die, saying, It is better for me to die than to live. And God said to Jonah, Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd? And Jonah replied, I do well to be angry, even unto death! Then said the Lord, Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for which thou hast not labored, neither madest it to grow; which came up in a night, and perished the next. Therefore, should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein dwell more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons that cannot discern good or evil, between their right hand and left, and also much cattle?

So Jeroboam II recovered Damascus and Hamath of Judah for Israel, and slept with his fathers, the kings of Israel; and Zachariah his son reigned in his stead.

Now after that Amaziah did turn away altogether from following the Lord, and the people in Jerusalem conspired against him, he fled to Lachish in the Shephelah, about fifteen miles west of Hebron; but they sent to Lachish after him, and slew him there. And they brought him upon horses, and buried him with his fathers in the city of Judah. So Amaziah son of Jehoash, king of Judah, lived after the death of Joash son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, fifteen years; and reigned twenty-nine years over Judah in Jerusalem. Then all the people of Judah took Uzziah (Azariah), who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amaziah; and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem; the first twelve years he was co-regent. His mother's name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. He sought God in the days of Zechariah the prophet. Uzziah or Azariah went forth and warred against the Philistines, and broke down the walls of Gath, Jabneh, and Ashdod; and built cities about Ashdod, and among the Philistines. The Lord helped him against the Philistines and against the Arabians of Gur-baal, and the Mehunim. And the Ammonites gave gifts to Uzziah; and his name spread abroad, even to the entrance of Egypt, for he strengthened himself exceedingly. Moreover, Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the corner gate, at the valley gate, and at the corner of the wall, and fortified them. He also built towers in the desert, and digged many wells; for he had much cattle, both in the low country and in the plains; many husbandmen and wine dressers in the mountains and in Carmel; for he loved husbandry.

Uzziah had an host of fighting men, that went out to war by bands, according to the number of their account kept by Jeiel the scribe and Maasieh the ruler, under the hand of Hananiah, one of the king's captains. The chief of the fathers of the mighty men of valor were two thousand and six hundred; and under their hand was an army of three hundred and seven thousand and five hundred, that made war with mighty power, to guard Jerusalem and Judah and its king. And Uzziah prepared for all his host shields, spears, helmets, armor and bows, and slings to cast stones. In Jerusalem he made engines (weapons), invented by cunning men, to be set on the guard towers and upon the bulwark, to shoot large arrows, and huge stones withal. And his name spread abroad for the cunning war weapons and strategies he employed in warfare.

But when he became strong, his heart lifted up in pride and vanity, to his destruction; for he went inside the temple of the Lord to burn incense upon the altar of incense without being ordained to do so by the Holy Priesthood of God. And Azariah the priest went in after him, and with him eighty priests that were also valiant men; and said unto Uzziah the king, It belongs not unto thee, Uzziah, to burn incense unto the Lord, but to the priests the sons of Aaron, that are consecrated to burn incense; go out of the sanctuary, for thou hast trespassed. Then Uzziah was wroth with the priests, and had a censer in his hand to burn incense. And while he thus spoke, he turned leprous in his forehead, and they thrust him out from thence; and he himself hasted to go out, because the Lord had smitten him. And a great earthquake shook the foundations of Judah, and destroyed many. And Uzziah the king remained a leper unto the day of his death, and dwelt in a separate house. At this time Jotham his son was over the king's house, and judged the people of the land. And Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz, was the court recorder of Uzziah's acts. And Uzziah built Eloth (Elath), and restored it to Judah, and he slept with his fathers and they buried him with his fathers in the burial field which belongs to the kings, instead of the sepulchres of the kings, for they said, He is a leper. So Uzziah reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem; and after him Jotham his son reigned in his stead.

In the thirty-eighth year of Uzziah (or Azariah) Zachariah the son of Jeroboam II began to reign over Israel, and he was co-regent for ten years. He reigned six months over Israel in Samaria, and did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, and departed not from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin. And Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against him, and smote him before the people, and slew him; and reigned in his stead. Thus the word of the Lord which he spake unto Jehu son of Joram, king of Israel, saying, Thy sons shall sit on the throne of Israel unto the fourth generation, were fulfilled, every whit.

Shallum son of Jabesh began to reign in the thirty-ninth year of Uzziah king of Judah; and he reigned a full one month in Samaria. Then came Menahem son of Gadi from Tirzah, and smote Shallum son of Jabesh in Samaria, slew him, and reigned in his stead in the self-same year; and he reigned over Israel ten years in Samaria. And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord; and departed not all his days from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

And it came to pass that Pulu or Pul (Tiglath-puleser) king of Assyria came against Samaria; and Menahem gave Pulu a thousand talents of silver, that his hand might be with him, and to acknowledge him as the official king of Israel. And Menahem exacted the money from all the mighty men of wealth, of each man fifty shekels of silver, to be given to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back; and stayed not in the land. And Menahem slept with his fathers, and Pekahiah his son reigned in his stead. In the fiftieth year of Uzziah (or Azariah) king of Judah, Pekahiah son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned two years. And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, and he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin. But Pekah son of Remaliah, a captain of his host, conspired against him, along with Arzob and Arich, and fifty men of Gilead, and they smote him in the palace of the king in Samaria. In the fifty-second year of Uzziah (Azariah) king of Judah, Pekah son of Remaliah began to reign over Israel, and was coregent one year.

In the second year of Pekah son of Remaliah, king of Israel, began Jotham son of Uzziah to reign over Judah. Jotham was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerushah, the daughter of Zadok. And Jotham did as did his father Uzziah, but he entered not inside the temple of the Lord. And the people dwelt in sin and corruption. He built the high gate of the house of the Lord, and did much repair work on the wall of Ophel.

He also built cities in the mountains of Judah; and in the forests he built castles and towers. He fought with the king of the Ammonites, and prevailed against him. And the children of Ammon gave him for three years an hundred talents of silver, ten thousand measures of wheat, and ten thousand of barley, each year. And Jotham became mighty, because he maintained a steady course before the Lord. And it came to pass that Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David; and Ahaz his son reigned in his stead.

Moreover, during the reign of Uzziah (or Azariah) king of Judah, was Amos the prophet of Judah; he dwelt in the town of Tekoa, some ten miles south of Jerusalem. In his early life he found work as a sheep raiser in the desolate wilderness of Judea; he also did seasonal work as a nipper of sycamore figs (which was the food only for the poor). His task was to pinch and puncture the figs, in order to hasten the ripening, and to increase the size and sweetness of the fruit. Like the shepherd David, who was called by the Lord to serve his people Israel, Amos also was called to serve the Lord, and he made him a prophet; to serve Israel and Jeroboam II, and also Judah and Uzziah. Amos' prophetic works began two years before the great earthquake which occurred in Jerusalem and Judah; and after finishing his work in Samaria and Beth-el of Israel, he returned to his home in Tekoa, where he died and was buried in his sepulchre. Now these are the words of Amos, the prophet of the Lord:

WORDS OF AMOS

(Prophet of the Lord during the reigns of Uzziah king of Judah, 829-777 B.C. and Jeroboam II king of Israel, 843-802 B.C.)

The words of Amos, who was among the herdmen of Tekoa, which he saw concerning Israel in the days of Uzziah (or Azariah) king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash (or Jehoash) king of Israel, two years before the earthquake. And he said, The Lord will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the habitations of the shepherds shall mourn, and the top of Carmel shall wither. Thus saith the Lord, For three transgressions of Damascus, yea, four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have threshed Gilead with threshing instruments of iron. I will send a fire into the house of Hazael, which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad; I will also break the bars of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitants from the plain of Aven; and he that holdeth the sceptre from the house of Eden (Aden), and the people of Syria shall go into captivity unto Kir, saith the Lord; because they carried away captive the whole captivity, and delivered them up to Edom. Yea, thus saith the Lord God, I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza and Tyre (Tyrus) which shall devour the palaces thereof. And I will cut off the inhabitant from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon; I will turn mine hand against Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish. And I shall send a fire upon Teman, which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah; and will not turn away the punishment against the children of Ammon, because they have ripped up women and children of Gilead, that they might enlarge their borders. I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabbah, and it shall devour the palaces thereof, with shouting in the day of battle, with tempest in the day of whirlwind; and their king and his princes shall go into captivity together, saith the Lord.

Moreover, I will send fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of Kirioth; and Moab shall die with tumult, with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet. And I will cut off the judge from their midst, and will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the Lord. And for the transgressions of Judah, I will not turn away the punishment thereof, because they have despised the law of the Lord, and kept not my commandment, nor the covenant which they made. Their lies caused them to err, and fall, and die in the Spirit; and there they remain to kick against the pricks, to curse God, and continue to hate, envy, covet, and despise the servants and things of God. And I will not turn away the punishment against Israel, for they have sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes; they pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and turn aside the way of the meek; and a man and his father goeth in unto the same maid, to profane my holy name. And they lay themselves down upon clothes laid to pledge by every altar, and drink the wine of the condemned in the house of their god. Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath. And I brought ye up from the land of Egypt, and led you forty years through the wilderness, that ye might possess the land of the Amorite. And I raised up from among your sons and young men, the prophets and the Nazarites. Is it not so, O ye children of Israel? saith the Lord. But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink, and commanded the prophets not to prophesy. Behold, I am pressed under your sins and transgressions, as a cart is pressed that is full of sheaves. Therefore, the flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong shall not strengthen his force, neither shall the mighty deliver himself. He that handleth the bow shall not stand, nor he that is swift of foot or rideth the horse shall deliver himself. And he that is valiant among the mighty shall flee away naked in that day, saith the Lord.

Hear ye this word that the Lord hath spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt. You only have I raised up to be my chosen people and a peculiar treasure, of all the families of the earth; therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities. Can two walk together, except they be agreed? Will a lion roar in the forest when he hath no prey? Will a young lion cry out of his den, if he hath taken nothing? Can a bird fall in a snare upon the earth, where there is no bait (or lure) for him? Shall one take up a snare from the earth, and hath taken nothing at all? Shall a trumpet be blown in the city, and the people not be afraid? And shall there be evil in a city, and the Lord hath not done it? Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets. The lion hath roared, who will not fear? The Lord God hath spoken, who can but prophesy? Publish ye in the palaces at Ashdod, and in Egypt, and say, Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold the great tumults and oppressions in the midst thereof.

For they know not to do right, who store up violence and robbery in their palaces, therefore an adversary shall compass the land, and shall bring down their strength, and spoil their palaces. Thus saith the Lord, As the shepherd taketh out of the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear, so shall the children of Israel be taken out that dwell in Samaria, in the corner of a bed, and in Damascus in a couch. Hear ye, and testify in the house of Jacob, that in the day that I shall visit the transgressions of Israel upon him, I will also visit the altars of Beth-el; and the horns of the altar shall be cut off, and fall to the ground. And I will smite the winter house with the summer house; and the houses of ivory, and the great houses shall perish and have an end, saith the Lord.

Hear this word, ye kine (cows) of Bashan, that are in the mountains of Samaria, that oppress the poor, crush the needy, and say to their masters, Bring, and let us drink! The Lord hath sworn by his holiness, that lo, the days shall come upon you, that he will take you away with hooks, and your posterity with fishhooks. And ye shall go out at the breeches, every cow at that which is before her, and shall be cast into the palace, saith the Lord. Yea, it liketh you to come to Beth-el, and transgress, and at Gilgal multiply your transgressions; and to bring your sacrifices every morning, and your tithes every three years; and to offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, and proclaim and publish your free will offerings, O children of Israel; but it liketh you not to know and learn the law of God, and to obey it.

O ye stiffnecked children, I gave unto you cleanness of teeth, and want of bread (famine and hunger) in all your cities, yet have ye not returned unto me. I also withheld the rain from you, when there were yet three months to harvest; and I caused it to rain upon one city, and not upon another; and the place where it rained not, it withered, and then two or more cities wandered unto one city to drink water, yet ye have not returned unto me, saith the Lord. I have smitten you with blasting and mildew; and when your gardens and vineyards and olive trees increased, the palmerworm devoured them, yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord. I have sent among you the pestilence after the manner of Egypt; your young men were slain with the sword, and their horses were taken away, and the stinks of your camps came unto your nostrils; yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord. I have overthrown some of you as Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand pulled out of the fire, yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord. Therefore, this will I do unto thee, O Israel; and because it shall be done unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel. For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and causeth the wind to blow, and declareth unto men his laws, statutes, and judgements; and maketh the morning darkness and the darkness morning, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, hath spoken it; and the Lord, the God of Hosts, is his name.

Hear ye this word which I take up against you, even a lamentation, O house of Israel. The virgin of Israel is fallen; she shall no more rise, she is forsaken upon her land; there is none to raise her up. And thus saith the Lord, The city that went out by a thousand shall leave an hundred; and that which went forth by an hundred shall leave ten, to the house of Israel. Therefore, O Israel, seek ye me, and ye shall live; but seek not Beth-el nor enter Gilgal; for Beth-el shall surely go into captivity, and Beth-el shall come to nought. Seek the Lord, and ye shall live; lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph, and devour it; and there be none to quench it in Beth-el. Ye who turn judgement to wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth, seek him that maketh the seven stars and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and maketh the day dark with night; that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth. The Lord is his name, that strengtheneth the spoiled against the strong, so that the spoiled shall come against the fortress. They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly. Therefore as your treading is upon the poor, and ye take from him burdens of wheat, ye have built yourselves houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them; ye have planted pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them. For I know your manifold transgressions, and your mighty sins; ye afflict the just, ye take bribes, and oppress the poor and the needy within your gates. Therefore the prudent and wise shall keep silence in that time, for it is an evil time. Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live under the grace and mercy of the Lord God of Hosts. Despise ye evil, and love good, and establish judgement in your gates; perchance the Lord God of Hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph. Thus saith the Lord, the God of Hosts: Wailing shall be in all streets, and they shall say in the highways, Alas! Alas!, and the husbandman shall be called to mourning, such as are skillful of lamentation to wailing; and in vineyards shall be wailing, for I shall pass through them, saith the Lord.

Woe unto them that desire the day of the Lord! To what end is it for you? The day of the Lord is darkness, and not light; as if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or a man went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Yea, the day of the Lord is utter darkness, and not light. Thus saith the Lord, I despise and abhor your feasts, and will not take heed of your sacrifices, your burnt offerings, and your meat offerings; I will not accept them, nor will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts. Take ye away from me the noise and vexations of your songs, for I will not hear the melody of thy viols, and will turn away my face from your solemn assemblies. But judgement run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. Have ye offered unto me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel? Nay, but you didst offer sacrifices and offerings unto Molech, and Baal, and Chemosh, and to the idols of your gods which ye made to yourselves. Therefore, will I cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus, saith the Lord, whose name is the God of Hosts.

Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion, and trust in the mountains of Samaria, even the chiefs of the nations of the house of Israel! Pass ye unto Calneh (Calnah), and see; and from thence go ye to Hamath the great; then go down to Gath of the Philistines; be they better than the nations of Israel, and their borders greater than yours? Ye that put far away the evil day, and cause the seat of violence to come near; that lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and in slothfulness eat the lambs out of the flock, and calves out of the stall; and chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music, like David; and drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments, but are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph. Therefore, now shall they go captive first among the captives; and the revelry of those that stretched forth themselves (through trespass and unrighteous dominion) shall be removed. The Lord God hath sworn by himself, saith the Lord God of Hosts, I abhor the pride of Jacob, and despise his palaces; therefore will I deliver up his city with all that is therein. For, behold, the Lord commandeth, and he will smite the great house with breaches, and the little house with clefts. And it shall come to pass, if there be ten men in one house, they shall perish. And a man's uncle, and he that burneth him, shall take him up to bring out the bones out of the house; and shall say unto his neighbors, that dwell round about him, Is there yet any with thee? And they shall say, No. Then shall they say, Hold thy tongue, for we may not blaspheme the name of the Lord, nor make mention of the name of the Lord. Shall horses run upon the rock? Will one plow there with oxen? For ye have turned judgement into gall, and the fruit of righteousness into hemlock; ye who rejoice in a thing of nought, and say, Have we not taken to us horns by our own strength? But, behold, I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the Lord God of Hosts; and they shall afflict you from the entrance of Hamath (Hemath) unto the river of the wilderness.

Moreover, thus hath the Lord God showed unto me (Amos) --Behold, he formed grasshoppers in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth; and lo, it was the latter growth after the king's mowings. And when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, then I said, O Lord God, forgive, I beseech thee; by whom shall Jacob arise, for he is small? The Lord repented for this (meaning, his Soul was vexed), and said, It shall not be. Thus hath the Lord God shewed unto me; and, behold, the Lord God called to contend by fire, and it devoured the great expanse, and did eat up a part. Then said I, O Lord God, cease, I beseech thee; by whom shall Jacob arise? For he is small and light-minded. The Lord repented for this also, and said, This shall not be.

Thus he shewed me; and behold, the Lord stood upon a wall which was under construction, with a plumbline in his hand. And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel; I will not again pass by them anymore (meaning, his presence will be withdrawn from them). And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam (II) with the sword.

Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-el (the place of worship, or sanctuary, for the king of Israel and his court) sent to Jeroboam son of Joash (Jehoash) king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel; and the land is not able to bear his words. For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land. And Amaziah said unto Amos, O thou seer, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah; and there eat bread, and prophesy; but prophesy not again any more at Beth-el; for it is the king's chapel, and the sanctuary for his court. And Amos said to Amaziah, I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was an herdman, a gatherer of sycamore fruit; and the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel. Now therefore hear thou the word of the Lord: Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and drop not thy word against the house of Isaac. Therefore thus saith the Lord; Thy wife shall become a harlot in the city, and thy sons and daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by line; and thou shalt die in a polluted land, for Israel shall surely go forth into captivity, out of his land.

And thus hath the Lord God shewed unto me -- Behold, a basket of summer fruit. And he said, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said the Lord unto me, The end is come upon my people Israel; I will not again pass by them any more. And the songs of the temple shall be howlings in that day; many dead bodies in every place shall be cast forth in silence, saith the Lord God.

Hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy, and cause the poor of the land to fail; and say, When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? And the sabbath, that we may set forth wheat; making the ephah small, and the shekel great, and falsifying the weights and measures? And say, Let us buy the poor for silver, and the needy for a pair of shoes; yea, and sell the refuse of the wheat? The Lord hath sworn by the pride and vanity of Jacob, Surely I will not forget any of their works. Shall not the land tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein? And it shall rise up wholly as a floor; and it shall be cast out and drowned, as by the flood of Egypt (meaning the floodings of the Nile). And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day. And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentations; and I will bring sackcloth upon their loins, and baldness upon their head; and I will make it as the mourning of an only son, and end thereof a bitter day. Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land -- not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the Word of the Lord; and they shall wander from sea to sea; from north even to the east (meaning all the way from north to west to south to east); they shall run to and fro to seek the Word of the Lord, but they shall find it not. In that day their fair virgins and young men shall faint with thirst and craving; and those that swear by the sin of Samaria, saying, Thy god, O Dan, liveth, and the manner of Beer-sheba liveth, shall fail, never to rise again.

And I (Amos) saw the Lord standing upon the altar; and he said, Smite the lintel of the door, that the posts may shake; and cut them in the head, all of them; and I will slay the last of them with the sword. He that fleeth of them shall not flee away, and he that escapeth of them, shall not be delivered. Though they dig into hell, thence shall mine hand take them; though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down; though they hide themselves in the top of (mount) Carmel, I will search and take them out thence; though they be hid from my sight in the bottom of the sea, thence will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them; and though they go into captivity before their enemies, thence will I command the sword, and it shall slay them; and I will set mine eyes upon them for evil, and not for good. Behold, Lord God of Hosts is he that toucheth the land, and it melteth, and all that dwell therein mourn; it riseth up wholly like a flood, and drowneth as by the flood of Egypt (as in the time of Moses and Aaron when they crossed the Red sea). It is he that buildeth his mansions in the heavens, and hath founded his troop in the earth; he that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth -- the Lord is his name.

Are ye not as children of the Ethiopians unto me, O children of Israel? saith the Lord. Have not I brought up Israel out of the land of Egypt? And the Philistines from Caphtor, and the Syrians from Kir? Behold, the eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom; and will destroy it from off the face of the world; saving that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the Lord. For, lo, I will command, and will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like the corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth. But the sinners of my people shall perish by the sword, that say, The evil shall not overtake nor prevent (confront) us. In that day also will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and will build it as in the days of old; that they may possess the remnant of Edom, and all of the heathen, which call upon my name, saith the Lord that doeth this. Behold, the days come, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that soweth seed; and the mountains shall be consumed as sweet wine, and the hills shall melt.

And I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; and they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit thereof. And I will plant them upon their land, that they might not be pulled up out of their land, which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God.

Now after the death of Jotham son of Uzziah, king of Judah, Ahaz his son began to reign in Judah; and he reigned in Jerusalem sixteen years. He was twenty years old when he began to reign, and walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made his sons to pass through the fire, according to the abominations of the heathen, whom the Lord had cast out from before the children of Israel. And he sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places, under hills, and under green trees. Then Rezin king of Syria recovered Eloth (Elath) to Syria, and drove the Jews from there; and Syrians came and dwelt there. And Pekah son of Remaliah slew in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand valiant men in one day, for they had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers. And Zichri, a mighty man of Ephraim, slew Maasieh the king's son, Azrikam the governor of the king's house, and Elkanah that was next to the king. And the children of Israel carried away captive of their brethren two hundred thousand men, women, and children, and much spoil; and brought them to Samaria.

Behold, there was a prophet of the Lord among the two hundred thousand captives taken by their brethren from Judah, whose name was Oded. And he went out before the host that came to Samaria, and said unto them, Behold, because the Lord God of your fathers was wroth with Judah, he hath delivered them into your hands, and ye have slain them in a rage that reacheth up to heaven; and now ye purpose to keep under (subjugate) the children of Judah and Jerusalem, for bondmen and bondwomen unto you. But are there not with you, even with you, sins against the Lord your God? Now hear me therefore, and deliver the captives, your brethren; for the fierce wrath of the Lord is upon you. Then certain heads of the children of Ephraim, namely, Azariah son of Johanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai, stood up against the host and said unto them, Ye shall not bring the captives hither; for whereas we have offended the Lord already, now ye intend to add more to our sins and our trespasses; for our trespass is great, and there is the fierce wrath of the Lord against Israel. So the armed men left the captives and their spoil, clothed them that were naked, shod them that had no shoes, and gave them to eat and drink; and they carried the feeble among them upon asses, and made peace with them. And they brought them to Jericho, the city of palm trees, to their brethren, then the armed men returned to Samaria.

So Ahaz king of Judah sent messengers to Pulu (or Tiglath-puleser) king of Assyria, saying, I am thy servant and thy son; come up and save me out of the hands of the kings of Syria, and out of the hands of the king of Israel, which rise up against me. And Ahaz took the silver and gold that was in the treasury of the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasury, and sent it for a present to the king of Assyria. And the king of Assyria hearkened unto him, and went up against Damascus, and took it, and carried its people captive to Kir, and slew Rezin (Rezon) king of Syria (Aram). Then Ahaz king of Judah went to Damascus to meet Pulu (Tiglath-puleser) king of Assyria. And there he saw an altar of the Syrians; and he sent the pattern of it to Urijah the high priest in Jerusalem. And Urijah built the altar according to the pattern, and fashion, and all workmanship thereof, that king Ahaz had sent him from Damascus, while the king yet remained there. And when Ahaz returned from Damascus, he saw the altar, and was pleased with it. Then he approached, and offered his burnt offering, his meat offering; poured his drink offering, and sprinkled the blood of his peace offering, upon the altar. And he took the brazen altar, which was at the forefront of the house of the Lord, and put it on the north side of the altar. And he cut off the borders of the bases, and removed the laver from off them; and took down the molten sea (the font) from off the twelve brazen oxen, and put it upon a pavement of stone instead. And the covert for the sabbath which they had built in the house of the Lord, and the king's entry without, he took apart and sent to the king of Assyria.

After this, the Edomites came into Judah and carried away captives. And the Philistines had invaded the cities of the low country, and of southern Judah; and had taken Beth-shemesh, Ajalon, Gederoth, Shocho with all its villages, and Gimzo and the villages thereof; and they began to dwell there. The Lord brought Ahaz and Judah low, for Ahaz made Judah naked, and they transgressed sore against the Lord. Now Pulu the king of Assyria, even Tiglath-puleser, to whom Ahaz king of Judah sought for help, and bribed him with a portion out of the treasury of the house of the Lord, and out of the king's treasury, and of the princes and nobles; yea, the same came unto him to distress and vex him, and not to strengthen. And in the time of distress, he trespassed yet more against the Lord. He sacrificed unto the gods of Damascus, which smote him, saying, Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, therefore will I sacrifice unto them, that they may help me. But they were the ruin of him, and all Israel. And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of the Lord, and shut up its doors. And he made altars in every corner of Jerusalem, and high places to burn incense unto false gods did he build in every single city of Judah; and took delight in continually provoking to anger the Lord God of his fathers. And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of Jerusalem; but they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings. And Hezekiah his son reigned in his stead.

In the twelfth year of Ahaz king of Judah, Hoshea son of Elah was crowned to reign in Samaria over Israel; and he reigned nine years. He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, but less wickedly than the kings of Israel before him. Against him came Shalmaneser king of Assyria, and he agreed to remain under tribute to Assyria, and to pay tribute year by year. But the king of Assyria found conspiracy in Hoshea; for he had sent messengers to So (Soh) king of Egypt, and paid not his annual tribute to the king of Assyria. Therefore the king of Assyria shut him up in prison.

And it came to pass in the third year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that Hezekiah the son of Ahaz king of Judah began to reign. Twenty-five years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi, the daughter of Zachariah. And Hezekiah did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that David his father did. He removed the high places, and brake the images, and cut down the groves; and brake into pieces the brazen serpent that Moses had made; for until that day, the children of Israel did burn incense to it; and he called it Nehushtan. Hezekiah trusted in the Lord God of Israel; so that after him there was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any before him since the time of David. For he clave to the Lord, and departed not from following him; and kept all the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses.

Now, Amos and Hosea, the prophets of the Lord, served Uzziah (or Azariah) king of Judah (829-777), and also Jeroboam II king of Israel (843-802); but Hosea continued to be a prophet to Judah during the reigns of Jotham (777-762), Ahaz (762-746), and Hezekiah (745-716); Micah also served as a prophet of Judah under Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah; but Isaiah the prophet served these three kings, and Uzziah also. An abridgement of the words of Hosea, Micah, and Isaiah is herewith provided:

WORDS OF HOSEA (HOSHEA)

(Prophet of the Lord during the reigns of Uzziah or Azariah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; and Jeroboam II king of Israel.)

The word of the Lord that came unto Hosea the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel. The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea -- And the Lord said to Hosea, Go, take unto thee a wife of whoredoms and bring up children of whoredoms; for the land hath committed great whoredoms (and abominations), departing from the Lord. So he went and took Gomer (Qamar) the daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son. And the Lord said unto him, Call his name Jezreel; for yet a little while, and I will avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. And it shall come to pass at that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

And she conceived again, and bare a daughter. And God said unto him, Call her name Lo-ruhamah; for I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel, but I will utterly take them away (into captivity). But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the Lord their God; and will not save them by bow, nor by sword or battle, nor by horses or horsemen. Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived again, and bore a son. Then said God, Call his name Lo-ammi; for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God. Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered or measured. And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head. But first they shall be taken away out of their land, for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

Say ye unto your brethren, Ammi; and to your sisters, Ruhamah. Plead with your mother, plead; for she is not my wife, nor am I her husband (in the Spirit). Let her therefore put away her whoredoms out of her sight, and her adulteries from between her breasts; lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and set her like a dry land, and slay her with thirst and craving. And I will not have mercy upon her children, for they be the children of whoredoms. For their mother hath played the harlot; she that conceived them hath done shamefully; for she said I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and water, my wool and flax, and mine oil and drink. Therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and make a wall, that she shall not find her paths. And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not reach them; she shall seek them, but shall not find them; then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband, for then was it better for me than now. For she did not know that I gave her corn (grain), and wine, and oil, and all else which she needed for herself; and multiplied her silver and gold, which they prepared for Baal. Therefore, will I return, and take away my corn in the time thereof, my wine in the season thereof; and my wool and flax given to her to cover her nakedness will I recover. And now will I discover her lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of mine hand. I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feast days, her new moons, her sabbaths, and all her solemn feasts. And I will destroy her vines and her fig trees, whereof she hath said, These are my rewards that my lovers have given me; and will make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them. And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, wherein she burned incense to them, and decked herself with her earrings and jewels; and she went after her lovers, and forgat me, saith the Lord.

Then, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her; and will give her her vineyards, and the valley of Achor for a door of hope; and she shall sing there, as in the days of her youth, when she came up out of the land of Egypt. And at that day, thou shalt call me Ishi (meaning,My husband), and shalt call me no more Baali (meaning, My lover). For I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be remembered by their name. And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and the fowls of heaven, and the creeping things of the ground; and I will break the bow and the sword, and the battle out of the earth, and will cause them to lie in peace and safety. And I will betroth thee unto me for ever, in righteousness and in judgement, in lovingkindness, in mercies, and in faithfulness; and thou shalt know the Lord thy God. And it shall come to pass in that day, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth, saith the Lord; and the earth shall hear about the corn, the wine, the oil, and Jezreel. And I will plant her in the earth; and I will have mercy upon Lo-ruhamah that had not obtained mercy; and I will say to Lo-ammi that were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God.

Then said the Lord unto me (Hosea), Go yet, love a woman beloved of her friends, yet an adulteress; according to the love of the Lord toward the children of Israel, who look to other gods, and love flagons of wine. So I bought one to me for fifteen pieces of silver, and one and a half homer of barley. And I said unto her, Thou shalt abide with me for many days; thou shalt not play the harlot, nor shalt thou be for another man; so will I also be for thee. For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince; without a sacrifice, without an image, without ephod, and without teraphim (household deities of the Shemitic people). Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their God, and David a prince among them; and fear the Lord and his goodness in the latter days.

Hear the Word of the Lord, ye children of Israel, for the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land; because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and bloodshed leads to bloodshed. Therefore shall the land mourn, and everyone that dwelleth therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and the fowls of heaven; and the fishes of the sea shall also be taken away. Yet let no man strive, nor reprove another, for thy people are those that strive with the priest of God. Therefore shalt thou fall in the day, and thy prophets shall fall with thee in the night, and I will destroy the mother of harlots. Lo, my people are destroyed for lack of knowledge; and for thou hast rejected knowledge, and choose to abide in ignorance, I will also reject thee as my priest; seeing that thou hast forgotten the law of God, I will also forget thy children. And, as they were increased, so they sinned against me; therefore will I change their glory into shame. They eat up the sin of my people, and set their hearts on their iniquity; therefore, I will punish the priests like the people, and judge each according to his own works. For they shall eat, and not have enough; they shall commit whoredoms, and shall not increase, because they have forsaken the Lord their God. Whoredom and wine, and new wine, take away the heart and ruin the soul of man.

My people ask counsel at their stocks, and their staff declareth unto them; for the spirit of whoredoms hath caused them to err, and they have gone a whoring from under their God. They sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains, and burn incense upon the hills, under oaks, and poplars, and elms, because the shadow thereof is good; therefore your daughters shall commit whoredoms, and your spouses shall commit adultery. I will not punish your daughters when they commit whoredoms, nor your spouses when they commit adultery; for they themselves are separated with whores, and they sacrifice with harlots; therefore the people that doth not understand shall fall. Though you, Israel, play the harlot, yet let not Judah offend the Lord; and come not ye unto Gilgal, nor go up to Beth-aven (Aven), nor swear by the Lord, for the Lord God of Israel liveth.

For Israel slideth back as a backsliding heifer; now the Lord will feed them as a lamb in a large place. Ephraim is joined to idols, alone shall he wander. Their drink is turned sour; they have committed whoredom continually; her ruler, with shame does love, and deeply love dishonor and folly, saying, Give ye! The wind hath bound her up in her wings, and they shall be ashamed because of their sacrifices and abominations.

Hear ye this, O priests, and hearken, ye house of Israel; and give ye ear O house of the king; for judgement is upon you, because ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread upon Tabor. The revolters are profound to make a slaughter, though I have been a rebuker of them all. I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me; for now, O Ephraim, thou committest whoredom, and Israel is defiled. Their works do not permit them to turn unto their God, for the spirit of whoredoms is in the midst of them; they have not known the Lord. And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face, therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in their sin and iniquity; Judah also shall fall with them. They shall go with their flocks and herds to seek the Lord, but they shall find him not, for he hath withdrawn himself from them. They have dealt treacherously against the Lord, and have begotten strange children; now shall a moth devour them with their portions. Blow ye the shofar (ram's horn, cornet) in Gibeah, and the trumpet in Ramah; cry aloud at Beth-aven (Aven), after thee, O Benjamin. Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke, and among the tribes of Israel have I made known that which shall surely be. The princes of Judah are like those that remove the boundary marker, therefore I will pour out my wrath upon them like water. Ephraim is oppressed and broken in judgement, because he willingly walked after the filth, and broke the commandment. Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Judah as rottenness. When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw its wound, then went Ephraim to king Jareb (Yareb) the Assyrian; yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound. For I will be unto Ephraim as a lion, and as a young lion to the house of Judah; and the lion will tear him and go away, and none shall rescue him. Yea, I will go away and return to my place, till they repent and forsake their evil works, and acknowledge their offence, and seek my face in sincerity of their hearts; in their affliction they will seek me early.

Come, let us return unto the Lord; for he hath torn, he will heal us; for he hath smitten, he will bind us up. After two days will he revive us; in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his presence. Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord; his going forth is prepared as the morning, and he shall come upon us as the rain, as the spring and winter rain. O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? For your goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew, it goeth away; and thy judgements are as the light that goeth out. The Lord desireth charity (love), not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than your burnt offerings. They like all men have transgressed the covenant, and have dealt treacherously against the Lord their God. Gilead is a city of those that work secret combinations, and is polluted with blood. Their priesthood is changed into priestcraft; and as troops of robbers wait for a man, so the company of priests murder in the way by consent, and commit lewdness. I have seen horrible things in the house of Israel; and with the whoredom of Ephraim, Israel is defiled. Also, O Judah, the Lord hath set an harvest for thee, when he returns after the captivity of his people Israel.

When the Lord would have healed Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim and the wickedness of Samaria was discovered; for they commit falsehood; the thief cometh in, and the troops of robbers spoileth without. And they consider not in their hearts that the Lord remembers all their wickedness; now their own doings have beset them, they are before his face. Their counsellors make the king glad with their wickedness, and the princes with their lies. They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker, which ceaseth from raising after he hath kneaded the dough, until it be leavened. In the day of their king the princes have made him sick with bottles of wine, and he stretched out his hand with the scorners. For they have made ready their heart like an oven, while they lie in wait; their baker sleepeth all night, and in the morning it burneth as a flaming fire. They are all hot as an oven, and have devoured their judges; all their kings and princes are fallen; there is none among them that calleth upon the name of the Lord. Ephraim hath mixed himself among the people, he is a cake not turned. Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not; yea, gray hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not. The pride and vanity of Israel testifieth to his face, and they do not return to the Lord their God, nor seek him in their delusions and folly.

Ephraim is like a silly dove without heart; they call to Egypt, they go to Assyria, but call not upon the Lord their God. Behold, when they shall go, I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the fowls of the heathen, and will chastise them. Woe unto them! For they have forsaken me; destruction unto them! Because they have transgressed against me; though I have redeemed them, yet they have spoken lies against me. They assemble themselves for food and wine, and rebel against me; and when they howl upon their beds, they cry not unto me with their heart. Though I have trained and strengthened their arm, yet do they imagine mischief against me. They return, but not to the Most High; they are like a deceitful bow. Their princes shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongue; this shall be their derision in the land of Egypt, saith the Lord their God.

Set the trumpet (shofar) to thy mouth; thine enemy shall come as an eagle against the house of the Lord, because they have transgressed my covenant, and trespassed against my law, saith the Lord. Israel shall cry unto me, My God, we know thee. Israel hath cast off the thing that is good, the enemy shall pursue him; they have set up kings, but not by me; they have made princes, and I know it not; of their silver and gold have they made them idols, that they may be cut off. Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off; my anger is kindled against them; how long will it be before they repent and forsake their evil ways? For Israel it was that made the calf, even its workmen; therefore it is not the true and eternal God, but the calf of Samaria that shall be broken in pieces. For they have sown the wind, they shall reap the whirlwind. For they have planted that which hath no stalk, the bud shall yield no fruit; and if it doth yield, the strangers and the beasts of the forest shall swallow it up. Israel is swallowed up already, now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure. For they have gone a whoring unto the king of Assyria (king Pul), a wild ass alone by himself (meaning Menahem king of Israel); Ephraim hath hired lovers. Yea, though they have hired among the nations, now I will confound them, and they shall sorrow a little for the burden of the king of princes. And because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin, altars now shall be unto him to sin, saith the Lord.

I have written to him the great things of my law, but they counted them as strange things. They sacrifice flesh for mine offerings, and eat it; therefore the Lord accepteth them not, but remembers their iniquity, to visit their sins; they shall return to the ways of the Egyptians. For Israel hath forgotten his Maker, and buildeth temples to other gods; and Judah hath multiplied fenced (fortified) cities. But I will send a fire upon his cities, and it shall devour the palaces thereof. Rejoice not, O Israel, for joy, as other people; for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God; thou hast loved a reward upon every threshing floor. The floor and the winepress shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her. They shall not dwell in the Lord's land; but Ephraim shall return to the ways of the Egyptians, and shall eat unclean things in Assyria. They shall not offer wine offerings to the Lord, nor shall they be pleasing unto him; their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners; all that eat thereof shall be polluted; for their food for their soul shall not come into the house of the Lord. What wilt ye do in the solemn day, in the day of the feast of the Lord? For, lo, they are all gone astray, because their soul has been destroyed. Now Egypt shall gather them up into his fold, and Memphis shall bury them. The pleasant places for their silver and gold shall nettles possess them; thorns shall be in their dwellings. The days of visitation are come, the days of recompense are come; and Israel shall know it, for her prophet is a fool, the spiritual man mad, for the multitude of her iniquity and great hatred, saith the Lord God.

The watchman of Ephraim is wroth with my (Hosea's) God; the prophet, a snare of a fowler in all his ways; and hatred prevails in the house of the Lord. They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of Gibeah; therefore the Lord will remember their iniquity, and visit their sins. I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness; I saw your fathers as the firstripe in the fig tree its first time; they went to Baal-peor and separated themselves unto shame, and their abominations were according to whatsoever in which they took delight and pleasure. As Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird, from the birth and from the womb and from the conception shall it depart. Though they bring up their children, yet will I bereave them; not a man shall be left; yea, woe to them when I depart from them! Ephraim, as I saw Tyre (Tyrus), is planted in a pleasant place; but Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer (meaning the Assyrian). Give them, O Lord, what wilt thou give, even a miscarrying womb and dry breasts. For all their wickedness at Gilgal, I hated them; for the wickedness of their doings they will be driven out of mine house, I will love them no more; all their princes are revolters. Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up, and shall bear no fruit; and though they bring forth, yet the Lord shall slay the beloved of their womb. My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him; and they shall be wanderers among the nations.

Israel is an empty vine, he bringeth forth fruit unto himself. According to the multitude of his fruit he hath increased the altars; according to the goodness of his land they have made goodly images. Their heart is divided; now shall they be found guilty. The Lord shall break down their altars, and spoil their images. And they shall say, We have no king, because we feared not the Lord; what then would a king do to us? They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a covenant; thus judgement springeth up as a hemlock in the furrows of the field. The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of the calves of Beth-aven; for the people there shall mourn over it, and the priests that rejoiced over its glory, shall see the end thereof. Their calves and treasury shall be carried unto Assyria for a present to king Jareb; Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel will be ashamed of his own counsels. As for Samaria, her king is cut off as the foam upon the roaring sea. The high places of Beth-aven, the breeding ground for the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed; the thorn and the thistle shall come forth upon their altars; and they shall mourn and cry, saying, Cover us, O ye mountains; and fall on us, O ye hills! O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeah; there they stood, the battle of Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not overtake them. It is in my desire that I should chastise them; and the people shall be gathered against them, when they shall bind themselves in their two furrows.

Ephraim is as an heifer that is taught, and loveth to tread out the corn; but I passed over upon her fair neck, and will make him to ride; Judah shall plow, and Jacob shall break his clods. Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground, for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and pour righteousness upon you. Ye have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity; ye have eaten the fruit of lies. Because, O Israel, thou didst trust in thy way, in the multitude of thy mighty men, there shall arise a tumult among thy people; and all thy fortresses shall be spoiled, as Shalmaneser spoiled Beth-arbel in the day of battle, and the mothers were dashed in pieces upon their children; so shall Beth-el do unto you, because of your great wickedness; and the king of Israel shall be utterly cut off in a twinkling of an eye, saith the Lord God.

When Israel was a child, then I loved him, and called my son out of Egypt. As they were tempted, so they went and fell; they sacrificed unto Baalim, and burned incense to graven images. I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that I healed them; I drew them with cords of man, with bands of love, and took their yoke off from their jaws, and fed them. He shall not return into the land of Egypt, but the king of Assyria shall take him away, because they refuse to return unto the Lord their God. The sword shall abide on his cities, and shall consume his branches, and devour them, because of their own counsels. Lo, my people are bent to backsliding from me. Though by words they call them to the Most High, none at all would exalt him, nor hearken to his words. How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? How shall I deliver thee, Israel? How shall I make thee as Admah? How shall I set thee as Zeboim? Mine heart is turned within me, my Soul is vexed. I will not execute the fierceness of my wrath, to destroy Ephraim; for I am God, not a man, the Holy One in the midst of my people Israel. And Ephraim shall repent of his folly, and humble himself; he shall walk after the Lord, and roar like a lion; and when he shall roar, the children shall tremble from the west; they shall tremble as a bird out of Egypt, and as a dove out of Assyria; and I will place them in their dwellings, saith the Lord.

But now Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and Israel with deceit; but Judah yet ruleth with the Lord, and is faithful with the saints. Ephraim feedeth on wind, and followeth after the east wind; he daily increaseth lies and desolation; he maketh a covenant with the Assyrians, and sends oil to Egypt. The Lord shall also chastise Judah for his wickedness and abominations, and will punish Jacob according to their doings; aaccording to the doings of each will he recompense him. Yea, Jacob took his brother (Esau) by the heel in the womb, and by his strength he had power with God; he had power over the angel, and prevailed; he wept and made supplication unto the God of Abraham; then (at Peniel) he was called no more Jacob but Israel, for as a prince had he power with God and with men, for he had seen God face to face. And at Beth-El (Luz) Jacob made a covenant with God, saying, If God be with me, and will keep me in his way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God. And Jacob put there a stone for a pillar, and said, This stone which I have set shall be God's house; and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth (tithe) unto thee. Now all Israel is turned away altogether from the way of the Lord, nor doth he keep his covenant, or statutes, or judgements; but they despise the Lord.

Now he is a merchant, the balances of deceit are in his hands; he loveth to oppress. And Ephraim saith, Yet I am become rich, I have found me out substance; in all my labors they shall find no iniquity in me, yet he sins continually in his heart. And thus saith the Lord, I, the Lord thy God from the land of Egypt, will yet make thee to dwell in tents, as in the days of the solemn feast. I have spoken by the prophets, have multiplied visions, and used similitudes, by the ministry of the prophets. Is there iniquity in Gilead? Surely there is vanity; they sacrifice bullocks in Gilgal, and their altars are as heaps in the furrows of the fields.

When Ephraim spake in meekness, trembling, he exalted himself in Israel, but he offended in Baal, he died in the Spirit. And now they sin more and more, and have made them molten images of their silver, and idols according to their own understanding, all of it the work of the craftsmen (the priestcraft); and they say of them, Let the men that sacrifice kiss the calves. Therefore their portion shall be with those that are as the morning cloud, as the early dew that passeth away, as the chaff driven with the whirlwind out of the floor, as the smoke out of the chimney. Yet I am the Lord thy God from the land of Egypt; and thou shall serve no other god but me, for there is no Savior beside me. I didst know them in the wilderness, in the land of great drought; and according to their flocks and herds, the land was filled; then their hearts became exalted, and they forgat me. Therefore will I be unto them as a lion, and as a leopard by the way they shall be observed; they shall be met as a bear that is bereaved of her whelps, to rend and caul their heart; to be devoured by a lion, and torn by the wild beast.

O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself, yet in me is thine help. Therefore turn thyself to the Lord thy God, and wait on thy God continually; keep mercy and judgement. The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up, and his sins are hidden. But the pains of a travailing woman shall come upon him, yet shall he have no relief afterwards; but sorrows and woes shall follow him. He is an unwise son, for he should not stay long in the breaking forth of children. Yet if they repent and forsake their evil ways, I will ransom them from the power of the grave, I will redeem them from death; O death, I will be thy plagues, O grave, I will be thy destruction, and thy repentance shall be hid from mine eyes.

Though Ephraim be fruitful among his brethren, an east wind shall come, the wind of the Lord shall come up from the wilderness; and his springs and fountains shall be dried up; and his treasure of all pleasant vessels shall the Syrians destroy. Samaria shall become desolate, for she hath rebelled against her God; her people shall fall by the sword, and their women and children shall be dashed into pieces, to be ripped up. O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. Hearken to the words of the Lord, and pray unto him, and say unto him, Take away, O Lord, all iniquity, and receive us graciously back into thy fold; Asshur (Assyria) shall not save us; we will not put trust in our horses or chariots, our bow or sword, nor in our mighty men of valor, but in thee and thee alone shall we put our trust, O Lord God of Israel; nor will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods; for in the Lord alone the fatherless and the needy findeth mercy.

And if they repent and humble themselves, I will heal their backsliding, and will love them freely; I will be as the dew unto Israel, and he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots in Lebanon; his branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree. They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall flourish as the corn, and grow as the vine; the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon. Then shall say Ephraim, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard him and observed him; I am like a green fir-tree. From me is thy fruit found. Whoso is wise, he shall understand these things; and he that is prudent shall know them! For the ways of the Lord are right, the just shall walk on them, and the transgressors shall fall therein.

Now Micah the prophet of the Lord was also a contemporary of Hosea and Isaiah the prophets. He served under three kings of Judah, namely: Jotham (777-762 B.C.), Ahaz (762-746 B.C.), and Hezekiah (745-716 B.C.) Micah was a native of the village of Moresheth (Tell-el-Judeideh), about twenty-two miles southwest of Jerusalem, and about the same distance northeast of Gath. He prophecied during a very corrupt and hostile time, when false worship and moral decay prevailed throughout Judah and Israel. The word of the Lord came to Micah, saying God would make Samaria a heap of ruins of the field, and Zion would be plowed up as a mere field, and Jerusalem would become mere heaps of ruins. Both of his prophecies were fulfilled, when Samaria was destroyed by the Assyrians in 740 B.C.; and later Jerusalem was besieged by the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar in 607 B.C. These are the words of Micah the prophet:

WORDS OF MICAH

(Prophet of the Lord, during the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah)

The word of the Lord that came to Micah the Morasthite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem. Hear all ye people; hearken, O earth and all therein is; let the Lord God be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple. For, behold, the Lord cometh forth out of his place of habitation, to come down and tread upon the high places of the earth. And the mountains shall be molten under him, as wax before the fire; and the valleys shall be cleft, as the water poured down a steep surface. For the transgressions of Jacob, and for the sins of the house of Israel is all this. What are the transgressions of Jacob?

Is it not Samaria? And what are the high places of Judah? Are they not Jerusalem? Therefore I will make Samaria as an heap of the field, and as plantings of a vineyard; and I will pour down the stones into the valleys, and will discover the foundations thereof, saith the Lord.

And all the graven images shall be beaten to pieces, and the hires thereof shall be burned with the fire; and the idols thereof shall lay desolate, for they gathered them of the hire of an harlot, and they shall become the hire of an harlot. Therefore I (Micah) will wail and howl; I will go stripped and naked; I will make a wailing like the dragons, and mourning like the owls. For the wound of Samaria is uncurable, and it hath spread forth unto Judah; it is come unto the gate of my people, to Jerusalem.

Declare ye not at Gath, weep ye not at all; but in the house of Aphrah roll thyself in ashes. Pass ye away, thou inhabitants of Saphir, having thy shame naked; the inhabitants of Zaanan came not forth in the mourning of Beth-ezel, they shall receive of you their standing. The inhabitants of Maroth waited carefully for good, but evil came down from the Lord unto the gate of Jerusalem. O thou inhabitants of Lachish, bind the chariot to the swift beast; for she is the cause of sin to the daughter of Zion, and to the transgressions of Israel; therefore shalt thou give presents to Moresheth-gath, the houses Achzib being a lie to the kings of Israel. Yet I will bring an heir unto the inhabitants of Mareshah; he shall come unto Adullam the glory of Israel. Shave thine head like a bald eagle, and poll thee for thy delicate children, for they are gone into captivity from thee, saith the Lord God.

Woe unto them that devise iniquity, and defile their beds; and when the morning breaks, they continue to practise it in their thoughts, and words, and deeds; for the power to do so is given unto them. They covet fields, and take them by violence and intrigue; houses and families they covet, and take them away; they oppress a man and his house, that he may obey their will, whims, and wishes; even a man's rightful inheritance they consider not. Therefore, thus saith the Lord, Behold, against them do I devise an evil, from which they shall not free their neck, nor shall they go haughtily, for this time is evil.

And in that day shall one take up a parable against you, and lament with a doleful lamentation, and say: We be utterly spoiled; he hath changed the portion of my people; how hath he removed it from me! Turning away he hath divided our fields. Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast a cord by lot in the congregation of the Lord. Prophecy ye not, for none of you are worthy of that holy calling; and say unto them that prophesy, to cease from this wickedness and shame. O thou that are of the house of Jacob, doth the Spirit of the Lord abide there? Are these his doings? Do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?

Recently my people is risen up as an enemy; and they pull off the robe with the garment from them that pass by securely as men returning from war. The women of my people have cast men out of their pleasant houses; and from their children have ye taken away my glory forever. Arise ye, and depart, for this is not your rest; because the land is polluted, and it shall destroy you with a sore destruction. If a man walking in his spirit and falsehood do lie, and prophesy unto them of wine and of strong drink, the same is the prophet of this people. I will surely confound thee, O Jacob, all of thee; and shall surely gather the remnant of Israel; and will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah, as the flock in the midst of their fold; and they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men. The breaker is come up before them; they are broken up; they shall pass through the gate, and be gone; and their king shall pass before them, and the Lord shall go ahead of them.

And I (Micah) said, Hear, I pray, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel, It is not for you to know judgement, ye who hate the good and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones; who also eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from off them; and they break their bones and chop them in pieces, as the meat prepared for the pot and the caldron. The time is nigh when they shall cry out unto the Lord in their grief and misery, but he will not hear them, and will hide his face from them; for they shall be given unto the cruel masters to judge them according to their laws, whose laws are their own selfish ends, their own whims, and their own wishes.

And thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that make my people err; that bite with their teeth, and cry, Peace; and he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him. Therefore, it shall be night unto them, that they shall not have a vision to divine, the sun shall go down over them, and in darkness they shall remain. Then shall their prophets be ashamed, and the diviners confounded; they shall cover their lips, for they shall receive no answer of God.

Yea, truly I (Micah) am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord, and of judgement and might, to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin. Hear this, I pray, ye heads of the house of Jacob and princes of the house of Israel, that abhor judgement and pervert equity. They have built up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. The headmen thereof judge for reward, priests thereof teach for hire, and the priests thereof divine and prophecy for money. Yet they lean upon their God, and say, Is not the Lord among us? None evil can come upon us. Therefore shall Zion for their sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps; and the mountain of the house of the Lord as the high places of the forest.

But, behold, in the last days, the mountain of the house shall be established in the top of the mountains; and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow into it from the four corners of the earth. And these nations shall say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us the way, and we will walk in his law; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he will judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore. Yea, they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make afraid; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it. For each man will walk in the name of his god, and we will walk in the name of the Lord our God, for ever and ever.

And in that day, saith the Lord, will I assemble all that are lame, all that are driven out, and all that I have afflicted; and I will make them whole, and drive away their afflictions, fears, and doubts; and the Lord their God shall reign over them in mount Zion, from henceforth, and forever. And thou O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem. But for now, why dost thou cry out aloud? Is there no king in thee? Is thy counsellor perished? For pangs have taken thee as a woman in travail. Be thou in pain, and labor to bring forth, O daughter of Zion; for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and shalt dwell in tents and fields; and thou shalt be taken to Babylon; there shalt thou be delivered, there the Lord shall redeem thee from the hands of thine enemies.

Now also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eyes look upon Zion. But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his counsel; for he shall gather them as sheaves into the floor. Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion; for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass; and thou shalt beat in pieces many people; and their gain and substance shall be consecrated unto the Lord of the whole earth. Therefore gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops; he hath laid siege against us; and the judges of Israel shall be smitten with a rod upon their cheek. But thou, Beth-lehem Ephrath, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be under in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting. Therefore the Lord will give them up, until the time that she which travaileth hath brought forth; then the remnant of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel. And he shall stand and feed in the strength of the Lord, even by the power of the priesthood of God, in the majesty of the name of the Lord his God; and they shall abide, for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth. And this man shall bring peace, when the time with the Assyrians shall be fulfilled, that they shall come into our land to tread in our palaces; then shall we raise against him (the Assyrian) seven shepherds, and eight principal men; and they shall waste the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof; thus the Lord shall deliver us from the Assyrian. And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people, as a dew from the Lord, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men. And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many nations as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep, who both treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver from his grasp. His hand shall be lifted up upon his adversaries, and all his enemies shall be cut off. And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will cut off his horses and destroy his chariots; and I will cut off (chariot) cities and all his strongholds. I will also cut off witchcraft out of his hand, and he shall have no soothsayers; thy graven images also will I cut off, and thy standing images out of the midst of thee; and they shall no more worship the work of their own hands. And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee, and destroy his cities. And in my wrath and fury I will execute judgement upon the heathen.

Hear ye now what the Lord saith, Arise, contend thou before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice. Hear ye, O mountains, the Lord's controversy, and ye strong foundations of the earth; for the Lord hath a controversy with his people; and the Lord standeth up to plead, saying, O my people, what have I done unto thee? And wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against me. For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. O my people, remember now what Balak king of Moab expected, and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him, that ye may know the righteous works of the Lord.

Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with a thousand rams, or with ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, and the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do good works, and love God's justice and his mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? The Lord's voice crieth unto thy cities, O Israel; his wisdom shall save thee, therefore, hear ye the rod, and the One who hath appointed it.

Are these yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and scant measure that is abominable? Shall I count them pure, that use wicked balances, and deceitful weights? And the rich men thereof are full of violence, and the inhabitants thereof speak falsely, and their tongue is full of deceit. Therefore shall I smite them, and make them desolate, because of their sins. They shall eat, but not be satisfied, they shall thirst and crave, and their hunger shall be in their inward parts; they shall take hold, but will not deliver, and that which is delivered, shall be taken away by the sword; they shall sow, but shall not reap; they shall tread the olives, but shall not cook in oil; they shall make sweet wine, but shall not drink it. For thou, O Israel abideth in the statutes of Omri, and all the sins of the house of Ahab, and ye walk in their counsels; therefore should I make thee a desolation, O Samaria, and the inhabitants thereof an hissing; and ye shall bear the reproach of my people, saith the Lord.

Woe is me (Micah)! For I am as when they have gathered the summer fruits, as the gleanings of the vintage grape, there is no cluster to eat, and my soul desireth the firstripe fruit. The goodness is perished out of the earth, and there is none upright among men; they all lie in wait for blood; they hunt every man his brother with a net, that they may do evil with both hands earnestly; the prince asketh, and the judge asketh for bribe openly; and the great man uttereth his mischievous desires; so they wrap it up. The best of them is a brier, and their most upright is sharper than a thorn hedge. The day of thy watchman and thy visitation cometh; now shall begin their perplexity. Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a guide; keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom; for the son dishonoreth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, and kinsfolk against kinsfolk; a man's enemies are his own household. Therefore I (Micah) will look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation, the hearer of my words.

Rejoice not against me, O mine enemies; for when I fall, I shall rise; and when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me. I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him; until he plead my cause, and execute judgement; he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness. Then mine enemy shall see, and shame shall cover her face, which said unto me, Where is the Lord thy God? She will be trodden down as the mire of the streets; and eyes shall behold her. And in the day that thy walls are to be built, O Samaria, shall the decree be far removed; for in that day also shall come to thee the Assyrian, from the fortified cities, from the fortress, even to the river, from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain. And the land shall become desolate, for the fruit of their doings. Therefore feed thy people with thy rod, even the flock of thine heritage that dwell solitarily in the wood, in the midst of Carmel; let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old. And as in the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I shew thee marvelous things. The nations shall see and be confounded at their might, they shall lay their hands upon their mouths, and their ears shall be deaf. They shall lick the dust like a serpent; they shall move out of their holes like worms of the earth; then shall the fear of the Lord come upon them. Who is a God like unto thee, O the Lord God of Israel, that pardoneth iniquity and overlooks the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? He retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy. He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will forgive our iniquities and transgressions, and cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Thou, O Lord, wilt perform thy word which thou gavest to Jacob, and to Abraham; which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old; and bless us again with thy grace and mercy.

Isaiah son of Amoz served Judah and Jerusalem in the days of kings Uzziah or Azariah (829-777 B.C.), Jotham (777-762 B.C.), Ahaz (762-746 B.C.), and Hezekiah (745-716 B.C.). Isaiah was a contemporary of the prophets Micah, Hosea and Oded. In the year that king Uzziah had died, Isaiah saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. He was commissioned by the Lord to warn Judah and Jerusalem concerning the coming judgements. The Lord said unto him, that they would hearken not unto his words, until the nation would come to ruin; and only a tenth of the holy seed would be left, like the stump of a massive tree. In the fourteenth year of Hezekiah (in 732 B.C.) Sennacherib son of Sargon II, king of Assyria, sent an army against Jerusalem, and was turned back; for Isaiah had aforetold that Assyria would not be the nation to dethrone the kings of Judah and destroy Jerusalem, but this would be done by Babylon. Although the Lord would allow the people to go into exile to Babylon, because of their rebellion and disbelief, God would in time judge Babylon because of her malice, and for holding God's people in captivity forever. But God's people would be redeemed and delivered out of Babylon, the harlot and mistress of kingdoms. Isaiah the prophet foretold many things, but his most important prophecies included the birth of a Messiah, known to the kingdom of God as Immanuel (meaning the Faithful or Righteous of God).

